The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 1. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JANUARY 4, 1868. WHOLE NO., 101.

SERMON

By the Rev. Bishop Ames.

The following is merely a sketch, written from memory, of an excellent sermon by the Rev. BISHOP AMES, delivered on Sabbath, December 22, 1867, in the Ames Methodist Episcopal Church. The congregation was large, and among other prominent citizens present was his Honor, the Mayor of our city. The attention was unbroken, and the interest profound :—[ED.

The text was from Matthew 1, 23: "And they shall call his name Emmanuel;" which, being interpreted, is God with us.

The bishop began by saying: "That spiritual and gracious processes are fitly illustrated by facts in the natural world. Thus our Savior pronounced his great doctrines of eternal life, and of personal religion, and then turned to the world for a commentary. Under his teachings nature became an illuminated missal, lettered by the lilies of the field, and penciled with hues that played through the leaves of Olivet. The wild birds in their flight, bore upward the lesson of Providence, and the significance of the kingdom of heaven was contained in a mustard seed. So, on this day we may follow his illustrious example. In the workings of Providence for the accomplishment of some great end, GOD IS NEVER IN HASTE. Haste is evidence of weakness, and of a conscious want of power. Far down in the unfathomed depths of ocean, are innumerable insects—the polypi—silently at work building the coral reefs, from which, in process of time, islands and continents arise, covered with nodding forests, and adorned with tropical fruits. So with God, in His ways of providence and grace. An eminent English writer has said: 'The mills of God grind slowly, but grind exceedingly fine.' With Him 'a thousand years are as a day.' The means by which He carries on his work are at once simple and mighty. The numberless streams, whose shining waters come dancing down the sides of the Rocky Mountains, transport a vast quantity of debris—the materials to bridge the ocean. The process is slow, but sure. So with morals. The christening of Christ was in eternity; ere God hung the world on nothing, or the sons of God shouted for joy.' A long time elapsed ere the Messiah came, but during that long period God was preparing the proof of His son's incarnation, which at length shone in glory around the brow of Salem's peaceful king.

The history of the church clearly proves that God appoints agents to work out some great problem of His providence, and at the chosen time those agents appear on the stage of life. This is God's method. In the darkest hour of Jewish history the Lord raised up Moses, who worked out the great question of Hebrew emancipation. The work was attended with difficulties, but difficulties are inseparable from great achievements. This is a dark day in our national history, and many say 'the former days were better than these.' Such look upon the dark side of the picture; but I prefer to look upon its bright side. The world to-day is better than ever before, and the sun of to-day shines upon a better world than yesterday. Sometimes things trouble us, and alarm our fears for the safety of the church. We are like the man who, standing on the banks of the Mississippi, sees near the shore a sawyer or snag, and as the waters dash against it, and then recede, declares that the current is flowing up stream. But let him look out into the middle of the stream, and there he will behold the mighty river sweeping on to the sea. So with society. Calamities befall us; bad men rise up and do much injury, and our fears are alarmed; but remember God is at the helm, and at the set time His chosen agents will appear. Moses has often been praised for his unselfish choice, and in this he is worthy; but there are not a few in this, and in every Christian congregation, who, were it put to them to choose between Christ and Mohammed, would not hesitate for a moment, and would cry out: 'Lead on.' No matter what suffering might follow. Moses had difficulties, but was not daunted, and at length triumphed. I should like to die like Moses, for in his death there is much of the moral sublime. God took him up to the heights of Moab, where from his outlook he saw the land of promise 'unto the utmost sea,' and then angels kissed his soul away. He died in the highlands of glorious vision.

And in looking along the track of ages we see God raising up William Tell, to defend the Swiss mountaineers against the tyrant Gesler. So in Scotland he called forth Bruce and Wallace. And it is a significant fact that the men thus chosen were not foreigners, but native to the soil. When our Revolutionary war broke out, we had in Burk and Pitt strong friends, but they were not equal to the emergency; so the Lord raised up Washington and Franklin, our own countrymen, and I thank God for our fathers.

But this thought is more completely illustrated in the manifestations of God in the flesh. All was lost. The race was without a savior. Neither angels nor men could redeem mankind, so God gave 'his only begotten son,' who, when born was called 'Emmanuel—God with us.' Many complain that Christ's divinity is a 'big mystery;' but mysteries do not admit of degrees of comparison. When the mariner is ordered to cast the lead, and when he can't touch bottom, he does not say 'almost bottom,' but replies 'no bottom, sir.' So with the angels; they do not stumble at things incomprehensible, but cry out, 'O, the depth,' and leave the matter there. It is sometimes said that 'human souls were not worth this monifestation of divinity.' But it were impossible to form an adequate idea of the value of a human soul. Were it possible for us to erect scales of sufficient proportions to hold the universe in one side, and a deathless human spirit in the other side, the world would 'kick the beam'—one soul would outweigh the universe! I love to see a child open its great wondering eyes, so full of thought. And how often do children come to us with their great questions, which we can't answer, and we say: 'Run away, little ones, grandpapa is busy now.' So we children of larger growth can't get our questions answered satisfactorily. Yet, shall we reject the fact of Christ's divinity, because it is a mystery? Nay, let us rather accept the fact confirmed by all history, both secular and sacred, that God raises up men to accomplish the lofty purposes of His will, and that in harmony therewith Jesus Christ came into the world to work out the great problem of human redemption.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL.

At Marine (Freedmen's) Hospital.

The employees, orphans, and convalescents, numbering about four hundred, sat down in the large hospital dining room, which was appropriately decorated for the occasion, to a most substantial Christmas dinner. Surgeon-in-charge Dr. D. Mackay, presiding, executive officer Dr. W. A. Gray, coupier. After a most fervent grace by George Smith, one of the blind patients, their happy thankful hearts made the "welkin ring" by singing that soul stiring doxology "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and when the good cheer on the festive board had been duly disposed of, the following programme was carried out in the most recherche style: Opening address by Dr. D. Mackay; song "America," by the company standing, followed by an eloquent speech by Dr. W. H. Gray, in which he stated that the meeting was typical of the progress our country had made toward a grand and purer civilization, finishing his address by the recitation of Longfellow's "Building of the Ship of State." Then the children sang "No Slave Beneath the Starry Flag," followed by a recitation from Master Alphonso Smith, "Work While You Work." At this stage the Rev. Mr. John Jones responded to a call from the chair, and in most appropriate language expressed his most hearfelt satisfaction at the scene before him. Mr. Burns, the wardmaster of the hospital, then sung most affectingly, "Bonnie Jean." After a speech from Dr. Hershey, the children sung "The Home Beyond the Tide," followed by a most apropos recitation, "My Policy," by Master Gilbert Newman. The matron of the orphan asylum, Mrs. H. M. Roberts, then spoke of the glorious Star Spangled Banner which floated over their heads, depicting the sufferings and sacrifices our forefathers had made, and urging them by every act of their lives to preserve its escutcheon forever untarnished, ending by proposing three cheers for the "Brave Old Flag," which were given and repeated with all the hearty vim that four hundred throats could give. Then followed a few remarks from Miss Sampson, teacher of the orphan's school, whose labors in training the children can not be too highly estimated. A recitation was then given by Miss Rosetta Parlyte. The chairman then said that this country owed more to old John Brown, than to any or all of her legion of patriots, for he it was who set the ball rolling which has crushed slavery forever. The company standing then sang the "John Brown" chorus, the whole terminating with "Auld Lang Sine," when as happy a crowd as ever partook of a "Christmas feast" separated with many wishes

"Thus to meet again."

Later in the evening "Santa Claus" came in loaded down with presents for the children. Altogether there could hardly be conceived a more happy Christmas than that enjoyed by all at the United States Marine Hospital, and the officers return many thanks for the liberality of those who donated to produce the above result.

A Resolution of the English Conference for 1821,

Says: "We again resolve, after the example of our venerable fathers in the gospel, with all plainness and zeal, to preach a free, present, and full salvation from sin—a salvation flowing from the mere grace of God, through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus, apprehended by the simple exercise of faith, and indispensably preparatory to a course of practical holiness. And in the great work our only reliance for success is upon the grace of the Holy Spirit, by whose inspiration alone it is that the gospel in any instance is rendered "the power of God unto salvation." And Carvosso's remark upon this resolution is: "I am more than ever persuaded that when this doctrine is preached God will own and bless it, and that signs and wonders will be wrought in the name of Jesus."

Faith Seizes Christ and the Promises.

Faith does not merely wait for Divine influence, but actually lays hold of it, as well as every other purchased and promised blessing. Yea, by simple faith, promises and promises are made all our own. In this school I often lament my want of proficiency; but blessed be God! I can truly say I am desirous of learning his way more perfectly. That I may make sensible objects subservient to the realities which faith reveals, and glory to God! I think I can say I have lately mastered some profitable lessons; and hereby my soul is stirred up to get fresh fire from the holy altar. But I want my powers to be put in quicker and stronger motion toward Him whose love is a sea.

For some of my best thoughts on faith I am indebted to the excellent memoirs and letters of Mrs. Rogers.

CARVOSSO.

[For the Watchman and Reflector.]

The Nicene Creed.

The brief creed which bears the name of the apostles was soon found inadequate to guard the true doctrine against the perverse constructions of the heritics. Arius, and other deniers of the Deity of Christ, could use its language without scruple, putting opon it their own interpretation. A council was accordingly convened at Nice, or Nicaea, in Bithynia, in the year 325, principally for the purpose of defining more clearly and fully the doctrine of the person of Christ. Three hundred and eighteen bishops, with a much larger number of inferior clergy, met at the summons of the Emperor Constantine. Their traveling expenses were defrayed from the imperial treasury, and their support while at the council was provided for in the same way. Most of them came from the eastern countries. No bishop was present from Italy; but the bishop of Rome. the aged Silvester, whose infirmitief did not permit him to attend, was represented by two of his presbyters. For all the countries west of Italy there was but one representative, Hosius, bishop of Cordova, in Spain.

The council was formally opened on the 19th of June, and closed its sessions on the 35th of August, having lasted sixty-seven days. Various forms of doctrinal confession were presented, and warmly discussed, before the council could come to an agreement. At last the signatures of all the members except two were obtained to the creed, as adopted by the council. But the creed so adopted was not precisely what now goes under the name of the Nicene Creed. It was found that its terms did not exclude farther controversy; and so it was amended at a Second Œcemenical Council, convened at Constantinople by the Emperor Theodosius, in the year 381. During the interval since the Nicene Council, about a dozen different creeds had been framed and promulgated by different provincial councils. This Second Œcumenical Council held three distinct meetings; the first in May, 381, the second near the beginning of the year 382, and the third in June, 383. It was at the second of these meetings that the amended form of the creed was drawn up and adopted. The number of bishops at this meeting was about one hundred and fifty. The amended creed, which is more accurately called the Niceno-Constantinopolitan, differed in many places from the original Nicene. The difference will be the best exhibited by placing them in parallel columns.

Nicene.

We believe in one God, the Father Almighty, Maker of all things visible and invisible; and in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God, begotten of the Father: the only begotten, that is, of the substance of the Father, God of God, Light of Light, very God of very God, begotten, not made, of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made, both which are in heaven and which are in earth; who for us men and for our salvation came down from heaven, and was incarnate and made man; he suffered, and rose again the third day. He ascended into heaven, and will come again to judge both the quick and the dead; and in the Holy Spirit.

(Here the creed proper ends; but the council added the following:)

And those who say that there was a time when the Son of God was not, and that He did not exist before He was made, and that He was made of things that are not, or that He is of another substance or essence. or that He is created, or convertible, or changeable, the Catholic church anathematizes them.

Constantinopolitan.

We believe in one God, the Father Almighty, Maker of heaven and earth, and of all things visible and invisible: and in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God; begotten of the Father before all worlds, Light of Light, very God of very God, begotten, not made, of one substance with the Father, by whom all things were made; who for us men and for our salvation came down from heaven, and was incarnate by the Holy Ghost of the Virgin Mary, and was made man; and was crucified for us under Pontius Pilate; He suffered, and was buried, and rose again the third day, according to the scriptures, and ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of the Father, and will come again to judge both the quick and the dead, whose kingdom shall have no end: and in the Holy Ghost, the Lord and Giver of life, who proceedeth from the Father; who with the Father and the son together is worshiped and glorified; who spake by the prophets: in one Catholic and Apostolic church; we acknowledge one baptism for the remission of sins, and we look for the resurrection of the dead, and the life of the world to come. Amen.

It will be observed that the doctrine of the Holy Spirit, and also of the church, is much more fully developed in the later edition of the creed. In regard to the person of Christ, one of the most important additions is that affirming His eternal generation—"begotten of the Father before all worlds." This is a doctrine which has not commonly been much emphasized among Protestants, and has been doubted by many; but never so far as we know, denied in any formula of faith.

On the whole, we do not find this Nicene Creed adapted to be a text of orthodoxy or a bond of union in our day. Its omission of all recognition of the Divine inspiration and supreme authority of the Scriptures is a fatal defect. And its doctrine of "baptism for the remission of sins" is such a departure from the teaching and the language of Scripture as can never receive the sanction of sound and intelligent Baptists.

Personal Cleanliness.

An anxious mother once brought her delicate child to a distinguished English physician—Abernethy, we believe—complaining of its continual ill health, and asking for some remedy. Pocketing his fee, the doctor muttered, "Plenty of soap and water, madam!" Cleanliness was the remedy required in the child's case, as it is in that of many others who seek the causes of their disease in the stomach, head, or lungs.

Our readers are of course aware of the important part the pores of the skin exercise in the animal economy. Not merely is it their function to afford a passage for the continual perspiration which carries off many impurities of the body; they also admit air, and in such quantities that, according to an authentic story, a child once covered with gold leaf, to represent an angel, died almost immediately of congestion. When the pores are stopped by impurities, although the effect may be less apparent and rapid, it is not the less certain, and disease must inevitably follow.

We are sure that to some extent the physician's advice is borne in mind by mothers and intelligent people, as one manufacturing firm alone—Colgate & Company—sends out annually five million pounds of ordinary brown soap, and one million of the finer sorts, and, to meet their large increase of trade which requires 125,000 pounds of fat weekly, 800 tons of alkali annually, other ingredients in proportion, and the cooperation of nearly 200 men, are erecting an extensive factory. But, notwithstanding these large quantities, we do not think that sufficient soap is used by the community. "The great unwashed" is an epithet usually applied to the coal heaver and men of his class; but the truth is that, excepting the face and hands, which are washed to save appearance, little attention is habitually paid to personal cleanliness by many who ought to know better. We have great faith in soap, liberally supplied, and due attention to health will suggest a constant use of any of the excellent kinds manufactured by the well known firm of Colgate & Co.—New York Evening Gazette.

Captain Richard W. Meade, of the navy, has been placed on the retired list, in consequence of physical disability.

Statistics of the Mississippi Mission Conference, Reported at the Third Annual Session, December, 1867.

| DISTRICTS AND CHARGES. | Members | Probationers | Local Preachers | Adults Baptized | Infants Baptized | Conversions | Deaths | Churches | Parsonages | School Houses | Probable Value | Collection's for Bible Soc'y | Missionary Society | Sunday School Union | Tract Society | Ch'ch Extension Society | Sunday Schools | Officers and Teachers | Scholars | Volumes in Library | Advocates taken | S. School papers taken | Total of Money raised |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| NEW ORLEANL DISTRICT. | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Ames Church | 83 | 3 | 1 | 8 | 5 | 1 | | 1 | | | $50,000 | $ | $ | $ | $ | $ | 1 | 18 | 95 | 400 | 50 | 50 | $4000 00 |
| Four th District Church | 54 | | | | 3 | | 1 | | | | | | | | | | 1 | 13 | 55 | 200 | | | 500 00 |
| Sixth street | 20 | 55 | 7 | | 2 | 20 | | 1 | | | 6500 | 2 50 | 10 00 | 2 50 | 2 50 | 2 50 | 1 | 8 | 55 | 220 | 3 | 160 | 108 00 |
| Wesley Chapel | 1121 | 274 | 5 | 40 | 80 | 50 | 6 | 1 | | 1 | 43,500 | 2 00 | 20 00 | 2 50 | 5 00 | | 3 | 20 | 230 | | 80 | 100 | 2750 00 |
| Marais street | 989 | 96 | | 49 | 38 | 58 | 2 | 1 | | | 10,000 | 2 00 | 10 00 | 5 00 | 3 00 | | 1 | 6 | 100 | | 80 | | 1545 00 |
| First street | 547 | 32 | 2 | 21 | 87 | 67 | | 1 | | 1 | 7200 | 5 00 | 12 00 | 4 00 | 2 00 | | 1 | 11 | 152 | 115 | 90 | | 2943 25 |
| LaHarpe street | 76 | 71 | 2 | 59 | 18 | 50 | 3 | 1 | | | 6000 | 2 00 | 10 00 | 2 50 | 2 50 | | 1 | 5 | 70 | | 16 | | 593 05 |
| Jefferson and Carrollton | 290 | 90 | 4 | 35 | 80 | 75 | 5 | 1 | | | 82,000 | 4 00 | 10 00 | 4 00 | | 1 00 | 1 | 7 | 70 | 30 | 7 | | 1233 00 |
| Mandeville | 303 | 145 | 4 | 10 | 17 | 92 | | 2 | | | 300 | 2 00 | 9 00 | 2 50 | 1 00 | | 2 | 5 | 75 | | 5 | | 230 00 |
| Ross Chapel | 70 | 19 | 3 | 4 | 6 | 10 | 1 | 1 | | | 2600 | 2 00 | 6 00 | 1 00 | 1 00 | | 1 | 3 | 20 | | 1 | | 594 00 |
| Poet street | 272 | 92 | 3 | 8 | 12 | 57 | 3 | 1 | | | 6500 | 5 00 | 5 00 | 5 00 | 5 00 | | 1 | 5 | 60 | | 12 | 100 | 1006 00 |
| Baton Rouge | 434 | 132 | 6 | 40 | 25 | 60 | 2 | 1 | | | 3219 | | 5 00 | | | | 3 | 9 | 103 | 50 | 22 | | 1900 00 |
| Clinton | 400 | 105 | 3 | 16 | 8 | 40 | 3 | 2 | | | 2000 | | 10 80 | | | | 2 | 5 | 106 | 30 | 5 | | 350 00 |
| Pass Christian | 74 | 74 | 3 | 5 | | 7 | 1 | 3 | | | 1800 | | 2 25 | | | | 2 | 6 | 40 | | 7 | | 102 50 |
| Summary | 4733 | 1188 | 43 | 295 | 381 | 587 | 27 | 20 | | 2 | $147,319 | $26 50 | $110 05 | $29 00 | $22 00 | $3 50 | 23 | 121 | 1225 | 1045 | 398 | 350 | $16,962 80 |
| OPELOUSAS DISTRICT—CIRCUITS. | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Donaldsonville | 452 | 112 | 6 | 34 | 41 | 10 | 17 | 2 | | 2 | $3760 | $1 50 | $2 00 | $2 00 | | | 5 | 9 | 210 | 40 | 40 | 50 | $1072 00 |
| Thibodeaux | 410 | 123 | 5 | 50 | 38 | 24 | 7 | 2 | | 2 | 5600 | 2 00 | 2 00 | 1 00 | | | 4 | 5 | 185 | 45 | 16 | 90 | 250 00 |
| Franklin | 330 | 120 | 4 | 23 | 16 | 30 | | 1 | | | 2600 | 3 00 | 2 50 | 3 00 | | | 5 | 13 | 350 | 60 | 45 | 80 | 1050 00 |
| St Martinsville | 203 | 42 | 3 | 31 | 33 | 35 | 2 | 1*1 | | | 200 | 2 00 | 1 50 | 1 00 | | | 3 | 5 | 145 | 10 | 16 | 40 | 385 00 |
| Opelousas | 392 | 62 | 1 | 18 | 28 | 7 | 20 | 2 | | | 2760 | 2 00 | *3 00 | 1 50 | | | 3 | 9 | 130 | 15 | 10 | 80 | 477 00 |
| Alexandria | 749 | 123 | 6 | 130 | 57 | 45 | 21 | 1 | 1 | 1 | 3500 | 2 00 | 1 00 | 2 00 | | | 6 | 14 | 385 | 50 | 20 | 60 | 533 00 |
| Natchitoches | 370 | 122 | 3 | 24 | 22 | 13 | 9 | 1 | | 1 | 2400 | 3 00 | 4 00 | 2 00 | | | 3 | 4 | 170 | 25 | 32 | 40 | 300 00 |
| Shreveport | 150 | 60 | 4 | | | | | | 1 | | | | | | | | 1 | 3 | 70 | | 4 | 60 | 40 00 |
| Washita | 350 | 67 | 5 | 79 | 78 | 150 | | 1 | | | 600 | | | | | | 3 | 4 | 110 | | 6 | 50 | 350 00 |
| Summary | 3456 | 838 | 37 | 399 | 313 | 412 | 76 | 10 | 1 | 6 | $21,420 | $17 50 | $17 50 | $13 50 | | | 33 | 66 | 1755 | 245 | 189 | 590 | $4477 00 |
| MISSISSIPPI DISTRICT—CIRCUITS. | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Vicksburg | 473 | 200 | 1 | 100 | 75 | 200 | 2 | 1 | 1 | | $2500 | | $18 75 | | | | 2 | 4 | 70 | | 1 | | $7300 00 |
| Yazoo city | 224 | 14 | 4 | 13 | 15 | 15 | 5 | 1 | | | 2000 | | | | | | 1 | 1 | 30 | | 12 | | 221 00 |
| Jackson | 705 | 123 | 8 | 55 | 49 | 162 | 6 | 2 | | | 2500 | | 11 25 | | | | 2 | 8 | 200 | | 29 | 100 | 196 00 |
| Canton | 128 | | 4 | | 16 | | | 1 | | | 2000 | | | | | | 1 | 1 | 22 | | | | |
| Meridia | 269 | 95 | 3 | 96 | 38 | 43 | 5 | 2 | 1 | | 2800 | | 9 60 | | | | 2 | 5 | 195 | 280 | 23 | | 110 00 |
| Shugabah | 120 | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Macon | 282 | | 3 | | | | 5 | 1 | | | 2000 | | | | | | 1 | 8 | 95 | | | | 53 00 |
| Columbus | 411 | 38 | 3 | 37 | 80 | 40 | 3 | 1 | | | 2000 | | 9 00 | | | | 2 | 6 | 150 | | 27 | | 460 65 |
| Aberdden | 557 | 100 | 5 | 24 | | | 1 | * | | | 2500 | | 2 85 | | | | 3 | 9 | 96 | | | | 139 50 |
| Guntown | 152 | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Corinth | 120 | | 2 | 20 | 1 | | 1 | 1 | | | 2300 | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Holly Springs | 168 | | 1 | 6 | | | 1 | | | | 2500 | | | | | | 1 | 7 | 70 | | | | 24 25 |
| Oxford | 99 | | 1 | | | | 1 | | | | 1900 | | | | | | 1 | 3 | 20 | | | | 61 00 |
| Grenada | 132 | 34 | 2 | 9 | 13 | 21 | 1 | 1 | 1 | | 2800 | | 5 00 | | | | | | | | | | |
| Cuchada circuit | 80 | | 1 | | | | | | | | | | | | | | 1 | 4 | 75 | | | | 47 00 |
| Summary | 3920 | 604 | 38 | 360 | 285 | 481 | 28 | 14 | 4 | | $26,900 | | $56 48 | | | | 17 | 56 | 1023 | 250 | 92 | 100 | $1385 40 |
| SOUTH MISS. DISTRICT—CIRCUITS. | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Enterprise | 225 | 75 | 1 | 12 | 7 | 20 | 5 | 2 | | | $2300 | | $2 00 | | | | | | | | | | |
| Shubuta | 554 | 131 | 2 | 35 | 14 | 100 | 5 | 1 | | | 3000 | | 2 00 | | | | 2 | 6 | 165 | | 10 | | 430 00 |
| Clinton | 160 | 10 | 2 | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | 150 | | | | |
| Durant | 176 | 4 | 2 | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Panola | 85 | 5 | 2 | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | | |
| Summary | 1200 | 225 | 9 | 47 | 21 | 120 | 10 | 3 | | | $5300 | | $4 00 | | | | 2 | 6 | 315 | | 19 | | $430 00 |

GRAND SUMMARY.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Members | 13,309 | Probable Value | $200,939 |
| Probationers | 2,855 | Collections for Bible Society | 44 00 |
| Local Preachers | 127 | Missionary Society | 186 03 |
| Adults Baptized | 1,101 | Sunday School Union | 49 50 |
| Infants Baptized | 1,009 | Tract Society | 22 00 |
| Conversions | 1,480 | Church extension Society | 3 50 |
| Deaths | 142 | Number of Sunday Schools | 73 |
| Churches | 47 | Officers and Teachers | 243 |
| Parsonages | 5 | Scholars | 4,165 |
| Schoolhouses | 8 | Volumes in Library | 1,790 |
| Advocates taken | 639 | | |
| Sunday School Papers taken | 1,049 | | |
| Total of Money raised | | | $23,255 20 |
| Members and Probationers | 16,164 | | |
| Members and Probationers last year | 7,899 | | |
| Gain | 8,265 | | |

Death and Immortality in the Poets.

Dying and living forever have been supreme inspirations of the poetic brain, and awakened numbers of inimitable rhythm and beauty. We once heard a Rajah from India describe a valley of Cathay as "the dimple on the cheek of the world." More beautiful still are the poetic gems, numerous as the world-systems decking the starry night sky, that speak to us of life, death, and immortality. They lie scattered profusely through the fields of poesy, and express sentiments that will thrill upon humanity till the latest time.

Edward Young was born in 1681, and died in 1765. His "Night Thoughts" are a monument of intellectual labor that will make him immortal in the memories of men. How tensely, sharply, vividly, does he embody his poetic dreams in words; with what grasp and breadth of thought; with what beauty and vigor of expression! List to his song on life and death:

This is the bud of being, the dim dawn,
The twilight of our day, the vestibule;
Life's theatre as yet is shut, and Death,
Strong Death alone, can have the massy bar,
This gross impediment of clay remove,
And make us embryos of existence free.

Then when his poetic brain approaches to measure the idea of immortality, how his words grow big with infinite meaning. Does the English language contain bolder words, vaster thoughts, in space so brief as these?

Immortal! ages past, yet nothing gone!
Morn without eve! A race without a goal!
Unshortened by progression infinite!
Futurity forever future! life
Beginning still where computation ends!
'Tis the description of a Deity!
'Tis the description of the meanest slave!

Joseph Addison, who was born in 1672 and died in 1718, excelled as a moralist, a philosopher, and rhetorician, and is not without fame as a poet. His description of human aspirations after immortality touch the feelings, and call forth responsive feelings from every heart.

It must be so, Plato, thou reasonest well;
Else whence this pleasing hope, this fond desire,
This longing after immortality?
Or whence this secret dread, and inward horror
Of falling into naught? Why shrinks the soul
Back on herself, and startle at destruction?
'Tis the divinity that stirs within us;
'Tis heaven itself that points out an hereafter,
And intimates eternity to man.

Henry W. Longfellow was born in 1807, and has yet we trust many days to live and many poems to write. His "Psalm of Life" is a "thing of beauty" and will be "a joy forever." It shrouds great thoughts in strange weird melody. Who can read without being incited to deeds of noble doing?

Life is real, life is earnest.
And the grave is not the goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returneth,
Was not written of the soul.
* * * * * * *
There is no death! What seems so is transition,
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call death.

Richard H. Dana wasborn in 1787, and his name will forever stand associated wirh these beautiful thoughts on imfiortality:

O listen man!
A voice within us speaks that startling word,
"Man, thou shalt never die!" Celestial voices
Hymn it round our souls; according harps,
By angel fingers touched, when the mild stars
Of morning sang together, sound forth still
The song of our great immortality.

Woman and Marriage.

I have speculated a great deal on matrimony. I have seen young and beautiful women, the pride of gay circles, married, as the world says, well. Some have moved into their costly houses, and their friends have all come and looked at their furniture and their splendid home for happiness, and have gone away and committed them to their sunny hopes cheerfully and without fear. It is natural to be sanguine for them, as the young are carried away with similar feelings. I love to get unobserved into a corner, and watch the bride in her white attire, and, with her smiling face and soft eye meeting me in the pride of life, weave a waking dream of future happiness, and pursuade myself that it will be true. I think how they will sit upon the luxurious sofa as the twilight falls, and build gay hopes, and murmur in low tones the not now forbidden tenderness; and how thrillingly the allowed kiss and beautiful endearments of wedded life will make even their parting joyous, and how gladly they will come back from the crowded and empty mirth of the gay to each other's company.

I picture to myself that young creature who blushes even now at his hesitating caress, listening eagerly for his footsteps as the night steals on, wishing he would come, and when he enters at last with an affection as undying as his pulse folds her to his bosom, I can feel the tide that goes flowing through the heart, and gaze on the graceful form as she moves about for the kind offices of affection, smoothing all his unquiet cares, and making him forget even himself in her young and unshadowed beauty. I go forward for years and see her luxuriant hair put soberly away from her brow; and her girlish graces resigned into dignity, and loveliness chastened with the gentle meekness of maternal affection. Her husband looks on her with a proud eye, and shows the fervent love and delicate attentions which first won her; and her fair children are grown up about them, and they go on full of honor and untroubled years, and are remembered when they did.

Irving.

Miss Susan B. Anthony is in Washington soliciting subscriptions for her new paper, the Revolution, which is to be the special organ of female suffrage in the United States. She has been visiting most of the members of congress, and has been quite successful.

How the French Prince Imperial is Educated.

"Train up a child in the way he should go," etc., is one of the oldest axioms the world is familiar with, and at the present moment the Emperor Napoleon is evidently acting upon it with considerable activity. He has recently had constructed in the private garden of the Tuileries a couple of miniature fortifications, by the aid of which the young prince imperial is being instructed in the art of war. One of these fortifications is regular in form; the other consists of a small fort or redoubt, thrown up at an emergency, to defend either a passage, a bridge, or a camp. The ditch is furnished with a stockade to insure the occupants of the fort against surprise, and the outer approaches are defended by a number of round pits placed close together. When the imperial family are at the Tuileries the prince receives daily instruction in the art of military engineering by the aid of these miniature works from the mouth of an officer of engineers attached to the emperor's person, and at times even from the emperor himself. It is said, moreover, that the boy takes the highest interest in these studies, which he pursues (say the French papers) with passionate zeal; therefore, we have less reason to fear that when he grows old he may depart from those "idées Napoléoniennes" in which he is so consistently bred.

The bill of Thomas W. Knox, on his return from his round-the-world voyage for the Herald, was five thousand dollars in gold, which that journal promptly paid. As only ten of his letters were printed, they cost the Herald five hundred dollars each in coin. That is not quite as expensive as the captured correspondents—Richardson and Browne—were to the Tribune. Their bill was some three thousand six hundred dollars apiece when they escaped from prison, and for the sum they wrote about three columns, which was nearly twelve hundred dollars per column in currency.

WEATHER AND WEDLOCK.—Punch defines the English summer as three fine days and a thunder storm. It also applies the characterization to matrimony.

NAME AND FAME.—The recent incidents in the islands of the Gulf of Mexico have called attention to them as suitable localities for Quaker settlements.

COMPENSATION.—It has been generally conceded that the pen was the medium by which spoken utterances were placed permanently on record. Now, however, a means has been devised by which the organ of speech may pay back to the organ of record the debt due. That is, the tongue may do for the pencil what the pen does for speech. A paragraph going the rounds says that pencil writing may be fixed almost indelibly as ink by passing the moistened tongue over it. Even breathing slowly over the lines, after writing, renders them much less liable to erasure than when not subjected to that process. A trial of the experiment will readily satisfy any person of the utility of the idea.

Anson Ruggles, of Hardwick, Mass., celebrates his eighty-fourth birthday at the house of his son-in-law, William Mixter, on Tuesday. He is the last of a large family of brothers, and is quite hearty, and as straight as a boy of twenty.

General Grant was visited at the War Department on Thursday by a large number of distinguished persons, among whom were Generals Sherman and H. G. Wright, several senators and representatives.

New Orleans Advocate

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months..... 2 00
Three Months..... 1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be btained at the News Room of A. Simons, Baronne street.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 4, 1867.

New Volume.

With this issue, we commence the Third Volume of the New Orleans Advocate. The prospects before us are flattering. At the late session of our Conference, the preachers ordered in the aggregate over seven hundred copies to be sent to their charges. This was exceedingly encouraging, and we commence the year with renewed zeal.

Although the editor-in-chief is required to discharge the duties of a presiding elder and of a pastor, and the assistant editor has the charge of two churches, yet it is our purpose to devote all the time possible to the Advocate, that it may be one of the best church papers in the South. And it is equally due the editors to state, that they work on the paper without any remuneration whatever; and, also, that the editor is financially responsible for the current expenses of the Advocate. We thus labor for the love of God. Our mission is to do good, and to this end we employ the press, one of the mightiest of all the christianizing agencies known to the world.

At the late session of our conference, the Advocate was enthusiastically endorsed by the preachers. Bishop Ames, and Revs. Messrs. Diossy, Henry, Lynch, Ross, Green, Chinn, and many others, spoke in terms of commendation and of devotion to this great church interest And our preachers are the best judges of the amount of good the Advocate is accomplishing. It is their assistant preacher, repeating their pulpit utterances in the quiet of the family. And as these preachers carry it into all the interior parishes of the State, the Advocate has a larger country circulation than any other loyal journal in Louisiana.

At the conference, the question of subscription was thoroughly discussed, and after due deliberation we have concluded to reduce the price of the Advocate to Three Dollars a Year in Advance, or one dollar a quarter in advance. This is as low as we can possibly afford to publish the paper, and at this price we but just pay expenses. But we intend to make the Advocate fully worth this amount.

With this number we commence the official publication of the proceedings of our State Constitutional Convention, which will be found on our supplement sheet. Our readers in the country parishes need not, therefore, purchase other papers to obtain these proceedings, as they will find them in their own Advocate

And now we cordially invite the co-operation of every Preacher, Subscriber, and Friend of the church and the country to the hearty support of the New Orleans Advocate.

To Our Preachers.

Dear Brethren:—We mail to your name the number of copies of the Advocate which you gave us at Conference. Take the papers to the church with you and show them to the people, and explain to them from the pulpit the importance of subscribing for the Advocate. Tell them that it will contain sermons preached by our ministers; notices of the marriages and deaths which occur in our congregations, which are sent for publication; all important religious and political intelligence; the journals of our presiding elders which are sent to us; a weekly statement of the market; articles on the education, the wages and general improvement of the Colored Man, and editorials on whatever is of importance to the Church and State.

And then ask them to subscribe at once. Remember: The price is Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance. Direct your letters to Rev. Dr. Newman, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Price Reduced.

The New Orleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February First, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

Church South.

The Louisiana Conference of the Church South, recently held its annual session in this city. Only forty members were present; the others could not come because of their extreme poverty. The session was uninteresting. Bishop Payne presided, and when he had read out the appointments, he told the preachers to go to their work, and do the best they could; and if the people would not support them, they must turn to secular pursuits, and take care of their own families. Alas!

Rev. W. N. Darnell.

This faithful Christian has been granted a transfer to the Missouri and Arkansas Conference. He has but little poetry in his nature, but a good deal of hard common sense. We bespeak for him a cordial greeting among his new associates.

Bishop Ames in New Orleans.

This chief pastor of our church, and eminent minister of the Lord Jesus, has again visited New Orleans. His presence was thrice welcome to our people. His name to them is a household word. They remember, with joy and gratitude, his visit here in 1864, when he came to give to the masses the Gospel, unstained by treason and unpolluted by slavery. His name is, therefore, inseparably linked with the history of this mission, and the historian of the church will recognize him as the episcopal pioneer who conceived the thought and initiated the plan to re-establish the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South. Of the wisdom of that plan and of the Divine approval thereof the success of our work is the emphatic proof. God be praised for such foresight, and the courage and firmness displayed in the inauguration of this mission; and thousands now do, as thousands yet to come will, bless the Lord that the old church again threw open her portals to the famishing millions of the South. Our colored people especially remember Bishop Ames, and their old pastors—Ross, Chinn, and Green—recognize him as the Bishop who first received them as brethren in the Lord, and acknowledged them as ministers of the Gospel, and their call to the sacred office as equal to his own. His coming, therefore, was timely, and his presence a joy to us all. And our people were only too happy to have him as their guest on two occasions—on the evening of December 23, at the house of the Hon. R. K. Howell, and on Christmas night, at the residence of Captain W. B. Armstrong—where, at both places, many of our citizens called to pay their respects to the Bishop.

But it was his sermon on Sabbath morning, December 22, in the Ames M. E. Church, which made the more enduring impression on the public mind. The people say, "He talked to us," which conveys a world of meaning. He was rhetorical, but the rhetorician was lost in the preacher; he sermonized, but his homiletics appeared in the simple structure of his discourse and the sublime naturalness of his expression, rather than in the formal and imposing announcement of the plan of his sermon. While as a preacher he is far removed from the familiarity which breeds contempt, yet he has that true simplicity of manner which inspires confidence in his sincerity, and touches the heart. He talks truth to the people, and his sermons are a means, and not an end. One acquainted with the Bishop's mental grasp, the soundness of his judgment, and his love of whatever is fundamental, is surprised at the poetry of his thoughts and the frequent exquisite beauty of his language. All will remember his profound delineation of the character of Moses, and how he finished the picture of the death-scene of the great son of Jochebed by the beautiful saying, "And angels kissed his soul away." And who will forget the child-like remark that followed the careful discussion of Bible mysteries, that children often ask questions that parents can't answer, and the evasive answer is given, "Run away my little ones; grandpapa is busy now" Old men wept under that allusion, and felt that they, as children of larger growth, should be content with what is written. So the whole congregation was melted to tears when the Bishop was illustrating the safe arrival of the Christian in heaven by the mother who had stood all day at the depot waiting for the train to bring her son home from the war, and when she saw him she rushed through the crowd and threw her maternal arms around his neck, and with unspeakable joy pressed him to her bosom. Nor shall we soon forget the story of the eagle set free from his prison cage, to illustrate the joy of a saint when released from this poor, dying body. The proud bird had been caught, and in his confinement had injured his talons in his struggles to get free. He was removed from the cage that the injuries might heal, when a friend suggested to the owner to set him free. It was done, and the royal bird spread his wings and for a moment poising thereon, he took a farewell look at his prison, and then soared to hail the sun. After such a sermon the people said, "When shall we hear the Bishop again?"

Mississippi Mission Conference.

The third session of the Mississippi Mission Conference, the proceedings of which may be found in another part of the Advocate, was opened in this city on December 19th, and was closed on the 24th instant. The session was held in the Marais street Methodist Episcopal Church, and the Rev. Bishop Ames, presided. All the preachers but two were present, and there was a very large atttendance of candidates for admission and for ordination. The Rev. Scott Chinn, the pastor of the church, was untiring in his efforts to add to the comfort of the preachers, and to provide for the accommodation of the conference, and he succeeded admirably.

The presence of Bishop Ames added largely to the interest of the session. His connection with the origin of this mission, and his personal acquaintance with Fathers Ross, Green, and Chinn, who preserves with sincere affection the license and copies of the military order which he gave them four years ago, rendered his presence doubly gratifying to all the members. Always wise and self-possessed, he seemed even more so when presiding over the deliberations of a young conference, most of whose members are unaccustomed to the practical business of an annual conference, and who, not six years ago, were slaves. Like all truly great men, eminently simple, he adapted himself to his surroundings, and inspired assurance in the minds of his humbler brethren. He made no opening address, but his address to the candidates for admission was full of good practical sense, of episcopal counsel, and of pious instruction. His apt illustrations, humorous remarks, well-put and solid suggestions, were enjoyed hugely by our brethren. More than once he brought light out of darkness, and calmed a brooding storm by some timely, serene observation.

It was exceedingly gratifying to the bishop, and to us all, to observe the manly deportment of our colored brethren. There was nothing in their conference action indicating the cringing slave; but they sat in conference with calm attention, and spoke with selfpossession, and to the point. True their language was not always correct, but they understood the business before them, and spoke understandingly. Although many of them addressed the conference on different snbjects, and that frequently, yet we do not remember of more than one of them being called to order for not speaking to the question. There was an attempt to call another one to order for not speaking to the "point," but he replied. "I am coming to the point;" and he did come to it. The spirit of the members was excellent. They had worked hard and suffered much during the past year, but they had no complaints to make. God had blessed them and the people had sustained them. Many souls had been converted, and the church built up, and this was their chief joy. And nothwithstanding the "hard times," they were all well and neatly dressed, which added not a little to their personal comfort, and to the dignity of the conference.

The reports from the several stations and circuits show a most gratifying increase. Within a year our membership has doubled. Last year we reported 7,899 members and probationers; this year, 16,164, a gain of 8,265—more than twice as many. Last year, 64 local preachers; this year, 127. A year ago we had 33 churches valued at $119,275; but now we report 47 churches worth $200,969. There are now 4,168 Sunday school scholars, against 2,628 last year. Seven hundred and sixty-nine conversions were reported for 1866, but for 1867, fourteen hundred and eighty. As an indication of increased intelligence there were 639 Advocates taken last year, an increase of over 200, and as a promise of ultimate self-support, more than $23,000 has been raised by this conference. It was in view of these most gracious results, that when the committee on statisticts reported, Bishop Ames called upon the conference to sing the Doxolgy. "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," to which the whole church will respond Amen!

Conference Sunday

is always a high day in Zion. Those appointed to preach generally prepare to do their best for the Master, while those who are to hear rejoice in the special opportunity to hear their favorite preachers. The great attraction of the day was a sermon by Bishop Ames, in the large and elegant church just dedicated to God. The day was beautiful, and the congregation filled the house Many of the preachers were present, and in the altar sat the Rev. Anthony Ross, Henry Green and Hardy Ryan, whose dusky faces were bright with joy. The sermon was one of the best we have ever heard, and the congregation was alternately moved to smiles and tears.

In the afternoon Wesley Chapel was crowded to overflowing, to hear the annual sermon by the editor of the Advocate, and to witness the ordination of elders by Bishop Ames.

In the evening, at Marais street Church, after a practical sermon by Rev. N. L. Brakeman, the bishop ordained twenty-two candidates for the office of deacon.

Dinner at Wesley Chapel.

One of the most pleasant events of our late Conference session was a sumptuous dinner given to the Bishop and members of the Conference by the ladies of Wesley Chapel. The long tables were spread on the lower floor of the new Wesleyan Hall, which was recently dedicated, and were loaded with the best the market could afford. There were different kinds of fish, and fowls, and meats, together with every variety of vegetables and of tropical fruits that could gratify the taste. When dinner was announced seventy-two guests sat down to the well-filled board, including the Bishop, the members of the Conference, the under-graduates, local preachers and exhorters. The blessing was asked by Bishop Ames, and the guests were invited to make themselves at home. The Trustees of Wesley Chapel and their excellent wives waited upon the ministers of the Lord Jesus, and the Rev. Anthony Ross, the pastor, seemed perfectly happy in being surrounded with his brethren. The invitation came from him, and we all felt it a privilege to be his guests. And as our eye ran along the lengthened tables, we could but thank God that our preachers were thus permitted to eat together before entering upon the hardships of the new year. God bless them!

Dedication of Our New Church.

The Ames Methodist Episcopal Church was solemnly dedicated to the service and for the worship of Almighty God, December 15, 1867. It was a great event in the history of Methodism in the Southwest. For more than two years our people had been tossed about from one place to another, but they had remained true to their purpose, and were even cheerful, notwithstanding the inconveniences which they were compeled to endure for a time. It was in view of the trials of the past, and the promised joy of the future that the Friday previous to the dedication was observed as a day of fasting and prayer. Prayer meetings were held 6 A. M., at 12 M., and at 6 P. M. It was not yet light when we assembled in the morning, yet the attendance was large, and the Lord was with his people. And when the invitation to seekers of religion was given, a man and his wife rose for prayers. Thus the day began, and the other meetings were also full of interest.

The 15th of December. 1867, the day of dedication, was one of the charming days of the Sunny South. The skies were bright, and the air soft and pure. The Sabbath school was unusually large, for the children had caught the inspiration of the occasion. At an early hour the people began to assemble, and soon the spacious building was filled with those in deep sympathy with God and his cause in the South. Among the persons of note present were Governor Flanders, Mayor Heath, C. C. North, of New York, Daniel Pierson, of New Jersey, several members of the State Constitutional Convention, and many of our prominent merchants. The pulpit, which is a cross of black walnut, was tastefully decorated with the most exquisite flowers, sending up to the throne of God their sweet incense as an example to the people.

The Rev. Bishop Ames had been invited to preach on the occasion, and dedicate the church, and as he was to commence the session of our conference on the Thursday following, we had good hope that he would be with us; but having gone into the interior of Florida to visit his son, Captain Ames who commands the military post at Gainsville, Florida, he was detained, and did not reach New Orleans until the Tuesday following. It was an embarrassing position which the pastor was called to fil, but he did the best he could, and preached from John 3:30. "He must increase, but I must decrease." His subject was the "Increase of the Messiah's Kingdom," and he dwelt upon the nature of the increase, the times and seasons when it should take place, and the assurances of its occurrence. We were assisted by the Rev. Messrs. Diossy, Brakeman, Daily, Henry, and McDonald. After the sermon, General Cyrus Bussy, one of the trustees, made a financial statement, and not withstanding the hard times, the collections and subscriptions for the day amounted to nearly $3,000. While the money was being raised, C. C. North, of New York, entered the altar and stated that Mrs. J. P. Newman had honored him with the pleasing duty of presenting to the church a very elegant and valuable bible and hymn book for the pulpit, and that within the bible he had found a $50 greenback, the gift of the same person. The following is the inscription on the covers:

Presented by MRS. J. P. NEWMAN,
December 15, 1867.

In discharging this pleasant task Mr. North referred to the donor's zeal and efforts in behalf of the church. Thus ended the morning services.

At 3 P. M. a Sunday school meeting was held, at which Rev. W. M. Henry, the superintendent, presided, and made some very pleasant and interesting remarks. C. C. North and General Brown also addressed the children in a delightful manner. This was a most interesting part of the day's exercises, and the children will long remember the occasion.

In the evening we held a laymen's meeting, for we in the Southwest believe in lay delegation. The congregation was good, and the interest manifested was more than usual. The pastor presided. General S. L. Brown, of the New Orleans Republican, a noble spirit, and an earnest worker for Christ, was the first speaker. His theme was working for Jesus; do something for the Master; impress some soul for eternity. He was followed by the Hon. R. K. Howell, associate justice of our supreme court, who, in a strong logical manner, spoke of individual responsibility He was succeded by our dear friend, C. C. North, of New York, full of Methodism, and full of centenary facts and figures, he dwelt upon the acquirements of the church during the past hundred years. While listening to his array of marvellous facts, we thanked God that we were Methodists. Among the telling points made by Mr. North was this: that as General Grant and Chief Justice Chase are trustees of our Metropolitan Church in Washington, and that as one or the other of these gentlemen will certainly be the next President of the United States, we shall, therefore, soon have a Methodist at the head of the government. The point was well put; both the Chase men and the Grant men saw the point, and the people enjoyed it hugely.

General Cyrus Bussey was the last speaker. He is one of our trustees, and takes a deep interest in whatever concerns our Zion. His address was replete with eloquent sayings to the church in Christian activity, and to the congregation as to the part they should take in sustaining this new enterprise. He concluded with a thrilling story of the reprieve of a young soldier which he had been instrumental in gaining, as an illustration of what individual effort can do. These lay addresses secured for the new church a noble collection.

The following is a sketch of the church:

Located just above Tivoli Circle, the view commands the whole length of St. Charles street to Canal, our most fashionable thoroughfare. A Gothic structure, built of brick; it is fifty by one hundred feet, and will seat one thousand persons. The vestibule is ten feet, the auditorium ninety feet, and a segmental circle in the rear wall, for the pulpit in part, of five feet. The object of this segment is to aid the voice, not permitting the sound to spread to either side of the speaker, but gathering it up to send it forward. The lateral walls are thirty feet high, the peak of the roof fifty-seven, and to the top of the small Maltese cross on the highest turret, seventy feet. There are five large windows in either side wall, and the facade is penetrated by three doors, and as many upper windows. The exterior of the walls is stuccoed to resemble brown stone, and presents a rich appearance. The walls of the interior are finished in plain but neat fresco, and the woodwork grained with oak. There are one hundred and twenty-four pews, so arranged as to make three aisles, the central one of which is five feet wide. Supported by groined arches, there is a cemi-circular gallery in the front part of the auditorium, which will comfortably seat three hundred persons. The edifice is lighted by gas reflectors placed in the ceiling, and which shed a soft light upon the audience. This is the most economical mode of lighting churches. Adjoining the church on the rear, and connected therewith by a passageway, is the chapel. It is two-storied, and measures thirty-four by forty feet, and will seat three hundred persons. It was constructed with special reference to accommodate a large Sunday school, with ample accommodations for infant and bible classes.

The Weather

Until the present week the weather in New Orleans has been very warm, so that no fires have been needed for heating purposes, for several weeks. Last Saturday the thermometer reached 81 degrees in the shade. On Sunday, however, it commenced raining and became colder. Tuesday the thermometer had fallen to 38 degrees, and on Wednesday morning to 35 degrees. Before night it was much warmer, and on Thursday at mid-day it stood at 70 degrees in the shade.

Letters Received this Week up to Thursday the 2d Instant.

Thomas Armstrong, M. B. Avery, A. Buckner, G. W Bryant, Carlton & Smith, R. K. Diossy, W. Doust, O. Ditson & Co., W. McK. Gooding, W. E. Hughs, J. Hemphill, S. Lees, J. McLean, J. McKeddie, H. Ryan, R. S. Rust, Mrs. J. L. Spalding.

Representative to the General Conference.

At the late session of the Mississippi conference held in New Orleans, Rev. Dr. Newman was elected a representative, and Rev. Anthony Ross, (colored) was chosen alternate.

Minutes of the Third Session of the Mississippi Mission Conference of the M. E. Church, held in New Orleans.

First Day's Proceedings, Dec. 19, 1867.

The Mississippi Mission Conference convened in the Marais street M. E. Church, New Orleans, on December 19, 1867, at nine o'clock A. M., Bishop Ames presiding.

The bishop opened the session with reading of the Scriptures, singing, and prayer.

Rev. J. P. Newman, secretary of the previous session, called the roll, and the following brethren answered to their names:

ELECTIVE ELDERS.

| | |
|---|---|
| J. P. Newman, | W. M. Henry, |
| N. L. Brakeman, | Anthony Ross, |
| R. K. Diossy, | A. C. McDonald, |
| W. N. Darnell, | Scott Chinn, |
| James Lynch, | Henry Green. |

DEACONS OF THE SECOND YEAR.

| | |
|---|---|
| Emperor Williams, | Wm. Murrell, |
| Hardy Ryan, | S. M. Small, |
| Thos. Kennedy, | J. M. Bryant. |

DEACONS OF THE FIRST YEAR.

| | |
|---|---|
| Eugene Royal, | James B. Fenner, |
| Evans Green, | Talbott Gibbs, |
| Joseph Gould, | Lev. Baker, |
| Jas. Hayward, | Miles Proctor, |
| Robert Hodge, | Thos. Anderson, |
| Jack Goodwin, | Moses Adams, |
| Edward Jackson, | John Jones, |
| Eben. Hayward, | Wm. Holmes. |

Rev. J. P. Newman and Rev. James Lynch were both nominated for secretary. Rev. James Lynch chosen.

Hon. John Baldwin, of Berea, Ohio, was then introduced, and by vote of the Conference was requested to take part in the discussion of the subject of education, whenever it should be presented.

The examination of effective elders was then taken up, and their characters passed.

Rev. N. L. Brakeman, presiding elder, gave a condensed statement of the work in the bounds of the New Orleans district, showing a large increase of members, and marked improvement in all the temporal and spiritual interests of the Church. He thanked God for this year—it had been one of labor and affliction, but of joy also.

Number of churches and chapels built during the year, 13; two had been purchased, and Wesleyan hall, a large, substantial school building belonging to Wesley chapel, had been built and dedicated—in all 16 buildings erected for God and his cause this year. Some few of these were rudely constructed, built of logs, but accommodated the people, and though of moderate value in dollars and cents, were of incalculable worth as houses of worship, for in them scores of souls had been born to God. The erection and completion of the Ames Methodist Episcopal church in New Orleans marked an era in the progress of our cause in the Mississippi mission conference. It has cost $50,000, and will accommodate a thousand hearers.

It is important to call attention to facts and figures. One place accredited last year with 60 members began this year with 14: another with 100 reported began this year with 33. Baton Rouge circuit stands accredited on the minutes of last year with 2 chapels, and a total of 545 members and probationers; it began this year with a total of 186 members and probationers, and but one church, and that one without seats, windowless, and but partially floored.

Wesley Chapel stands upon the minutes credited last year with 1336 members. There has been a very marked prosperity snd increase in that society, and yet we are able to report but nine hundred and thirty-six members this year; and by including three country appointments under its care only 1121 members. These statements are necessary to show how it happens that while the actual increase this year has been over 2000 in the district, the minutes show but little over half that number added to the church. The increase of this year is more likely to be permanent from the fact that churches have been built at nearly all important points. The table of statistics and the reports will give other interesting facts and figures which time will not allow given here. Again he thanked God for the year, and would remember it in eternity.

Rev. J. P. Newman represented his church, which, though dependent for a congregation upon a transient population, was enjoying prosperity. He spoke of his personal afflictions and of the divine consolations which had enabled him to bear them. The missionary society had appropriated $30,000 and the church extension society $1000 to the new church.

Rev. W. M. Henry had been surrounded by the most embarrassing circumstances, but still had succeeded to an extent that called for thankfulness.

Rev. A. C. McDonald said that in his charge there had been prosperity. They had bought a nice property, a church, and two lots, for $5000, which is now valued at $6500, and the membership had increased from nothing to nearly one hundred in all. But for the epidemic there would have been a much larger increase.

Rev. R. K. Diossey, presiding elder of the Opelousas district, states that the first six months of the year were marked with great prosperity. After this the epidemic set in and prevailed extensively, and the work was arrested in its progress. He had paid much attention to the Sabbath schools. The ministers had nearly all been faithful, and ministered to the people in their afflictions both to white and colored.

Rev. W. N. Darnell, presiding elder of the Mississippi District took up each appointment on his work and gave an extended and very interesting account of his labors. The preachers had all been faithful and blessed with revivals. He believed they were without an exception, and the members too, thoroughly loyal to the church and government. He expected to leave the district and the conference, not because he did not love the work and could not still be useful in it, but because of his long absence from his family, who could not be with him, and to whom he must now return.

Question 3d of the general minutes "Who are admitted into full connection?" was then taken up and the following brethren examined and admitted: Anthony Ross, Henry Green, Scott Chinn, Emperor Williams, Hardy Ryan, Thomas Kennedy, William Murrell, Samuel M. Small, James M. Bryant.

The time for the meeting and adjournment of conference was fixed at 9 A. M. and 1 o'clock P. M.

Judge R. K. Howell, C. C. North, Rev. J. English and Rev: W. M. Daily were introduced to the conference.

Rev. James Lynch, presiding elder of the South Mississippi District represented his work. He had been in the field only a little over five months. Was appointed to it by Bishop Simpson. He found his district almost altogether unbroken ground, and himself without resources, which would have been afforded had his work been anticipated by the president of the last session of the Mississippi Mission Conference. He had encountered great opposition in the work, which was not lessened in the least by his well-known political status and sentiments. But notwithstanding the obstacles met with he had organized four circuits, procured three fine building lots for church purposes; had employed five preachers, and about eight hundred members had been added to the church. He had traveled and spoken extensively in Mississippi in the interests of "reconstruction" on the congressional plan, and the people had heard him gladly. He had done this conscientiously before God, and under a deep and solemn conviction that it was a duty he owed to his race and the country, and he had preached Jesus and the resurrection wherever he had gone. He had received instruction from Bishop Simpson to visit any place in Mississippi and Southern Alabama, and he had traveled and preached quite extensively in Brother Darnell's district, and also in the latter State visiting Mobile, Montgomery, and Selma, where there are fine opening for loyal Methodism if we only had the money to build churches.

Rev. W. M. Henry, R. K. Diossy, and H. Green were chosen conference stewards. The following committees were also appointed:

Public Worship.—J. P. Newman, W. M. Henry, A. Ross.

Education.—J. P. Newman, N. L. Brakeman, H. Green.

Sunday Schools.—R. K. Diossy, H Ryan, S. M. Small.

Missions.—The presiding elders.

Temperance.—N. L. Brakeman, A. C. McDonald, E. Williams.

State of the Country.—J. P. Newman, N. L. Brakeman, A. Ross.

Statistics.—R. K. Diossy, E. Williams, and S. Chinn.

Auditing Accounts—W. N. Darnell. W. M. Henry, E. Williams.

Church Extension.—N. L. Brakeman, R. K. Diossy, A. C. McDonald.

Conference then adjourned for the day.

Second Day's Proceedings — Friday, December 20

Conference met pursuant to adjournment. Religious services by Rev. A Ross. Roll called, minutes read and adopted, and conference proceeded to business.

Question second of the general minutes was taken up, and the following brethren having passed a satisfactory examination were continued on trial, viz: Eugene Royal, Evans Green, Miles Proctor, Edward Jackson, E. Hayward, Joseph Gould, Talbott Gibbs, Lev Baker, William Holmes, Moses Adams, John Jones, Robert Hodge, Thomas Anderson, James B. Fenner, J. Hayward.

Jack Goodwin was discontinued.

Rev. W. M. Henry and R. K. Diossy offered the following:

Resolved, That we at once proceed to the election of a representative to the general conference. That the vote be taken by raising the hand, and that the Rev. J. P. Newman be the representative.

A motion was made to postpone the election until to-morrow morning, Motion lost.

On motion of A. C. McDonald, it was agreed to vote by ballot.

R. K. Diossy and A. Ross were appointed tellers.

Bishop Ames decided that it was necessary for an elder to have traveled four full years in the Methodist Episcopal church before he could be eligible to General Conference.

J. P. Newman being the only representative nominated, and having received eleven votes, was declared elected.

Rev. A. Ross was elected, by raising the hand, as alternate.

Rev. A. C. McDonald offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Mississippi Mission conference having been organized on the great principles of equal rights, the common brotherhood of man, the oneness of believers in Christ, and the perfect equality of all men before the altar of God, and that recognizing as we do the odiousness of all distinctions founded on cast, we declare as the established principle of this conference that we are and will remain unalterably opposed to all distinctions made in the house of God on account of race or color.

After an exciting discussion and some remarks by the bishop, the resolution was adopted unanimously.

Hon. John Baldwin was then invited to address the conference, and did so, giving account of the educational enterprise on the Teche in which he is engaged. He said there had been two points suggested for the location—Georgia and Louisiana. His own preferences were for the latter, and he came to New Orleans prospecting. He found no opening, however; nothing in which he felt it was safe to invest educational capital; no one who thought with himself as to the contemplated enterprise. He concluded this was not the place, had determined to go to Atlanta, Ga., and with his overcoat on his arm was leaving the city, when he met Rev. N. L. Brakeman returning from the country. They had never met before, but seemed to know each other at once, and he soon found their views harmonized. He spent the day with Mr. Brakeman, planning for the school and its location, and before night they had the "institution" all upon paper. Their plans laid, the presiding elders of this conference were each appointed a "committee" to search for a site, and he returned to Ohio. Finally, Brother Diossy found the "Daby Plantation" was in market and Baldwin received two letters from Brother Brakeman, who had been over the place repeatedly during the war, and knew it well, highly recommending the site, and urging him to come and see it, which he did, and bought it for $20,000. He now proposes to donate thirty acres of that place, containing the residence and outbuildings, to this conference, and add enough to it in improvements to make $20,000 educational capital. This he proposed to do now, and hoped to add still more, as God shall prosper him. He hoped to build up an institution that should be a blessing to all, irrespective of races or sexes.

Revs. R. K. Diossy and James Lynch were added to the committee on education. Rev. Scott Chinn was added to the committee on public worship. On motion, the conference adjourned with the benediction by Rev. Henry Green.

Third Day's Proceedings—Saturday December 21.

Conference met pursuant to adjournment. Religious services conducted by Rev. E. Williams. On motion W. M. Henry was elected treasurer of the conference. The following local preachers were elected to deacons' orders: Israel Merriweather, Daniel James, David S. Green, Alexander Phillips, Alfred Handy, Presley Yarborough, Peter Clark, Joseph Gould, Thomas Keith, James Brown, Levi Johnson, Israel Jones, M. B. Avery, Abraham Hilton, John Lee, Evans Green, Amos Gunby, Wesley Jones, Washington Drake, Owen Jones, Jesse Fern, Henry Sims, George Stephens, Charles Downs, Horace Wallace, and Edmund Scarborough.

The fifth question of the general minutes was then taken up, and the following brethren were elected to elder's orders: James M. Bryan, Samuel M. Small, Thomas Kennedy, William Murrell, Hardy Ryan, and Emperor Williams.

The first question of general minutes was then taken up, and the following brethren were admitted on trial: Wesley Jones, Jesse Fern, Alfred Handy, George Dobson, Anthony Williams, Alexander Phillips, David S. Green, Edmund Scarborough, Levi Johnson, Moses B. Avery, Presley Yarborough, A. Hilton, and Thomas Keith.

James M. Vance, an elder from the African Zion Methodist Episcopal church, was admitted to full membership in the conference, and his orders recognized.

Rev. James Lynch then offered the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, Brother John Baldwin, the well known philanthropic Methodist layman, has purchased, and proposes to donate to this conference, a beautiful site on the Teche river of thirty acres of ground, and the buildings thereon, for educational purposes, and to be controlled by this conference; therefore,

Resolved, That the hearty thanks of this conference be and are hereby tendered to Mr. Baldwin for his Christian liberality, which will be an enduring monument to his name.

Adopted unanimously after some remarks from Brother Lynch.

Appointments for Sabbath schools read, and conference adjourned.

Fourth Day's Proceedings—Monday, December 23.

Conference met pursuant to adjournment. Religious services conducted by Rev. Henry Green. Roll called, minutes read and approved. The committee on education presented their report.

On motion of J. P. Newman, the charter of the "Thomson university" was accepted unanimously. The following named persons were elected Trustees of the Thomson university, namely, John Baldwin, J. P. Newman.

The president of the Orphan's Home presented the following report, which was accepted:

REPORT OF THE ORPHANS' HOME.

In compliance with a resolution passed by this conference at its last session the following annual report is herewith submitted as to the condition and prospects of the Orphan's Home of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Louisiana:

A year ago there was some uncertainty as to the financial success of this important enterprise. It is generally known that M. De Bossiere, of France, had generously offered $10,000 to the institution, providing the same was increased to $30,000 by January 1, 1867. But January came and we had failed to raise the $20,000. It was a trying hour, but we were unwilling to submit to defeat without further effort. Impelled by the necessities of the case I wrote to M. De Bossiere for an extention of time, which he very kindly granted, and on the first of April, 1867, we had the great satisfaction to deposit in the Bank of America, in New Orleans, the sum of $20,000, which secured to us the $10,000 offered by M. De Bossiere. This achievement was a cause of sincere joy to the friends of the Home, and of devout gratitude to God. It is proper to state that the $20,000 was raised principally in the North, and we are specially indebted to Major General O. O. Howard for a munificent donation, and for lesser sums to dear friends in New England, New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois. May God bless them.

As M. De Bossiere stipulated that the $30,000 shall be expended in the purchase of a farm and its improvement, we have accordingly complied with his condition, and have made the purchase.

Three miles from the small town of Franklin by land, and thirteen by water, is the well-known "Byrn Place." Its late proprietor, whose name it bears, was the owner of twelve hundred slaves, employed on his several plantations, and throughout the parish of St. Mary he was noted for buying the "worst niggers in the country." This place was his favorite resort, where he lived like a prince. With a front on the Bayou Teche of one half a mile, and extending thence to the Westward two miles, the plantation consists of nearly eighteen hundred arpents. Bounded by the parish road on the west, and the bayou on the east, are about forty acres. Here stood the family mansion until fired by the troops in the late war; but the garden remains rich and fruitful as ever. To the south of the garden is a fine pasture field, capable of feeding all the stock needed for the Home; while to the north is the sugar mill, forty feet wide and one hundred and eighty feet long, and is valued at seven thousand dollars. Near the mill are ten wooden cabins and two stone ones, formerly the slaves' quarters. Down along the banks of the Teche are massive live-oaks whose branches are covered with moss, and which cast a grateful shade, and at intervals are lofty pecan trees, ladened with nuts. Here, on these forty acres, is to be the home of our orphans; here their schoolhouse, their work shop, and their play grounds. On the opposite side of the parish road is a field of over seven hundred acres, rich sugar land, enclosed with an osage orange hedge on three sides, while beyond are more than nine hundred acres of woodland, on which is much valuable timber. Amid the oaks and cypresses flows a small bayou, where the gar fish floats lazily along, and the aligator basks in the sunshine. On the eastern bank of the stream is a good steam sawmill, and also a draining machine, which may be used to redeem hundreds of acres of what is now swamp land.

On the 17th of September last, this noble plantation was purchased by the managers of the Orphans Home, for fourteen thousand dollars; and the value of the place is increased by the fact that it adjoins on the south the "Darby Plahtation," recently purchased by Mr. John Baldwin for a theological and literary institution. Here, then, on the verdant banks of the Teche, charity and education join hands for the elevation of the race, while religion shall sanctify and smile upon the union. Here the orphan will pass from his asylum to the college, and, if God calls, to the theological school. Here will be a center of power to the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southwest, and as it is but five hours' ride by rail from New Orleans, it is sufficiently near to be under the patronage of this great metropolis. It is our purpose to prepare immediately for the reception of our orphans, and we trust that a building will soon be reared which will be commodious, ornamental, and a monument for future years to look upon. As managers of this Christ like institution, we rejoice that having paid for our plantation fourteen thousand dollars, we have the handsome balance of sixteen thousand dollars for permanent improvements. But our friends should remember that not a dollar of this balance can be expended for current expenses, as the chief donor stipulated that not less than thirty thousand dollars should be expended for a permanent home for the orphans and its improvement. In a year or two we may have a revenue from the farm sufficient for current expenses, but for the present we must rely upon the gifts of our friends. At this moment we need clothing for the children. Will not our friends respond? Soon with God's blessing we shall have enough from the rich lands he has given us. To him we are indebted for our past success, and to him shall be the praise from the lips of the thousands of orphans who in the coming years shall here find a home.

There are at present in the Home over eighty orphans, varying in age from one to fifteen, and of whom twenty-six are girls, and fifty-four are boys. These children are fed, clothed, and educated and brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. During the year we have had the misfortune to lose by death, Madam De Mortier, who was our first matron, and who had done much toward the advancement of the Home; but Providence has favored us with a successor who is every way qualified for her responsible position, and we do not doubt that Mrs. Roberts will be a mother to the motherless children placed under her care.

J. P. NEWMAN,
President of the Home.

New Orleans, December 19, 1867.

The president of Thomson Biblical institute presented the following report, which was adopted:

THOMPSON'S BIBLICAL INSTITUTE—ANNUAL REPORT FOR 1867.

The Thomson Biblical Institute has passed through successfully the second year of its existence. During that time fifteen students have been in attendance, twelve of whom have been supported from the funds of the Institute.

All of them were once slaves, and but few of them could read or write when the term commenced; but possessing good natural gifts, they have applied themselves with assiduity, and their improvement is alike creditablo to themselves and their teachers.

The course of instructions has embraced reading, spelling, writing, arithmetic, grammer, and Watson's Theological Institutes. Commendable proficiency has been made in all these branches, while the progress in spelling, English grammer, and Watson's Institutes is especially gratifying. Two of the students, who at the beginning of the year could read but indifferently in words of one and two sylables, are now well advanced in Pinneo's grammer. The class in Watson's Institute has advanced to the second part, and they are deeply interested in the study of this profound work. There are, of course, portions of it beyond their grasp, but they are laying hold of many of its great thoughts, and their profiting will doubtloss appear when they shall have entered upon the work of the ministry.

Among these students are some young men of more than ordinary promise. Having grown up in slavery under circumstances in which to be seen with a book exposed them to fearful punishment, the expedients to which some of them resorted in order to gain the rudiments of an education, form a story of thrilling interest. We feel assured that if the church at large could know the gratitude manifested by these young men for the privileges they enjoy, their earnest application to their studies, their great anxiety to improve, their steady advancement, and zeal in their Sabbath labors, there would be an immediate increase of interest in the education of colored ministers. The colored people of the South are rapidly rising, both in morals and civilization, and an educated ministry for them will soon become one of the necessities of the times.

The establishment of the Biblical Institute proves to have been a step in the right direction. The class of last year, of whom most were received in our conference at its last session, has furnished us with some of our most laborious and successful preachers. The present class is larger; composed of younger men, and is equally or more promising

The annual examination of the students took place on the evenings of July 29th and 30th, in the First Street Methodist Episcopal Church, in the presence of a large audience, Rev. Messrs. Newman, Brakeman, Diossy, Green, Chinn, and Baker, and Hon. Rufus Waples were present. The students were examined by Brother McDonald in spelling, reading, arithmetic, grammar, and Watson's Institutes—first part. Their spelling was good: in English grammar they were very good; and in Watson's Institutes they evinced careful reading, and very fair understanding of their author. It is scarcely credible that young men who twelve months ago could neither read nor write, can understand Watson; yet we will venture the remark, that their examination in this study will compare favorably with that of first year conference candidates in the North.

On the evening of July 31st, Westly chapel was filled to overflowing by members of our church, to witness the literary exercises of the students. Prayer was offered by the Rev. A. Ross. Students read essays, and delivered orations. For nearly three hours the delighted audience remained, evincing their approval by frequent and loud applause.

J. P. NEWMAN,
President.

New Orleans, Dec. 23, 1867.

TREASURER'S REPORT OF THE THOMPSON BIBLICAL INSTITUTE FOR THE YEAR 1867.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cr. | By amount of cash on hand January 1, 1867 | | $2563 95 |
| Dr. | To Notaries' services | 13 00 | |
| " | " Stationery | 9 90 | |
| " | " Trav'ng expenses to R.K.Diossy | 19 75 | |
| " | " Trav'ng exp's to A. C. McDonald | 25 00 | |
| " | " Trav'ng exp's to J. P. Newman | 25 00 | |
| " | " Aid given to John Lea | 203 00 | |
| " | " Amos Gunby | 189 00 | |
| " | " Elisha Hopkins | 121 00 | |
| " | " Charles Washington | 136 00 | |
| " | " William Chase | 189 00 | |
| " | " Abraham Hilton | 203 00 | |
| " | " Wesley Johnson | 169 00 | |
| " | " Felix Lander | 170 00 | |
| " | " Fletcher T. Chinn | 126 00 | |
| " | " Lafayette Reuben | 30 85 | |
| " | " S. H. Scott | 191 15 | |
| " | " John Wesley | 139 00 | |
| " | " E. Turner | 16 00 | |
| | | $1966 65 | |
| | Balance on hand December 19, 1867 | | $597 30 |

J. P. NEWMAN,
Acting Treasurer.

Rev. J. P. Newman made a statement of receipts and expenditures in the publication of the New Orleans Advocate.

Bishop Ames followed in some remarks upon the importance of a religious paper in the family, His experience as a school teacher had taught him to value the newspaper among children as a help to improvement in reading. His experience as pastor and preacher had taught him to value the religious paper as a great auxiliary to the ministry. He spoke of the wonderful increase in our church literature and its power for good, and hoped the New Orleans Advocate would be well sustained. At the close of his remarks the Bishop called upon Rev. James Lynch, formerly the editor of the Christian Recorder, in Philadelphia, who made some excellent remarks on religious journals in general, and upon the New Orleans Advocate in particular, and of its beneficial influence in Mississippi, and upon the colored people generally. Several preachers spoke upon the subject, and were emphatic in their devotion to the Advocate, and favored its continuance.

Rev. James English, an elder in the Methodist Episcopal Church south, was admitted on a certificate of location from the Mississippi conference of said church.

The committee on Sunday schools submitted the following report:

The committee on Sunday schools report the resolutions of last year, with the following addition:

Resolved, That hereafter in the examination of a preacher's character it shall be asked: "Have you established Sunday schools at all your appointments, and instructed your local preachers and exhorters to do the same, and if not, why not?"

Bev. R. K. Diossy submitted the following report on day schools:

Report on day schools for Opelousas District, 1867.

CIRCUITS.

Donaldsonville, 4 day schools, 26 scholars, 3 night schools, 65 scholars. Raised for teachers, $440.

Thibodaux, 3 day schools, 180 scholars, 2 night schools, 35 scholars.

Franklin, 4 day schools, 312 scholars, 3 night schools, 100 scholars.

St. Martinville, 1 day school 115 scholars.

Opelousas, 2 day schools, 120 scholars, 1 night school, 30 scholars.

Alexandria, 3 day schools, 180 scholars.

Natchitoches, 1 day school, 60 scholars, 1 night school, 20 scholars.

Shreveport, 1 day school, 80 scholars.

Washita, 1 day school, 60 scholars.

Total, 16 day schools, 1367 scholars, 10 night schools, 250 scholars.

Received from Methodist Episcopal Teachers Aid Society aid for two schools, Thibet and Franklin, $10 a month each for four months.

R. K. DIOSSY.

On motion the conference adjourned.

Fifth Day's Proceedings—Tuesday, December 24.

Conference met pursuant to adjournment.

Religious services conducted by Rev. Thomas Kennedy.

Minutes read and approved, and conference proceeded to business.

The committee on missions made the following report, which was adopted:

| | |
|---|---|
| New Orleans district | $2000 |
| Wesley Chapel | — |
| Marais street | — |
| First street | — |
| Parpet and Carrollton | 200 |
| Sixth street and Jefferson | 400 |
| Poet street | 400 |
| Laharpe street | — |
| Baton Rouge | 100 |
| Clinton | 200 |
| Pass Christian | 400 |
| Gainesville | — |
| Mandeville | 200 |
| Live Oak | 100 |
| | $4000 |
| Fourth district | 1000 |
| Total | $5000 |
| Opelousas district | $2000 |
| Donaldsonville | 200 |
| Thibodaux | 250 |
| Houma | 200 |
| Franklin | — |
| St. Martinsville | 250 |
| Opelousas | 150 |
| Holmesville | 200 |
| Alexandria | 150 |
| Natchitoches | 150 |
| Shreveport | 250 |
| Ouachita | 200 |
| Morehouse | — |
| Total | $4000 |
| Jackson district | $2000 |
| Vicksburg | 200 |
| Yazoo City | 200 |
| Jackson | 400 |
| Canton | 200 |
| Brandon | 100 |
| Durant | 100 |
| Meridian | 200 |
| Enterprise | 200 |
| Shuguba | 200 |
| Macon | 200 |
| Total | $4000 |
| Holly Springs district | $2000 |
| Grenada | 200 |
| Oxford | 200 |
| Holly Springs | 200 |
| Corinth | 200 |
| Aberdeen | 200 |
| Columbus | 200 |
| Total | $3200 |
| New Orleans | $5000 |
| Opelousas | 4000 |
| Jackson | 4000 |
| Holly Springs | 3200 |
| | 16,200 |
| Contingent for Holly Springs and Opelousas, $400 each | 800 |
| Total | $17,000 |

R. K. DIOSSY, Secretary.

Conference proceeded to fix the place of holding its next session, and after some discussion, Wesley Chapel, in New Orleans, was chosen as the seat of next conference.

Rev. N, L. Brakeman presented the following report on temperance; which was adopted:

TEMPERANCE.

Christian temperance is a broad subject, and applies to man's whole nature, physical, intellectual, and moral. It controls his words, temper, and conduct. In eating and drinking, toiling and sleeping, in thinking, feeling, and acting, Christiany requires us to be sober, chaste, moderate—to do all things to the glory of God, to subject the whole man to wholesome discipline, to preserve our members in sanctification and honor, to keep our bodies under, to defile not that temple of God, and to bring every thought into captivity to the law of Christ. There may be lust in a look impurity in a thought, murder in an emotion, and gross intemperance in temper and passion.

But our report is expected to deal particularly with one branch of the subject, namely, the use of iatoxicating liquors as a beverage. The amount of liquor consumed by the American people annually is almost fabulous. The commissioners appointed to revise the revenue system of the country estimate that from 42,000,000 to 45,000,000 gallons of distilled spirits are consumed each year. In addition to this, about 186,000,000 gallons of fermented liquors and about 10,000,000 of imported liquors are also drank. The amount of revenue derived by the government from the liquor trade amounts to nearly $48,000,000. The retail cost of these liquors, as paid by the consumers, is estimated to be not less than $500,000,000, annual amount sufficient to pay the whole of our national debt in a little more than five years. But enough of figures; they are powerless.

It is useless at this date to dwell upon the evils of intemperance, or array statistics upon the treasure it has wasted, the widows and orphans it has made, the crimes and sufferings of which it has been the occasion, or the bodies and souls it has sent to the grave and perdition.

It is an alarming fact that this great evil is rapidly increasing throughout the country—especially in the South, where it is making sad inroads upon our church and people—and we can not allow this conference to pass without calling the attention of our ministers, traveling and local, to this subject, and lifting a warning voice to the churches and society against this greatest curse of our land.

We submit the following resolutions for your action:

1. Resolved, That we call upon all our pastors first to see that they keep themselves clear of this evil, and then that they have a special watchful care over our people and members in regard to this vice. It must be staid by some means, speedily.

2. Resolved, That we require all our pastors to preach against the evil of intemperance in each of their appointments at least twice during the year, and to instruct our members in the general rule which prohibits drunkenness, buying and selling spiritous liquors, or drinking them except in case of extreme necessity.

N. L. BRAKEMAN,
Chairman.

Mrs. Roberts matron of the orphans' home, appeared in the conference room, and on motion of N. L. Brakeman, received from the preachers a nice contribution to enable her to give the orphans a Christmas dinner.

The committee on statistics presented the following report which was adopted:

After the adoption of the above report, showing that Mississippi mission conference had more than doubled its numbers the last year, Bishop Ames read from the Northwestern Christian Advocate, commenting as he read, an an abstract from the general minutes, showing the wonderful progress of the church, and its present prosperity as follows:

Traveling preachers, eight thousand and four; local preachers, nine thousand four hundred and nine; churches, eleven thousand one hundred and twenone; value, thirty-five millions eight hundred and eighty-eight thousand four hundred and thirty-nine dollars; parsonages, three thousand five hundred and seventy; value in full, five million three hundred and sixty-one thousand two hundred and ninety-five; members, nine hundred and seventy-one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six; probationers, seventy-four thousand two hundred and fifteen; doaths, twelve thousand four hundred and seventy-five; baptisms (adults), fifty-nine thousand and eighty-three; infants, forty-two thousand six hundred and fifty-eight; total baptisms, one hundered and forty-one thousand seven hundred and forty-one; teachers, one hundred and seventy-four thousand nine hundred and forty-five; volumes, seven hundred and eighty-two thousand eight hundred and ninety-five.

The doxology was then sung amid shouting and taars of joy.

Rev. N. L. Brakeman then offered the report upon the state of the country when W. N. Darnell moved to dismiss the committee on the state of the country, and dispense with the offered report, which motion, after some remarks by Bishop Ames, was carried.

Rev. James Lynch then made some very appropriate remarks, and offered the following preamble and resolution:

WHEREAS, The portion of country embraced within the bounds of this conference is politically disorganized, and threatened with anarchy;

Resolved, That we recognize as among our highest duties that of promoting peace and harmony among all classes, and of restoring the South to the federal Union on a basis of civil and political equality without regard to race or color.

Rev. N. L. Brakeman moved to amend the above by adding to it the second resolution in the report on the state of the country, just rejected, which read as follows:

2. Resolved, That we call upon the general government to see to it that the inalienable rights proclaimed and established by our fathers, and engrafted by them in the constitution of the United States, and reassured by the nation upon the battlefield and at the ballot-box, be guaranteed to all, and that our citizens of every color and clime be protected in their persons, property, business, life, liberty, and religion.

Brother Lynch accepted the amendment, and, after some remarks by Brother Brakeman, in which he deplored the action of the conference in rejecting his report, the preamble and resolutions were passed.

The conference authorized W. N. Darnell to transfer the sum of $417 now in his possession to Rev. A. C. M'Donald, to be used in building a church at Okalona, Mississippi.

It was announced that N. L. Brakeman, Emperor Williams, and W. M. Henry be a committee on the preparation and publication of the minutes. Motion carried. Moved and carried that the committee on the publication of the minutes furnish the manascript to the New Orleans ADVOCATE, and that they be published in pamphlet form from the same type.

It was moved and carried that when the minutes are published they be sent to the presiding elders in quantities proportionate to the number of members in each district, and that the conference be responsible for the expense of publication.

On motion discretion was given to the publishing committee concerning the matter to be published in the minutes, and their decision will be authoritive in that matter.

Each presiding elder was appointed an examining committee on all the local preachers and under graduates in his district.

Rev. W. M. Henry was appointed to preach the missionary sermon, and Rev. James Lynch to preach the annual sermon.

N. L. Brakeman presented the following report of day schools:

The plan for parochial schools which was formed at the last session of our conference was prosecuted in the New Orleans district with some success. Communication was had with the Freedmen's aid society of our church at Cincinnati, and aid received for four schools and six teachers, for which we desire hereby to express our thanks.

The Freedmen's aid society of our church, being obliged to suspend its schools, and the school board of the public schools of New Orleans proposing to rent our churches and open free schools for the colored people, it was deemed advisable to accept their offer so far as practicable.

The schools in the Orphan's home and at Baton Rouge are still in part supported by the Freedmen's aid society at Cincinnati. Wesley chapel supports a large and flourishing independent school. During the last year the trustees of that church have purchased grounds and erected a good building known as Wesleyan hall for its use. The grounds and house are worth at least $7,500, and the school, under the superintendence of R. W. Bowie, is an excellent one.

The following are the statistics of the schools in the district so far as reported.

| | Schools. | Teachers. | Scholars. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Wesley chapel | 1 | 2 | 275 |
| Marais street | 1 | 2 | 150 |
| Poet street | 1 | 3 | 200 |
| Sixth street | 1 | 1 | 75 |
| Jefferson | 1 | 3 | 100 |
| First street | 1 | 1 | 120 |
| Carrollton | 1 | 1 | 30 |
| Parapet | 1 | 1 | 33 |
| Baton Rouge | 1 | 2 | 180 |
| Clinton | 1 | 2 | 75 |
| Mandeville | 1 | 1 | 50 |
| La Harpe | 1 | 4 | 222 |
| | 12 | 22 | 1500 |

N. L. BRAKEMAN.

The bishop explained that local preachers employed last year were not entitled to back pay, and that men are not to preach without proper authority, which authority must first come from the quarterly conference of which such men are members, and hoped all concerned would remember this law and obey it.

Rev. N. L. Bakeman offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of this conference are due and are hereby tendered to the pastor and members of Marais street Methodist Episcopal church and to all the families who have so kindly and hospitably entertained the brethren of the conference at this session, and that this resolution be published in the minutes.

The minutes were then read and approved, when the bishop gave out the 221st hymn, commencing:

"And let our bodies part."

After the singing of which, Rev. S. Chinn led in prayer.

The bishop then requested Rev. James M. Bryan to sing the 207 hymn, commencing:

"Lord of the harvest hear Thy needy servants cry."

Before reading the appointments the bishop said that he had watched the work in this conference with deep interest, knowing that it must prosper, but it had succeeded beyond his expectations. He came here with high hopes, but they had been more than met. He knew through what the brethren had to pass, the laws under which they had lived, their limited privileges, and the difficulty of acquiring knowledge from books. But a better day had come, and they must improve it, and make advancement. They were capable of improvement He knew some of these men before he saw them. They had been recommended to him by old citizens here as good men. They had proved themselves everyway worthy of the commendation. He urged the brethren to stand up for Jesus—to stand up like men. Be wise as serpents, harmless as doves. Be sons of consolation, messengers of mercy, preachers of peace. Be courageous—meet difficulty and danger with firmness, and in the face of every foe say, "By God's grace I will conquer!" Remember the great commission says, "Go!" No conditions stated, but a command given, "Go!" Go everywhere, "and as you go preach." Preach the Gospel to every creature, and remember the blessed promise, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world!"

THE APPOINTMENTS.

Question 17. "Where are the preachers stationed this year?" Answer,

The secretary failed to procure a copy of the appointments from the bishop before he left the city, therefore we cannot publish a full list of the same this week.

There are few changes, however. J. P. Newman, D. D., was appointed to South New Orleans District and Ames Church.

N. L. Brakeman was appointed to North New Orleans District.

James Lynch to South Mississippi District.

A. C. McDonald to North Mississippi District.

W. M. Henry to Fourth District and Sixth street Churches.

A complete list will be published next week if possible.

We have received "The Illustrated Catalogue of choice Sabbath School Publications" from the rooms of the Sunday School Union in Philadelphia.

The object in preparing this catalogue has been to furnish those who have charge of purchasing for Sunday school libraries, with an accurate though brief description of some of the most desirable books now in the market.

The two excellent works, "Tilman Loring," and "Tom Miller," recentiy noticed in the ADVOCATE, are the publication of the Sunday School Union.

A catalogue will be sent to any superintendent in the United States on receipt of a two cent stamp to pay postage.

Address J. C. Garrigues & Co, 148 South 4th Street, Piladelphia, Pa.

During the absence of the editor of the ADVOCATE for the coming two weeks, the management of the paper will be intrusted to Rev. W. M. Henry, the assistant editor.

EMANCIPATION BY SMOKE.—An exchange thinks that as meerschaum is made from the foam of the sea, the manufacture of pipes must be a surge-ical operation. Not so; it is a liberating process, which frees the foam of the sea from surf-dom. In truth, however, meerschaum is a land product, and may be called fossil soap.

MARRIED.

In St. Paul's (Methodist Episcopal) Chapel, Pass Christian, Mississippi, January 1, 1868, by Rev. M. B. Avery, THOMAS LINDSEY and CYNTHIA CHALMERS, all of Pass Christian.

BY TELEGRAPH.

[Dispatches to the Associated Press.]

News from the West Indies and Mexico—The Revolution in Yucatan.

HAVANA, December 26.—The steamer Virginia, from Vera Cruz 20th, via Sisal 23d, has arrived with city of Mexico dates to the 19th.

There is much misery throughout the country in consequence of the exhaustion and disorganization from the war. People are compelled by hunger to resort to brigandage.

Immediate change in the third military district is by no means certain.

The revolution in Yucatan is assuming large proportions. Santa Anna has been proclaimed dictator, and was hourly expected from Havana with men and a million of money.

The fort and town of Sisal were in the hands of the insurgents, but the port was blockaded by two Mexican gunboats. A number of imperial officers arrived at Sisal from Matamoras on the 16th.

The coast of Yucatan was closely watched to prevent any one landing.

The Mexican steamer Tobasco was ready to sail from Vera Cruz for the scene of the revolution with 500 men and artillery. Santa Anna is still in Havana.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, December 27.—Undoubtedly Pope's and Swayne's conduct is highly disapproved at the White house, but no action has been taken for their removal.

The executive policy is to avoid, if possible, irritation which may tend to hold the Republican factions together, and enable them to pass more stringent supplements to the reconstruction bills.

Peace has been re-established at Tepie. Several of the Perote prisoners had been liberated.

From Washington

WASHINGTON, December 27.—The cabinet was in session to-day. Proceedings unimportant. Pope's removal was not discussed.

Generals Sherman and Gillem visited the president this afternoon.

General John S. Mosby is in the city.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $219,000.

From Montgomery.

MONTGOMERY, December 27.—A radical of north Alabama has published a letter fully indorsing the address of Messrs. Semple, Speed, and others, protesting members of the late reconstruction convention, against the proposed constitution. The Huntsville Advocate (radical organ) calls for reassembling of the convention to modify the objectionable features of the proposed constitution, namely, the clauses about schools, the franchise, and registration oath.

That paper says: "If the constitution is not modified, environed as we are, and almost in a state of anarchy, its adoption can only be accepted as a choice of evils, not defended as right and proper; but it is in our power to modify the evils now, and for that purpose call the convention together again."

Mr. Sheets, of the Tuscumbia North Alabamian, repudiates the nominations made by the self-constituted political party.

The Huntsville Advocate repudiated the action of the radical meetings in north Alabama, and says the white Unionists are ignored and repudiated as unsound.

The conservatives all over the state are arousing and seem determined to use every effort to defeat the constitution. In north Alabama the whites who went into the radical party are leaving on account of the objectionable features of the constitution.

From Richmond.

RICHMOND, December 27.—General Schofield, at the request of Governor Pierpont, has issued an order removing the board of directors of the Eastern lunatic asylum for violating state laws in making disbursements of money, and has appointed a board of army officers in their stead.

From St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, December 27.—A Santa Fe, New Mexico, letter of the 17th December says: "Chief Justice Stough was shot by Captain Rynerson, a member of the territorial senate, last Sunday. The affair grew out of some strictures passed upon Judge Stough by Captain Rynerson during the session of the senate, at which Stough was present, and denounced as lies. Rynerson immediately attacked the judge, shooting him, and after Stough fell shooting him again, inflicting a mortal wound from which he died three days afterward.

Judge Stough was colonel of the first Colorado cavalry during the war, and at one time commanded at Alexandria, Virginia.

Jacob Schapp, an old citizen of Belleville, Illinois, whose wife was divorced from him recently, fatally stabbed both her and himself yesterday.

Wm. G. Petties, one of the oldest citizens of St. Louis, died yesterday.

Abraham Abrams, the rich pawnbroker who was convicted a short time since of buying stolen goods, knowing the same to be stolen, and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, has been pardoned by the governor.

The wholesale grocery firm of Carver, Wendover & Co., of this city, failed yesterday. Liabilities half a million of dollars.

From Portland.

PORTLAND, Maine, December 27.—The schooner Palmerston, from Nova Scotia, went ashore in Squirrel Harbor, and was burned by upsetting the stove. Three lives were lost.

From Europe.

LONDON, December 27.—A dispatch from Dublin says: An unusually large number of letters have recently been received at the postoffice here directed to prominent officials, each of these loaded with explosive materials, designed to kill the persons to whom they are addressed. Several of them have exploded, but so far no one has been killed. A policeman was horribly mangled by one which be opened.

Bullion in the Bank of Fngland has increased £300.

VIENNA, December 27.—By the rearrangement of the cabinet Beust ceases to be president but retains the ministry of foreign affairs.

LONDON, December 27.—A dispatch announces the departure from Bombay of General Napier to take immediate command of the troops advanced into Abyssinia.

FLORENCE, December 27.—It is said that Mereona has declared his intention to dissolve the national parliament now in session on the 15th proximo, should another vote unfavorable to the ministry be adopted by that time.

LONDON, December 27.—It is reported that the sublime porte offered the Cretans a change of government, and has nominated Prince Christian as the head.

LONDON, December 27.—Detailed accounts of the success of Dickens' readings in Boston and New York have been received by mail. The Times of to-day praises Americans for their magnanimity in giving Dickens such hearty receptions.

PARIS, December 27.—The Moniteur to-day contains an official notice that coupons of the Italian bonds will be paid.

Special Dispatch to the Picayune.

MOBILE, December 28.—A most deplorable affair occurred here this morning. Judge Richard Busteed, of the United States district court, was shot by L. V. B. Martin, United States district attorney. Three shots were fired by the assailant; two took effect—one through the body and the other in the leg. It is feared that the wounds will prove mortal. Of the causes which led the district attorney thus murderously to assault Judge Busteed nothing definite is known, and I forbear repeating unauthentic reports. J. R.

Another Account.

The reporter for the Associated Press sends the following account of the above affray:

MOBILE, December 28.—District Attorney L. V. B. Martin met Judge Busteed, of the United States District Court, this morning, in front of the Custom House, and said: "Judge, will you allow that indictment against me to take its course?"

Busteed replied, "Sir, the law must take its course." Martin drew a revolver and fired three shots. Busteed fell, with a ball below the breast bone and another in the right leg.

Martin had been indicted by the United States grand jury for revenue frauds and extortion. He is now in jail.

Judge Busteed's wounds are not considered mortal.

WASHINGTON, December 28.—The Boston Traveller publishes a Rio letter dated November 24th, stating that the English mail steamer Southern went down with four hundred persons on board, only fourteen of whom escaped.

Half a million of one and two dollar notes have been shipped to the assistant treasurer at New Orleans; also $50,000 in fractional currency.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $365,000.

Southern destitution is attracting great attention. General Howard is reported as favoring governmental relief, though he thinks the reported suffering exaggerated.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY,
Adjutant General's Office,
Washington, December 28, 1867.

General Orders No. 104.

By direction of the president of the United States, the following orders are made:

1. General E. O. C. Ord will turn over the command of the fourth military district to Brevet Major General A. C. Gillem, and proceed to San Francisco, California, to take command of the department of California.

2. On being relieved by Brevet Major General Ord, Brevet Major General Irvin McDowell will proceed to Vicksburg, Missisipi, and relieve General Gillem in command of the fourth military district.

3. Brevet Major General John Pope is hereby relieved of the command of the third military district, and will report, without delay, at the headquarters of the army for further orders, turning over his command to the next senior officer until the arrival of his successor.

4. Major General George G. Meade is assigned to the command of the third military district, and will assume it without delay. The department of the east will be commanded by the senior officer now on duty in it, until a commander is named by the president.

5. The officers assigned in the foregoing orders to command of military districts will exercise therein any and all powers conferred by acts of congress upon district commanders, and also any and all powers pertaining to military department commanders.

6. Brevet Major General Wager Swayne, colonel forty-fifth United States infantry, is hereby relieved from duty in the bureau of refugees, freedmen, and abandoned lands, and will proceed to Nashville, Tennessee, and assume command of his regiment.

By command of General Grant.

E. D. TOWNSEND,
Assistant Adjutant General.

The Home Journal has the following: "We have good authority for stating that the differences between Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner, which have caused so much unpleasant gossip and scandal, have been finally settled by a permanent separation, with the mutual consent and desire of both parties and their best friends. The direct cause of this separation is the certainty discovered only too late that there exists between the parties an incompatibilty of temperament and opinion upon certain social questions which precludes the possibility of their living happily together as man and wife."

The steamer Saturn was lost after leaving Bahia. Among the lost was the English minister, who had just been relieved for a short visit home.

From Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, December 28.—The county Republican nominating convention nominated eight negroes and sixteen whites. Four whites and two colored men nominated for state legislature. A majority of the whites are Northern men and connected with the freedmen's bureau.

A negro was shot dead yesterday on the plantation of Mr. Meriwether near this city, by another negro for declaring himself opposed to the Union League.

The Montgomery council, which claims to be the genuine league, has expelled Jno. C. Keffer, a leading radical, for dishonorable conduct and actions calculated to excite a war of races. Keffer has a league which he claims to be genuine. The whole affair will be laid before the grand council of the Union for its decision.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, December 30.—Internal revenue receipts to-day $1,050,000.

There were five highway robberies committed in Brooklyn, New York, on Saturday night last.

After January 1st payment for publishing letter lists will be stopped. A readjustment of postoffice salaries throughout the country is progressing.

Discussing the recent removals, the Tribune says: "The president successfully plays the game of political chess. The president removes every man who favors reconstruction under any other plan than his own. The game goes on, the president winning all the time; nor do we fail to see that the power which strengthens him is that of General Grant. There is no use of concealing or avoiding this fact. General Grant is an instrument of Mr. Johnson's will."

The supreme court has adopted the following order: That upon the filing of a transcript or a record brought up by writ of error or appeal, the appearance of counsel for plaintiff in error or appellant shall be entered, and no motion to dismiss except on special assignment by the court shall be heard unless previous notice has been given to the adverse party or the counsel or attorney of such party.

The case of the schooner Flying Scud and cargo vs. Coymore et. al, from the eastern district of Louisiana—decree affirmed as to the cotton claimed by Lopez & Co. and reversed as to cotton claimed by Aldridge and Coymore, and the case w a remanded with instructions to enter decr e restoring cotton to Aldridge & Coymor with costs.

The case of the Southern steamship company versus masters and wardens of the port of New Orleans—judgment of the lower court reserved, with costs and the case remanded for further proceedings in conformity with reversal. Court adjourned to Monday.

Schooner Struck by a Waterspout.

PHILADELPHIA, December 30.—The schooner M. E. Faber, from Wilmington, was struck by a waterspout on the 11th and badly damaged.

From Charleston.

CHARLESTON, December 30.—Much encouragement is felt here owing to accounts from Washington representing the probabilities of congressional aid to the planting interests.

Foreign News.

LONDON, December 30.—The great powers have determined to ask Napoleon to name a basis for the Italian conference. The conference is delayed by Menebrea's inability to reconstruct the ministry.

---

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

"Its exquisite beauty surpasses our anticipations."—Lady's Book.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR:

A Monthly Illustrated Magazine for the Little Ones.

EDITED BY T. S. ARTHUR.

TERMS—$1 25 a year in advance. Five copies for $5. Ten copies, and one to the getter-up of club, $10. "The Children's Hour" and "Arthur's Home Magazine" one year for $2 50.

Specimen numbers 10 cents.

BISHOP SIMPSON says of

The Children's Hour:

"I have no hesitation in commending it as one of the best Magazines published for children."

BISHOP STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, says of

The Children's Hour:

"I believe that its introduction into every household would prove a blessing to young and old."

REV. GEO. D. BOARDMAN says of

The Children's Hour:

"I am delighted with 'The Children's Hour.' I do not see how a more entertaining, instructive, or profitable Magazine could be put in the hands of our children."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES says of

The Children's Hour:

"This dear little monthly visitant we believe to be by far the purest, safest, and most attractive magazine for the little ones at home, published in this country."

MR. JOHN B. GOUGH says of

The Children's Hour:

"I can indorse it thoroughly........ It is a most welcome visitor to the family of children at my own home."

The Children's Hour

is as beautiful as the best typography and the best artists can make it. Two volumes a year, beginning in January and July. The number for January, 1868, will be the most beautiful number of a child's magazine ever published. Terms as above.

Address

T. S. ARTHUR & SON,
809 & 811 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

No Better Gift for a Musical Friend Than One or All of These Books.

Comprising the most complete collection of Choice Music, Vocal and Instrumental, to be obtained:

The Home Circle, a collection of music for the piano; 2 volumes. The Pianist's Album, forming the third volume of the "Home Circle." The Silver Chord, songs, ballads, quartets, duets, etc., piano acc. Shower of Pearls, vocal duets, piano acc. Gems of German Song, German and English words, piano acc. Gems of Scottish Song, Scottish songs and ballads, piano acc. Gems of Sacred Song, sabbath songs and home ballads, piano acc. Operatic Pearls, songs, quartets, duets, trios, etc., from the principal operas, piano acc.

Price of each volume, plain, $2 50; cloth, $3 00; cloth, full gilt, $4 00. Sold in separate volumes, or the set complete, by all music dealers and sent post-paid by OLIVER DITSON & CO., publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston, CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers.......$2 00
Mail subscribers, clubs of five.......9 00
Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each.......1 70
Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers.......34 00
Ten copies, to one address.......16 00
Twenty copies, to one address.......30 00
An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers....$4 00
Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers....7 00
Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy. 3 00
Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.
Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.
For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.

The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.

The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.

Terms, cash in advance.

Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.

Address, THE TRIBUNE, New York. del8 3tD&3tW

New Book of Choruses.

Forty-Five
OPERA CHORUSES.

Selected and arranged from the works of

Rossini, Auber, Bellini, Donizetti, Gounod, Verdi, Flotow, Spontini, Wagner, Herold, Bishop, Balfe, Benedict, and others.

Forming a Most Valuable Collection

FOR SOCIETIES, CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS SINGING SCHOOLS, CLUBS, AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.

By Edwin Bruce.

PRICE THREE DOLLARS.

Copies Mailed, post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & O., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
HARLES H. DITSON & O., d14 711 Broadway, New York

SCROFULA OF EVERY PHASE, CAtarrh, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Asthma, Liver and Kidneys, Bladder and Skin Diseases WM. R. PRINE, Flushing, New York, for sixty years proprietor of the Linnæar Nurseries, has discovered the remedial plants which are positive cures for the above and for other chronic diseases, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Gout, Piles, Diabetes, Jaundice, Dropsy, Uterine and other Female Maladies, Mercurial and other Blood Impurities hitherto incurable. Explanatory circular, one stamp. Treatise on all diseases, 25 cents. a1

A copy of the American Cyclopedia given as a premium.

GET THE BEST.

A COMPREHENSIVE
DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.
MAINLY ABRIDGED FROM
Dr. Wm. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.
WITH
Important Additions and Improvements, and Five Hundred Illustrations.

THIS BOOK is a condensation of the large work in three volumes, and contains entirely new matter, drawn from a wide range of first-class authority. The Dictionary is issued in semi-monthly numbers, of 48 royal 8vo. pages each. The whole will be completed in about twenty-two numbers, eight of which are now out.

PRICE OF EACH NUMBER, THIRTY CENTS.

The first number will be sent gratis to any address for examination, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

GET UP CLUBS.

Three subscribers sent to us, will entitle the sender to a copy of the Dictionary gratis.
Three subscribees sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the Annual Cyclopedia for 1866, in library binding—price $6.
Thirty subscribers sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the New Am rican Cyclopedia, 16 vols. 8 vo., the price of which is $80.
Agents wanted in all parts of the United States. Liberal terms offered.
D. ALLPETON & CO., Publishers, no23 3t 443 and 445 Broadway.

"EUREKA,"

THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

THE CLASSIC POETS have sung to us of a spring whose pure, ethereal waters impart perpetual youth and beauty to all who will drink of them. It is now conceded by all that the EUREKA is made of the water of that same spring, and its magical effects will be seen at once by those who use it. The hair will be restored to its yonth and beauty, even where the snows of winter have fallen. In presenting this Hair Restorative to the public, I have no hesitation in saying that it is no humbug: that it will do all that is claimed for it, viz: Restoring the hair to its original color; preventing its falling off, and giving it a softness, youth and lustre that no other preparation can produce. The Eureka has been used by tens of thousands, and in every case has given entire satisfaction, and is now used universally. Dr. Van Zandt has pronounced it "a most happy compound, sulted wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair—preventing it falling off, by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the EUREKA, and you will not be disappointed.

It is for sale by all druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by ROBERT FISHER, Agent, St. Louis, Mo. no16

AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS,
Is Richardson's New Method
FOR THE PIANO FORTE.

BEING THE ONLY BOOK THE TEACHER requires, and the book every pupil is attracted to. Its lessons are adapted to pupils of all ages, and its exercises attractive and useful in every stage of advancement. This book has, on account of its actual merit, become the standard work of Piano instruction, and the only one which every well informed teacher and scholar uses.

Price $3 75; sent post-paid
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., no16 711 Broadway, New York.

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

AROMATIC VEGETABLE SOAP, Combined with Glycerine recommeneed for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N.Y. Sold by Druggists. nov2m6

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the complexion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Sold at 592 Broadway, New York. oc17

THE MUSIC BOOK
For Every Boy and Girl is
MERRY CHIMES,
Containing Hundreds of Popular Songs and Pleasing Instructions and Exercises
BY WHICH ONE CAN LEARN TO SING THEM.

PRICE—Fifty Cents. Sent Postpaid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., oc17 tf 711 Broadway, New York.

INFORMATION WANTED—OF FRANK VARNAR, by his wife, Sarah Varnar, who used to live in Pickens District, South Carolina, in the family of James Johns. Address SARAH VARNAR, care of Shade Croom, Houston, Texas. d14

The October Phrenological Journal

Contains Portraits and Characters of Mary Queen of Scots; Charlotte Bronte; Thomas Nast, the artist; Ira Aldridge, tragedian; Alfred Sewell, and others. Well-written articles on Anthropology; Married or Single; Boots and Beauty; Sick Headache, its Cause and Cure; The Fashions, Illustrated; Man's Spiritual Nature; Forming Character; The American Physiognomy; "Expression;" Whining Women; Grapes and Blackberries, Illustrated. $3 a year, or 30 cents a number.
Address S. R. WELLS, Editor, oct 389 Broadway, New York.

NOTICE.

ROOMS OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND UNION CITIZENS. Washington, D. C., July 17, 1867.

IN PURSUANCE OF A SERIES OF RESOLUtions passed by the House of Representatives July 10, 1867, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate the "Treatment of Prisoners of War and Union Citizens held by the Confederate authorities during the late rebellion."

All persons in possession of important information upon either of these subjects are earnestly requested to address the Committee, as directed below, stating:

1. The name, age, and post office address of the writer.
2. If a soldier or seaman, his rank or position, and with what command he served.
3. A full statement of all facts known to the writer touching his own imprisonment or treatment, and that of others, either soldier or citizen, giving, as far as possible, names, places, and dates, with names of Confederate officers in charge.

Correspondents from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and the States and Territories lying west of the Rocky Mountains will please address JOHN P. C. SHANKS, M. C., Washington, D. C.

Correspondents from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, and the Territories east of the Rocky Mountains will address WILLIAM A. PILE, M. C., St. Louis, Mo.

Correspondents from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will address ABNER C. HARDING, M. C., Monmouth, Ill.

Correspondents from the New England States will address AARON F. STEVENS, M. C., Nashua, N. H.

Correspondents from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee will address WILLIAM MUNGEN, M. C., Findlay, Ohio.

Communications addressed to the members of the Committee will be free of postage.

It is the intention of the Committee to collect all facts necessary to make a thorough official history of this subject.

The various newspapers throughout the country are requested to give this circular a gratuitous insertion, together with such notice as they may deem proper.

JOHN P. C. SHANKS,
WILLIAM A. PILE,
ABNER C. HARDING,
AARON F. STEVENS,
WILLIAM MUNGEN,
Committee.

JOHN D. LARRABEE, Clerk.

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.
All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

Agents Wanted.
(Male or Female,) to sell our celebrated
Franklin and Diamond Double Thread Sewing Machines.

Complete with Table, only $25.00. Single Thread Hand Machines are not practical for any sewing, at any price. We give away our machine to the poor and needy, and send them out on trial. Circulars and information free. Address
J. C. OTTIS & CO., Boston, Mass.

W. H. PEMBERTON,
158 - - - POYDRAS ST. - - - 158
NEW ORLEANS.

Between St. Charles and Carondelet Streets.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Colors
Varnishes, Glass, Etc.

Has in store and to arrive, a large supply of the following goods, which he will sell at low figures, either wholesale or retail:

White Lead in Oil, all kinds.
Window Glass, French and American, all sizes.
French and American Zinc.
American and English Venetian Red.
Oils of all descriptions.
Varnish of all kinds.
Stove Polish.
Bi Carbonate of Soda.
Sal Soda.
Alum.
Castile and Colgate Soaps.
Wash Blue.
Black Writing Ink and Marking Ink.

Manufactured by himself.

Also a great variety of Perfumery and Fancy Articles for Toilet.

The Store is also well supplied with all kinds of Drugs and Medicines, Fresh and of the Best Quality.

Strangers visiting the City would do well to give him a call. 65 89

ROUGH AND READY
IRON WORKS.
Danville, Montour Co., Penn.

WILLIAM HANCOCK,
Proprietor,
Manufacturer of
RAILROAD IRON
OF ALL WEIGHTS AND PATTERNS.
MINE RAILS.
STREET RAILS,
STRAP RAILS,
Old Railroad Iron Re-Rolled.

The subscriber is prepared to furnish all kinds of
STEAM ENGINES,
ROLLS,
ROLLING-MILL MACHINERY,
Saw and Grist Mill

Machinery, gas retorts, mine car wheels and axles globe valves, gauge cocks—most improved styles. Blow off cocks, steam whistles, steam and water fittings, screw bolts, iron and brass castings, and every description of foundry and machine work, boilers, etc., etc.

Plans, designs and estimates furnished without extra charge for all work ordered from
WM. HANCOCK,
BENJ. G. WELCH, General Agent.

NATIONAL
FREEDMEN'S SAVING
AND
TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen l Financial Inspector.
Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,
No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.
Deposits of One Dollar or more received.
Interest payable in January and July, in each year.
All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.
All the profits belong to the depositors.
Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.
Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

JONES, McDOWELL & CO., Little Rock, Ark.
J. B. SHAW & CO., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,
GENERAL
Commission Merchants
AND
COTTON FACTORS,

No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

MUSICAL LEAVES.

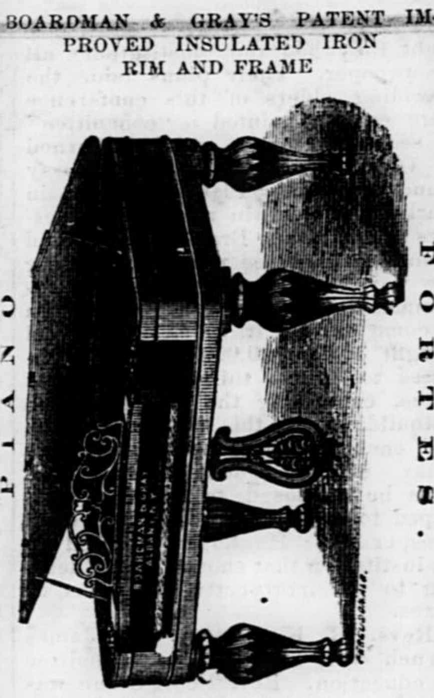
Published by Phillip Phillips & Co., Cincinnati.

THE BEST SABBATH-SCHOOL SINGING BOOK EXTANT.

Over 15,000 Sold in Eight Months.

This is the book that has been so highly recommended by the New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois State Sunday School Conventions.
☞ Send for specimen copy.
Forty cents each, or $30 for 100 cop

WILLIAM McCAMMON,
MANUFACTURER OF
BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.

☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address
WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y. s6

PIERCE & DWIGHT'S
SELF-RAISING FLOUR.
—FOR—
Bread, Biscuit, Cakes, Pastry, Etc., Etc.,
WITHOUT USING YEAST, YEAST POWDER, SODA OR SALT.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING:

Stir in cold water with a spoon, and bake at once, without kneading or waiting for the dough to rise.

For the healthfulness of Self-Raising Flour, consult your Physician.

Ask your Grocer for a six pound package.

For sale at
99.......Magazine Street.......99
fe9 NEW ORLEANS.

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS
Window Shades and Cornices,
AND
PAPER HANGINGS

For Sale by
E. HEATH,
75 Camp street.

PEMBERTON'S
"Carbolic Acid Disinfectant."

This Powder is a compound of Carbolic Acid, Copperas, etc., possessing the properties of destroying contagion, decomposing pestilential effluvia, noxious exhalations, and neutralizing strong and offensive odors; removing the effluvia of sick rooms, sewers, cesspools, sinks, privies, etc.

It far surpasses the Chlorinated Lime in its actions and effect, and is certainly the best Disinfectant now in use. Thoroughly disinfecting the atmosphere, electrifying the oxygen, and rendering the respirable air both healthy and pure, being tirely free from all injurious effects on the throat and ungs, which so frequently attend the use of deodorizers.

Prepared and sold by
W. H. PEMBERTON,
No. 158 Poydras st., N. O.

Grovesteen & Co.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.
499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos receive the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Base, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

PITTSBURG FEMALE COLLEGE,
Rev. I. C. PERSHING, D. D. President.

Best sustained Ladies' School under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.
Superb brick buildings, with all the modern improvements.
Twenty-two Teachers.
Including Five Music Teachers.
Four hundred and twenty-six Pupils
French and German by native Professors. Sixty dollars per term, fourteen weeks, pays all expenses in boarding department except washing. Fall term commences September 4. Send to President Pershing, Pittsburg, Pa., for circular. aul1 tf

STAPLETON & CO.,
UNION HAT STORE,
95.......CANAL STREET.......97
NEW ORLEANS,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer
—IN—
Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,
—ALSO—
GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n20

MEDICAL.

Dr. J. WHITE'S INSTITUTE,
127 CARONDELET STREET,
Directly in rear of the City Hall.

The first aim of human beings is happiness, and happiness implies health of body and mind.

This Institute is established for the cure of all forms of disease, Chronic and Acute.

Dr. White does not allow any disease afflicting his patients, however virulent, to escape his vigilant care, as his patients universally testify.

It can easily be perceived how important it is that a full and correct diagnosis—detecting all the diseases that afflict the patient—should be attained. And it is no less important to the afflicted that the remedies should be equally clear to the physician; proving to his patient that when the local disease is eradicated, the whole system is completely renovated and restored to its normal condition. "A sound mind is a sound body."

Dr. White's experience and success for thirty years in an extensive practice in large cities, have brought to him for treatment a vast amount of every form of disease, justifying him in promising the cure of the patient if the vitals and vitality are not irreparably wasted.

His remedies cure the worst eruptions of the skin; all forms of ulcers, of whatever nature, to the incipient cancer, which so grievously afflict humanity. The remedies restore the stomach, liver, and blood, and all the secretions and excretions of the entire system, in unhealthy to a healthy condition. Instead of injuring the system or constitution, they renovate and repair the injuries and wastes of the entire organism.

One or two hours spent at the Institute with Dr. White frequently saves weeks of fever or other suffering—often life.

N. B. Persons desiring Dr. White's advice and remedies, will be careful to call at 127 Carondelet street, or address by letter, as there are several Dr. Whites in the city.

☞ Consultation free—stamps not "forgotten." [feb3]

A NEW GLEE BOOK.
THE GREETING.

A COLLECTION OF GLEES, QUARTETS, Choruses, Part-Songs, etc. By L. O. Emerson, Author of "The Jubilate," "Harp of Judah," "Golden Wreath," "Merry Chimes," etc.

Upwards of Half a Million copies of Mr. Emerson's Music Books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no other author of the same class of books and which cannot fail to insure for this new volume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been contributed by Mr. L. H. Southard whose name is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The marked features of the collection are Originality, Brilliancy and Variety; and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no Glee Book now before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to Musical Societies and Conventions, Conservatories, Clubs, and Amateur Singers. Price, $1 38. Mailed post-paid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., se26 711 Broadway, New York.

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE

Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. C. UPHAM, 25 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa. Circulars free. Sold by all Druggists. oct 13t

HALLOWED SONGS.

FOR PRAYER MEETINGS AND SMALL CHURCHES. A Small Hymn and Tune Book, of 25 pages, bound in muslin, at $1 each, of $75 per 100.
PHILIP PHILLIPS & CO., 3 1y Cincinnati.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.
This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 72, and 74 Washington st, New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.
No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.
For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.

PRRE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS
Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c.,
HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.

MENEELY' WEST TROY Bell Foundry, established in 1826. Bells for Churches, Academies, Factories etc., made of genuine Bell-metal, (Copper and Tin), mounted with improved patent mountings, and warranted. Orders and inquiries addressed to the undersigned, or to our General Agents, Fairbanks & Co., Scale Warehouse, 252 Broadway, New York, will have prompt attention, and an illustrated catalogue sent free, upon application.
E. A. & G. R. MENEELY, West Troy, N. Y.

ROBERT PATON,
Manufacturer of
CHURCH, OFFICE AND SCHOOL
FURNITURE.
24 Grove St., N. Y.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING
Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.
Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.
JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.
feb17 ly

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 2. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JANUARY 11, 1868. WHOLE NO. 102.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

Alone and unguarded it stands in its shadows,
The snows drift unheeded about its low door,
The shrill winds of winter sob loud through each crevice,
And tumble unheard o'er the untrodden floor.

There still through each chamber the moonlight creeps nightly,
And feels with white fingers across the bare floor,
As though it were seeking the face of some sleeper
That never would dream 'neath its roof any more.

O never! The dreamers that nightly assembled,
Care-free and happy, to sleep undisturbed,
Are now scattered, some to the world, and the others
Are laid with the hosts which the grave has preferred.

O silence unbroken, no footsteps disturb thee,
For our little brown feet with their untiring fall
Have crept o'er the threshold to wander forever
Away from their brood nest, the ancestral wall.

O never again o'er thy door stones, in summer,
Will the print of our young feet be traced by the dew,
Or the burst of glad voices be heard in our gambols,
So happy and light in their innocence true.

Dear visions departed, forever departed,
And naught but the dead leaves of memory sere
Are left in my heart, so withered and matted
With the drifts that have gathered for many a year.

Alone and unkept it stands in its shadows;
And still not alone, for nature is true,
And the long-fingered grass o'er the low sill is woven,
While the king's cups and daisies creep near in the dew.

Yes, nature will guard it; and warm winds and moonbeams
Will lay their thin hands on its mossy old roof,
And the light-footed raindrops will glide o'er its shingles,
Awakening low sobs on the lonely old roof.

Yes, nature will guard it; and timid-lipped breezes
In sad, wailing whispers forever shall fall,
But those who once kept it will never more listen
To the songs the winds sing in the crazy old wall.

SERMON

Preached by the Rev. Daniel Gregory, colored, at Frost Chapel, Fort Bend County, Texas, on Sunday, December 15, 1867.

The portion of Scripture which I have selected for my text this evening may be found in the first chapter of the Gospel according to St. John and the the seventeenth verse.

"For the law was given to Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ."

I am afraid that from hurry and pressure of time that I can not speak of and treat these important words in the manner which they deserve. It is not many that at the first hearing of them, would appreciate their great meaning and depth, and the importance of what they convey. As you, or, at least a majority of you are aware, it is my intention to preach the funeral sermon of two little children, Laura and Mary Ann Dyer; having to do this, but little time will be left me for the consideration of these eventful words. Before, however, attending to that part of my discourse more closely connected with the funeral, I shall call your attention to my text. In order to bring this subject more clearly home to your understanding and to make it as comprehensive as possible to you, I shall have to refer to the Old Testament. Moses, we find according to the Old Testament, was God's chosen leader of the people; to him was intrusted the care and guidance of the Israelites; God empowered him to act as it were, in the capacity of viceregent, or one who was to govern with all the powers of a king, subject only to one higher than him, God himself.

In this way it came to pass that the people were governed by the law of Moses, commonly called the Mosaic law. This law, of course, it must be understood, emanated from God himself, Moses being merely the instrument through which the law was promulgated.

It was for this purpose that Moses was conceived and born, for this God took him under his own special care and guardianship, and when he had accomplished his mission, God said: "Enough," and took him to his own bosom. His only mission was not to be a lawgiver to the people, but on him was conferred the high honor of leading a bound and captivated people to a land of freedom.

Now it may be necessary to explain to you what is meant by the Mosaic law, "For the law came by Moses," the law that means the divine law. Moses was but human; this law was not of his own making altogether, it was accomplished by divine inspiration. God breathed, as it were, into the heart of Moses the laws that were to govern the children of Israel; Moses merely published and enforced them.

After the death of Moses the law was for a time observed, but as time rolled on the world again began to wax wicked, and finally renounced the divine law, excepting a comparatively small number that still worshiped the true God. The people were again falling into that condition of wickedness which at a former time caused the destruction of the world by the flood. God the Father saw that instead of getting good and becoming more like his image they were going to ruin and destruction, till he was even through His infinite love angry with them, angry enough to destroy the world a second time, not by flood, that he had promised not to do. But a mediator, a true friend, Jesus Christ our Lord, says: "Father spare them and let me die in their stead. Spare them father," and now comes a proof of God's immeasurable love. "God so loved the world that he gave his only son." Was not this love? Where is the father on earth that will show such love? God suffered his only son to suffer and die instead of the people, and now comes the explanation of "but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ." Before the advent of Christ people were saved only by obedience to the law of Moses. Those that implicitly obeyed the directions of their common lawgiver obeying among other things the "ten commandments," were doing all that God required of them, but this was an artificial religion, there was no "grace," none of that divine essence, that peculiar attribute of God's love called grace. Those that lived prior to the advent of Christ never could know the real depth of the love of God, and consequently could never love him as he ought to be loved. Salvation in the days of Moses was a mere matter of law; it meant obedience to certain injunctions; now, it concerns not the head and understanding, but the heart and soul. Grace and truth are now ingredients of our salvation. Faith first of all, then follow grace and truth. Have faith in Jesus Christ and in the power of God to save and there will come grace and truth. Let me entreat you to have this faith, to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and be saved. In God who only is able to set us free and give us an inheritance of everlasting life, or condemn us forever to woe and misery. The prophets foretold that He, Jesus Christ, would come upon earth and die to save sinners, and He came. He never made a promise which He did not fulfill.

When he had accomplished His mission of love He left us, ascending to the right of the Father Almighty. Before He left the world He said to his disciples: "If I go not away the comforter will not come. If I go I will send you a comforter that will be with you unto the end of the world."

That comforter is with us to-day, with God's people. Jesus Christ has ascended up to His father's house again, but He has left us the comforter. Oh! what a blessed thought, what a balm to the tried soul of the believer, what happiness ought to be ours as we think of this one more proof of God's love and fatherly care.

Those little infants that have passed away, nipped by an untimely frost, those little lambs that were not spared to encounter the tribulations of this world, where are they? They have been taken through the wisdom and the mercy of God to a brighter and happier clime; just as Jesus Christ was transfigured till his face shone as the sun and then soared away to heaven, just so have these little ones gone to that haven of rest, where through grace and truth you can one day meet them. They can not come where you are, but through God's mercy you can go where they are. How often have you said on your knees when praying to God, "Thy will be done," and now weep not but bless Him for having done His will. Be faithful unto death and you shall have a crown of everlastling life. God knows what is best. He knows that if perhaps He had allowed them to live and grow up they might have been caught in the snares of the devil, and then you would have shed tears of real sorrow. Weep no more, mourn no more, your little ones are clad in white, wearing their starry crowns, and are able to praise God forever with the angels of light. Let us be faithful, let us be careful to serve God in truth, so that we may secure our entrance to His holy kingdom. I trust we may all meet on the "banks of sweet deliverance" on resurrection morning, and when the dividing line shall be drawn separating the sheep on the right hand from the goats on the left, may we all meet on the right, and we shall then be permitted to gaze upon the jasper walls of the New Jerusalem and sing the song of Moses forever. Let us die at the feet of Jesus, and blessed be God, faith will enable us to outride the billows and storms of this life, and pass that dark gate of death. And that we may all be called to the arms of the dear Redeemer is my sincere prayer.

Church Extension.

Office—No. 1018 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. A. J. Kynett, D.D., Corresponding Secy. | Thos. T. Mason, Esq., Treasurer.

Another example of the calls made upon our Church Extension Society for aid comes from Elizabethton, Tenn. Rev. L. F. Drake, presiding elder of the district, writes to the corresponding secretary: "I presume you hear of very many needy churches (more than you would dare to presume, Brother Drake,) and it is natural, I suppose, that every one who writes you should endeavor to make the impression that his is the most urgent case that can come before you. Well, I really have just such a case. The church in Elizabethton, in this state, has been a bone of contention ever since the organization of this (the Holston) conference. The church and lot are worth about four thousand dollars. At the commencement of the war there was a debt upon it of about eleven hundred dollars. It was a new building. With interest and costs added it now amounts to about fourteen hundred dollars. On yesterday the property was sold, and the church South, which had owned it, not being able to purchase, I bid it in for our church at fourteen hundred dollars. (See certificate inclosed.) I have pledged the Church Extension Society to aid us by raising five hundred dollars, the first installment, which must be paid immediately. Now I do hope and earnestly pray that we may not be disappointed in this, for our salvation as a church depends upon our receiving this five hundred dollars immediately. Our people at Elizabethton will have to struggle very hard indeed to raise the remainder in six months.

"Do let us hear from you immediately in a favorable response to the above application."

The certificate of the clerk, duly signed, showing the fact of the sale and purchase as above recited accompanied the petition.

It was certainly "an act of faith"—of pretty strong faith—in our society. Should we refuse? How could we? Should we honor it? We must do so, if at all, by a corresponding act of faith in the Church. We could command the means for a season, and grant the needed aid, and make the transaction safe, provided the Church should respond to our calls, and reimburse us in a short time. With faith in the Church we venture to respond to the call. Shall our faith be honored in its turn?

Our brethren in New Orleans who in the name of the Lord set up their banners in that great commercial centre before the war closed have until recently been worshiping in a public hall. About a year ago they took measures to secure a suitable church, The Missionary Society made a liberal appropriation, and of the two hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars, for which the Church Extension called upon the Church, ten thousand was voted to New Orleans. They purchased an eligible lot, and went earnestly to work to build, fully expecting to receive the amount that had been set apart for them.

Under date of August 2, Rev. Dr. Newman, having then been recently notified that the Church was not so responding to our calls as to enable us to meet their expectations, wrote as follows:

"On the faith of the Church Extension society we contracted for the building of our church; we are now responsible in law as party to the contract; the time of the payments is stated in the contract; the ten thousand dollars promised by your society were relied upon to meet our engagements for September and October; we are here in a disloyal city; business is prostrated; the crops promise but little; many of our banks have failed; money can not be had for fifteen per cent interest; we shall have exhausted our resources when we have raised the amount necessary to finish our church.

"These are the facts. What shall we do? We trusted in your promise and made our contracts. Shall we suffer ourselves to be sued? or our church to remain unfinished? We can not release you. Give us the money now, and so soon as we get into our church we will make a subscription for your society, and thence forward annually. Will you give us the money?"

Of course we would if we had it to give. No duty or privilege could have given us greater pleasure. But where we had asked the church for the ten thousand for this work it had given us but one thousand. The facts had not been generally understood, but they were none the less stubborn and troublesome to us. What should we do? What could we do? We explained the facts; we sent forward the thousand that had been placed in our hands; we proposed a loan of five thousand more if they could struggle through with that amount. Our explanations and propositions were accepted, and the money forwarded.

December 5 Dr. Newman acknowledges the receipt of the money as follows:

"Ten thousand thanks, my dear brother, for your two drafts of six thousand dollars, and especially for the one of five thousand. Its coming forms one of those special interpositions of Providence which so often occur in the nick of time, relieving men's souls of some oppressive burden, and filling their hearts with joy.

"The building of this church has been attended with a world of anxiety, and only our Heavenly Father knoweth the anxious nights and toilsome days it has cost me. Indeed, my whole life seems to have been compressed into the four years which I have spent here. Ah, what trials! and now what joy! The Lord hath given us the land, and hath established our goings, and we will praise him!

"The draft for $5000 makes us easy, and we can manage the balance of indebtedness. We intend to raise every dollar at the dedication. A brother of our mayor, Mr. Charles Heath, has just presented us with our carpets, worth seven hundred dollars, and proposes still greater liberality toward our cause; so you see the Lord is raising us up friends even in this city, where such stern opposition has abounded. We are expecting Bishop Ames to dedicate our church."

This church was dedicated by Bishop Ames December 5, and is a credit to loyal Methodism in New Orleans. It will be the stronghold of our cause in the Southwest, and we trust the first fruits heralding the rich harvest to follow in God's good time. Let the whole church unite to sustain our advance lines, and the victory is sure.

How it Was.

Fred. Uncle John, are you perfectly settled in your religious belief?

This question was asked by my nephew, a conscientious young man, about to complete his college course.

Uncle John. I believe that for many years past, Fred, I have felt perfectly settled. Why do you ask?

Fred. Do you never have a sort of lingering doubt in regard to some of the things taught by our orthodox ministers? Some vague longing for proof a little more positive on some points?

Uncle John. No. I am as certain of the truth of my belief as I am of my own existence; but why do you ask?

Fred. You know that the course of studies during the senior year is calculated to make us think and reflect. We have had lessons every Saturday in the catechism—Vincent—which commences with the question: "What is the chief end of man?" This makes one think of the Bible and its doctrines. We have had also Butler's Analogy, which is calculated to tax one's reasoning and perceptive faculties, and leads one to look from nature to nature's God, as they say. Now, uncle, you know that I am a little inclined to be skeptical on all matters; or, to be a little more lenient with myself, I am not credulous. I want to know the "whys and the wherefores" of everything, and what, with this peculiarity, and perhaps my dullness of apprehension, I have become, I'm afraid, very much at sea in my religious faith. My Sunday school lessons seem to have lost their influence on my mind; in short, uncle, to be plain with you, I am an atheist, which, of course, includes the infidel. With all their arguments I can not believe that there is a personal identity called God. To my mind Butler does not prove the existence of a thinking intelligence. I have tried hard to believe. I have sometimes thought that I was "lacking" in some very important mental faculty, because I could not believe as the most of those whom I so greatly respect profess to believe, you, uncle, the most valued of all my friends among them. Being so exercised in mind, I have come to you for advice. What can I do? You know what my reading has been. I have tried to read both skeptical and religious authors impartially, expecting, of course, I would settle down on the old orthodox platform as my fathers had done before me; but, as I said, I am at sea with nothing to swim upon—not a plank.

Uncle John. Your case, Fred, is mine over again. I have been exactly where you are. I know how you feel, and since you have shown such confidence in me by frankly revealing the state of your mind, I'll be equally so with you. I will relate a short chapter from my own experience.

In my college course we had the studies that you have referred to. Dr. Hopkins heard the recitations, and gave us permission to state our views fully upon all questions which arose in the class. He submitted, with his peculiar grace, to the most severe questioning, and answered all questions as frankly as he was able. His mind had been sharpened by the constant drilling of more than twenty years' practice in discussing all sorts of religious questions with the graduating classes, until able to comprehend any peculiar phase of mind almost by intuition. He had discovered that the effect of Butler's Analogy on some minds was to make the student more atheistic than when the study was commenced, and had supplemented the book with a series of lectures of his own, which generally had the desired effect of gaining the object Butler had in view. But I was not convinced. I told the doctor that the argument did not appear conclusive to me—that there was nothing in the whole argument that proved the existence of an intelligence akin to man's intelligence—that I could not perceive anything in nature which a combination of blind forces, co-existent with matter, could not effect—that light, heat, moisture, and nutriment caused plants to live and grow—that there was no intelligence in these forces—that plants were propagated according to well-known botanical laws: if the seed should fall in unfavorable places they would not germinate, and it seemed to be purely accidental whether a seed was deposited on favorable or unfavorable ground—if we had early warm weather in spring, the buds would swell and the trees blossom only to be destroyed by the frost—that an intelligence akin to man's would not permit such things; our intelligence would teach us that a frost would kill the fruit—that animals seemed to be governed by instinct, which many times appeared very unworthy the thought or invention of an intelligent creator—in fact, that all nature seemed to be the result of blind forces acting according to the laws of matter. Two substances brought together would produce electricity; two substances having chemical affinity would unite when brought together; light, heat, electricity, gravitation, and the powers of nature seemed to make the world what it is—in other words, not an intelligence but blind forces made the world and what was in it. The doctor heard me through patiently, and said he would think over my case and talk with me again.

On passing his study a few days subsequently he called me in. He said he had considered my state of mind, and thought he could assist me in coming to a conclusion—that there was some plausibility in the argument I had used in regard to blind forces making the universe—that he could conceive how forces might aggregate matter, and form stone, for instance, and so perhaps of many other material substances; but, said he, turning abruptly to me, do you believe that you have a mind, a thinking principle, or whatever else you may call it, within you? I answered in the affirmative. Well, can you conceive how a combination of blind forces could form or produce a mind, an active intelligence? I hesitated a moment and replied no. He left me to my reflections a few minutes, and I comprehended the full force of his question. He then proceeded. Does it not seem to you that it requires an intelligence at least equal to man's to form that of man? If there be such a thing as mind in man, does it not seem to be necessary that a combination of forces equal at least to it, should form it? He went on—mind indicates a centre of consciousness. A centre of consciousness is neither more nor less than a being. I listened in amazement. My convictions were settled.

Fred. Mine are settled, too, uncle. I thank you, and feel more grateful than I can express.—Methodist Home Journal.

Last Words.

Surely there is something very pathetic in those last words of Dr. Adam, of Edinburg, the high school head master: "It grows dark, boys; you may go." As the shades of death were fast closing around him, the master's thoughts were still with his work; and thus regarding the shades of death as but the waning twilight of the earthly day, he gave the signal of dismissal to his imaginary scholars, and was himself the same instant "dismissed" from work to his eternal rest.

The last words which Gœthe uttered were: "Draw back the curtains, and let in more light."

At the time of Humboldt's death the sun was shining brilliantly into the room in which he was lying, and it is stated that his last words, addressed to his niece, were these: "Wie herrlich diese Strahlen! sie scheinen die Erde zum Himmel zu rufen." (How grand these rays! they seem to beckon earth to heaven.)

When we remember Charlotte Bronte's stormy and sorrowful life, lightened for only a few brief months toward its close by her marriage with her father's curate, Mr. Nicholls, there is a melancholy plaintiveness in her last words. Addressing her husband, she said: "I am not going to die, am I? He will not separate us; we have been so happy."

Poor Oliver Goldsmith's farewell words are very sad. "Is your mind at ease?" asked his doctor. "No, it is not," was poor Goldsmith's melancholy reply. This was the last sentence he ever uttered, and it is sorsowful, like his life.

Tasso's last words were: "In manus tuas Domine," (Into thy hands, O Lord, do I commit my spirit.) They were uttered by him with great difficulty, and immediately afterward he expired.

The son of Edmund Burke, the great statesman, was a young man of rare promise, and his early death hastened the decease of his illustrious father. It is related that on the night of his death young Burke suddenly rose up and exclaimed: "Is that rain? Oh no; it is the sound of the wind among the trees." He then turned to his father, regarded him with a look of great affection, and then commenced to recite with deep feeling these sublime lines of Milton, from Adam's Morning Hymn, which he knew to be his father's favorites:

"His praise, ye winds, that from four quarters blow,
Blow soft or loud; and wave your tops, ye pines,
With every plant, in sign of worship, wave."

Just as he pronounced the last word, his strength failed him, the lamp which had flickered up so grandly was quenched; he fell forward into his father's arms and died.

Who that ever read them can forget those noble last words which Bishop Latimer addressed to his fellow-sufferer, Bishop Ridley, when both were about to perish in the flames at Oxford? Addressing Bishop Ridley, he said: "Be of good cheer, brother Ridley; this day we light a candle in England which shall never be extinguished." We question whether, if the archives of martyrdom were to be ransacked, there could be found a record of any more memorable utterance than this.

Zwingle, the great Swiss reformer, was killed in battle in the year 1531. His last words are cool and brave. Gazing calmly at the blood trickling from his death-wounds, he said: "What matters this misfortune? They may indeed kill the body, but they can not kill the soul."

As the last illustration of our subject we give the final utterances of the venerable Bede. Bede died at Yarrow monastery, near Newcastle, in the year 735. The account left us of his death is very striking. For a long time previous Bede had been engaged upon a translation of St. John's gospel into the Saxon language. His work, which was to give God's word to the common people in their own tongue, was very nearly completed; but Bede's strength was ebbing fast. He sat in his chair, however, conscious still, though the shades of death were fast gathering around him. The scribe, who was writing to Bede's dictation, now hastily exclaimed to him: "Dear master, there is yet one sentence not written." This recalled Bede's fast failing senses; and gathering together all his strength, he answered: "Write quickly;" and then dictated to the scribe the last sentence of the last chapter of the gospel according to St. John. The scribe wrote it down rapidly, and then said: "The sentence is now written." Bede replied: "It is well; you have said the truth. It is finished! Consummatum est!"

Jesus Enough.

Pastor Harms had a rare power of developing spiritual life among his people, and not even Baxter's parish at Kidderminster gave such evidences of the power of the Gospel to mould a whole community to a noble life. The following incident which he relates shows the simplicity and unreserved consecration which prevailed among them:

Some time ago I stood by the bedside of a sick laborer who had a wife and four children. He had lain sick for three weeks, and the sickness had exhausted all his means. Noticing that he was weeping while we sang a precious song of Zion, I asked him why he wept? Was he troubled with the thought of parting from his wife and children? He looked at me steadfastly, almost reproachfully, and answered: "Does not Jesus stay with them? Has not the Lord said that he is Father of the fatherless, and Judge of the widow? No; they are well cared for. I have prayed the Lord that He would be their guardian. Is it not so, wife? You are not troubled? You are not afraid? You believe in Jesus?"

"Surely," she replied, "I believe in Jesus, and rejoice that you go to Jesus. I shall follow you with the children in his own time. Jesus will help me to train the children, through his Holy Spirit."

"Why did you weep, then?" I asked.

"For joy; I thought if the singing is so beautiful here, O how beautiful will it be when the angels help in it! I wept for joy that this blessedness is so near."

Then he motioned to his wife. She understood, and went to the shelf and brought down a little saucer in which her husband kept his money. There were six groschen (about seven pence) in it—all that remained of his store. He took them out with trembling fingers and laid them in my hand, and said:

"The heathen must have these, that they may know how to die in peace."

I turned to his wife, who nodded assent, and said:

"We have talked it all over already. When everything had been reckoned for the funeral, these six groschen remained"

"And what remains for you?"

"The Lord Jesus," she replied.

"And what do you leave for your wife and children?"

"The Lord Jesus," he said, and whispered in my ear, "He is very good and very rich."

So I took the six groschen and laid them in the mission box as a great treasure, and it has been a great struggle for me to pay them away. But if they had not been paid away the dying man's wish would not have been fulfilled.

That night he fell asleep. nd neither his wife wept, nor his three eldest children, neither in the church nor at the grave. But the youngest child, who followed the body, wept bitterly. I asked him afterward why he wept so bitterly at his father's grave, and the child made answer: "I was sorry that father did not take me with him to the Lord Jesus, for I begged of him with my whole heart that he would take me."

He said, "I would like to go to Jesus, and would like to grow up, that mother might live with me."

"Now, then," I replied, "say to the Lord Jesus that he must choose."

"That is what I will do," he said, and was greatly delighted and in peace."

A Princess under Discipline.

Grace Greenwood, writing to the Advance, of Chicago, some chatty descriptions of Victoria, gives the following, which illustrates the quality of the English queen's family discipline:

An anecdote illustrating Victoria's admirable good sense and strict domestic discipline, came to me directly from one who witnessed the occurrence.

One day when the queen was present at a military review, the princess royal, then rather a willful girl of about thirteen, sitting on the front seat, seemed disposed to be rather familiar and coquettish with some young officers of the escort. Her majesty gave several reproving looks without avail—"winked at her, but she wouldn't stay winked." At length, in flirting her handkerchief over the side of the carriage, she dropped it—too evidently not accidentally. Instantly two or three young heroes sprang from their saddles to return it to her fair hand—but the awful voice of royalty stayed them.

"Stop, gentlemen," exclaimed the queen, "leave it just where it lies. Now, my daughter, get down from the carriage and pick up your handkerchief."

There was no help for it. The royal footman let down the steps for the little royal lady, who proceeded to lift from the dust the pretty piece of cambric and lace. She blushed a good deal, though she tossed her head saucily, and she was doubtless angry enough, but the mortifying lesson may have nipped in the bud her first impulse toward coquetry. It was hard, but it was wholesome. How many American mothers would be equal to such a piece of Spartan discipline?

"Religion in High Places."

A correspondent of the Christian Instructor writes:

"I have been to considerable pains to ascertain the religious character of those who are high in power. The following is the result: President Johnson is a non-professor of religion. Of the seven members of his cabinet there is only one professor of religion, Secretary Welles, who is a communicant in the Episcopal church. Secretary Browning attends the Presbyterian church; the other five, when they go at all, go to the Episcopal.

"Of the nine judges of the supreme court of the United States, two only are church members, Chief Justice Chase, who is a Methodist, and Justice Grier, who has long been a ruling elder in the old school Presbyterian church.

"The United States senate contains at present fifty-four members. Of these nineteen are professors of religion. As two of these are Unitarians, it only leaves seventeen belonging to Evangelical churches. They are distributed among the religious denominations thus: Episcopal 1, Reformed Dutch 1, Baptist 2, Methodist 2, Presbyterian 4, and Congregational 7."

General Grant when in Washington is a regular attendant at Wesley chapel M. E. church. Chief Justice Chase also regularly attends the services of the same church. Mr. Taylor, commissioner of Indian affairs, and Mr. Gooding, marshal of the District of Columbia, are also Methodists. Attorney General Stanbery was also raised a Methodist; he is an alumnus of Allegheny college. Secretary Stanton was formerly a class leader of the M. E. church. General Howard was formerly a Methodist, but for several years past has been a member (at one time a preacher) of the Congregational church.

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00

INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 11, 1868.

New Volume.

With last week's issue we commenced the Third Volume of the New Orleans Advocate. The prospects before us are flattering. At the late session of our Conference, the preachers ordered in the aggregate over seven hundred copies to be sent to their charges. This was exceedingly encouraging, and we commence the year with renewed zeal.

Although the editor-in-chief is required to discharge the duties of a presiding elder and of a pastor, and the assistant editor has the charge of two churches, yet it is our purpose to devote all the time possible to the Advocate, that it may be one of the best church papers in the South. And it is equally due the editors to state, that they work on the paper without any remuneration whatever; and, also, that the editor is financially responsible for the current expenses of the Advocate. We thus labor for the love of God. Our mission is to do good, and to this end we employ the press, one of the mightiest of all the christianizing agencies known to the world.

At the late session of our conference, the Advocate was enthusiastically indorsed by the preachers. Bishop Ames, and Revs Messrs. Diossy, Henry, Lynch, Ross, Green, Chinn, and many others, spoke in terms of commendation and of devotion to this great church interest. And our preachers are the best judges of the amount of good the Advocate is accomplishing. It is their assistant preacher, repeating their pulpit utterances in the quiet of the family. And as these preachers carry it into all the interior parishes of the State, the Advocate has a larger country circulation than any other loyal journal in Louisiana.

At the conference, the question of subscription was thoroughly discussed, and after due deliberation we have concluded to reduce the price of the Advocate to Three Dollars a Year in Advance, or One Dollar a Quarter in Advance. This is as low as we can possibly afford to publish the paper, and at this price we but just pay expenses. But we intend to make the Advocate fully worth this amount.

With this number we commence the official publication of the proceedings of our State Constitutional Convention, which will be found on our supplement sheet. Our readers in the country parishes need not therefore, purchase other papers to obtain these proceedings, as they will find them in their own Advocate.

And now we cordially invite the co-operation of every Preacher, Subscriber, and Friend of the church and the country to the hearty support of the New Orleans Advocate.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

During the absence of the editor of the Advocate for the coming two weeks, the management of the paper will be intrusted to Rev. W. M. Henry, the assistant editor.

Hard Times.

There is a deep significance in calling such times as these "hard." That word "hard" is wonderfully expressive. It is applied to a man who has no compassion on his fellows, and him we call a "hard man." It is descriptive of the failure of the crops, and men say "this is a hard season;" and in a wider sense it indicates the commercial condition of the community, when business flags, when men lose faith in each other, and when the stringency of the money market has taken the place of that elasticity of confidence and buoyancy of hope so characteristic of merchantable prosperity.

Down here in Louisiana, we think the present, the hardest of hard times. No one pretends to have money, and no one pretends to pay his debts. Business is smitten with the dry rot. Rents, clerk hire, depreciation of goods, and a family to support, eat like a canker worm into a man's capital. This is the ebb-tide. All that has been made in the last two years is being absorbed to keep up a sign, and keep soul and body together. "Gentlemen, these are awful times," is the trite saying on 'change. There is a constant drain upon our banks, and the best of paper goes begging for its face. The number of capable men who seek in vain for employment is fearful to contemplate, and the suffering among the poor is absolutely frightful. The cry of want is heard on every side, no less in the country than in the city, and God in heaven only knows the greater evils that are ready to burst upon us.

War, famine, and pestilence—this hateful trio—these companions three—this trinity of deadly evils, are the immediate causes of all our woes. But whence come these evils? From God or man? Who brought on the war? Did not wicked men? What caused the famine? The broken levees, which were neglected by those who preferred war to peace; and when God sent the floods there were no levees to guide them to the sea. And pestilence followed in the wake of war and famine, as a natural concomitant of a physical condition superinduced by such exciting causes.

Men marvel at the distress that is upon us, and declare it a mystery of God's inscrutable providence. But it is no mystery; nor is it inscrutable. The present troubles come from natural causes, as truly as do disease from dissipation, or poverty from prodigality. All of our troubles may be traced to the rebellion as their logical and immediate cause. It was a war against law and the Union; against justice and humanity, that called the laborer from the field, the mechanic from the shop, the merchant from the store. It was war that overthrew the social institutions of the South, and that destroyed its ancient system of labor. It was war that bankrupted the whole South, and left it without active capital to till its fields, and that ruined its credit both at home and abroad. It was war that fired those deadly human passions which render the life and property of a loyal man insecure, and thus turns capital to other and more secure regions. It was war that necessitated a paper currency, the inflation of which is now paralyzing the nation's finances. Men complain of God that He is severe in His dealings with them, but they have no reason to complain of God now; they, and not He, is the author of what we suffer. Then why should we marvel at the distress of the times? The cause we know, and the effects we feel.

But what is the remedy? This is the absorbing question. Some propose the deportation of all the blacks, and the importation of white foreigners; a few insist on negro peonage; while the more sensible, demand of the white young men of the South that they themselves shall become practical farmers, and with the aid of the improved implements of agriculture redeem their native soil. Some of these suggestions are foolish and unjust, while others are wise and practical. As the blacks should not be removed from this country, because they have a right to it, neither should they be reduced to peons, which would be an outrage to justice, and an insult to God, who has made them free. But foreigners should be invited to the South, and Southern young men should energetically engage in practical farming. Yet the remedy is not in these; other and more important questions must first be settled, among which are the following:

1. The restoration of the State to the Federal Union. This would inspire confidence and assurance in every department of society. At present all is unrest. Nothing is certain; no body feels secure. To-day we have a military commander, who favors one faction, to-morrow one who favors another faction. The orders issued to-day are revoked to-morrow. But restore to the State civil government, and place us once more under the majesty and beneficence of civil law, and the people will settle down contented, and engage in business with serenity of mind.

2. Security of life and property. With the Freedmen's Bureau and a military district, loyal men are not safe either in life or property in the country parishes. We have a letter before us from a quiet, intelligent, enterprising citizen, who informs us that he must "sell out," and seek a home in the West, where he can feel secure. While it is not safe for those who are here, because of their political and religious sentiments, it were folly to invite foreigners to come to our State, or expect capitalists to invest their funds. We have a friend who two years ago gave $70,000 for a noble plantation, but his neighbors drove off his stock, destroyed his mills and fences, and to-day the plantation is abandoned, and offered for $10,000 We know that the Southern people are anxious to have Northern capital, provided the Northern capitalists will agree with them in politics and religion; but the remedy is that these capitalists shall come with their money and their opinions, and express their opinions just when, where, and how they please; and until they can do this with perfect safety to their lives and fortunes, we hope they will not come South. But how is this to be obtained? Evidently by a powerful militia force of truly loyal men, commanded by a loyal governor of the State. Then Gen. Hancock and the Freedmen's Bureau may return to the heaving bosom of Andrew Johnson.

3. Then let Congress make a sufficient appropriation to rebuild our levees, and remove such taxation as the impoverished circumstances of the Southern people demand. Congress must come to the aid of the South. We cannot rise without that aid. We must be relieved from the burthen of taxes, which a starving people cannot pay. And the means for the reconstruction of our levees must come from the same source.

Then we repeat: Restore the State to the Union; provide for a strong militia force; secure aid from Congress, and with the blessing of God, peace will be restored, and prosperity will return to our State.

Appointments of the Mississippi Mission Conference for 1868.

SOUTH NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT—J. P. NEWMAN, PRESIDING ELDER.

Ames church, J. P. Newman.
Fourth district and Sixth street, W. M. Henry.
Wesley Chapel, A. Ross.
First street, H. Green.

NORTH NEW ORLEANS DISTRICT—N. L. BRAKEMAN, PRESIDING ELDER.

Marais street, S. Chinn.
Laharpe street, E. P. Royal.
Poet street, E. Green.
Jefferson and Carrollton, E. Williams.
Ross Chapel and Camp Parapet, J. Gould.
Baton Rouge, J. Hayward.
Clinton, P. Yarborough.
Campbell's Chapel, R. Hodge.
Mandeville, Levi Johnson.
Live Oak, A. Gunby.
Ascension, to be supplied.
Gainesville, to be supplied.
Springfield, G. Washington.
Pass Christian, M. B. Avery.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT—R. K. DIOSSY, PRESIDING ELDER.

Donaldsonville, T. Kennedy.
Thibodaux, E. Grimes.
Houma, J. M. Vance.
Franklin, R. K. Diossy; J. Lea, assistant.
St. Martinsville, J. M. Bryan.
Opelousas, E. Jackson.
Holmesville, A. Hilton.
Alexandria, S. M. Small.
Natchitoches, E. Hayward.
Shreveport, Thomas Keith.
Washita, J. R. Fenner.
Morehouse, Henry Sims.

JACKSON DISTRICT—JAMES LYNCH, PRESIDING ELDER.

Vicksburg, Lev Baker.
Yazoo City, T. Gibbs.
Jackson, M. Adams, J. Anderson.
Brandon, M. Proctor.
Meridian, W. Murrill.
Marion, to be supplied.
Enterprise, O. Jones.
Shabuta, J. Fern.
Canton, A. Handy.
Big Black, to be supplied.
Clinton, to be supplied.
Shugubah, to be supplied.
Durant, E. Scarborough.
Macon, W. Jones.

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT—A. C. M'DONALD, PRESIDING ELDER.

Holly Springs, A. Williams.
Columbus, H. Ryan.
Aberdeen, W. Holmes.
Aberdeen circuit, J. Dobson.
West Point, to be supplied.
Oakalona, to be supplied.
Guntown, to be supplied.
Corinth, J. Jones.
Oxford, A. Phillips.
Grenada, D. S. Green.
Panola, to be supplied.
Water Valley, to be supplied.
Hernando, to be supplied.
Ponticoke, to be supplied.
Rev. W. M. Darnell and Rev. J. English transferred to the Missouri and Arkansas conference.

To Our Preachers.

Dear Brethren — We mail to your name the number of copies of the Advocate which you gave us at Conference. Take the papers to the church with you and show them to the people, and explain to them from the pulpit the importance of subscribing for the Advocate. Tell them that it will contain sermons preached by our ministers; notices of the marriages and deaths which occur in our congregations, which are sent for publication; all important religious and political intelligence; the journals of our presiding elders which are sent to us; a weekly statement of the market; articles on the education, the wages and general improvement of the Colored Man, and editorials on whatever is of importance to the Church and State.

And then ask them to subscribe at once. Remember: The price is Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance. Direct your letters to Rev. Dr. Newman, New Orleans, Louisiana.

New Books.

"Arrows From My Quiver," by Rev. James Caughey, with an introduction by Rev. Daniel Wise, D. D. An interesting work, being selections from the private papers of the Author. It is gotten up in handsome style, and printed on fine white paper.

All who have read the Author's work, "Methodism in Earnest," will know something of the style and merit of this work. It scarcely seems that any one, either of the ministry or laity can read this work without being spiritually quickened. We bespeak for it a wide circulation. We will probably publish extracts from it at an early day.

Published by W. C. Palmer, Jr., No. 14 Bible House, New York.

"Glimpses of Life in Soul Saving," by Rev. James Caughey, with an introduction by Rev. Daniel Wise, D. D. This is a large work of nearly five hundred pages. The title gives a good idea of its contents. Few men have accomplished more than James Caughey in the special work of converting souls. Among the contents will be found a few of his sermons, and his experience in soul saving. We will endeavor to give a more extended notice of this valuable work very soon.

Published by W. C. Palmer, Jr., 14 Bible House, New York.

From the New Orleans Republican.

PATRIOTISM—RELIGION.

Patriotism is loyalty to the nation; religion is loyalty to God. Both the nation and God are invisible beings to whom obedience and love are constantly due. Patriotism is manifested in obedience to and love of the laws of the nation. Religion is manifested in obedience to and love of the laws of God. Love is the leading impulse and soul of obedience, and will flow out to the nation when it recognizes right and just laws, and to God when it realizes his character to be good, just, and holy, and the laws proceeding therefrom benevolent and merciful.

The religion of some men consists of love to the nation alone, and looks no higher; the religion of others takes in the nation and God and can not divorce the two, or rather looking upon both as one, will recognize no laws of the nation that are not also clearly laws of God. Religion is the deepest part of man's nature—deepest in the savage and deepest in the saint. It links man with God, treats of his relations to God, brings God down to man, and lifts man up to God. It makes him a "citizen of the universe," as patriotism makes him a citizen at heart of the nation. Religion takes in all the universe of matter and mind and spirit. It is the soul of science, the soul of philosophy, the soul of art. The profoundest skeptic, if he be sincere, is a profoundly religious man. With his whole nature he loves truth, and truth is the soul of God. "Creeds," says a profound writer, "shrivel like leaves before a frost at the door of the observatory." But religion widens and deepens as knowledge and science advance. It will not be confined by human institutions and precedents; it cleaves straight to the heart of things, and rests only on the bosom of advancing truth. The most insignificant act may be inspired by a religious spirit which broods over all the common affairs and little details of life and duty, as well as the grandest efforts of the will in arousing rebellion against unjust laws, and marshaling armies in defense of righteous principles. The great revolutions of the world, through which greater liberty of human action and human thought were obtained, were all inspired and driven on by the spirit of religion; not the religion of creeds but the religion of light and knowledge, continually hungering to know the eternal reason and purpose of things. Creeds are but definitions of the day, and change and pass away with the day; but religion is eternal; it can not change; its quantity is always the same, its quality always the same. It is spiritual force, and like material force it can neither be created nor destroyed; neither be diminished nor increased. Balanced between material and spiritual forces God has placed the human Will. All men find it to be free, but can not explain the mystery. In order to create a moral being there must be an interval of time between temptation and choice. The reason of man demands this. Men feel themselves to be moral beings, feel themselves to be free, will fight and die in defense of the feeling. Balanced, therefore, between material and spiritual forces is the human will. Material force obeys it, and the moment its lurking plan is discovered becomes an obedient slave to man. It carries his thoughts around the world as rapidly as they can be conceived, and is continually at his side to do his slightest bidding. Spiritual force likewise obeys the will of man. With it man can make himself a demon or a saint; with it man can fill himself with the ethics of hell or the religion of heaven; with it man can rise and enter into the very moral being of God himself or sink into the soul of fiends. Spiritual laws play upon and constitute the soul of man; material laws play upon and constitute the body of man. The will can choose between them. It can be the sovereign over or slave of both. If sovereign, both will aid in building up man in the perfect image of God; if slave, both will hasten the destruction of that image. Religion blends spiritual and material forces. The soul gleams through matter and its character whether good or bad writes itself upon the lines of the face, the movements of the body, the whole person of man. Religion makes the countenance of man gleam with celestial light; it conquers pain, sorrow, disappointment, and achieves its final victory over death and the grave. What has it not done? What will it not do for man? It can not be defined, it needs no explanation, it will obey no creed. Its scope is the universe. It looks upon everything created and pronounces all good. It sees a divine and holy purpose in all things and if it can not always find out the order of that purpose it rests satisfied that it is supremely wise and beneficent.

Patriotism and religion are the two highest states of the human soul. Both are unselfish, both pure, both elevate, both transfigure, both save. Garibaldi in the love of his country and people, was supremely happy in the dungeon; Christ in the love of God and the human race was supremely happy on the cross. The devotion of one may have been human; the sacrifice of the other may have been divine. We will not enter into or attempt to explain the mystery. Enough that religion and the good of man inspired both, and in its effects upon them became a source of patriotic and religious inspiration for others. Garibaldi inspired a nation; Christ called out to the world, and is calling still. And his voice will be heard along the ages, not opposing but encouraging progress in all its phases; in science, in art, in philosophy, in all that ennobles and dignifies human nature and makes it worthy to be the temple of the Holy Ghost. Fear not religion. It is not ascetic. It is light, and cheerfulness, and pleasure; it is the sum and substance of all happiness, the essence of all perfection.

The First National Bank.

New Orleans, January 7, 1868.

Editor Republican:

Will you please enlighten one of your fellow citizens on a matter of much pecuniary concern to himself and friends. What is the condition of the First National Bank of this city? Will the depositors ever receive any money, and if so, how much per cent? Please give us all the information in your possession on the condition of this rotten and rascally managed concern.

* * *

In answer to our correspondent we would say that we have from time to time published all we could learn on the condition of the bankrupt bank, and its ultimate ability to satisfy any portion of the claims of our swindled citizens. How its affairs and assets have been managed since they have been placed in the hands of a receiver, we do not know, but from the repeated calls from all quarters for information we have been induced to take steps to ascertain. If we can not on a proper demand obtain the information from the receiver or his clerks in this city, we will make a trial at Washington. The parties interested have a right to know what the receiver is doing.—N. O. Republican.

We think it is time that some information be given the public in regard to the above mentioned institution. We were informed by one connected with the bank, and who was in a position to know, that the bank was not in such a bad condition as many supposed. Taking the published statement of its finances, and throwing out all that was classed as "bad," and one-half of what was classed "doubtful," they would then be able to pay eighty-seven and a half cents on the dollar. And yet, he said, some that was classed "bad" would be collected. He also said that it would probably take a year to settle up, but that in three or four months from the time of its failure they ought to have enough collected to declare a dividend of thirty-three per cent. May we not hear of such a dividend soon.

From the New Orleans Republican.

THE COMPETENCY OF THE PRESENT GRAND JURY.

The Right of Colored Men to Serve on Juries.

Soon after the empanneling of the present grand jury, that body presented an indictment against two colored men named Charles Morgan and Samuel Wilson, for murder. Some days ago A. P. Field, Esq., counsel for the accused, filed in the first district court a motion in which the attorney general was cited to show cause on the fourth of January, 1868, why the indictment should not be quashed, on the following grounds:

First—The panel from which the grand jury that found this bill was drawn was not drawn from the list or registry of the qualified voters of the parish of Orleans.

Second—That said panel was drawn from the registered voters of 1865, whereas they should have been drawn from the registered voters of 1867.

Third—That the drawing of the said jury by the sheriff and clerk from the registry of 1865 was illegal, because said registry did not contain all the names of the qualified voters of the parish of Orleans whose names were on the registry of 1867.

Fourth—The jurors were not drawn in conformity with the order of the court.

Fifth—That several members of the grand jury who framed the indictment were not on the registry of voters for 1867.

A supplemental motion was since filed, adding that the preceding grand jury summarily discharged by Judge Howe was a legal and duly organized body, and the judge was without the legal right to set the same aside.

The case came np for trial and argument yesterday morning, in the first district court. Mr. Field put Professor Vallas, custodian of the registry records of 1867 on the stand, for the purpose of proving that some five or six of the members of the present grand jury were not on the registry list of 1867. This was fully proved by Mr. Vallas. Some documentary papers were also put in evidence by Mr. Field. Attorney General B. L. Lynch and District Attorney C. H. Luzenberg represented the state. The attorney general put Deputy Sheriff Hubert and the clerk of the first district court on the stand for the purpose of proving that the formalities of the law had not been complied with in empanneling the mixed grand jury drawn about the 1st of November last. Both these witnesses proved that the first grand jury and several others were drawn by the judge himself without the action or concurrence of the clerk and sheriff then present. This closed the evidence.

Mr. Field opened the argument and quoted from authorities to show that under the recent reconstruction acts of congress persons of color were qualified to be jurors. He cited Chief Justice Chase as having allowed grand and petty juries to be composed in part of colored men in the state of North Carolina and other parts of Judge Chase's circuit.

The attorney general followed. He commented on the evidence of the clerk and deputy sheriff, and contended that their testimony established the fact that the law had not been complied with at the organization of the mixed grand jury discharged, and that indictments found by that body would be set aside and criminals let loose on society. Seeing this he forbore to lay any business before that grand jury.

He then referred to general order No. 125 of General Sheridan, which he believed was issued to place colored men on the jury. The attorney general asserted the right of General Sheridan to issue such order, and was sorry that the order contained a clause which was in antagonism to another part of the same order, and seemed to make its enforcement impracticable. Application was made to General Mower to issue an order explanatory of the order of General Sheridan. General Mower took no action in the matter, and it remained so until the arrival of General Hancock, who issued order No. 203, which set aside the order of General Sheridan, thus leaving the state law in reference to juries still in force. He contended that the act of congress which allows colored citizens to vote on the prospective state constitution does not necessarily entitle them to be jurors; that they would soon have the opportunity of framing a state constitution which would secure to them this right, but until this right was constitutionally acquired, their sitting on juries would be attended with litigation questioning the legality of every act which might be done by juries and grand juries of which they might be members. Mr. Lynch argued the case elaborately, though he left one branch of the case to his colleague, the district attorney.

Mr. Luzenberg next addressed the court and cited different authorities to show the illegality of the former grand jury and that the present grand jury was constituted according to law. That the reconstruction law of congress only granted the right of suffrage to the black man for the special purpose of voting for members of a constitutional convention, and for the rejection or ratification of such constitution as may be framed. That the right of colored people to the franchise for the future thereafter depends on the ratification of the constitution which the people of Louisiana present to congress.

Mr. Field closed the argument in favor of his motion, a plea in bar. Great interest was taken in the proceedings, and there was a large number of persons present, among them many colored persons. The arguments were conducted by counsel with much courtesy toward each other, and political feeling was entirely kept out. The court took the case under advisement.

Religious State of New York City.

The sad condition of New York, the commercial metropolis of the nation, is a reproach to American Christianity. Foreigners often judge of the nation by this representative city, as was notable in the recent discussion on democracy in Edinburgh between Prof. Blackie and Ernest Jones, where the learned professor drew many of his arguments against popular government from Mr. Parton's famous article on New York corruption. The annual report of the New York City Missionary and Tract Society gives the following startling statistics, as we find them in the Christian Intelligencer:

The population of this metropolis, according to the state census of 1865, is 768,386.

Of this number, 486,000 dwell, or reside, or rot, or live, as the case may be, in tenement houses, cellars, holes, and garrets.

There are 8000 drinking places, at which are expended yearly about $16,000,000.

About $7,000,000 are expended annually in supporting theatres and other places of debasing amusement.

The houses of infamy are reported to be 730, and females leading lewd lives, 3417.

The police is supported at an annual expense of $2,000,000.

All the above items show the cost of supporting, controlling, or punishing vice, immorality, and crime.

Let us now look at the other side of the picture. There are 216 regularly organized Protestant churches, with an average membership of 300, making a total of 64,800 communicants.

There are in all 275 places for Protestant worship, capable of seating 200,000.

The population of the city consists of 383,717 persons born in foreign countries, and of 439,952 natives. An immense proportion of these natives are, however, the children of those born in foreign parts.

It has recently been said that New York has more Germans than Bremen, and more Irishmen than Dublin, and every year the ratio between the foreign and native born is changing, so that this city is becoming more and more European, and thus takes character from its population.

These are facts which deserve the attention of philanthropists and Christians. The city mission sees and appreciates them, and has earnestly set about the work, which if left undone will prove that the churches who hold the truth know not the nature of the responsibilities which rest upon them.

New York is coming to be as truly missionary ground as any portion of our country, and there is, therefore, a needs-be for liberal, earnest, and united action. Such action the city mission has organized. That it ought to receive a perfectly adequate support is a truth so plain that we need not undertake to make it plainer.

Apostolical Succession.

In an article entitled "Our Ministry," in the October number of the Methodist Quarterly Review, the writer (Rev. Samuel Dunn) thus deals with the dogma of succession:

The Christian ministry is of God. No pope or president, bishop or moderator, has any authority to call men to this service. It rests not with any conclave, convocation, conference, or general assembly. And no man has any right to conclude, from his acuteness as a logician, ripeness as a scholar, or volubility as an orator that he is fitted for this work. To call and to qualify is the exclusive and inalienable prerogative of the Holy Spirit. Feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood, over which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers. Ministers of all Christian denominations profess to have been "moved by the Holy Ghost." But there are those who contend that the right of the ministry belongs exclusively to men ordained by bishops who have descended in unbroken succession from the apostles of Christ.

We might ask here, is it likely that the Holy Spirit would suspend the perpetuation of His own institution on the will or whim of fallible mortals? If so, then, were such bishops to decline putting their hands on any more heads, there would be no valid efficacious ministry in the world when the present generation of ministers has entered into rest. If this be true the New Testament is silent on it. No intimation is there given that we are to receive no minister unless he can trace an uninterrupted succession through eighteen centuries. There is no evidence that the necessary registers were kept by the early churches. As there were twelve apostles, there may be twelve apostolic successions as well as one. If it be said that the succession is derived only from Peter, who was the founder and first bishop of Rome, it has never been proved that he was ever in Rome. There is no mention of Peter in Paul's epistle to the Romans. If he had not at that time been at Rome he could not have been the founder of the church there, nor its first bishop. And if there at the time, Paul sends no salutations to him, but directs others to remedy the disorders that prevailed, which completely overturns Peter's supremacy.

Again, the stream that has flowed through Rome has been awfully polluted. Popes have been guilty of the most pernicious errors. Popes have condemned councils, and councils have condemned popes. Popes have contradicted popes. Pope Sixtus V published a bible which he said was true, legitimate, authentic, and undoubted; Pope Clement VII suppressed it, and published another of his own, with three thousand corrections. Many of the popes have been notorious thieves, whoremongers, and perjurers. They have been deposed, and yet kept in the line of succession. There have been two popes at a time, a woman pope, and a period of eighty years without any pope. The uninterrupted succession is a fable; and if it existed, it would be utterly worthless as it respects any practical or spiritual results. The great head of the church has laid down a simpler and a surer rule. By their fruits ye shall know them. No minister has a right to consider himself in the apostolical succession whose ministry is not apostolical, and who is not walking in the steps of the holy apostles.

How the Swiss Make Matches.

It is the general custom in Berne, says a Swiss writer, that the lover's father should play the wooer to the parents of the bride. He frequently goes to them and says: "My lad likes your daughter. I suppose you have nothing much against it, and that it will suit you?" Or sometimes he goes in more elaborate fashion, as in the case of the father who knocked one evening late at a window, begged the old people to look out, and then began: "It is God's will that my boy and your girl should come together. I have had to make up my mind to it, and so will you; but I should like to ask what dower you mean to give her—about a thousand pounds, I fancy."

"I approve the match," returned the other party; "but I can't think of giving her more than a hundred pounds."

"You don't mean it?" said the other.

"Indeed I do; not one half-penny more, and even that is too much."

"Then" replied the former, "it is not God's will that the two should come together. The Lord's purposes are unfathomable, and His ways past finding out. Good night. No offense, I hope."

"Quite the reverse," said the other, and quietly closed the window.

There are many men nearer home, and better educated, whose idea of "God's will" is just about as conditional as that of the interested fathers in the above case.

Military Appointment.—General Hancock has ordered thus:

John Payne is hereby appointed justice of the peace for the parish of Jefferson, at Gretna, La., vice John R. Beals, resigned. Upon accepting this appointment, he will file at these headquarters the oath prescribed by law.

A Western paper says only fifteen of the old state banks of Wisconsin remain in existence, four having gone out this last year; and these fifteen banks, with an aggregate capital of $500,000, have an aggregate circulation of $906,332.

Texas Conference Minutes.

The second session of the Texas Mission Conference was appointed to commence January 2, 1869, at Houston, Texas, but in consequence of the unavoidable detention of the steamer for twenty-four hours, the Rev. Bishop Ames, the presiding Bishop, was unable to reach the seat of conference until the morning of the 3d instant; but the members of the conference assembled, and after singing and prayer adjourned subject to the call of the church bell, which was rung according to appointment on arrival of the bishop.

The bishop commenced the religious services at 9 o'clock A. M., by reading the fifth chapter of Mathew, and after the singing of a hymn, he led in a fervent prayer.

The roll of membership was then called by the Rev. Joseph Welch, secretary of last session, and the following members answered to their names:

Joseph Welch, Carl Biel, Thomas B. Ferguson, Edward Schneider, George W. Honey.

The Rev. George W. Honey was then unanimously elected secretary of the conference.

Question second of the disciplinary questions was then taken up. Who remain on trial? And the following brethren were reported:

James Davis, George E. Brooks, John E. Stovall, Carl Urbanke, Benjamin F. Williams, C. W. Bryant, Daniel Gregory, Benjamin O. Watrous, Isaac Wright, Alexander Gillum, and they were continued on trial.

Question third—Who are admitted into full connection?

Answer—Samuel Osborn, Elias Dibble.

Question fifth—Who has been elected to elders orders?

Augustus C. Fairman, Samuel Osborne, Elias Dibble.

Question seventh was then taken up, and brother G. W. Honey was granted an effective relation.

Peter A. Moelling and Gustavus Elly were then admitted as traveling elders from the church South, and Augustus C. Fairman as deacon.

It was then ordered that the next conference shall be held at Austin.

On motion Rev. Joseph Welch was unanimously elected to represent this conference at the next session of the general conference at Chicago.

The following resolution was introduced and passed:

Resolved, That the Bishops of our church be requested to call the next session of this conference on or about the 15th of December.

On motion Brother T. B. Ferguson was appointed statistical secretary.

Question first was then taken up. Who are admitted on trial?

Lewis Lane, Richard Forte, J. K. Loggin, George Ricks, Aaron Neely, Isaac Smith.

Johnson Hensley, Aaron Neely, William Burley, and Murry Cole were admitted on trial and elected to deacon's order.

The following brethren on trial are elected to deacon's order to meet the exigencies of the work:

Carl Urbanke, Alexander Gillum.

For the same reason Benjamin F. Williams and C. W. Bryant were elected to elders orders.

Brother T. B. Ferguson presented the following resolution which was passed by the conference:

Resolved, That hereafter no person shall be received into this conference who cannot understandingly read the Bible and dicipline.

Brother Joseph Welch offered the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we cordially endorse the course of the New Orleans ADVOCATE in sustaining Methodism in the Southwest.

Resolved, That we respectfully request the general conference to adopt it as a church paper for this section of the work.

These resolutions were unanimously passed by the conference.

Bishop Ames then appointed the presiding elders to examine the under graduates in the several districts, on the course of study.

The bishop appointed Brother G. W. Honey to preach the missionary sermon at our next conference.

Rev. Dr. Newman from the Mississippi Mission Conference, and editor of the New Orleans ADVOCATE, was introduced, and addressed the conference on behalf of the ADVOCATE, and announced that the subscription price of the paper had been reduced to $3 per annum in advance. Brethren Osborn, Bryant, Beal, Gregory, and Fayle followed in speeches favoring the support of the paper.

It was then ordered that the conference missionary sermon be dispensed with this evening, and that the Rev. Dr. Newman be invited to preach at 7½ o'clock.

The presiding elders were requested to meet the bishop at half-past 2 o'clock this P. M., at the house of Brother W. R. Fayle.

Brother Wood was appointed to preach at 2 P. M.

Adjourned until 8:30 to-morrow morning, with the benediction, by Brother Welch.

G. W. HONEY, Secretary.

SATURDAY MORNING, January 4, 1868.

The opening services of the morning were conducted by the presiding Bishop. The journal was read and approved.

Rev. Joseph Welch presented a circular from the Church Extension Society, requesting this conference to raise $2,00 the coming year for the society.

The statistical committee then made their report which was approved and recorded, and is as follows:

| | Members | Probationers | Local Preachers | Deaths | No. of Adults Baptised | No of Children Bapt'ed | Churches | Value | Sunday Schools | Scholars |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Galveston | 75 | | | 3 | 3 | 30 | 1 | 1500 | 2 | 75 |
| Richmond | 185 | 32 | 5 | | | 100 | 1 | 1500 | 1 | 75 |
| Columbia | 41 | | 1 | | 7 | | 1 | 1000 | 2 | 70 |
| Liberty | 30 | | 1 | | | | | | | |
| LaGrange | 8 | | | | | | | | | 70 |
| Austin | 120 | 50 | 2 | 8 | | | 1 | 5000 | 1 | 100 |
| Austin Circ't | 200 | | 4 | | | | | 15 | | 75 |
| Belton | 98 | 83 | 2 | 1 | 48 | 4 | 1 | 400 | 1 | 40 |
| Marlin | 150 | 175 | | 30 | | | | | | |
| San Antonio | 70 | | | | 40 | 20 | | | 1 | 85 |
| Victoria | 20 | | | | | | 1 | | | |
| Columbus | 223 | 30 | | 8 | | | | 500 | 1 | 90 |
| Industry | 65 | 6 | | 3 | | 28 | 1 | 2000 | 1 | 50 |
| 2d Church | 40 | | 1 | | 16 | | | | | |
| Rabb's Creek | 15 | 3 | | 2 | 2 | | | | | |
| Independ'nce | 8 | | 1 | | | 1 | | | | |
| Houston | 160 | 120 | 3 | 15 | | 21 | 1 | 3500 | | 141 |
| H'ston Circ'it | 60 | 15 | 2 | 3 | 3 | 9 | 1 | 40 | | |
| Harrisburg | 25 | 19 | 1 | | 3 | 15 | 1 | 500 | | |
| Hempstead | 310 | 25 | 11 | | 4 | 3 | 2 | 750 | | 125 |
| Brenham | 60 | 15 | 1 | | 11 | 15 | 1 | 700 | | 35 |
| Stafford's Pt | 35 | | 1 | | | | | | | |
| Millican | 229 | 43 | 4 | | 11 | 10 | 1 | 800 | | 75 |
| Navasota | 164 | 272 | 4 | | | | 2 | 1500 | | |
| Cyprus | [illegible] | 15 | 1 | | | | | | | |
| Total | 248[illegible] | 903 | 45 | 73 | 149 | 256 | 16 | 20200 | 10 | 1036 |

The following resolutions were then read by Rev. Joseph Welch, and adopted by the conference:

Resolved, That we pledge our earnest co-operation in raising the apportionment of the church extension society to this conference, and distribute it as follows:

Texas District—$70 00.
Houston District—$70 00.
German District—$40 00.
Waco District—$20 00.

Resolved, That we respectfully petition the general conference to change the constitution of the church extension society, so as to confer discretionary power upon the board of managers upon the two points of limitation in destitute portions of the work.

This certifies that Carl Urbanke, Alexander Gillum, Johnson Hensley, Lewis Lane, William Burley, Washington Thomas, Gabriel Todd, and Murray Cole were ordained deacons in the Methodist Episcopal Church, on the 4th of January, 1868, at Houston, Texas, and that at the same time and place, Benjamin J. Williams, Charles W. Bryant, Samuel Osborn, Elias Dibble, and Augustus C. Fairman were ordained elders in the same church by the undersigned.

E. R. AMES.

The bishop then preached, after which the following resolutions introduced by Rev. T. B. Ferguson were passed:

Resolved, That we tender our cordial thanks to Rev. Bishop Ames for the very able and courteous manner in which he has presided over our conference, and that we will gladly welcome him whenever in the providence of God he shall again be called to serve us in his Episcopal office.

Resolved, That we tender our thanks to Rev. Dr. Newman for his visit to our conference, and for his wise advice and suggestions.

The bishop then read the following appointments:

APPOINTMENTS OF THE TEXAS MISSION CONFERENCE.

Texas District—Joseph Welch Presiding Elder:
Galveston—G. W. Honey.
Galveston, Broadway—Daniel Gregory.
Columbia—James Davis.
Richmond—Murry Cole.
Columbus—A. Gillum.
La Grange—To be supplied.
Bastrop—Isaac Wright.
Austin—B. F. Williams.
Austin Circuit—To be supplied.
Red River—To be supplied.
Lexington—J. E. Stovall.
San Antonio—To be supplied.
Victoria—To be supplied.

German District—Gustavus Elly, Presiding Elder.
Industry—G. Elly.
Independence—Edward Schneider.
Rabb's Creek—C. Urbanke.
Willheim and Columbus—C. Biel.
Industry Circuit—To be supplied.

Houston District—W. R. Fayle, Presiding Elder.
Houston—Samuel Osborn.
Houston Circuit—E. Dibble and P. A. Moelling.
Harrisburg—William Burley.
Hempstead—Johnson Hensley.
Hempstead Circuit—Isaac Smith.
Courtney—C. W. Bryant.
Millican—G. E. Brooks.
Navasota—Lewis Lane.
Brenham—B. O. Watrous.
Washington—Aaron Neeley.
Cypress—To be supplied.
Montgomery—R. Fortie.
Long's Point—J. K. Loggin.
Liberty—To be supplied.

Waco District—T. B. Ferguson, Presiding Elder.
Belton—T. B. Ferguson.
Marlin—A. C. Fairman.
Cameron—To be supplied.
Waco—To be supplied.

Losses on Western Rivers.

The St. Louis Republican, of the 31st ultimo, publishes a detailed statement of the casualties of the past year on Western and Southern waters. The aggregate loss and damage to property have been unusually large, but the loss of life was not great, there having been but few serious accidents. As compared with 1866 the number of accidents is greater by thirteen, but the estimated value of property destroyed is far less, owing to the general depreciation of steamboats and Western products. The money value of the property lost is set down at $3,000,000. The Republican adds:

The great number of accidents by sinking should lead all interested in the successful navigation of the Mississippi and tributaries to use every exertion to induce congress to make the necessary appropriations for a successful and energetic prosecution of the work of improvement that was commenced last year.

BY TELEGRAPH.

[Dispatches to the Associated Press.]

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, January 3.—The Greek legation here have accounts of a battle fought on the 25th and 26th, near the village Lake Crete, in which the Turks were defeated with severe loss.

The reception of King George and Queen Olga at Athens was enthusiastic beyond description. The cry of "Down with the barberous Turks" was universal.

The government of St. Domingo has issued a decree regarding the tariff. Goods imported direct from Europe or the United States are 15 per cent less than when coming through the West India islands. Proof will be required that the goods have not touched at any West India island, or should the vessel bringing such goods by fortuitous circumstances touch at any island, the certificate from the republic's commercial agent that she made no operations there is required. This decree went into operation on the 1st of November last.

Mr. Dickenson, minister to Nicaragua, transmits an elaborate account of the recent volcano. The eruption continued sixteen days, making itself a cone two hundred feet in diameter, sand from which covers the country from the volcano to the Pacific, a distance of fifty miles. Seen at night the rim of the cone and half way down it was in a red heat, while the height of the flame and flying cinders was five hundred feet. Mr. Dickenson thinks the volcano was smothered with its own discharges.

Howard has not issued an order dismissing officers from the freedmen's bureau for engaging in politics, but he has established a policy of dealing with each case as it comes up. Thus far, in several cases brought to his notice, he has established the rule that acceptance of nomination for an office must be considered incompatible with the duties required of officers of the bureau. Such agents or officers have been relieved. A case of this kind—that of a South Carolina civilian, agent of the bureau—who was elected to the convention, was notified that he could not hold both positions.

Governor Chamberlain, of Maine, was inaugurated to-day. He favors a fair and square payment of the national debt, but not in one day or one generation.

Brown & Gillespie, wholesale merchants in Hamilton, Canada West, have failed.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $1,489,000.

There was a full meeting of the cabinet to-day.

The New Hampshire radical state convention has passed the following:

Resolved, That in behalf of the loyal people of New Hampshire we do hereby proclaim as our and their first choice for the next president of the United States, General Ulysses S. Grant, who led our armies to victory and our country to peace. Reticent and sagacious in council, self-possessed, and daring in battle, modest and magnanimous in victory—he is first in the confidence and first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Also the following, which cuts off the South from any benefit in the taxation on the public debt:]

Resolved, That all taxes imposed by congress upon government securities should be in such a form that neither the wealthy capitalist at home nor the rich foreign holders of our securities can escape paying equally with the poorest citizen their just share of the interest on the bonds which they are so fortunate as to possess. That all taxes or imposts should be paid over and applied for the respective states according to their quotas of troops furnished for the suppression of the rebellion, and that whenever action shall be taken for this purpose by the national government it will be the duty of the legislature of New Hampshire in some prudent and equitable mode to provide for applying the sums received by the state to relieve its various loans from the burdens assumed by them in order promptly to furnish the quotas of soldiers in the war for the maintenance of the Union.

WASHINGTON, January 3.—General Meade left this morning for Atlanta to assume command of the third military district.

WASHINGTON, January 3.—Governor Haight's inaugural says: "The propriety of admitting the blacks to suffrage belongs to each state to determine for itself. Had congress been able to control the subject, both negro and Chinese suffrage would probably have been forced upon the people of California against the will of the majority.

"Ignorance of the effects of such legislation would have inflicted upon us evils intolerable, so far as California is concerned.

"The people of this state have expressed their opposition both to negro and Chinese suffrage."

The First National bank of Bay City, Michigan, has failed badly.

WASHINGTON, January 4.—General Howard's report to General Grant does not credit the wide spread destitution represented as existing in the South. He says that last year Southern gentlemen estimated that it would take two million dollars, whereas half a million dollars met the necessities; thinks this year the destitution won't prove so stringent as represented by Governors Orr, Humphreys, and others, but before spring there will doubtless be suffering in South Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana, and small sections of other states. He urges the president and congress to inaugurate a system of relief which will not pauperize the people. General Howard, with the approval of General Grant, has directed the sub commissioners to relieve absolute distress, and has directed purchases of corn to be made for distribution in the most needy sections.

No bureau officers will be retained in the South, except upon the representations of sub-commissioners that their services are imperatively needed.

Governor Swann's message represents the assessed value of property in Maryland as being larger than before the war, notwithstanding emancipation losses.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $1,090,000; for the week $6,250,000; for the year $104,250,000.

Government disbursements for December—civil lists $4,250,000; interest on the public debt, $8,250,000; war department, $13,000,000; navy $3,500,000; interior $1,000,000. Total $30,500,000.

The committee on foreign affairs will introduce a resolution early next week calling upon the government to demand the release of Father McMahan, imprisoned in Canada, charged with Fenianism.

The national bank statistics show no notable variations from last week.

Strong efforts are being made by leading New York Democrats to induce Governor Seymour to withdraw his declination of the presidential candidacy.

Sherman's funding national debt bill excites severe comment in financial circles, and it is estimated that it will cost the government $11,000,000 in commissions to fund the debt as proposed.

WASHINGTON, January 6.—House—A variety of bills and resolutions were introduced, among them: To create a local steamboat inspectors office at Cairo, Illinois; to make St. Joseph, Missouri, a port of delivery; to authorize clerks of courts of record to administer oaths in bankruptcy.

Mr. Upson, of Michigan, introduced a resolution directing the committee on reconstruction to inquire into the expediency of authorizing the several constitutional conventions elected under the reconstruction acts in the states lately in rebellion to appoint civil officers, whether state or county, in said states, to act temporarily, and until the state constitutions shall be adopted therein; and officers shall be chosen and qualified to fill said offices, and that for this purpose said conventions may remove all civil officers now acting in said states.

Mr. Boutwell, of Massachusetts, moved to amend the resolution by adding "to instruct the reconstruction committee to inquire into the expediency of authorizing the general of the army to detail officers for service in said states; also to inquire into the expediency of constituting said states each a separate military district under command of the general of the army; and also as to the expediency of providing additional legislation to secure the elective franchise to all, and also to declare by act of congress that the provisional governments set up in said states by order of the acting president are not Republican forms of government.

Mr. Upson accepted the amendment.

Mr. Chandler, of New York, moved to lay the whole subject on the table.

Not agreed to; yeas 28; nays 66.

The resolutions were then adopted.

Mr. Eldridge offered a resolution of thanks to General Hancock in accordance with the president's message. Tabled by 85 to 28.

Mr. Washburne, of Wisconsin, offered a resolution declaring that the house utterly condemns the conduct of Andrew Johnson, acting president of the United States, for his action in removing the gallant soldier, General Sheridan, from the command of the fifth military district; and that the thanks of the house are due General Grant for his letter of August last, condemning the act of the said acting president for his removal of Secretary Stanton, as well as for the indorsement of General Sheridan in relation to affairs in the state of Texas. Adopted; yeas 82; nays 23.

A bill making eight hours a day's work passed.

The measure expediting the payment of bounties occupied the house to adjournment.

Senate.—A memorial was presented favoring a steamship line hence for Liberia.

One by Mr. Sumner from the freedmen of Elizabeth City, North Carolina, stating that the landowners were driving them from the lands their industry had purchased, and asking redress.

Mr. Norton, of Indiana, introduced a bill compelling full prosecution for violation of the revenue laws, and forbidding compromises.

The case of Mr. Thomas, senator elect from Maryland, was taken up, discussed, and postponed.

The cotton tax came up, and was postponed until to-morrow.

The anti-contraction bill came up, but was postponed, with the understanding that it comes up immediately after the disposition of the cotton tax bill. Adjourned.

Mr. Thornton will reopen negotiations on cotton claims.

The pressure to employ nogroes on the general rebuilding of the Mississippi levees is becoming strong. Numberless letters are received by officials urging it.

The president has received a dispatch from Mobile, signed by many lawyers, asking the appointment of E. Graudin vice Martin, who shot Busteed.

The debt statement will not be issued to-morrow.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $903,000. Receipts of customs for the week $200,000.

The state department has official advices of the resignation of the tycoon of Japan in favor of the mikado. Some excitement prevails in that country in consequence. Osacco and Hiago were to have been opened on the first of January. The opening of Yeddo and a port on the west coast is deferred until April.

WASHINGTON, January 7.—House.—Special Revenue Commissioner Wells' report was submitted.

The bill expediting the payment of bounties was resumed. An amendment referring the claims of negro soldiers to the freedmen's bureau for examination was adopted and the bill passed.

A bill for the sale of ironclads passed.

The election committee reported in favor of swearing in Trimble, from Kentucky.

A joint resolution for the sale of Chattanooga rolling mill property was referred to the committee on military affairs.

A bill preventing whisky tax frauds was introduced. It forbids the withdrawal of spirits from bond under any circumstances until the full tax is paid. Passed.

The house went into a committee of the whole on the state of the Union, when Mr. Casey spoke in favor of paying the public debt in legal tenders. Adjourned.

Senate.—Mr. Sumner introduced a bill abolishing the Eastern and extending the jurisdiction of the Western district court over Texas.

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill vacating certain offices in Georgia, and authorizing the convention to fill them. Ordered printed.

An unsatisfactory discussion arose as to whether the bill passed before the recess abolishing the color distinction in the District of Columbia was law. Matter referred to the judiciary committee.

The cotton tax question was resumed, and after a long argument and numberless amendments, the bill passed to the following effect:

The tax is suspended during 1868 on cotton grown during that year. This suspension not to be so construed as to prevent the regular levy of tax after 1868. The duty on new cotton imported into the United States from April 1, 1868, to April 1, 1869, is suspended. The bill goes back to the house for concurrence. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, January 7.—The house bill for expediting the payment of bounties authorizes the employment of twenty-two additional clerks in the second auditor's office.

There was a short cabinet session to-day, Seward and Grant being absent.

Generals Grant and Sherman had a protracted interview to-day at the war office.

Mr. Wilson's bill presented to-day vacates the offices of governor, secretary of state, treasurer, controller, and surveyor general of Georgia.

Secretary Seward was before the senate committee on foreign relations regarding territorial acquisitions.

Mr. Schenck stated in congress that there was now four hundred thousand barrels of whisky in bond on which tax is due amounting to $40,000,000.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $630,000.

The debt statement shows $108,500,000 in coin, and $25,720,000 in currency in the treasury.

The public debt has increased during the month nearly seven millions.

It is said that the president will assign General Granger to command the sub-district of Alabama.

The following were among the amendments to the cotton tax bill which were voted down in the senate: making the tax one cent per pound on the crop of 1868, relieving unsold and uncontracted cotton of 1867. This was lost on the ground that it would open the door to universal swindling. Making the tax half a cent for 1868, and one cent afterward. The votes on these amendments were very close.

The Democratic dinner to-morrow, in honor of the battle of New Orleans, promises to be a magnificent affair.

The Herald's money article says that the total amount of gold certificates issued by the sub-treasury up to Saturday evening is $242,732,660, of which $208,578,000 have been redeemed, leaving $34,155,660 outstanding. There was apparently no special cause for the advance, but the natural reaction from extreme depression was stimulated by purchases to cover short contracts, and the market is still largely oversold, while in view of the financial situation and the prospects of the country the premium is by no means high.

The wife of James Robb, of New Orleans, died here yesterday.

WASHINGTON, January 8.—Senate.—After receiving unimportant memorials, amendments to the bankrupt act were introduced and indefinitely postponed.

The finance committee were instructed to inquire into the expediency of affixing a penalty when government officers disburse money without legal authority.

Mr. Conness said the resolution aimed at those whom the senate rejected as unfit for positions, but who were afterward sent on special missions to do nobody knew what, and were paid from the public funds.

The joint resolution to transfer into the treasury the proceeds of captured cotton and other property remaining in the hands of the treasurer was resumed and elaborately discussed. The gross amount was $34,000,000, of which $24,000,000 remains in the hands of the treasurer as special agent, and $10,000,000 have been paid to owners and for expenses.

The action of the treasurer in disbursing the $10,000,000 was severely questioned. Matter postponed.

Resolution instructing the judiciary committee to report a bill to vacate the present illegal and unauthorized governments in the Southern states, and to provide provisional governments until reconstructed, laid over.

The president was called on for information as to whether the bill abolishing "white" in the district laws and ordinances, was considered as law by the executive.

After executive session the senate adjourned.

House.—The committee on foreign affairs reported a resolution requesting the president to intercede with Queen Victoria for Father McMahon's release. The report maintains the innocence of Mr. McMahon. They refused to couple other names with the resolution as the case was homogenous. The resolution was discussed broadly, both parties maintaining that American views regarding alienation and naturalization must be enforced by arms if necessary.

Mr. McCullum held that a nation that would not strive to protect those who swear allegiance to it should be blotted out; he held that the rulings of English courts as regards expatriation were monstrous. Pending the discussion the morning hour expired, and the resolution went over.

The senate amendment to the cotton tax bill was referred to the committee on ways and means.

The Missouri election case came up occupying several hours, when Mr. Van Horn was declared entitled to a seat.

Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, January 8.—A gold medal valued at four hundred dollars was presented to the president to-day by a committee from Philadelphia. The medal is three inches in diameter. On the obverse side is an excellent likeness of the president with the date of his birth and inauguration as president; on the reverse the following inscription: "With courage and fidelity he defended the constitution, and by justice and magnanimity he restored the alienated states."

The presentation address was made by Colonel Hagner. The president responded, returning his thanks to the club, and trusting that their confidence in him had not been misplaced. In conclusion, he pledged himself that his future course should be as the past in his efforts to maintain and uphold the constitution, and assuring the committee that the presentation was peculiarly gratifying at this time, and that he would cherish it until the last hour of his life.

The president then took each member of the committee by the hand, and some time was passed in conversation before the committee withdrew.

The ways and means committee have decided to appoint a new whisky metre committee, and suspend all action of the present committee.

Mr. Seward spent part of the day in the house of representatives.

It is confidently stated that five supreme court judges will decide adversely to the constitutionality of the reconstruction acts in a case daily expected to come up.

Philip B. Fouke has been nominated naval officer for New Orleans.

The ways and means committee will report adversely to the senate cotton tax amendments, and will demand a committee conference.

A committee of citizens of New York and Connecticut presented the president a cane made from the Charter Oak.

Thomas N. Stilwell has been nominated minister to Venezula.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $340,000.

The celebration of the battle of New Orleans to-night is probably more enthusiastic than any heretofore. Some 500 guests were seated and as many more refused admittance. The key note seems to be General Jackson, a Southern soldier, backed by a Southern army. Letters were read from Franklin Pierce, John Quincy Adams, and prominent Democrats from all sections.

From Georgia.

SAVANNAH, January 3.—A. A. Bradley, a Boston negro, member of General Pope's Atlanta convention, was arrested this evening for threatening the life of John E. Hayes and drawing a pistol on him in the street.

SAVANNAH, January 6.—A. A. Bradley, a Boston negro, was tried before the mayor's court this morning and convicted of riotous and disorderly conduct, and disturbing the peace, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or ninety days imprisonment, and ten days for gross contempt of court. There is great excitement among the negroes.

AUGUSTA, January 7.—Foster Blodgett, postmaster of this city, has been suspended, and G. W. Summers appointed special agent, and takes charge of the office. A petition is being circulated for signatures among the citizens which will be presented to General Mead asking for the removal of Blodgett as military mayor of Augusta.

ATLANTA, January 8.—The reconstruction convention reassembled this morning pursuant to adjournment. One hundred and ten members, out of one hundred and sixty-nine elected, appeared.

A resolution of welcome to General Meade was adopted after some discussion, and a committee appointed to wait upon that officer.

An ordinance to fix the per diem, now nine dollars, at six, was indefinitely postponed.

A resolution was introduced to inquire into the authority by which members of this convention hold their seats; and on motion to suspend the rules for its immediate reference, a delegate said he favored the suspension to enable him to offer a substitute to call on the registrar general to furnish the official figures of the registration and vote in Georgia.

The convention refused to suspend by a heavy vote, and immediately adjourned.

Quite a large conservative meeting was held here to-night and much enthusiasm prevailed.

John B. Gordon, who was a lieutenant general in the confederate army, addressed the meeting. In the course of his remarks he said he had met General Hancock as an enemy, but if he were to meet him now he would esteem it a privilege to take him by the hand as a friend. This sentiment was loudly cheered.

Governors Patton and Jenkins left this morning.

AUGUSTA, January 8.—The committe appointed by the Macon conservative state convention have issued an address to the people of Georgia and the United States, setting forth that since the termination of the war the people have complied in good faith with all legitimate requirements of the government, and have earnestly worked for the restoration of the state to its constitutional rights in the Union. The address enumerates the grievances suffered by the people from congressional legislation in the enactment and enforcement of the military bills, and appeals to the people of Georgia to organize for self protection and ceaseless opposition to negro supremacy, and to the Northern people to come to the rescue and unite with them in the patriotic effort to restore and perpetuate constitutional government. The address is signed by ex-Governor Johnson, Benjamin H. Hill, and three others.

From Richmond.

RICHMOND, December 4.—In the reconstruction convention the following resolutions of inquiry were referred:

Of limiting the time of hired labor to eight hours.

Of scaling all debts incurred previous to April, 1865, at twenty-five cents on the dollar; of levying no poll tax; of requiring foreigners to reside in the state ten years before voting; of legalizing the birth of children born of parents in slavery, so that they may inherit property; of admitting colored persons to colleges; of selling the military institute and devoting the proceeds to the educational fund.

The newspapers were severely denounced for misrepresentation of members and speeches of the convention.

Adjourned.

The city has been quite lively to-day with newspaper fights; one occurring between a reporter of the Examiner and a correspondent of a New York paper, and one between a reporter of the Dispatch and the official reporter of the convention, in which a member of the convention and another reporter joined. No serious damage done. All parties were arrested.

Major Poe, chief of police, was before the military commission to-day, charged by Rev. J. W. Hunnicutt with giving information which was untrue, to a correspondent of some Northern paper, relative to an alleged incendiary speech made by that gentleman.

RICHMOND, January 7.—In the reconstruction convention the first section of the bill of rights, declaring all men by nature equally free and independent, was adopted.

RICHMOND, January 8.—The reconstruction convention spent most of the day in fifteen minute speeches on the second section of the bill of rights, making allegiance to the United States paramount to the state.

From Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, January 6.—General Swayne to-day issued the following order, which was pasted on the door of the office of the circuit clerk for this county:

HEADQUARTERS DISTRICT OF ALABAMA, Department of Civil Affairs, Montgomery, Ala., January 6, 1868.

C. B. Hubbard, Esq., Clerk of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County:

DEAR SIR—By direction of the brevet major general commanding you are hereby suspended as clerk of the circuit court of Montgomery county, and will accordingly cease to perform the duties of such office until further orders.

I am, sir, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
S. C. GREEN.
Brevet Major U. S. A., A. D. C.

The following are the reasons for the suspension of Mr. Hubbard:

On Saturday a complaint was filed in the office of the clerk of the circuit court by John J. Morgan, attorney at law, for a person named Frank Williams, who claims the sum of $100,000 as damages for the alleged false imprisonment of himself by Wager Swayne at Selma, Dallas county. The imprisonment took place during last year. On the filing of the complaint the clerk of said court, Charles R. Hubbard, Esq., issued a summons commanding the sheriff to summons Wager Swayne to appear at the next term of said court to answer the complaint of said Williams. As it was thought that General Swayne would leave Sunday morning, Mr. Hubbard directed the sheriff, if General Swayne could not be found at headquarters, to go to his private room and serve the process on him. The sheriff executed the summons, and on Monday morning Mr. Hubbard received the order suspending him from the further discharge of his duties.

SELMA, January 6.—The white man's meeting to-day was one of the largest ever held in the county. Resolutions were adopted declaring against negro suffrage and the constitution proposed by the late pretended convention. Speeches were made by General Clanton, of Montgomery, General Morgan, Hon. Alex. White, and Major W. H. F. Reynolds, of Dallas county, and others. Delegates were appointed to attend the conference at Montgomery, and a Democratic club for Dallas county was formed. The utmost harmony and enthusiasm prevailed throughout the proceedings.

From Europe.

LONDON, January 3.—It is thought that the meeting of the Russian diplomats in St. Petersburg on the Eastern question has great signification.

The sultan has sent a strong note to Paris protesting against the agents of Russia, who are exciting revolt among his Christian subjects.

The general conference on the Roman question has been abandoned.

Lisbon is tumultuous on account of taxes, and the ministry have resigned.

Le Nord newspaper says that the Fenian headquarters in Paris have been discovered by the police. Quantities of documents revealing the plans of the Fenians were seized, and have been sent to London. One contained a plot to burn the British fleet.

Extraordinary military precautions are being taken in Ireland against an outbreak.

The examination of the Clerkenwall prisoners produced no satisfactory effect.

The ministerial crisis at Florence continues.

LONDON, January 4, Evening.—The government is almost continually in receipt of information relative to the movements of Fenians. The public excitement caused by the recent operations of the brotherhood has by no means abated. To-day dispatches have been received from Cork giving the details of another Fenian movement in that locality. A body of Fenians last night surreptitiously entered the magazine in that city unchallenged and carried away more than half a ton of blasting powder. There is no clue to the perpetrators of this mischief. The people stand aghast at the effrontery of the Fenians. The clergy of the city of Limerick have affixed their signatures to a document declaring that there can be no permanent peace in Ireland unless it is treated like Hungary.

FLORENCE, January 4.—Menabrea, the prime minister, has given publicity to a number of private letters, proving that Baron Ratazzi was fully apprised of the recent movement of Genaral Garibaldi against Rome, and favored it. He also lent the insurgents his valuable influence and assistance.

LONDON, January 4.—The Turkish envoy at Vienna will start for London immediately to ask the protection of the English government against the intrigues of Russia.

Late dispatches received from Japan state that the Christians who had been imprisoned and persecuted in Nagasoki have been released.

BERNE, Switzerland, January 4.—The Swiss council has instructed their consul at Mexico to express the sympathy of Switzerland for the present liberal government of Mexico.

MADRID, January 4.—A decree has been issued reorganizing the Cuban law courts.

COPENHAGEN, January 4.—The subject of the sale of the three Danish West India islands to the United States will be submitted to the assembly on Weenesday next.

FLORENCE, January 4.—A great popular banquet was given in Naples last night, in honor of Baron Ratazzi.

SOUTHAMPTON, January 6.—The steamer Teutonia, from New Orleans, arrived here to-day.

PARIS, January 6.—Late dispatches from Civita Vecchia state that there is much sickness among the French troops quartered there.

LIVERPOOL, January 6, Noon.—Cotton steady; sales estimated at 12,000 bales; middling uplands 7½d., middling Orleans 7¾d. Breadstuffs steady and unchanged.

LONDON, January 7.—Lord Stanley is preparing a protest against Russian intrigues in Turkey.

ST. PETERSBURG, January 7.—Rich and extensive gold mines have been discovered on the Amoor river, and the natives are flocking to them by thousands. Conflicts between the natives have occurred, and troops have been sent to preserve order and guard the mines.

LONDON January 8.—Nearly all the great journals of this city have editorial comments on the resolutions recently adopted by the house of commons upon the question of citizenship. The settlement of British claims, and the acceptance of the American view, as expressed by President Johnson in his annual message to congress, are urged with singular unanimity.

Miscellaneous News.

CINCINNATI, January 3.—L. C. Hopkins, dry goods merchant, failed; liabilities $1,000,000, mostly due East.

PHILADELPHIA, January 4.—Wm. Muser, publisher of the Sunday Mercury, has been sentenced to nine months imprisonment and five hundred dollars fine for libel.

HAVANA, January 3.—It is stated that Santa Anna furnished Colonel Villafranca money and men to inaugurate the Yucatan revolution.

The Mexican congress is about increasing the regular army to eighteen thousand men.

NEW YORK, January 4.—William Cawley, a prominent sporting man, was shot dead to-day by his mistress. Cause—whisky and jealousy.

Specie exports to-day $1,250,000.

The bank statement shows loans increased $4,879,000; specie increased $1,752,000; deposits increased $8,357,000; legal tenders increased $1,453,000. Circulation has decreased $9. Stocks generally stronger. Balance in the sub-treasury $97,500,000.

CINCINNATI, January 5.—The sternwheel steamer Harry Dean, hence for Marietta, exploded her boiler to-day and burned. Many persons were injured, and five killed, including Captain Riggs, of Ashland, Ky., and Captain Norton, of Wheeling, Va.

General Pope arrived here to-day.

HAVANA, January 5.—The British steamer Danube has arrived with later Mexican news. The Yucatan expedition has been abandoned. Diaz warned the government that every previous expedition had been defeated. The people of Yucatan are left to fight it out among themselves.

The Yucatan revolution is increasing, and more mutinies have occurred among the government troops.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 5.—The supreme court decides that the law exempting certain properties from taxation is unconstitutional, thus adding two millions annually to the state revenue.

Charles Wolcott Brooks is appointed Japanese consul here. This is the first appointment of the kind.

GALVESTON, January 6.—Information has been received by the steamer W. G. Hewes that all the business portion of Indianola was destroyed by fire on the 3d instant. Loss $100,000. No insurance.

The customhouse and Ohler or Casimer house were destroyed. Fifty buildings are in ashes. Fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

A new daily paper is started here to-day by the Typographic Union called the Dispatch.

CHICAGO, January 7.—Farrell Hall, a Young Men's Christian Association building, was burned; loss, $10,000; insured in Cincinnati for $80,000, and in Chicago for $30,000. Two firemen are reported buried under the fallen walls.

JACKSON, January 7.—The convention to frame a constitution for Mississippi under the reconstruction acts met to-day. A. Mygatt, of Vicksburg, was chosen temporary president. Convention adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow.

CHARLESTON, January 8.—Outrages by negroes on the line of the South Carolina railroad are reported daily, and the condition of affairs is growing worse. Yesterday a gang of black Union Leaguers fired on the mail carrier thirty miles from this city, but he escaped by the fleetness of his horse.

JACKSON, Miss., January 8.—Permanent organization of the Mississippi reconstruction convention was effected to-day. R. R. Eggleston, of Lowndes county, for president, received fifty-three votes, J. W. C. Watson, of Marshall, opposing candidate, thirty-three. T. P. Sayers was elected secretary. All the officers elected are whites.

CINCINNATI, January 8.—Crittenden & Sargent, proprietors of the Clarendon hotel, have failed; liabilities $100,000.

The United States district attorney has filed a suit against Gratem, Kemper & Co for $185,000 for delinquent whisky tax.

INDIANAPOLIS, January 8.—The Democratic state convention nominated Thomas A. Hendricks for governor, and declared in favor of Pendleton for president.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, January 8.—The Democratic state convention passed resolutions instructing the Ohio delegation to the national convention to vote for Pendleton.

NEW YORK, January 8.—The pews in Beecher's church rented for $26,000. The highest single pew rented for $525.

The total losses by fire in this city last year amounted to $5,500,000.

NEW YORK, January 8.—Money closed easy at 6 per cent. Exchange weaker at 9¾. Gold declined to 136¼. Stocks buoyant and excited. Governments active; 5-20s of 1862 coupons 108¼. Tennessee 6's 61¼.

HARRISBURG, Pa., January 8.—The nine Republican bolters stand firm.

Secretary Stanton's Case Before the Senate.

The following dispatch was published in yesterday's evening papers:

WASHINGTON, January 7.—Howard's Stanton report takes the ground that Stanton favored the reconstruction acts, while the president evinced a disposition to disregard them, and even to seize, if possible, the reins of absolute power.

This startling purpose on the part of Johnson constituting the real difficulty between Johnson and Stanton, Stanton had a legal right to refuse to resign, and the circumstances justified Stanton's action.

The report combats all of the president's positions, placing the president in the light of a false accuser, and closes with the resolution that the senate do not concur in Stanton's suspension. The report impeaches the president's veracity regarding the New Orleans riots.

General Schofield, commander of the first military district, will shortly visit Washington for consultation with General Grant relative to matters in his department.

A Chicago paper says there was a lively time when Weston settled accounts with his partners. Not unlikely. There was a good deal of money in somebody's hands. The sale of photographs it is said had amounted to $10,000 or $15,000 before the pedestrian had reached Buffalo. This amount, it is reasonable to suppose, was more than duplicated afterward.

"Pa, do storms ever make malt liquors?" "No, child; why do you ask?" "Because I heard ma tell Jane to bring in the clothes, for a storm was brewing."

There is intense dissatisfaction among M. Thiers' constituents at the course he pursued in regard to the Roman question. As his district is, perhaps, more strongly opposed to ultramontanism than any other in France he will not be re-elected, and Berryer will likewise be defeated at Marseilles.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The Paris exposition netted three million francs.

Wolves at Erin, Canada, make the mutton scarce.

The Missouri doctors have formed a state medical association.

The street railways in Chicago earned $920,000 last year.

Du Chaillu has been writing a juvenile story book about the gorilla.

The shipments of cotton from Nashville average forty car loads per day.

It is not generally known that Queen Victoria has more heathen than Christian subjects.

Foreigners in Rome, of less than four months residence, are compelled to report to the police.

They have a baby actress, three years and six months old, at a Brighton (England) theatre.

The Wisconsin treasury took in last year $835,127 95, paid out $826,533 82, and has $8594 left.

What is the legitimate punishment of one who listens at a keyhole? Why, to catch a heyhol'd in the head.

A paper will be started in Burlington, Vt., on the 13th of January, under the title of the Irish Watchman.

Even Frank Blair is talked of for president. The only noise made about it is the blare of his own trumpet.

Why is a lady's throat like an appendage to her watch? Because it's a chatterlane (chatelaine). Villainous.

John B. Gough has drawn the largest audience of any lecturer at Springfield, Mass., this winter.

A railway train in Vermont, on last Friday, killed fifty sheep. The owner was fleeced out of their value.

At the last session of the grand jury in Franklin county, Iowa, not a single indictment was found.

A man in Connecticut was kicked by a rooster a few days since, and so badly hurt that he is in danger of lock-jaw.

Another perpetual motion maniac—a man near De Witt, Illinois—has a machine in full operation.

Of the nine thousand persons employed upon the Canadian roads, two-thirds belong to the Grand Trunk.

President Dunn, of the Maine Central railroad, gives $5000 to form a professorship in the Maine Wesleyan seminary.

A sailor in Buffalo who received eleven dollars from a thief who stole twenty-three dollars, received the greater punishment.

Moses Nye, an old sailor in the poorhouse at Sandwich, Mass., once took dinner with Washington, at Mount Vernon.

The Wabash river has stayed at low water mark longer this year than ever before.

The Texas people have a new term for gamblers. They call them professional cardists.

The tycoon of Japan is sending his photograph to Americans. But if you write to him for one, he will return a negative reply.

Archibong, king of Calabar, has been shocking some Englishmen by killing a few dozen of his subjects and packing their heads in casks.

What more natural than that sentimental young ladies, when they change their condition of single blessedness, ceasing to be pensive, should be expensive!

The firemen in Oswego, New York, refused to work the other day at a fire until one of their number who was arrested for theft was released.

A grandson of Daniel Boone, who lived in Missouri, found the settlers getting too numerous for him and has emigrated to Colorado.

Three couples who were married on the same day fifty years ago, in Marlboro', Mass., celebrated their golden wedding a few days since.

In ancient times men and women were burned after death. In modern times railroad directors burn before death.—New York Leader.

Last year Cleveland imported from Canada 11,450,000 laths, 1,458,000 shingles, 29,000 bushels wheat, 99,000 do. barley, 5000 cords wood, 16,000 pounds butter.

A minister at Crestline lately telegraphed to the chief of the Cleveland police that some thief had stolen all his manuscript sermons.

Steamboats on a new plan, with grain elevators, hoisting machinery, improved steering apparatus, etc., are to be built for navigating the Mississippi.

The Springfield Republican says that Ames's bust of Mr. Lincoln, for the Boston state house, is a failure, and might be that of any backwoodsman of the period.

Mr. Joseph Jefferson, the comedian, was married in Chicago on Friday to Miss Mary Warren, daughter of the treasurer of McVicker's theatre, and niece of the mayor of Chicago.

They have no skating park in Wheeling, Virginia, and the local papers complain of the skaters being "exposed to the bleak winds and rough ice on the creek."

The Scioto (Ohio) Gazette says the footrace between Wharton and Knight, 100 yards for $1000, resulted in a tie. Curiously enough no one timed the runners.

The victims of the New York petroleum gift enterprise swindle have poured their tale of woe into the ear of Mayor Hoffman, and he has warned others to beware of such folly.

The Lacrosse (Wis.) Republican says at the land office in that city last month there were entered 15,167 acres, of which 10,389 acres were for actual settlement and cultivation under the homestead law.

Horse thieves in Wisconsin took a farmer's team, and in their hurry dropped a pocket book containing $350, more than their value. The farmer was more than that amount ahead; he had his horses insured against thieves.

Another grand Pacific railroad excursion is on the tapis for the benefit of the Wall street bankers and brokers principally. The guests will be limited to two hundred and fifty, composed solely of the "solid" men of the street. The party will proceed the whole length of the road.

Several years ago, one of the principal thoroughfares of London was regularly patroled by a beggar who asked alms of no other passers except old ladies. To these he addressed himself thus: "O young lady! have pity on a poor beggar." He was singularly successful in his appeals.

Portland crows over Boston's defeat in the matter of the Cunarders, and claims that her railroads have furnished all the grain her ocean steamers can handle, and have furnished freight for the Cunarders from Boston besides.

The Virginia, Nevada, Enterprise of the 6th ultimo, announces that the cars of the Pacific railroad have reached the east side of the Summit. The track is being laid through the tunnel on the Summit, and the contractors say they will close the gap (of seven miles) between the Summit and Coburn's in two weeks if the weather holds good.

In Vermont, by a recent law, ministers of the gospel who have ceased to perform the other duties of their sacred office are no longer authorized to solemnize marriages.

"What a fine head your boy has," said an admiring friend. "Yes," said the fond father, "he's a chip of the old block; ain't you sonny?" "I guess so; my teacher said I was a young blockhead.

Chief Justice Chase on the Pilgrims.

The following letter from Chief Justice Chase was read at the dinner of the New England society of Madison, Wisconsin, on Forefathers' Day:

WASHINGTON, December 16, 1867.

GENTLEMEN: The note inviting me to your celebration of Forefathers' Day is just received. It is impossible for me to be with you; but I thank you for the invitation. I hope that your meeting will be pleasant and useful. It is well to celebrate the anniversary of past events; and Forefathers' Day began a new era for mankind. The small community organized at Plymouth was founded on grand ideas: freedom, suffrage, education, and Christian faith. These ideas, better understood and more fully recognized, now form the ba is of Republican institutions in America, and extend their influence, direct or indirect, throughout the world. They may be safely trusted in their fullest recognition and widest application.

Yours, very truly,
S. P. CHASE.

Freaks of Intoxicated Men.

On Christmas eve, says the Baltimore Gazette, December 27, an occurrence transpired near Ellicott's mills which might have been very serious in its consequences. It appears that two gentlemen, considerably under the influence of the "ardent," posted themselves on the railroad track, about five hundred yards this side of the mills, one of them making a wager that the train would not pass over the track he was occupying, and the other that if it did not pass over the track on which he stood he would stop it. It was not long before the cars came thundering along, and one of the gentlemen was suddenly snatched up by the cowcatcher, and carried in this perilous position into Ellicott city. Several persons along the line of the road were witnesses of the scene, and concluded that the man would soon be a mangled corpse. Hurrying to the depot, they found him to their great surprise unscathed, and as perfectly cool as if nothing unusual had transpired.

An English butcher was recently summoned before a justice for cruelty to a gander. It appeared that he had bet a guinea with a neighbor that his gander was heavier than his neighbor's. He won the bet; but his gander died immediately after the neighbor had purchased it. On opening the fowl it was found that, in order to bring it up to winning weight, it had been fed with two pounds of small shot. The administration of this heavy diet cost the butcher ten shillings fine.

Admiral Farragut's Captures.

In the district court for the District of Columbia, recently, honorable B. F. Butler asked leave to file a libel of information on the part of Admiral Farragut, and the officers and men of the Western gulf squadron of April, 1862, to recover a bounty of $200 for each man under the statute, for the destruction of the force of the confederate vessels in front of Fort St. Philip and Fort Jackson, on the 23d day of April, 1862. He said that the superior force of the enemy's fleet might be shown from the records of the late confederate government in regard to the fall of New Orleans, which was fully investigated by the courts of justice there on the trial of General Lovell. The libel prayed for a monition to issue to all parties to show cause, etc. The court directed the monition to issue, and made it returnable on the first Monday of February, 1868, after the usual publication of twenty days.—Washington Chronicle.

Reed and Wright is the name of a newspaper firm in Wisconsin.

The English ragged schools came very near being a failure from the starvation of the pupils. It was found that one good dinner a week so "set up" the youngsters as to convert the failure into a success.

Samuel Reed is editor of the Cincinnati Gazette. Henry Reed of the Enquirer, and Enos Reed of the National Union. The Queen city ought to be well supplied with Reed-ing matter.

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper,

devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at

57.....St. Charles Street.....57
NEW ORLEANS.

The REPUBLICAN is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,

BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,

The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

AND THOSE OF THE

Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District.

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the REPUBLICAN indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Daily, one year | $16 00 | Weekly, one year | $5 00 |
| Daily, six months | 8 00 | Weekly, six months | 2 50 |

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscrptions will be received for the SUNDAY REPUBLICAN from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

TO THE LADIES.

Professor BLOT, who is good authority, says: "Great care should be used in selecting GENUINE Flavoring Extracts, both in regard to taste and health. I think none can compare with BURNET'S in this respect."

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining these superior Extracts of reputable grocers and druggists. Depot 592 Broadway.

BURNETT'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.

For more than eight years Burnett's Toilet Preparations and Cooking Extracts have maintained a large and constantly increasing sale, sustaining the opinion of the best judges that they are unrivaled.

Salesroom 592 Broadway, New York, and sold by all reputable dealers.

"Its exquisite beauty surpasses our anticipations."—Lady's Book.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR:

A Monthly Illustrated Magazine for the Little Ones.

EDITED BY T. S. ARTHUR.

TERMS—$1 25 a year in advance. Five copies for $5. Ten copies, and one to the getter-up of club, $10. "The Children's Hour" and "Arthur's Home Magazine" one year for $2 50.

Specimen numbers 10 cents.

BISHOP SIMPSON says of

The Children's Hour:

"I have no hesitation in commending it as one of the best Magazines published for children."

BISHOP STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, says of

The Children's Hour:

"I believe that its introduction into every household would prove a blessing to young and old."

REV. GEO. D. BOARDMAN says of

The Children's Hour:

"I am delighted with 'The Children's Hour.' I do not see how a more entertaining, instructive, or profitable Magazine could be put in the hands of our children."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES says of

The Children's Hour:

"This dear little monthly visitant we believe to be by far the purest, safest, and most attractive magazine for the little ones at home, published in this country."

MR. JOHN B. GOUGH says of

The Children's Hour:

"I can indorse it thoroughly........ It is a most welcome visitor to the family of children at my own home."

The Children's Hour

is as beautiful as the best typography and the best artists can make it. Two volumes a year, beginning in January and July. The number for January, 1868, will be the most beautiful number of a child's magazine ever published. Terms as above.

Address
T. S. ARTHUR & SON,
809 & 811 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 70 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.
Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.
For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.
The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.
The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.
Terms, cash in advance.
Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.
Address, THE TRIBUNE,
de18 3tD&3tW New York.

New Book of Choruses.

Forty-Five

OPERA CHORUSES.

Selected and arranged from the works of

Rossini, Auber, Bellini, Donizetti, Gounod, Verdi, Flotow, Spontini, Wagner, Herold, Bishop, Balfe, Benedict, and others.

Forming a Most Valuable Collection

FOR SOCIETIES, CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS SINGING SCHOOLS, CLUBS, AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.

By Edwin Bruce.

PRICE THREE DOLLARS.

Copies Mailed, post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & O., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
HARLES H. DITSON & O.,
d14 711 Broadway, New York.

SCROFULA OF EVERY PHASE, CAtarrh, bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Asthma, Liver and Kidneys, Bladder and Skin Diseases Wm. R. PRINE, Flushing, New York, for sixty years proprietor of the Linnæan Nurseries, has discovered the remedial plants which are positive cures for the above and for other chronic diseases, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Gout, Piles, Diabetes, Jaundice, Dropsy, Uterine and other Female Maladies, Mercurial and other Blood Impurities hitherto incurable.
Explanatory circular, one stamp.
Treatise on all diseases, 25 cents. n1

A copy of the American Cyclopedia given as a premium.

GET THE BEST.

A COMPREHENSIVE
DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.
MAINLY ABRIDGED FROM
Dr. Wm. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.
WITH
Important Additions and Improvements, and Five Hundred Illustrations.

THIS BOOK is a condensation of the large work in three volumes, and contains entirely new matter, drawn from a wide range of first-class authority. The Dictionary is issued in semi-monthly numbers, of 48 royal 8vo. pages each. The whole will be completed in about twenty-two numbers, eight of which are now out.

PRICE OF EACH NUMBER, THIRTY CENTS.

The first number will be sent gratis to any address for examination, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

GET UP CLUBS.

Three subscribers sent to us, will entitle the sender to a copy of the Dictionary gratis.
Three subscribees sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the Annual Cyclopedia for 18 6, in library binding—price $6
Thirty subscribers sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the New American Cyclopedia, 16 vols. 8 vo., the price of which is $80.
Agents wanted in all parts of the United States. Liberal terms offered.
D. ALLPETON & CO., Publishers,
no23 3t 443 and 445 Broadway.

"EUREKA,"

THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

THE CLASSIC POETS have sung to us of a spring whose pure, ethereal waters impart perpetual youth and beauty to all who will drink of them. It is now conceded by all that the EUREKA is made of the water of that same spring, and its magical effects will be seen at once by those who use it. The hair will be restored to its youth and beauty, even where the snows of winter have fallen. In presenting this Hair Restorative to the public, I have no hesitation in saying that it is no humbug that it will do all that is claimed for it, viz.: Restoring the hair to its original color; preventing its falling off, and giving it a softness, youth and lustre that no other preparation can produce. The Eureka has been used by tens of thousands, and in every case has given entire satisfaction, and is now used universally. Dr Van Zandt has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair—preventing it falling off, by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the EUREKA, and you will not be disappointed.
It is for sale by all druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
Manufactured by ROBERT FISHER, Agent,
no16 St. Louis, Mo.

AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS,

Is Richardson's New Method

FOR THE PIANO FORTE.

BEING THE ONLY BOOK THE TEACHER requires, and the book every pupil is attracted to. Its lessons are adapted to pupils of all ages, and its exercises attractive and useful in every stage of advancement. This book has, on account of its actual merit, become the standard work of Piano instruction, and the only one which every well informed teacher and scholar uses.
Price $3 75; sent post-paid
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
no16 711 Broadway, New York.

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

AROMATIC VEGETABLE SOAP,

Combined with Glycerine recommeneed for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N. Y. Sold by Druggists.
nov2m6

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the complexion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Sold at 592 Broadway, New York.
oc17

THE MUSIC BOOK

For Every Boy and Girl is

MERRY CHIMES,

Containing Hundreds of Popular Songs and Pleasing Instructions and Exercises

BY WHICH ONE CAN LEARN TO SING THEM.

PRICE—Fifty Cents. Sent Postpaid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
oc17 tf 711 Broadway, New York.

INFORMATION WANTED—OF FRANK VARNAR, by his wife, Sarah Varnar, who used to live in Pickens District, South Carolina, in the family of James Johns. Address SARAH VARNAR, care of Shade Croom, Houston, Texas. d14

The October Phrenological Journal

Contains Portraits and Characters of Mary Queen of Scots; Charlotte Bronte; Thomas Nast, the artist; Ira Aldridge, tragedian; Alfred Sewell, and others. Well-written articles on Anthropology; Married or Single; Boots and Beauty; Sick Headache, its Cause and Cure; The Fashions, illustrated; Man's Spiritual Nature; Forming Character; The American Physiognomy; "Expression;" Whining Women; Grapes and Blackberries, Illustrated. $3 a year, or 30 cents a number.
Address S. R. WELLS, Editor,
oc1 389 Broadway, New York.

NOTICE.

ROOMS OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND UNION CITIZENS.
Washington, D. C., July 17, 1867.

IN PURSUANCE OF A SERIES OF RESOLUTIONS passed by the House of Representatives July 10, 1867, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate the "Treatment of Prisoners of War and Union Citizens held by the Confederate authorities during the late rebellion."

All persons in possession of important information upon either of these subjects are earnestly requested to address the Committee, as directed below, stating:

1. The name, age, and post office address of the writer.
2. If a soldier or seaman, his rank or position, and with what command he served.
3. A full statement of all facts known to the writer touching his own imprisonment or treatment, and that of others, either soldier or citizen, giving, as far as possible names, places, and dates, with names of Confederate officers in charge.

Correspondents from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and the States and Territories lying west of the Rocky Mountains will please address
JOHN P. C. SHANKS, M. C.,
Washington, D. C.

Correspondents from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, and the Territories east of the Rocky Mountains will address
WILLIAM A. PILE, M. C.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Correspondents from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will address
ABNER C. HARDING, M. C.,
Monmouth, Ill.

Correspondents from the New England States will address
AARON F. STEVENS, M. C.,
Nashua, N. H.

Correspondents from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee will address
WILLIAM MUNGEN, M. C.,
Findlay, Ohio.

Communications addressed to the members of the Committee will be free of postage.

It is the intention of the Committee to collect all facts necessary to make a thorough official history of this subject.

The various newspapers throughout the country are requested to give this circular a gratuitous insertion, together with such notice as they may deem proper.

JOHN P. C. SHANKS,
WILLIAM A. PILE,
ABNER C. HARDING,
AARON F. STEVENS,
WILLIAM MUNGEN,
Committee.

JOHN D. LARRABEE, Clerk.

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.
All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

Agents Wanted.

(Male or Female,) to sell our celebrated

Franklin and Diamond Double Thread Sewing Machines.

Complete with Table, only $25.00. Single Thread Hand Machines are not practical for any sewing, at any price. We give away our machine to the poor and needy, and send them out on trial. Circulars and information free. Address
J. C. OTTIS & CO., Boston, Mass.

W. H. PEMBERTON,

158 - - - POYDRAS ST. - - - 158

NEW ORLEANS.

Between St. Charles and Carondelet Streets.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Colors

Varnishes, Glass, Etc.

Has in store and to arrive, a large supply of the following goods, which he will sell at low figures, either wholesale or retail:

White Lead in Oil, all kinds.
Window Glass, French and American, all sizes.
French and American Zinc.
American and English Venetian Red.
Oils of all descriptions.
Varnish of all kinds.
Stove Polish,
Bi Carbonate of Soda.
Sal Soda.
Alum.
Castile and Colgate Soaps.
Wash Blue.
Black Writing Ink and Marking Ink.

Manufactured by himself.

Also a great variety of Perfumery and Fancy Articles for Toilet.

The Store is also well supplied with all kinds of Drugs and Medicines, Fresh and of the Best Quality.

Strangers visiting the City would do well to give him a call. 65 89

ROUGH AND READY

IRON WORKS.

Danville, Montour Co., Penn.

WILLIAM HANCOCK,

Proprietor,

Manufacturer of

RAILROAD IRON

OF ALL WEIGHTS AND PATTERNS.

MINE RAILS,

STREET RAILS,

STRAP RAILS,

Old Railroad Iron Re-Rolled.

The subscriber is prepared to furnish all kinds of

STEAM ENGINES,

ROLLS,

ROLLING-MILL MACHINERY,

Saw and Grist Mill

Machinery, gas retorts, mine car wheels and axles, globe valves, gauge cocks—most improved styles. Blow off cocks, steam whistles, steam and water fittings, screw bolts, iron and brass castings, and every description of foundry and machine work, boilers, etc., etc.

Plans, designs and estimates furnished without extra charge for all work ordered from

WM. HANCOCK,

BENJ. G. WELCH, General Agent.

NATIONAL

FREEDMEN'S SAVING

AND

TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.
Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,

No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.
Deposits of One Dollar or more received.
Interest payable in January and July, in each year
All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.
All the profits belong to the depositors.
Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.
Investments are made only in securities of the United States.
W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

JONES, MCDOWELL & Co., Little Rock, Ark.
J. B. SHAW & Co., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,

GENERAL

Commission Merchants

AND

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.

No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

MUSICAL LEAVES.

Published by Phillip Phillips & Co., Cincinnati.

THE BEST SABBATH-SCHOOL SINGING BOOK EXTANT.

Over 15,000 Sold in Eight Months.

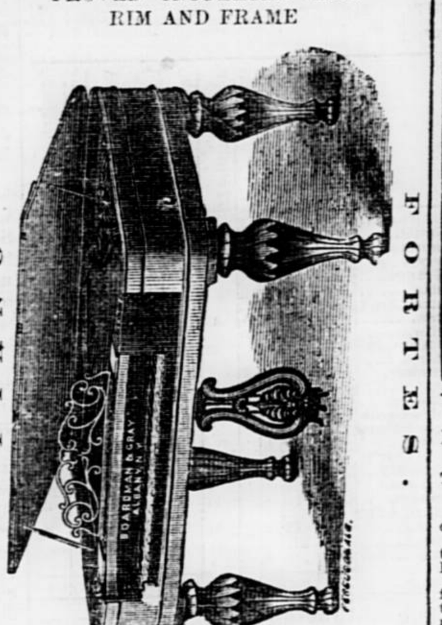
This is the book that has been so highly recommended by the New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois State Sunday School Conventions.
☞ Send for specimen copy.
Forty cents each, or $30 for 100 cop

WILLIAM McCAMMON,

MANUFACTURER OF

BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME

PIANO FORTES.



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.

☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address
s6 WM. McCAMMON Albany, N. Y.

PIERCE & DWIGHT'S

SELF-RAISING FLOUR.

—FOR—

Bread, Biscuit, Cakes, Pastry, Etc., Etc.,

WITHOUT USING YEAST, YEAST POWDER, SODA OR SALT.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING:

Stir in cold water with a spoon, and bake at once, without kneading or waiting for the dough to rise.

For the healthfulness of Self-Raising Flour, consult your Physician.

Ask your Grocer for a six pound package.

For sale at

99..............Magazine Street..............99

fe9 NEW ORLEANS.

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS

Window Shades and Cornices,

AND

PAPER HANGINGS.

For Sale by

E. HEATH,

75 Camp street.

PEMBERTON'S

"Carbolic Acid Disinfectant."

This Powder is a compound of Carbolic Acid, Copperas, etc., possessing the properties of destroying contagion, decomposing pestilential effluvia, noxious exhalations, and neutralizing strong and offensive odors; removing the effluvia of sick rooms, sewers, cesspools, sinks, privies, etc.

It far surpasses the Chlorinated Lime in its actions and effect, and is certainly the best Disinfectant now in use. Thoroughly disinfecting the atmosphere, electrifying the oxygen, and rendering the respirable air both healthy and pure, being tirely free from all injurious effects on the throat and lungs, which so frequently attend the use of deodorizers.

Prepared and sold by
W. H. PEMBERTON,
No. 158 Poydras st., N O.

Grovesteen & Co.,

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.

499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

PITTSBURG FEMALE COLLEGE,

Rev. I. C. PERSHING, D. D. President.

Best sustained Ladies' School under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.
Superb brick buildings, with all the modern improvements.

Twenty-two Teachers.

Including Five Music Teachers.

Four hundred and twenty-six Pupils

French and German by native Professors. Sixty dollars per term, fourteen weeks, pays all expenses in boarding department except washing. Fall term commences September 4. Send to President Pershing, Pittsburg, Pa. for circular. aull tf

STAPLETON & CO.,

UNION HAT STORE,

95..........CANAL STREET..........97

NEW ORLEANS,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer

—IN—

Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,

—ALSO—

GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION

n20

MEDICAL.

Dr. J. WHITE'S INSTITUTE,

127 CARONDELET STREET,

Directly in rear of the City Hall.

The first aim of human beings is happiness, and happiness implies health of body and mind.

This Institute is established for the cure of all forms of disease, Chronic and Acute.

Dr. White does not allow any disease afflicting his patients, however virulent, to escape his vigilant care, as his patients universally testify.

It can easily be perceived how important it is that a full and correct diagnosis—detecting all the diseases that afflict the patient—should be attained. And it is no less important to the afflicted that the remedies should be equally clear to the physician; proving to his patient that when the local disease is eradicated, the whole system is completely renovated and restored to its normal condition. "A sound mind is a sound body."

Dr. White's experience and success for thirty years in an extensive practice in large cities, have brought to him for treatment a vast amount of every form of disease, justifying him in promising the cure of the patient if the vitals and vitality are not irreparably wasted.

His remedies cure the worst eruptions of the skin; all forms of ulcers, of whatever nature, to the incipient cancer, which so grievously afflict humanity. The remedies restore the stomach, liver, and blood and all the secretions and excretions of the entire system, in unhealthy to a healthy condition. Instead of injuring the system or constitution, they renovate and repair the injuries and wastes of the entire organism.

One or two hours spent at the Institute with Dr. White frequently saves weeks of fever or other suffering—often life

N. B. Persons desiring Dr. White's advice and remedies, will be careful to call at 127 Carondelet street, or address by letter, as there are several Dr. Whites in the city.

☞ Consultation free—stamps not "forgotten."
[feb3]

A NEW GLEE BOOK.

THE GREETING.

A COLLECTION OF GLEES, QUARTETS, Choruses, Part-Songs, etc. By L. O. Emerson. Author of "The Jubilate," "Harp of Judah," "Golden Wreath," "Merry Chimes," etc.

Upwards of Half a Million copies of Mr. Emerson's Music Books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no other author of the same class of books and which cannot fail to insure for this new volume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been contributed by Mr L. H. Southard whose name is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The marked features of the collection are Originality, Brilliancy and Variety; and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no Glee Book now before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to Musical Societies and Conventions, Conservatories, Clubs, and Amateur Singers. Price, $1 38. Mailed post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO.,
se26 711 Broadway New York.

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE

Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. C. UPHAM,
25 South Eighth street, Philadelphia Pa.
Circulars free. Sold by all Druggists. oct 13t

HALLOWED SONGS.

FOR PRAYER MEETINGS AND SMALL CHURCHES
A Small Hymn and Tune Book, of 25 pages, bound in muslin, at $1 each, or $75 per 100.
PHILIP PHILLIPS & CO.,
3 1y Cincinnati.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 72, and 74 Washington st, New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

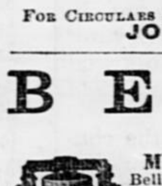
50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.
No. 64 to 74 Washington street,
New York.
For sale by F. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.

PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY



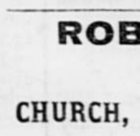
CHURCH BELLS

Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c.,

HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.



MENEELY' WEST TROY Bell Foundry established in 1826. Bells for Churches, Academies, Factories etc., made of genuine Bell-metal, (Copper and Tin), mounted with improved patent mountings, and warranted. Orders and inquiries addressed to the undersigned, or to our General Agents, Fairbanks & Co., Scale Warehouse, 252 Broadway, New York, will have prompt attention, and an illustrated catalogue sent free, upon application.
E.A. & G. R. MENEELY,
West Troy, N. Y.

ROBERT PATON,

Manufacturer of

CHURCH, OFFICE AND SCHOOL

FURNITURE.

24 Grove St., N. Y.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING

Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.
Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.
JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17;1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 3. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JANUARY 18, 1868. WHOLE NO. 103.

Poetry.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

THE PRIVATE'S DEATH-BED.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

Dead, dead and cold, on the matted mold,
The pulseless body lay;
The dews fell still on the stony eyes,
That gazing upward on the skies,
In a mute and vacant way,
Were wet with the tears of the shining dew,
Bright in the morning ray.

The winds went sobbing slowly by,
And the trembling, dripping leaves
Came sighing down from each dark, low bough,
And laid their wet hands on his brow,
So still beneath the trees;
And the pale-eyed stars all the long, long night,
Had softly gazed on that face so white—
So white in the smile of the low young moon,
As she swept through the sky in a belt so bright,
In the shades of the dusky gloom;
While now and then some picket's shot
Came whizzing o'er that silent spot,
Yet thrill'd not the heart of the still young dead,
Asleep all alone in his lowly bed—
Asleep, in that lonely spot.

Far away o'er the hills in a low-roofed home
Lies a pillow white and smooth;
The moonlight falls on the oaken floor,
And the night winds sigh 'neath the sagging door.
Long months shall pass, but the absent one
Shall dream no more in that humble home;
And the cricket's wail 'mong the poplar boughs
No more will the slumbering youth arouse
To scenes of filial love.

No more o'er the lawn will his bare, brown feet
Dash the cool dews from the clover-tops bright,
Waking the wail of the brown-winged bee,
Asleep in the clover so bright;
As driving the cows down the green trodden lane
He whistles and shouts to his herd in a strain
So merry, so bright, and free;
Waking the blue-bird's carol low
In the boughs of the old apple tree.

But the winds are chilly and cold on the hills,
And the frost lies blue on the lea,
And the bees are all gone from the clover sweet
To their homes in the woodland tree.
And the wail of the blue-jay flying low
Has a weary sound to me;
For alone he sleeps in a distant land,
And his poor limbs, stiff and cold,
Will feel no touch of a tender hand,
So still on she chilly mold.
But his spirit's gone to that same great God,
Who rules all, far and wide,
And a private's soul is as dear to Him
As a monarch's in all his pride.

NORWICH, Connecticut, January, 1877.

INTELLIGENCE FROM OUR MISSION ROOMS.

MISSIONARY FESTIVAL.—The nineteenth annual session of the Sands street Methodist Episcopal church Sunday school, Brooklyn, was held Christmas at 10½ o'clock A. M. It should be understood that this festival, which resulted in over seventeen hundred dollars to the missionary cause, and several hundred for other purposes, came from an effort of the juveniles of less than one month, though they have monthly missionary meetings. They have a way of bringing forth fruit for somebody (they "sow beside all waters") every month in the year. But now to this festival. We noticed on this, as on former occasions, their friends provide to address them through the "princes of the people;" so now they had Bishop Janes and the lieutenant governor of the state of New York. Among the remarkable features of these festivals is the bringing out of original poetry, to be said or sung, or both, thus contributing to the good taste of their auditors, and the reputation of the promising authors they are bringing forward. A perfect surprise, and a most gratifying one, was afforded the visitors by the sight of a tasteful cenotaph in the wall at the right of the pulpit to the memory of the departed Hon. Moses F. Odell, for twenty years the superintendent of the Sunday school, and the steadfast friend of the missionary cause. Most appropriate references were made to this by the several speakers. The maid of honor who addressed the audience, her teachers, and her pastor in a beautiful piece of poetry, concluded that gift by another in behalf of her class of one hundred dollars for missions. She represented, as we understood it, the infant department. All the female classes did well, the Mustard Seeds as well as any, and somebody managed to slip into their hands a gift of $300 for the "Odell Alcove" of the Wesleyan University. The Dew Drops are a "feeble folk," but they persist in sending up a "pailful." The male classes, like all boys, seemed to have their "own heads," and the volunteers took it into theirs to "promote" their superintendant as Major General S. U. F. Odell without consulting the king of the Sandwich islands. They confirmed this with a gift of $200 for missions. The tap of the drum and some other noises were heard just then. All's right, was right, and all the rest too, until we came along to "old Sands street—the homestead." That was a mournful procession, their banner draped in black. Mr. Richard F. Vandeveer had taken the route his brother-in-law, the late superintendent, had gone. The class brought $200 in memoriam. The fishermen brought a "catch," which though but a single fish brought $15 in his mouth. The Bethel ship brought up a lead and line of seventy-five fathoms with as many dollars. Pieces of silver from a child now in heaven were brought in, and quite a nursery of grand and great-grandchildren were brought up to present their gifts; after all of which the children and their guests repaired to the school room to receive gifts with which to be happy all the day, and, as we hope, for many days to come.

LIBERIA.—Bishop Roberts writes to the Mission rooms under date of October 29, giving account of the revivals at several of the stations and on some of the circuits, also of conversions among the native tribes. One particular in his letter, which much encourages us as to the genuineness of the revival in one of the appointments is that several of the young men are burning with desire to go among the natives with the story of the cross.

THE TIME HAS COME.—Yes! and it now is. Strange that a Methodist preacher should write: "The time of our annual collection is at hand, and I want you to furnish me with, etc., to help me." The very things he should have had at the beginning of his pastoral labor, as the discipline directs. This man is not a preacher on trial—not a junior preacher. This is not a common case. A liberal collection from such a quarter would be a disappointment.

THE MONTHLY CONCERT.—The monthly concert of prayer for missions is a source of missionary life to the churches where this concert is kept up, and it is not a less source of life to the missionary cause itself. Our general conference was so fully impressed with the importance of this as a means of promoting the vital interests of Christ's kingdom that they caused to be incorporated in our book of discipline the following resolution:

Resolved, That we recommend the observance of the first evening of each month on which the regular evening prayer-meeting is held as a concert of prayer for missions, and that we recommend all our churches to observe the "annual week of prayer for the conversion of the world."

YOUNG MEN.—To them, in the days of Summerfield, the Disosways, the Dusenburys, the Skidmores, and others, must be accorded the credit of having been mainly instrumental in originating our foreign mission enterprise. We always think of this fact with pleasure. But our attention is now turned to the young men of our Methodist church from noticing the appeals making by the London and Wesleyan missionary societies, to the young men especially, to come up to the help of these societies to move off the burden of debt which is impeding their progress, and bringing them into positive straits in the maintenance of the work they have in hand for the Lord Jesus. Would that this might be a note in the ears of the young men of the Methodist Episcopal church at this critical period in the history of our work! We pray them to think on this, especially as the season for the annual collection for missions is just at hand.

METHODIST UNION.—We sometime since published a circular on the above topic from a "Border Methodist." That circular having been laid before the Albion District (Michigan Conference) Ministerial Association, the following action was taken, and forwarded to us by Rev. D. F. Barnes, Secretary:

Resolved, That while anxious to remove every barrier to the union of Methodists upon a common platform and policy which conscience will allow or the history of the past permit, we do not believe the time has come for such action as the "circular" contemplates, and should have little confidence in the result of the labors of the committee therein named.

ROCK RIVER CONFERENCE. — The General Committee have apportioned $8,000 for church extension to the above Conference. A circular has been sent to each pastor from the Philadelphia office.

TENNESSEE CIRCUIT, Rock River.—Rev. D. S. Main writes that the above circuit should be credited with $147, instead of $47, for missions. The last minutes are in error.

ANOTHER LETTER BY JOHN WESLEY.—The following letter was written to Miss Penelope Newman, of Cheltenham, England, who afterwards became Mrs. Cousins. A daughter, Miss Cousins, gave it to Mrs. Hannah Fry, of Detroit, who presented it to the Central M. E. Church. The letter has been lithographed in fac-simile, and copies will be sold for the benefit of the East Saginaw Church:

LONDON, January 4, 1775.

My Dear Sister: — I wish you would prevail upon John Walton to give himself up wholly to the work of God. Till he does I do not expect he will have Health of Body, no nor full Spiritual Health. For I am much afraid he is all this time grieving the Spirit of God. If he should break through he might spend his first year in the Gloucestershire Circuit. T. Parker is capable of better work than thumbing Coke upon Littleton.

Hannah Ball, of Wycomber, seems to me to go forward in the state of pure love as swiftly as any I have known. There is a danger that those that are saved from sin, should slack their pace, and not press forward. Go on! Forget the things that are behind! Rest not till you are all lost in God. I am, my dear sister. Yours affectionately,

J. WESLEY.

ROCK RIVER CONFERENCE.—Rev. E. Q. Fuller sends us the following:

The presiding elder of Rock River Conference met in the Book Rooms, Chicago, January 2, 1868. Present, H. Crews, H. L. Martin, R. A. Blanchard, E. Q. Fuller, W. S. Harrington, and W. F. Stewart. H. Crews, chairman; E. Q. Fuller, secretary. The $20,000 to be raised by the conference for missions was apportioned to the districts as follows: Chicago, $7,500; Rockford, $2,362; Freeport, $2,546 83; Dixon, $2,881 45; Mendota, $2,191 08; Joliet, $2,313 61.

The sum to be raised for expenses of General Conference was apportioned to the charges, viz: $500 to every charge in the conference

The sm to be raised for Church Extension, $8,000, as apportioned to the districts by the board of directors of the Conference Church Extension Society, was approved to-wit: Chicago, $3,000; Rockford, $1,000; Freeport, $1,000; Dixon, $1,000; Mendota, $1,000; Joliet, $1,000.

ONARGA, CENTRAL ILL.—Our recent item respecting the Onarga Seminary prompted the following note from an interested brother:

I rejoice greatly at the noble position taken by our brethren at Onarga—the principal and teachers of the Grand Prairie Seminary, and I thank you in their behalf for the publicity you have given to their very honorable and consistent action. The time has come when the issue of admission to our schools, without respect to class or color, must be met squarely and manfully, and the great loyal Methodist Church should be foremost in the battle. Our brethren should be endorsed with enthusiasm. God has honored them with a glorious opportunity to be witnesses for Him and for humanity.

[From the Boston Daily Advertiser.]

How Chromos are Made.

Chromo-lithography is the art of printing pictures from stone, in colors. The most difficult branch of it—which is now generally implied when chromos are spoken of—is the art of reproducing oil paintings. When a chromo is made by a competent hand, it presents an exact counterpart of the original painting, with the delicate gradations of tints and shades, and with much of the spirit and tone of a production of the brush and pallet.

To understand how chromos are made, the art of lithography must first be briefly explained. The stone used in lithographing is a species of limestone found in Bavaria, and is wrought into thick slabs with finely polished surface. The drawing is made upon the slab with a sort of colored soap which adheres to the stone, and enters into a chemical combination with it after the application of certain acids and gums. When the drawing is complete the slab is put on the press, and carefully dampened with a sponge. The oil color (or ink) is then applied with a common printer's roller. Of course, the parts of the slab which contain no drawing, being wet, resist the ink; while the drawing itself, being oily, repels the water but retains the color applied. It is thus that, without a raised surface or incision—as in common printing, wood-cuts, and steel engravings—lithography produces printed drawings from a perfectly smooth stone.

In a chromo, the first proof is a light ground-tint, covering nearly all the surface. It has only a faint, shadowy resemblance to the completed picture. It is in fact rather a shadow than an outline. The next proof, from the second stone, contains all the shades of another color. This process is repeated again and again and again; occasionally, as often as thirty times. We saw one proof, in a visit to Mr. Prang's establishment—a group of cattle—that had passed through the press twelve times; and it still bore a greater resemblance to a spoiled colored photograph than to the charming picture which it subsequently became. The number of impressions, however, does not necessarily indicate the number of colors in a painting, because the colors and tints are greatly multiplied by combinations created in the process of printing one over another. In twenty-five impressions, it is sometimes necessary and possible to produce a hundred distinct shades.

The last impression is made by an engraved stone, which produces that resemblance to canvas noticeable in all of Mr. Prang's finer specimens. English and German chromos, as a rule, do not attempt to give this delicate final touch, although it would seem to be essential in order to make a perfect imitation of a painting.

The paper used is white, heavy "plate paper," of the best quality, which has to pass through a heavy press, sheet by sheet, before its surface is fit to receive an impression.

The process thus briefly explained, we need hardly add, requires equally great skill and judgment at every stage. A single error is instantly detected by the practiced eye in the finished specimen. The production of a chromo, if it is at all complicated, requires several months — sometimes several years—of careful preparation. The mere drawing of the different and entirely-detached parts on so many different stones is of itself a work that requires an amount of labor and a degree of skill, which, to a person unfamiliar with the process, would appear incredible. Still more difficult, and needing still greater skill, is the process of coloring. This demands a knowledge which artists have hitherto almost exclusively monopolized, and, in addition to it, the practical familiarity of a printer with mechanical details. "Drying" and "registering" are as important branches of the art of making chromos as drawing and coloring. On proper registering, for example, the entire possibility of producing a picture at every stage of its progress depends. "Registering" is that part of a pressman's work which consists in so arranging the paper in the press, that it shall receive the impression on exactly the same spot of every sheet. In book work, each page must be exactly opposite the page printed on the other side of the sheet, in order that the impression, if on thin paper, may not "show through." In newspaper work this is of less importance, and often is not attended to with any special care. But in chromo-lithography the difference of a hair's-breadth would spoil a picture; for it would hopelessly mix up the colors.

After the chromo has passed through the press it is embossed and varnished, and then put up for the market. These final processes are for the purpose of breaking the glossy light, and of softening the hard outlines which the picture receives from the stone, which imparts to it the resemblance of a painting on canvas.

Mr. Prang began his business in the humblest way, but has rapidly increased his establishment until he now employs fifty workmen—nearly all of them artists and artisans of the most skilful class—and is preparing to move into a larger building at Roxbury. He uses eighteen presses; and his sales are enormous. His catalogue now embraces a large number of album cards—about seventy sets, of twelve in each set; a beautiful series of illuminated "Beatitudes" and "Scriptural Mottoes;" an endless list of our great men, and of men not so great after all, of juveniles, notably, a profusely illustrated edition of "Old Mother Hubbard;" and of half chromos and chromos proper. Tait's "Chickens," "Ducklings," and "Quails" were the first chromos that met an instant and wide recognition. Nineteen thousand copies of the "Chickens" alone were sold. Bricher's "Early autumn on Esopus Creek" is one of the best chromos ever made on a small scale. The "Bulfinch" and the "Linnet" (after Cruikshank) are admirable. There are other chromos which are less successful, and one or two that are not successful at all; but they are nearly all excellent copies of the originals, with which the defects must be charged.

The chromos of Bricher's paintings are really wonderfully accurate.

Mr. Prang's masterpiece, however, is not yet published, although it is nearly ready for the market. It entirely surpasses all his previous efforts. It is Correggio's "MAGDALENA," and can hardly fail, we think, to command a quick sale and hearty recognition.

Like every modern discovery, chromo-lithography has its partisans and detractors—those who claim for it perhaps impossible capabilities, and those who regard it as a mere handicraft, which no skill can ever elevate into the diguity of an art. We do not care to enter into these disputes. Whether an art or a handicraft, chromo-lithgraphy certainly re-produces charming little pictures vastly superior to any colored plates that we have had before; and it is, at least, clearly entitled to be regarded as a means of educating the popular taste, and thereby raising the national ideal of art.

A correspondent, looking at chromos from this point of view, thus indicates (it may be somewhat enthusiastically) their possible influence on the culture of the people:

"What the discovery of the art of printing did for the mental growth of the people, the art of chromo-lithography seems destined to accomplish for their æsthetic culture. Before types were first made, scholars and the wealthier classes had ample opportunities for study; for even when Bibles were chained in churches, and copies of the Scriptures (then aptly so styled) were worth a herd of cattle, there were large libraries accessible to the aristocracy of rank and mind. But they were guarded against the masses by the double doors of privilege and ignorance. A book possessed no attractions for the man who could not read the alphabet; and, because they were rare and hard to get at, he had no incitement to master their mysteries. Made cheap and common the meanest peasant, in the course of a few generations, found solace for his griefs in the pages of the greatest authors of his time and of all time. Mental culture became possible for whole nations; and democracy with its illimitable blessings gradually grew up under the little shadow of the first 'printer's proof.'

"Until within a quite recent period art has been feudal in its associations. Galleries of priceless paintings, indeed, there have always been in certain favored cities and countries; but to the people as a whole they have been equally inaccessible and unappreciated, because no previous training had taught the community how to prize them. It was like Harvard college without the district school—a planet without satellites, and too far removed from the world of the people for its light to shine in the cottage and in the homes of the masses.

"Now, chromo-lithography, although still in its infancy, promises to diffuse not a love of art merely among the people at large, but to disseminate the choicest masterpieces of art itself. It is art republicanized and naturalized in America. Its attempts hitherto have been comparatively unambitious; but it was not Homer and Plato that were first honored by the printing press. It was dreary catechisms of dreary creeds. So will it be with this new art. As the popular taste improves, the subjects will be worthy of an art which seeks to give back to mankind what has hitherto been confined to the few."

Extempore Speaking.

To speak well you must be in rapport, not only with your own mind, but with your subject and your audience. It is really wonderful that this connection is so rarely complete, and that such mishaps come from its absence. Sometimes you are out of joint with yourself, and your mind seems no more to jump with your tongue than the mind of the man in the moon, and you feel that you have no hold of yourself. Again, your thought, although quite active in a certain way, does not enter into the subject, and you are very much like an eager horseman who wants to ride, but finds the horse refusing to be mounted, or, when mounted, insisting upon standing still or pitching the luckless rider over his head. Sometimes, moreover, when you and your subject get on very well together, you fail to connect with the audience, and without having any positive quarrel with them, you find yourself as far apart as if they were a thousand miles off. You will use every means to establish the true relation; to keep your own mind ready at your call; to make it dwell faithfully upon such leading principles as are fundamental to all important subjects, and to take vital interest in men, not such as belong to your clique only, but in men as men in all the various tempers and conditions of the common lot. He is happy who masters this connection thoroughly, and agrees with his own soul, his subject, and his audience. He is a good rider who is master of himself, his good steed, and the road, and he goes forth conquering and to conquer.

Some very interesting and curious phenomena occur when this rapport is complete, and some of the signs that spiritualists ascribe to supernatural agency are constant attendants of good extemporaneous speaking. A strange and cheering and powerful influence rises up within the speaker, and is met and quickened by the subject and the occasion. The calmer he is, and the less elevated and blown about by passion, the more profoundly he is inwardly moved. Thoughts and emotions come to him of themselves without painful seeking, and the subject opens itself to him as if it were a part of his own brain and heart. Words and sentences of unusual fitness and beauty come to him of themselves, and seem to speak of themselves without fatigue of voice or exhaustion of brain or nerve. A remarkable bond grows up between speaker and hearers; the audience light up a mild glow, and a lambent brightness almost transfigures each head in the speaker's eye; while the whole assembly seems to be informed with one life, and the thousand souls are drawn together as one spiritual body.

I have talked with a great many distinguished extempore speakers, and while they are almost universally reluctant to trust to any marvelous influences, and disposed to insist upon careful thought, and frequent, and exact writing to guard against looseness and repetition, they allow that there is something in their best oratorical experience that passes their understanding. Carpenter, the physiologist, speaks of what he calls "unconscious cerebration," or states in which the brain works without any conscious effort to do it, and without any consciousness of what it is doing of itself, as when a man wakes in the morning and finds his thinking much in advance of where he left it when he went to sleep, or even some hard problem solved or knotty question answered. The cause of these phenomena undoubtedly lies somewhere in those organs that are allied to the heart, and stomach, and lungs, and are moved by the sympathetic nerves, so as to be more automatic than voluntary, more powers of nature than of volition. How far this involuntary action can be extended, and how far carried up into the higher plane of intelligence and activity, we can not say; but it is evident that whatever partakes of the character of habit partakes of this power, for habit, however painfully formed, becomes a second nature, and is automatic, or goes of itself.

This automatic action rids the extempore speaker of much care, anxiety, and toil, and carries him forward through much of his work without solicitude or conscious effort; but it is full of dangers, and if he trusts wholly to it he loses his higher inspiration and force, and sinks down into an automaton, like a barrel organ, that, when wound up, can only play over all its old tunes. Some speakers and hosts of talkers are spoiled in this way, and they think themselves inspired because by practice they have so much of the "gift of gab," and they can run on without limit and without fatigue, until all but themselves are tired out. The good speaker may cultivate and use this automatic power; but he must never trust wholly to it, nor even be satisfied, unless in everything he does he is conscious of putting forth some fresh effort and earnest thought, and rising higher than before, instead of drifting away upon the easy level, or floating down the still easier descending current.—Dr. Osgood.

Fate of Dr. Livingstone.

The dispatch which was received from her majesty's consul at Zanzibar, and Dr. Kirk's letter to Sir Roderick Murchison, read at the Royal Geographical society on Monday evening, have awakened considerable hopes of the safety of the distinguished traveler. A narrative has reached Dr. Kirk which, if it may be believed, will disprove the story of Dr. Livingstone's death as told by the Johanna men. From the statement of a native introduced to Dr. Kirk by a Banian trader, it appears that a white man with a party of thirteen blacks arrived at one of the villages under Maranga while the native was there. All had fire-arms, and six carried double-barrelled guns. The white man was of moderate height, not stout, dressed in white, and wore a cloth wrapt round his head. He gave the chief a looking glass, and was offered ivory, which he declined, stating that he was not a trader. He then went northward. This is all the information which the native can give, if we except one important item. When Dr. Kirk met him again, he placed before him his books of photographic portraits. In the first he did not recognize the likeness of the man he saw in the interior, although it contained a very fine side-view of Livingstone. In the second he at once pointed to a staring likeness of the traveler which Dr. Kirk kept as a caricature, and said, "That is the man." Then he added, "Come on to Bagamogo and see my master and the other men; they have seen him also, and will tell you all they know." The native, it may be added, was one of a caravan passing from Bagamogo along the usual trade route to Wemba and Maranga; where they remained trading for some time, and again returned to the coast. Dr. Kirk thinks that if the head man of the party can be found it may be possible to identify the stranger, who to their hopeful imagination appears so like their long lost friend. It was decided at once to set out for Bagamogo to make inquiries. The story of a white man having been seen at Uruwa is a distinct thing from the narrative now given. "But," says Dr. Kirk, "the one adds confirmation to the other, and shows us that if it be Livingstone on whose track we now are, that he has more than half finished his work, and is about to go to the Albert Nyanza." Sir Roderick Murchison, in placing this information before the Geographical Society, stated, in addition, that Mr. Price, the chief of the Bombay Mission church, in a letter shortly after the news of Dr. Livingstone's death, had said: "It will be remembered that the doctor took with him nine African Christian lads, who had been brought up at our institution at Sharanpur. These were, without exception, intelligent youths, about twenty years of age, and had a tolerable knowledge of English; most of them possessed strong physical development, and being fired with a desire for enterprise cheerfully volunteered to accompany Dr. Livingstone. I call to mind how, when the doctor had them together in my verandah, after giving them some account of the life they had to expect, and the difficulties that lay before them, he concluded his remarks by saying very impressively: 'Now, my lads, you see we may have to encounter hardships and dangers; but bear in mind above all things that whatever happens you must stick close to me.'" Sir Roderick believed those faithful attendants had stuck close to their leader, and their number accorded with that stated by Dr. Kirk who were last seen with Livingstone, and in possession of the firearms known to have been taken with the expedition. We trust that the expectations which have been raised by this fresh information will not be doomed to disappointment. Sir Samuel Baker is of opinion that it would be desirable if the Egyptian government could be induced to favor an expedition from their end of Lake Tanganika. In that case he believed that Dr. Livingstone would be met by the exploring party. That, in his judgment, would be a glorious undertaking, and he would be very glad to join in it, as his present inactivity was worse to him than an African fever.

"Pardon for Nothing."

A few days since, when visiting an old man who seemed anxious about salvation, I found great difficulty in making him understand that pardon is the free gift of God, through the precious blood of Christ.

At last I said to him, "Now, suppose I were to go to a shop and buy something for you, and pay for it, and tell you to go and fetch it, need you take any money with you?" "No," said the old man, brightening up, "it would be paid for." Need you make any promise to pay at some future time?" I then asked. "No," he replied, "I should have it for nothing."

"So," I continued, "is it with forgiveness of sins; the Lord Jesus has paid the full price for it. He has had the groans, the sighs, the tears, the wrath, the pain, the punishment; yea, all that sin deserved! He bore it all! He paid the whole! Yes, bought forgiveness with his precious blood, and now he gives it as a gift to all who bring their sins to him."

"Yes!" said the old man, as his eyes filled with tears, "I see it now; it is pardon for nothing! pardon for nothing! Christ has bought it, and he will give it to me!"

Dear reader, may you also learn that Christ alone can save; that neither your tears, nor groans, nor prayers, nor works, can give you any right to heaven. No, you must come with nothing in your hand, and, as a helpless beggar, cast yourself upon his love and grace, and look to him alone to cleanse you from your sins, and make you fit to dwell with him above. —Evangelist.

Closet Work.

Flee to the closet as your life, your safeguard, your hope, your joy. God is there, Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit, salvation. No one can discharge family duties acceptably, household ministrations, governmental relations; no one can resist the wiles of the devil manfully, sustain an equilibrium of calm, peaceful, humble resignation and joyfulness, without gaining wisdom and strength in the closet. Wives, do you believe this? Mothers, do you? Mark well, behold that mother, that daughter, coming from the closet, with a face shining with holiness as did that of Moses when descending the Mount of God. What now? Panoplied? armed with helmet, sword, and shield, her feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace? Satan is bruised under her feet. Satan finds no lodgment. All his fiery darts are hurled in vain. She is clothed with humility. The graces of the spirit shine forth radiantly; love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith. She goes forth from the closet armed. Sisters, mothers, daughters, old and young, flee to the closet—have your regular stated seasons, adhere to them strictly, undeviatingly. Let no earthly care deprive you of these.—Home Thrusts

Christ.

The following beautiful and devout apostrophe of praise, as addressed to the Savior, is from the recently published lectures of Rev. Mr. Liddon, and delivered at Oxford in defence of divine worship to Christ:

"Eternal Jesus! it is thyself who hast bidden us either to despise thee or worship thee. Thou wouldest have us to despise thee as our fellow-man, if we will not worship thee as our God. Gazing on thy human beauty, and listening to thy words, we can not deny that thou art the only Son of God most high; disputing thy divinity, we could no longer clearly recognize thy human perfections. But if our ears hearken to thy revelations of thy greatness, our souls have already been won to thee by thy truthfulness, by thy loveliness, and by thy love. Convinced by these, thy moral glories, and thy majestic exercise of thy creating power, we believe and are sure that thou hast the words of eternal life. Although unveiling thyself before thy creatures, thou dost stand from age to age at the bar of hostile and sceptical opinion, yet assuredly from age to age, by the assaults of thine enemies, no less than in the faith of thy believing church, thou art justified in thy sayings and art clear when thou art judged. Of a truth thou art the king of glory, O Christ; thou art the everlasting son of the father."

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months..... 2 00
Three Months..... 1 00

INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50

Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.

☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ THE NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 18, 1868.

New Volume.

With last week's issue we commenced the THIRD VOLUME of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. The prospects before us are flattering. At the late session of our Conference, the preachers ordered in the aggregate OVER SEVEN HUNDRED copies to be sent to their charges. This was exceedingly encouraging, and we commence the year with renewed zeal.

Although the editor-in-chief is required to discharge the duties of a presiding elder and of a pastor, and the assistant editor has the charge of two churches, yet it is our purpose to devote all the time possible to the ADVOCATE, that it may be one of the best church papers in the South. And it is equally due the editors to state, that they work on the paper without any remuneration whatever; and, also, that the editor is financially responsible for the current expenses of the ADVOCATE. We thus labor for the love of God. Our mission is to do good, and to this end we employ the press, one of the mightiest of all the christianizing agencies known to the world.

At the late session of our conference, the ADVOCATE was enthusiastically indorsed by the preachers. Bishop Ames, and Revs Messrs. Diossy, Henry, Lynch, Ross, Green, Chinn, and many others, spoke in terms of commendation and of devotion to this great church interest. And our preachers are the best judges of the amount of good the ADVOCATE is accomplishing. It is their assistant preacher, repeating their pulpit utterances in the quiet of the family. And as these preachers carry it into all the interior parishes of the State, the ADVOCATE has a larger country circulation than any other loyal journal in Louisiana.

At the conference, the question of subscription was thoroughly discussed, and after due deliberation we have concluded to reduce the price of the ADVOCATE TO THREE DOLLARS A YEAR IN ADVANCE, OR ONE DOLLAR A QUARTER IN ADVANCE. This is as low as we can possibly afford to publish the paper, and at this price we but just pay expenses. But we intend to make the ADVOCATE fully worth this amount.

With this number we commence the official publication of the proceedings of our State Constitutional Convention, which will be found on our supplement sheet. Our readers in the country parishes need not therefore, purchase other papers to obtain these proceedings, as they will find them in their own ADVOCATE.

And now we cordially invite the co-operation of every PREACHER, SUBSCRIBER, and FRIEND of the church and the country to the hearty support of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans ADVOCATE may be had for 1868 for THREE DOLLARS a year in ADVANCE, or ONE DOLLAR a quarter in ADVANCE.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

During the absence of the editor of the ADVOCATE, the management of the paper will be intrusted to Rev. W. M. Henry, the assistant editor.

Bishop Ames in Texas.

Having preached on the previous Sabbath, and having closed the third session of the Mississippi Mission conference, Bishop Ames left New Orleans, December 22, 1867, for Houston, Texas, accompanied by Rev. R. K. Diossy, and Mrs. J. P. Newman, who persuaded him to make a detour and visit St. Mary's parish, Louisiana, the contemplated seat of our University and Orphan's Home.

December 26th—After the morning mist had passed away the day was glorious, and having reached Berwick's Bay by rail, we took a small steamer and in a few hours were "Slowly entering the Teche where it flows through the green Opelousas." Scarcely could we imagine it was mid-winter as the sun poured down her golden floods of light upon the rich sugar plantations of St. Mary's, heightening the loveliness of the scenery, and enhancing the pleasures of the sail. "Beautiful is the land, with its prairies and forests of fruit trees." On either side of the stream seemed to be a garden of shrubs and flowers, while above our heads were the bluest of heavens and no marvel that with Longtellow "They who dwell there have named it the Eden of Louisiana." Evening came on softly, and twilight with her golden wand touched the landscape with a thousand new beauties which "melted and mingled together.' The willows that fringed the banks were filled with little warblers, and occasionally was heard the wild song of the mocking bird as he "shook from his little throat such floods of delicious music that the whole air and the woods and the waves seemed silent to listen." Night threw her mantle gently over the scenery as the twinkling stars came out one by one to loop up its sombre folds just as we reached the little city of Franklin, where we were to be the guests of Mrs. Diossy, whose hospitality is only excelled by the gentleness of her spirit, and her devotion to the church. Her liege lord, however, was one of the trio, making us, no doubt, thrice welcome.

The following day which was extremely warm we spent at the Presiding Elder's parsonage home in quiet repose in one of the most lovely of inland towns. Coming as we did from the crowded noisy city, where the thermometer had stood at eighty at mid-day for the past week, as travelers we were only too happy to rest amid the Sabbath stillness of a hamlet whose perennial quiet is seldom disturbed during the twenty-four hours except by the shrill whistle of the steamer on the Teche.

Saturday morn dawned unclouded and the travelers refreshed by the genial society of friends, and the quiet influence of "tired nature's sweet restorer," a ride was proposed to the plantation recently purchased for our University and Asylum, and which have been so fully described in the columns of this paper. It was decided that we take a circuitous route of nearly fifteen miles that we might at last gain a birds-eye view of the plantation, and thus gain some idea of the general appearance of the country.

It was a gay and cheerful ride. The party occupied two buggies, while one of the number alternately rode a little white pony who amused all, and annoyed the rider most, by his singular freaks of at one time galloping off at a speed to gain the advance of the carriages, then trotting so uncomfortably as to throw the rider into fearful attitudes in the saddle, and the next moment falling far in the rear by a slow dragging walk.

It was nearly mid-day when we reached the Darby plantation, and was welcomed by Brother and Sister Baldwin, who now occupy the mansion. Their rural appearance and homelike manner made them seem more like old residents than new comers of only a few days. After strolling around the ample grounds, and surveying this future seat of learning for an hour, we took a kind of picnic lunch, and ate pecans beneath the shade of the stately old trees in front of the mansion, then bade adieu to good Brother and Sister Baldwin. Again seated in our carriages we rode to some of the adjacent plantations; the one invested with most interest belonging to our Orphan Home Society. The Bishop expressed his delight with its general appearance and the design for the future arrangement of the buildings and grounds, and the improvements already being made under the direction of Mrs. Diossy. A short ride of less than five miles by the direct route brought us again at Franklin, just as the early twilight of what appeared to be a warm summer's day, but really December 28th.

The following day being Sabbath the Bishop preached at 11 A. M. to the colored congregation in their church, which is quite a large edifice. There was a fine audience for the day, as the rain fell in torrents nearly all the morning. Had it been pleasant the church would have been full to overflowing. All present listened to the deeply interesting sermon with the most eager attention.

It is due to Mrs. Diossy and her daughter Eva to say that much of the success of the thriving Sunday school connected with this church is the result of the interest they have taken and the special effort they made to please the scholars on Christmas by preparing a beautiful tree loaded with presents.

In the afternoon the Rev. Mr. Diossy performed the marriage ceremony at the parsonage, and quite a dark cloud of witnesses were present. This ceremony was gone through with several times during our stay. They seem to think if the presiding elder performs the ceremony it is a sure thing, and will last until "death do them part." It rained nearly all day on Monday, and in the evening we bade adieu to our kind friends and left on the steamer to meet others near and dear to us, and to continue our journey into Texas.

It was on the last day of 1867 that the writer met Bishop Ames and Evangeline, who furnished us the above journal of their stay in St. Mary's parish.

At 1 P. M. we took passage on board the steamer Matagorda for Galveston, Texas. The skies were cloudy, and a stiff norther was blowing hard. The sail down the bay was uninteresting, and at nightfall we entered the Gulf of Mexico. Thanks to a kind Providence, the night passed without apparent danger, and we were up early to hail the rising sun of the new year. Thus dawned upon us the new year 1868. The compliments of the season were exchanged by friends, but the "New Year's calls" were interrupted by the rigorous demands of Neptune. The sea-sick, however, were soon relieved by our approach to land, for at 11 A. M. the Matagorda reached her wharf. Here we found the brethren awaiting our arrival, and on landing rode to their pleasant home. At 4 P. M. we took the small steamer Era No. 3, on either bow of which was a huge freight barge. We were bound for Houston, the seat of the Texas Conference, and our company consisted of Bishop Ames, Rev. Joseph Welch, Rev. G. W. Honey and wife, Mrs. Newman, and the writer. The sail up Galveston bay was delightful, and the prospects were good for an early arrival at our destination, but at sundown and in full sight of the light-house, we ran upon Redfish sand bar, where we stuck fast for twelve hours. A norther had been blowing for several days and the water in the bay was exceedingly shallow; indeed, it is the opinion of experienced seamen in these Texas waters that the bay of Galveston will soon be so obstructed with these ever increasing sand bars that steamboats of the lightest draught will be impeded, and that Galveston will cease to be a port of entry. The captain of the Era and his men toiled hard all night, but to no avail, and the morning came and we were still aground. The detention was especially regretful to Bishop Ames, whose punctuality is no mean feature of his official life, for during his episcopal career of sixteen years, he had not failed to meet all the annual conferences over which he was expected to preside, with one exception, and that was the Kansas and Nebraska conference, prior to its division; nor had he missed being present at the time each conference opened its session but once, which was the Kansas conference, at the seat of which he did not arrive till Sunday morning. Such punctuality is remarkable, and we were not surprised at his anxiety to reach Houston in season.

It was not until 9 A. M. that the Era floated, when we were assured that Houston would be reached in six hours; but we were doomed to experience further delay. Cloper's canal marks the channel in the upper bay; it formed of piles driven down into the sand at irregular intervals, and is sixty feet wide and one mile long. Once safely through this narrow passage, we were assured of deep and sufficient water, but we had scarcely entered it when the North wind began to blow and blew us out of the channel; nor had we steam enough to make headway against the wind and receding tide. The only resort left the captain was to haul his boat through by a hawser extending from the capstan and attached to the piles or sunken trees. Thus we worked, and we were three hours in going the mile of Cloper's canal. It was now late in the afternoon, all hopes of reaching Houston that day had been abandoned, and we piously gave ourselves up to the enjoyments of one of the most lovely sails it has been our good fortune to enjoy. On either side were the green plantations of Texas, dotted with the comfortable mansions and the long lines of former slave quarters. On many a half submerged tree sat the serious pelican, while around us floated the graceful swan, and over us flew the wild duck The glorious sun of New Years was fast descending to the distant gulf when we entered Buffalo Bayou. It is one of those narrow inland streams so common in the South, and which are so convenient for the transportation of passengers and produce. Now and then we saw a village of half a dozen buildings, and occasionally saw a well-conditioned plantation. But seated on the upper deck, with the good bishop for a companion and as the central figure of the happy group, the evening hours were spent in pleasant conversation. The heavens were cloudless, and the moon and stars shone with a brightness peculiar to a Sonthern sky.

Houston is a pretentious town of 15,000 inhabitants; its streets are spacious, and some of its buildings are imposing. It can boast of one of the largest, cleanest, and best kept hotels in Texas, which is the Hutchins House; and some of its citizens boast that Houston will yet be a "port of entry." This should be considered the "latest boast," and absurd as it it ridiculous, for the upper end of the little bayou by which the town is reached by water is so narrow that the embankment on either side has been cut away to allow the little steamers to turn around, and to do this they have to run the bow up one cut and then back the stern up the other. But fancied greatness is better than no greatness!

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Poverty in the South.

Re ports continue to reach us of the great destitution in this part of the country. Cotton was planted to the exclusion of other crops, as it was considered more profitable, and would supply means to purchase corn and other provisions. But alas! the worm and the overflow so injured the cotton that but a small crop was raised, and this so declined in price that after paying the government tax, and paying for weighing and shipping scarcely enough was left to pay the laborers for cultivating it. In many cases the crop did not meet the expenses of raising it. In fact it is stated that it is the exception and not the rule, where the expenses have been met.

The consequences are that the most of the planters are without the means to hire laborers for the coming year, or even to furnish them with provisions. One man informed us during the past week, that in the upper part of the state, planters have barely enough corn for their families to live on till another crop can be raised, and have nothing to buy with. They therefore can not furnish their laborers with provisions, and he thinks the government will have to provide for them.

From other sections the report comes to us that there is no work, and no way of obtaing provisions, and the colored people are killing off the stock to get something to eat.

In the city work is scarce and money still scarcer. There is very little business doing save in the auction rooms. These are filled with second hand furniture etc., which lead us to conclude that there must be much want, and that people are parting with such articles as they can possibly dispense with.

The result of the failure of the crops for the past few years is what we might naturally expect. Much land is being sold for debt or for taxes, and doubtless many will lose their farms and homes for the want of small sums of money to meet the demands of the tax collector.

The question naturally arises: Why do they not sell off a portion of their farms or plantations and rid themselves from debt? The answer is: There are no purchasers. None seem to have the money with which to buy. We must acknowledge that matters in the South bear a gloomy aspect, and we can not see how there is to be any improvement until a good crop is raised here. And this cannot be done without capital, and the capital is not here. It must come from abroad. We wish that it would come, and that speedily. We would say to the men of the North that now is the time to buy cheaply. Farms and plantations can be purchased for one-fifth of what they would bring before the war. Come then and help to build up the waste places. We think you will be welcome. The poverty and affliction of the people will lead your neighbors to treat you well, at least to avoid persecuting you because of different political views from themselves, if you will but come and bring prosperity among them. This may be one of the lessons which Providence designs to teach the people of the South—allowing to their neighbors free thought and free speech, and entirely opposite views on political matters, without persecuting them or running them off. They have erred greatly in this respect in the past, and it were well to learn a better way. But we are not inclined to throw stones at a fallen and afflicted enemy. We are none of us too good. Every section of our land and of the world will bear reform in some respect. Censuring for the past is out of place. Let us all exercise forgiveness for the past, forbearance and love in the present, and hope for the future. Let us "dwell together as brethren," and unitedly seek to build up and establish every section of our country and may the time speedily come when the love of all for the whole country shall be such that it may be like the body, "when one member (or section) suffers all the others suffer with it, and when one member is honored all the members rejoice with it." Our afflictions are doubtless from the Lord, and for our good, though we may not perceive it. We must be better as individuals, and better as a nation. If we will all "cease to do evil and learn to do well," no doubt Providence will speedily send us prosperity, and the earth yield her increase.

China Mission Conference.

The Methodist Episcopal China Mission Conference was held at Foochow, October 16-23. On Wednesday, the 16th, the native helpers were examined on the book of Job, and on Wesley's sermons; followed in the afternoon by an examination on Hebrews. In the evening Rev. Dr. Maclay preached the annual sermon from Acts xi, 19-21.

On Thursday, October 17th, native helpers were examined in chronology, "Confucianism and Christianity compared," geography. The examinations were well sustained. In the evening the missionary anniversary was held, Ling Ching Ting presiding. Speeches by Rev. Dr. Maclay, Ting Neng Chick, and Hu Yong Mi. The speaker is a young man who recently graduated from the boys' school.

October 18th, the "business sessions" commenced. The roll of helpers and student helpers was called, when nine helpers and eleven student helpers answered to their names. Sió Sek Ong was chosen Chinese Secretary, and S. L. Baldwin English Secretary.

After a thorough inquiry into the "gifts, grace, and usefulness" of those proposed, eight brethren were admitted.

The third question, "Who are admitted into the class of helpers?" was taken up. The first brother proposed was not admitted on account ot some objection to his wife. Seven student helpers, who had proved their usefulness and ability, were admitted to the class of helpers.

At 2 P. M. the question, "Who remain as student helpers?" was taken up. Nine brethren were continued in this relation, including the one who failed of admission into the class of helpers.

The characters of Hu Yong Mi and Hu Sing Mi were passed. The name Ngu Siu Mi being called, Hu Po Mi mentioned some reports he had heard concerning the improper use of opium pills by this brother, and improper nse of money intrusted to his care; whereupon Siu Sek Hu Yong Mi, and Yek Ing Kwang were appointed a committee to investigate the case.

In the evening the Bible Society anniversary was held, Yek Ing Kwang presiding. Speeches by Rev. N. Sites, Hu Sing Mi, and Li Yu Mi. The second speaker referred to the efforts made by infidels to bring geology and other sciences into conflict with scripture, and to their signal failure. In this connection he referred to a collection of skeletons and other relics, from various parts of the world, which he had seen in New York. Li Yu Mi dwelt with great power on the advantages of possessing the Bible as a source of mental and spiritual illumination.

On Sunday morning, October 19th, the opening services of the Conference were conducted by Hu Po Mi. The committee appointed on the case of Ngu Siu Mi reported that he had confessed to using opium pills at one time, as a substitute for opium, to the use of which he had formerly been addicted, but had expressed great sorrow for his fault and a determination to avoid it in future; that he had made satisfactory explanations concerning the money alluded to yesterday, and that it is recommended that his character be passed. The report was adopted.

A system of colportage, prepared by Rev. N. Sites and Rev. L. N. Wheeler, was, Saturday, October 19th, introduced. It provides for selling books generally, instead of giving them away; leaving it at the option of the preacher, however, to give them away when he deemed it advisablo. It also provides for depositories, colporteurs, etc., with regular reports of books donated and sold. The scheme was unanimously adopted. Closing services were conducted by Ngu Siu Mi. In the evening an anti-opium meeting was held, Hu Po Mi presiding. Speeches were made by S. L. Baldwin, Sia Sek Ong, and Ling Ching Ting. The statement was made that four-tenths of the adult males of Foochow are opium-smokers, and that they spend $432,000 annually for the drug—a sum that would carry on our printing operations at the rate of 7,000,000 pages a year for one hundred and eight years! The value of opium imported into China last year was was over $45,000,000.

Sunday, October 20th, was a memorable day. At the love-feast all the native preachers spoke. The morning sermon was preached by S. L. Baldwin, from 1 Cor. i, 26-29, after which the sacrament was administered to one hundred persons, all but three of whom were native Christians. In the evening Rev. N. Sites preached from 2 Cor. v, 18-20, a faithful sermon on the Christian ministry.

The statistics stand thus:

| | Present Year. | Increase. |
|---|---|---|
| Church members | 341 | 138 |
| Probationers | 113 | 43 |
| Total members | 454 | 181 |
| Adult baptisms | 151 | 79 |
| Infant baptisms | 85 | 28 |
| Missionary collections | $123 | $39 |
| Sunday schools | 11 | 1 |
| Scholars | 251 | 68 |

On Monday morning, October 21st, the written sermons of the helpers were reported upon and some of them read, after which a faithful and solemn address was made to the preachers by Rev. Dr. Maclay, and the appointments were read as follows:

Chin-sing Tong Circuit—Rev. S. L. Baldwin.
Chin-sing Tong, Li Yu Mi, Hu Hok Mi.
Kan-chia, Li Cha Mi.
Sieu-meh-ka, Ung Pek Sing.
Ku-cheng, Hu Sing Mi.
Yeng-ping, Hu Po Mi.
Tien-ang Tong Circuit—Rev. R. S. Maclay, D. D.
——Rev. H. H. Lowry.
Tien-ang Tong, to be supplied.
Sieu-liang Tiang, Ngu Siu Mi.
Ngu-kang and Kui-hung, Ting Neng Chiek.
Hok-chiang, Song Sa Chieng.
Hait'au and Hing-hoa, Fing Ching Ting.
——, Sia Ching Chung.
Lam-yit, Ling Ming Sang.
Hock-ing Tong Circuit—Rev. N. Sites.
Hok-ing Tong, Sia Sek Ong.
Lek-tu, Hu Yong Mi.
Yu-ka, Yek Ing Kwang.
Several places to be supplied.
King-Kiang Circuit—Rev. V. C. Hart.
——, one to be supplied.

Rev. L. N. Wheeler, superintendent of the Mission press, and a member of the Chin Sing Ting quarterly conference.

We are idebted for the foregoing to a letter in the New York Advocate, furnished by Rev. S. L. Baldwin.

Annual Meeting of the Orphans' Home Society.

Last Monday evening was the time for holding the annual meeting of this society for the election of officers. But unfortunately Wesley Chapel, the Church where the meeting was appointed, had not been secured for this purpose, and those who assembled found the Church occupied that evening with a very large concourse of Sunday school scholars from several churches.

The meeting was therefore called to order in the class room by Judge R. K. Howell, the Vice-President, and it was decided to adjourn one week.

Next Monday evening, the 20th instant, we hope to see Wesley Chapel filled.

A number of the orphans from the asylum will be present to declaim and sing. Speeches will be made by several gentlemen. The Treasurer will render his account of the finances of the Institution; a statement will be made as to the plantation purchased, the buildings contracted for, the plan of conducting the asylum in the future, &c. Altogether we expect it will prove an interesting occasion, and we hope that all the pastors will give notice of the meeting at their Sabbath services, that their people may be present. It is, of course, expected that every pastor will be there.

By the payment of one dollar any person can become an annual member, and vote at one election for officers. We hope that many if not all will come prepared to pay their dollar and become members. It is almost needless to add that money is desired to supply the present wants of the children in the asylum, and we trust that all who do not desire to become members will contribute something, if but a trifle, to this work of charity.

Sunday School Gathering at Wesley Chapel.

Last Monday evening the Sunday schools connected with First street Church and Marais street Church united with the school at Wesley Chapel in a grand Sabbath school festival.

Hours were spent in singing, and reciting declamations and dialogues. A sumptuous repast was also provided in their new school house adjoining; and none know better how to provide for tempting the appetite than the ladies connected with Wesley Chapel. And when those who came to attend the meetion of the Orphans' Home Society arrived they also were conducted in to the tables, which groaned beneath their weight of turkies, ducks, beef, fruits, pastry, &c.

To the Sunday school children this was a great day, and we trust that each coming year will still see them connected in some way with the Sunday school and enjoying similar festivities.

Tom Miller; or, After Many Days.

Such is the title of one of the best books for Sunday school libraries, or for a present to a young friend, that we have seen for some time. It will be read also with great interest by Sunday school teachers, and by mothers who have wayward sons. It is the story of a wayward youth, whose mother is a devoted Christian, and who labors and prays earnestly and patiently for her boy for years. She dies leaving him still unconverted. A few years passes; he becomes a young man; he is taken sick; his mother's prayers and counsels come thronging in upon his mind; his recovery from sin takes place with his recovery from disease. Though not an educated man, he becomes an exceedingly useful man, and thus her seed sown in faith yielded its harvest "after many days."

Published by J. C. Carrigues, 148 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

To Our Preachers.

DEAR BRETHREN — We mail to your name the number of copies of the ADVOCATE which you gave us at Conference. Take the papers to the church with you and show them to the people, and explain to them from the pulpit the importance of subscribing for the ADVOCATE. Tell them that it will contain sermons preached by our ministers; notices of the marriages and deaths which occur in our congregations, which are sent for publication; all important religious and political intelligence; the journals of our presiding elders which are sent to us; a weekly statement of the market; articles on the education, the wages and general improvement of the COLORED MAN, and editorials on whatever is of importance to the Church and State.

And then ask them to subscribe at once. Remember: The price is THREE DOLLARS a year in advance, or ONE DOLLAR a quarter in advance. Direct your letters to Rev. Dr. Newman, New Orleans, Louisiana.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

PRAYER.

BY M. ANNESSY.

Why do we make it quite a wonder when we receive an answer to prayer as if it was some great thing which we had no right to expect? One reason no doubt is because we are so insincere when we pray. We have by custom a long string of things to ask for, and little or no faith for any one of those things, but when we come to a strait place, and are shut up to God alone for help, we go to Him sincerely, feeling deeply that He alone can interpose in our behalf; then we are honest and mean what we say, and give our attention to this one matter, and begin to believe while we pray; then a promise comes to our aid, and we are encouraged to plead with earnestness, and in that little time alone before God we learn more about prayer than we ever knew before—that faith and prayer means to believe and receive while we ask. This lesson once learned by the soul which desires to improve by discipline, sees how wisely the trial of faith and patience is administered to us.

Without these close places we would pass on very carelessly and superficially in our religious life. When we have feeling in prayer and realize the divine presence we ask only as our faith is able to receive. We dare not and are not inclined to ramble all over the world for subjects, because by the Holy Spirit we are led to ask for what we can believe, and then, in this simple consciousness, we expect and look for that for which we have pleaded.

A person came to a duty in the middle of the day which had been remembered at the early devotion, and while in the duty the spirit said you asked for this help, and a sweet little spring of faith arose in the heart, confidently believing that the help was present—and so it was. Success attended that duty. Remember your requests and expect the answers to them.

The Tribune Almanac.

We have just received the Tribune Almanac for 1868, and find it, like those of previous years, full of interesting and useful matter. Besides the usual astronomical department it contains information in regard to all the branches of government; the census of the various States; comparative numbers of whites and blacks in the several States; the late acts of congress; public resolutions, proclamations, progress of impartial suffrage; election returns; our new purchases of Alaska and St. Thomas. Also information in regard to foreign countries, &c.

Price twenty cents. Address, THE TRIBUNE, New York.

Appleton's Railway Guide.

We have received Appleton's Railway Guide for 1868, and find it a most complete thing in its way.

They certainly deserve the thanks of the traveling public for their painstaking in preparing so accurate a work. All the railways in the United States and the Canadas are to be found, with the various connections with each other, the distance between stations, the lenhth of each road, the present time-table of each road, &c.

Those who travel, and others who do not, but who desire information in regard to the railways of the country, will find here the information they desire.

Rebecca Hays (colored) formerly owned by Samuel Dorsey, of Baltimore, Maryland, wants to have intelligence of the fate of her children named as follows: Gerge Washington Harris, Frank Richardson Harris, Cornelius Harris, John Harris, and Mary Jane Harris, all of whom formerly belonged to Dr. Ezekel John Dorsey, of Hunting Ridge, four miles from Baltimore. Any person knowing any of these persons will confer a great favor on their aged mother by imforming the minister of this (First Street Methodist) church who will inform her by a letter addressed to Rebecca Hayes, care of Mrs. H. D. Sinnott, New Orleans, La.

Wonders in Heaven.

John Newton said: "When I get to heaven I shall see three wonders there. The first wonder will be to see so many people there whom I did not expect to see; the second wonder will be to miss many people whom I did expect to see; and the third, the greatest wonder of all, will be to find myself there."

Information Wanted

by Missouri Bolden of her mother Gatsey Rouse, who lived in Noah County, North Carolina; has not seen her for twenty-one years. Also by John Bolden about his father Sam, mother Judy, his brothers Sam, Albert Jacob, Simon, Henry, and sisters Fanny and Sarah Jane, all belonged to Edward Valentine, of Stanton, Augusta county, Va. Address, John Bolden, care of David Berwick, Centerville, Louisiana.

Information Wanted

by John Henderson of his Uncle and Aunt, Jesse Montgomery and Martha Montgomery, who belenged to one Mr. Wheeler, near Bud's Ferry, Md. Also of his brother John Henderson, and his mother Martha. His mother was sold in Alabama. Address John Henderson, care of Allen & Hitman, Houston, Texas.

Cold Weather

A letter received from the editor of the ADVOCATE who is making a flying visit to a few of the principle cities of Illinois, to lecture before the Young Men's Christian Associations, states that the thermometer, on the day of writing, was five degrees below zero.

A Story About Forgiveness.

Several years ago there lived in a town in central Georgia, two men bearing the names of J. and F. These men, so far as known, were regarded as good brethren. They were on terms of peace in the church.

In process of time, however, J. went to his Brother F. to buy some wheat. The wheat was purchased by the bushel, perhaps at one dollar; part of the money was paid for it. After this J. sent for the wheat, but strange to say F. refused to let him have it. F. it is said, found after bargaining with J. that wheat had advanced in price, and he wanted the advance. Of course J. insisted on his right to what he had contracted and partly paid for. F. refused positively to fulfil his agreement. This was the groundwork, as might naturally have been expected, of a terrible difficulty between the two brethren. The one, feeling injured, gave public expression to his indignation; while the other, conscious perhaps of having done wrong, and yet possessed of an obstinate nature, angrily defended himself as best he might. Things went on this way for months, perhaps; at least till the matter was talked of all over the country. Having borne with the brethren as long as possible, the church to which they belonged was on the eve of taking up the matter, when Brother J., the injured party, began to come to himself. He told F. at their last interview that he would sue him. Now he began to think the matter all over. "Was it right," he asked himself, "to injure the cause of Christ, to disgrace the church, to cast away Brother F., who up to that time had always seemed a good man—to do all this for the pitiful amount of a few dollars or a few bushels of wheat?"

J. went at night into a solitude to place the whole subject before the Lord. While there the Lord helped him. He found the spirit of forgiveness there at the throne of grace. He brought it home with him. In the morning early, J. mounted his horse and started to see F. F. saw him coming, and tried to get out of sight, by leaving his house by a back way. J. saw this and called him. F. seemed not to hear; but as the call was still repeated, F. came at last to see what was wanted—with not a very good grace however. The two brethren face to face once more, J. began his speech: "Brother F. I have come to tell you that we must settle our difficulty. We are injuring the cause of Christ; we are destroying our peace as men and as Christians; we are about to involve the church in a great trouble. We must, I repeat it, make an end of this matter. I told you Brother F., at our last interview, that I would sue you. I have done so. (F. looked sullen.) Last night I carried your case before the Lord, and got a verdict against you. You have done wrong, my brother. but listen to me, I forgive you the wrong; from my heart I forgive you. Keep the wheat, Brother F., and the money too; the whole of it is not worth making a fuss about. I am sorry that I ever allowed myself to be troubled about it at all. If I have done you any wrong, my brother, I am sorry for it, and I ask your forgiveness." During this speech, F. had wonderfully softened down in his feelings. Before it ended, his hands were over his eyes, and the great tears were chasing each other down his cheeks. When able to speak he said, "Brother J., I have done wrong. I want you to forgive me. I will send you the wheat." "No," said J., "I don't want the wheat. I forgive you all the debt." "Yes," said F., but you must have it. I will send it to you this very evening."

Need we say, that Brother J. and F. parted as brethren should do? Need we say that they had no church trials—that brotherly love was restored between them?

MARRIED.

SUTTON—MARSHALL—At Franklin, Louisiana, December 28, by Rev. R. K Diossy, ANTHONY SUTTON and GRACIE MARSHALL.

JONES—HARDING—On the 29th, JOHNSON JONES and ALMIRA HARDING.

RANDOLPH—CUMMINGS—On January 2, ROBERT RANDOLPH and FRANCES CUMMINGS.

All of St. Mary's parish.

STANTON—ANN—At New Orleans, January 9, 1868, by Rev. Henry Green, WASHINGTON STANTON to MALINDA ANN. All of New Orleans.

Ministers' Widows.

A rare feature in Scotch free church government is a tax on ministers; and, by way of making American theologians contented, it may be well to speak of it. Every pastor, upon his ordination, is compelled to pay fifty dollars, and when he gets married, a farther supplement of fifty dollars is demanded. This goes to the widows' fund. After and independent of this, he must yearly contribute thirty-eight dollars to the same fund. The married and unmarried contribute alike, so that a life of celibacy would not exonerate from the burthen. Upon the death of any minister, his widow is entitled to so much a year, in addition to an allowance for each child during minority. When a deceased minister leaves a large family, as is most frequently the case in this country, the income is quite a handsome one. It surely tends to make ministers less concerned about the future of a helpless and dependent family, and gives him that ease of mind and serenity necessary to the full accomplishment of the Master's work.

My Whole Class for Jesus.

Not one, nor two, but all; not next year, nor next week, but now, shall be my cry. What a noble battle-cry, immediate conversion of our scholars!

Can you echo this cry, dear fellow-teacher? Are you waiting, longing, expecting to see these dear ones safe in Jesus's fold?

What hindered? He is waiting, has waited long to welcome your scholars to his loving embrace. Is your pride, your coldness, your unbelief the stumbling-block?

Where is the bundle of precious sheaves which you might lay at the dear Master's feet, if you could only believe his promises?

"All things are possible," to whom? "To him that believeth." In your weakness, your insufficiency, go to Jesus for strength. Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. He is your wisdom, power, all that you need. Go, expecting large blessings. you shall receive them, even the whole of your dear class for Jesus; for the mouth of the Lord has spoken it.—S. S. Times.

The Arctic Sunshine.

Dr. Hayes, the Arctic explorer, graphically describes the return of the sun after an absence of long, cold months. For several days the golden flush deepens, until the burning forehead of the "king of day" rises above the horizon, to circle round it for half the year. The inexpressible delight with which the morning glory is hailed, he says, almost makes one cease to wonder that the sun has devout worshipers.

We thought of the soul's experience in the transition from spiritual "darkness to light." The change is often marked by similar increase of illumination and joy. The chill and dismal air brightens and grows warm in the approaching radiance of the "sun of righteousness." The former death-like desolation is discerned and felt in the deepening dawn, until the eternal splendor clearly marks the contrast between the "old things which have passed away," and those that are new.

Consolations of Divine Truth.

As the clustering constellations shine with intensest lustre in the midnight sky, so the words of Jesus come out like ministering angels in the deep night of earthly sorrow. We may see no beauty in them when the world is sunny and bright; but He has laid them up in store for us for the dark and cloudy day.—Works of Jesus.

Temptations.

When the founder has cast his bell, he does not presently fix it in the steeple, but tries it with his hammer, and beats it on every side, to see if there is any flaw in it. Christ does not, presently after He has converted a man, convey him to heaven; but suffers him first to be beaten upon by many temptations, and then exalts him to his crown.—Arrowsmith.

PROFESSIONS AND TRADES OF OUR REPRESENTATIVES.—The Globe publishes a list of representatives, with their postoffice address, occupation, and residence. The following occupations are represented to the members set down: Lawyers, 118; manufacturers, 14; farmers, 15; merchants, 10; editors, 5—Baldwin, Blaine, Brooks, Getz, Glossbrenner; printers, 2—Ela and Van Horn; coal operator, 1; general business, 3; bankers, 4; lumbermen, 2; physicians, 1; railroad managers, 1; horticulturist, 1; real estate agent, 1; hotel keeper, 1; clergyman, 1—Pile; civil engineer, 1; and just one gentleman—Adams, of Kentucky.

We may well conclude that the United States can no longer hold a monopoly in the cotton trade. There is to be an increase of fourfold in India, in Brazil about threefold, and about the same in Egypt. Cotton, therefore, is neither with us nor elsewhere king.

A young lady, Miss Mary Grant, sitting by the window of a schoolroom in Mount Vernon, Ohio, a few days ago, was looking at a game of base ball, when the ball, by an unlucky stroke, was sent through the glass, driving a splinter of glass into her eye. The teacher drew the glass out but the eye was sightless.

Count Bismarck's yearly income, since he received the gift from the Prussian parliament, is between forty and fifty thousand dollars. He lives very economically, and, according to a correspondent, said some weeks ago to Rothschild that he had no doubt that he would by-and-by become a millionaire. Until 1865 he was heavily in debt.

In the case of Morris Gratz against the proprietors of the Cincinnati Commercial, claiming twenty thousand dollars on an alleged libel, the verdict of the jury was five dollars for plaintiff.

Jacob Barker, of New Orleans, who has been a millionaire, is now in the bankrupt court. Although he is eighty years of age, he will again begin business as soon as he is free.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

A Western paper says only fifteen of the old state banks of Wisconsin remain in existence, four having gone out this last year; and these fifteen banks, with an aggregate capital of $500,000, have an aggregate circulation of $906,332.

The London Athenæum says of Mr. Beecher's novel: "The present work shows that a man may be a fluent preacher, and a brother of a clever woman, and yet break down when he attempts to write a novel."

HUMOROUS.

What do we often drop, yet never stop to pick up? A hint.

In a cemetery in western Massachusetts is a tombstone with this inscription:

SWEET BABES.

They came into this world to see
A sample of our miseree;
They turned their little heads aside
Disgusted at the sight and died.

Thomas Hood used to say: "I often wish I was two or three children (but I suppose I can't be) and wouldn't I pull off my three pairs of shoes and socks, and go paddling in the sea up to my six knees!"

If you your lips
Would keep from slips,
Five things observe with care.
Of whom you speak,
To whom you speak,
And how, and when, and where.

Lady Margaret Herbert asked somebody for a pretty pattern for a night-cap. "Well," said the person, what signifies the pattern of a nightcap?" "O! child" said she, you know in case of fire!"

"Have you ground all the tools right, as I told you this morning when I went away?" said a carpenter to a rather green lad whom he had taken for an apprentice. "All but the hand-saw, sir," replied the lad, promptly; "I couldn't get all the gaps out of that."

"Do you like fish-balls, Mr. Wiggins?" Mr. Wiggins, hesitatingly—"I really don't know, miss; I never recollect of attending any."

"None but the brave deserve the fair." No, and none but the brave can live with some of them.

Reader, did you ever enjoy the ecstatic bliss of courting? You didn't? then you had better get a little gal-an-try.

A person was boasting that he was sprung from a high family. "Yes," said a bystander, "I have seen some of the same family so high that their feet could not touch the ground."

A sharp talking lady was reproved by her husband, who requested her to keep her tongue in her mouth. "My dear," responded the wife, "It is against the law to carry concealed weapons."

A Methodist brother recently had occasion to preach a discourse against the doctrine of immersion, but could not find a text until, with great shrewdness and good sense, he hit upon this: "Beware of divers!—and strange doctrines."

WOULDN'T TAKE TWENTY DOLLARS. Some waggish students of Yale college, a few years since, were regaling themselves one evening at the "Tontine," when an old farmer from the country entered the room and inquired if he could oblain lodgings there. The young chaps immediately answered in the affirmative, inviting him to take a glass of punch. The old fellow, who was a shrewd Yankee, saw at once that he was to be made the butt of their jests, but quietly taking off his hat and telling a worthless little dog he had with him to lie under the chair, he took a glass of the proffered beverage. The students anxiously inquired after the health of the old man's wife and children, and the farmer, with affected simplicity, gave the whole pedigree, with numerous anecdotes about his farm, stock, etc.

"Do you belong to the church?" asked one of the wags.

"Yes, the Lord be praised, and so did my father before me."

"Well, I suppose you will not tell a lie?" replied the student.

"Not for the world," added the farmer.

"Now, what will you take for that dog?" pointing to the farmer's cur, who was not worth his weight in Jersey mud.

"I would not take twenty dollars for that dog."

"Twenty dollars? why, he is not worth twenty cents."

"Well, I assure you I would not take twenty dollars for him."

"Come, my friend," said the student, who with his companions was bent on having some capital fun with the old man. "Now, you say you won't tell a lie for the world, let me see if you won't do it for twenty dollars. I'll give you twenty dollars for your dog."

"I'll not take it," replied the farmer.

"You will not? Here, let us see if this won't tempt you to tell a lie," added the student producing a small bag of half dollars, from which he counted small piles on the table, where the farmer sat with his hat in his hand, apparently unconcerned. "There," added the student, "there are twenty dollars, all in silver. I will give you that for your dog."

The old farmer raised his hat to the edge of the table, and then quick as thought scraped all the money into it except one half dollar, at the same time exclaiming, "I won't take twenty dollars. Nineteen and a half is as much as the dog is worth. He is your property."

A tremendous laugh from his fellow students showed the would-be wag that he was completely "done up," and that he need no look for help in that quarter; so he good-naturedly acknowledged himself beat, insisted on the old farmer taking another glass, and they parted in great glee, the student retaining the dog, which he keeps to this day, as a lesson to him never to attempt to play tricks on men older than himself, and especially to be careful how he tries to wheedle a Yankee farmer.

In ancient times men and women were burned after death. In modern times railroad directors burn before death.—New York Leader.

Colonel A. B. Norton, superintendent of Indian affairs, had been quite unwell for some time past, and was compelled to remain indoors.

The fondness for horses attributed to General Grant was a characteristic of George Washington, of whom some "horse talk" has been recorded.

The enjoyment of Christmas by the Canadians was somewhat alloyed on account of fearful reports of a Fenian uprising on that day, and a probable blowing up of the English cathedral at Montreal. Men were sent to guard the waterworks, and the troops were kept in readiness, but, as usual, nothing of the sort occurred.

For the Children.

JIG-A-MA-RIG.

1. Jig-a-ma-rig was a parrot sly,
And lived with Kitty McGee;
And Kitty McGee was a queer old hag,
As you shall shortly see.

2. Kitty was rich, and stingy, too,
And never a beggar came,
But she turned him away with a "Get you gone!"
And she always said the same.

3. And Jig-a-ma-rig, he said it too,
And said it so very plain,
That visitors thought it was Kitty's voice,
And never came back again.

4. Alas, poor Kitty! she broke her leg,
In her cellar dark and deep;
And faintly she cried for human aid,
And many a day did weep.

5. But when a soul came near her door,
Whose hand had set her bones,
The "Get you gone" of Jig-a-ma-rig
Was heard above her groans.

6. And when her body was wearied out,
And death itself occurred,
The "Get you gone" of Jig-a-ma-rig
Was all the prayer she heard.

Mrs. C. H. Guildersleeve.

The Truthful Witness.

A little girl, nine years of age, was offered as a witness against a prisoner, who was on a trial for a felony committed in her father's house.

"Now, Emily," said the counsel for the prisoner, upon her being offered as a witness, "I desire to know if you understand the nature of an oath."

"I don't know what you mean," was the simple answer.

"There, your honor, said the counsel, addressing the court, "is there anything further necessary to demonstrate the validity of my objection? This witness should be rejected; she does not comprehend the nature of an oath."

"Let me see," said the judge. "Come here, my daughter."

Assured by the kind tone and manner of the judge, the child stepped toward him and looked up confidingly in his face, with a calm, clear eye, and in a manner so artless and frank, that it went straight to the heart.

"Did you ever take an oath?" inquired the judge.

The little girl stepped back with a look of horror, and the red blood mantled in a blush all over her face and neck, as she answered—

"No, sir."

She thought he meant to inquire if she had ever blasphemed.

"I do not mean that," said the judge, who saw his mistake, "I mean were you ever a witness before?"

"No, sir. I was never in court before," was the answer.

He handed her the Bible open.

"Do you know that book, my daughter?"

She looked at it and answered. "Yes, sir, it is the Bible."

"Do you ever read it?" he asked.

"Yes, sir, every evening."

"Can you tell me what the Bible is?" inquired the judge.

"It is the word of the great God," she answered.

"Well, place your hand upon this Bible and listen to what I say," and he repeated slowly and solemnly the oath usually administered to witnesses.

"Now," said the judge, "you have sworn as a witness; will you tell me what will befall you if you do not tell the truth?"

"I shall be shut up in the state prison," answered the child.

"Any thing else?" asked the Judge.

"I shall never go to heaven," she replied.

"How do you know this?" asked the Judge, again.

The child took the Bible, and turning rapidly to the chapter containing the commandments, pointed to the injunction, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." "I learned that before I could read."

"Has any one talked with you about your being witness in court here against this man?" inquired the Judge.

"Yes, sir," she replied; "my mother heard they wanted me to be a witness, and last night she called me to her room, and asked me to tell her the Ten Commandments, and then we kneeled down together, and she prayed that I might understand how wicked it was to bear false witness against my neighbor, and that God would help me, a little child, to tell the truth as it was before him. And when I came up here with father, she kissed me, and told me to remember the ninth commandment, and that God would hear every word that I said."

"Do you believe this?" asked the Judge, while a tear glistened in his eye, and his lip quivered with emotion.

"Yes, sir," said the child, with a voice that showed her conviction of its truth was perfect.

"God bless you, my child," said the judge, "you have a good mother. This witness is competent," he continued. "Were I on trial for my life, and innocent of the charge against me, I would pray God for such a witness as this. Let her be examined,"

She told her story with the simplicity of a child, as she was, but there was a directness about it which carried conviction of its truth to every heart. She was rigidly cross-examined. The counsel plied her with infinite and ingenious questionings, but she varied from her first statements in nothing. The truth, so spoken by that little child, was sublime. Falsehood and perjury had preceded her testimony. The prisoner had intrenched himself with lies, till he deemed himself impregnable. But before her testimony falsehood was scattered like chaff. The child, for whom a mother had prayed for strength to be given her to speak the truth as it was before God, broke the cunning devices of matured villainy to pieces like a potter's vessel. The strength that her mother prayed for was given her, and the sublime simplicity—terrible, I mean, to the prisoner and his associates—with which she spoke was like revelation from God himself.

It may be of interest to our lady readers to know that Mrs. Governor Fenton, of New York, on her New Year's day reception, wore an elegant gray silk dress, each breadth heavily embroidered in a pattern of flowers, vines, and leaves in gray and black, as she is still in half-mourning. The skirt is cut fully gored with a high corsage. The silk for this dress cost one thousand francs in gold in Paris, and the dress making bill was something like $200.

BY TELEGRAPH.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, January 10.—Proceedings in the supreme court are attracting intense interest. The impression that the bench will decide adversely to the constitutionality of the reconstruction acts gain ground. To-day Judge Black moved that a day be appointed for hearing ex parte Mr. McCardle, but Mr, Stanbery objected to arguing the case on behalf of the government, because he had written an opinion sustaining the other side. The matter was deferred upon Mr. Stanbery's suggestion until government could arrange to appear by some other counsel.

This case is that of Col. McCardle, the editor, of Vicksburg, who was imprisoned by General Ord.

A decision in this case is looked for at an early day, and the impression is very general that a writ will be granted which would virtually set aside the law.

The second case involves the constitutionality of the law by which congress authorized the sale of captured property, and directed proceeds to be paid into the treasury; at the same time providing that claimants might at the end of two years bring suit for recovery through the court of claims.

This case comes up through the action of owners of a lot of cotton who brought suit directly against the officer making the seizure. This latter person pleads the law as his defense.

What is known as the Virginia case affects the mode in which congress can proceed in ratifying contracts between states. It comes into court on motion of the parties representing Virginia and claiming the cession of the counties of Berkeley and Jefferson to West Virginia is not valid, although ratified by congress. The state of West Virginia provided for receiving these counties upon the consent of Virginia being given. This consent was obtained and congress was asked to ratify the contract. Before the action of this body was consummated Virginia withdrew her consent, but congress paid no attention to this action, and proceeded to ratify the agreement. Virginia claims that such action was unconstitutional, and comes into the supreme court to test it.

An official letter from General Howard states that the bureau disbursements from January 1, 1865, to January 1, 1868, were $5,959,000, and the funds on hand $5,736,000.

Charles G. Green, editor of the Boston Post, has been nominated assistant United States treasurer at Boston.

General Pope is here.

The following is the text of the whisky bill passed by congress and sent to the president:

Be it enacted, etc., That from and after this date no distilled spirits shall be withdrawn or removed from any warehouse for the purposes of transportation, rectification, change of package, exportation, or for any other purpose whatever, until the full tax on such spirits shall have been paid; and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions hereof are hereby repealed.

The following states have adopted the constitutional amendment known as the fourteenth article: New Hampshire, Connecticut, Tennessee, New Jersey, Oregon, Vermont, New York, Ohio, Illinois, West Virginia, Kansas, Nevada, Missouri, Indiana, Minnesota, Rhode Island, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Massachusetts.

The reconstruction committee had three meetings this week. They are tolerable sure to report a new bill at an early day, in accordance with directions of the resolutions introduced on Monday by Messrs. Upson and Boutwell.

The judgment of the committee is fully settled that the work of reconstruction must be put more directly under control of General Grant. This is regarded as certain. They are also considering the proposition of Mr. Upson to allow the removal of the present state officers and the appointment of their successors by the reconstruction conventions. It is not yet certain that they will adopt this scheme, though it is strongly favored by some members.

It is confidently stated that the Radicals have agreed upon a bill requiring two-thirds of the supreme court to concur before pronouncing any act of congress unconstitutional. In this connection it is stated with equal confidence that the pending questions involving the constitutionality of the reconstruction acts will be postponed until congress takes the proposed action.

WASHINGTON, December 11.—The agricultural department promulgates the following: The returns relative to cotton indicate fully twenty per cent aggregate increase over last year. The actual crop of 1866, as sold and shipped, making due allowances for receipts of the previous crop and the amount not sent forward on the 1st of September, 1867, was very nearly 1,900,000 bales, while the estimate of this department in October, 1866, was 1,835,000 bales. The total estimate, made in view of all the department data as well as outside information, is placed at 2,340,000 bales.

The house committee on reconstruction this afternoon agreed upon a bill to be reported on Monday, declaring that there are no civil governments in the lately rebellious states, and that the provisional governments shall not be recognized as valid or legal either by the executive or the judicial authority of the United States. And in order to facilitate the speedy enforcement of the several reconstruction laws, the general of the army is authorized to remove all officers now employed and appoint others for the performance of all acts required by those statutes, to the end that the people of the said several states may speedily organize civil governments, republican in form, and be restored to their political power in the Union. The general of the army is also empowered to remove all civil officers and appoint others in their place. So much of the reconstruction acts as authorizes the president to detail the military commanders or remove others is repealed.

The bill declares it unlawful for the president to order any part of the army or navy to assist by force of arms the military of those provisional governments to oppose or obstruct the authority of the United States.

The bill further declares that the interference by any person with the intent to prevent by force the execution of the orders of the general of the army shall be held to be a high misdemeanor, and that the party guilty thereof, on conviction, shall be fined not exceeding five thousand dollars and imprisoned not exceeding two years.

The bill repeals all parts of the reconstruction acts inconsistent with the above provisions.

Mr. Stevens voted against the bill in the committee, asserting that it was intended to elect Grant.

Pope had a prolonged interview with Grant.

This evening's Express has the following: The house judiciary committee will on Monday report the senate bill defining a quorum of the supreme court with an amendment providing that it should be necessary that two thirds of the court shall agree before any law of congress is pronounced unconstitutional.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $390,000; for the week, $7,744,000; for the year, $107,500,000.

The executive session of the senate was devoted to Stanton. Nothing has transpired as to the result of their proceedings.

WASHINGTON, January 13.—In the supreme court the following cases have been decided:

Clements vs. Nicholson; Moore vs. Clements. From western Texas. Decisions reversed, with directions to enter decree accordingly.

League vs. Atcheson. From the eastern district of Texas. Reversed, with costs.

United States vs. Sea Witch and cargo. From Louisiana. Affirmed.

The impression gains that the senate will not sustain the house in its aggressive legislation regarding the supreme court.

Proceedings in the house to-day render the passage of the new reconstruction bill on Wednesday almost certain.

This evening's Express says: "We have reason to believe that General Meade has been assured that General Grant will stand by him in any action that he may find it necessary to take regarding the governor and treasurer of Georgia."

S. S. Cox has been nominated for the Austrian mission.

James Lenrick, second teller of Moses Taylor's New York city bank, is the alleged defaulter that was alluded to in the noon dispatches to-day. The bank is a strong concern, having a surplus of nearly a million of dollars. Lenrick had a furlough to visit the country, but went to Europe.

After the vote on the bill to reorganize the rules of the supreme court in the house to-day, Garfield moved to suspend the rules thut he might introduce a bill to reduce and improve the military establishment by the discharge of one major general, the one last commissioned in the grade before the 1st of January, 1868, Hancock. After decided intimations on the part of Brooks, Randall, and others that they would resort to fillibustering to prevent the passage of the bill, Garfield withdrew his motion, giving notice that he would renew it next Monday.

The senate to-day, after an executive session of five hours, passed the resolution reported from the committee on military affairs, declaring the reasons of the president for removing Stanton from the war department insufficient, and that they do not, therefore, concur in the act of suspension. The vote on the passage of the resolution was yeas 35, nays 6. The senate then ordered a certified copy of the resolution to be sent to the president, Grant, and Stanton.

Senator Thayer will introduce a bill tomorrow to reduce the number of major generals to four and of brigadier generals to nine, the object of which is to legislate out of commission Major General Hancock and Brigadier General Rousseau.

WASHINGTON, January 13.—Immense meetings were held in the North on Saturday regarding the safety of naturalized citizens abroad. The question is assuming startling importance.

The radical county convention at Indianapolis resolved to instruct delegates to the state convention to incorporate a plank for payment of bonds with legal money, unless otherwise indorsed.

The excitement regarding the additional reconstruction legislation is intense.

WASHINGTON, January 15.—The Connecticut Republican convention nominated Marshall for governor.

There was a two hours extra cabinet session to-day.

Grant and Sherman had a long interview with the president.

It is officially denied that Stanton drew salary during suspension.

The president has taken no steps in the Stanton matter. No business done at the war department during the past two days.

Stanton issued an order this afternoon informing the employes of the war office that he had again taken possession of the portfolio of the office. Stanton drew nearly $3000 from the pay officer, being his salary during suspension.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $273,000.

General Pope has been assigned to the department of the lakes, with headquarters at Detroit.

It is understood that the president in no way recognizes Secretary Stanton; and it is confidently stated that charges of insubordination hang over General Grant. Nothing definite is known, but the feeling is feverish.

From Europe.

PARIS, January 11.—On New Year's day King William of Prussia sent the emperor a cordial autograph letter, which was answered in the same conciliatory spirit. A much better feeling has prevailed since publicity has been given to this intelligence, and no where was it better received than on bourse.

Rentes firmer and higher.

Most of the actions which have recently been taken against journals of this city by the authorities, for alleged violations of privileges, have been abandoned.

QUEENSTOWN, January 13.—The steamer Chicago, from New York, is ashore near this place.

LONDON, January 13.—Accounts by the Rio Janerio mail show that the condition and prospects of the Paraguayans are unfavorable. Lopez commands at Humaita, and is enthusiastically supported, all classes of the population working energetically to supply him with men and provisions. When the steamer sailed the allies were pushing men to the front.

PARIS, January 13.—Baron de Budderg, Russian minister to France, has been recalled to fill an important home position.

HAVANA, January 13.—Lersundi is taking energetic measures to suppress assaults on persons and property.

Sickness among the negroes is diminishing.

The customhouse officials refuse time notes unless guaranteed.

Exchange on Paris 1 per cent discount. Currency, New York, improving.

LONDON, January 14.—The telegraphers a Belfast recently arrested for Fenian complications have been discharged.

Austria is preparing for a review of her army.

The Journal de St. Petersburg denies that England has remonstrated against Russian policy in Roumania.

Italy sends a minister to Mexico.

VIENNA, January 14.—The Debats newspaper says the treaty replacing the September convention is already concluded between France and Italy.

FLORENCE, January 15.—The Italian Catholics who refused hitherto to vote will take part in the next parliament elections.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

MOBILE, January 10.—The steamboat Lilly, loaded with cotton, from Tuscaloosa for Mobile, sunk on the Bigbee river. Boat a total loss; cargo will be saved, but in a damaged condition.

BURLINGTON, Vermont, January 10.—Bishop Hopkins's funeral will take place on Wednesday, the 15th instant. A large attendance of bishops and the clergy from the United States and Canada is expected.

KNOXVILLE, January 10.—Judge Trigg, of the United States district court for Tennessee, has pronounced the law enfranchising the blacks null and void.

HARRISBURG, January 10.—House met, but adjourned without a ballot, the bolters voting with the Republicans to carry adjournments.

HAVANA, January 10.—Exchange on New York currency 25½@27; on London 11¼@12½ premium. Sugar, heavy arrivals of new crop; sales light.

HARRISBURG, January 11.—The bolters have receded, and the house organized on the Republican basis.

BUFFALO, January 13.—The unrecognized bodies of the victims of the late railroad disaster at Angola, seventeen in all, were buried at Forrest Town cemetery this morning in separate graves. A large lot was purchased by the Buffalo and Erie railroad for this purpose, and they intend to erect a monument upon it.

VICKSBURG, January 13.—The steamer Homeyer burned at Foulks' Landing, Ouachita river, twenty miles below Monroe, at 9 A. M. Sunday. The boat and cargo of 900 bales of cotton are a total loss.

The boat was crowded with passengers, all of whom with the crew were saved. She took fire from a coal oil lamp in the engine room while lying at the landing.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, January 14.—Thurman has been elected to the United States senate.

MEMPHIS, January 14.—The Commercial bank of this city has suspended.

ST. LOUIS, January 15.—Governor Fletcher in the name of the state took possession of the Iron Mountain railroad to-day.

THE FIRE IN INDIANOLA.

A Business Centre in Ruins—Particulars of Losses—Destruction of the Ohler House, Post-office, and Customhouse.

The Indianola Bulletin of January 9, contains a full account of the fire in that city, on the morning of the 3d instant.

The fire originated in the building on Main street, belonging to Mr. Dudley Schultz, and occupied by Shipley & Co., commission merchants. The wind blowing strongly from the south at the time, it immediately communicated to the adjoining building on the corner, of Messrs. Dove & Shultz, grocers, taking in its fiery course the warehouse of Messrs. Dale & Ashworth, the flames, which no human exertions could subdue, then extending to the store and dwelling of John H. Dale, destroying in its course the large building of W. P. Milby, in which was the auction room of Murdock & Milby, the district clerk's office, and the drug store of David Lewis.

The large and beautiful building, known as the Ohler house, then took fire, and the entire building, with nearly all of its contents, was totally destroyed. The flames then spread to the customhouse, on the opposite side of the street, which was consumed. The adjoining house was pulled down, which, with the great exertions of the citizens, prevented the flames from spreading further. The postoffice, which was also in Lewis's building, was destroyed, but we learn that the books and mail matter were all saved. The number of buildings destroyed is fourteen, in the very heart of our city, and most all of them devoted to commercial purposes.

The following is a statement of the losses incurred by the fire as near as can be estimated at the present time:

Dudley Schultz, three frame buildings, $4000; Dove & Schultz, goods, etc., $3000; Shipley & Co., goods, $2000; J. H. Dale, three buildings, $7000; Dale & Ashworth, and J. H. Dale, goods, $2000; C. S. Walker, $800; Dr. J. M. Reuss, building, $3000; Dr. David Lewis, drug store, $3000; W. P. Milby, buildings, $6000; Ohler & Fee, hotel and furniture, $40.000; G. Granger, customhouse building, $2000; Mrs. S. A. Benton, printing materials, $1200; Mrs. M. Vollers, damage to goods, $3000; Mrs. M. Harrison, $800; United States government, goods in bond, $7000; Mrs. C. Taylor, clothing and valuables, $500.

This terrible fire has almost ruined some of our citizens who had their all invested in much of the property destroyed.

There was but little insurance on the property lost, which makes the loss fall heavily on the parties interested.

The Times praises the soldiers of the garrison and the sailors of the shipping in port for their assistance in fighting the fire, and very justly censures the city government for its continual failure to organize a fire department, and provide it with the needed apparatus. The Times says:

Mr. Safford and Mr. Wilson, belonging to the house of Shipley & Co., general merchants, who were burnt out, were arrested on suspicion of having set the premises on fire. After a long examination Wilson was discharged from custody, and Mr. Safford retained under durance until he can find bail for his appearance at the district court, which is fixed at $10.000. Mr. Safford was the clerk and Mr. Wilson one of the partners. From the evidence elicited the fire broke out in one of the warehouses occupied by the firm alluded to, where business has been conducted in rather a fast way, according to the testimony. * * *

Subsequently Mr. Safford was released on a writ of habeas corpus, the testimony not being sufficient to detain him.

---

The Working Women of New York.

The New York Post has discovered that at least fifty thousand women earn their living in that city alone under conditions which, to say the least, are far from satisfactory. Of thirteen thousand one hundred and seventy-seven who applied for employment last year at the Working Women's Protective Union, it seems over one-half were incapable of doing only the commonest work, often mere manual labor. The editor says:

This state of things is made worse by a general and strong prejudice against going into service, so that servants of any kind are hard to get, and the competition among the ordinary working classes is greatly increased. Girls who can easily earn at service $12 a month, with good board, prefer to work for $6 a week, and often less, supporting themselves, living in poor accommodations, and incurring the risk of getting no work.

This prejudice, and the general ignorance and want of education of working women, are the main causes of their present grievances.

* * * * * * *

Nothing will better express the true condition of working women than a statement of what it costs them to live. Their average wages are from $7 to $9 per week. Out of this they have to pay from $3 to $6 for board, the former if in a room with some other person, the latter if alone. This does not include washing, which is always extra. An ordinary woman will need at least four or five dresses a year, costing say $6 each, though this may be considered a low estimate. Shoes can be bought as low as from $2 to $2 50, but will not last over a month, and a woman having a fair amount of walking to do will expend at least $25 in shoe leather in the course of a year. When to these items is added the cost of bonnets, underclothing, shawls, etc., it will not leave any margin for saving. With severe economy, perhaps, a little might be laid by, but women generally reason that they work hard, and the only enjoyment they can have is in dress, and they would rather spend their money on this than stint themselves so as to save. It must not be supposed, however, that they are generally extravagant. The public may be led to think so from seeing working women on their way to their homes, but the number of these who are well dressed is not large, and even those are girls whose position requires them to appear well, or who have no board to pay, and therefore more money to spend. Many working women also are content to wear the poorest underclothes, if they can appear outwardly respectable. Such being the cost of living, it is apparent that in case of sickness, or in bad times, when work can not be obtained, women, as men also, must run in debt and get behindhand, and when this happens it is almost impossible to recover themselves.

---

A Youthful Traveler.

A few days ago one of those small coasting schooners that ply toward the eastward, and make landings in the old basin, while near one of the Chandleur islands, picked up a lad who gave his name as John H ghes, and told so many and singular stories of himself that even the sailors were quite taken with him. Johnny was brought here, and while in the old basin was led by sharpers to commit a small robbery, for which he was arrested. The little fellow, as bright as a sunflower, and as knowing as any one of the rising generation, gave his version of the transaction in a plausible way; in fact so plain and convincing that even the prosecutor incontinently melted, and at once declared his belief that the boy was not a sinner. John says his parents and home are in Philadelphia, and that his visions of a delightful sailor's life led him to run away from home, since which time he has seen the rough side of life, and is content to return home. A sea captain hearing the state of matters, has kindly volunteered to take Johnny home with him, and will sail in a few days.

---

Hon. W. M. Arny was confined to his bed at the Indian superintendency in Santa Fe, on the 23d, with an attack of erysipelas.

---

During 1867, from January 1 until Christmas day, 239,065 immigrants arrived at New York, as compared with 227,443 during the same period of last year.

---

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT
FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.

II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.

III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.

IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.

V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.

VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.

VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.

VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.

IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.

X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par valne and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET.

AND OF

FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,

AND

Dealers in Government Securities,

AND

FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,

No 5 Nassau Street, New York.

---

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper,

devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at

57......St. Charles Street......57

NEW ORLEANS.

The REPUBLICAN is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,

BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,

The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

AND THOSE OF THE

Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the REPUBLICAN indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

| | |
|---|---|
| Daily, one year....$16 00 | Weekly, one year....$5 00 |
| Daily, six months.. 8 00 | Weekly, six months.. 2 50 |

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscrptions will be received for the SUNDAY REPUBLICAN from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

---

TO THE LADIES.

Professor BLOT, who is good authority, says: "Great care should be used in selecting GENUINE Flavoring Extracts, both in regard to taste and health. I think none can compare with BURNET'S in this respect."

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining these superior Extracts of reputable grocers and druggists. Depot 592 Broadway.

BURNETT'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.

For more than eight years Burnett's Toilet Preparations and Cooking Extracts have maintained a large and constantly increasing sale, sustaining the opinion of the best judges that they are unrivaled.

Salesroom 592 Broadway, New York, and sold by all reputable dealers.

---

"Its exquisite beauty surpasses our anticipations."—Lady's Book.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR:

A Monthly Illustrated Magazine for the Little Ones.

EDITED BY T. S. ARTHUR.

TERMS—$1 25 a year in advance. Five copies for $5. Ten copies, and one to the getter-up of club, $10. "The Children's Hour" and "Arthur's Home Magazine" one year for $2 50.

Specimen numbers 10 cents.

BISHOP SIMPSON says of

The Children's Hour:

"I have no hesitation in commencing it as one of the best Magazines published for children."

BISHOP STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, says of

The Children's Hour:

"I believe that its introduction into every household would prove a blessing to young and old."

REV. GEO. D. BOARDMAN says of

The Children's Hour:

"I am delighted with 'The Children's Hour.' I do not see how a more entertaining, instructive, or profitable Magazine could be put in the hands of our children."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES says of

The Children's Hour:

"This dear little monthly visitant we believe to be by far the purest, safest, and most attractive magazine for the little ones at home, published in this country."

MR. JOHN B. GOUGH says of

The Children's Hour:

"I can indorse it thoroughly......... It is a most welcome visitor to the family of children at my own home."

The Children's Hour

is as beautiful as the best typography and the best artists can make it. Two volumes a year, beginning in January and July. The number for January, 1868, will be the most beautiful nnmber of a child's magazine ever published. Terms as above.

Address

T. S. ARTHUR & SON,
809 & 811 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

---

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

---

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

---

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the ditor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 70 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.

For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail sub cribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.

Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.

For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.

The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.

The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.

Terms, cash in advance.

Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.

Address, THE TRIBUNE, New York.

d-18 3t 1t 43tW

---

New Book of Choruses.

Forty-Five

OPERA CHORUSES.

Selected and arranged from the works of

Rossini, Auber, Bellini, Donizetti, Gounod, Verdi, Flotow, Spontini, Wagner, Herold, Bishop, Balfe, Benedict, and others.

Forming a Most Valuable Collection

FOR SOCIETIES, CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS SINGING SCHOOLS, CLUBS, AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.

By Edwin Bruce.

PRICE THREE DOLLARS.

Copies Mailed, post-paid.

OLIVER DITSON & O., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
CHARLES H. DITSON & O., 711 Broadway, New York.
d14

---

SCROFULA OF EVERY PHASE, CAtarrh, ronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Asthma, Liver and Kidneys, Bladder and Skin Diseases W. R. PRINCE, Flushing, New York, for sixty, years proprietor of the Linnæan Nurseries, has discovered the remedial plants which are positive cures for the above and for other chronic diseases, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Nervous Debility, Rheumatis, Gout, Piles, Diabetes, Jaundice, Dropsy, Uterine and other Female Maladies, Mecurial and other Blood impurities hitherto incurable.

Explanatory circular, one stamp.

Treatise on all diseases, 25 cents. nl

---

A copy of the American Cyclopedia given as a premium.

GET THE BEST.

A COMPREHENSIVE

DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

MAINLY ABRIDGED FROM

Dr. Wm. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.

WITH

Important Additions and Improvements, and Five Hundred Illustrations.

THIS BOOK is a condensation of the large work in three volumes, and contains entirely new matter, drawn from a wide range of first-class authority. The Dictionary is issued in semi-monthly numbers, of 48 royal 8vo. pages each. The whole will be completed in about twenty-two numbers, eight of which are now out.

PRICE OF EACH NUMBER, THIRTY CENTS.

The first number will be sent gratis to any address for examination, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

GET UP CLUBS.

Three subscribers sent to us, will entitle the sender to a copy of the Dictionary gratis.

Three subscribees sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the Annual Cyclopedia for 18:6, in library binding—price $6

Thirty subscribers sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the New Am rican Cyclopedia, 16 vols. 8 vo., the price of which is $80.

Agents wanted in all parts of the United States. Liberal terms offered.

D. ALLPETON & CO., Publishers, 443 and 445 Broadway.
no23 3t

---

"EUREKA."

THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

THE CLASSIC POETS have sung to us of a spring whose pure, ethereal waters impart perpetual youth and beauty to all who will drink of them. It is now conceded by all that the EUREKA is made of the water of that same spring, and its magical effects will be seen at once by those who use it. The hair will be restored to its youth and beauty, even where the snows of winter have fallen. In presenting this Hair Restorative to the public, I have no hesitation in saying that it is no humbug: that it will do all that is claimed for it, viz: Restoring the hair to its original color; preventing its falling off, and giving it a soft ness, youth and lustre that no other preparation can produce. The Eureka has been used by tens of thousands, and in every case has given entire satisfaction, and is now used universally. Dr Van Zandt has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair—preventing it falling off, by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the EUREKA, and you will not be disappointed.

It is for sale by all druggists. Price $1 per bottle. Manufactured by ROBERT FISHER, Agent, St. Louis, Mo.
no16

---

AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS,

Is Richardson's New Method

FOR THE PIANO FORTE.

BEING THE ONLY BOOK THE TEACHER requires, and the book every pupil is attracted to. Its lessons are adapted to pupils of all ages, and its exercises attractive and useful in every stage of advancement This book has, on account of its actual merit, become the standard work of Piano instruction, and the only one which every well informed teacher and scholar uses.

Price $3 75; sent post-paid

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.
no16

---

AROMATIC VEGETABLE SOAP, Combined with Glycerine recommended for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N. Y. Sold by Druggists. nov2m6

---

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the complexion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Sold at 592 Broadway, New York. oc17

---

THE MUSIC BOOK For Every Boy and Girl is MERRY CHIMES, Containing Hundreds of Popular Songs and Pleasing Instructions and Exercises BY WHICH ONE CAN LEARN TO SING THEM.

PRICE—Fifty Cents. Sent Postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & O., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway, New York.
oc17 tf

---

INFORMATION WANTED—OF FRANK VARNAR, by his wife, Sarah Varnar, who used to live in Pickens istrict, South Carolina, in the family of James Johns. Address SARAH VARNAR, care of Shade Croom, Houston, Texas. d14

---

The October Phrenological Journal

Contains Portraits and Characters of Mar Queen of Scots; Charlotte Bronte; Thomas Nast, the artist; Ira Aldridge, tragedian; Alfred Sewell, and others. Well-written articles on Anthropology; Married or Single; Boots and Beauty; Sick Headache, its Cause and Cure; The Fashions, illustrated; Man's Spiritual Nature; Forming Character; The American Physiognomy; "Expression;" Whining Women; Grapes and Blackberries, illustrated. $3 a year, or 30 cents a number.

Address S. R. WELLS, Editor, 389 Broadway, New York. oct

---

NOTICE.

ROOMS OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND UNION CITIZENS, Washington, D. C., July 17, 1867.

IN PURSUANCE OF A SERIES OF RESOLUTIONS passed by the House of Representatives July 10, 1867, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate the "Treatment of Prisoners of War and Union Citizens held by the Confederate authorities during the late rebellion."

All persons in possession of important information upon either of these subjects are earnestly requested to address the Committee, as directed below, stating:

1 The name, age, and post office address of the writer.

2. If a soldier or seaman, his rank or position, and with what command he served.

3. A full statement of all facts known to the writer touching his own imprisonment or treatment, and that of others, either soldier or citizen, giving, as far as possible, names, places, and dates, with names of Confederate officers in charge.

Correspondents from New York, New Jersey Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and the States and Territories lying west of the Rocky Mountains will please address JOHN P. C. SHANKS, M. C., Washington, D. C.

Correspondents from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, and the Territories east of the Rocky Mountains will address WILLIAM A. PILE, M. C., St. Louis, Mo.

Correspondents from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will address ABNER C. HARDING, M. C., Monmouth, Ill.

Correspondents from the New England States will address AARON F. STEVENS, M. C., Nashua, N. H.

Correspondents from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee will address WILLIAM MUNGEN, M. C., Findlay, Ohio.

Communications addressed to the members of the Committee will be free of postage.

It is the intention of the Committee to collect all facts necessary to make a thorough official history of this subject.

The various newspapers throughout the country are requested to give this circular a gratuitous insertion, together with such notice as they may deem proper.

JOHN P. C. SHANKS,
WILLIAM A. PILE,
ABNER C. HARDING,
AARON F. STEVENS,
WILLIAM MUNGEN,
Committee.

JOHN D. LARRABEE, Clerk.

---

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.

VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

---

Agents Wanted.

(Male or Female,) to sell our celebrated

Franklin and Diamond Double Thread Sewing Machines.

Complete with Table, only $25.00. Single Thread Hand Machines are not practical for any sewing, at any price. We give away our machine to the poor and needy, and send them out on trial. Circulars and information free. Address J. C. OTTIS & CO., Boston, Mass.

---

W. H. PEMBERTON,

158 - - - POYDRAS ST. - - - 158

NEW ORLEANS.

Between St. Charles and Carondelet Streets.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Colors

Varnishes, Glass, Etc.

Has in store and to arrive, a large supply of the following goods, which he will sell at low figures, either wholesale or retail:

White Lead in Oil, all kinds.
Window Glass, French and American, all sizes.
French and American Zinc.
American and English Venetian Red.
Oils of all descriptions.
Varnish of all kinds.
Stove Polish,
Bi Carbonate of Soda.
Sal Soda,
Alum.
Castile and Colgate Soaps.
Wash Blue.
Black Writing Ink and Marking Ink.

Manufactured by himself.

Also a great variety of Perfumery and Fancy Articles for Toilet.

The Store is also well supplied with all kinds of Drugs and Medicines, Fresh and of the Best Quality. Strangers visiting the City would do well to give him a call. 65 89

---

ROUGH AND READY IRON WORKS.

Danville, Montour Co., Penn.

WILLIAM HANCOCK,
Proprietor,
Manufacturer of

RAILROAD IRON

OF ALL WEIGHTS AND PATTERNS.

MINE RAILS.
STREET RAILS,
STRAP RAILS,
Old Railroad Iron Re-Rolled.

The subscriber is prepared to furnish all kinds of

STEAM ENGINES,
ROLLS,
ROLLING-MILL MACHINERY,
Saw and Grist Mill

Machinery, gas retorts, mine car wheels and axles globe valves, gauge cocks—most improved styles. Blow off cocks, steam whistles, steam and water fittings, screw bolts, iron and brass castings, and every description of foundry and machine work, boilers, etc., etc.

Plans, designs and estimates furnished without extra charge for all work ordered from

WM. HANCOCK,
BENJ. G. WELCH, General Agent.

---

NATIONAL

FREEDMEN'S SAVING

AND

TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.

Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,

No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.

Deposits of One Dollar or more received.

Interest payable in January and July, in each year

All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.

All the profits belong to the depositors.

Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another with out charge or interrupting the interest

Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

---

| | |
|---|---|
| JONES, MCDOWELL & CO., Little Rock, Ark. | J. B. SHAW & CO., Fort Smith, Ark. |

BUSSEY & CO.,

GENERAL

Commission Merchants

AND

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.

No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

---

MUSICAL LEAVES.

Published by Phillip Phillips & Co., Cincinnati.

THE BEST SABBATH-SCHOOL SINGING BOOK EXTANT.

Over 15,000 Sold in Eight Months.

This is the book that has been so highly recommended by the New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois State Sunday School Conventions.

☞ Send for specimen copy.

Forty cents each, or $3, for 100 cop

---

WILLIAM McCAMMON,

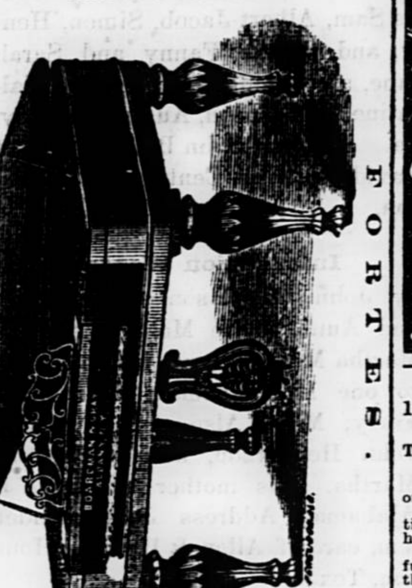
MANUFACTURER OF

BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME

PIANO FORTES.



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.

☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address

WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.
s6

---

PIERCE & DWIGHT'S

SELF-RAISING FLOUR.

—FOR—

Bread, Biscuit, Cakes, Pastry, Etc, Etc.

WITHOUT USING YEAST, YEAST POWDER, SODA OR SALT.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING:

Stir in cold water with a spoon, and bake at once, without kneading or waiting for the dough to rise.

For the healthfulness of Self-Raising Flour, consult your Physician.

Ask your Grocer for a six pound package.

For sale at

99..............Magazine Street..............99

fe6 NEW ORLEANS.

---

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS

Window Shades and Cornices,

AND

PAPER HANGINGS

For Sale by

E. HEATH,

75 Camp street.

---

PEMBERTON'S

"Carbolic Acid Disinfectant."

This Powder is a compound of Carbolic Acid, Copperas, etc., possessing the properties of destroying contagion, decomposing pestilential effluvia, noxious exhalations, and neutralizing strong and offensive odors; removing the effluvia of sick rooms, sewers, cesspools, sinks, privies, etc.

It far surpasses the Chlorinated Lime in its actions and effect, and is certainly the best Disinfectant now in use. Thoroughly disinfecting the atmosphere, electrifying the oxygen, and rendering the respirable air both healthy and pure, being tirely free from all injurious effects on the throat and lungs, which so frequently attend the use of deodorizers.

Prepared and sold by

W. H. PEMBERTON,
No. 158 Poydras st., N O.

---

Grovesteen & Co.,

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.

499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities fo manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

---

PITTSBURG FEMALE COLLEGE,

Rev. I. C. PERSHING, D. D. President.

Best sustained Ladies' School under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.

Superb brick buildings, with all the modern improvements.

Twenty-two Teachers.

Including Five Music Teachers.

Four hundred and twenty-six Pupils

French and German by native Professors. Sixty dollars per term, fourteen weeks, pays all expenses in boarding department except washing. Fall term commences September 4. Send to President Pershing, Pittsburg, Pa. for circular. aull tf

---

STAPLETON & CO.,

UNION HAT STORE,

95..........CANAL STREET..........97

NEW ORLEANS,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer

—IN—

Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,

—ALSO—

GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION

n2l

---

MEDICAL.

Dr. J. WHITE'S INSTITUTE,

127 CARONDELET STREET,

Directly in rear of the City Hall.

The first aim of human beings is happiness, and happiness implies health of body and mind.

This Institute is established for the cure of all forms of disease, Chronic and Acute

Dr. White does not allow any disease afflicting his patients, however virulent, to escape his vigilant care, as his patients universally testify.

It can easily be perceived how important it is that a full and correct diagnosis—detecting all the diseases that afflict the patient—should be attained. And it is no less important to the afflicted that the remedies should be equally clear to the physician; proving to his patient that when the local disease is eradicated, the whole system is completely renovated and restored to the normal condition. "A sound mind is a sound body."

Dr. White's experience and success for thirty years in an extensive practice in large cities, have brought to him for treatment a vast amount of every form of disease, justifying him in promising the cure of the patient if the vitals and vitality are not irreparably wasted.

His remedies cure the worst eruptions of the skin; all forms of ulcers, of whatever nature, to the incipient cancer, which so grievously afflict humanity. The remedies restore the stomach, liver, and blood, and all the secretions and excretions of the entire system, in unhealthy to a healthy condition. Instead of injuring the system or constitution, they renovate and repair the injuries and wastes of the entire organism.

One or two hours spent at the Institute with Dr. White frequently saves weeks of fever or other suffering—often life

N. B. Persons desiring Dr. White's advice and remedies, will be careful to call at 127 Carondelet street, or address by letter, as there are several Dr. Whites in the city.

☞ Consultation free—stamps not "forgotten."
[feb3]

---

A NEW GLEE BOOK.

THE GREETING.

A COLLECTION OF GLEES, QUARTETS, Choruses, Part-Songs, etc. By L. O. Emerson, Author of "The Jubilate," "Harp of Judah," "Golden Wreath," "Merry Chimes," etc.

Upwards of Half a Million copies of Mr. Emerson's Music Books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no other author of the same class of books and which cannot fail to insure for this new volume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been contributed by Mr L. H. Southard whose name is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The marked features of the collection are Originality, Brilliancy and Variety; and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no Glee Book now before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to Musical Societies and Conventions, Conservatories, Clubs, and Amateur Singers. Price, $1 38 Mailed post-paid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., 711 Broadway New York.
se26

---

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE

Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. C. UPHAM, 25 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa. Circulars free. Sold by all Druggists. oct 18t

---

HALLOWED SONGS.

FOR PRAYER MEETINGS AND SMALL CHURCHES

A Small Hymn and Tune Book, of 25 pages, bound in muslin, at $1 each, of $75 per 100.

PHILIP PHILLIPS & CO., Cincinnati.
31y

---

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

---

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 72, and 74 Washington st, New York.

---

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.

Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

---

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.

No. 64 to 74 Washington street. New York.

For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

---

BELLS.

PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS

Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c.,

HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.

MENEELY' WEST TROY

Bell Foundry established in 1826. Bells for Churches, Academies, Factories etc, made of genuine Bell-metal, (Copper and Tin), mounted with improved patent mountings, and warranted. Orders and inquiries addressed to the undersigned, or to our Agents, Fairbanks & Co., Scale Warehouse, 252 Broadway, New York, will have prompt attention, and an illustrated catalogue sent free, upon application.

E. A. & G. R. MENEELY,
West Troy, N. Y.

---

ROBERT PATON,

Manufacturer of

CHURCH, OFFICE AND SCHOOL

FURNITURE.

24 Grove St., N. Y.

---

SEAMLESS CLOTHING

Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.
fe17,1y

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 4. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, JANUARY 25, 1868. WHOLE NO. 104.

Poetry.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

JEALOUSY.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

O what is the food of jealousy?
On what does it thrive the best?
Does it live in the hearts of the innocent?
Did it flourish in Jesus' breast?

It thrives on a deadly ruin,
Most pitiful to impart;
It thrives where the corpse of innocence,
Lies mouldering within the heart.

The loss of trust in our own weak breast
Is the fatal symptom shown;
For we find no truth in another's soul
When our own self-trust has flown.

Point me the eye with the jealous spark,
Ready e'er with a frown;
'Tis fed from the fires of a guilty heart,
Whose purest gem has gone.

Mistrust is the deadly bloom of guilt,
Potted in narrow brain,
For Truth bears no such fruit as this,
Nor knows such guilty pain.

The bloom of love is a holy flower,
And heaven its native dust:
The soul in which it blends and blooms,
Is free from vile distrust.

(Selected.)

KATIE LEE AND WILLIE GRAY.

Two brown heads, with tossing curls,
Red lips shutting over pearls,
Bare feet, white and wet with dew,
Two eyes black and two eyes blue,
Little boy and girl were they,
Katie Lee and Willie Gray.

They were standing where a brook,
Bending like a shepherd's crook,
Flashed its silver, and thick ranks
Of weeping willow fringed its banks—
Half in thought and half in play,
Katie Lee and Willie Gray.

They had cheeks like cherries red,
He was taller, most a head—
She with arms like wreaths of snow—
Swung a basket to and fro
(As they loitered, half in play,)
Chattering to Willie Gray.

"Pretty Katie," Willie said,
And there came a dash of red
Through the brownness of his cheek:
"Boys are strong and girls are weak,
And I'll carry, so I will,
Katie's basket up the hill."

Katie answered with a laugh,
"You shall carry only half;"
Then said, tossing back her curls,
"Boys are weak as well as girls."
Do you think that Katie guessed
Half the wisdom she expressed?

Men are only boys grown tall:
Hearts don't change much, after all:
And when, long years from that day,
Katie Lee and Willie Gray
Stood again beside the brook
Bending like a shepherd's crook,

Is it strange that Willie said,
While again a dash of red
Crowned the brownness of his cheek,
"I am strong and you are weak,
Life is but a slippery steep,
Hung with shadows cold and deep;

"Will you trust me, Katie, dear?
Walk beside me without fear?
May I carry, if I will,
All your burdens up the hill?"
And she answered, with a laugh,
"No, but you may carry half."

Close beside the little brook,
Bending like a shepherd's crook,
Working with its silver hands,
Late and early at the sands
Stands a cottage where to-day
Katie lives with Willie Gray.

In the porch she sits, and lo!
Swings a basket to and fro,
Vastly different from the one
That she swung in years agone,
This is long and deep and wide,
And has rockers on the side.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

Office—No. 1018 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. A. J. Kynett, D.D., Correspond'g Sec'y. | Thos. T. Mason, Esq., Treasurer.

The following is an example of applications for temporary loans. It comes from Ione City, California, and the representations and appeals made by the trustees are sustained by the pastor, the presiding elder, Rev. Dr. Cox, corresponding secretary of the Auxiliary society, and Bishops Kingsley and Simpson:

"I. The lot: The size is 100 feet front by 200 feet deep. The trustees have two titles to the property. One from the former owner of the land, and the other from parties having possession of a Spanish or Mexican grant, covering the town and vicinity.

"It is considered as certainly secured to the M. E. church.

"The lot is a corner one, and is certainly most desirable in view of its accessibility and prominence.

"II. The church. The church measures on the outside, from the tower in front to the buttresses in the rear, 88x48 feet. It is built of brick on a very solid stone foundation. Though the walls have been built four years, and some of the winters have been very wet, they show no more signs of cracks than when they were first put up. I doubt whether there is another church or public building in the state put up as well and substantially as this.

"The style is Gothic. The basement is entirely above the ground. Its height is ten feet. It is divided into lecture-room, class-room, and pastor's study.

"The walls of the study and main audience room are beautifully plastered, while overhead in the audience room, in Gothic form, it is neatly ceiled with redwood and pine.

"The church has cost up to this time about $15,000. The entire debt now on the church is nearly $6000. Since its dedication last September by Bishop Kingsley subscriptions have been obtained from citizens in this vicinity amounting to $800, to be paid yearly, and most of them for six years, if necessary, on condition that a loan is obtained, without interest, of the Church Extension society. As soon as it is ascertained that the loan can be made, it is thought that without difficulty the subscriptions can be increased to $1000 or $1200 per year.

"But our people, before conference, were led to hope so strongly that relief would soon come from the Extension society, that now, as the year is passing, and they have not even heard there is any prospect of relief, their hearts are sinking within them, and I find it difficult to prolong their hope.

"Ione valley has, from the early settlement of this state, been regarded as one of the most fertile and pleasant valleys of the interior. We are forty miles from Sacramento, and thirty-five from Stockton. Within church-going distance of us, (six miles), are large portions of three other valleys, Jackson, Dry Creek and Buckeye, some of which are really larger than Ione.

"The immediate causes of our extreme embarrassment and inability to free ourselves are these:

"1. The house cost some $6000 or $7000 more than the architect and builder estimated; he had but recently come from New York state, and was not well acquainted with California prices, materials, and labor.

"2. At the time the church was built, the people generally in the neighborhood were freely investing their time and their money in prospecting for copper ore in the adjacent foothills, with the expectation of soon receiving a large reward. While the result has been that there are a few mines in this vicinity from which large amounts of copper ore are taken out and sold, yet the great mass of the people lost largely. This mining mania seriously interfered with the payment for our church.

"3. Immediately following the copper excitement, there came in succession two seasons of drought, so that our people, who were trying by industry in agriculture to recover from their wayward mining investments, and pay the church debt, found themselves repeatedly thwarted by severe drought.

"4. But the greatest misfortune of all, overshadowing all others, which came upon us in the midst of our church building, and has continued ever since, was the sudden and unexpected confirmation in the United States supreme court at Washington of the Spanish and Mexican grant, which includes this town, valley, and the other valleys in the vicinity. In some instances old settlers, who had paid liberally for their lands, and supposed they had peaceable homes, were driven off by force. In others men have mortgaged their lands, or a part of them, for money they have borrowed to pay the high prices required by the claimants of the grants. Of course, if our people could have foreseen their present embarrassment they would have built a smaller and much cheaper house. And yet, when once free from debt and entirely finished, our people here, throughout the state, and elsewhere will all unite in saying that it is just such a church as we need—a real credit to our denomination and our common Christianity in this land.

"Our conference, for two years preceding this, gave permission to the pastor of this charge to make collections in other churches. Some aid was obtained, but our membership is so small in California, and each church is so pressed in building up and sustaining its own church that it was found very difficult to collect much. Our last session very heartily and unanimously adopted the resolutions asking aid from the Extension society. If we don't obtain aid from the Extension society I know of no other way by which the church can be saved, unless we resort to the tedious, disagreeable, and doubtful expedient of visiting the Atlantic states to wander, lecture, and beg from the Atlantic to the Mississippi, and from the lakes to the Ohio.

"I think such arrangements can be made for our debt, not covered by mortgage, that if we can secure a loan of $3000 from the extension fund, without interest, for four or five years, payable in yearly installments of $600 or $700 per year, our church will then be quite secure. With such a loan, I feel sure that our members, and many of our citizens, will contribute toward the removal of this debt, with a hope and a will they have not had for some time.

"You can hardly realize how much we hope that some such loan may be effected for us at an early day. My sincere prayer is, that our Heavenly Father may aid you in effecting some favorable arrangement for us. We shall be very anxious to hear as soon as possible what the prospects are."

The last misfortune named in the foregoing—the loss of all property by the Spanish or Mexican grant, private as well as public, and the necessity that was laid upon all to secure their own homes, made this case a very extraordinary one. The newly confirmed claim being in the hands of Roman Catholics, our trustees could expect no special favor. The case was clearly one of great necessity and great merit. What could we do? The mortgage was already past maturity, and only awaited judicial process to turn these unfortunate brethren out of doors. Delay would be as ruinous as total refusal. Being satisfied that if the case could be brought before the whole Church, it would say relief must be given, we borrowed the money, and granted a loan for two years at six per cent. Will the Church approve our action, and place us in position to grant, at the expiration of this time, such farther assistance as the circumstances may then require?

Rev. A. M. Hough, of Helena, Montany territory, writes the corresponding secretary as follows:

"We made application through Bishop Kingsley to the Church Extension society some months since for assistance; but it was just the time of Dr. Monroe's death, and the society was embarrassed and we could obtain no assistance. I now desire to renew that application. The facts are these: I arrived here as superintendent of this mission three years since, and in that time we have built three places of worship, such as were suitable at the time, at a cost of over $3000 in gold, and another church, which will cost $2000 when completed, is in progress of erection. We have also built two parsonages, and we have never made application outside of the territory for help, but have paid all. But the time has now come when we must have a new church at this place, Helena City, or we may as well give up. Our small log church, which answered when the town was new and numbered eight hundred or one thousand inhabitants, will not answer now when this has become the metropolis of the territory, numbering eight or ten thousand inhabitants, and containing twenty or thirty fine stone stores, and many pleasant and expensive residences. Our membership has not increased in proportion to the town, and it is impossible to raise $500 from them. We have gone to work and raised on subscription $4000 from the community, and it is all that can be raised, while, as the cost of building here is at least four times as great as in the East, nothing less than $8000 will build a respectable house. And now we wish to inquire, can we obtain any assistance from your society? We have no one here able to shoulder a debt, and there is literally no trust. Interest on loans is five per cent per month. We must obtain help or stop where we are and probably lose the $4000 now on subscription; and unless we can build there is little use of a man spending his time in this town. The Episcopal church has sent a bishop here with a corps of preachers and means to build and move forward. We have been here three years, and have not asked a dollar before. Can we obtain two thousand dollars at this time, or at least soon, to lift us out of our difficulty, and let us go on our way rejoicing? We left the East before the Church Extension society was fully inaugurated, and we know but little of its workings. Our application may be informal, but if anything can be done we are sure you will consider it favorably."

A member of the Presbyterian church recently from Helena has called at the office of the society twice to urge with a Christian earnestness that overleaps denominational boundaries the claims of this case, and the importance to the interests of Christ's kingdom of an immediate response. From him we learn that by repeated and thorough canvassing $6000 have been raised, and the church, a frame, that when finished, will seat about four hundred persons, has been inclosed, but that the work is now suspended for want of means, and that their resources having been absolutely exhausted they must have help. A temporary loan might meet the case. They would by getting into their church soon be sufficiently strengthened to return it; but they must have help now.

We would gladly give or lend the money if we had it, but we have not now. We have written to ascertain the very least that will take the enterprise through. Will the church enable us to meet the call, when we shall have ascertained the least amount that will do it? Remember the facts, and that when they shall have received all the help they ask they will have church accommodations for only four hundred in a population of eight or ten thousand.

Rev. J. F. Chaffee writes from Minneapolis, Minn., as follows:

"I write you in behalf of our Scandinavian brethren at Green Meadow, in this state. There are there about seven hundred of that people, and of our church twenty-three all told. They have, within six months, built a church and parsonage, worth together $1500, both nearly completed. The pastor, Brother Burch, has solicited aid from our churches through the state, and altogether he has got the enterprise complete within $200. Now they are few and poor, and have done nobly, and I ask your society to send them the $200. I know of none who need or deserve it more. I hope your committee will give these 'few sheep in the wilderness' this aid. Please write what is the prospect."

We have been compelled to write—and we have written it with sadness, all the greater because the request is so small—that "because of our embarrassed condition, the general committee appropriated to Minnesota conference only nine-tenths of their own collections for this conference year." If the church shall respond fully to the call for $165,000, we could relieve this case from our contingent fund. But will the church do this? Will pastors indicate the answer by taking and forwarding collections at once?

INTELLIGENCE FROM OUR MISSION ROOMS.

Upon Our Souls the Responsibility.—Has Christ left the propagation of the Gospel to his followers? Yes, he has. He has promulgated no other plan; he has provided no other agency. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature; and lo! I am with you alway, even to the end of the world," is his sole and plenary commission. It comprises, within the limits of a proverb, our duty and our dependence. The living ministry—the sustaining grace and the inworking spirit—the apostolic mission, the day of Pentecost knew and needed nothing more. By these the redeemed world is to be converted. There are no other agencies, better or stronger, held in reserve. There are no occult saving principles or appliances yet to be developed. The light which we conceal, the Holy Ghost which we restrain, the preachers which we refuse to send, these are God's chosen, predestined means, his potent remedies for the healing of the nations. He knows no other; he will employ no other; and he means to leave upon our souls the responsibility of using or neglecting them.

To What Purpose is this Waste? During the past fiscal year there was paid into the national treasury, on account of internal revenue, taxes as follows: On cigars, $3,661,984 89; on smoking and chewing tobacco, $15,245,477 81. Total on tobacco, $18,907,462 70. Again, on fermented liquors, $5,819,345 19; on distilled liquors, $29,641,409 34. Total on liquors, $34,983,754 53; making a grand total of taxes paid on tobacco and liquors of $53,891,216 83. If the tax alone amounts to this enormous sum what figures will show the cost of these articles to the consumers? In how many years will the contributions of the Christian people of this land yield a similar revenue to extend the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ?

Mississippi Conference.—Bishop Ames writes from New Orleans, December 25, to the Mission Rooms, saying: "We closed our conference on yesterday. The past has been a year of much spiritual prosperity. The membership has more than doubled; there are now over 16,000 members. A number of missions go off the list, and are now self-supporting charges, and will continue to be so hereafter. Our colored ministers make rapid improvement. The New Orleans Advocate is a great benefit to our work here."

India.—Dr. Mullens calculates that £50,000 ($250,000) are annually contributed by the English residents in India toward the support of missions, and that in that country alone there are 200 native clergy, 50,000 adult communicants, and congregations of 250,000 people.

China.—The annual meeting of our mission was held in Foochow, October 16-22. The statistics for the year are as follows:

| | Present year. | Increase. |
|---|---|---|
| Church members | 341 | 138 |
| Probationers | 113 | 43 |
| Total members | 454 | 181 |
| Adult baptisms | 151 | 79 |
| Infant baptisms | 35 | 28 |
| Missionary collections | $123 | $39 |
| Sunday schools | 11 | 1 |
| Scholars | 251 | 58 |

This is an encouraging showing, and will be gratefully received by the church at home.

India.—Rev. J. W. Waugh writes to the mission rooms, saying:

A sentence in your notes in my last year's report seems truly prophetic, and the prophecy partially fulfilled, though quite unknown to you while you wrote it, namely: "The experience and triumphant death of an aged Mohammedan is only the first fruits of a coming and glorious harvest." In Lucknow alone, within a few months after the death of this aged Mohammedan (the old native doctor, Mohammed Mussain), five others from our mission were "safely garnered." The deep shadows that fell upon our whole mission when Sister Jackson and Brother H. M. Daniel, an ordained native preacher, died, have not yet risen. The church at large has heard of our sorrow, and lends us sympathy.

If to people heaven with redeemed souls, and to fit sinful men for the society of the redeemed, be the great aim of our mission, then has the past year been one of success. Six from among our little Lucknow church left us in as many months to join the glorious "army of martyrs." Four old men, all verging upon seventy, we have laid side by side in our little mission cemetery, while Sister Jackson and Brother Daniel are laid to rest in the civil burial ground of the station. Of these one was a native missionary, one was an assistant missionary, one was a colporteur, one an Urdee and Persian proofreader for the press, and one the keeper of the zyatt. The sixth was only a nominal Christian, and was not employed by us. Each of them left a testimony for our comfort. Extended notices of Sister Jackson and Brother Daniel have already appeared. The old colporteur, Charles, said to me in answer to my inquiry concerning his confidence: "I am happy to be going; heaven awaits me."

Isaac, the keeper of the zyatt, had, it was feared, at one time partially relapsed to Islamism. I asked him to whom he prayed now that no human arm could save him? He answered: "For three or four days I have been unable to pray, as my very lips are so parched, and I am too weak to turn in my bed and get upon my knees; but I talk a great deal with Jesus in my heart, though I can not speak." I urged him to tell me if, in his extremity, he was not sometimes inclined to pray to the prophet (Mohammed). He exclaimed: "Ai, Sahib," (O Sir!) "no man can serve two masters."

"The good old native doctor called me to his bedside a very short time before his death and asked me to listen to his confession of the faith in which he died: "I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ, his only begotten son, our Lord;" thus repeating the Apostles' creed entire, and with emphasis. Shortly after he tried to sing, but could only rehearse, "I'm a pilgrim and I'm a stranger." Soon he closed his pilgrimage of more than threescore years and ten, and departed to the land where he is no longer a stranger, though for three years he had, on account of his being a Christian, been refused the privilege of seeing his wife and children.

Get Thee Up into the High Mountain.—Zion is charged to do this, and when her ministers not only use the pulpit, but subsidize the press for the cause of missions, we take courage. Read what one of them writes:

At the opening of 1867 it was announced that $1,030,978 (or one dollar per member) had been appropriated to missions. The honest facts are, that there were in the treasury $361,757, and that only $850,000 were needed in addition to meet the unprecedented appropriation. The result is an almost unprecedented deficiency: and while we are rejoicing over the six million dollars for Centenary purposes, we are unable to send a single additional missionary abroad. The Centenary converted many a miser and stingy member of the Church, but we will not reap the legitimate benefit of these conversions. Eighteen hundred and sixty-eight ought to give at least $1,200,000 in bona fide contributions to missions; whereas, in addition to all we may send abroad, we must pay $361,757 to the indebted treasury of 1867. But, brethren, this deficiency must be paid, and the mission fund should receive an agreeable surprise, something like that given to the Centenary fund of 1866 and 1867. Go before God in prayer, and having ascertained your duty, perform it in his fear. The heathen are stretching out their hands to us. God hath given us new creations in China, India, Norway, Sweden, Germany, South America, and elsewhere. The same divine power will preserve these missions until we financially recover. The door is open, and if we agonize for power to enter, he will wait for us; but if we allow our finances to remain deficient, if we do not open hearts and purses, he will give the prestige and privilege to others. We trust our people, and believe that 1868 will bring a more creditable record.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH PEWS.

The Annual Sale—Rents During Fifteen Years—Beecher's Address.

[From the Brooklyn Eagle, 8th.]

The pews and sittings of Plymouth church were rented last evening at the church, according to the schedule of prices indicated by the diagram. There being more applicants than there were pews, it was deemed best by all concerned to sell the choice of seats at auction, the highest bidder having the best choice, and so on to the last. This system has obtained in this society for more than twenty years, and its results have been so free from objectionable features that many others have adopted this plan.

In this connection it may be interesting to note the amounts received from pew rentals during the past

FIFTEEN YEARS.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1853 | $11,157 | 1861 | $28,750 |
| 1854 | 11,720 | 1862 | 18,100 |
| 1855 | 12,053 | 1863 | 23,383 |
| 1856 | 12,705 | 1864 | 31,000 |
| 1857 | 14,340 | 1865 | 39,042 |
| 1658 | 16,300 | 1866 | 42,782 |
| 1859 | 26,052 | 1867 | 49,500 |
| 1860 | 28,682 | | |

From the foregoing it will be observed there has been a gradual, though steady, progression, which this year attains the very respectable figure of $49,500, in detail as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| Premium | $35,700 |
| Rents | 12,000 |
| Chairs | 800 |
| Total | $49,500 |

Last night the church was well filled by half-after six o'clock, the audience being about equally divided between the men and women. On the platform were the same business-like officials who have attended there for the last quarter of a century. There were Father Freeland, the president of the society, a living example of Christian courtesy and good will toward all; Brother Howard, beaming benevolently through his spectacles upon the church which he seated in 1846 with David Hale, Henry C. Bowen, and Seth B. Hunt; Deacon Hutchinson, the famous basso of the choir since the year one; Brother Bethel Bell, anxious and Martha like, but full of sense; Mr. Bird, Bell's Bethel coadjutor; Mr. N. O. Pillsbury, the Plymouth auctioneer, who knows every man by sight and name, and can tell precisely what he ought to get as a bid; last, but not least, the pastor, with his big blue eyes, his long hair turning gray, his ruddy cheek and pleasant smile.

This sale being under the direction of the society, not of the church, was conducted with a due regard to the fitness of things, no one man thinking he is all in all, as our little friend the church clerk is apt to. Promptly at the hour of seven Mr. Beecher called the house to order and said:

Remarks of Mr. Beecher.

I tender you, ladies and gentlemen of Plymouth church and society, the congratulations of the season, and especially upon the prosperity of this religious enterprise, in which we and all associated, and with which we have been identified. It has been one of harmony and prosperity, and I can say freely, without compliment, in some respects there has never been a religious society that can be compared with this, I do not mean merely in the perfect unison of very many individuals of marked character, differing in opinion and working together without a jar. Regarding it financially, I suppose there can not be found such marked interest. With an income of over $50,000, which was collectable in small sums from many individuals, there has not been one-quarter of one per cent unpaid. In the history of churches I think this might be said to be unparalleled. In this case every cent has been collected. I think that during the eighteen years of this church it may safely be said that the sums of money unpaid have averaged less than one-fourth or one half of one per cent. This fidelity of engagement is due to our faithful secretary of the board of trustees.

I am not desirous that prices should go as high as last year, to oppress any one who wishes to sit here. If they do it will be simply that property is brought into market for which there are more bidders than there is property. Some have said that if the minister would keep away, or if the deacons would do so and so, prices would not go up. This has been so year in and year out. I would be sorry to have you think that there is anything more than this—that people will have pews.

I am desired to say that the modest men should call out their names—of course there are modest men in Plymouth church.

It is also desirable if any changes are wished in the names the changes be negotiated by the parties. In taking pews you can always have the aisle chair adjoining the pews if notice is given at the time you take the pews.

I presume you are all familiar with the terms. I will say one thing, I think every person that attends Plymouth church ought to be thankful for the unrequited and ungrateful labor that is performed for us by the ushers. The ushers don't undertake to take care of anybody's seat. If you don't take it ten minutes before the services it is understood that you are willing to extend hospitalities to strangers, and hospitality should not be frowned upon among us.

Mr. Beecher then introduced Mr. N. O. Pillsbury, of New Jersey, who had been secured as auctioneer. Mr. Pillsbury said that inasmuch as they could not do without foreign things (alluding to the new pulpit), and they could not carry on their auction sale of pews without sending to a foreign country to secure the services of an auctioneer. [Laughter]. Mr. Pillsbury then instructed the ladies and gentlemen present how they might facilitate business, and save time by calling the number of the pew and name loud enough to be heard in all parts of the house.

"What am I offered for the first choice? Gi' me a bid," began the auctioneer.

"Fifty dollars," said a voice in a farther corner of the church.

"One hundred," "two," "two fifty," "three hundred," and so on the bids ran with much spirit to $425. This seemed the highest price to be paid, and the choice was knocked down to H. W. Sage for $425. That gentleman selected pew No. 90, the rent of which is $110.

The sale continued without marked incidents, resulting in securing the total premium of $49,500.

From the Baltimore American.

Affairs in Mississippi.

We have obtained the following facts from Rev. James Lynch, (formerly of Baltimore,) a presiding elder of the Methodist Episcopal church, who, in addition to his missionary labors in Mississippi, canvassed the entire state for reconstruction. His well-known standing and opportunities for observation entitle his statements to considerable credence:

He states that prior to the late Northern elections he was aided in getting up political meetings in favor of reconstruction, under the congressional plan, by the best white men of the state. He was favored with the encouragement and sympathy of Hon. E. Barksdale, ex-member of confederate congress, and editor of the Clarion, who was a most zealous advocate of reconstruction, though not a Republican in politics. Many of the meetings which he addressed, composed of white and black, were presided over by gentlemen who had been prominent as state officers.

Hon. James L. Alcorn, United States senator elect under the Johnson government of 1865, addressed the people with great effect in more than twenty counties, and declared his intention to vote for a Republican president at the next election. Mr. Lynch and General Alcorn spoke from the same platform at Durant, Mississippi. Ex-Governor Brown, for many years United States senator, took active part in the canvass. He thinks that had not the Democratic party of the North inaugurated and carried on with the success they did, under the lead of Andrew Johnson, their opposition to congress, the state of Mississippi would now be enjoying a political calm. The ballot placed in the hands of the negro threw around him a protection which military force or bureau agents could never have afforded. The colored people have acted from the moment of their enfranchisement to the present with a moderation and good sense that has increased the respect of the Southern whites for them. At political meetings and at the polls they behaved as well as if at church, and forbearance on their part kept them quiet under severe provocations.

The news of the "Northern reaction" gave strength to the anti-reconstruction men, and they bullied thousands of reconstruction white men into neutrality or positive opposition, so that, at the time of the late election in Mississippi, the white men who voted "For a convention" had to brave public odium. The Democratic organs of the worst type are the educators of public sentiment in Mississippi. The La Crosse Democrat (Brick Pomeroy), New York Day Book, Philadelphia Age, and New York World are the oracles to whose utterances they give sacred regard. Of course there are eminent gentlemen who take a comprehensive view of political affairs, but however high their present social position and great their past political influence, they can do but little while the Democratic party of the North are the successful allies of those who oppose them.

The convention is now in session at Jackson. Mr. Lynch left two or three days before it met. He says there are about one hundred delegates elected: twelve of them are colored men. Many of the delegates elect have been judges of courts and members of former legislatures of Mississippi. Several have been distinguished officers of the federal army, and taken as a whole the body will be as respectable in worth and intelligence as any that ever met in the state capital. Caucuses have been held, and the spirit of the majority in congress will certainly be the controlling animus of the convention.

Intelligent men laugh at the Democratic trick of laying the responsibility of the financial distress in the South at the door of the Republican party; but many say, "It helps to make capital, and we don't care."

Governor Humphreys tried to get up a big scare about a negro insurrection, to take place during the holidays. No one supposed he believed that there was any danger of such an occurrence. It was done for political effect. The colored people went through the holidays as quiet as lambs, and the rebel cry of "nigger rising" became the richest joke of the season. The state is poverty-stricken; for three successive years the people have gone in strong on cotton; three times has the crop failed; not sufficient corn was planted this year to subsist the people until next harvest. Cotton does not command a price that pays the expense of cultivation: and when the cotton tax is paid the planter finds his scanty crop not enough to pay his commission merchant for supplies and nothing to pay the freedmen, nothing to commence work with another year. There is much cheerfulness among the blacks; they laugh at those who say they will starve; they say the land will raise produce, and they can work it.

Mississippi is gone up unless she gets an influx of capital from the North; in no place would it pay better.

There is a better feeling among white and black than most suppose. They begin to feel that they are in the same boat, so far as material prosperity is concerned. He thinks that a state constitution giving suffrage to the black man will not be widely objected to by the whites. There is other anticipated legislation by the convention that will be stoutly resisted, but the majority of the people do not think it wise to deny a man a vote on account of his color.

The colored people are not expecting assistance from the government in the way of provisions, nor is Mississippi a great poorhouse. Money and corn is scarce, but the people can take care of themselves.

The greatest and most amiable privilege which the rich enjoy over the poor is that which they exercise the least—the privilege of making them happy.

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months..... 2 00
Three Months..... 1 00

INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 18, 1868.

New Volume.

With last week's issue we commenced the Third Volume of the New Orleans Advocate. The prospects before us are flattering. At the late session of our Conference, the preachers ordered in the aggregate over seven hundred copies to be sent to their charges. This was exceedingly encouraging, and we commence the year with renewed zeal.

Although the editor-in-chief is required to discharge the duties of a presiding elder and of a pastor, and the assistant editor has the charge of two churches, yet it is our purpose to devote all the time possible to the Advocate, that it may be one of the best church papers in the South. And it is equally due the editors to state, that they work on the paper without any remuneration whatever; and, also, that the editor is financially responsible for the current expenses of the Advocate. We thus labor for the love of God. Our mission is to do good, and to this end we employ the press, one of the mightiest of all the christianizing agencies known to the world.

At the late session of our conference, the Advocate was enthusiastically indorsed by the preachers. Bishop Ames, and Revs Messrs. Diossy, Henry, Lynch, Ross, Green, Chinn, and many others, spoke in terms of commendation and of devotion to this great church interest. And our preachers are the best judges of the amount of good the Advocate is accomplishing. It is their assistant preacher, repeating their pulpit utterances in the quiet of the family. And as these preachers carry it into all the interior parishes of the State, the Advocate has a larger country circulation than any other loyal journal in Louisiana.

At the conference, the question of subscription was thoroughly discussed, and after due deliberation we have concluded to reduce the price of the Advocate to Three Dollars a Year in Advance, or One Dollar a Quarter in Advance. This is as low as we can possibly afford to publish the paper, and at this price we but just pay expenses. But we intend to make the Advocate fully worth this amount.

With this number we commence the official publication of the proceedings of our State Constitutional Convention, which will be found on our supplement sheet. Our readers in the country parishes need not therefore, purchase other papers to obtain these proceedings, as they will find them in their own Advocate.

And now we cordially invite the co-operation of every Preacher, Subscriber, and Friend of the church and the country to the hearty support of the New Orleans Advocate.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

Rev. Dr. Newman

will preach in his church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, and at 7 o'clock in the evening. All are invited to attend, especially strangers.

New Orleans Advocate.

At the late session of the Mississippi Mission Conference, the Rev. James Lynch offered a resolution indorsing the New Orleans Advocate, and after enthusiastic speeches in favor of the paper by Bishop Ames, and Rev. Messrs. Lynch, Ross, Green, Chinn, and others, the resolution was adopted. The resolution was drawn in excellent language, and was highly complimentary to the Advocate. But this resolution has been lost, which is the reason for its non-appearance in print. As it is an official document, and should be recorded on the Conference journal, we hope the Secretary of the Conference will reproduce the same. As a Conference journal contains the official acts of a Conference, and is a record of history, it should be kept with the utmost accuracy, and be deemed inviolable.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the Advocate they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the Advocate for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

To Young Men.

The young men of the city are cordially invited to meet in the chapel of our church. next Monday evening, at 7 o'clock, to form a Young Men's Association, for their religious improvement and social enjoyment. All are cordially invited, and especially the young men who are strangers in our city. You are welcome.

Who Built the Church?

The New Orleans Tribune and New Orleans Times say that the money for the erection of the Ames M. E. Church was collected from the colored people. But the editors of these journals have been misinformed, and we will be obliged to them if they will give us the names of the colored persons who subscribed, the amounts subscribed and the names of the gentlemen to whom the money was paid. Come, gentlemen, let us have the names and the figures. We know that toward the $50,000, Mr. F. K. Hyde subscribed $10 on the day of the dedication of the chapel; but neither the pastor nor the trustees of the church are knowing to another colored person who has given a dollar for that church; and we hazard the assertion that all told not fifty dollars have been given by our colored friends. We stand ready to give the names of every individual who has subscribed a dollar, and we demand the same from the above-named journal, in whose behalf they write. We shall be glad to know who the two colored men are who stated at the dinner given to Messrs. Langston and De Mortie, that one had given $20 and the other $25 toward the church. Mr. Tribune, give us the names and we will give the gentlemen due and public credit. But with the names we demand also to know to whom the money was paid. Don't be afraid, gentlemen; out with the facts. And when we get an answer to our question, we may have something more to say on this subject.

Grand Collation.

There is to be a grand collation next Monday night at Wesleyan Hall, for the benefit of Wesley Chapel. We hope our friends will go in hundreds. Only half a dollar admission to a splendid supper. Hundreds can be accommodated. If you have not tickets pay at the door. It will be a splendid time. Let everybody go.

Political.

National politics are more hopeful to-day, than they have been for many months. The reinstatement of Mr. Stanton into the war office by the United States Senate, is an indication that the noble men who are the leaders of the Republican party, are determined to stand by the laws which they had passed. We were accustomed to look to the House for the men who dared to grapple with Johnson, and to regard the Senate as a timid body; but all hail to the United States Senate! We are justly proud of the men who have boldly demanded the faithful execution of the laws, and who have bade defiance to the usurper of the White House. And the hands of the loyal men of the nation have been strengthened by the prompt action of Gen. Grant. He waited for the time to come and spoke out by deeds which speak louder than actions. We now have Congress and the army, the people and God, against Andrew Johnson, the conservatives and the devil. And to insure, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the complete triumph of the reconstruction principles on which the war was fought, we feel confident that Congress will pass such other laws as the political needs of the South require.

Turning from national to State politics, we think the signs of the times are equally hopeful. The Union men of Louisiana are becoming more and more united, and on the day of the coming election will make a gallant and we trust a triumphant fight. A State ticket is now before the people. It was made during our absence from the city, hence we neither claim credit for the nomination of the good men put upon the ticket, nor do we share the responsibility of nominating the bad men who are offered for the suffrages of the people. Some of the nominees we shall heartily support, nnd some we shall as heartily oppose. Having no political ends to serve, we are at liberty to approve or disapprove as we are convinced the interests of religion and humanity demand. But that the Republican party will be triumphant in Louisiana, we entertain not a shadow of a doubt. We have a majority of legal voters in the State, and we shall carry the election by a handsome majority. And this triumph shall be the consummation of our wishes, and the crowning glory of our long and successful struggle.

Bishop Ames in Texas.

[CONCLUDED.]

At nine o'clock in the morning of Jan. 3, Bishop Ames formally opened the Texas Mission Conference. Most of the preachers were present and well dressed, and seemed in good spirits. The presiding elders made detailed and exceedingly encouraging reports. These reports contained the gratifying intelligence that there are now within the bounds of the Conference nearly 3500 members; 45 local preachers, 1000 Sunday school scholars and $20,000 worth of church property. And these are the results of the labors of two years. God be praised! Chief among the presiding elders is the Rev. Joseph Welch. His is called the Texas District—that is, he takes all of Texas not occupied by some other elder. Yet a young man, of quick and active mind, and possessing those elements which make a successful pioneer, he has traversed that vast State, preaching the word, organizing churches and exercising a general superintendence over the entire work. At Austin he has been quite successful in gathering the whites into our church, and also at other points in the State. Like some of our men in this Southern work, he has labored under the embarrassment of having too much work to do; yet Mr. Welch has done thoroughly what he has done He is held in high esteem by his brethren, who honored him with a unanimous election as representative to our next General Conference; there being no one having the vanity to oppose him, or the temerity to hazard a certain defeat in running against him.

Next in the list is W. R. Fayle, who came to us from the church South. Without sympathy either for slavery or the rebellion, he waited patiently for the coming of the old church, and was the first to enter her open portals. Quiet in his demeanor, he is intelligent, laborious and efficient, respected by the whites and beloved by the blacks, he is doing the church good service in Houston. It was around his well-spread table where we gathered several times, enjoying his hospitality and the refined amenities of his domestic life.

From the church South, also came T. B. Ferguson, a tall, spare, active man. A Texan all over, he has energy, pluck and endurance. Not priding himself on his polish, he displays much common sense in the duties of the Conference. Full of good nature, he enjoys a good story and can tell one as well as the next man. The following will illustrate how our colored people hate even the language of slavery: Mr. Ferguson, in representing his district, used the word "niggar;" in a moment a murmur arose from the colored preachers, and the brother was called upon to explain, which he did with characteristic good humor.

Last year C. Biel was presiding elder of the German district, who with several preachers and members had come from the church South. He is a modest man, and like most modest men is sincere and earnest, and accomplishes a world of work in a quiet way. His successor is Gustavus Elly, an elderly man and really good-looking. The ranks of our German brethren were strengthened by the re-admission into the Conference of Peter A. Moelling, a good scholar and a man destined to be a power in the church. While associated with these brethren, we were sensibly impressed with the importance of our German work in Texas, and especially in the near future. There are now 15,000 Germans in the State, and the number is weekly increasing.

It was our good fortune to be the guest of Rev. C. W. Honey, Secretary of the Conference, and clerk of the Supreme Court of Texas. He came to us from the Protestant Methodist Church, and is a strong advocate for the union of all Methodist bodies. He is a young man of ability and is happy in his work. He and his excellent lady were unsparing in their pains to make the Bishop and the writer comfortable at their home. Brother Honey is stationed at Galveston, where he will gather together a large congregation of whites.

The colored preachers in the Texas Conference appeared to good advantage. There was Brooks, of the steady flow, and Davis, who is more brilliant than solid, and Gregory, who is more solid than brilliant, and Osborn, the active member of the militant church, who are from our Thomas Biblical Institute, and who are efficient pastors and improving preachers. Time fails us to mention Williams, who is the great colored preacher of the Conference, and Elias Dibble, a true and noble man, and many others who are doing a good work for the Master. God bless them all!

On the last day of the Conference (Saturday) Bishop Ames preached at 11 o'clock A. M., and ordained the deacons and elders.

The church was well filled and in the congregation were Rev. Messrs. Carter and Cox of the church South. The Bishop's sermon was a glorious exposition of the power of the Gospel. In listeniug to this discourse, we were surprised at the freshness and fulness of the Bishop's emotions. Notwithstanding the humbleness of the place and that nineteen-twentieths of the audience were unlettered, yet he who was accustomed to preach before the learned and the mighty, preached on this occasion, in a manner not unworthy of man's worth and the Master's glory. Thus closed the second session of the Texas Mission Conference.

It was two o'clock P. M. when we took the train for Galveston, and we congratulated each other that we were not on the Era No. 3, stuck on Redfish sand-bar or dragging through Cloper's canal, at the rate of one mile in three hours. Yet we were destined to another steamboat experience. The long bridge over Virginia Bay had been destroyed by the late terrible storm, and at Virginia Point, we were compelled to take a little nut-shell of a steamer called Cash, which on an average made a mile an hour. It is the slowest steamer afloat, and the Bishop's wonder was, how any man living or dead could make a steamer, perfect in all its parts, to go so slow. If slowness was the object of the machinist, he had succeed admirably; and in a boat-race, if the last boat in should receive the prize, the "Cash" would be sure to win.

The next day was the Holy Sabbath. The sun shone in a cloudless sky, and the old ocean's roar, as the waves rolled on the neighboring shore, awakened in the soul thoughts of the majesty of God. At 11 o'clock A. M., in the room of the Supreme Court, Bishop Ames preached on Faith, to a good congregation. And, Oh! how the people cried! Men—merchants and lawyers—unused to weep, wept under the mighty power of God's word. That was the seed time, and the precious seed was sown in tears, to be harvested amid the shoutings of the holy reapers. This blessed occasion only deepened the conviction that a great and effectual door is open to us in Texas, and only intensified the wish, that we had half a million of dollars to plant the Church of God in that great State. But God will provide.

Our brethren accompanied us to the ship, and we returned to the Crescent City, impressed with the greatness of our work in the Southwest.

OUR ORPHAN'S HOME.

The second annual meeting of the Orphan's Home Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was held in Wesley Chapel on last Monday evening. The old church was filled, and the occasion was one of deep interest. The annual reports from the several officers may be found in another column, together with a list of the officers elected. But the most interesting feature of the evening was the exercises by the orphans. They were under the joint care of Mrs. Roberts, the matron, Miss Sampson, the teacher, and Dr. McKay, the medical inspector of Louisiana. The children sang and recited pieces, all of which pleased the people very much. The children looked neat and clean, sang sweetly, and spoke correctly. They pronounced their words with much correctness, and some of them were loudly cheered. We were glad the orphans were there. This gratified the people, and impressed them with this God-like charity, and we hope that in the future they will take a deeper interest in the "Home." And we earnestly commend this institution of mercy to the people. It must be supported. You should lay aside a little each month for these poor orphans. They must be fed and clothed, and educated, and to the people we look for the means. We rejoice that some of our churches are taking a deep interest in the "Home."

After the children's exercises, short addresses were made by Rev. R. K. Diossy and General Cyrus Bussy. The former gentleman described our plantation and the improvements going on; and the General declared that his heart had been affected by what he had seen and heard that night. Just at the close of the meeting, some one unknown to fame and not possessed of common sense, threw an apple of discord into the meeting, but it was so effectually smashed that, like the apple of Sodom when squeezed, there was nothing left of it. And the people shouted over the good ending of the meeting.

Information Wanted.

Aaron Washington, living corner of Esplanade and Royal streets, at Mr. A. C. Trémoulet's, would be very thankful for any information which would lead him to discover if his father, Aaron Small, his sisters, Milay, Susan and Crishy, all formerly belonging to Mrs. Maor, on Church street, between South and East Bay, Charleston, South Carolina, are in the city, or if any body knows anything of either of them.

Rev. James Lynch

Was to have left Baltimore with his family on Jan. 21 for Jackson, Mississippi. A list of his quarterly meetings will appear in our next issue, and also an article on his trip in the North.

Whining.—A curate who adopted a monotonous whine in his prayers, on being remonstrated with by his diocesan, pleaded that such a tone was very proper in acts of supplication, because beggars always assumed a whine when they asked for alms. The bishop replied: "Yes: but when they do I always know that they are impostors, and give them nothing."

Annual Meeting of the Orphan's Home.

According to a resolution adopted at the second annual meeting of the Orphan's Home Society, held January 13, an adjourned annual meeting was held in Wesley Chapel January 20th, at 7 o'clock P. M.

The meeting was opened with singing by the congregation, and prayer by Rev. R. K. Diossy.

The President of the Society then made some statements with regard to the present condition and prospects of the "Home."

The minutes of the first annual meeting were read; after which the reports of various officers were presented in the following order:

TREASURER'S REPORT.

NEW ORLEANS, January 13, 1868.

Now that this society has become one of the important institutions of the state and is being permanently established and attracting some of the public attention, I will in this report go back and recapitulate the items in my first annual report.

| 1866. | Dr. |
|---|---|
| December 31—To cash received of fifteen persons at the organization of the society, $1 each | $ 15 00 |
| To cash received for officers and soldiers of the 116th United States infantry (colored) | 110 50 |
| December 9—To cash received from United States infantry (colored) of Maryland | 110 00 |
| To cash received from Samaritans' missionary society of Wesley chapel | 47 00 |
| To cash received from Nicholas Wright | 1 00 |
| To cash received from Union Sons' Relief association, H. Clay, president | 105 00 |
| To cash received from Rev. Henry Green's church, First street | 99 75 |
| To cash received from Rev. Henry Green's church, second collection by Rev. Henry | 14 50 |
| To cash received from Hon. J. M. Wells, $5; Rev. A. McDonald, $5 | 10 00 |
| To cash received from Freedmen's bureau | 10,000 00 |
| 1867. | |
| January 1—To cash received from a lady to make Rev. C. Williams and W. B. Armstrong life members | 50 00 |
| To cash received to make Dr. E. H. Harris life member | 20 20 |
| To cash received from J. S. Walton, treasurer Congregational church | 18 15 |
| To cash received from Mrs. J. S. Walton from Mrs. J. Camp, of Utica, New York | 10 00 |
| To cash received from officers and employes of Rast Home Colony | 75 25 |
| To cash received from Messrs. Harmoult & Fairchild for Lincoln school | 16 00 |
| To cash received from Rev. W. M. Henry, collected from the officers and privates of the tenth United States colored regiment | 159 00 |
| To cash received from James Jenkins, colored soldier, to make Mrs. Dr. E. H. Harris a life member | 25 00 |
| To cash received from N. L. Brakeman for the officers and soldiers of the eightieth United States infantry, colored | 93 75 |
| To cash received from Mrs. Henry Green as collection | 73 15 |
| To cash received from Samuel Willets and others, of New York | 1,000 00 |
| To cash received from Henry M. Loing and others, of Philadelphia | 750 00 |
| To cash received from Barker & Brothers, of Philadelphia | 160 00 |
| To cash received from Thomas P. May, New Orleans | 100 00 |
| To cash received from Rev. J. P. Newman from freedmen's bureau | 3,000 00 |
| To cash received from D. B. Macarty, of New Orleans | 25 00 |
| To cash received from James Banker Congdon, New Bedford | 30 00 |
| To cash received from Mrs. D. E. C. Heyde | 1 00 |
| To cash from Rev. R. C. Rounsville and others, of Chicago | 920 85 |
| To cash from George L. Stearns and others, Boston | 1,000 00 |
| To cash premium on the above draft | 75 |
| To cash from Samuel R. Shepley & Co., of Philadelphia | 250 00 |
| To cash from friends of Madam L. De Montie in the North | 150 00 |
| To cash from Mrs. Poff's collection | 8 85 |
| To cash from M. C. Cope, of Philadelphia (donation | 200 00 |
| To cash from Rev. J. P. Newman from City Council, a donation in State notes | 2,940 00 |
| To cash from Rev. Thomas Kenady, collection taken up in Donaldsonville circuit for the home | 11 75 |
| To cash, being amount of collection taken at the Mechanics' Institute, July 30, 1867 | 25 00 |
| To cash from Honorable B. F. Flanders | 20 00 |
| To cash from Rev. Henry Green's church | 72 00 |
| | $5,602 20 |
| Credit | $19,671 08 |
| | $ 2,051 01 |
| Of this sum from F. B. | $13,000 00 |
| Northern cities | 4,460 85 |
| City Council | 2,940 00 |
| Individuals and societies | 1,321 24 |
| | $21,722 09 |

NEW ORLEANS, January 18, 1868.

TREASURER'S ACCOUNT WITH THE ORPHANS' HOME SOCIETY.

| 1867. | CR. |
|---|---|
| March 9—By cash paid telegraph to Madame de Montie, Boston | $ 6 60 |
| By cash to employes of the Home, as per bills approved | 54 60 |
| By cash, telegraph to Chicago | 2 75 |
| March 29..By cash, discount on our $1000 note in First National Bank | 62 62 |
| By cash to Madame de Montie as an outfit when going North to solicit subscriptions for the Home | 125 78 |
| By cash paid her incidental traveling expenses | 126 78 |
| April—By cash, telegraph from Chicago | 2 75 |
| May—By cash, discount on our $1700 note to First National Bank | 13 70 |
| By cash, hack hire for friends to visit the Home | 3 80 |
| May 16—By cash to Miller & Chase for printing | 20 00 |
| June—By cash, our note in First National Bank | 1,700 00 |
| June 13—By cash, freight and storage on boxes from Boston with donations for the Home | 4 56 |
| July—By cash to employes of the Home | 55 00 |
| By cash to Mrs. Rachel Harris as Teacher at Home for the months of April and May | 60 00 |
| August—By cash to Miss S. A. Sampson as Teacher at the Home for two months, from 15th June to 15th August | 90 00 |
| August 8—By cash paid Madame de Montie as matron | 25 00 |
| By cash paid employes of the Home | 30 00 |
| By cash paid for one barrel of soap | 2 00 |
| By cash paid for telegraph from Franklin | 1 00 |
| By cash paid for bill of dry goods | 4 90 |
| By cash paid for telegraph to Franklin | 3 15 |
| September 8—By cash paid employes of the Home. | 35 00 |
| By cash paid Madame de Montie as matron | 25 00 |
| By cash paid the Home plantation | 14,000 00 |
| October 8—By cash paid for traveling expenses of committee to visit the plantation at Franklin, Messrs. J. P. Newman, R. K. Howell, and J. Page | 56 00 |
| November 8—By cash paid Madame de Montie, salary for September | 25 00 |
| By cash paid to employes and teachers at the Home | 244 37 |
| By cash paid for labor and material for fencing on the Home plantation | 400 00 |
| By cash for discount of thirty-two per cent on $2940 state notes from city council | 940 80 |
| December 8—By cash to employes, and fencing materials on the Home plantation | 822 00 |
| By cash to J. Page for draft of the Home building | 20 00 |
| By cash paid for three barrels of sweet potatoes for the Home | 9 00 |
| By cash paid for seed sugar cane for Home plantation | 700 00 |
| | $19,671 08 |

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY OF THE ORPHAN'S HOME SOCIETY, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

To the Board of Managers of the Orphan's Home Society:

Your corresponding Secretary has but a brief report to make for the year 1867. Gratefully acknowledging the confidence you have reposed in him, and congratulating you upon the marked success which has attended the Home the past year, he would say that—

Early in the year correspondence was opened with Hon. George Peabody, and an effort made to secure to the Home some benefit (in the way of aid to our school) from Mr. P.'s munificent donation to the cause of education in the South. Your Secretary was referred to Mr. Sears, his agent for the South, who, in effect, replied that Mr. P.'s donation was for the exclusive benefit of schools as such; that our orphan's school was a part of the Home, which, being a benevelent institution, was not entitled to any aid from the "Peabody Fund."

In a few instances your Secretary has received letters of inquiry from persons and organizations asking for information as to the Home, the school, and their present condition, usefulness, and future prospects. Such letters have been received from New York, Philadelphia, and Washington. The Society of Friends (Quakers), both in New York and Philadelphia, have given us quite liberal donations, as the report of your treasurer will show; and others have suggested that an industrial department be established in the Home. But it is well known that the Board of Managers had already determined upon such action.

The above are indications of the interest already felt in our young and growing institution. They should greatly encourage us in our benevolent work, and be received as earnests of that attention, sympathy, and material support which the institution and its managers may expect in the future, and, we will hope, in still greater abundance, for the Scripture saith, "He that hath to him shall be given." And if it should be your lot to experience a lack of sympathy and support even where you have most reason to expect aid and comfort, remember, again, that "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth."

It is not to be doubted that God will multiply for us the friends of the friendless, until we shall receive that substantial support and success which will enable us to provide comfortably for hundreds of the homeless.

Recently we have written to the Freedmens' Aid Society, at Cincinnati, asking aid to support an assistant teacher in the school for our Home. But as yet no definite answer has been received. They have heretofore stated that $15 per month is all they will be able to pay their teachers this year. It is hoped we may yet hear that they will be able to aid us in that amount in our school.

Your secretary, upon recommendation of some members of the Board, would call attention to the fact that another and older institution than ours in this city, bears much the same name, and would recommend that our charter be so amended as to allow of such change in our title as may seem necessary or expedient to make.

N. L. BRAKEMAN,
Cor. Sec. O. H. Society.

New Orleans, Jan. 13, 1868.

REPORT OF RECORDING SECRETARY.

The board have held monthly meetings during the year, beside special meetings which have been called, as circumstances have required. One of our most active managers (Dr. Harris) removed to the North last summer. Two members of our board (Mrs. Green and Mrs. DeMortie) have been summoned to their eternal home. The former, who performed her duties as manager and member of the visiting committee in a manner which indicated a deep interest in our cause, died suddenly in September. A few years since Mrs. Louise DeMortie, impelled by a strong desire to contribute to the welfare and advancement of that class whose condition had been so suddenly and entirely changed by the "Act of Emancipation," left her home in Boston and came to this city. She soon determined to found an asylum where colored orphans might find a home. She gathered a little company of these children, which in a short time received large accessions to its numbers, and after this society was organized and the institution thus originated, came under our care, she was elected its matron. She doubtless looked forward to many years of usefulness in this her chosen sphere, but God had ordered otherwise, and on the 9th of last October she was called to take a final leave of all earthly interests and duties.

During the late sickly season there were many cases of illness amongst the children at the "Home" and several deaths.

Three of the orphans were victims of the desolating epidemic, which invaded so many institutions as well as private families during the last season.

There are now at the Orphan's Home more than eighty children, most of whom are in good health. Those who are old enough to be taught to read are making good progress in learning, under the tuition of a faithful and competent teacher. A lady now presides as matron who by the warm interest which she feels in the fatherless ones committed to her charge, and by her administrative capacity, is well fitted for the station which she occupies.

It was mentioned at the last annual meeting that Mr. De Bossiere, a benevolent French gentleman, had promised to give the sum of ten thousand dollars to the home, provided the society could raise twenty thousand dollars from other sources at an early period.

We succeeded in obtaining the twenty thousand dollars, (chiefly through the contributions of friends at the North,) and the amount was deposited in the Bank of America, on the first of April. Last autumn, the Board purchased a valuable and desirable plantation upon the banks of the Teche, for the sum of fourteen thousand dollars. A contract has been made with a builder to convert a large sugar-house upon the place, into a convenient and comfortable dwelling, and the work has already commenced. The location is a healthy one, and it is believed, that here, the orphans will find a delightful home. The garden (which will be cultivated by the larger boys,) will afford them an abundant supply of fruits and vegetables, thus securing to them a far more agreeable and wholesome diet than is furnished them in the city. There are on this plantation over seven hundred acres of rich sugar land. This tract the Board propose to lease in small portions, to steady and industrious settlers, and they hope from this source and from other elements of profit which the plantation presents, to derive hereafter a revenue which shall support the Institution. But our land will not yield this income immediately, and the question "how shall we provide for our current expenses until we can obtain this revenue?" is one which occasions us some anxiety. The money now remaining in the treasury can (by the condition attached to Mr. Bossiere's donation) be used only for the erection of buildings and the improvement of the property. We have, hitherto, been greatly assisted by the Freedmen's Bureau, but we cannot hope to derive aid from this source much longer.

The propriety of providing asylums for destitute orphans will hardly be questioned. The existence of numerous institutions of this kind in all our large cities, evinces how generally the necessity for them has been acknowledged. Nor has New Orleans been behind any city in appreciating and meeting this necessity. But the doors of its asylums have been closed to the colored orphan, and it is for the benefit of this class especially, that our "Home" was established. Those who have been admitted to its circle, were the children of those who, being themselves slaves under the absolute control of others, had little opportunity to shape the character and destinies of their offspring. That these parents, after long years of toil, were unable to bequeath to their children any stocks, or deposits in bank, or landed estates, can hardly be charged to their improvident; should not the case of this class of orphans, then, awaken an interest in the hearts of the benevolent, and lead them to contribute liberally to their support?

We do not propose to rear these children in luxurious indolence. They will be taught that the possession of freedom does not imply the right to be idle, but only furnishes incentives to earnest persevering industry. They will be instructed that while they may assert and maintain their own rights, they must be careful not to infringe upon the rights of others. They will be told that it is of infinitely less consequence to obtain positions of honor and profit in the world than to secure an interest in the heavenly inheritance, to obtain the honor which comes from God only.

And may He who has styled Himself the Father of the fatherless, bless our efforts to sustain this Institution.

SOPHIA WALTON,
Secretary.

New Orleans, Jan. 20, 1868.

All of which were accepted.

A motion was adopted that the president appoint a committee of three to nominate officers for the ensuing year. Capt. Armstrong, Mr. Ross, and Mrs. Richardson were appointed. After deliberation they presented the following names to the Society:

President—Rev. J. P. Newman, D. D.

First Vice President—R. K. Howell.

Second Vice President—Rev. A. Ross.

Treasurer—W. B. Armstrong.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. N. L. Brakeman.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. Sophia Dalton.

BOARD OF MANAGERS.

John Page, J. S. Dalton, Joseph Dalton, Mrs. J. P. Newman, Mrs. D. B. Armstrong, Mrs. L. M. Richardson, Mrs. H. M. Soff, Mrs. R. K. Diossy, Mrs. Clarissa M. Hyde.

These persons were all unanimously elected to the offices attached to their respective names.

An opportunity was afforded to persons present to become members of the Society by subscription, and a collection was also taken up.

The children connected with the "Home" entertained the audience for some time by singing and recitations—their performances indicating that they had improved the advantages afforded them.

PROGRAMME.

Song—America—By the children.

Recitation—Fresh Air—Master Morris Green.

Recitation—Look Aloft—Master Thomas Harris.

Song—Bird Carol—By six little children.

Recitation—Jesus Loves Me—Miss Adaline Lyons.

Recitation—The Red Sugar Horse—Emma Wells.

Recitation—The Sword of Bunker Hill—Gilbert Newman.

Song—We are Coming, Blessed Saviour—By the children.

Recitation—Doing Good—Zenno Green.

Recitation—No Slave beneath that Starry Flag—Joseph Manley.

Song—The Schoolroom.

Recitation—God bless our Native Land—Wm. Richard.

Recitation—Tobacco—Addison Turnich.

Recitation—Barbara Fritchie—Rosetta Prolyte.

Song—The Evergreen Shore.

Addresses were made by Rev. R. K. Dirossy, Gen. Bussy, and Mr. DeMortier.

The exercises were closed by the singing of the doxology, and the Society adjourned.

SOPHIA DALTON,
Secretary.

REVIVAL ITEMS.

A gracious revival is now in progress in the Lexington avenue M. E. church, of which church Rev. William H. Evans is pastor. The altar is nightly thronged with penitents. The membership of this church have long been crying, "O Lord, revive thy work!" and in answer to prayer God is graciously visiting this people. Parents and children, husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, are together seeking and finding the pearl of great price.

An interesting work is in progress in Greenwich, Connecticut, Rev. W. F. Hatfield, pastor. The altar is nightly surrounded with penitents, the majority of whom are young men, and heads of families.

At North Hillsdale, New York, Rev. E. Ashton, pastor, over forty have professed conversion in a blessed revival work now in progress. Many of them have already united with the church.

Rev. J. W. Cornelius, of Ellicott City, Maryland, reports eighty accessions to the church in his charge during the fall. The year has been one of prosperity. The pastor is doing an excellent work.

The Lord is graciously reviving his work at Canandaigua, New York, Rev. J. Alabaster, pastor. The church has been very powerfully quickened, backsliders have been reclaimed, and over fifty have professed conversion. The visit of the Auburn praying band was greatly blessed to the forwarding of this work.

PERKINSVILLE, IND.—Rev. F. A. Fish, December 18, says: "The Lord has visited Perkinsville circuit, North Indiana conference, once more. We have just closed up a protracted meeting at the Simmons appointment, which resulted in thirty-six additions to the church, and about as many conversions. They are preparing to build a church, which will be completed next summer."

BOWERSVILLE CIRCUIT, CINCINNATI CONFERENCE.—A. D. Raleigh, December 16: "We have a gracious revival in progress at Canton. The church is greatly revived, backsliders reclaimed, and sinners converted to God. Some of our meetings have been seasons of great power. We expect to more than double our subscribers for the Advocate."

WASHINGTON SQUARE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, NEW YORK CITY, Rev. Dr. Foster, pastor, is enjoying an excellent season of revival. During the last five or six weeks some thirty have professed conversion.

NEW HARMONY CIRCUIT, INDIANA CONFERENCE.—H. J. Barr, December 15: "Since conference thirty-eight have joined, and the membership has been quickened, backsliders reclaimed, and sinners converted. I have more than doubled the list of subscribers for the Western Christian Advocate. In the town of New Harmony—noted for infidelity—the postmaster informs me that more Western Christian Advocates come than at any period in the past. The God of hosts is with us in the pocket of Indiana, and we expect greater things."

WEST LIBERTY CHARGE, IOWA CONFERENCE.—C. Morey, December 17: "The church is working; mourners are being converted; weeping penitents are at the altar; the interest is deepening and widening. Sixty-four have joined the Methodist Episcopal church up to this date, and some have gone to other churches who were converted at our altars. Quite a number are heads of families."

WESTFIELD CIRCUIT, NORTH INDIANA CONFERENCE.—George Havens, December 17: "I found on this charge three Advocates. I am trying to increase our number. My list up to this date is thirty. God is reviving his work gloriously. Penitents at the altar every night, and many are converted. I am happy."

FAIRLAND CIRCUIT, SOUTHEASTERN INDIANA CONFERENCE.—Rev. S. Pinkerton writes: "After repairing our church here, by papering, carpeting, putting up a chandelier, etc., we commenced a series of meetings, which we have kept up with increasing interest for nearly four weeks. Our membership are much revived and encouraged; twenty-six have united with the church—two by letter, and twenty-four on probation."

The Chicken Ovens.

From one of our exchanges we extract the following from a letter of the Rev. D. A. Randall, now traveling in Egypt:

Egypt has long been noted for the multitude of its chickens hatched by artificial heat. The eggs are stowed by thousands into great ovens, heated to a degree corresponding to the warmth of the parent hen, and in due time, though eggs are close things, the chickens do come out. This business is still carried on quite extensively. The eggs are placed in large ovens, upon mats of straw, tier upon tier. A building containing from twelve to twenty-four ovens is called a maamal, and receives at one time about one hundred and fifty thousand eggs. A number of years ago an official report to the government gave in lower Egypt alone one hundred and five of these establishments, using up annually over nineteen millions of eggs, of which about six millions are spoiled in hatching, and from the balance about thirteen millions of chickens are produced. What a privileged class of hens they have in this country! More than a million and a half of them are saved the trouble of hatching their own chickens, and a vast amount of toilsome labor in rearing their broods. They seem to walk about like little aristocrats, for they have nothing to do but lay their eggs and cackle ove them for joy.

An Adventure with Wolves.

Trebizond is a city on the shores of the Black sea. A few miles from the town lived a Greek boy, Yani, on his father's farm. It was a rather rough life that he led. He had to get up early every morning and walk several miles to the fields, where he and his father toiled in the hot days of summer. A crust of coarse brown bread, and sometimes a little bad cheese, was all he had to eat, but in vintage time he could pick rich purple clusters of grapes in the vineyards, and eat them with his bread when resting at noonday under the shade of an olive or fig tree. They plowed, or rather scratched, the soil with a primitive plow made of a pointed stake, such as was used thousands of years ago in the days of Abraham; and in harvest time they thrashed the barley and the wheat on a thrashing-floor such as you may read of in the book of Ruth. A round space on the ground, beaten flat, was strewed with the grain, over which horses were then driven till it was thoroughly thrashed, and then the farmer tossed it up in the air, and the wind blew away the chaff, while the wheat fell to the ground. Many allusions to this mode of thrashing are to be found in the Bible. During harvest time they used to sleep at the thrashing floor as it was some distance to the hovel where they lived.

When Yani was about ten or twelve years of age he had a rather uncomfortable adventure. The harvest season was just over, and when they had left the thrashing-floor in the evening his father bade him bring the key of the barn. This he forgot to do; but in the middle of the night he was awaked by the yelping of a jackal. He then remembered that he had forgotten his father's injunction, and he knew very well that if the key was not forthcoming the next morning a severe beating was in store for him. He would have started off at once to get it, but recollected that he might be eaten by the wolves, not such wolves as we have on our prairies, small and timid as foxes, but genuine wolves, ravenous and large as the largest mastiffs.

Yani debated the matter in his mind for some time, but as the whipping was a certainty, and the wolf only a probability, he concluded to risk the latter, and getting up quietly opened the door softly, so as not to arouse the family, for they all slept in one room, parents and children, cattle and poultry. It was a clear still night, the full moon rising above the hills and throwing long shadows across the fields from the trees and bushes. Yani stole along with hesitating steps, starting whenever the night wind caused the leaves to shiver, or a dark object seemed to cross his path. But like a true boy the farther he went without meeting any thing, the braver he became. An owl by the wayside, that must have been dozing and was suddenly awakened, gave a fearful hoot in the thicket close by as if to assure himself that he was not sleeping. Yani thought he would have died with fright, but kept on and without further incident reached the barn, which stood alone on a hillock by the thrashing-floor, locked it, took the key, and started homeward. The barn door was on the northwest side, and in order to return home Yani had to go around the corner and end of the barn. As he reached the corner of the barn and was still hidden by its shadow he saw a sight that sent the blood back to his heart and almost froze him with terror. On the thrashing-floor, that was white as snow in the moonlight, lay in clear sharp outline the shadow of the wolf who was himself invisible on the other side of the barn. Luckily Yani had presence of mind enough or was too frightened to stir out of the shade of the barn, and the wind blowing from the east was doubtless the reason why the wolf did not scent him. For some moments the wolf stood still, snuffing the night air, licking his hungry chops, or maliciously wagging his bushy tail, every motion being repeated by his tell-tale shadow. Very softly Yani dropped on his hands and knees and edged against the dark side of the barn, from whence he could watch the shadow unseen. The shadow began to move; the wolf was becoming restless; something had aroused his suspicions; the shadow moved forward and then retired till nothing was seen but the shadow of the end of the wolf's tail. Again the shadow advanced and the wolf himself came out and stood dark against the moon, his eyes glaring like coals of fire, and a low growl issuing from his chest.

In proportion as the wolf came forward, Yani crept backward to the other end of the barn, till he was himself almost in the light, and the wolf in the darkness; then the wolf again retreated. This dodging occurred several times, till Yani at one time got so far to windward that the wolf apparently snuffed him so distinctly as to induce him to draw gradually nearer to him. Yani then slipped around a large stone, and, hidden by its shadow, rolled down the hill into a clump of bushes. The wolf followed cautiously, stopping every few steps to give a long low howl, as if to get up his courage, or summon his companions to share in the anticipated feast. Fast as his legs could carry him, Yani flew over the ground till he heard the wolf close behind, the dry twigs crackling as the hungry beast bounded toward his prey. The boy made a dash for a dwarf oak, and scrambled up as he never climbed before, barely reaching a secure height as the wolf sprang in the air and sought to grab his feet.

Yani now felt comparatively safe, even when he perceived that the wolf's barking had attracted another wolf to the spot, who stealthily crept on from the bushes, and, after taking a survey of the "situation," and making two or three ineffectual efforts to seize the imprisoned boy, sat on his haunches and joined wolf number one in watching the prey that was so near and yet so secure from their fangs. Now and then both would leap up with furious cries, as if they would knock over the tree. Yani meanwhile looked toward the east, watching for the first streak of dawn, for he knew that his friends would come to the rescue at daybreak, and yet the time seemed long as he clung to the branch that supported him, and tried not to fall asleep in his weariness, and thus drop into the clutch of his ravenous watchers. Once he thought he heard the cock crow far away on his father's farm, and soon after the eastern sky began to grow ruddy, and the moon grew cold, and dim, and the wolves became more impatient, howling with rage, and starting sometimes as though they heard sounds that aroused their fears.

Swiftly the sun shot up above the hills, and Yani's anxious ear told him that the expected deliverance was near. As the boy had supposed, on rising at daylight, his father missed his son, and conjecturing what might be the matter, took down his curious old flint-lock and long knife, and summoning the great shaggy shepherd dog that watched the flock, started in the direction of the barn. The sagacious brute bounded forward as if he knew all about it, and before long they were in the vicinity of the scene of action. As the deep barking of the dog and the shouting of the father were borne down on the morning wind, Yani heard and replied, and at the same time the wolves began to slink away from the tree toward the underwood, but still keeping their hungry eyes fixed longingly on the prey that seemed about to escape their grasp. As they were edging off, like a pair of robbers detected in the act of stealing, the great dog burst into the clearing, and made a dash for the nearest wolf, whom he grabbed, and a desperate fight ensued. dog and wolf being soon red with blood. Before the fight was over, the father rushed in, and sheathing his long knife in the wolf's side, laid him dead on the spot. The other wolf escaped. Yani now came down from the tree, and gave the key of the barn to his father; he had kept fast hold of it all this time. The next winter, when the bleak winds blew over the mountains of Armenia, Yani was kept warm with a coat of wolf skin.

When he reached the age of manhood, missionaries settled in Trebizond. From them Yani learned to read and write; with earnestness he listened to their instructions, and became a convert to Christianity. He lived and died humble, useful, and faithful to the last.—S. G. W. Benjamin.

The Compass in the Fog.

Did you ever hear the Bible compared to the mariner's compass? You have heard it called guide, to direct those who are journeying through this world; a counselor, to give advice to those who lack wisdom; a lamp, to give light to those who are in darkness; and you have readily understood why such names have been given to that blessed book. But how can it be said to be like a mariner's compass?

You probably know that a compass tells the shipmaster how to shape the course of his vessel across the pathless sea, in order to gain some desired point in another part of the world. He consults it many times, and would consider it a great misfortune to be deprived of that instrument at sea.

One beautiful summer evening I was on board a steamer. Everything went on smoothly during the first part of the night; the stars were out, and shining brightly; the sea was calm, the vessel sped swiftly on her way, and all was pleasant when the passengers retired to rest. But toward morning a fog began to gather about us; and the nearer the hour approached for the sun to rise the denser it became. I was up betimes, and noticed that as the fog thickened the engines were checked, and the speed of the steamer lessened, till at last she seemed scarcely to move through the water. We could not see more than her length in any direction. Before the headlands of the shore were in sight; now our only guide was the compass.

I soon found that the officers did not consider our position without peril. We were lost in the fog, and they felt that we were too near the rock-bound coast to be groping along in that dark, misty shroud.

The captain, pilot, and another officer held a consultation. When they separated the signal was immediately given to start the engines; and at the same time a turn or two of the wheel brought our steamer to point seaward, as the compass told us, and away we went for some time directly off shore. Then there was another consultation, and the steamer's course was again changed, this time toward the shore.

In about an hour we suddenly heard a fog-bell, and within a few minutes afterward we discovered just before us a rocky point on which was a lighthouse, and the bell which had warned us of our danger. We passed so near the outer ledge of the rocks that you might have thrown an apple upon it from the steamer's deck! But when we reached this dangerous point our pilot knew where we were. Taking his course accordingly he soon brought his vessel to our "desired haven."

What the compass is to the mariner—a guide but for which the ocean would be a trackless and perilous waste—is the Bible to us all; it reveals a future life, and guides us step by step till we enter heaven.

Hoisted by His Own Petard.

A Philadelphia paper tells—or rather lets the hero of the incident tell—of a German watchmaker in that city, who, hearing of frequent burglaries, concluded to fortify his store against gentry who work with skeleton keys and crowbars. The watchmaker said:

I hears much things apout de purglars all a'while; heres they preakes stores into 'em very much. Vell, I tinks I vixes 'em so that the nex dime they goomes to my store py tam, they no gum. I puys a pig horse biztel, unt I vassens it mit the floor, with the moozle pointing to the toor. So den I runs a string from the trigger up mit der vall unt down mit ter door, so ven Mr. Purglar opens himself mit ter toor, vy if he ploze te tam prains of de piztel, vy den you see, I can't help it, don't it? That's vot I say.

Last night I left the toor pointing at the moozle of the biztel mit two bullets in it, unt goes out to drink some lager mit der poys. I sometimes trinks too much lager. Fell, I can't help it. I bores minezelf into more ash dwenty zixteen klass lager un then I koes home. Ven I pass mine store I dinks I petter ash look in unt see if nothing pese all right. That is right, don't it? If it don't I ain't can help it.

Vell, mit so many classes of me in der lager I forgit about der hoss biztel unt der toor, bointing at der moozle, unt ven I makes open mit ter toor, hang py tam, I yoost gets a bullet mit mine elbow unt anudder pullet gets mine hat through it all the vile! Vost, I vas I can't help it. You'd pe scart yourself, aint it?

I yoost throw away the hoss biztel unt I never sets no more draps for purglars so long as I can't help. So!

The Dead of the Year.

The departed year has witnessed the deaths of many distinguished persons. The ranks of literature, art, and science have all suffered loss.

Among the authors who have died since January are Nathaniel P. Willis, Catharine M. Sedgwick, Charles Anthon, and Fitz Green Halleck in the United States; the historian Alison in England, and Victor Cousin in France.

Science has lost the celebrated French surgeon Velpeau, the English chemist Faraday, and the astronomers Rosse and South, the German philosopher Brandis, and the American physicist Bache and Dr. Worthington Hooker.

Two distinguished artists have died—Ingres, in France, and Edward Stanfield, in England. The only American artist who died during the year was Dr. Edward Ruggles.

Ponsard, the dramatist, Achille Fould and Larochejaquelin are lost to France; Maximilian and Queen Maria of Naples to the ranks of royalty.

The death of John A. Andrew leaves a void in the ranks of American statesmen.

Two ex-governors of New York—Washington Hunt and John A. King have died. The law loses the names of Judge Scrugham and Chancellor Walworth; the stage Ira Aldridge (Hewlet) the negro tragedian, and the composer Pacini; the humorists, the name of Artemus Ward; the original abolitionist, Abby Folsom; the church, Bishop Soule, Drs. Krebs and Taylor; Yale college, the venerable Jeremiah Day. The name of Charles King is also to be added to the list.

Colored People of Mississippi.

The colored people are making great progress in religion and education. The Methodist Episcopal church has six thousand colored members in that state, who have left the Methodist Episcopal church South. At twenty points comfortable meeting-houses have been built, and schools are taught in them by educated teachers. Numerous religious societies meet in log houses, plantation cabins, and in the forest groves. Bishop Ames recently presided over a conference at New Orleans, where the preachers of this state met. He was astonished at the progress and prosperity of the work which he had commenced in 1863. Over sixty preachers were present at the conference, and from the churches in Louisiana and Mississippi sixteen thousand members were reported. The bishop was hailed with delight and reverence by white and black. His heart filled with sympathy for North and South; white and black seemed to warm all around him, and the influence of his presence a few days will permeate Mississippi, Louisiana, and Texas, giving an impetus to loyalty and the progress of religion. Mr. Lynch's district contains nearly four thousand members, and he is soliciting books for Sunday school libraries.

THE COUNTRYMAN'S ANSWER.—A great and learned atheist once met a plain countryman going to church. He asked him:

"Where are you going?"

"To church sir."

"What to do there?"

"To worship God."

"Pray is your God a great or little God?"

"He is both, sir."

"How can he be both?"

"He is so great, sir, that the heaven of heavens can not contain him, and so little that he can dwell in my poor heart."

The atheist declared that this simple answer of the countryman had more effect upon his mind than all the volumes the learned doctors had written upon the subject.

A huge laundry is established in the suburbs of Paris, at which is washed the soiled clothing of the guests of the principal hotels at the rate of 40,000 pieces a day. The clothing is boiled with soap and soda, and then washed in hollow wheels, rinsed, partially dried by centrifugal machines, and for the rest in hot air ovens which carry off nearly three pounds of moisture per pound of coal burned, and is finally ironed between polished rollers, and then packed ready for return to Paris.

CHARACTER.—We may judge a man's character by what he loves—what pleases him. If a person manifests delight in low, sordid objects—the vulgar song and debasing language, in the misfortune of his fellows, in cruelty to animals, we may at once determine the complexion of his character. On the contrary, if he loves purity, modesty, truth—if virtuous pursuits engage his heart and draw out his affections—we are satisfied that he is an upright man.

According to recent statistics there are 2442 Catholic churches in the United States, and 54,000 Protestant. In Florida, once entirely Catholic, there are now eighteen Protestant churches to one Catholic.

There is no greater obstacle in the way of success in life than trusting for something to turn up instead of going to work and turning up something.

A court in Indiana recently imposed heavy fines on a company of church whisperers and laughers, whose conduct had at last become so intolerable as to require judicial treatment.

Emulation looks out for merits that she may exalt herself by a victory; envy spies out blemishes that she may lower by defeat.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

Florida Convention.

TALLAHASSE, January 21.—In the convention resolutions prescribing the oath of office for members and officers passed.

Resolutions passed to telegraph General Meade informing him that the convention was ready to receive any communication he had to make. Also to Colonel Sprague, commanding district of Florida, inviting him to a seat in the convention.

The report of the committee on organization relative to the election of clerks and messengers passed, authorizing the president to appoint such a number of each as was necessary.

The rules of the house of representatives, with slight alterations, were adopted.

Governor Walker and the state officers were invited to seats.

The committees on finance, relief, and printing were appointed.

An ordinance for the relief of the people, preventing the sale of any property under execution and the collection of taxes, and ordering all persons now imprisoned for non-payment of taxes released. Passed.

W. H. Christy, secretary, resigned, and S. Covant, white, was elected in his place.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, January 22.—The secretary of the navy has sent congress amended statements reducing the naval expenditure twenty-two millions.

In connection with Grant's reported opposition to the new reconstruction act it is regarded significant that Washburne, of Illinois, though in his seat, did not vote for or against the bill.

The case reported below is from Louisiana:

Armstrong worked his foundry in New Orleans while Lovell commanded, making shot and shell for the confederates. When New Orleans was captured, Armstrong took the oath, and continued working his factory, which was afterward seized and condemned. Armstrong's pardon is dated in March. This case now before the supreme court is very much contested.

First, the attorney general moved to dismiss the appeal, insisting that the case should be here on writ of error. In this he was overruled.

Second, Armstrong moved to file a plea of pardon, which the attorney general resisted. Leave was given after argument to file the plea, so that the case will now be heard on the merits and will come up next week. The attorney general represents the United States and the Hon. Humphrey Marshall, of Kentucky, appears for Armstrong.

The case is considered a leading one, which must decide the points—First, whether a seizure and capture are the same. Second, whether property liable to capture and prize embraces land held by private title. Third, whether property tainted by the guilty consent of the owner is relieved by his pardon after condemnation and before sale. Fourth, whether the citizens shut up in a place occupied by confederate arms can be responsible to the United States for a breach of municipal law under command of the military force of the confederates; and fifth, whether the constitution operates with its guarantees upon him when the United States recover the city.

The postoffice department has matured arrangements for regular mails from Baltimore by Havana and Key West to New Orleans and back. The steamer Liberty leaves New Orleans to-day, and the Cuba will leave Baltimore to-morrow.

A contract has also been made to convey mails from New Orleans by Pensacola and St. Marks, Cedar Keys, Tampico, and Fort Jefferson, Dry Tortugas, to Key West and back twice a month.

From Havana.

HAVANA, January 21.—The mail steamer arrived to-day from Vera Cruz. An expedition 2000 strong, commanded by General Allatorre, was expected to leave Vera Cruz on the 10th for Yucatan, to unite with 1000 loyal men there, and march on the Imperialists. The Mexican government is sparing neither men nor money to subdue the rebellion. At last accounts affairs were becoming more quiet. The supposed approach of the expedition was having good effect. It is presumed that the object of the revolution there was to change the fundamental laws of the republic, and distrust of President Juarez was the principal cause of the disloyalty of the Yucatans.

From Europe.

LONDON, January 21.—The following particulars of the arrest of George Francis Train have been received from Queenstown:

During the transit in the tender which contained the baggage and passengers of the Scotia from the steamer to the wharf the baggage of Train and Thomas C. Durant, of New York, also a passenger, was subjected to a rigorous examination by the custom-house officers. Nothing of an incendiary or seditious character being found in the trunks of either, they were accordingly permitted to go ashore. As they stepped from the tender to the wharf they were arrested and taken before a justice of the peace.

The examination eliciting nothing against the prisoners to warrant detention they were discharged. Soon after their arrival at the hotel they were rearrested, and upon completion of the several examinations, Mr. Durant was discharged. The authorities, however, detained Mr. Train, and he was sent in custody to Cork jail. On Saturday he was brought before court and examined, but was remanded until Monday, the 27th. In the meantime the case is creating considerable excitement, and the newspapers are reprinting characteristic speeches and letters of Train's as forming a sort of justification of the arrest.

LATER.—Train telegraphs to America as follows:

"Have just been released on the intervention of Mr. Adams. Have brought suit against the British government for £100,000 damages."

Prime Minister Menabrea, in a note, tells Spain that Italy will admit intervention from no other power except France, which is permitted by treaty.

IN THE SEASON

Of Rose Colds, Hay Fever, etc., no sufferer should be without JONAS WHITCOMB'S REMEDY FOR ASTHMA. It is an unfailing cure for these distressing complaints. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO., sole proprietors, Boston, and 592 Broadway, New York. (Sold by all druggists.)

"Willard's," at Washington; "Metropolitan" and "Fifth Avenue," New York, use Burnett's celebrated Extracts for flavoring. New York Depot, 592 Broadway.

The COLOGNE WATER prepared by Joseph Burnett & Co., of Boston, is superior to the veritable "Farina." We speak from actual experience.—Baltimore American.

Wholesale and retail depot 592 Broadway, New York.

In Preference to all Other Methods.

Well informed teachers invariably use that Standard Word, RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD. Complete in every department, satisfactory in every particular, it only requires an examination to convince any one that no other book approaches it in excellence. Price $3 75. Mailed post-paid. Oliver Ditson & Co., publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston. C. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.

THE MUSICAL MIRROR.

A volume of Elementary Instructions in Vocal Music, with numerous Practical Exercises, attractively arranged upon an original plan; together with a Collection of Music, harmoniously adapted to Sacred and Secular Words. The whole especially designed for Public Schools, Colleges, and Singing Classes. Price 75 cents. Copies mailed post-paid. Oliver Ditson & Co., publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston. Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.

AN EXTRAORDINARY INVENTION.

A Steam Man.

The following story of a remarkable mechanical invention is told by the Newark (New Jersey) Advertiser:

Mr. Zaddock Deddrick, a Newark machinist, has invented a man; one that, moved by steam, will perform some of the most important functions of humanity; that will, standing upright, walk or run, as he is bid, in any direction and at almost any rate of speed, drawing after him a load whose weight would tax the strength of three stout draught horses. The history of this curious invention is as follows: Six years ago Mr. Deddrick, the inventor, who is at present but twenty-two years old, conceived the novel idea of constructing a man that should receive its vitality from a perpetual motion machine. The idea was based on the well-known mechanical principle that if a heavy weight be placed at the top of an upright slightly inclined from a vertical, gravitation will tend to produce a horizontal as well as vertical motion. The project was not successful. However, by observing carefully the cause of the failure, preserving and perfecting the man-form, and by substituting steam in place of the perpetual motion machine, the present success was attained.

The man stands seven feet and nine inches high, the other dimensions of the body being correctly proportioned, making him a second Daniel Lambert, by which name he is facetiously spoken of among the workmen. He weighs five hundred pounds. Steam is generated in the body or trunk, which is nothing but a three horse power engine like those used in our steam fire engines. The legs which support it are complicated and wonderful. The steps are taken very naturally and quite easily. As the body is thrown forward upon the advanced foot, the other is lifted from the ground by a spring and thrown forward by the steam. Each step or pace advances the body two feet, and every revolution of the engine produces four paces. As the engine is capable of making more than a thousand revolutions a minute, it would get over the ground, at this calculation, at the rate of a little more than a mile a minute. As this would be working the legs faster than would be safe on uneven ground or on Broad street cobble stones, it is proposed to run the engine at the rate of five hundred revolutions per minute, which would walk the man at the modest speed of half a mile a minute.

The fellow is attached to a common rockaway carriage, the shafts of which serve to support him in a vertical position. These shafts are two bars of iron, fastened in the usual manner to the front of the carriage, and are curved so as to be joined to a circular sustaining bar which passes around the waist like a girth, and in which the man moves so as to face in any direction. Besides these motions machinery has been arranged by which the figure can be thrown backward or forward from a vertical nearly forty-five degrees. This is done in order to enable it to ascend or descend all grades. To the soles of the feet spikes or corks are fixed which effectually prevent slipping. The whole affair is so firmly sustained by the shafts and has so excellent a foothold that two men are unable to push it over, or in any way throw it down. In order to enable it to stop quickly it is provided with two appliances, one of which will, as before stated, throw it backward from the vertical, while the other bends the knees in a direction opposite to the natural position.

An upright post, which is arranged in front of the dash-board, and within easy reach of the front seats, sustains two miniature pilot wheels, by the turning of which these various motions and evolutions are directed. It is expected that a sufficiently large amount of coal can be stowed away under the back seat of the carriage to work the engine for a day, and enough water in a tank under the front seat to last half a day.

In order to prevent the "giant" from frightening horses by his wonderful appearance, Mr. Deddrick intends to clothe it, and give it as nearly as possible a likeness to the rest of humanity. The boiler and such parts as are unnecessarily heated will be encased in felt or woolen undergarments. Pantaloons, coat, and vest of the latest styles, are provided. Whenever the fires need coaling, which is every two or three hours, the driver stops the machine, descends from his seat, unbuttons "Daniel's" vest, opens a door, shovels in the fuel, buttons up the vest and drives on. On the back between the shoulders the steam cocks and gauges are placed. As these would cause the coat to set awkwardly a knapsack has been provided that completely covers them. A blanket neatly rolled up and placed on top of the knapsack perfects the delusion. The face is moulded into a cheerful countenance of white enamel, which contrasts well with the dark hair and mustache. A sheet iron hat with a gauge top acts as a smoke stack.

The cost of this "first man" is $2000, though the makers, Messrs. Deddrick & Grase, expect to manufacture succeeding ones, warranted to run a year without repair, for $300. The same parties expect to contract, on the same principle, horses which will do the duty of ten or twelve ordinary animals of the same species. These, it is confidently believed, can be used before carriages, street cars, and plows. The man now constructed can make his way without difficulty over any irregular surface whose ruts and stones are not more than nine inches below or above the level of the road.

---

THE MEMORY OF ARTEAGA.—Some months since we alluded in our columns to the shooting, in Mexico, under the decree of Maximilian, of the brave general of the liberal army whose name heads this paragraph, who had been captured in arms against the aggressive government of imperialism. In the Mexican congress on the 13th of December the following propositions were entertained, discussed, and referred to the "committee of justice:"

1st. Congress declares General Arteaga well deserving of the country, and his name shall be inscribed in the halls of congress, along with those of the heroes of our independence.

2d. The resolution of the legislature of the state of Queretaro is approved, wherein said city is to be named "Queretaro de Arteaga."

3d. General Arteaga shall be considered as living at rollcall, and his pay shall be distributed to his daughters and other relatives through the government of Queretaro.

---

The Ring of Sound Metal.

The Chicago Tribune says:

Congress has a difficult task before it in this emergency. There never was a time when greater coolness and deliberation should precede and attend firmness and decision. This is no time for hesitation or doubt. This is no time to talk of temporizing with the vast issues at stake. The burglar and assassin is in the national dwelling, and he must be met by blow for blow, knife for knife, shot for shot; he must be beaten and driven out, or he becomes dictator. He is bold, unblushing, defiant, and unscrupulous. He resorts to the coward's inevitable policy—that of attempting to bully. All that is needed is that he be met with unflinching firmness; that he be thwarted and beaten at every dishonest step he may make, and let him, if he choose, resort to a violence which, once commenced, must not cease until the nation, by the sword, has accomplished that which the president and his rebel friends have prevented from being done during two years of peaceful legislation.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST
IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT
FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.
II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.
III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.
IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.
V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.
VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.
VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.
VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.
IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.
X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par value and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET,
AND OF
FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,
AND
Dealers in Government Securities,
AND
FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper,
devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at

57......St. Charles Street......57
NEW ORLEANS.

The REPUBLICAN is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,
BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,
The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,
THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
AND THOSE OF THE
Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the REPUBLICAN indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

| | |
|---|---|
| Daily, one year....$16 00 | Weekly, one year....$5 00 |
| Daily, six months.. 8 00 | Weekly, six months.. 2 50 |

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscrptions will be received for the SUNDAY REPUBLICAN from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

TO THE LADIES.

Professor BLOT, who is good authority, says: "Great care should be used in selecting GENUINE Flavoring Extracts, both in regard to taste and health. I think none can compare with BURNET'S in this respect."

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining these superior Extracts of reputable grocers and druggists. Depot 592 Broadway.

BURNETT'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.

For more than eight years Burnett's Toilet Preparations and Cooking Extracts have maintained a large and constantly increasing sale, sustaining the opinion of the best judges that they are unrivaled.

Salesroom 592 Broadway, New York, and sold by all reputable dealers.

"Its exquisite beauty surpasses our anticipations."—Lady's Book.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR:

A Monthly Illustrated Magazine for the Little Ones.

EDITED BY T. S. ARTHUR.

TERMS—$1 25 a year in advance. Five copies for $5. Ten copies, and one to the getter-up of club, $10. "The Children's Hour" and "Arthur's Home Magazine" one year for $2 50.

Specimen numbers 10 cents.

BISHOP SIMPSON says of

The Children's Hour:

"I have no hesitation in commending it as one of the best Magazines published for children."

BISHOP STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, says of

The Children's Hour:

"I believe that its introduction into every household would prove a blessing to young and old."

REV. GEO. D. BOARDMAN says of

The Children's Hour:

"I am delighted with 'The Children's Hour.' I do not see how a more entertaining, instructive, or profitable Magazine could be put in the hands of our children."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES says of

The Children's Hour:

"This dear little monthly visitant we believe to be by far the purest, safest, and most attractive magazine for the little ones at home, published in this country."

MR. JOHN B. GOUGH says of

The Children's Hour:

"I can indorse it thoroughly........ It is a most welcome visitor to the family of children at my own home."

The Children's Hour

is as beautiful as the best typography and the best artists can make it. Two volumes a year, beginning in January and July. The number for January, 1868, will be the most beautiful number of a child's magazine ever published. Terms as above.

Address
T. S. ARTHUR & SON,
809 & 811 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE
OF
Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the

Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 70 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.
Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.
For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.
The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.
The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.
Terms, cash in advance.
Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.
Address, THE TRIBUNE,
de18 3tD&3tW New York.

New Book of Choruses.

Forty-Five
OPERA CHORUSES.

Selected and arranged from the works of

Rossini, Auber, Bellini, Donizetti, Gounod, Verdi, Flotow, Spontini, Wagner, Herold, Bishop, Balfe, Benedict, and others.

Forming a Most Valuable Collection
FOR SOCIETIES, CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS SINGING SCHOOLS, CLUBS, AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.

By Edwin Bruce.
PRICE THREE DOLLARS.

Copies Mailed, post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & O., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
HARLES H. DITSON & O.,
d14 711 Broadway, New York.

SCROFULA OF EVERY PHASE, CAtarrh, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Asthma, Liver and Kidneys, Bladder and Skin Diseases WM. R. PRINE, Flushing, New York, for sixty years proprietor of the Linnæar Nurseries, has discovered the remedial plants which are positive cures for the above and for other chronic diseases, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Gout, Piles, Diabetes, Jaundice, Dropsy, Uterine and other Female Maladies, Mercurial and other Blood Impurities hitherto incurable.
Explanatory circular, one stamp.
Treatise on all diseases, 25 cents. nl

A copy of the American Cyclopedia given as a premium.

GET THE BEST.

A COMPREHENSIVE
DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.
MAINLY ABRIDGED FROM
Dr. Wm. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.
WITH
Important Additions and Improvements, and Five Hundred Illustrations.

THIS BOOK is a condensation of the large work in three volumes, and contains entirely new matter, drawn from a wide range of first-class authority.
The Dictionary is issued in semi-monthly numbers, of 48 royal 8vo. pages each. The whole will be completed in about twenty-two numbers, eight of which are now out.

PRICE OF EACH NUMBER, THIRTY CENTS.

The first number will be sent gratis to any address for examination, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

GET UP CLUBS.

Three subscribers sent to us, will entitle the sender to a copy of the Dictionary gratis.
Three subscribees sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the Annual Cyclopedia for 18:6, in library binding—price $6
Thirty subscribers sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the New American Cyclopedia, 16 vols. 8 vo., the price of which is $80.
Agents wanted in all parts of the United States. Liberal terms offered.
D. ALLPETON & CO., Publishers,
no23 3t 443 and 445 Broadway.

"EUREKA,"

THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

THE CLASSIC POETS have sung to us of a spring whose pure, ethereal waters impart perpetual youth and beauty to all who will drink of them. It is now conceded by all that the EUREKA is made of the water of that same spring, and its magical effects will be seen at once by those who use it. The hair will be restored to its youth and beauty, even where the snows of winter have fallen. In presenting this Hair Restorative to the public, I have no hesitation in saying that it is no humbug: that it will do all that is claimed for it, viz: Restoring the hair to its original color; preventing its falling off, and giving it a softness, youth and lustre that no other preparation can produce. The Eureka has been used by tens of thousands, and in every case has given entire satisfaction, and is now used universally. Dr. Van Zandt has pronounced it "a most happy compound, sulted wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair—preventing it falling off, by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the EUREKA, and you will not be disappointed.
It is for sale by all druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
Manufactured by ROBERT FISHER, Agent,
no16 St. Louis, Mo.

AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS,
Is Richardson's New Method
FOR THE PIANO FORTE.

BEING THE ONLY BOOK THE TEACHER requires, and the book every pupil is attracted to. Its lessons are adapted to pupils of all ages, and its exercises attractive and useful in every stage of advancement. This book has, on account of its actual merit, become the standard work of Piano instruction, and the only one which every well informed teacher and scholar uses.
Price $3 75; sent post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
no16 711 Broadway, New York.

AROMATIC
VEGETABLE SOAP,
Combined with Glycerine recommeneed for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N. Y. Sold by Druggists.
nov2m6

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the complextion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Sold at 592 Broadway, New York. oc17

THE MUSIC BOOK
For Every Boy and Girl is
MERRY CHIMES,
Containing Hundreds of Popular Songs and Pleasing Instructions and Exercises
BY WHICH ONE CAN LEARN TO SING THEM.

PRICE—Fifty Cents. Sent Postpaid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
oc17 tf 711 Broadway, New York.

INFORMATION WANTED—OF FRANK VARNAR, by his wife, Sarah Varnar, who used to live in Pickens District, South Carolina, in the family of James Johns. Address SARAH VARNAR, care of Shade Croom, Houston, Texas. d14

The October Phrenological Journal

Contains Portraits and Characters of Mary Queen of Scots; Charlotte Bronte; Thomas Nast, the artist; Ira Aldridge, tragedian; Alfred Sewell, and others. Well-written articles on Anthropology; Married or Single; Boots and Beauty; Sick Headache, its Cause and Cure; The Fashions, Illustrated; Man's Spiritual Nature; Forming Character; The American Physiognomy; "Expression;" Whining Women; Grapes and Blackberries, Illustrated. $3 a year, or 30 cents a number.
Address S. R. WELLS, Editor,
oc4 389 Broadway, New York.

NOTICE.

ROOMS OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND UNION CITIZENS.
Washington, D. C., July 17, 1867.

IN PURSUANCE OF A SERIES OF RESOLUTIONS passed by the House of Representatives July 10, 1867, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate the "Treatment of Prisoners of War and Union Citizens held by the Confederate authorities during the late rebellion."

All persons in possession of important information upon either of these subjects are earnestly requested to address the Committee, as directed below, stating:

1. The name, age, and post office address of the writer.
2. If a soldier or seaman, his rank or position, and with what command he served.
3. A full statement of all facts known to the writer touching his own imprisonment or treatment, and that of others, either soldier or citizen, giving, as far as possible, names, places, and dates, with names of Confederate officers in charge.

Correspondents from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and the States and Territories lying west of the Rocky Mountains will please address
JOHN P. C. SHANKS, M. C.,
Washington, D. C.

Correspondents from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, and the Territories east of the Rocky Mountains will address
WILLIAM A. PILE, M. C.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Correspondents from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will address
ABNER C. HARDING, M. C.,
Monmouth, Ill.

Correspondents from the New England States will address AARON F. STEVENS, M. C.,
Nashua, N. H.

Correspondents from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee will address
WILLIAM MUNGEN, M. C.,
Findlay, Ohio.

Communications addressed to the members of the Committee will be free of postage.

It is the intention of the Committee to collect all facts necessary to make a thorough official history of this subject.

The various newspapers throughout the country are requested to give this circular a gratuitous insertion, together with such notice as they may deem proper.

JOHN P. C. SHANKS,
WILLIAM A. PILE,
ABNER C. HARDING,
AARON F. STEVENS,
WILLIAM MUNGEN,
Committee.

JOHN D. LARRABEE, Clerk.

BELLS.
BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.
Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.
All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

Agents Wanted.
(Male or Female,) to sell our celebrated
Franklin and Diamond Double Thread Sewing Machines.
Complete with Table, only $25.00. Single Thread Hand Machines are not practical for any sewing, at any price. We give away our machine to the poor and needy, and send them out on trial. Circulars and information free. Address
J. C. OTTIS & CO., Boston, Mass.

W. H. PEMBERTON,
158 - - - POYDRAS ST. - - - 158
NEW ORLEANS.
Between St. Charles and Carondelet Streets.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Colors
Varnishes, Glass, Etc.

Has in store and to arrive, a large supply of the following goods, which he will sell at low figures, either wholesale or retail:
White Lead in Oil, all kinds.
Window Glass, French and American, all sizes.
French and American Zinc.
American and English Venetian Red.
Oils of all descriptions.
Varnish of all kinds.
Stove Polish,
Bi Carbonate of Soda.
Sal Soda,
Alum.
Castile and Colgate Soaps.
Wash Blue.
Black Writing Ink and Marking Ink.
Manufactured by himself.
Also a great variety of Perfumery and Fancy Articles for Toilet.
The Store is also well supplied with all kinds of Drugs and Medicines, Fresh and of the Best Quality.
Strangers visiting the City would do well to give him a call. 65-89

ROUGH AND READY
IRON WORKS.
Danville, Montour Co., Penn.

WILLIAM HANCOCK,
Proprietor,
Manufacturer of
RAILROAD IRON
OF ALL WEIGHTS AND PATTERNS.
MINE RAILS,
STREET RAILS,
STRAP RAILS,
Old Railroad Iron Re-Rolled.

The subscriber is prepared to furnish all kinds of
STEAM ENGINES,
ROLLS,
ROLLING-MILL MACHINERY,
Saw and Grist Mill
Machinery, gas retorts, mine car wheels and axles, globe valves, gauge cocks—most improved styles. Blow off cocks, steam whistles, steam and water fittings, screw bolts, iron and brass castings, and every description of foundry and machine work, boilers, etc., etc.
Plans, designs and estimates furnished without extra charge for all work ordered from
WM. HANCOCK.
BENJ. G. WELCH, General Agent.

NATIONAL
FREEDMEN'S SAVING
AND
TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:
M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.
Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,
No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o'clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.
Deposits of One Dollar or more received.
Interest payable in January and July, in each year.
All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.
All the profits belong to the depositors.
Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.
Investments are made only in securities of the United States. W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

JONES, McDOWELL & Co., Little Rock, Ark. J. B. SHAW & CO., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,
GENERAL
Commission Merchants
AND
COTTON FACTORS,
No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 43 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.
☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

MUSICAL LEAVES.
Published by Phillip Phillips & Co., Cincinnati.
THE BEST SABBATH-SCHOOL SINGING BOOK EXTANT.
Over 15,000 Sold in Eight Months.
This is the book that has been so highly recommended by the New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois State Sunday School Conventions.
☞ Send for Specimen copy.
Forty cents each, or $30 for 100 cop

WILLIAM McCAMMON,
MANUFACTURER OF
BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME

PIANO FORTES.

ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.
☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address
s6 WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.

PIERCE & DWIGHT'S
SELF-RAISING FLOUR.
—FOR—
Bread, Biscuit, Cakes, Pastry, Etc., Etc.,
WITHOUT USING YEAST, YEAST POWDER, SODA OR SALT.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING:
Stir in cold water with a spoon, and bake at once, without kneading or waiting for the dough to rise.
For the healthfulness of Self-Raising Flour, consult your Physician.
Ask your Grocer for a six pound package.

For sale at
99..........Magazine Street..........99
fe9 NEW ORLEANS.

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS
Window Shades and Cornices,
AND
PAPER HANGINGS
For Sale by
E. HEATH.
75 Camp street.

PEMBERTON'S
"Carbolic Acid Disinfectant."

This Powder is a compound of Carbolic Acid, Copperas, etc., possessing the properties of destroying contagion, decomposing pestilential effluvia, noxious exhalations, and neutralizing strong and offensive odors; removing the effluvia of sick rooms, sewers, cesspools, sinks, privies, etc.
It far surpasses the Chlorinated Lime in its actions and effect, and is certainly the best Disinfectant now in use. Thoroughly disinfecting the atmosphere, electrifying the oxygen, and rendering the respirable air both healthy and pure, being tirely free from all injurious effects on the throat and lungs, which so frequently attend the use of deodorizers.
Prepared and sold by
W. H. PEMBERTON,
No. 158 Poydras st., N. O.

Grovesteen & Co.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.
499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

PITTSBURG FEMALE COLLEGE,
Rev. I. C. PERSHING, D. D. President.

Best sustained Ladies' School under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.
Superb brick buildings, with all the modern improvements.
Twenty-two Teachers.
Including Five Music Teachers.
Four hundred and twenty-six Pupils
French and German by native Professors. Sixty dollars per term, fourteen weeks, pays all expenses in boarding department except washing. Fall term commences September 4. Send to President Pershing, Pittsburg, Pa., for circular. au11 tf

STAPLETON & CO.,
UNION HAT STORE,
95..........CANAL STREET..........97
NEW ORLEANS,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer
—IN—
Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,
—ALSO—
GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n29

MEDICAL.

Dr. J. WHITE'S INSTITUTE,
127 CARONDELET STREET,
Directly in rear of the City Hall.
The first aim of human beings is happiness, and happiness implies health of body and mind.
This Institute is established for the cure of all forms of disease, Chronic and Acute.
Dr. White does not allow any disease afflicting his patients, however virulent, to escape his vigilant care, as his patients universally testify.
It can easily be perceived how important it is that a full and correct diagnosis—detecting all the diseases that afflict the patient—should be attained. And it is no less important to the afflicted that the remedies should be equally clear to the physician; proving to his patient that when the local disease is eradicated, the whole system is completely renovated and restored to its normal condition. "A sound mind is a sound body."
Dr. White's experience and success for thirty years in an extensive practice in large cities, have brought to him for treatment a vast amount of every form of disease, justifying him in promising the cure of the patient if the vitals and vitality are not irreparably wasted.
His remedies cure the worst eruptions of the skin; all forms of ulcers, of whatever nature, to the incipient cancer, which so grievously afflict humanity. The remedies restore the stomach, liver, and blood, and all the secretions and excretions of the entire system, in unhealthy to a healthy condition. Instead of injuring the system or constitution, they renovate and repair the injuries and wastes of the entire organism.
One or two hours spent at the Institute with Dr. White frequently saves weeks of fever or other suffering—often life.
N. B. Persons desiring Dr. White's advice and remedies, will be careful to call at 127 Carondelet street, or address by letter, as there are several Dr. Whites in the city.
☞ Consultation free—stamps not "forgotten."
[feb3]

A NEW GLEE BOOK.
THE GREETING.
A COLLECTION OF GLEES, QUARTETS, Choruses, Part-Songs, etc. By L. O. Emerson, Author of "The Jubilate," "Harp of Judah," "Golden Wreath," "Merry Chimes," etc.
Upwards of Half a Million copies of Mr. Emerson's Music Books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no other author of the same class of books and which cannot fail to insure for this new volume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been contributed by Mr. L. H. Southard whose name is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The marked features of the collection are Originality, Brilliancy and Variety; and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no Glee Book now before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to Musical Societies and Conventions, Conservatories, Clubs, and Amateur Singers. Price, $1 38. Mailed post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO.,
se28 711 Broadway, New York.

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE
Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. C. UPHAM,
25 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Circulars free. Sold by all Druggists. oct 13t

HALLOWED SONGS.
FOR PRAYER MEETINGS AND SMALL CHURCHES.
A Small Hymn and Tune Book, of 25 pages, bound in muslin, at $1 each, of $75 per 100.
PHILIP PHILLIPS & CO.,
31y Cincinnati.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.
This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market. B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

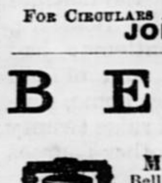
50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

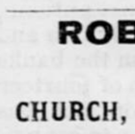
50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.
No. 64 to 74 Washington street. New York.
For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.
PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)
TROY BELL FOUNDRY



CHURCH BELLS
Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c.,
HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.
FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.


MENEELY' WEST TROY
Bell Foundry, established in 1826.
Bells for Churches, Academies, Factories etc., made of genuine Bell-metal, (Copper and Tin), mounted with improved patent mountings, and warranted. Orders and inquiries addressed to the undersigned, or to our General Agents, Fairbanks & Co., Scale Warehouse, 252 Broadway, New York, will have prompt attention, and an illustrated catalogue sent free, upon application.
E.A. & G. R. MENEELY,
West Troy, N. Y.

ROBERT PATON,
Manufacturer of
CHURCH, OFFICE AND SCHOOL
FURNITURE.
24 Grove St., N. Y.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING
Manufacturing Company.
Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.
Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.
JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 5. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1868. WHOLE NO. 105.

Poetry.

THEY ARE NOT LOST.

O, wherefore do we weep and call them lost,
The good who early die;
Surely our Heavenly Father loved them most,
And so he bade them lay their burdens by,
And pass into the sky.

Here on this border of the unseen land,
This dim and shadowy shore,
Like shipwrecked mariners we waiting stand,
While at our feet the sullen waters roar,
Which we must need pass o'er.

For just beyond a better country lies,
Whose wondrous glory beams
Upon us sometimes through the sunset skies,
But very fair beyond our happiest dreams,
The golden city seems.

Yet those we mourn as lost have gained that shore,
And walk those streets of gold;
And there, with glory crowned forevermore,
They see what mortal eye can ne'er behold,
Nor mortal tongue unfold.

O, faithless hearts, which call the blessed ones lost,
Because we miss them here—
Wanderers, and tempted, we ourselves are lost,
And well may mourn our fate with many a tear—
But they have done with fears.

Nothing that's good is lost, or e'er can be—
Our hopes are all forecast.
Our joys are gathered in eternity,
And we, though weary, burdened, hasten fast,
Again to meet the past.

Let us be patient—death has made no breach
With those who've gone before,
And though no outward sign our senses reach,
We feel that from the far etherial shore,
They watch us evermore.

Morning

SERMON

Delivered by Rev. Anthony Ross, (colored), in Westley Chapel, January 26, 1868.

Glorious things are spoken of Thee, O City of God.—Ps. 87: 3.

Not much preach in me to-day, no how, yet I will make a few remarks. But you can all help me to preach from this text, I reckon; that is, all who have passed from death to life. Am sich to-day and don't know but that the Lord is about to wind me up to heaven. This is a big text; it is mighty. It is deeper than the sea; it measures the whole earth, it reaches beyond the sun, moon and stars.

God in sundry times spoke through the old prophets by visions. Prophecy is not of private opinion. Men spoke in those times as they were moved by the Holy Ghost. The text was the cry of the language of David; it was the economy of David on Mount Zion of the typical Gospel Church. He was in Jerusalem in distress, and when his body was down at the point of death, seemed to have no friends. And he was right, for no earthly friend could deliver him from his grief; but he had a friend who had planted the church on the ages of eternity. God is our friend through the fellowship of his people, fulness of the Holy Ghost, and the property of his grace. The property of grace makes us joint heirs with Christ, and co-workers together. Glorious things are spoken of thee, O City of God. What are these things? They are the foundation of the church, her joy, friendship, rejoicing membership, and well of salvation. When David cried out in these words, he seemed to look through the telescope of faith, count up the prophecies and compass them with the joys of his own heart. When he lay on his pillow at night he saw Jesus standing on the seas of eternity and loosened the books with the seven seals.

"Glorious things are spoken of Thee, O City of God." What is it? Why, the blind shall see, the deaf hear, the lame walk, the dumb sing, and the dead rise. And Jesus shall do this. He hung the sun and the moon in the heavens and marshalled all the stars. Aint these big things? Glorious things are spoken of the church. Wee see it daily and hourly, what Jesus has done for us. He has smoothed down the hilly surface, broke our chains and set us captives free. When we were troubled, when our heads were down like the bullrushes He spoke to our souls. What do you think of our king? He stands at the helm of the universe. The lions may roar and the devils howl, yet He will bring us out all right. What has He done? Saved the three Hebrew children, brought John out of the pot of boiling oil, and helped Daniel to hold a prayer meeting in the lions' den, and knocked off Pharaoh's chariot wheels. Jesus is a man of war. Expect to go by-and-by to see the city and the land for myself; sit around the throne; see Elijah and Daniel, Peter and Paul. Our Jesus has conquered and chained the dragon in the bottomless pit. Who is this? It is King Jesus. See when he rose upon the cloud, and the cry was raised, "ye everlasting doors give way."

"Glorious things are spoken of Thee?' They are the things of his kingdom; and we feel the fire now. He sets up a kingdom in our hearts. We bear fruit every day and outshine the sun. We touch the telegraph and speak to him and he answers, "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give you a crown of life;" and "I am preparing a place for you;" "Thou art worthy to receive riches, wisdom, glory and dominion;" and the elders reply, "Amen!" What is the matter? Aint Christ rich? Yet he became poor for us and lay in a manger. Is this all? Oh, no! When the devil was tempting him, if you could have opened the veil, you could have seen Moses, Elias, and the angels looking down, ready to defend the youth, for fear he might give way. But he did not want the angels to help him. He took the cup and drank the whole. He fought with the devil, was hunted by bad men, and then he broke the bonds of death; mounted the cloud and ate with angels. Aint this glorious news? And Jesus can heal the sinner. If he was creating five worlds, he would stop to save the sinner and set up a kingdom in his heart. Our Jesus has done all things well. He has brought us away from the bull-whip, the cornfield and cotton patch, and we are sitting in this house to-night. Aint that great? Man can't do that. Has he done great things for you! Well, come to the test to-day. You may jump up to heaven, but you can't pass the gate, if Jesus is not in the heart. Are your trunks all packed for glory? Are you in the life-boat? Cast the lead-line. How much water? Fire by ten fathoms, all right, Jesus is at the helm. Then hold fast and you shall rise at the crack of the first trump. But who shall enter that city? No cock fighters, no congurers, no hoodoo, no whoremonger, no rummy, no gambler. O, that will be a holy place. And we shall see Jesus for ourselves, some day. One says I want to see my mother first. But I want to see the Governort of that city first, governor Jesus, who wore for me a crown of thorns. Who next? Enoch, Moses, Elijah, Paul, Peter and James. Who next? Rebecca Ross and Ben Ross. Who next? Dr. Newman—yes, I want to see the doctor there. Anybody else? Yes, old Keener, who used to pull the tarpaulin over my eyes. I would be glad to see him there too.

Men didn't send me to preach. God chose me from all eternity. Yet I am only a cobbler in preaching. Yet God has sot a city in my heart. The Christian's heart is a music box. Don't you hear it? Hark! now it plays:

"A charge to keep I have."

Then it plays:

"How beauteous are their feet
Who stand on Zion's hill."

And listen again it plays:

"When I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies,
I'll bid farewell to every fear
And wipe my weeping eyes."

All heaven is willed to us; its jasper walls and crystal waters. What's the matter? Why the saints are going up, when the comets are blazing, the sun blown out, the moon turned to blood, and the angels standing on the sea. What sea is that? Not that sea down here at Balize. No, sir, it is the sea of eternity. What a day that will be; some of us will be shouting then, and others will wringing their blazing hands and cry "carry me away from the presence of the Lamb."

EQUAL RIGHTS.

At the close of the sermon, the Rev. Father Ross made the following sensible remarks on equal rights, which were received with approbation by his people. He said: "What is this that I hear about equal rights, equal rights? Some people don't know what equal rights are. And then they talk loud about social, equal rights. Why the law has changed a great many things. You know that when we were slaves a man forty years old was called a boy, and a woman was called a gal, but now a man is a man and a woman is a woman. In the old slave times we used to pray in this house, with one eye turned toward the door to watch the policeman, to whom we had to pay $1 50 a week to let us pray, but now we have no such trouble. In those times you people who talk so much about equal rights couldn't go up the river without three men and a paper, but now you can go just when you please without a paper. But those were hard times for us, and our prayers and the prayers of the North went up to heaven and they troubled Jehovah upon his throne, and he sent down the flag ship with freedom on her bow and liberty in her cannon, and that flag ship came up the old Mississippi and anchored in front of the municipal hall, and stopped right there and set us all free. Right before that courthouse in which you used to be called a boy and a niggar. Well, now what a mighty change has taken place. We are now all equal before the law; that is, there is but one law for white men and black men. Now, that is what I call equal rights. Now, I don't call equal rights to go into any man's house and sit down at his table without an invitation, and try to get the rich man's daughter. No, sir, I don't. No man has a right to sit at my table without an invitation, and I have no right in another man's house unless he invites me. Now, some of you want to push into the big table at the St. Charles Hotel and into the white churches. But you must wait a little for that. The old prejudice can't be cut out in a day. Our rights will come to us like steps on above another. All I ask is, give me my rights in the law and if the social white man takes you by the arm and invites you to his home, you then have a right to go with him. There are some big feeling fellows among our people who are making us a great deal of trouble, because we don't get every thing in a day, but the Lord who has done so much for us will do all things well for us and in his own good time. I tell you, children, the Lord has done great things for us in the past few years whereof we are glad.

Cruden's Concordance to the Holy Scriptures.

As we called at the bookstore of A-Simon, No. 85 Baronne street, a few days since, we found that besides the one hundred and ten different newspapers and fifty different magazines which he has on sale, he has also opened subscriptions for several valuable works, among which is Cruden's Concordance of the Holy Scriptures. This is a new, large, and valuable edition, and we hope it may find a ready and extensive sale. It contains one hundred and twenty-four thousand references. A good concordance to the Scriptures is a very useful work to any reader of the Bible; to the minister it is almost indispensable.

The Scriptures should always be quoted correctly, especially in the pulpit. Yet among the many colored ministers of our own and the neighboring conferences there are some who are frequently incorrect in their quotations. And occasionally they are such as an eccentric minister once denominated "home made." If the passages which they expected to make use of were carefully read over beforehand these blunders might be avoided. It may be said that it would take hours to search them out. It would, doubtless, without a concordance, but with a good one like that above mentioned any passage can be found in a moment. The price of this work is $2 50, which we think cheap considering the high price of books at present.

To any of our ministers in the country who desire this it can be sent by mail. It will cost fifty cents additional, however. Those who prefer can send the $3 to the assistant editor of the ADVOCATE, W. M. Henry, and he will see that it is mailed postpaid to them. Our ministers in the city can call on Mr. Simon and obtain the work for themselves.

LETTER FROM REV. JAMES LYNCH.

Interesting from Washington—What is Thought of the Missionary Work in the Mississippi Mission Conference—Bishop Simpson in Washington—Congress Immovable—Gen. Hancock Unpopular—The Loyal North Anxious for the Ratification of the Southern State Constitutions.

WASHINGTON, December 16

Rev. J. P. Newman, D. D.:

DEAR BROTHER—I have been spending a few days in Washington, and shall leave to-day for New York city to make arrangements to secure from our book concern Sunday school books, and from the American Bible society bibles and testaments. The success of the missionary work in the states of Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas is thrilling the hearts of Christians and philanthropists at the North, especially those of our denomination, and will no doubt intensify Christian zeal in sustaining this great work. I incidentally mentioned it to Mr. C. C. Fulton, editor of the Baltimore American, and he chronicled it in his widely-circulated journal, declaring that the Christian influence thus exerted was second to no other in importance to the destiny of the white and colored people of the South. Bishop Simpson has been visiting Baltimore and Washington, and as usual has done much by his short visit to give high Christian tone to patriotism. Our statesmen so reverence him that in not a few instances he stamps sacred impress upon them. Congress stands like Gibraltar—the bulwark of civil and religious liberty; it laughs at the waves of opposition heaved against it by those recreant to the fundamental principles of our republic.

Within the past few days congress by its legislation in the house, which will pass the senate, has carried terror into the copperhead camp. It has restrained the supreme court, so that there is no possibility that the reconstruction acts can be decided unconstitutional. It has amended the reconstruction act so that a majority of votes can ratify the constitution. It will take the appointment of generals to the command of districts entirely out of the hands of the president, and through General Grant carry out its policy for the reorganization of the revolted states. Secretary Stanton's reinstatement secures a continuance of the freedmen's bureau, and General Grant's resignation as secretary ad interim and transfer of the war office places him in opposition to the president and so positively on the side of congress that we shall have the addition of his unbounded influence in commanding the support of the nation for the Republican party. The fact that in a few moments after Mr. Stanton's reoccupation of his office Bishop Simpson was closeted with him an hour and a half shows how truly the great heart of loyal Christians beats in sympathy with just and righteous measures. The copperheads are working themselves into a furore against General Grant—true to the instincts which made them oppose the war for the Union; they do but strike their heads against a giant rock which will work their destruction. All eyes are being turned toward General Grant as the candidate for the next presidency. It is certain that Chief Justice Chase, however desirable he might be, can not be counted on so certainly as a successful candidate. It would be well for the Republicans in the revolted states to declare for the man who stands between them and Andrew Johnson; the military genius of the nineteenth century, who with equal patriotism and fidelity to human liberty crushed the rebellion and saved our country. Mississippi Republicans will certainly declare in favor of Grant. And here I would remark that the assignment of General McDowell to the command of Mississippi and Arkansas will disappoint the opponents of reconstruction in those states. General McDowell is in full sympathy with congress and its reconstruction acts. He is a warm personal friend of Chief Justice Chase, and whenever in Washington makes his home at his house. I have this fact from the lips of a distinguished senator of the Republican party.

Washington is quite lively, and great interest is excited by congress. The gallaries are full every day. Many interesting scenes occur. I had the pleasure of witnessing the reprimand by the speaker of house of Hon. Fernando Wood, of New York, who was called to order while dealing in a fierce tirade against congress, defending General Hancock, etc. He declared the legislation of congress infamous, likewise that body. He refused with grand coolness to make explanation, and walked in front of the speaker's desk and received his reprimand with ease, grace, and stoic indifference that showed the character of the man. It soon becomes evident to a visitor of even ordinary powers of observation that the Democrats are wanting in talented and influential leaders.

I scanned most closely the personage of Hon. John Morrissey, the noted pugilist and sportsman of New York, as he sat in the hall. His physique is grand, hardly graceful, yet not awkward, but exhibiting physical perfection, save the smashed nose. He sits heavily in his seat, and does not seem much interested in the business transacted. His shining and carefully dressed black hair and whiskers and entire dress show that he pays great attention to his personal appearance. His look is subdued, and if his countenance expresses anything it is this: "I know how to behave myself among gentlemen though I have been long at the 'mill' and in the gambling house." Indeed, it would seem that this was his highest ambition. In the ladies gallery opposite of Mr. Morrissey sat his wife, a lady of rare beauty and sprightliness, and dressed in a manner to excite admiration even in the Tuileries.

Hon. Mr. Bingham has arisen and shaken from him the dust of Andrew Johnson's administration and become the ablest champion of the policy of congress; his speech in favor of his bill to secure the execution of the reconstruction acts is the grandest effort of the session, except the celebrated reply of Mr. Baldwin to Mr. Brooks, of New York, who sought to prove the black man had no soul.

I have conversed freely with distinguished members of the house and senators. From their confident tone and great zeal, I feel, that we of the South may be satisfied that henceforth and forever the loyal white and emancipated black men of the South shall be protected, and that rebellion must be entombed.

I delivered an address here which is terribly distorted by the Evening Express of this city, a Johnson organ. Not satisfied with an inaccurate report, its editor devotes an editorial column to the controversion of my opinions and an artful denunciation of myself. The National Republican gives the proper view. Washington is said to be a sink of corruption, but churches are multiplying—their congregations are large and revivals are frequent. The Methodist Episcopal church is, I think the leading denomination of the city.

Hon. Thomas L. Tullock, who is the executive brain of the Union congressional committee, is a man of rare ability and energy. He works from conviction of duty, and distributes tons of political documents among the people of the South, and receives and answers thousands of letters. I scarcely think that the elections at the South would have been successful had not the Union congressional committee scattered information among the people.

Mr. Tullock's services can not be estimated. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and president of the New Hampshire Conference Missionary society. No better man could be found for the important work he is performing.

My business has so entirely taxed my time that I have had but little time for visiting our churches here and in Baltimore, but casual observation shows wonderful increase of members and churches among both white and colored.

I shall see Hon. T. J. Durant to-day. I regret that it is not before writing to you.

May I not say through your widely circulated journal to all the loyal men, white and colored, go to work as if for your lives to secure the ratification of the constitutions that have or may be adopted by your state conventions. The Republican party at the North expect this. Do not be alarmed on account of the times; our present hardness of the times was brought about by Andrew Johnson and his secretary of the treasury, Mr. McCulloch. They have pursued the policy of contracting the currency, which calls for increased taxation and leaves the South bare of currency.

The interest felt in the New Orleans Advocate at the North should increase the zeal of the members of our conference to support it. It must never be embarrassed for want of support.

The colored Methodists here are earnestly preparing for the Washington conference to be held in Mount Zion church, Georgetown, D. C., by Bishop James in February next.

I am indebted for many attentions to Rev. Benjamin Brown, a presiding elder of the Washington conference, a pioneer of the work in this conference, and a leader among his brethren.

JAMES LYNCH.

Letter from Rev. James Hayward.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

I take the present opportunity of writing you these few lines, hoping they may find yourself and family in good health, as they leave me at present. I wish to inform you of the African preachers. I must say, they have some of the worst men going about, sowing the seed of prejudice. First, there is Rev. Bishop Campbell, who stood in the pulpit on the night of December 30, 1867, in the Bethel church, in Baton Rouge, and brought up old prejudices to the minds of the people. He told them how they seduced colored women in times past and dragged colored preachers out of the church by the throat, and made them sit on the back seats; and how that one colored man wanted to get white. When he began his discourse he said that he did not call the people together to insult any one; if he did, he would not consider himself a gentleman.

Now, sir, I want to call the bishop's attention back to his own discourse and see whether it proves him to be a gentleman, and much less a Christian. In the name of Heaven I do ask the community if such men are fit to instruct a congregation. Such men are not fit to send among heathens, much less to bring a congregation from darkness to the light of salvation. If the captain give bad advice, what can we expect of the soldiers? And next to the bishop came Rev. Mr. Ready, of Galveston, who, instead of preaching the gospel, came here like a wolf among lambs, trying to scatter them; but the Lord would not permit it. This man Ready came here and told the people of this place that the colored men of our conference were not allowed in the same room with the white men. It is true that such slanders do not hurt me at all, but I wish the community to know what kind of untruthful men are going about the land. We want men to preach the gospel of peace that connects together in a bond of love. If Christ has not been divided, we can't divide his people with the words of truth. Such men do a great deal of harm and very little good. I do want the people to know that the seed of prejudice was about to die out in Baton Rouge, until Bishop Campbell and Ready sowed it again. I ask how can souls be converted under such men as these? If Satan hides his club foot he can do us much harm; and their doctrine suits Satan. I want these men to know that I am not a fool if I have been a slave; and Doctor, you will oblige me, to fill a space in the Advocate with this. I will close my letter and say no more at present. Your brother in Christ,

JAMES HAYWARD.

Baton Rouge, January 10, 1868.

Young Men's Association.

A notice having been given on Sunday, January 26, by Rev. Dr. Newman from his pulpit that on the following Monday evening the young men were invited to assemble in the chapel of the Ames Methodist Episcopal church to organize an association for religious, social, and intellectual improvement, twenty-four gentlemen assembled at the time appointed for that purpose.

Dr. Newman called the meeting to order, and after singing and prayer stated at large the object of the meeting.

Interesting remarks were then made by several individuals in regard to the prevailing vices of the city; the many temptations that beset young men on every hand, that have led and are now leading them to destruction; the need of some organization to counteract these influences and save those who are still uncontaminated and reclaim those who have gone astray.

It was moved and carried that we proceed to organize an association.

On motion, H. C. Dibble was appointed temporary chairman and W. M. Henry, secretary.

It was moved and carried that two committees be appointed, one to draft a preamble, the other to draft a constitution and by-laws.

On the former T. F. Brown, C. Bussey, and Wm. Daily were appointed. On the latter, H. C. Dibble, John Howell, M. Carr, James E. Wallace.

There was some discussion whether the association should be considered a Christian or a literary association. Suggestions as to plans of working were made by several individuals.

It was moved and carried that when we adjourn it be to next Wednesday night, so that after the adjournment of that meeting we may attend the reception at the parsonage.

On motion, a committee, composed of S. L. Brown, M. Lara, and W. M. Henry was appointed to report at the next meeting a plan for a series of lectures to be delivered before the association.

It was moved and carried that Captain Armstrong be added to the committee on constitution and by-laws.

The time for the meeting of the several committees was announced by the chairman of each, after which it was moved and carried to adjourn.

Prayer by Rev. N. L. Brakeman.

Adjourned.

W. M. HENRY, Secretary.

How Good Sermons Are Made.

Many persons suppose that the preparation of a sermon is a matter requiring but little time and labor. Probably many sermons are prepared with precisely that amount of outlay. But to prepare a good sermon requires a liberal expenditure of industry. A correspondent of the Presbyterian Witness, writing on this subject, makes the following pertinent remarks:

How do the most genuine sermons come? They come as the trees come. They grow. The winter and the summer, rain, sunlight, starlight—all enter into the tree. The tree is the resultant of ten thousand influences wrought up into growth. So it is with a true sermon. "How long did it take you to prepare that sermon?" asked a theological stripling of the venerable Lyman Beecher. "Twenty years," replied the veteran. But a tree is worthless without the root—and a rootless sermon is like such a tree, fit only to be burned. No sermon is worthy of the name; it may be an essay, but it can not be dignified into a sermon—which does not strike itself into the Scriptures, and draw up out of that its meaning and its life. A sermon should be evolved out of the Scriptures like a tree out of its root. An address ready made which goes mousing about the Bible, seeking a text that it may use as a "motto," or "by way of accommodation," stays an address forever, and can not become a sermon. To preach is to declare the word of God, and the word of God is the Bible; and the Scripture must always sustain an organic and vital relation to the sermon. The impulse of the sermon should come from the Scriptures, just as the impulse toward the tree originates in the seed.

President Harrison taught for several years in a humble sabbath-school on the banks of the Ohio. The sabbath before he left home for Washington to assume the duties of chief magistrate of the nation he met his Bible class as usual. And his last counsel on the subject to his gardner at Washington, when advised to keep a dog to protect his fruit, was: "Rather set a sabbath-school teacher to take care of the boys."

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00

INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion.....50

Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.

☞ Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1868.

Five Sermons to Young Men.

Rev. Dr. Newman will commence to-morrow evening, at 7 o'clock, in his church, a course of Five Sermons to Young Men, founded on the Parable of the Prodigal Son, to be continued on successive Sunday evenings, and which will be as follows:

I. The Prodigal—Leaving Home.
II. His Temptation, Sin and Misery.
III. The Insanity of His Sinful Life.
IV. His Recovery and Return.
V. His Happy Reception.

Bills.

We have sent this week bills to our subscribers who have not yet remitted their subscription money for 1868. We earnestly hope that the money will be remitted without delay, and we shall esteem such promptitude a special favor at this time.

Corrections.

It is due to the managers of the Orphans' Home to state that the typographical errors in the report of their annual meeting were corrected in the proof, but in the haste of going to press due attention was not given to the correction.

Sociables.

The first of a series of social gatherings of the congregation of the Ames M. E. Church was held at the parsonage last Wednesday, and notwithstanding the excessive cold weather the company was large and very interesting.

The Weather.

Tuesday was very rainy, Wednesday cold with a high wind. By 6 o'clock in the evening the thermometer had gone down to 32 degrees—the freezing point. At 10 o'clock 30 degrees. On Thursday morning 24 degrees, or eight degrees below the freezing point. This is the coldest weather known in New Orleans in years.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the Advocate they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the Advocate for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

Young men and others are invited to a public meeting of the Ames Young Men's Association, to be held next Monday evening, and to a prayer meeting on the following Friday evening, in the chapel of Dr. Newman's church.

Revivals.

During the great financial panic of 1857-58 God was pleased to pour out His Holy Spirit, and turn the hearts of the children of men to seek His favor. Man's extremity is God's opportunity. The history of the church shows that her grandest revivals have occurred during or immediately succeeding some great calamity. "Before I was afflicted I went astray," was the experience of King David; and as a rule it is the experience of nearly the whole church. In the days of prosperity men forget God, and it is only when He humbles their pride with adversity, and blights their worldly hopes with afflictions that they remember the rock from which they were hewn and the pit from which they were dug.

The calamities which have befallen us as a people are well calculated to humble us in the dust and lead us to repent of our sins. Our worldly hopes have been broken to pieces like a potter's vessel; our dearest friends have been borne to the silent dormitories of the dead, and misfortune has uncovered to us the utter emptiness of all earthly good. In our distress we should turn to the Lord. He is calling us by the stern voice of adversity, we having unheeded the gentler tones of His mercy. Nor will he cease to chastise us till we turn unto Him. In their distress men are daily asking, "What does it mean?" They are without God and hope in the world. Conscious of a void within they seek not the peace of mind which God only can give, and convinced of their own weakness they go not to Jesus, who is mighty to save. There are some, however, who are tender under their afflictions and ever grateful that God has spared them from destruction, yet they come not out on the Lord's side.

In such an hour as this, the church should wait upon the Lord till He pour out His Spirit upon the people. The church is God's medium through which He works upon the hearts of the people, and hence the church should arise and shine. In all our city churches, and everywhere throughout our conference, the pastors should take the lead. Call the people together; unfold to them their duty in this supreme hour, and instruct them in the nature and necessity of a revival of God's work in their own souls and in the hearts of the people. And to this call the church should at once respond and come up to the help of the Lord; to the help of the Lord against the mighty. There should be no Achans in the camp of the Captain of our salvation; no laggards in the heavenly race; no drones in the celestial hive. Every man, woman, and child should inquire, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" And when the Lord replies, "Arise, shine," should stand forth "like a city that is set upon a hill, that can not be hid."

There are three seperate duties which Christians should do at once. First. Seek to be thoroughly reclaimed from all your own heart backslidings. What idol of the soul has usurped the throne of Jesus? What secret sin has gone unconfessed? What darling pleasure is indulged in contrary to the will of Jesus? Oh, Christians, search your hearts as with a lighted candle, and sing with Cowper:

"The dearest idol I have known,
Whate'er that idol be,
Help me to tear it from thy throne,
And worship only thee."

II. The next important duty is to refrain from whatever may interfere with the progress of God's work. Be very careful that you are not an obstacle to this work, neither by your conversation nor daily walk nor the spirit you manifest. Avoid all unprofitable conversations about yourselves, and especially about others. "Speak evil of no man." Put a bridle on your tongue; do not sow the seed of contention among brethren, nor by your trifling talk drive away the serious impressions of the awakened sinner. Set an example of zeal for Christ before the world. Convince men that you are sincere by the earnestness of your life. Actions speak louder than words. Manifest the sweet, gentle spirit of Jesus, especially his love for souls.

III. Have faith in God. The Lord can do nothing through a people who have no faith. "They must believe that he is, and a rewarder of them who diligently seek him." This faith will lead you to offer revival prayers. Revival prayers are peculiar for their intense earnestness and continued importunity. This faith will lift you above great difficulties, and laughing at seeming impossibilities, will cry, "It shall be done." This faith will enlarge your views of the possibilities of salvation, and will bring that dear friend to Jesus whom you had abandoned in despair. Holiness of heart, purity of life and faith in God, will save a world through the power of Jesus. Let the whole church cry, "O Lord, revive thy work!"

Mexico.

The hour is come for the regeneration of Mexico. The downfall of the empire was the overthrow of the church party. The new government has not only no sympathy with the papal church, but is the avowed enemy of priestly domination. Juarez rightly believes that the poverty of Mexico is due to the priests, and he is now relieving the people by restricting the priests. Such is the determination of the government in this regard, that a law has been passed that no priest shall appear in the streets of Mexico, wearing his priestly garments, and for the violation of this law, a priest was fined the other day, $100. And Protestants are now no longer required to bow in the streets when the host passes: nor do Mexicans take off the hat in passing the cathedral as in the days of papal rule.

The new government has also promulgated a law, declaring null and void all marriages performed under the recent reign of the French and declaring marriage a civil contract. This law wrests a tremendous power from the hands of the priests; sets at defiance a favorite doctrine of that apostate church, and opens the way for Protestantism. Doubtless some evils will attend the rigid execution of this law. Yet great good will flow therefrom.

As an indication of the animus of the new goverment, and of public sentiment, the church property is being rapidly confiscated and the churches given to the Protestants. In the city of Mexico, three fine churches have been seized by the government and given severally to the Lutherans, Presbyterians, and Baptists, by whom they are now occupied. And some of the provincial governors have entered heartily into the distributions of the holy scriptures. These astonishing facts came from a gentleman who has resided in Mexico since 1852, and who is now in this city. He, his sons and daughters have been and are engaged as colporteurs, and are now filled with new hope. One of his sons is a member of our church in this city, and on last Sunday night the father offered himself and was received. They will soon return to Mexico to engage in the good work again and perhaps to lay the foundations of the Methodist Episcopal church in regenerated Mexico.

Young Men's Association.

In answer to an invitation twenty-four young men assembled in our chapel last Monday night to consult on the best measures for mutual improvement, and to save young men from the evils which beset them in this city. The large number present was a cause of sincere gratification, and is the earnest of better things to come. In this we were delightfully disappointed. Indeed, had not ten responded to our call we would have been greatly encouraged, but as more than twice ten came, we "thanked God and took courage." The number present was to us a confirmation of our convictions that the young men of New Orleans are lost because the church fails to reach them by some such special effort. And the spirit manifested was excellent. All present were in accord with the objects of the meeting as stated by the pastor of the church, and all wished to share in the good begun work.

An hour was spent by several speakers in developing into form the objects of the contemplated association. Incidents were related showing the necessity of some such efforts to save young men from the ruin of soul and body, and some of these incidents were exceedingly thrilling. And one present related the experience of his own checkered life, and of his joy in being able to aid in such a movement. After mutual consultation it was agreed that the object should be religious, social, and intellectual improvement, and to accomplish this it is proposed to hold a weekly prayer meeting, to have literary exercises once in two weeks, and to have a public lecture each alternate week. And in addition to this, the members of the association will mingle socially in the gatherings of the church, which are to take place twice a month.

In another column may be found a full report of the proceedings of the association. And now we earnestly invite the ladies to heartily favor this movement, and do all in their power for its success.

New-Comers.

The New Orleans Tribune and the New Orleans Times for several weeks past have been trying to play a political tune on "New-comers," that white and black conservatives might dance thereto. But their instruments are cracked, the tune is bad and the dance worse. Although the editor and proprietor of the Times is a Pennsylvania Dutchman, by birth, education, and whatever respectable bringing up he has had, yet knowing him to be such a consummate adept in all michief, we were not surprised at his attack on "New-comers." But that the New Orleans Tribune should attack its friends, is adding assault to treachery. And the attack comes with bad grace from a paper edited by Frenchmen and Spaniards, who are not Americans in that higher and nobler sense in which the majority of our "New-comers" are. The very nomonclature of the Tribune is foreign, and its illustrations, even in its English editorials, are from French history and not American.

But the above journals have forgotten the great fact of history and of philosophy, that a new era, whether of religion, or philosophy, or politics, demands a new people. The old Philistines of Canaan were not fit to receive and advance the Jewish religion, and hence Abraham was called, and a new nation raised up. In turn, the Jews were unfit to promulgate the new faith of the Messiah, hence the apostles turned to the barbarians of the west, who gave universal dominion to Christianity, adding to the CROSS as many soldiers as believers. And Islamism was confined to the banks of the Tigris and Euphrates, till the Turks evoked it, by the freshness of their enthusiasm and the heroism of their arms. And going forth with scimetar and bow they planted its banners amid the eternal snows of the Bythenian Olympus; on the green banks of the Pontic and Propontic; and waved them over the seven hills of ancient Byzantium. Learned Greece was indebted to the "new comer," Cadmus, for the foundation of her literature; imperial Rome was founded by the "new comer," Romulus; England owes her glory to such "new comers" as Julius Cesar and William the Conqueror; America ascribes her greatness to the "new comers" known as the pilgrims; and the new South will owe her future and greater glory to the "new comers" from the North.

Neither the English nor the French portion of the population of the South is qualified to promulgate the new principles evolved by the war. Their tastes and prejudices, their theories and customs, their education and traditions are against such a supposition. The change demanded by such new ideas is too radical and universal to even suggest the possibility thereof. The only hope that they could ever become tacit supporters of the great principles of the Proclamation of Emancipation is that said principles shall be so modified as to wear the semblance of the slave power of the past. But this can not be. Those great principles must be supported in the South by a new and fresh race, whose education and natures qualify them for their recognition and promulgation. Every other will fail. Only this is sanctioned by history and is equal to the demands of the present. The history of human greatness is the history of "new comers," and those in the South should toil on patiently in the path of reform and of business, and the near and farther future will witness the consummation of their wishes and the reward of their noble doings.

In the Union.

The paramount duty of every citizen is to seek the immediate restoration of Louisiana to the Federal Union, on the plan of reconstruction adopted by Congress. As to the desirableness of the restoration there is no difference of honest opinion; some may differ as to the plan proposed. But we candidly hold that the inevitable evils attending further delay will be much greater than the anticipated ones incident to immediate reconstruction. The South needs rest, and with that rest a sense of security. But there can be no rest to these severed states while the normal, federal relation remains broken, and while we are under a mixed government—half civil and half military—and the more so, as the military of to-day is with congress and to-morrow with the president. The time has fully come when the Union men are sufficiently strong to dispense with Mr. Johnson's military. The ballot is their ægis. And the immediate restoration of civil law, both state and national, throughout the Southern States, will impart a sense of security of life and property, which will revive trade, and create a new South. Northern capitalists will then invest in Southern lands and business, and in less than five years the change will be no less astonishing than beneficial. And this restoration will be the burial of secession. The great struggle will then be over, and society established on a better foundation will rise to higher prosperity and greater happiness.

And this very desirable end may be accomplished by the adoption of the new constitution which soon will be offered for our suffrages. Doubtless, like all human documents, it will have its defects, but these will not be irremediable; the wisdom and power of the future will correct the errors of the past. Rising above all personal considerations involved, is the grand thought of the restoration of the state to the Union of our fathers. And it is a secondary consideration as to who the party may be that shall accomplish this. Let the good work be done, and done at once. He who hinders it a day is an enemy to his kind, and a hater of his country. He who can rise above the past, and so far forget his prejudices as to aid a work so humane and noble will deserve the commendation of all good citizens.

The State Ticket.

So many readers of the Advocate, both in the city and in the country, have applied to us either personally or by proxy for our opinion as to the forthcoming state election, that we deem it our duty to define our position and announce our views without further delay on this all engrossing subject. And this we should do as hundreds of our readers, especially in the country, have not access to any public journal except the Advocate. Accepting this grave responsibility imposed upon us by so many of our subscribers we now enter the canvass with the candor, earnestness, and enthusiasm demanded by the tremendous interests involved in the approaching election.

We hoist this week the names of those gentlemen who have been selected by the representatives of the Republican party in convention assembled, as their candidates for the state offices. As we stated last week, these nominations were made in our absence. This absence and the entire engrossment of our attention by other matters, have prevented our bestowing such attention upon passing political events as has been our wont. Upon our return we found the ticket nominated, and our confrers of the Republican press divided in their comments upon the same. Holding this to be very unwise, and a thing which should not occur without grave and abundant cause, we, before committing ourselves to an unreserved support of all the individuals on the ticket, have endeavored to investigate the circumstances attending their nominations, and to ascertain any reasons which might exist for a refusal to support the nominees of the party. Having done this candidly and impartially, we are frank to state that we can see none which will justify any sincere advocate of Republican principles who is at all desirous to see the triumph of these principles, and the success of reconstruction in this state, in withholding his entire and earnest support from this ticket. Of those gentlemen on the ticket with whom we are acquainted we can speak in high terms of their ability, integrity, and high political standing; of some of those with whom we are not personally acquainted we have heard frequently and favorably, and while against some others objections might be urged, yet we deem it wise, in view of the regularity of their nominations, and the coalitions of malcontents forming against the true Republicans of the state, not to exclude them from our support, but to accept the ticket as a whole, which is as follows:

For governor, H. G. Warmoth.
For lieutenant governor, Oscar J. Dunn.
For secretary of state, George Bovee.
For attorney general, Simeon Belden.
For auditor, George M. Wickliffe.
For treasurer, Antoine, Dubuclet.
Superintendent of education, T. W. Conway.

Of some of them we hardly need speak, for their names are household words in the homes of Republicans all over the state. The Hon. H. C. Warmoth, our candidate for governor, is one of these. A more extended sketch of his public career we reserve for another time. After an honorable and distinguished service in the United States army, which he was among the first to enter at the outbreak of the rebellion, Colonel Warmoth settled in New Orleans in the practice of the law. At that time it required the highest degree of moral courage and principle to espouse openly the cause of Republicanism and equal rights for all men. It involved an amount of social, political, and business ostracism which will in a few years seem almost incredible. The man who advocated the extension of suffrage and all other civil and political rights to all men, black and white, had the finger of scorn pointed at him on the street, coupled with derisive remarks in the press, and referred to from the bench and the pulpit as an incendiary, and an enemy to the public peace, deserving of criminal prosecution, and that peculiar old Southern style of punishing political opponents, lynch and mob law. This persecution did not deter many noble spirits from bravely and decidedly taking broad and advanced ground on these questions, advocating squarely and unequivocally the concession to the colored man as an American citizen of all his rights and privileges as such.

Among these Judge Warmoth took from the first by his character and abilities a prominent position.

His distinguished services in behalf of these principles, and the peculiarly frank and manly advocacy of them which are characteristic of him, caused him to be chosen unanimously by the convention of the friends of universal suffrage at Economy Hall as their candidate to represent them as a territorial delegate in Washington.

His services there were invaluable to the state. Of his other public services we shall speak at length another time; and also of the other gentlemen associated with him. This, then, is our State Ticket, and we have no doubt that it will be elected by an overwhelming majority.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,
H. C. WARMOTH.
FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,
OSCAR J. DUNN.
FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,
GEORGE BOVEE
FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,
SIMEON BELDEN.
FOR AUDITOR,
GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.
FOR TREASURER,
ANTOINE DUBUCLET.
FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,
T. W. CONWAY.

OPELOUSAS DISTRICT.

January, 1868.

NEW STEAMBOAT—MULE AND FOOT TRAVEL—OLD LOCAL PREACHER.

Travel on the beautiful Teche is more pleasant now than usual. Captain Trinidad has put upon the route a new and elegant boat, the Warren Bell, with accommodations and table equal to many Mississippi steamers. But the ride of a mile in a mule cart and seven miles of rough walking was not so pleasant, as the itinerant, with saddle bags in hand, made his way along Bayou Terrebonne.

Toward night a shelter was reached and our good Brother William Jones welcomed the traveler to the best his house afforded. The old preacher has a warm heart and a cheerful spirit, undaunted by his many troubles. Again and again the crops have failed, and he is now badly off. Said he, "I often wonder how I could attend to my ministry during the past two years of misfortune, but some say I do preach good yet."

HOUMA QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—ELDER VANCE—POLITICIANS AND PLANTERS.

Next day, 11th instant, in the falling rain and through the fearful mud of that worst of roads we traveled to Houma, and with a few faithful members held the first Quarterly Conference of our new circuit. That worthy pioneer Elder Vance was at his post, and a good report was made of preparation for thorough work during this conference year. It is a grand field of labor for a faithful and wise preacher; the parish is large, population is numerous, and religion neglected. The Good Shepherd has many sheep there to be folded and fed. If the politicians and planters knew the benign character of our work, how self-sacrificing are our missionaries, and how important to every interest is our success, their opposition would cease, and they would cheer us on. I think no mistake has been made in selecting the man for Houma Circuit.

Our business meeting was harmonious, plans were laid, accounts examined, estimates made for pastors' support, and pledges given by the official brethren to take good care of their minister. May they be kept more faithfully than some of last year's promises.

SUDDEN DEATH—SABBATH SERVICES—DAY SCHOOLS.

During Saturday night at the village tavern a sudden death occurred. An old gentleman who had sat by the fire during the evening talking and reading the newspaper, well as usual, about midnight passed into eternity, to stand before the righteous judge of all the earth. He had for twenty years been overseer on a neighboring plantation. Death has been unusually busy of late in this region, yet sinners will not heed the warning.

Sabbath morning came with clouds and rain; a small congregation attended the love feast, but the interest was good. No Sunday school was held on account of the rain and cold. In the afternoon at preaching and the Lord's supper we had a happy and solemn time. The day school is kept up in our church, but is not flourishing. Our new bureau agent promises his aid in making it more efficient, and in encouraging schools throughout the parish. He seems to be entering upon his new and arduous duties with energy. I was informed that the laborers had generally hired out for the year at old rates—fifteen dollars a month and rations. There is much poverty, but prospects are better than last year.

BAYOU LAFOURCHE—FRENCH METHODISTS—ORANGES AND RICE.

A walk of five miles in the afternoon of January 17 brought me to Brother Bibolet's, near Raceland. He still ministers to his class of French Methodists, preaching in his own house. Our great want here is a church building. Quite a work might be done here among the Creole French and the freedmen. Crevasses and cotton worms have impoverished many of the people, but the sugar farms have done pretty well, and a good rice crop was gathered. Rice sells here at twelve dollars a barrel. Oranges are abundant; two large trees near Brother Bibolet's house yielded him two thousand oranges this year, and some hundreds still hang upon the trees. He received for the fruit sold fifty dollars. The hospitality of this kind Christian family will be always a pleasant memory.

THIBODAUX QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—THE NEW PREACHER.

It was with pleasure I again looked upon our beautiful centenary church and schoolhouse in this place. God will yet make it the birthplace of many souls. The young preacher brought me to the house of our kind sister, Mrs. Lucy Williams. May her home be ever happy, and her children learn to love their mother's Jesus. The conference was well attended. The brethren seem to be good working Christians. Brother Downs was on hand as usual; he never misses. The work was laid out for the year, committees appointed, estimates made, and a determination expressed to pay off debts and sustain the church. Congregations are improving, meetings of all kinds better attended, and the new minister is giving satisfaction. His sermons and prayers have emotion in them.

SABBATH SERVICES—JOINING THE CHURCH—A STORMY DAY.

A good Sunday school meeting was held in the school room, but the preaching services were poorly attended because of the rain and bad roads. In the afternoon more came out, and they heard a good sermon from Brother Grimes. After the sacrament a number of persons came forward to join the church—most of them men. May they be faithful to their vows. The church and lot need considerable work and expense to be put in order. We are promised help from our new agent in this parish. He is full of energy, and proposes to form school committees throughout his parish, and have the children educated. Meanwhile the preacher is to teach every day until a regular school is organized and supported by the people.

GREAT POVERTY—DISLOYALTY—DARK PROSPECTS.

Much destitution exists in Lafourche parish, more whites than colored applying for government rations, some who refuse to walk under the United States flag or enter a "Yankee officer's house" apply for food. Many of the laborers are unemployed, the planters being unable to hire or feed them. Probably this is the most destitute of the sugar parishes, and it is mostly the fault of the planters themselves. They refuse to be reconciled to their double defeat, in war and in politics. No blessing can come to them from God while thus unhumbled. Several poor insane people were sent to the city on Monday—a charge upon the government. They were half-naked, imbecile or raving creatures, wrecks of humanity.

ITINERANT.

An Illustration.

"We have some little difficulty," said a scientific lecturer, who was explaining the process of paper making, "with the iron dyes, but the most troublesome of all are the turkey-red rags. You see I have dipped this rag into my solution; its red is paler but it is still strong. If I steep it long enough to efface the color entirely, the fiber will be destroyed; it will be useless for our manufacture. How then are we to dispose of our red rags? We make them into red blotting paper. Perhaps you have wondered why your blotting-pad was red. Now you know the reason."

I could hardly sleep that night for joy at the acquisition of so striking, though unintentional, an illustration of the riches of grace, and the power of "the precious blood of Christ." The Spirit of God led the prophet Isaiah to write—not though your sins be as blue as the sky, or as green as the olive leaf, or as black as night, but "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool"—he chose the very color which modern science, with all its appliances, finds to be indestructable!—British Workman.

For my own part, if my pocket was full of stones, I have no right to throw one at the greatest backslider upon earth. I have either done as bad or worse than he, or I certainly should if the Lord had left me a little to myself, for I am made of just the same materials; if there be any difference it is wholly of grace.—Rev. John Newton.

Each true Christian is a night traveler. His life, his walk; Christ, his way; and heaven, his home. His walk, painful; his way, perfect; his home pleasing. I will not loiter, lest I come short of home; I will not wander, lest I come wide of home; but be content to travel hard and be sure I walk right; so shall my safe way find its end at home, and my painful walk make my home welcome.—Arthur Warwick.

As Our Mothers Do.—We were amused the other evening at three little girls playing among the sage brush in a back yard. Two of them were "making believe keep house" a few yards distance from each other—neighbors, as it were. One of them says to the third little girl, "There, now, Nelly, you go to Sarah's house and stop a little while and talk, and then you come back and tell me what she says about me; and then I'll talk about her; then you go and tell her all I say, and then we'll get mad and don't speak to each other, just like our mothers do, you know. O that'll be such fun."

Official figures show the receipts of the postoffice department during the past year to have been, in round numbers, $14,000,000, while the expenditures have reached $18,000,000. The committee on appropriations have now under consideration a request from the department for an additional appropriation of $2,500,000 for Southern service.

Johnnie's Treasure.

BY MRS. S. T. PERRY.

One day, as the pleasant sun shone on the streets of a large city, on to the gayly dressed people who thronged them, and into the well-filled store windows a little boy and girl trudged along with bare feet, looking with admiration and wonder into the various windows, in which stores of children's treasures were advertised so temptingly for sale. As they passed one after another the little girl said, "We haven't got to the splendid one of all, Johnnie. This is in the next block. When you were peddling apples at the depot yesterday morning I saw it. Oh! it's full of such beautiful things!" "Let's walk faster, Katie," said the boy, "so we shall have time to look a long while before we have to carry the bread home." They hurried along; faster and faster went their bare feet over the pavement. In a few moments their noses were flattened against the window pane, and their eyes were filled with toys of all descriptions. "See those dolls, Johnnie; as large as Mrs. Daly's baby, arn't they? I wish I could just touch one to see if it were alive!" said Katie, enthusiastically. Johnnie's eyes did not rest long on the dolls, for he had espied a ship, masts, and rigging. "O Katie," said he, "there's a ship, just like a real one, manned with men, too. I wish I had that! We would sail it on the pond at the end of North street." "I'd rather fix that set of furniture in a playhouse than sail boats," Katie replied. "See, it is just like the chairs and sofas in those big houses on M street!" Katie put her little dirty finger on the window pane to show Johnnie the exact locality of the furniture, for his eyes seemed to be wandering in different directions. Johnnie had caught a glimpse and then a whole sight of some pocket-knives.

Just as he was going to tell Katie, a finely dressed lady with a little girl in laces and ruffles, passed into the store. They spoke to the merchant, and the outsiders peeping in, saw one of the large doll handed down from the shelf; the lady took hold of it, then showed it to the little girl, who clapped her hands with delight. The lady took out her purse, and while she was counting out the price asked the little girl was examining her treasure from top to toe. It had curly hair and eyes that would open and shut. its feet had red morocco shoes on them, and its dress was pink, trimmed with ribbons and lace. "Mamma, you must get a bedstead for Dolly to sleep on," said the child, as they opened the door to go out into the street. The lady smiled and went back, inquired for a bedstead to fit Miss Dolly. The best in the store was selected, and the lady opened her purse again. "What sights of money," said Johnnie; "We havn't got enough to buy all we want to eat." "I don't see," said Katie, "why some folks have such lots of money, and others don't have hardly any. I wish I had some of that rich lady's money." "You know Tristam Conner says it's wicked to wish we had other people's things. It is breaking the tenth commandment," said Johnnie. Just then the lady and the child passed out of the store, not even bestowing one glance upon the two poorly clad, sad-faced children.

Katie watched them until they were out of sight, then she said, "O Johnnie, if I only had that doll, I'd be the happiest girl in the world. I'd be willing to pick up wood a great deal oftener than I do, and I shouldn't be tired carrying mother's wash basket, if it is heavy." "I've been thinking," said Johnnie," that if I could buy one of those knives I could make you a great many pretty toys. They would not be painted, but you could pretend so." "Oh, do get a knife," said Katie, jumping up and down before the window; "I shall be so happy. Do you think you could make a bedstead?" "Yes, I do," replied her brother, "and chairs and sofas too." "Can't you get a knife some way?" asked Katie, looking very thoughtfully at her brother. You've got apple money enough now to buy one; take it out of your pocket and count it," she continued. Johnnie took out the pennies and counted thirty-four. "All those pennies will get one, I know," said his sister, a look of triumph on her face. "Let's go in and see." "Mother wants this money to buy bread with for supper," Johnnie said, stepping on to the step before the door. "I don't think we ought to spend it for a knife; but I do wish I had one. I could make so many pretty things for you." Johnnie's care-worn face and patched pantaloons were seen through the glass doors by the merchant. "What do you wish, boy?" said he, opening the door. Johnnie made no answer, evidently struggling with the great temptation. "He wants to buy a knife, sir," said Katie; "have you any for thirty-four cents?" "No, Katie," said the boy, "I will not buy a knife to-day." "Be off, then," said the merchant, "and don't be hanging around here unless you wish to buy something." "Why didn't you buy the knife, Johnnie?" said Katie, as they passed on their way. "I knew I ought not," he replied. "Let's hurry to the bakeshop, get the bread, and go home." "What made you go without buying the knife, when you had your hand on the door?" said Katie. "You know the prayer that we say every night, Katie, that has 'Lead us not into temptation' in it? Well, that came into my thoughts, and I almost felt a hand leading me away. This is mother's money; she sent us to buy bread with it."

They reached the bakery. The money was soon exchanged for bread. Katie took one loaf and Johnnie the other. They then began to retrace their steps toward home. They walked along in silence till they stopped in a narrow street in front of a tenement house. Climbing up two flights of stairs, they opened the door of a back room.

"What makes you so late to-night, children?" said their mother, as she took the bread out of their hands. "We stopped to look at the pretty things in the windows," said Katie. The mother said no more, but prepared the evening meal. After supper Johnnie said, "Mother, can I go over to Tristam Conner's awhile?" His mother said "yes." Tristam Conner was a crippled soldier; he had but one leg, the other he lost a great many years ago. He supported himself mending shoes. He did not earn much, as the neighbors were poor. Johnnie went into the shop and sat down by Tristam's bench. "How goes the world with you to-day, my boy?" said the shoemaker, looking into Johnnies troubled face. "As well as usual. Could you lend me your knife for an hour or so?" "O yes," replied the man, "what do you wish to do with it?" "I thought I'd try and whittle out some toys for Katie," the boy replied; "she wants some so much, and we are not able to buy any." "That's right," said Tristam, "glad you wish to make your sister happy." Johnnie whittled and talked. In one hour he had put a very passable bedstead up. It had no paint on it, and the cords were of Tristam's shoe thread—but it was a bedstead, notwithstanding.

While he was making it, Johnnie told Tristam the story of the knife. "That was the Lord who led you away; I know it was," said the old man. "I've felt his hand pulling me away from things I ought not to do. Now, I try not to look at what he has not given me, but walk right by, saying, 'Lead me not into temptation, lead me not into temptation.'" "That's a good way," said Johnnie, "and I'll try to remember it. I wish I had a doll to put on this bedstead," said the boy, as he took it in his hand to go home. "Perhaps mother could manufacture one," said the kind old man. "Mother!" he called, loud enough to be heard in the room back of the shop. Mrs. Conner appeared in the door. She was a good natured woman and spoke pleasantly to Johnnie—all the time knitting on the blue sock she had in her hand. "Mother, havn't you got something to make Katie a doll of? See, Johnnie has manufactured a bedstead, and it will be useless without somebody to sleep on it." Mrs. Conner looked in a bureau drawer. She said as she turned over the contents, that she had not thought of a doll in years. She drew out a piece of pink calico, and asked Johnnie if that would do for a dress. Johnnie thought it would. She took needle and thread and soon made a rag baby, dressed it in pink and handed it to Johnnie. "Katie will be so pleased," said he, as he laid it on the bedstead.

Johnnie had to give another look at the knife that had executed the piece of furniture. "What are you thinking about?" said Tristam, as he saw that Johnnie was in deep thought. "I was thinking how many different kinds of treasures people have. Katie has some now, and they will make her happy. I believe I have not one in the world," continued Johnnie as he looked at the knife lying on the bench. "Yes, you have, Johnnie," said the old man, "of more value than all the toys in the shop window—the consciousness of doing right and of making others happy. You will find it in your heart when you get up in the morning and see your little sister's delight." "This isn't much," said the boy smiling. "Little things on little wings bear little souls to heaven," said Tristam. "I don't know much about poetry, but I read that somewhere and never forgot it."

After Johnnie went home, Tristam Conner sat alone thinking. Soon he took his money out of his pocket and counted it. Then he went into the room back of his shop. "Mother," said he, "I guess I'll buy Johnnie a knife. He has always been a good boy. I guess we shan't miss the money. I remember how I longed for a knife when I was his age, and didn't get any till I went to my trade."

The man took his hat and went out of the narrow street into the broad one, which the lights in the windows and those at the corner of the streets made it as bright as day. He went into the large store where pocket-knives were exhibited in the great glass window. Soon a half-dozen different sizes and kinds were laid upon the counter by the merchant who had spoken so rudely to the boy. Tristam selected one, paid for it, and put it into his pocket.

Up to the back room where Johnnie was sleeping the old man groped his way. He knocked at the door softly. The mother opened it. "Here is a present for Johnnie," said he. "Put it in his pantaloons pocket. Let him find it himself in the morning." Then he told the mother the story of Johnnie's temptation, and why he made the rude toys that were standing on a chair by Katie's bed. The tears ran down the mother's cheeks. "My treasure is of more value," said she, "than the rich ladies' jewels and gold."

Judge of Johnnie's delight at hearing his little sister's exclamations of joy when she awoke the next morning and saw the presents of her little brother. While Johnnie was putting on his patched pantaloons out tumbled the new knife. Johnnie could not imagine what it meant. He looked around to see if there was a fairy anywhere behind him. His mother soon told him where the knife came from, and nobody felt richer in that city that morning than Johnnie with his new knife. Four happy hearts dwelt that day in that narrow street.—Western Christian Advocate.

A Pastor's Anxiety.

A pastor, since an eminent preacher and teacher of theology, come to feel so deeply the condition of his charge, that he could not bear it alone. He had thought, wept, and prayed over it in his closet, and had preached the great truths of the gospel with all the energy he could command, but saw no evidence of a response from his audience. He now invited his four deacons to spend an evening with him in his study. To them he opened his whole heart. They talked and prayed together, and their feelings were deeply moved. As they were about to separate, the young pastor requested each deacon to come again a week from that evening, and bring with him one brother, being careful to select one who would be most likely to sympathize with them in their present feelings and purposes. The expected eight met the pastor at the second meeting, and the evening was spent very much the same way as the first; and at the close of this interview the same request was made of the eight as had been previously made of the four deacons. At the third meeting sixteen were present. Once more in this way the meeting was doubled at the pastor's study; and so profound were the feelings of all present, and so encouraging were the indications of the Divine presence that public notice was given of the next meeting, which was held in the chapel; the feeling deepening and extending from meeting to meeting, until the great congregation was moved, and a very large number were hopefully converted. The great and good man always traced the beginning of that wonderful revival to that first meeting with his deacons. The deacons would probably have gone one step farther back, namely, to that wrestling, and praying, and fresh anointing of their pastor, alone in his closet, before he met his deacons.

The Fate of the Apostles.

All the apostles were assaulted by the enemies of their Master. They were called to seal their doctrines with their blood, and nobly did they bear the trial. Schumacher says:

St. Matthew suffered martyrdom by being slain with a sword at a distant city of Ethiopia.

St. Mark expired at Alexandria after having been cruelly dragged through the streets of that city

St. Luke was hanged upon an olive tree in the classic land of Greece.

St. John was put in a cauldron of boiling oil, but escaped death in a miraculous manner, and was afterward banished to Patmos.

St. Peter was crucified at Rome with his head downward.

St. James the Greater was beheaded at Jerusalem.

St. James the Less was thrown from a lofty pinnacle of the temple and then beaten to death with a fuller's club.

St. Peter was hanged up against a pillar at Hieropolis in Phrygia.

St. Bartholomew was flayed alive.

St. Andrew was bound to a cross whence he preached to his persecutors until he died.

St. Thomas was run through the body with a lance at Coromaedel in the East Indies.

St. Jude was shot to death with arrows.

St. Matthias was first stoned and then beheaded.

St. Barnabas of the Gentiles was stoned to death by the Jews at Salonica.

St. Paul, after various tortures and persecutions, was at length beheaded at Rome by the Emperor Nero.

Such was the fate of the apostles, according to traditional statements; and though we can not authenticate them all, we at least know that the hatred of the world to these men and their teachings was sufficient to render the accounts not very improbable.

Down, Hero, Down, Sir!

A boy I know owns a big dog named Hero. He is very fond of his dog, and romps with it a good deal. This makes the dog take liberties with him, such as putting his great paws upon his shoulders, pushing him down, and rolling over him. Sometimes Hero wants to play when his young master wishes to study or work. Then the boy speaks in a tone of command, and says:

"Down, Hero—down, sir!"

Poor Hero obeys, and slinks away with drooping tail into his house.

Now, I know another boy who does not own a big dog like Hero, but he carries a little, ugly, furious cur in his breast, where it frowns, and snarls, and bites, and its owner has no control over it at all. What do you think is the name of the cur?

Temper!

Now, if this latter boy was wise he would bring his cur under control. He would say, "Down, Temper, down!" whenever it began to growl. He would bring it under discipline till it would obey him as Hero does the other boy. It is true Temper has been master so long it would cost some trouble at first to subdue it; but if the boy would pray hard, and then be resolute in saying, "Down," he would soon master it. God and a praying boy can conquer any temper that ever raged in a child's bosom.

Daily Religion.

Mr. Spurgeon says many pointed and excellent things. We have, however, seen few better things from his pen than the following brief paragraph, suggestive of the manner in which true religion manifests itself in every day life:

"I have no faith in that woman who talks of grace and glory abroad and uses no soap at home. Let the buttons be on the shirts, let the children's socks be mended, let the roast mutton be done to a turn, let the house be as neat as a new pin, and the home be as happy as home can be; and then, when the cannon balls, and the marbles, and the shot, and even the grains of sand are all in the box, even then there will be room for those little deeds of love and faith which, in my master's name, I seek for you who love his appearing. Serve God by doing common actions in a heavenly spirit, and then, if your daily calling only leaves you cracks and crevices of time, fill these up with service. To use the apostle's words, 'As we have opportunity, let us do good unto all men.'"

The Power of Song.

A hardened Scottish soldier lay on his hospital bed and refused stubbornly to listen to a word of spiritual counsel from the good minister who visited him. He "knew how to die without the aid of the priest," he said. The most affectionate entreaty seemed lost upon him, and he turned his face to the wall, determined to close the interview. The minister sat down by his bed and began to sing a hymn well known in Scotland:

"O mother dear, Jerusalem, when shall I come to thee?"

In a few moments the man turned himself upon his pillow, the hard look all gone and the eye wet with a tear.

"Who taught you that?" he asked.

"My mother," replied the minister.

"And so did mine," he replied, and with those memories surging back into his soul he was ready and willing to listen to the words of heavenly counsel.

INSTRUCTIONS TO BUREAU AGENTS,

REGULATIONS FOR FREEDMEN.

Supplies to be Advanced.

Working on Shares to be Discouraged.

Brevet Major General Buchanan, assistant commissioner of the freedmen's bureau for Louisiana, has just issued the following important circular to parish agents:

HEADQUARTERS BUREAU REFUGEES, FREEDMEN, AND ABANDONED LANDS, State of Louisiana, New Orleans, January 23, 1868.

Circular No. 1.

In order to carry out the instructions contained in letter from war department, bureau refugees, freedmen, and abandoned lands, dated Washington, D. C., January 7, 1868, and to relieve extreme want occasioned by reason of freedmen being without employment, through inability of planters to furnish supplies, it is hereby announced that as far as may be in the power of the bureau aid will be furnished in such cases under the following regulations:

ARTICLE I. 1. Duplicate copies of contract under which freedmen are employed must be filed in office of bureau agent in the parish.

2. For supplies of corn meal and meat advanced by the bureau a formal first lien will be taken upon the crops and movables used in cultivation of the same, for reimbursement for cost of such supplies.

These supplies will be furnished each month until the necessity for such issue no longer exists, and in each case the lien will be taken as stated.

3. Upon receipt by the planter of the first month's supplies he will file in the office of the bureau agent of the parish duplicate bonds, with good and sufficient surety in the amount of $1500 for every twenty freedmen employed, stipulating that for and in consideration of supplies furnished by the bureau to the freed people employed as laborers on his plantation during the year of 1868, he binds himself to reimburse to the bureau before the expiration of said year, the full cost of such supplies, from the proceeds of the crops, or other products of industry, raised by him, or from the movables on the plantation, used in the cultivation of the crop; and he further agrees that when said crops, or other products, are prepared for market, that the same, or his portion thereof, shall be shipped for sale, to such merchants as may be designated by the bureau, in the city of New Orleans, La., and that immediately upon the sale of said crops, a sufficient amount of the proceeds accruing therefrom, to the full amount, if necessary, shall be turned over to the proper officer of the bureau, in liquidation of his just indebtedness for subsistence advanced. He further stipulates and agrees that should there still be a balance due the bureau, after the proceeds of the crop have been thus applied, then in that event the movables and other goods on the plantation shall be liable therefor.

A copy of the contract and bond will be forwarded to these headquarters by the assistant sub-assistant commissioner on duty in the parish.

ART. II. With a view to systematize the issuing of supplies, as indicated in the preceding article, the following detailed instructions will be strictly complied with:

1. A planter who may be unable to furnish supplies to the freedmen in his employ, and desires to procure them from the bureau, will apply to the bureau agent of the parish, and file in his office affidavits, in duplicate, stating whole number of freed people employed for whom rations are required during the month, and specifying number of pounds of corn meal or hard bread, and number of pounds of meat needed for the subsistence of the freed people on his plantation, and further, that he is not able to furnish subsistence for them in any other manner. The parish agent, after being fully satisfied of the reliability of the planter, of the correctness of the number of freed people reported as employed in each case, and of the necessity of the bureau advancing the supplies, will then forward to these headquarters a duplicate of the affidavit and application for approval. The supplies will then be procured, and shipped to the bureau agent in the parish.

2. The cost of the supplies, including that of transporting them to the agent, will be charged against the planter requiring them by the officer procuring and forwarding the same.

3. Said charges will be communicated to the parish agent, and will in like manner be entered upon books, prepared for the purpose, in his office.

4. Upon receipt of the supplies, the parish bureau agent will, if necessary, cause the same to be transported to the plantation where they are required.

5. The cost of this transportation will be an additional charge against the planter, and the agent will immediately report to the assistant commisary of subsistence, at these headquarters, the amount of such additional charge, in order that the same may be charged on his books.

6. Upon the delivery of the supplies to the planter, he will receipt to the agent for the number of pounds of each article of subsistence, on which receipt will be specified the full cost of the supplies, including all charges on same up to time of delivery by the parish bureau agent.

7. These receipts will be in duplicate, and to each will be attached an agreement on part of planter giving to the bureau a formal lien or first privilege upon crops and movables as specified above. The agent will then retain one copy on file, and forward duplicate to the assistant commissary subsistence at these headquarters.

8. At the end of each month the parish agent will forward to these headquarters a full report of all supplies issued in accordance with the foregoing directions.

9. It must be constantly borne in mind by the bureau agents that the distribution of these supplies is solely for the purpose of securing employment to the freedmen by enabling the planter to furnish them with subsistence for the time being, and whenever the planter becomes able from any cause to furnish his employes the necessary subsistence, the advances made by the bureau will be immediately discontinued, and the fact so reported to these headquarters in order that the account with such employer may be closed.

In the adoption of this system agents are instructed to advise freedmen to contract to labor during the year for stipulated monthly wages, in all cases when it is in the power of the planter so to do.

The experience of the past two years has clearly proven the disadvantage of working for shares. The former system should be given preference, whenever found practicable, as it establishes labor upon a fixed and certain basis, preventing the endless complications and numerous difficulties incident to the system of shares.

In this connection, agents are instructed that their action with reference to the character of the contracts with the freedmen is to be advisory and by no means compulsory. The freedman is authorized to make his contract on such terms as may be most agreeable to himself.

Many planters are unable, through want of means, to pay freedmen wages, and can only employ them on the system of shares in crops raised. In all such cases, bureau agents will, when called upon, furnish all necessary assistance, as provided under existing orders.

ART. 3. Monthly reports of indigent and helpless, specified in circular No. 19, series of 1867, from these headquarters, will be made and forwarded as heretofore, and must include only those destitutes who are unable to labor, or otherwise provide for themselves, and to whom the parish or other local authorities fail to render the necessary assistance to prevent starvation and suffering.

The utmost care will be taken by the agents not to include the accounts of the indigent and helpless with those of the laborers who receive assistance through the planter. In all cases their accounts must be distinct and separate.

Subsistence for the indigent and helpless will be issued gratuitously, and will be accounted for in accordance with instructions hereinafore promulgated.

The necessary blanks will be furnished to agents requiring them on their application for the same to these headquarters.

By order of Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, U. S. A., Assistant Commissioner. LUCIUS H. WARREN,
Captain 39th U. S. Infantry, A. A. A. G.

Complimentary to the Methodist.

The Church Union writing on the "Mission of the Denominations" pays the following compliment to the Methodist denomination:

But right at this point we see the special purpose of God in raising up the Methodist denomination. Its mission seems specially to perpetuate an earnest, spiritual christianity. From the Wesleys down to the present time the Methodists have been a warm-hearted, zealous, aggressive people. They have a wonderful history, and present to-day a marvellous record of success. No one can tell how much they have done to keep other churches living and warm. The world melts away before the burning heat of their souls, set aglow with the love of Jesus. A noble mission have these disciples.

The New York Observer says: Noble enterprise and great success have attracted general attention to the peculiar powers of that religious organization commonly called the Methodist church. For many years it has been appreciated by the country as an active, aggressive system, which had secured certain numerical results, giving it prominence among other members of the Christian body.

But of late it has so asserted itself throughout the country that it now maintains a position among religious denominations more commanding than could be secured by mere numerical preponderence. Its educational institutions; its liberality; its architecture in many of the larger cities; its identification with great public interests; have made it known as a power to thousands who, some years ago, knew nothing whatever of its existence, save through the far-famed rusticities of the camp meeting.

In the success of Methodism we can find much that is peculiar, which is therefore its genius, its characteristic influence among all other forms of Christian activity. We observe at once that its origin and progress have been marked by great emotional power. Its worship and its teachings have been directed to and developed from the feelings. It has expended its force in besieging the doors of the heart, rather than in occupying the heights of the understanding. Bringing up from the depths of revelation the fuel that keeps alive the flame of divine life in the human spirit, it did not present this as so much hard coal for philosophical investigation. It inflamed it with its burning zeal, and presented it all glowing with the light and heat that illumines and inspires. It was this strong characteristic feature of Methodism that enabled it to constrain those masses of our population that seemed uninfluenced by others. Great numbers felt what they had never understood. All mankind have hearts to welcome, while only a small portion of mankind can be constrained by what appeals wholly or mainly to moral instincts and intellectual powers.

In addition to this powerful emotional current, it has been the advantage of Methodism to work with a system wonderfully adapted to develop the individual energies of its communion. No other organization has so provided suitable work for its members except the Church of Rome. By arrangements in some respects simple, and in others complicated, it provides official duties for a very large proportion of those who enter its fold. It thus enlists the active, responsible energies of numbers who in other connections would be simply passive receivers of the word. Here we find an exemplification of the doctrine of the Correlation of Force. No force is lost. Each exertion of force is but the expenditure of other forces. So we find here a system that takes men's natural abilities, and employs them in religious labor. It gives it a suitable direction, and thus transmutes it into something effectual for the kingdom. Physical energies that in no other known religious organization would have found any special mission, have been consecrated by Methodism, and made to do wonders in laborious itinerancy and out-of-door preaching.

A CENTRE SHOT.—Henry Ward Beecher, in a sermon delivered in Plymouth Church, produced the following picture:

Men seem ashamed of labor, and often you will find men who have made themselves respected by labor, have built up a business, and amassed a fortune, who turn to their sons and say: "You shall never do as I did; you shall lead a different life; you shall be spared all this." Oh, these rich men's sons! They aim to lead a life of emasculated idleness and laziness. Like the polyp that floats useless and nasty upon the sea, all jelly and flabby, no muscles, no bone—it shuts and opens, and opens and shuts, and sucks in and squirts out again, of no earthly account, influence or use. Such are these poor fools. Their parents toiled and grew strong, built up their forms of iron and bone; but denying all this to their sons, they turn them upon the world boneless, muscleles---ssimply gristle, and soft at that.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—The president has nominated J. Ross Browne minister to China; Wm. D. Bishop, of Connecticut, commissioner of patents; Thomas Price, of New Jersey, consul general to Havana.

The bill regulating impeachments provides that two-thirds of the senate may suspend the accused during trial.

The cabinet meeting to-day was full except Stanton.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $2,960,000.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—The following preliminaries to the passage of the bill relieving Governor Patton of political disabilities illustrates the feeling in the senate.

Mr. Davis bitterly opposed the bill. This Governor Patton was an original traitor, and ought to have a halter around his neck instead of having this congressional favor bestowed upon him, which would not make him any the less a traitor than he had ever been.

When Mr. Davis sat down several radical senators went over and shook hands with him.

Mr. Stewart said Governor Patton had been pardoned by the president.

Mr. Davis—Does that make him any better?

Mr. Stewart—That does not make him any better, but he is sorry for what he has done and is trying to do better. He was in favor of extending mercy to any rebel who would come forward and show signs of repentance and become a good citizen.

Mr. Hendricks was in favor of clemency to all the Southern people, but was not in favor of singling out as a special mark of favor a man who had taken an oath to support the constitution of the government of the United States and then gone into the rebellion.

Mr. Hendricks was here interrupted by a voice from the gallery with "That's so, my lad," and upon the doorkeeper attempting to eject the party he resisted so violently that he had to be carried out bodily, causing considerable disturbance, and a suspension of business for some moments. When order was restored Mr. Hendricks continued. He was in favor of pardoning Governor Patton, but not of singling him out. He did not believe in the doctrine of the senator from Nevada, Mr. Stewart, of only pardoning those who politically agreed with him. Many of the greatest radicals in the South had formerly been the greatest rebels. The bill passed.

Mr. Corey's bill to establish a uniform currency and to provide for the issue of treasury certificates as a legal tender for all purposes, the calling in and canceling of all national currency, and of all United States legal tenders. Also for the issue of bonds drawing three per cent interest. All outstanding bonds except when payable in gold to be paid when due or redeemable in treasury certificates or three per cent convertible bonds at the pleasure of the holder; the treasury certificates to be convertible into bonds or vice versa.

WASHINGTON, January 28—House.—The bill authorizing the taxation of national bank shares passed.

A bill regulating the deposit of public money and providing that national banks shall not be selected in places where there is a treasurer or an assistant treasurer, and requiring public moneys to be deposited in the sub-treasury if there is one within fifty miles, passed.

Several executive communications were presented.

The bill forfeiting lands granted Southern states for railroad purposes was resumed. Mr. Blaine opposed the bill, as such legislation in his judgment ought not to be taken when those states were unrepresented in congress.

Mr. Julien explained that the forfeiture did not apply to completed roads, and added that when the states came back into the Union, as they would in a few weeks, he would favor renewing the grants. Amendments were proposed excepting from the operations of the bill the Nashville and Decator, and the Alabama and Tennessee railroad companies.

Without coming to a vote the house adjourned.

Senate—Several memorials from reconstruction conveentions were presented.

A bill was introduced granting lands to the Port Royal railroad in South Carolina and Georgia.

The reconstruction bill was renewed.

The whiskey metre bill passed.

After executive session the senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—The senate committee on foreign relations reported favorably the Sandwich islands reciprocity treaty.

Supreme court—Armstrong foundry vs. United States. Argument concluded.

Gaines vs. De La Croix, et. al., and two other cases taken up will occupy the court for two or three days. There are new issues made under the will of Daniel Clarke, father of Mrs. Gaines, and a continuation of the noted litigation known as the Gaines will case.

The sentence of A. V. Kautz, convicted at Vicksburg by court martial, has been remitted and Kautz ordered to resume the sword and report for duty.

Joint resolutions will shortly be introduced rescinding immediately Grant's order discontinuing the freedmen's bureau in the United States.

The internal revenue receipts to-day amounted to $420,000.

A large delegation of tobacco dealers and manufacturers are here to consult with the ways and means committee relative to the tax.

Twenty-two hundred black and 480 white families are relieved in this city daily by the government and charitable associations.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—The government council will on Friday next, in the McCardle case, move for a further advancement on the docket with a view to its immediate dismissal.

Eighty citizens representing ten millions dollars worth of property have petitioned congress to take entire charge of the municipal affairs of the District of Columbia, and in opposition to an extension of the present charter.

Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, January 29.—House.—The committee on foreign affairs reported the bill heretofore published concerning the rights of American citizens abroad. It provoked an avalanche of questions and suggestions, indicating a wide range of views on the subject. Postponed.

The Southern states railroad land forfeiture bill was resumed. Messrs. Pile, Axtell, and Blair opposed the bill. During the debate the fact was established that Alabama had seven million, Mississippi four million, Louisiana seven million, and Florida seventeen million acres of land open to homestead laws. Bill postponed.

Mr. Johnson, of California, asked leave to introduce a resolution instructing the judiciary committee to inquire whether congress had power to prevent the immigration of Chinese and other inferior races, and whether the civil rights bill and constitutional amendment conferred the right of suffrage, etc., on Chinese born in the United States.

Mr. Pile objected to the resolution as being a burlesque on common sense.

The committee on commerce were instructed to inquire into the expediency of an appropriation for removing obstructions at Hell Gate and improving the eastern harbor of New York.

A bill removing political disabilities from Luke Blackmer, of Salisbury, North Carolina, was referred to the reconstruction committee. Adjourned.

Senate.—Resolutions from the general assembly of Colorado, asking admission as a state, were read.

The bill abolishing the eastern district court of Texas was indefinitely postponed.

The bill for the sale of ironclads was passed.

The reconstruction bill was resumed Adjourned.

Foreign News.

LONDON, January 29.—George Francis Train is leeturing in Cork to crowded houses.

The evidence of Shaw, who turned informer, is generally discredited.

An examining court held the editor of the Dublin Nation for trial.

Thomas Dailey, an American Fenian, has been arrested.

HAVANA, January 28.—The bark Addie Decker, which was lost near Vera Cruz on the 20th instant, is a total wreck.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., January 28.—In the convention a preamble of the bill of rights reported by the committee and ordered printed.

It was ordered that all reports of standing committees should be printed and laid over for two days.

The committee on education was instructed to inquire as to the school funds of the state, and what disposition should be made of them.

Several new standing committees were appointed. The convention was addressed by Col. Hart, superintendent of registration, and Col. Benson of New York.

WASHINGTON, January 28.—Mr. Stevens' suffrage bill gives the right of voting at all presidential elections, and on all national questions, to every citizen of the United States, over twenty-one years of age, who shall have resided ten days in the district.

LONDON, January 28.—The Abyssinian expedition is moving for war, and has reached Goma, twelve miles from Senafe.

RICHMOND, January 28.—Convention.—The committee on education submitted its report. It provides that the legislature shall select a superintendent of public printing, who shall also be superintendent of education, and the governor or attorney general shall constitute the board of education. The legislature is empowered to provide for a uniformity of text books, build schoolhouses and pass laws compelling the attendance of children.

The convention limited debate, except on two or three subjects, to half an hour. To-day was spent chiefly in discussing taxation and one section of the finance bill, which was adopted.

ATLANTA, Ga., January 28.—Convention The relief question was debated all day, and finally the ordinance on the subject was recommitted.

A general order issued to-day removes N. C. Barnett, secretary of the state of Georgia, for refusing to acknowledge the authority of General Meade. The army officer detailed as state controller is also to act as secretary of state.

GALVESTON, Texas, January 29.—General Pease has replied to General Hancock. He denies all the positions assumed by the general, and affirms that more than one hundred homicides have been committed in Texas during the last twelve months, and suggests that if General Hancock were better acquainted with the state his conclusions would be different.

River News, Weather, Etc.

CINCINNATI, January 29.—The river has fallen four inches; there is now nineteen feet four inches in the channel. Clear.

LOUISVILLE, January 29.—River falling with seven feet in the canal.

Weather clear. This is the coldest day of the season. The thermometer to-night is down to five degrees above zero.

Steamboatmen say the current of the Ohio river has increased wonderfully in swiftness recently.

Departed: Virginia for New Orleans.

ST. LOUIS, January 29.—Last night and to-day the coldest of the season. The mercury sunk to three degrees below zero.

The river closed here during the night, closing in the ferry boats which were attempting to cross. It is now nearly one continuous gorge between here and Cairo. Communication with the Illinois shore is cut off, but the ice will soon be strong enough for the passage of teams.

Mississippi Convention.

JACKSON, January 29.—Preamble and resolutions were offered and referred that as there are but few loyal papers published in the state, and as it is the duty of all loyal citizens to encourage journals that will advocate live Republican principles and unqualified loyalty to the constitution and laws, it shall be the duty of the first legislature convened under the constitution framed by this convention to provide for the election of an official printer for each congressional district. District, county, and municipal officers shall have all official printing, including all legal advertisements, inserted in said journals at rates of compensation to be fixed by law.

The committee on destitution reported an appeal to congress to appropriate so much of the tax levied on cotton in 1867 in this state as will enable the freedmen's bureau to supply the actual wants of the citizens of Mississippi, without regard to color. The best information they have shows that actual want will exist before another crop can be made. Ordered printed.

A resolution was adopted to appoint a committee of nine on draft of constitution.

The vote of yesterday accepting Mr. Orr's resignation as chairman of the committee on printing was reconsidered, and it was decided not to accept by a heavy vote.

Suicide of a Clergyman.

DELAWARE, Ohio, January 55.—Rev. George W. Bush, of the Central Ohio conference, committed suicide by hanging himself this afternoon.

IN THE SEASON

Of Rose Colds, Hay Fever, etc., no sufferer should be without JONAS WHITCOMB'S REMEDY FOR ASTHMA. It is an unfailing cure for these distressing complaints. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO., sole proprietors, Boston, and 592 Broadway, New York. (Sold by all druggists.)

"Willard's," at Washington; "Metropolitan" and "Fifth Avenue," New York, use Burnett's celebrated Extracts for flavoring. New York Depot, 592 Broadway.

The COLOGNE WATER prepared by Joseph Burnett & Co., of Boston, is superior to the veritable "Farina." We speak from actual experience.—Baltimore American.

Wholesale and retail depot 592 Broadway, New York.

In Preference to all Other Methods.

Well informed teachers invariably use that Standard Word, RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD. Complete in every department, satisfactory in every particular, it only requires an examination to convince any one that no other book approaches it in excellence. Price $3 75. Mailed post-paid. Oliver Ditson & Co., publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston. C. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.

THE MUSICAL MIRROR.

A volume of Elementary Instructions in Vocal Music, with numerous Practical Exercises, attractively arranged upon an original plan; together with a Collection of Music, harmoniously adapted to Sacred and Secular Words. The whole especially designed for Public Schools, Colleges, and Singing Classes. Price 75 cents. Copies mailed post-paid. Oliver Ditson & Co., publishers, 277 Washington street, Boston. Chas. H. Ditson & Co., 711 Broadway, New York.

(From the Atlantic Monthly for February.)

THE MEETING.

BY JOHN G. WHITTIER.

The elders shook their hands at last,
Down seat by seat the signal passed.
To simple ways like ours unused,
Half-solemnized and half-amused,
With long-drawn breath and shrug, my guest
His sense of glad relief expressed.
Outside the hills lay warm in sun;
The cattle in the meadow-run
Stood half-leg deep; a single bird
The green repose above us stirred.
"What part or lot have you," he said,
"In these dull rites of drowsy-head?
Is silence worship? Seek it where
It soothes with dreams the summer air,
Not in this close and rude-benched hall,
But where soft lights and shadows fall,
And all the slow, sleep-waking hours
Glide soundless over grass and flowers!
From time and place and form apart,
Its holy ground the human heart,
Nor ritual-bound nor templeward
Walks the free spirit of the Lord!
Our common Master did not pen
His followers up from other men;
His service liberty indeed.
He built no church, he framed no creed;
But while the saintly Pharisee
Made broader his phylactery,
As from the synagogue was seen
The dusty-sandaled Nazarene
Through ripening cornfields led the way
Upon the awful Sabbath day.
His sermons were the healthful talk
That shorter made the mountain-walk.
His wayside texts were flowers and birds,
Where mingled with His gracious words
The rustle of the tamarisk tree
The ripple-wash of Galilee."

"Thy words are well, O friend," I said;
"Unmeasured and unlimited,
With noiseless slide of stone to stone,
The mystic Church of God has grown.
Invisible and silent stands
The temple never made with hands,
Unheard the voices still and small
Of its unseen confessional.
He needs no special place of prayer
Whose hearing ear is everywhere;
He brings not back the childish days
That ringed the earth with stones of praise,
Roofed Karnak's hall of gold, and laid
The plinths of Philæ's colonade.
Still less He owns the selfish good
And sickly growth of solitude—
The worthless grace that, out of sight,
Flowers in the desert anchorite;
Dissevered from the suffering whole,
Love hath no power to save a soul.
Not out of Self, the origin
And native air and soil of sin,
The living waters spring and flow,
The trees with leaves of healing grow.

Dream not, O friend, because I seek
This quiet shelter twice a week,
I better deem its pine-laid floor
Than breezy hill or sea-sung shore.
But here, in its accustomed place,
I look on memory's dearest face;
The blind by-sitter guesseth not
What shadow haunts that vacant spot;
No eye save mine can see
The love wherewith it welcomes me!
And still, with those alone my kin,
In doubt and weakness, want and sin,
I bow my head, my heart I bare
As when that face was living there,
And strive (too oft, alas! in vain)
The rest of simple trust to gain;
Fold fancy's restless wings, and lay
The idols of my heart away.

Welcome the silence all unbroken,
Nor less the works of fitness spoken,—
Such golden words as hers for whom
Our Autumn flowers have just made room;
Whose hopeful utterance through and through
The freshness of the morning blew;
Who loved not less the earth that light
Fell on it from the heavens in sight,
But saw in all fair forms more fair
The Eternal beauty mirrored there.
Whose eighty years but added grace
And saintlier meaning to her face,—
The look of one who bore away
Glad tidings from the hills of day,
While all our hearts went forth to meet
The coming of her beautiful feet?
I ask no organ's soulless breath
To drone the themes of life and death.
No altar candle-lit by day,
No ornate wordsman rhetoric-play,
No cool philosopher to teach
His bland audacities of speech
To double-tasked idolaters
Themselves their gods and worshipers,
No pulpit beat by ruthless fist
Of loud-asserting dogmatist,
Who borrows for the hand of love
The smoking thunderbolts of Jove.
I know how well the fathers taught
What work the later schoolmen wrought,
I reverence old-time faith and men,
But God is near us now as then;
His force of love is still unspent,
His hate of sin as imminent;
And still the measure of our needs,
Outgrows the cramping bounds of creeds:
The manna gathered yesterday
Already savors of decay;
Doubts to the world's child-heart unknown
Question us now from star and stone;
Too little or too much we know,
And sight is swift and faith is slow;
The power is lost to self-deceive
With shallow forms of make-believe,
We walk at high noon, and the bells
Call to a thousand oracles,
But the sound deafens, and the light
Is stronger than our dazzled sight;
The letters of the sacred book
Glimmer and swim beneath our look;
Still struggles in the age's breast
With deepening agony of quest
The old entreaty: 'Art thou he?
Or look we for the Christ to be?'

God should be most where man is least;
So, where is neither church nor priest,
And never rag of form or creed
To clothe the nakedness of need—
Where farmer-folk in silence meet—
I turn my bell-unsummoned feet;
I lay the critic's glass aside,
I tread upon my lettered pride,
And, lowest seated, testify
To the oneness of humanity;
Confess the universal want,
And share whatever heaven may grant.
He findeth not who seeks his own,
The soul is lost that saved alone.
Not on one favored forehead fell
Of old the fire-tongued miracle,
But flamed all o'er the thronging host
The baptism of the Holy Ghost;
Heart answers heart: in one desire
The blending lines of prayer aspire:
'Where in my name meet two or three,'
Our Lord hath said, 'I there will be.'

So sometimes comes to soul and sense
The feeling which is evidence
That very near about us lies
The realm of spiritual mysteries.
The sphere of the supernal powers
Impinges on this world of ours.
The low and dark horizon lifts,
To light the scenic terror shifts;
The breath of a diviner air
Blows down the answer of a prayer:—
That all our sorrow, pain, and doubt
A great compassion clasps about,
And law and goodness, love and force,
Are wedded fast beyond divorce.
Then duty leaves to love its task,
The beggar self forgets to ask;
With smile of trust and folded hands
The passive soul in waiting stands
To feel, as flowers, the sun and dew,
The one true life its own renew.

So, to the calmly-gathered thought
The innermost of truth is taught,
The mystery understood,
That love of God is love of good;
That to be saved is only this,—
Salvation from our selfishness;
That book and church and day are given
For man, not God,—for earth, not heaven,—
The blessed means to holiest ends,
Not masters, but benignant friends;
That the dear Christ dwells not afar
The king of some remoter star,
Listening, at times, with flattered ear
To homage wrung from selfish fear,
But here, amidst the poor and blind,
The bound and suffering of our kind,
In works we do, in prayers we pray,
Life of our life, he lives to-day."

WALRUSSIAN WEALTH.—Reports of gold deposits in our new Russian possessions are still coming in. The latest is contained in a letter to Secretary Seward from Mr. Berry, of Oregon, who relates that a party of prospectors found in the Stickteen river, three hundred miles from its mouth, gold and silver deposits of great wealth, also rubies and agates, and on Bristol river copper and coal indications.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST
IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT
FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.

II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.

III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.

IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.

V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.

VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.

VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.

VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.

IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.

X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par valne and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET,

AND OF

FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,
AND
Dealers in Government Securities,
AND
FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper,
devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at
57......St. Charles Street......57
NEW ORLEANS.

The REPUBLICAN is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,
BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,
The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,
TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
AND THOSE OF THE
Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the REPUBLICAN indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

Daily, one year....$16 00 | Weekly, one year....$5 00
Daily, six months.. 8 00 | Weekly, six months.. 2 50

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscrptions will be received for the SUNDAY REPUBLICAN from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

TO THE LADIES.

Professor BLOT, who is good authority, says: "Great care should be used in selecting GENUINE Flavoring Extracts, both in regard to taste and health. I think none can compare with BURNET's in this respect."

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining these superior Extracts of reputable grocers and druggists. Depot 592 Broadway.

BURNETT'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.

For more than eight years Burnett's Toilet Preparations and Cooking Extracts have maintained a large and constantly increasing sale, sustaining the opinion of the best judges that they are unrivaled.

Salesroom 592 Broadway, New York, and sold by all reputable dealers.

"Its exquisite beauty surpasses our anticipations."—Lady's Book.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR:

A Monthly Illustrated Magazine for the Little Ones.

EDITED BY T. S. ARTHUR.

TERMS—$1 25 a year in advance. Five copies for $5. Ten copies, and one to the getter-up of club, $10. "The Children's Hour" and "Arthur's Home Magazine" one year for $2 50.

Specimen numbers 10 cents.

BISHOP SIMPSON says of

The Children's Hour:

"I have no hesitation in commending it as one of the best Magazines published for children."

BISHOP STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, says of

The Children's Hour:

"I believe that its introduction into every household would prove a blessing to young and old."

REV. GEO. D. BOARDMAN says of

The Children's Hour:

"I am delighted with 'The Children's Hour.' I do not see how a more entertaining, instructive, or profitable Magazine could be put in the hands of our children."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES says of

The Children's Hour:

"This dear little monthly visitant we believe to be by far the purest, safest, and most attractive magazine for the little ones at home, published in this country."

MR. JOHN B. GOUGH says of

The Children's Hour:

"I can indorse it thoroughly......... It is a most welcome visitor to the family of children at my own home."

The Children's Hour

is as beautiful as the best typography and the best artists can make it. Two volumes a year, beginning in January and July. The number for January, 1868, will be the most beautiful number of a child's magazine ever published. Terms as above.

Address
T. S. ARTHUR & SON,
809 & 811 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE
OF
Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 70 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.

Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.

For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.

The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.

The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.

Terms, cash in advance.

Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.

Address, THE TRIBUNE, New York.
de18 3:D&3tW

New Book of Choruses.
Forty-Five
OPERA CHORUSES.
Selected and arranged from the works of
Rossini, Auber, Bellini, Donizetti, Gounod, Verdi, Flotow, Spontini, Wagner, Herold, Bishop, Balfe, Benedict, and others.
Forming a Most Valuable Collection
FOR SOCIETIES, CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS SINGING SCHOOLS, CLUBS, AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.
By Edwin Bruce.
PRICE THREE DOLLARS.
Copies Mailed, post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & O., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
HARLES H. DITSON & O.,
d14 711 Broadway, New York.

SCROFULA OF EVERY PHASE, CAtarrh, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Asthma, Liver and Kidneis, Bladder and Skin Diseases WM. R. PRINE, Flushing, New York, for sixty years proprietor of the Linnear Nurseries, has discovered the remedial plants which are positive cures for the above and for other chronic diseases, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Gout, Piles, Diabetes, Jaundice, Dropsy Uterine and other Female Maladies, Mercurial and other Blood impurities hitherto incurable. Explanatory circular, one stamp. Treatise on all diseases, 25 cents. n1

A copy of the American Cyclopedia given as a premium.

GET THE BEST.

A COMPREHENSIVE
DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.
MAINLY ABRIDGED FROM
Dr. Wm. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.
WITH
Important Additions and Improvements, and Five Hundred Illustrations.

THIS BOOK is a condensation of the large work in three volumes, and contains entirely new matter, drawn from a wide range of first-class authority.

The Dictionary is issued in semi-monthly numbers, of 48 royal 8vo. pages each. The whole will be completed in about twenty-two numbers, eight of which are now out.

PRICE OF EACH NUMBER, THIRTY CENTS.

The first number will be sent gratis to any address for examination, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

GET UP CLUBS.

Three subscribers sent to us, will entitle the sender to a copy of the Dictionary gratis.

Three subscribees sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the Annual Cyclopedia for 18 6, in library binding—price $6

Thirty subscribers sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the New American Cyclopedia, 16 vols. 8 vo., the price of which is $80.

Agents wanted in all parts of the United States. Liberal terms offered.

D. ALLPETON & CO., Publishers,
no23 3t 443 and 445 Broadway.

"EUREKA,"

THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

THE CLASSIC POETS have sung to us of a spring whose pure, ethereal waters impart perpetual youth and beauty to all who will drink of them. It is now conceded by all that the EUREKA is made of the water of that same spring, and its magical effects will be seen at once by those who use it. The hair will be restored to its yonth and beauty, even where the snows of winter have fallen. In presenting this Hair Restorative to the public, I have no hesitation in saying that it is no humbug: that it will do all that is claimed for it, viz.: Restoring the hair to its original color; preventing its falling off, and giving it a softness, youth and lustre that no other preparation can produce. The Eureka has been used by tens of thousands, and in every case has given entire satisfaction, and is now used universally. Dr Van Zandt has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair—preventing it falling off, by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the EUREKA, and you will not be disappointed.

It is for sale by al druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
Manufactured by ROBERT FISHER, Agent,
no16 St. Louis, Mo.

AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS,
Is Richardson's New Method
FOR THE PIANO FORTE.

BEING THE ONLY BOOK THE TEACHER requires, and the book every pupil is attracted to. Its lessons are adapted to pupils of all ages, and its exercises attractive and useful in every stage of advancement. This book has, on account of its actual merit, become the standard work of Piano instruction, and the only one which every well informed teacher and scholar uses.

Price $3 75; sent post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
no16 711 Broadway, New York.

COLGATE &CO. NEW YORK

AROMATIC
VEGETABLE SOAP,
Combined with Glycerine recommeneed for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N. Y. Sold by Druggists.
nov2m6

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the complexion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Sold at 502 Broadway, New York. oc17

THE MUSIC BOOK
For Every Boy and Girl is
MERRY CHIMES,
Containing Hundreds of Popular Songs and Pleasing Instructions and Exercises
BY WHICH ONE CAN LEARN TO SING THEM.

PRICE—Fifty Cents. Sent Postpaid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
oc17 tf 711 Broadway, New York.

INFORMATION WANTED—OF FRANK VARNAR, by his wife, Sarah Varnar, who used to live in Pickens District, South Carolina, in the family of James Johns. Address SARAH VARNAR, care of Shade Croom, Houston, Texas. d14

The October Phrenological Journal

Contains Portraits and Characters of Mary Queen of Scots; Charlotte Bronte; Thomas Nast, the artist; Ira Aldridge, tragedian; Alfred Sewell, and others. Well-written articles on Anthropology; Married or Single; Boots and Beauty; Sick Headache, its Cause and Cure; The Fashions, Illustrated; Man's Spiritual Nature; Forming Character; The American Physiognomy; "Expression;" Whining Women; Grapes and Blackberries, Illustrated. $3 a year, or 30 cents a number.

Address S. R. WELLS, Editor,
oc4 389 Broadway, New York.

NOTICE.

ROOMS OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND UNION CITIZENS. Washington, D. C., July 17, 1867.

IN PURSUANCE OF A SERIES OF RESOLUTIONS passed by the House of Representatives July 10, 1867, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate the "Treatment of Prisoners of War and Union Citizens held by the Confederate authorities during the late rebellion."

All persons in possession of important information upon either of these subjects are earnestly requested to address the Committee, as directed below, stating:

1. The name, age, and post office address of the writer.
2. If a soldier or seaman, his rank or position, and with what command he served.
3. A full statement of all facts known to the writer touching his own imprisonment or treatment, and that of others, either soldier or citizen, giving, as far as possible names, places, and dates, with names of Confederate officers in charge.

Correspondents from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and the States and Territories lying west of the Rocky Mountains will please address
JOHN P. C. SHANKS, M. C.,
Washington, D. C.

Correspondents from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, and the Territories east of the Rocky Mountains will address
WILLIAM A. PILE, M. C.,
St. Louis, Mo.

Correspondents from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will address
ABNER C. HARDING, M. C.,
Monmouth, Ill.

Correspondents from the New England States will address
AARON F. STEVENS, M. C.,
Nashua, N. H.

Correspondents from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee will address
WILLIAM MUNGEN, M. C.,
Findlay, Ohio.

Communications addressed to the members of the Committee will be free of postage.

It is the intention of the Committee to collect all facts necessary to make a thorough official history of this subject.

The various newspapers throughout the country are requested to give this circular a gratuitous insertion, together with such notice as they may deem proper.

JOHN P. C. SHANKS,
WILLIAM A. PILE,
ABNER C. HARDING,
AARON F. STEVENS,
WILLIAM MUNGEN,
Committee.

JOHN D. LARRABEE, Clerk.

BELLS.
BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:ly

Agents Wanted.
(Male or Female,) to sell our celebrated
Franklin and Diamond Double Thread Sewing Machines.

Complete with Table, only $25.00. Single Thread Hand Machines are not practical for any sewing, at any price. We give away our machine to the poor and needy, and send them out on trial. Circulars and information free. Address
J. C. OTTIS & CO., Boston, Mass.

W. H. PEMBERTON,
158 - - - POYDRAS ST. - - - 158
NEW ORLEANS.
Between St. Charles and Carondelet Streets.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN
Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Colors
Varnishes, Glass, Etc.

Has in store and to arrive, a large supply of the following goods, which he will sell at low figures, either wholesale or retail:

White Lead in Oil, all kinds.
Window Glass, French and American, all sizes.
French and American Zinc.
American and English Venetian Red.
Oils of all descriptions.
Varnish of all kinds.
Stove Polish,
Bi Carbonate of Soda.
Sal Soda.
Alum.
Castile and Colgate Soaps.
Wash Blue.
Black Writing Ink and Marking Ink.

Manufactured by himself.

Also a great variety of Perfumery and Fancy Articles for Toilet.

The Store is also well supplied with all kinds of Drugs and Medicines, Fresh and of the Best Quality. Strangers visiting the City would do well to give him a call. 65 89

ROUGH AND READY
IRON WORKS.
Danville, Montour Co., Penn.

WILLIAM HANCOCK,
Proprietor,
Manufacturer of
RAILROAD IRON
OF ALL WEIGHTS AND PATTERNS.
MINE RAILS,
STREET RAILS,
STRAP RAILS,
Old Railroad Iron Re-Rolled.

The subscriber is prepared to furnish all kinds of
STEAM ENGINES,
ROLLS,
ROLLING-MILL MACHINERY,
Saw and Grist Mill

Machinery, gas retorts, mine car wheels and axles, globe valves, gauge cocks—most improved styles. Blow off cocks, steam whistles, steam and water fittings, screw bolts, iron and brass castings, and every description of foundry and machine work, boilers, etc., etc.

Plans, designs and estimates furnished without extra charge for all work ordered from
WM. HANCOCK,
BENJ. G. WELCH, General Agent.

NATIONAL
FREEDMEN'S SAVING
AND
TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.
Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,
No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.

Deposits of One Dollar or more received.

Interest payable in January and July, in each year.

All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.

All the profits belong to the depositors.

Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.

Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

JONES, McDOWELL & Co., Little Rock, Ark. | J. B. SHAW & Co., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,
GENERAL
Commission Merchants
AND
COTTON FACTORS,

No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.
☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

MUSICAL LEAVES.

Published by Philip Phillips & Co., Cincinnati.

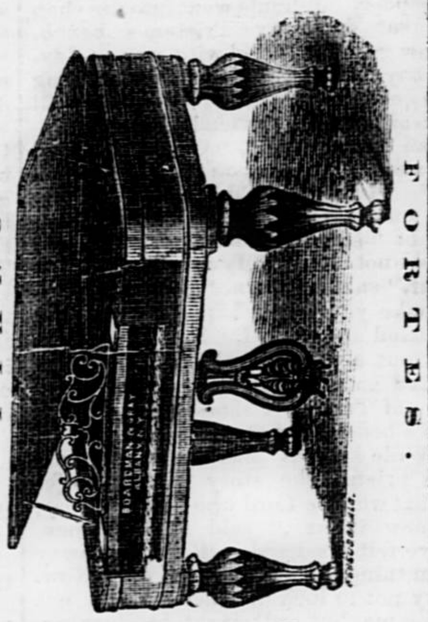
THE BEST SABBATH-SCHOOL SINGING BOOK EXTANT.

Over 15,000 Sold in Eight Months.

This is the book that has been so highly recommended by the New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois State Sunday School Conventions.

☞ Send for specimen copy.
Forty cents each, or $30 for 100 cop

WILLIAM McCAMMON,
MANUFACTURER OF
BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.

☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address
s6 WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.

PIERCE & DWIGHT'S
SELF-RAISING FLOUR.
—FOR—
Bread, Biscuit, Cakes, Pastry, Etc., Etc.,
WITHOUT USING YEAST, YEAST POWDER, SODA OR SALT.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING:

Stir in cold water with a spoon, and bake at once, without kneading or waiting for the dough to rise.

For the healthfulness of Self-Raising Flour, consult your Physician.

Ask your Grocer for a six pound package.

For sale at
99..........Magazine Street..........99
fe9 NEW ORLEANS.

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS
Window Shades and Cornices,
AND
PAPER HANGINGS
For Sale by
E. HEATH.
75 Camp street.

PEMBERTON'S
"Carbolic Acid Disinfectant."

This Powder is a compound of Carbolic Acid, Copperas, etc., possessing the properties of destroying contagion, decomposing pestilential effluvia, noxious exhalations, and neutralizing strong and offensive odors; removing the effluvia of sick rooms, sewers, cesspools, sinks, privies, etc.

It far surpasses the Chlorinated Lime in its actions and effect, and is certainly the best Disinfectant now in use. Thoroughly disinfecting the atmosphere, electrifying the oxygen, and rendering the respirable air both healthy and pure, being tirely free from all injurious effects on the throat and lungs, which so frequently attend the use of deodorizers.

Prepared and sold by
W. H. PEMBERTON,
No. 158 Poydras st., N. O.

Grovesteen & Co.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.
499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

PITTSBURG FEMALE COLLEGE,
Rev. I. C. PERSHING, D. D. President.

Best sustained Ladies' School under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.

Superb brick buildings, with all the modern improvements.

Twenty-two Teachers.

Including Five Music Teachers.

Four hundred and twenty-six Pupils

French and German by native Professors. Sixty dollars per term, fourteen weeks, pays all expenses in boarding department except washing. Fall term commences September 4. Send to President Pershing, Pittsburg, Pa., for circular. aull tf

STAPLETON & CO.,
UNION HAT STORE,
95..........CANAL STREET..........97
NEW ORLEANS,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer
—IN—
Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,
—ALSO—
GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n26

MEDICAL.

Dr. J. WHITE'S INSTITUTE.
127 CARONDELET STREET,
Directly in rear of the City Hall.

The first aim of human beings is happiness, and happiness implies health of body and mind.

This Institute is established for the cure of all forms of disease, Chronic and Acute.

Dr. White does not allow any disease afflicting his patients, however virulent, to escape his vigilant care, as his patients universally testify.

It can easily be perceived how important it is that a full and correct diagnosis—detecting all the diseases that afflict the patient—should be attained. And it is no less important to the afflicted that the remedies should be equally clear to the physician; proving to his patient that when the local disease is eradicated, the whole system is completely renovated and restored to its normal condition. "A sound mind is a sound body."

Dr. White's experience and success for thirty years in an extensive practice in large cities have brought to him for treatment a vast amount of every form of disease, justifying him in promising the cure of the patient if the vitals and vitality are not irreparably wasted.

His remedies cure the worst eruptions of the skin; all forms of ulcers, of whatever nature, to the incipient cancer, which so grievously afflict humanity. The remedies restore the stomach, liver, and blood, and all the secretions and excretions of the entire system, in unhealthy to a healthy condition. Instead of injuring the system or constitution, they renovate and repair the injuries and wastes of the entire organism.

One or two hours spent at the Institute with Dr. White frequently saves weeks of fever or other suffering—often life.

N. B. Persons desiring Dr. White's advice and remedies, will be careful to call at 127 Carondelet street, or address by letter, as there are several Dr. Whites in the city.

☞ Consultation free—stamps not "forgotten."
[feb3]

A NEW GLEE BOOK.
THE GREETING.

A COLLECTION OF GLEES, QUARTETS, Choruses, Part-Songs, etc. By L. O. Emerson, Author of "The Jubilate," "Harp of Judah," "Golden Wreath," "Merry Chimes," etc.

Upwards of Half a Million copies of Mr. Emerson's Music Books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no other author of the same class of books and which cannot fail to insure for this new volume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been contributed by Mr. L. H. Southard whose name is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The marked features of the collection are Originality, Brilliancy and Variety; and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no Glee Book now before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to Musical Societies and Conventions, Conservatories, Clubs, and Amateur Singers. Price, $1 38. Mailed post-paid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO.,
se26 711 Broadway, New York.

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE

Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by S. C. UPHAM, 25 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa. Circulars free. Sold by all Druggists. oct 12t

HALLOWED SONGS.

FOR PRAYER MEETINGS AND SMALL CHURCHES. A Small Hymn and Tune Book, of 25 pages, bound in muslin, at $1 each, of $75 per 100.

PHILIP PHILLIPS & CO.,
3 ly Cincinnati.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other.

B. T. BABBIT.
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING.

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.

Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.

No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.

For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.
PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS

Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c., HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.
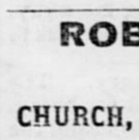
FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.



MENEELY' WEST TROY Bell Foundry, established in 1826. Bells for Churches, Academies, Factories etc., made of genuine Bell-metal, (Copper and Tin), mounted with improved patent mountings, and warranted. Orders and inquiries addressed to the undersigned, or to our General Agents, Fairbanks & Co., Scale Warehouse, 252 Broadway, New York, will have prompt attention, and an illustrated catalogue sent free, upon application.

E. A. & G. R. MENEELY,
West Troy, N. Y.

ROBERT PATON,
Manufacturer of
CHURCH, OFFICE AND SCHOOL
FURNITURE.
24 Grove St., N. Y.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING
Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17 ly C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

The New-Orleans Advocat

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 6. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1868. WHOLE NO. 106.

Poetry.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

"BE OF GOOD CHEER, IT IS I!"

The night is dark, and swiftly sweep the surges,
A little bark by adverse winds is tossed,
Whose roar 'mid creaking spars makes fearful dirges,
While to the trembling sailors all seems lost.

Those Galilean fishermen are weary,
The flagging oars attest their failing strength,
But in the gloom across the waters dreary
A form divine their vision greets at length.

"It is a spirit!" say they, unbelieving,
Forgetful that their master may be nigh;
Yet He their troubled hearts from fear relieving,
Replies, "Be of good cheer, for it is I!"

Rash Peter the first impulse glad obeying
Cries, "Lord, if it be thou oh bid me come
To thee!" "Come," is the answer, thus conveying
A Savior's loving care to shield from harm.

Strange power! the disciple now is moving,
While firmly treading o'er the swelling wave,
But from the Master soon his eyes are swerving,
He has not fully learned how faith can save.

Beneath his feet he feels the sea removing,
In yawning gulfs the billows all seem riven,
"Oh, wherefore did'st thou doubt?" is the reproving
Which, with the hand stretched forth to aid, is given.

Most peacefully that vessel soon is gliding,
Those toil-worn rowers rest; Christ is on board.
They gather round Him all in sweet confiding,
To treasure up the teachings of their Lord.

Through waters deep and limitless extending,
Earth's pilgrim dost thou hear the bidding "come?"
A hand omnipotent its aid is lending,
Fear not, its strength will safely bear thee home.

Look not upon the breakers roughly dashing,
The spray will ever dim thy view, and light
From Heaven's portal gloriously is flashing,
Oh, let no mists obscure the beacon light.

'Neath sunny skies, when all the voyage over,
There's anchorage where storms may not assail,
A haven on the banks of life's pure river
Awaits the soul whose trust shall never fail. S.

NEW ORLEANS, January 30, 1868.

WESLEY'S SERMONS.

We propose to publish in the ADVOCATE every week, one of John Wesley's sermons, for the benefit of our preachers and our readers generally. And we do this both for the good these remarkable sermons may do, and also to accommodate our colored preachers, most of whom cannot afford to buy the volumes containing these discourses.—ED.

Sermon CV.—On Pleasing all Men

"Let every man please his neighbor for his good to edification."—Rom. xv., 2.

1. Undoubtedly the duty here prescribed is incumbent on all mankind; at least on every one of those to whom are entrusted the oracles of God; for it is here enjoined to every one without exception, that names the name of Christ. And the person whom every one is commanded to please is his neighbor; that is, every child of man. Only we are to remember here what the same apostle speaks upon a similar occasion: "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." In like manner we are to please all men, if it be possible, as much as lieth in us; but strictly speaking, it is not poseible; it is what no man ever did, nor ever will perform. But suppose we use our utmost diligence, be the event as it may, we fulfil our duty.

2. We may further observe in how admirable a manner the apostle limits this direction; otherwise, were it pursued without any limitation, it might produce the most mischievous consequences. We are directed to please them for their good; not barely for the sake of pleasing them, or pleasing ourselves; much less of pleasing them to their hurt; which is so frequently done, indeed continually done, by those who do not love their neighbor as themselves. Nor is it only their temporal good which we are to aim at in pleasing our neighbor; but what is of infinitely greater consequence, we are to do it for their edification. In such a manner as may conduce to their spiritual and eternal good. We are so to please them that the pleasure may not perish in the using, but may redound to their lasting advantage; may make them wiser and better, holier and happier, both in time and in eternity.

3. Many are the treatises and discourses which have been published on this important subject.

* * * * *

I shall endeavor to show that there is a better way of doing it; and indeed a way diametrically opposite to this. It consists—

I. In removing hindrances out of the way; and

II. In using the means that directly tend to this end.

I. 1. I advise all that desire to "please their neighbor for his good to edification," first to remove all hindrances out of the way; or, in other words, to avoid everything which tends to displease wise and good men—men of sound understanding and real piety. Now cruelty, malice, envy, hatred, and revenge are displeasing to all wise and good men; to all who are endued with a sound understanding and genuine piety. There is likewise another temper, nearly related to these, only in a lower kind, and which is usually found in common life, wherewith men in general are not pleased: we commonly call it ill-nature. With all possible care avoid all these; nay, and whatever bears any resemblance to them: as sourness, sternness, sullenness on the one hand, peevishness and fretfulness on the other; if ever you hope to "please your neighbor for his good to edification."

2. Next to cruelty, malice, and similar tempers, with the words and actions that naturally spring therefrom, nothing is more disgustful, not only to persons of sense and religion, but even to the generality of men, than pride, haughtiness of spirit, and its genuine fruits, an assuming, arrogant, overbearing behavior. Even uncommon learning, joined with shining talents, will not make amends for this; but a man of eminent endowments, if he be eminently haughty, will be despised by many and disliked by all. Of this the famous master of Trinity college, in Cambridge, was a remarkable instance. How few persons of his time had a stronger understanding, or deeper learning than Dr. Bentley! And yet how few were less beloved, unless one who was little, if at all inferior to him in sense or learning, and equally distant from humility; the author of the "divine legation of Moses." Whoever, therefore, desires to please his neighbor for his good, must take care of splitting upon this rick. Otherwise the same pride which impels him to seek the esteem of his neighbor will infallibly hinder his attaining it.

3. Almost as disgustful to the generality of men as haughtiness itself is a passionate temper and behavior. Men of a tender disposition are afraid even to converse with persons of this spirit. And others are not fond of their acquaintance; as frequently, (perhaps when they expected nothing less,) meeting with shocks, which if they bear for the present, yet they do not willingly put themselves in the way of meeting with again. Hence passionate men have seldom many friends; at least not for any length of time. Crowds, indeed, may attend them for a season, especially when it may promote their interest. But they are usually disgusted one after another, and fall off like leaves in autumn. If, therefore, you desire lastingly to please your neighbor for his good, by all means avoid violent passion.

4. Yea, and if you desire to please even on this account, take that advice of the apostle: "Put away all lying." It is the remark of an ingenious author, that of all vices, lying never yet found an apologist; any that would openly plead in its favor, whatever his private sentiments might be. But it should be remembered Mr. Addison went to a better world, before Lord Chesterfield's letters were published. Perhaps his apology for it was the best that ever was, or can be made for such a cause. But after all, the labor he has bestowed upon it "has only semblance of worth; not substance." It has no solidity in it; it is nothing better than a shining phantom. And as lying can never be commendable or innocent, so neither can it be pleasing; at least when it is stripped of its disguise, and appear in its own shape. Consequently it ought to be carefully avoided by all those who wish to please their neighbor for his good to edification.

5. But it is not flattery, a man may say, one species of lying? And has not this been allowed in all ages, to be the sure means of pleasing? Has not that observation been confirmed by numberless experiments:

Obsequium amicos, veritas odium parit?
"Flattery creates friends, plain-dealing enemies?"

Has not a late witty writer, in his "Sentimental Journal," related some striking instances of this? I answer, it is true: flattery is pleasing for a while, and that not only to weak minds; as the desire of praise, whether deserved or undeserved, is planted in every child of man. But it is pleasing only for a while. As soon as the mask drops off, as soon as it appears that the speaker meant nothing by his soft words, we are pleased no longer. Every man's own experience teaches him this. And we all know that if a man continues to flatter after his insincerity is discovered, it is disgustful, not agreeable. Therefore, even this fashionable way of lying is to be avoided by all that are desirous of pleasing their neighbor to his lasting advantage.

6. Nay, whoever desires to do this, must remember that not only lying, in every species of it, but even dissimulation (which is not the same with lying, though nearly related to it), is displeasing to men of understanding, though they have not religion. Terence represents even an old heathen, when it was imputed to him, as answering with indignation: "Simulare non est meum:" "Dissimulation is no part of my character." Guile, subtlety, cunning, the whole art of deceiving, by whatever terms it is expressed, is not accounted an accomplishment by wise men; but is indeed an abomination to them. And even those who practice it most, who are the greatest artificers of fraud, are not pleased with it in other men, neither are fond of conversing with those who practice it on themselves. Yea, the greatest deceivers are greatly displeased at those that play their own arts back upon them.

II. Now if cruelty, malice, envy, hatred, revenge, ill-nature; if pride and haughtiness; if irrational anger; if lying and dissimulation, together with guile, subtlety, and cunning; are all and every one displeasing to all men, especially to wise and good men, we may easily gather from hence what is the sure way to please them for their good to edification. Only we are to remember that there are those in every time and place whom we must not expect to please. We must not, therefore, be surprised when we meet with men who are not to be pleased any way. It is now as it was of old, when our Lord himself complained: "Whereunto shall I liken the men of this generation? They are like unto children sitting in the market-place, and saying to each other we have piped unto you, but ye have not danced; we have mourned unto you, but ye have not wept." But leaving these forward ones to themselves, we may reasonably hope to please others, by a careful and steady observation of the few directions following:

1. First, let love not visit you as a transient guest, but be the constant temper of your souls. See that your heart be filled at all times, and on all occasions, with real, undissembled benevolence; not to those only that love you but to every soul of man. Let it pant in your heart; let it sparkle in your eyes; shine on all your actions. Whenever you open your lips, let it be with love: and let there be in your tongue the law of kindness. Your word will then distil as the rain, and as the dew upon the tender herb. Be not straitened or limited in your affection, but let it embrace every child of man. Every one that is born of a woman has a claim to your good will. You owe this not to some, but to all. And let all men know that you desire both their temporal and eternal happiness, as sincerely as you do your own.

2. Secondly, if you would please your neighbor for his good, study to be lowly in heart. Be little and vile in your own eyes, in honor preferring others before yourself. Be deeply sensible of your own weaknesses, follies, and imperfections, as well as of the sin remaining in your heart, and cleaving to your words and actions. And let this spirit appear in all you speak or do. "Be clothed with humility." Reject with horror that favorite maxim of the old heathen, sprung from the bottomless pit: Tanti eris aliis, quanti tibi fueris; "The more you value yourself the more others will value you." Not so: on the contrary, both God and man "resist the proud;" and as "God giveth grace to the humble," so humility, not pride, recommends us to the esteem and favor of men, especially those that fear God.

3. If you desire to please your neighbor for his good to edification, you should, thirdly, labor and pray, that you may be meek as well as lowly in heart. Labor to be of a calm, dispassionate temper—gentle toward all men. And let the gentleness of your disposition appear in the whole tenor of your conversation. Let all your words and all your actions be regulated thereby. Remember, likewise, that advice of St. Peter: as an addition to your gentleness, "be merciful;" be courteous, be pitiful, be tenderly compassionate to all that are in distress, to all that are under any affliction of mind, body, or estate. Let

"The various scenes of human woe Excite our softest sympathy."

Weep with them that weep. If you can do no more, at least mix your tears with theirs, and give them healing words, such as may calm their minds and mitigate their sorrows. But if you can—if you are able to give them actual assistance, let it not be wanting. Be as eyes to the blind, as feet to the lame; a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless. This will greatly tend to conciliate the affection, and to give a profitable pleasure not only to those who are immediate objects of your compassion, but to others likewise that "see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

4. And while you are pitiful to the afflicted, see that you are courteous toward all men. It matters not, in this respect, whether they are high or low, rich or poor, superior or inferior to you. No, nor even whether good or bad, whether they fear God or not. Indeed, the mode of showing your courtesy may vary, as Christian prudence will direct; but the thing itself is due to all; the lowest and worst have a claim to our courtesy. It may either be inward or outward; either a temper or a mode of behavior. Such a mode of behavior as naturally springs from courtesy of heart. Is this the same with good breeding or politeness? (which seems to be only a high degree of good breeding); nay, good breeding is chiefly the fruit of education, but education can not give courtesy of heart. Mr. Addison's well-known definition of politeness seems rather to be a definition of this: "A constant desire of pleasing all men appearing through the whole conversation." Now this may subsist even in a high degree, where there has been no advantage of education. I have seen as real courtesy in an Irish cabin as could be found in St. James' or the Louvre.

5. Shall we endeavor to go a little deeper to search the foundation of this matter? What is the source of that desire to please which we term courtesy? Let us look attentively into our heart, and we shall soon find an answer. The same apostle that teaches us to be courteous teaches us to honor all men. Join these together, and what will be the effect? A poor wretch cries to me for an alms; I look and see him covered with dirt and rags. But through these I see one that has an immortal spirit, made to know, and love, and dwell with God to eternity. I honor him for his Creator's sake. I see, through all these rags, that he is purpled over with the blood of Christ. I love him for the sake of his Redeemer. The courtesy, therefore, which I feel and show toward him, is a mixture of the honor and love which I bear to the offspring of God; the purchase of his Son's blood, and the candidate for immortality. This courtesy let us feel and show toward all men; and we shall please all men to their edification.

6. Once more. Take all opportunities of declaring to others the affection which you really feel for them. This may be done with such an air, and in such a manner as is not liable to the imputation of flattery; and experience shows that honest men are pleased by this, full as much as knaves are by flattery. Those who are persuaded that your expressions of good will toward them are the language of your heart, will be as well satisfied with them as with the strongest encomiums which you could pass upon them. You may judge them by yourselves, by what you feel in your own breast. You like to be honored, but had you not rather be beloved?

7. Permit me to add one advice more. If you would please all men for their good, at all events speak to all men the very truth from your heart. When you speak open the window of your breast; let your words be the very picture of your heart. In all companies, and on all occasions, be a man of veracity; nay, be not content with bare veracity, but "in simplicity and godd sincerity, have all your conversation in the world;" as "an Israelite indeed in whom is no guile."

8. To sum up all in one word: If you would please men please God! Let truth and love possess your whole soul. Let them be the springs of all your affections, passions, tempers; the rule of all your thoughts. Let them inspire all your discourse, continually seasoned with that salt, and "meet to minister grace to the hearers." Let all your actions be wrought in love. Never "let mercy or truth forsake thee; bind them about thy neck." Let them be open and conspicuous to all, and "write them on the table of thy heart." "So shalt thou find favor and good understanding in the sight of God and man."

---

The Mauricetown charge, New Jersey conference, Rev J. W. M'Dougal, pastor, has been enjoying an excellent work of grace. The membership has been quickened, and numbers profess the blessing of perfect love. About fifty, most of whom are heads of families, have professed conversion, and give much promise to the church.

Revivals.

In the present unsettled state of society, and of spiritual dearth and declension in the church, every lover of Jesus should be earnestly supplicating a throne of grace for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. In hopes of awakening a greater interest in the church on this subject, we publish the following extracts from Revival Sketches:—[ED.

What is a revival of religion? What are some of its phases and true characteristics? When may it be said there is a true revival of religion in any age or part of the world?

We answer, a temporary religious excitement, however high it may rise, which does not go down into the hidden man of the heart, and stir up the depths of the soul to the earnest inquiry, "What must I do to be saved?" is not a true revival of religion. There may be a whirlwind, and the Lord not be in it. There may be great mental and physical excitement where there are few or no conversions. Nor where only a very few persons are about the same time awakened and truly converted by the Spirit of God, is there what we understand by a revival, though it is the self-same spirit that worketh so mightily when hundreds are born again, and seen flying as a cloud and as doves to their windows. As it is not here and there a ripening cluster that makes a vintage, nor a few sheaves that make a harvest, nor a few drops that make a shower, so a few drops of mercy falling on individual souls here and there, do not constitute what is usually termed a revival of religion. What is it, then? A genuine revival is the fruit or effect of a supernatural divine influence, which restores the joy of God's salvation to backsliding Christians, startles the dead in trespasses and sins, convinces them of their lost and perishing condition, and makes them willing in the day of God's power. In the church there is a genuine revival when she rises and shakes herself from the dust and puts on her beautiful garments, which have been laid aside to her great discomfort and reproach. In a congregation there is a true revival when impenitent sinners in considerable numbers are awakened and converted within a few days or weeks, and "many are added to the Lord of such as shall be saved." In their essential nature and effects all genuine revivals are alike. Since true religion is everywhere the same in essence, so must genuine revivals be in every age and in every part of the world. But there may be great diversities in many respects. They may be frequent, or far between. They may be isolated, here and there one springing up while the wise and foolish virgins all around are slumbering together; or they may simultaneously occur over wide regions that had been long parched by spiritual drought. In like manner, a revival of religion may be more or less powerful, and may continue for a longer or shorter time. It may show the sovereignty of God in having mercy upon whom he will have mercy in a more striking manner. He may send the blessing by whom he will send, and may bring scores or hundreds or thousands into the church, or only a small number. One revival originates in a Sabbath school, and spreads over a large congregation; another breaks out suddenly in an academy, a factory, in a sailor's Bethel, or in a penitentiary. One revival takes in persons of all classes, and another reaches one or two classes, leaving the rest as it found them. One pervades the whole town, while another is confined mainly to the centre, or the out districts. One begins among the higher classes, and another among the lower; one with the young men, another with the young women, and another with one or both sexes in middle life. But wherever and however, it is the same Holy Spirit "turning men from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God." So, again, while all genuine revivals agree in the essential things, the subjects of them are variously wrought upon in the progress of the work. In some cases God makes a short work, drawing sinners at once to the foot of the Cross; in others, convictions of sin and wrath long continue before Christ is revealed to them. In one revival the thunderings of the law, as it were, constrain sinners to "flee from the wrath to come" to the only Refuge; in another, the sweet voice of mercy sounding out from Calvary by the same divine power draws them as with cords of love. Revivals may and actually do exhibit all these and other different phases, modified by such agencies as God is pleased to employ for his own glory in building up his spiritual kingdom."

---

At the John street Methodist Episcopal church several conversions are reported. Revival services are held every evening this week.

REVIVAL ITEMS.

[From the New York Advocate.]

Letters received at the Christian Advocate office during the present month (January) up to Monday evening last report over five thousand recent conversions. Our exchanges have reported many others. Surely the work of revival is going forward with most encouraging results. Let the whole church be profoundly grateful to God for these most cheering assurances of his favors.

Rev. E. Osborne informs us that he has recently spent a few days with Rev. W. F. Hatfield at Greenwich, Connecticut. He found the revival advancing gloriously, the number of converts having reached about seventy. They willingly testify for Jesus, and offer vocal prayer in meetings. The congregations are large and attentive.

The powerful revival in the Canopus circuit, New York conference, Rev. J. Simms, pastor, continueth. Up to January 14 there had been ninety-five conversions, and seventy-five accessions to the church. A note from Rev. M. Croft, a local preacher, states that the pastor (also a local preacher, and recently arrived from England) is proving himself an able and successful worker in that part of the Master's vineyard.

A blessed revival interest has been enjoyed in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal church, Jersey City, Rev. L. R. Dunn, pastor, for several weeks past. About forty thus far have been converted. Last evening several were at the altar, and at the close between forty and fifty arose for prayer.

Times of refreshing have come on the Bloomsburg, Pennsylvania, charge, Rev. J. A. Price, pastor. Over sixty conversions are reported in a series of revivals just concluded.

The work of God is prospering at Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin. The pastor, Rev. B. G. Hammond, writes that since conference there have been forty-four accessions. The list of subscribers to The Advocate is nearly seven times that of last year.

Twenty-five accessions to the Methodist Episcopal church are reported as the result of revival meetings held at Port Matilda, Pennsylvania, Rev. E. Butler, pastor.

A precious work of grace is in progress in the First Place Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, Rev. Dr. Roche, pastor. Several have professed conversion. The meetings continue.

At Mianus, Connecticut, Rev. George H. Anderson, pastor, successful revival meetings have been held. Some forty-three have united with the church. A new church building has been commenced, at an estimated expense of $18,000.

Over one hundred have professed conversion in recent revival services held in the Methodist Episcopal church at Sodus, East Genesee Conference, Rev. A. S. Baker, pastor. Up to January seventeen over eighty had united with the church.

At the Methodist Episcopal church at Glasco, Rev. A. F. Palmer, pastor, one hundred have professed conversion, and fifty have joined on probation. Many heads of families, and some whole families, are among those recently converted.

Over thirty have professed conversion on the Minaville charge, Troy conference, Rev. L. N. Clark, pastor. Most of the converts have united with the church.

The Methodist Episcopal church at Otisville, New York, Rev. C. R. Barnes, pastor, has been enjoying an excellent revival influence. The members have been quickened, and several conversions are reported.

The West Chazy charge, Troy conference, Rev. E. Turner, pastor, has been enjoying a gracious revival. For the past two months about eighty-five have professed religion, sixty of whom have united on probation.

A good work has been in progress for several weeks at Calvy, on the Allenton charge, Missouri conference, Rev. J. Entwistle, pastor. Up to July 31 sixty-two had united with the Methodist Episcopal church.

On the Cherokee circuit, Kansas conference, there have been twenty-five conversions during the last month. Since conference about one hundred accessions to the church have been reported.

The following paragraphs are furnished by Rev. Otis L. Gibson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Wellsbourgh, Pennsylvania. The recent loss of the edifice by fire has been already noted. Since the fire the congregation by permission of the county authorities has held its services in the courthouse. The generous offer of the Protestant Episcopalians, granting their house of worship for a Methodist revival service is so extraordinary, and at the same time so fraternal, as to be noteworty; it is especially anti-Stubbsian:

On the last evening of the year we held watchnight services and earnestly reconsecrated ourselves to the Lord. The season was a melting and impressive one. We have followed up this meeting nearly every evening since, and I rejoice to be able to tell you that already a most glorious work of grace is in progress. Nearly or quite sixty have already sought the Lord, a goodly number of whom have already "set to their seal that God is true." In this number are embraced almost every class from the child of twelve years to the man and woman of threescore. A large number are business men in the place, and a goodly number are noble young men and women. The work seems only begun. The courthouse is crowded every night, and nothing else is talked of in stores and shops, and even in saloons. Our Presbyterian brethren have been holding services for the last fortnight at their church, which are also owned of God, quite a large number having risen for prayers. The court sits next week, and we will be compelled to leave the courthouse: but our Episcopal brethren, with unprecedented liberality, have tendered us the use of their church during the fortnight of court session, and so we shall not be interrupted. I have no ministerial help as yet, but have labored and preached as I have had strength given me. We are earnestly pushing our church enterprise, but greatly need help. Messrs. Dodge & Co., of New York, have generously donated timber and money, but we need more help. Who of your rich subscribers has a heart to help a feeble society rebuild a burned church? We shall try to build substantially of brick.

Revs. J. B. Akers and T. R. Slicer, pastors of the Liberty circuit, East Baltimore conference, write: "The Lord has been very gracious to us. About one hundred and fifty have professed conversion, one hundred and twenty-two of whom have joined on probation. We expect our benevolent contributions to be fully equal to last year. The Christinn Advocate holds its own, and the Ladies' Repository has a slight increase. Owing to the influence of the Methodist Episcopal church South our finances may experience some detriment this year; but we have faith in God and old fashioned Methodism, and look for brighter days for the cause of God and the church of our choice."

A note from Rev. A. F. Morey, of Bath, East Genesee conference, states that a powerful revival is in progress in the Methodist Episcopal church. On Saturday and Sabbath, January 18 and 19, there were seventy seekers who came to the altar, or arose for prayers. The large main audience room of the church is filled daily. There is no preaching. The pastor has been assisted by the Auburn Praying Band. The interest continues unabated.

Rev. F. A. Morrell, of Bridgeton New Jersey, writes, January 20: "The Lord is blessing us again with an outpouring of the Holy Spirit in the Commerce street charge. The work commenced, as in September, in the ordinary means of grace. For some months past a large portion of the membership have been groaning after perfect love, and many are rejoicing in the witness of the blessing. An increasing interest was manifest in the congregations, which are large to overflowing. The altar is nightly crowded with seekers, and more than fifty have professed conversion and united with the church.

At Cherry Valley, Illinois, Rev. J. De Los Wilson, pastor, a revival is in progress. It commenced January 5, and during the first two weeks over one hundred had professed conversion. All except two were adults, and two-thirds of them were men. One-half of those converted were heads of families. There has been no preaching except on the Sabbath. Two services, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening, are held daily. The conversions are in the old-fashioned way: strong men being powerfully awakened in the congregation, and rising up, commencing at once to speak and exhort their acquaintances to seek God's blessing, and to accompany them to the altar. School teachers, physicians, and the prominent business men of the town are among the converts. One infidel lecturer was among the number. Up to Tuesday of last week there was no abatement of the work. We are under obligation for the above facts to Rev. D. Teed, of the Rock River conference, who aided the pastor in the revival work.

Rev. E. H. Stokes, presiding elder of the New Brunswick district, Newark Conference, furnishes the following additional items under date of January 24: "The good work on this district still goes on. The Liberty Street Church, New Brunswick, Rev. R. V. Lawrence, pastor, is enjoying a gracious visitation. Over forty have professed conversion, and the membership is greatly quickened. The Pitman Church in the same city, Rev. R. Thorn, pastor, is also in the midst of a blessed revival. Some twenty have been converted, and the altar is crowdee with inquiring souls. At Milltown, Rev. A. Lawrence, pastor, there is also a good work, and twenty or more have professed faith in Jesus. Keyport, Rev. J. S. Phelps, pastor, is likewise sharing in the good work, and night after night the altar is filled with weeping penitents. At Red Bank, Rev. C. E. Hill, pastor, the church is earnestly engaged in revival efforts, and a number of persons have professed conversion. At the Wall Church, Greenville charge, Rev. G. L. Dobbins, pastor, there is a good work of grace in progress.

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, } Asst. Ed's.
R. W. BOWIE, }

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1868.

To-morrow evening at six o'clock the young men will hold a prayer meeting in our chapel. All are invited.

Rev Dr. Newman will preach in his church to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock on "Christian Experience," and in the evening at seven o'clock he will preach the second sermon in the course on the Prodigal Son. Subject: "Prodigal's Temptation, Sin, and Misery." Young men are specially invited to attend.

The Young Men's Association held an interesting public meeting in our chapel last Monday evening. General Brown and Mr. J. E. Wallace made excellent speeches.

Next Monday evening the association will hold another public meeting, at which there will be a debate on the question: "Is man the architect of his own fortunes?"

Aid for the Planters.

Our article on General Buchanan's proposition to aid the planters and the freedmen is crowded out this week, but will appear in our next issue. In the meantime, we say to both planters and freedmen, accept the offer.

Bills.

We have sent this week bills to our subscribers who have not yet remitted their subscription money for 1868. We earnestly hope that the money will be remitted without delay, and we shall esteem such promptitude a special favor at this time.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

General Hancock.

The sudden termination of the proceedings of the committee appointed to investigate the Street Commissioner's Department by Major General Hancock is in itself a most extraordinary proceeding. The investigation was not completed, and was abruptly closed at a time when the public interest demanded that it should proceed. Whether Mr. Baker is guilty or not, great injustice is done him, and the honorable gentlemen of the committee are most grossly insulted. Who is the military tyrant now? But such tyranny is mighty pleasing to Johnson's friends.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the Advocate they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the Advocate for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

Self-Deception.

"O serpent heart, hid with a flow'ring face!
Did ever dragon keep so fair a cave?
Beautiful tyrant! fiend angelical!
Dove-feathered raven! Wolvish-ravening lamb!
Despised substance of divinest show!
Just opposite to what thou seem'st."
—Shakspeare.

A greater than Shakspeare has said, "The heart is deceitful above all things," and of old it was commanded, "Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith." Self-knowledge is the highest achievement of the human mind, and the most difficult. The ancient philosophers felt this; hence their imperative aphorism, "Know thyself." Self-deception, is false reasoning, a biased judgment, a clouded imagination, impure motives, and morbid desires touching one's own condition, feelings, relations, hopes, and actions. Men are not what they appear to themselves to be. Men forget that human nature is intensely selfish. Without a foreign standard men are incapable of judging of themselves, and even in the presence of such a standard they may continue the practice of deceiving themselves. There are ten points on which men most commonly deceive themselves:

I. Men overrate the merit of the qualities they possess, and give themselves credit for those things they do not possess.

A few of our race are too self-distrusting to be either proud of their own qualities or vain of the applause of others, but they are an exception, and not the rule. Seventy-five per cent is only a fair discount on the average estimation in which most men hold themselves, and in some cases the actual discount is ninety-nine and a half per centum. When most people are judging of what they are and what they can do, they are like a man standing before a magnifying mirror which makes him appear many times larger than he is. Were we to send a representative bird to the inhabitants of the sun to symbolize our race, we should send a peacock, whose glory is in his tail. It is an apostolical injunction for a man "not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; for if a man think himself to be something when he is nothing he deceiveth himself."

II. A desire for personal distinction is mistaken for zeal for the glory of God.

To determine the real character of human motives is the hardest of human tasks. Interest and duty are so often coincident that most men conclude that the path of duty never runs where interest does not lie. God has ordained that man's interest shall lie in his duty; but this is not always apparent, for there are times when reputation, property, ease, friends, and life must be sacrificed in the discharge of duty: and it is then that most people conclude that their duty does not lie in that direction. Some men go forward in a good cause only when cheered by the people, and their efforts flag and their zeal expires when the voice of public applause is no longer heard. There are too many in this world who prefer not to have good done if they can't do it, and who don't want the devils to go out if they don't cast them out. It is no uncommon thing for some to groan over the unpopularity of their church or of their own efforts, and yet never groan for the lost around them.

III. Habits of vice are regarded as individual acts, awakened by occasional temptation, while occasional instances of virtue are dignified with the term of habits.

Yet the reverse is true. The better nature of man only now and then gains the mastery, while his evil nature is usually in the ascendant. Few men have habits of virtue; all men have habits of vice. The passions in their grosser manifestations may only occasionally appear, but in milder forms they are daily displayed: Men mistake as to the degree of the passions yielded to, and this leads to a second error, in mistaking vice for virtue.

IV. Men confound the non-appearance of vicious passions with their actual extinction; when in reality the change is owing to the lapse of time—as old age, or altered circumstances.

Time may have put out the fire. The volcano is perhaps burnt out. Or perchance the tempter has ceased to assail these points. But in all this there is no virture; no honor to God; no credit to man. The past is recorded against him; and the present would be as the past were it not for altered circumstances. The glory of man is self-control.

V. Men excuse the sins of their peculiar situation, and congratulate themselves on the absence of sins which they are under no temptation to commit.

It were folly to tempt some men to steal, or murder, or lie, or prove unfaithful to the wife of their bosoms; yet these men have their weak points which are daily assailed by Satan, and they have their sins which are sufficient to ruin their souls. Men look indulgently upon their own sins, but with horror when similar sins are committed by others. Happy is he that condemneth not in others that thing which he alloweth in himself.

VI. Assent of the understanding and the transient emotions of the sensibilities are looked upon as the determination of the will, and the impulses of the affections.

Reason may approve the claims of religion, and yet the will may not resolve to meet those obligations. Truth accepted is one thing; truth practiced is another. Some men glow with delight in announcing a great truth, and they fancy that they practice it; but herein are they self-deceived. So there may be in the heart a momentary joy over some good, or sorrow over some vice. Yet the great deep of the affections remains untouched:—it is a mere ripple of the surface.

VII. Good actions which are the effect of natural tempers are too often ascribed to settled principles.

Man is not as bad as he may be. There is some trace of the original nature in every one. Dives in hell had a generous impulse, when he could save his five brethren from a like condition. Some are born with amiable disposition, such as benevolence, love of truth, of friends, and of justice, and these inhere in man's nature, not by any effort of his, and often despite his effort. They flow from the natural tendencies of his moral and physical natures. Other good actions, just as needful and imperative are left undone, because the disposition is not so inclined; in other words, the good of that man's life comes not from the accepted principles of Christ.

VIII. Anger is mistaken for indignation, fury for zeal, and neglect of others for non-association.

Every good man, at times, must feel indignation at the conduct of others, whether he himself is the injured party or his God; yet this greatly differs from a violent temper or a sullen revenge which bides its time to destroy. The Catholics in persecuting the Protestants had anger and fury which they mistook for indignation and zeal. And not unfrequently individuals are neglected under the plea of non-intercourse, when pride or fear, or revenge is the parent passion of the neglect.

IX. Remorse for sin is thought to be genuine and acceptable, without leading to repentance and reformation.

Remorse is not repentance and repentance is not genuine without reformation. Judas had remorse, yet hung himself; Peter felt remorse, but repented and reformed. Many feel a sense of guilt and allow time to assuage their grief, and take this for pardon. But this is self-deception

X. Resolutions to reform without accompanying actions are the most common of deceits which men practice upon themselves.

Hell is paved with good resolutions. The bane of the life of most men is resolving to do, but never doing. Yet how many are satisfied with solemn promises to be better and yet never are. It were better for some men to do and then resolve, than to resolve and never do. "The heart is deceitful above all things."

Tne Mexican Mission.

Soon after the close of the war between the United States and Mexico an earnest and devoted Christian woman, a native of New Hampshire, felt the necessity of making a move toward the introduction of the Protestant religion into priest-ridden Mexico. Through the religious papers she made strong appeals to the churches of this country to send out missionaries, but her appeals were not heeded. So powerful was the impression upon her that then was the time for action that she could not resist it, and finding that all efforts to secure the co-operation of any of the missionary societies, she determined on going herself to the field and devoting her talents and energies to the great work of evangelization.

In 1852 Miss Rankin left this country for Mexico. Arriving at Brownsville, in Texas, she felt that there she could begin her work, and thus be enabled to reach the Mexicans without incurring the risk of going into a country where Protestant missionaries had never yet preached the true gospel. At Brownsville she found that the people were willing to have their children taught, and Miss Rankin, believing that she could better reach the hearts of the parents through the children, opened a school. Here the germs of the Protestant religion were first sown. The parents, through the children, learned of the Bible, and Miss Rankin was constantly besieged by applicants for Bibles and Testaments.

Just at this time seven Jesuitical priests and fifteen nuns arrived in Brownsville with a large sum of money from France, and learning of the good work that was going on determined to oppose it, and accordingly built a large Catholic school. Then it was that Miss Rankin's heart almost failed her, but the indomitable will that had first led her to undertake this work urged her on, and she determined not to be driven from the field. Already the fruits of her labor were to be seen on every hand. The word of God was being circulated in the neighboring Mexican territory, and the poor people who had heretofore worshiped idols were now brought to a knowledge of the true God. Miss Rankin felt that she must have a more commodious building for her academy, so she started from Brownsville to the states for the purpose of raising the necessary funds. She made her wants known to the mission boards, and asked for assistance, but none of them seemed inclined to aid; and while the boards were discussing the question, she, with true woman's energy, went to work and raised three thousand dollars, with which amount she returned to Brownsville and built a large and commodious academy. While in this country she made arrangements with the Bible and Tract society to furnish her books for distribution among the Mexicans, and through her representations the Methodist Church South was induced to send the first minister into this new field. The limited space in our paper prevents us from following in detail the labors of this noble Christian women. She continued her labors at Brownsville till 1862, when she was driven out of Texas because of her love for the old flag under which she was born, and her school was confiscated by the rebels.

Miss Rankin then went into Mexico, and finally decided on beginning operations at Monterey. The Liberals of Mexico openly espoused her cause, and although not inclined to be religious, still their opposition to the Romish church secured to her their cooperation. Through all these years, it is needless to add, persecution followed this lady. Yet at no time did she flinch from duty or yield an iota to the papal power.

At Monterey Miss Rankin has founded another academy, the money ($15,000) being furnished by E. D. Goodrich, of Boston. Her old school at Brownsville is now in charge of a minister, under the direction of the mission board.

In connection with her labors as a teacher she has done a vast missionary work in circulating the scriptures and in preparing native Mexicans for the same labor. Miss Rankin is now in this country to raise funds for the support of missionaries, and at several places where she has appealed for help she has met with a generous response.

This world does not often produce such earnest, devoted women as Miss Rankin. When her appeals to the mission boards were in vain, she nobly resolved to begin the work she had so much at heart; and in after years, when the history of the evangelization of Mexico shall have been written, then, and not till then, will the world learn what was done by the perseverance of one earnest Christian woman.

Protracted Meetings.

We trust our preachers, both in the city and in the country, will improve the present month, and hold extra meetings for the conversion of sinners.

Is it not time, my brethren, to thrust in the gospel sickle and gather the harvest of this year's pastoral labor? Have not the prayers of the saints reached the throne of God? And has not the Lord spoken, saying, "The set time has come to favor Zion?" If this be true, let every ambassador see to it that the inner temple of his own heart is in perfect order for the indwelling of the Spirit, and then let him call upon every member of his flock to purify himself from dead works, and laying aside every weight and the sin that doth so easily beset, and come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty. If pastor and people are united in this great work, Satan's kingdom can not long withstand the influence, and you will soon see sinners flocking around your altars, saying, "What must I do to be saved?" Go at this great work of saving precious souls with all the might and power God has given you, and remember this fearful truth, that if sinners are not gathered into the fold of the dear Savior, Satan will have them, and their blood will be required at your hand. "Now is the accepted time, and now is the day of salvation."

Onward.

No ordinary consideration should deter the Republicans of Louisiana from a resolute and combined effort to secure a signal victory in the approaching election. In the new constitution soon to be offered for our acceptance there may be objectionable features; on the state ticket, presented for our suffrage, there may be candidates who are not our personal choice; yet these are minor considerations compared to the speedy reorganization of our state and its readmission into the Union. The early settlement of the question of reconstruction is the paramount question of the hour. Every other fades into nothingness before it. Personal preferences are not to be mentioned in connection therewith, side issues are to be disregarded, party prejudices are to be laid aside, and Louisiana must be carried into the Union ere the beauties of spring expand into the glories of summer. The great principle of the new constitution is correct, whatever may be its minor defects; the platform of the party whose candidates are now before the public is so broad that all may safely and proudly stand thereon.

We can see no other way out of present difficulties than the adoption of the new constitution, and the election of the present state ticket. Whoever votes against the former and opposes the latter delays the good work of reconstruction. We hope, therefore, that all will be influenced by this consideration, and give to the coming election such an indorsement as shall forever settle this now vexed question. We entreat our friends everywhere to calmly consider this grave question, and enter the canvass with that enthusiasm worthy of the noble ends to be attained. We are confident that the colored vote of Louisiana is all right, and we only now need the loyal white vote of the state to secure a victory that will bury treason, secession, and slavery so deep in oblivion and infamy that two eternities will not be sufficient for their resurrection.

The Present Phase of the Contest.

It may not be amiss to call the attention of our readers of all shades of opinion to a few questions which in the heat of local excitement and rivalries may naturally have been overlooked. These are

First: Not whether one party or the other shall be successful in the Southern states, but whether these states lately in rebellion shall resume or not resume their civil organizations and their places in the national legislature and their status as states in the Union, or remain in their present anomalous and demoralizing condition for another five years.

Second: Not whether those lately in rebellion in the South can by an alliance with those lately in sympathy with that rebellion in the North secure once more political dominance and control in the South and of the whole country, but whether as a people they are willing to accept of a really republican and free government, according to all men the same rights and privileges which they enjoy themselves, or prefer to remain for an indefinite period in a condition of vassalage and subjection.

Third: Not whether they will have the Democratic or the Republican party to rule in the reorganization of these states, but whether they will take a part with the Republican party in the government of these states for the next four years, or be governed by their military officials without participation. These are the questions. Defeat the constitution, or defeat the organization of a state government by throwing the elections into the hands of men who will not be recognized by congress; do either one or both of these things, and you simply postpone for five years more the reconstruction of the South, and remit affairs here to chaos generally. Cast your eyes over the election returns of the Union, and scan that solid phalanx of votes in favor of the Republican party; take into account those who stayed at home at the last state elections, which the Democrats claim as victories, and then let each one ask his own calm and considerate judgment whether the people of the North will ever consent to a reconstruction except on the substantial terms of the reconstruction acts. We hold that they will not; and that the defeat of the constitutions now forming and the Republican state tickets in the field will only have the effect of indefinitely postponing the revival of the commercial, agricultural, and all the material interests of the South. We therefore say to our friends, your true course as business men, as practical men, as patriotic men, is to support the ratification of the constitution and the election of the state officers nominated by the Republican party.

Periodicals.

Arthur's Home Magazine for February comes to us filled as usual with interesting and instructive matter. It contains a fine engraving; the fashions, furnished by Mme. Demarest; a piece of music, "Patchwork Polka;" a new series of temperance stories, by the author of "Ten Nights in a Barroom;" Treasures in Heaven; Existence and Life, etc. The price of this valuable magazine has been reduced to $2 per annum. Subscriptions should be addressed to T. S. Arthur, 809 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Peter Cooper, Charles A. Macy, Daniel Drew, Charles F. Deems, D.D., Earl Derby, and Lord Stanley, of the British parliament, Baron Wodehouse, lord lieutenant of Ireland, with portraits, biographies, and characters given in the February number of the Phrenological Journal; also Poor Whites of the South, Consciousness and Mental Action, Abuses of Culture in the Ministry, How to Choose a Wife, What is the use of Phrenology? Maple Sugar, Origin of the Races, etc Only thirty cents or $3 a year. S R. Wells, publisher, 389 Broadway New York.

The American Ecclesiastical Almanac, for ministers and laymen, by Prof. A. J. Schem. Published by F. Gerhard, 15 Dey street, New York. Price thirty cents. Sent by mail. This is indeed an excellent work. It probably contains more information in regard to all denominations of the Christian world than was ever before published in so small a space. It must have cost months of labor and research to gather all the information which is condensed in these eighty pages. We hope the author will be abundantly rewarded for his pains-taking by seeing it scattered broadcast over the land.

The February number of the Northwestern Farmer, published at Indianapolis, spreads a rich banquet before its readers. Over seventy original articles, from able and spicy pens, upon the most interesting and useful subjects, and some fifteen beautiful engravings, comprise the bill of fare. This is a magazine of which the West may well be proud, and our people should all take it. We are glad to see upon its face the unmistakable evidence of prosperity. Success to this beautiful and valuable monthly.

Zion's Herald.—This excellent paper comes to us greatly improved in size and appearance, being now a neat quarto. It is one of the largest of our church papers, and being ably edited must commend itself to the favorable notice of the reading public. May success attend it.

The Methodist Quarterly Review.—Our Quarterly Review for 1868 opens with a discussion of that question that occupies no secondary place among the theological thinkers of the scriptures. Rev. Gilbert Haven is the writer; and he adopts and advocates the theory of verbal inspiration, confessed to be "not ungirt with difficulties." The argument of the writer was commenced in the Quarterly for last July, is continued in this number, and will complete itself in the number for April.

An appreciative review of M'Clintock and Strong's Cyclopedia has been furnished by the pen of Dr. Nadal. It is shown that the work is exhaustive and comprehensive, scholarly, liberal, discriminative. The estimate made by the writer of the work is generous and high, but not a whit too high. It will always be classed among the finest literary production of this nineteenth century.

Another critical article sets forth the value of Dr. Nast's Commentary. That well-known German scholar, Dr. W. F. Warren, is the reviewer; and he assures us that the work is one of which the whole American church may justly feel proud. We are sure that his judgment will be indorsed by all thoughtful men who examine the work. It is excellent in arrangement, sound in theology, vigorous in thought.

Professor Baird, of the University of New York, has furnished a condensed and lucid article on "Queen Elizabeth's Relations with the Protestants of the Continent." This queen, so much lauded in history, is weighed in the balance and criminated as irresolute without principle, and guilty of double dealing. Such are some of the revenges of history.

Rev. J. M. Thoburn, well known to all readers of the Advocate by his able correspondence from India, reviews in the fifth article "The Missionary policy of the Methodist Episcopal Church." The article abounds in suggestions that the church at home would do well to consider—the conclusions of an active, earnest mind who has intimate knowledge of the field abroad, and whose life has been devoted to the missionary work. Brother Thoburn thinks our present missionary policy might be changed for the better in the collection of funds for the support of missions, in securing reinforcements for our foreign work, and in the government of our foreign missions. In each line of argument he makes a strong case, even if he does not always carry our judgment with him.

A review of "Stevens' History of the Methodist Episcopal Church," forms the last contributed article in the January Quarterly, and is from the pen of Rev. D. A. Whedon. The writer but reproduces the oft-given favorable notices of this fine history. He wields a nervous and graphic pen.

We now enter the special department of the editor, Dr. Whedon. Here are well compacted tables of "Foreign Religious Intelligence," and then of "Foreign Literary Intelligence;" anon comes the "Synopsis of the Quarterlies," and the whole closes with the "Quarterly Book Table." In the two last named departments are always to be found some of the finest features of our Quarterly.—Pittsburg Advocate.

I Always Pay My Debts.

There had been a sad failure in our community. A prominent business man was obliged to suspend payment, and give up his business. Investigation showed he had not been prompt in his dealings. He never paid his little debts, and they at length so accumulated that they brought on the sad crisis.

A prompt business man, speaking of the affair, said: "It is unpardonable. The man ought to fail. He should have paid his debts when he could. I always pay my debts as I go along, and so always know where I stand. I have not a single debt," he continued.

A friend standing by gently placed a hand on his arm, saying:

"You mistake, Mr. H——; I know a debt that you owe."

"It is false," was the quick reply. "I challenge you or any one else, to lay a finger upon a cent that I owe."

"But I can do it," continued his friend. "I know of One who lent you the fine house to live in, the money you have in the bank, all the riches by which you are surrounded, and call them your own. More than this, He gave you health and friends. How much have you ever paid Him?"

"Ah! that is a different thing. I don't think about such things; but I always pay every cent I owe to my fellow-men."

"You are like the merchant that pays all his little debts and lets the great ones go, and then boasts, 'I always pay my debts.'"

My friend, the great debt of gratitude is yet unpaid. Take care lest the Master cast thee into prison. Thou "shalt not come from thence till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing."

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,
H. C. WARMOTH.
FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,
OSCAR J. DUNN.
FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,
GEORGE BOVEE.
FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,
SIMEON BELDEN.
FOR AUDITOR,
GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.
FOR TREASURER,
ANTOINE DUBUCLET.
FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,
T. W. CONWAY.

The Episcopacy.

We find in The Western Christian Advocate the following letter from Bishop Morris on the subject of an increase of the episcopal force at the next general conference. His remarks will be read with a lively interest by all classes of our people:

I am often asked, What will the next general conference do in regard to strengthening the episcopacy? My answer is, I do not know—who can tell? I have, however, an opinion deliberately formed as to what would be suitable and proper in the premises; and having been requested by a few brethren, whose judgment I respect, to express that opinion, I incline to do so, using the freedom of an old man. Let it be understood, however, that none of my colleagues are in any wise responsible for my opinion. Again, while I have nothing to conceal as to measures, I say nothing respecting the selection of men to execute them. But to the main question, How many bishops will the Methodist Episcopal church hereafter need for her home and foreign work?

First. The home work. At the close of the general conference in 1868 we shall probably have at least seventy annual conferences, to hold which, and fill other orders made upon the bishops, we shall need ten effective general superintendents; a less number, in view of liability to sickness and death, would not be safe for the work. So I think. In a word, after deducting from the present list of incumbents such as are unable to work, we shall need a reinforcement sufficient to turn out from the old and new stock ten efficient bishops. As to how their work shall be arranged, and how they shall be distributed therein, I have here and now nothing to say.

Secondly. Our foreign work. In my opinion we shall need a resident missionary bishop in each of the following mission fields: Western Europe, India, China, and South America—Liberia being already supplied. In support of this opinion, which I have long entertained, I here suggest a few brief reasons:

1. Economy. To send out a bishop from the United States to visit any one of our foreign mission fields and bring him home would probably cost as much money as would support a resident bishop in the same field for one year, besides the loss of time and risk of life going and returning.

2. There is frequently need of episcopal authority on the spot, and that need is increasing every year as the work extends and agencies multiply.

3. I have never believed that all our foreign work could be permanently embodied in the Methodist Episcopal church in the United States of America without embarrassment arising out of civil and political relations, and consequently the true policy would be to organize our foreign missions into independent ecclesiastical bodies as soon as they have sufficient force to govern themselves. Our missionary society could aid them financially after such organization as well as before, and with less trouble, as they would fix their own estimates, and make their own distribution of funds.

The above is an honest expression of my individual opinion, yet I believe in the teaching of Peter, "Yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility." Of course when official action shall be taken in the premises, I shall cheerfully acquiesce in the judgment of the general conference, and do all I can to sustain and enforce its orders.

Revs. M. L. Smyser and E. N. Smith, pastors of the Great Falls charge, East Baltimore Conference, report, under date of January 22, the conversion of two hundred and twenty persons, and the reception on probation of one hundred and sixty-nine, and the good work still going on. At the Asbury Church sixty had professed conversion during the last five weeks. The pastors say: "Entire families, parents, and children, old men and youth, have been happily converted to God, and have united with our beloved Zion. Penitents are nightly at the altar. It is the most successful revival in the history of the appointment. The missionary collections on the circuit amount to $308, an advance of seven hundred and seventy per cent over last year's contribution. Every collection ordered by the church has been lifted, all of which are largely in advance of last year. The Christian Advocate has not been forgotten; its subscription list has been doubled."

The great revival work at Plattekill, New York, continues. A note from the pastor, Rev. W. L. Pattison, dated January 20, states that one hundred and ninety had professed conversion, and the work was spreading into the surrounding communities.

The Union Pacific railroad is especially fortunate in many ways. It is true that, unlike any other line, it will be a monopoly, but nothing less than a monopoly could have commanded the large resources necessary to carry it through, and as it was all but a few far-seeing capitalists declined to stake their fortunes on the result.

CHILD'S PRAYER.

Jesus, tender shepherd, hear me!
Bless a little child to-night;
Through the darkness be Thou near me,
Watch my sleep till morning's light.

All this day Thy hand hath led me,
And I thank Thee for Thy care,
Thou hast clothed me, warmed me, fed me,
Listen to my evening prayer.

Let my sins be all forgiven,
Bless the friends I love so well,
Take me when I die to heaven,
Happy there with Thee to dwell.

Letter from M. B. Avery.

ST. PAUL'S PASONAGE,
Pass Christian, January 27.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

I have just returned from a visit to the circuit. We have organized a society at Ocean Springs. The society at Handsboro is doing well. I spent two weeks there. We had a protracted meeting. The good Lord was with us. Several persons confessed Christ. There are now sixteen anxious inquirers after the way of life; four joined the church on probation; baptized seven children and one adult. Truly we have a right to shout, for the Lord has given us the city. Pass Christian is not doing so well, but we have hopes of a final victory over the enemy, even here in his stronghold. There is much land here to be possessed. All along the gulf coast the cry is heard "send us a preacher," "no man careth for our souls." We shall have to form another circuit soon. Can not some of your young preachers be induced to leave their comfortable homes and come and lend us a hand? There are many in your city churches sitting idle sabbath after sabbath, while all along the "outposts of Zion" are souls perishing for want of the bread of life. O young men, shame upon you. Come over; come up to the help of the Lord, against the mighty, and the Lord will reward you. Pray for us brethren, that the Lord of the harvest will convert and send more laborers, that these precious souls for whom Christ died may be saved. I would here inquire of you and through you of the agents of the Morgan line whether they have established a rule on their steamer, the Laura, prohibiting colored persons from paying the usual fare and taking cabin passage? My wife not long ago had occasion to visit New Orleans, and knowing nothing of the change went up stairs, as she usually did before, but was ordered down on deck. She went to the office, introduced herself, and offered her fare. Mr. Green, the clerk, informed her that he had orders not to take full fare from colored passengers, and not to allow them to go into the cabins. The night was wet and cold, she was compelled to sit on deck all night just as she came on board, and has been suffering from a severe cold ever since. Raised in New Orleans, as well raised as any white person's daughter, she has been traveling across the lake for nearly twenty years, and for the first time in her life had to submit to such mean treatment—to be thrown amongst all sorts of roughs, freight and cattle, and she the wife of an ordained minister of the Methodist Episcopal church. Being unable to purchase a horse, I am obliged to submit to the same barbarous treatment when visiting my circuit. Before the war we were treated like human beings, and were allowed the poor privilege of a bed on the cabin floor and a seat at the table after the last of the "chivalry" and poor whites had supplied themselves. Even this is taken away from us now. Then female slaves were taken into state-rooms and slept in births with their master's children; now "massa" is gone away, and the "nigger" is free. He has no rights that white men are bound to respect.

Respectful yours for our cause.

M. B. AVERY.

Letter from Rev. Henry Boehm.

(From the Christian Advocate.)

I was gratified in reading a letter from my aged friend, Laban Clark, in your issue of last week, and maybe a short letter will also be received by you from your old friend, the writer. I also read, or had read to me, an article from the pen of Dr. Hodgson, whom I knew when a youth, and often "held sweet counsel" with his most excellent parents.

I think the Advocate helps to keep me young in my feelings, and prevents me from becoming stale in my views and opinions.

I was at the conference of 1808, which was, in fact, a convention of elders. At this conference I first saw Laban Clark, Bishop Hedding, and Dr. Bangs, and was appointed by the venerable Asbury his traveling companion. I was also present, as a visitor, at the wonderful general conference of 1800, in the city of Baltimore, saw Whatcoat ordained bishop by Bishop Coke, and dined afterward with the three bishops—Coke, Asbury, and Whatcoat.

I entered the ministry in 1801, under the presiding elder, though by mistake it is not in the minutes till 1802. I was ordained deacon by Bishop Whatcoat, and elder by Bishop Asbury. The first delegated general conference was in 1812, in New York city, at which I was present as the companion of Asbury. After the labors of the conference we rode out to Tuckahoe, to the home of Mother Sherwood, where the weary bishop for a few days sought and found quiet, rest, and true Christian kindness and hospitality.

A half century had gone by since I had been at Tuckahoe, till in 1866 I went out to the laying of the corner-stone of the new church there. All were gone, all changed, and yet I found the same spirit of Methodism in the soul and in the home of my good friend, Stephen Barker; and now a new and beautiful temple is on the site of the old house standing in 1812.

In 1816 I was present as delegate to the general conference in Baltimore, during the session of which was the funeral of the saintly Asbury, whom I loved as a bishop, a friend, and a father.

Bishop Asbury was a holy man of God. No just conception is had of his character, his sacrificing life, and kindness of heart. Especially was he a friend to the ministers, and was ever desirous to please them, and to see in them any dissatisfaction was to him sorrow. Sometimes during the session of an annual conference he would say to me, "Henry, have the horses all ready at the curb-stone, so we can start as soon as the appointments are read off." This he did to avoid ministers coming to him, which they sometimes did after hearing their appointment.

Last summer I visited the scenes of my youth and early ministerial labors. I was deeply affected as I looked upon the old house I was born in, (built in 1750,) where, when I was a boy, such men as Abbott, Strawbridge, Asbury, and Whatcoat tarried for a night to find rest and preach the Gospel.

I also visited the spot, near the city of Lancaster, where in 1815 I bade for the last time farewell to Bishop Asbury. Our interview (full of precious counsel from him) and parting was sad and solemn, and we felt no more would we on earth see each other's face.

I take great comfort in witnessing the labors of my younger brethren in the Lord, all of whom are as loving and attentive to me as was Timothy to Paul. I often weep when I think of their kindness to the old man.

I bless God I was spared to see peace again and universal liberty in my native land.

I took much satisfaction in being present at the opening of the Drew Theological Seminary; those good and great speeches we heard there were from men I knew when they were youths; now they are growing gray.

I was astonished last week, and edified, to see at the Preachers' Meeting as many as we used to have at an annual conference, and more than all was my heart made glad to witness among the preachers the power of prayer and unction of the Holy Spirit.

The past week of prayer was profitable to my soul. I was able to attend most of the meetings in this city.

I will be ninety-three years old on the 8th of next June. My health is good, my mind somewhat clear to think over the past and the present state of the Church. I have great peace of mind; I love the Church, her institutions, and my brethren. I sometimes feel like hunting up my old saddle-bags, and if I could mount my horse once more become an itinerant; but my days are nearly numbered. I find great comfort in reading my Bible, which I read through four times last year, and the Book of Revelation every Sabbath. This last was Bishop Asbury's rule. Soon I will be gone. My love, my benediction I leave with you and my brethren. "The best of all is, God is with us."

INDORSEMENT OF NOMINATIONS.

Resolutions Passed Unanimously at a Large Ratification Meeting Held at Chaeur's Store, Parish of St. James, on February 2, 1868.

WHEREAS, We have assembled here to-day for the purpose of expressing our approval of the nominations recently made by the Republican party in New Orleans at a convention held on the thirteenth and fourteenth of January; therefore be it

Resolved, That we look upon Judge H. C. Warmoth, Oscar J. Dunn, Hon. George E. Bovee, and others composing our state ticket, as the regular nominees of the Radical Republican party for the offices of governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, etc., and we hereby pledge our full and unconditional support to the whole ticket, no matter what opposition may be brought against it.

Be it further resolved, That we look upon the efforts of the New Orleans Tribune to create disunion and dissatisfaction in the Republican ranks as encouragement extended to our enemies, and a blow aimed at the great principles of universal freedom; that we will not countenance or sustain any attempt made by any newspaper or faction to overthrow the action of the state nominating convention, but will use every effort on our part to secure the triumph of the great party to which we belong.

Be it further resolved, That we hereby tender our warmest thanks to Messrs. Underwood and Oliver for the able manner in which they have performed the duties devolving upon them as delegates to the constitutional and nominating conventions.

JOSEPH WITTGENSTEIN,
Chairman;

HENRY RILEY,
GENERAL GONES,
NOEL BREAUD,
F. JOHNSON,
J. W. DAGGS,
Committee on Resolutions.

THIBODAUX, La., February 1, 1868.

At a called meeting held at the Lincoln clubroom the following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

We, the members of the Lincoln club, have assembled for the purpose of expressing our opinion upon the proceedings of the late nominating convention of the Radical Republican party of Louisiana, held in the city of New Orleans; therefore be it

Resolved, That we cheerfully indorse and will earnestly support the candidates nominated by the Republican state nominating convention.

Resolved, That we will support the New Orleans REPUBLICAN as the official organ of the Republican party of Louisiana.

VIRGIL GIBBONS, President.
O. CROSIER, Secretary.

Bank of Orleans.

The building at the corner of Canal street and Exchange alley lately occupied as a clothing store has been vacated and will be fitted up for the Bank of Orleans.

MONTHLY SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

Colored School Special Committee—The St. Ann School Imbroglio—French Studies Abolished—Judge Collens on French Teachers—Mayor Heath to be Visited.

At the calling of the roll last evening nearly all the members answered to their names.

Messrs. John Pasley and F. Michinare were elected and were introduced to the board to supply vacancies created by the resignation of Messrs. Massicot and Stickney.

Mr. Bermudez, from the supervision committee for the third district, reported against the claim of a citizen of that district for the admission of his son into the De Soto school, acknowledged by the father to be colored, but declared by him not to be a "contraband." He was answered that there were colored schools from which white children were excluded, and white schools to which colored children were not admitted. The committee refused to admit the pupil to the white school. The report was received, approved, and spread upon the minutes.

The committee on normal schools made a report that already considerable progress had been made in the organization of normal schools. The report was accepted.

Mr. Thieneman, from the special committee on colored schools, reported verbally that the city council having failed to make an appropriation for the support of colored public schools, the committee find "Othello's occupation gone." (Laughter.) The expenses of the colored schools that have been established have been paid from the appropriation for white schools. This committee, without money, thought it wise to suspend the organization of other colored schools.

Mr. Shields, of the same committee, presented a resolution to the board for the discharge of the special committee on colored schools, and that such schools already established be turned over to the several standing committees.

Mr. Sambola thought a special committee on this subject necessary, though this particular committee might be discharged.

Mr. Cronan said one gentleman declares that the herculean task of organizing these schools has been completed, while another gentleman thought the work was not all done, and there was need of a special committee. In his district these colored schools were badly cared for. The special committee had a "big thing on ice." They were winning honors. He favored the abolishment of the committee, which he regarded as an incubus, for the work could be done as well by the committee on white schools.

Mr. Pasley thought that the city treasurer ought to be impeached for paying money for the support of colored schools which was appropriated for white schools. He thought it a great wrong to educated colored children at the expense of white children.

Mr. Kelly thought the request of the special committee to be relieved from their labors was reasonable, and ought to be granted, since they had organized the colored schools, hired school buildings, and secured teachers.

Mr. Thieneman said the duties assigned to the special committee are not completed, for schools are not yet organized in such numbers as was contemplated.

Mr. Shields said the committee had been stayed in their work by the action of the council in witholding the "sinews of war."

Mr. Collens, of the committee, thought the committee having done all it could do, were entitled to be discharged.

The resolution discharging the committee was then unanimously adopted.

Mr. Kelly, from the committee to whom was referred the proposition for the consolidation of two girls' high schools, spoke of the possibility in consequence of the small appropriations in the budget for the year, that the high schools might be discontinued, and asked that the committee be discharged. They were discharged.

Mr. William O. Rogers, superintendent of the public schools, reported the whole number enrolled to be upward of 18,000. The average attendance had been diminished on account of the bad weather. He mentioned the success of the normal school system, and alluded to the large number of scholars in some of the white schools in proportion to the number of teachers employed. The report was quite brief, and was received by a unanimous vote.

The secretary of the board, Mr. Desdunes, submitted the following report:

That he has paid over to John A. Watkins, chairman of the committee on library, the sum of one hundred dollars, that amount having been received from parents (non-residents) for admission of their children into the public schools.

The report was received and ordered to be spread on the minutes.

A communication was received from two hundred parents and guardians of pupils in the St. Ann street school, in reference to the organization and teachers of that school, about which an "irrepressible conflict" has been existing for some time, and representations have gone abroad that the school is badly disorganized.

Mr. Cronan moved that the report of the committee, previously adopted, against the petition of Miss Metexa be reconsidered, to give an opportunity for Mr. Collens and other members to "air their oratory" each for the space of five minutes.

Judge Collens said the whole matter is that a principal of one school is at loggerheads with one of her assistants. An attempt has been made by taking a principal and one teacher, and transferring them from another school to remedy this. The action of the committee had been made without consultation with the speaker, a member of the committee.

Mr. Cronan repelled the imputation of Judge Collens, and made the declaration that it was to raise the standard of the Barracks street school to the point attained by the St. Ann street school that the change of principals was made, and not from prejudice against Miss Queyren.

Mr. O'Neile said the reputation of the principal of the St. Ann street school had suffered in consequence of her transfer to the Barracks street school, but it now appears that her transfer was to raise the standard of the school to which she was transferred.

Mr. Baker thought there should be a close of the discussion in reference to the matter, or that the board should yield their places to others who could settle the question.

The board refused to reconsider its action on the report of the committee, and the report was then approved.

Miss Queyron, late principal of the St. Ann school, petitioned the board for an investigation into the causes of her transfer from that to the Barracks school, and asked to be reinstated into the St. Ann school. Her reputation, she said, was all she depended on, and that was suffering by the action of the supervision committee. A motion was made to refer the petition to the committee on teachers.

Judge Collens opposed this reference, and proceeded to give his reasons therefor.

Mr. Cronan rose to a question of order. A motion to refer is not debatable, he said. The gentleman is making a longer speech than on the original question.

Judge Collens—Why didn't you consult me on that committee?

Mr. Cronan—It is my business.

The president decided that the motion to refer was debatable, and Judge Collens proceeded to show that the difficulty in the St. Ann school was attributable to the "tongue of women."

Mr. Shields moved to refer the whole subject to a committee of one from each municipal district.

Mr. Sambola opposed this. The second district supervision committee is composed of gentlemen; they were influenced only by facts and justice; the committee contemplated might be influenced by the talk of women. The matter has been discussed during the past three months. He was tired of it. The transfer of principals has been beneficial to the schools.

Mr. Cronan—My friend Judge Collens has said two or three times he was not present at any meeting of the committee. Since the committee has decided on it ladies have electioneered in the the matter, and that accounts for his earnestness now.

Judge Collens—The gentleman must not say that—it is personal, and I don't allow personalities in reference to myself.

The motion to refer to a committee of one from each municipal district was withdrawn.

Mr. Ellison called for the previous question on the motion to refer to the committee on teachers, and the whole subject was so referred.

In the unfinished business Mr. Baker, in accordance with notice at the previous meeting, moved a reconsideration of the resolution and amendments abolishing French studies in the first and fourth district public schools.

Mr. Shields moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table. Lost, 8 to 12.

Judge Collens alluded to teachers employed at $25 a month in the public schools, who had a few private scholars perhaps next door, by which they obtained $30 or $40 a month. Practically the French is taught in only one or two schools in the second district, which he referred to.

A member—It is also taught by Madame ——.

Judge Collens—No, she is too old to teach anything. (Laughter.) As the French purports to be taught now, it is all a system of pay and no work.

Mr. Cronan denied that there were any teachers in the second district receiving pay as French teachers only. Mr. Cronan said he himself was not a judge of the French language, and made no pretensions to being a Frenchman. (Laughter.)

Judge Collens repeated that there were teachers in the second district instructing private pupils in French almost next door to the public schools where they are employed.

The resolutions to abolish French studies in the first and fourth districts were then reaffirmed.

Mr. Phillips offered a resolution in reference to the insufficiency of the school appropriations for the present year by the city council, and providing for the appointment of a committee consisting of the president of the board of school directors, the chairman of the finance committee, and the superintendent of the public schools, to wait upon the mayor and represent to him the necessity of additional appropriation in order to educate all who now participate in the benefit of public schools. This was amended, on motion of Mr. Macon, by a provision that if the committee met with no satisfaction from the mayor they should wait upon General Hancock. Its adoption was unanimous.

Mr. Robert Hare sent in his resignation as a member of the board of school directors, which was accepted, and the appointment of his successor was referred to the members from the first district.

At a quarter past nine the board adjourned, to meet again, subject to the call of the president, to hear the report of the committee on retrenchment.

LOUISIANA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Fifty-Sixth Day's Proceedings.

Mr. Reagan, of the special committee appointed to inquire into the matter of the funds paid under the convention tax into the state treasury by Thomas Askew, state tax collector, reported that they find that up to the 29th of January, 1868, said officer had paid in the sum of $3706 40, of which amount $1809 30 consisted of warrants of the convention, and of which latter amount nearly all was collected from insurance companies of New Orleans in payment of their special tax under the provisions of the ordinance.

Report received.

The order of the day was called up—being upon article 143, of the minority report, as follows:

The corporation of the city of New Orleans shall be the parish of Orleans. The right bank as now existing shall be the fifth district; the other districts as now existing shall not be altered,

Which was laid on the table.

Mr. Crane offered the following as an article of the constitution:

It shall require two-thirds of both houses of the general assembly to pass tax and appropriation bills. State, parish, municipal, and other taxes combined, shall not exceed two per cent of the value of the property taxed.

Which after debate was laid on the table.

Article 133, providing for the election of a state engineer, for the creation of internal improvement districts, etc., was adopted.

Article 134, providing for the establishment of free public schools, to which all children between the ages of six and twenty-one shall be admitted without distinction of race or color; and providing that no separate schools shall be established for any exclusive race, was adopted.

Article 135, providing that no municipal corporation shall make any rules contrary to the spirit of article 134, was adopted.

Article 136 was adopted, providing for the election of a state superintendent of public schools.

Article 137 was adopted, providing that the general exercises in public schools shall be conducted in the English language.

Article 138 was adopted, providing that the proceeds of public lands granted for school purposes by the United States, and proceeds of estates of deceased persons, shall become a perpetual fund for the support of public schools.

Article 139, relating to moneys accruing from the sale of lands for institutions of learning, and also providing that no appropriation shall be made by the legislature for the support of private schools or private institutions of learning in which distinction is made on account of race, color, or previous condition, was adopted.

Article 140, providing for the establishment of a university in the city of New Orleans, where all departments of learning shall be open in common to all students capable of matriculating, was adopted.

Influence of New-Comers.

While we do not deem it of any special importance one way or another whether a man has lived in Louisiana one year or ten years, or all his life, some of our Democratic friends have repeatedly laid stress upon the importance of "old citizenship." There is no doubt that a man can be learned, honest, intellectual, intelligent, and useful to the community, even though he may have been for the greater part of his life deprived of the advantages of a residence in New Orleans. And in this connection we have noticed with pleasure that our Democratic or conservative friends do not at all times carry their theory into rigid practice. For instance, Mr. W. M. Smallwood, the respected secretary of their state central committee, is but recently from another state. He has not lived here so long as many of the prominent men of the Republican party who have been deemed too little acquainted with Louisiana to have a voice in her affairs. Yet we have no doubt the secretary of the Democratic central committee is in all respects as safe an adviser as any of his colleagues. We find the following notice of the central committee in a late number of the St. Louis Republican, a thoroughgoing Democratic paper:

We notice that Mr. M. B. Brady is president of the Louisiana state central committee, and W. M. Smallwood, Esq., secretary. The latter gentleman is very well known in St. Louis and Missouri. He is favorably remembered as clerk of the supreme court of Missouri, an office which he filled acceptably, and was fully entitled to keep. He, however, preferred to sacrifice his position rather than continue in it as an abject tool of radicalism; and when Governor Fletcher commenced installing supreme court judges with files of soldiers and fixed bayonets, Mr. Smallwood surrendered his clerkship.

Appointment of Recorder Gastinel.

An extract from special orders No. 26, promulgated yesterday by General Hancock, reads thus:

Arthur Gastinel, recorder for the second district recorder's court, city of New Orleans, having been declared by the supreme court of the state of Louisiana ineligible to fill said office when elected, but who is now eligible under the laws of the state, is hereby appointed recorder of said court, provided he duly qualifies, and files at these headquarters a copy of the required oath.

Grand Levee to be Rebuilt.

We learn that a contract was duly executed yesterday by the board of levee commissioners with Messrs. Andrew Freame & Co., for rebuilding Grand Levee, in Pointe Coupee parish. The work is to be commenced at once, and completed within ninety days. Payment is to be made in bonds issued by authority of the law passed by the last legislature for that purpose. Messrs. Freame & Co. have a high reputation as contractors for works of the kind, as the great Ohio and Mississippi railroad, from St. Louis to Cincinnati, and the Alton and Terre Haute road, both of which they constructed, will show. They have given bonds satisfactory to the board for the proper completion of the work just undertaken. This will be gratifying intelligence to the planters of a large section of country contiguous to Grand Levee, which has so frequently been submerged for want of proper levees.

MARRIED.

KNOX—LINDSEY.—At Handsboro, Mississippi, January 20, 1868, by the Rev. M. B. Avery, Candy Knox and Easter Lindsey, all of Handsboro.

OBITUARY.

PERRYMAN—Died at his residence, near Cameron, in Milan county, Texas, September 9, 1867, Judge John M. Perryman.

Brother Perryman was born in the state of Georgia, July 11, 1802. From thence he emigrated to Tennessee, where he was united in marriage to Miss Dilliloh Jay in 1825. From there he emigrated to Arkansas, and from there to this state in 1852. Since living here he has spent the most of his time on the frontier, where he was exposed to the scalping-knife of the wild Comanche, enduring the hardships and dangers incident to such a life. Upon one occasion he was so closely pursued that he saved his life only by leaping from his horse and running into a brushwood—the Indians taking his horse and saddlebags before his eyes.

It was here the writer became intimately and well acquainted with the deceased. At his house he was always hospitably and kindly received, where he could rest from the toils natural to an itinerant's life.

When the war broke out Judge Perryman was an uncompromising Union man, and several times during the four years' struggle he came near losing his life at the hands of a mob, on account of his loyalty to the government of the United States. He lived to see his opinions sustained, his principles triumph, his enemies put to shame.

At the time of his death he was serving as chief register of Milan county, and would if he had lived been the chief justice of the county.

Brother Perryman embraced religion early in life, and united with the Methodist Episcopal church, and made heaven the object and aim of his pursuits up to the day of his death.

When the writer commenced his missionary operations here as missionary of the old church, Brother Perryman was one of the first to get back to the church of his youth, and felt proud of the privilege.

As above stated he died the 9th of last September, in peace. He leaves an aged and an afflicted wife to mourn his loss, and a large family of children and grandchildren. May the Lord comfort and bless them. Amen.

T. B. FERGUSON.

January 29, 1868.

BURNETT'S STANDARD EXTRACTS.

The attention of confectioners, hotel keepers, and families is respectfully invited to Burnett's Flavoring Extracts. New York depot, 592 Broadway.

FALLING OF THE HAIR.

The qualities of Burnett's Cocoaine, as preventing the hair from falling, are truly remarkable.

BEAUTY.

To retain the bloom and freshness of beauty unimpaired ladies should use Burnett's Kalliston.

GROCERS,

Spice dealers, and druggists should all sell Burnett's Standard Flavoring Extracts. Demand Burnett's and you will get the best. New York depot, 592 Broadway.

A NEW STEEL ENGRAVING OF CHARLES DICKENS,
SUITABLE FOR FRAMING.
Given Gratis to all Subscribers
TO APPLETONS' NEW POPULAR EDITION
OF
Chas. Dickens' Works,
NOW PUBLISHING.

On receipt of $4 50 we will mail, postpaid, to any address, as fast as published, the entire set of our

New, Cheap, and Elegant Edition of Dickens,

In seventeen volumes, together with an elegant impression of a

STEEL PORTRAIT OF DICKENS,

One of the best yet executed of the distinguished author.

Seven volumes of this edition of Dickens are now ready—"Pickwick Papers," 35 cents; "Oliver Twist," 25 cents; "American Notes," 15 cents; "Great Expectations," 25 cents; "Nicholas Nickleby," 35 cents; "Christmas Stories," 25 cents; "Dombey & Son," 35 cents. A volume is issued every week. The volumes, so far as issued, together with the Portrait, carefully wrapped, will be mailed immediately on the receipt of the price, as above.

Agents wanted in all parts of the country to sell this edition of Dickens. Every family, and every apprentice, mechanic, journeyman, farmer, and clerk will certainly buy Dickens at this low price. Send to Publishers for special terms to Agents.

D. APPLETON & Co., Publishers,
443 and 445 Broadway, New York.

Convention Chorus Book.

A collection of Anthems, Choruses, Glees, and Concerted Pieces, for the use of Musical Conventions, Choral Societies, etc. The object of this work is to furnish at a very low price the best pieces of music of the classes above enumerated. It contains fourteen Sacred and seventeen Secular pieces from Oratorios, Operas, etc., and is the cheapest book of the kind published. Price 60 cents. Mailed free.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
fe8

TRINITY COLLECTION OF CHURCH MUSIC.

Containing the Psalms and Hymn Tunes, Chants, etc., used in Trinity Church, New York, and its three Chapels. By EDWARD HODGES, of Sidney College, Cambridge, England, with valuable additions by the Editor, S. PARKMAN TUCKERMAN, Mus. Doc., Organist and Director of Music in St. Paul's Church, Boston. Cloth $2 75; Boards $2 50. Sent postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
fe8

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

Proceedings of Congress.

WASHINGTON, January 31.—House.—Mr. Elliott reported a bill continuing the freedmen's bureau.

Resolutions withdrawing the assent of Ohio to the fourteenth article of the constitution were presented. The judiciary committee was ordered to report on the law question involved.

The conference report on the cotton tax was adopted It abolishes the tax after 1867, and the tariff after the first of November, 1868. Vote 104 to 43.

John Young Brown's case was discussed to adjournment.

Senate—Ohio's withdrawal of assent to the constitutional amendment created a sensation. Mr. Johnson agreed with others that assent could not be withdrawn.

Consideration of the reconstruction bill was resumed.

District matters were considered. Adjourned.

It is stated that the chairman of the senate judiciary committee is adverse to an immediate report on the supreme court bill.

WASHINGTON, February 1—Senate.—No session to-day.

House.—The president was asked whether he had appointed certain special agents as postmasters, who had been rejected by the senate, and under what law such appointments had been made.

The John Young Brown case was resumed, Mr. Beck advocating Brown's admission. He denied that the house had the right to extend inquiries beyond constitutional prescriptions, and held that if the member elected took the oath he had a right to a seat. The charges of disloyalty should come up afterward, when, if found guilty, two-thirds could expel him.

Mr. Knott, of Kentucky, favored Mr. Brown's admission.

Mr. Kerr, a member of the committee, was sick, consequently action was postponed till Monday.

Mr. Brooks presented a petition from many citizens of New York, praying for the removal of the income tax. House adjourned.

WASHINGTON, February 3.—The following among others were introduced under the regular Monday's call:

To provide for the settlement of contracts payable in gold—courts are directed to enforce coin payments; to establish a department of justice; to build a postal railroad between Washington and New York; to dredge the Potomac with convict labor; to repeal the fifth section of the act regarding registry and recording of vessels; to issue $150,000,000 of legal tenders for the purpose of replacing those withdrawn; to remove the national capital to St. Louis; to tax United States notes, treasury notes, and fractional currency for state and municipal purposes. Also several regarding naturalization and finances.

The secretary of war was called on for the correspondence between himself, the president, and General Grant, and copies of all orders issued by district commanders are demanded

The case of John Young Brown was resumed and postponed to the 11th instant.

The bill for the protection of American citizens abroad was discussed till adjournment.

Senate—Mr. Cameron presented a memorial for recalling Charles Francis Adams.

The bill taxing national bank shares for stated purposes passed.

Reconstruction was resumed and discussed till adjournment.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—Mr. Pile asked leave to introduce a resolution authorizing the secretary of war to commence a bridge over the Mississippi river at Rock Island. Mr. Spalding objected.

The committee on freedmen's affairs were directed to inquire into outrages in Maury and Giles counties, Tennessee, and report measures of relief.

Mr. Logan asked but failed to obtain leave to introduce a resolution that after January 1, 1868, United States bonds be taxed two per cent semi-annually, deductable when the coupons are presented for payment.

The bill as to rights of American citizens abroad was resumed and several substitutes for the committee's bill were offered. Matter postponed.

The bill providing for the forfeiture of Southern railroad lands was resumed. Mr. Eldridge characterized it as cowardly and uncharitable, springing from a spirit of ill will and revenge against the Southern people for acts heretofore committed. That the bill was in a spirit of dissolution instead of restoration, and is antagonistical to the avowed objects of the war and violates the constitution. The czar of Russia could not do more than this bill contemplates; such a measure could never restore feelings of amity and fraternity to the country.

Mr. Lawrence, favoring forfeiture, introduced a table to show the insufficiency of lands in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Florida to supply homesteads. Nearly five millions of acres are needed for homesteads.

Mr. Julian, who reported the bill, refused the amendments excepting certain roads from the operations of the bill. Without final action the house adjourned.

Senate.—A special commission to inquire into the destitution in Mississippi was reported.

A bill protecting persons making disclosures, or testifying as witnesses, was passed.

The president was called on for all instructions given Generals Pope and Meade for the government of the fourth district.

Reconstruction was resumed, after which the supplemental tenure of office bill was discussed and recommitted. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—House—Beatty, elected from Ohio in place of Hamilton, deceased, was sworn in.

The bill forfeiting Southern railroad lands, after being amended to except the Nashville and Decatur road, passed—yeas 86, nays 73. The bill declares forfeited to the United States all public lands granted in 1856 in Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Florida to aid in building railroads, and declares such lands open to homestead entry and settlement under the laws of 1866.

Rights of American citizens abroad was resumed.

A joint resolution authorizing the secretary of war to employ counsel to defend Grant, Meade, Huger, and any other officer or person intrusted with the enforcement of the reconstruction acts against any suit or proceedings in any court in regard to official acts passed. Adjourned.

Senate—The bill authorizing the secretary of war to employ counsel to defend reconstruction officials passed.

Reconstruction resumed.

The bill forfeiting Southern railroad lands was referred to the committee on public lands. The senate then went into executive session and adjourned.

The judiciary committee of the senate reports unfavorably on the Bouligny land claim.

The president has nominated F. W. Scott, of Tennessee, as consul at Matamoras.

Eleven more set speeches have been made on reconstruction.

The first mortgage bonds of the Union Pacific railroad have advanced from ninety-five cents to par.

The reconstruction committee will report favorably on the bill removing Patton's disabilities. They also discussed the recent correspondence between the president and Grant, but deferred action.

The senate has confirmed Gideon H. Hollister, of Connecticut, minister-resident and consul general to Hayti.

From Alabama.

MOBILE, January 4.—Colonel Hudson, commander in this city, having received information that registrars had refused the right and privilege of challenging votes, has requested the chief of police to notify registrars and judges of elections that this right must be respected or the election will be invalid. Colonel Hudson also notified registrars and judges of elections that two clerks, appointed by the Democratic party, be admitted within each polling place.

The election is passing off quietly.

From Southwest Pass.

SOUTHWEST PASS, February 4, 6 P. M.—Barometer 30.40. Wind northwest, fresh. Weather foggy.

Arrived, steamship Juniata, Hoxie, from Philadelphia via Havana, to Creevy, Nickerson & Co.; schooner Lizzie Evans, Evans, in ballast, to Joseph Kelley.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, February 5.—Internal revenue receipts to-day $1,131,000.

Gen. Howard has issued a circular that the officers under the rank of major, who have been mustered out of the service, but retained in the bureau, be paid $150 per month.

From Georgia.

ATLANTA, February 4.—General Meade sent a communication to the convention this morning saying he would give $30,000 by the tenth of March, but that no further advances would be made, nor would he approve or undertake any financial scheme for pay involving the credit of the state or anticipating future revenues.

The convention adopted a resolution to take a vote on the relief bill to-morrow.

Adjourned.

Another convention delegate was badly beaten to day in a pothouse row.

SAVANNAH, February 4.—There was a large negro meeting at the African church to-day to advocate C. H. Hopkins for the office of mayor in place of Mayor Andrews, now before the military commission. A disturbance commenced outside with disorderly negroes resisting the police, who attempted to arrest them. The negroes drew pistols and the row became general. Reinforcements of the police drove off the rioters and captured the ringleaders. Lieut. Bell of the police was shot in the head and leg; Lieut. Howard was knocked off his horse with a brick, and several policemen and four or five negroes were slightly wounded, none killed. The rioters are now dispersed, but much excitement prevails among them.

The military commission is still in session examining witnesses, etc.

The crew of the ship Admiral, which cleared on Saturday, refused to go to sea in her on account of her leaking. She laid in Tybee Roads Monday night and dragged anchor and went ashore on the beach, and now lies high and dry at low water.

Pilots report that the steamer C. W. Lord, for this port, which lost her rudder and two flanges of her propeller, is trying to make the port of Charleston.

AUGUSTA, February 4.—A difficulty occurred between a white boy and a freedman this afternoon, during which the former mortally wounded the latter. The negro was the aggressor.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, February 4.—Supreme court. Argument of the case of Myra Clarke Gaines vs. the City of New Orleans et al., was concluded to-day. Appellees raised the question of legitimacy, alleging that the point had not been decided in Henning's case, as Mrs. Gaines had not recited legitimacy in her bill. Mr. Cushing for Mrs. Gaines contended that appellees had themselves put legitimacy off of appellant in issue by their plea denying that a bastard could, under the laws of Louisiana, be made general legatee, and this issue had been decided in Henning's case. The point, however, was reargued at the request of the court and decision held over.

The correspondence between the president and General Grant shows that the president ordered General Grant to obey no orders from Secretary Stanton; and General Grant declines disobeying Secretary Stanton on the ground that Secretary Stanton is his superior officer, though the president's subordinate. The president must restrain Mr. Stanton from ordering, otherwise General Grant must obey him. General Grant in his letters claims that General Sherman shared his views. General Grant's last letter is dated yesterday, to which the president is replying to-night. It is claimed that the correspondence was hurried to-day, so as to choke off the president's reply to General Grant's last letter by saying in effect that only the defense of his honor as a man and soldier induced him to write such a letter to the president, whom he accuses of trying to ruin him in the estimation of his countrymen. General Grant admits that his acceptance of the secretaryship was to prevent the president putting into office an obstructor of reconstruction.

Increase of the public debt for January, about twelve millions.

The ways and means committee will hold night sessions until the new tax bill is completed.

The expense of the treasury department detectives between June, 1866, and November, 1867, was $51,000. The secretary withholds the names of the detectives, as it would besides exposing them to violence destroy their usefulness.

It is semi-officially announced that the tax will be removed from the leading articles of industry, such as clothing, boots, shoes, leather, hats, caps, spices, and tin ware.

Documents covering three columns of correspondence between the president, Grant, and others will be published in the morning. It is too long to telegraph, and as the matter involves the honor and veracity of high officials a synopsis is unsafe.

From Richmond.

RICHMOND, February 4.—The section of the constitution adopted yesterday requiring the governor to be a resident of the United States twenty years and of Virginia two years was reconsidered and recommitted. The salary of the governor was fixed at $4000.

There was another scene in the convention to-day. Two members having quarreled in debate started out to have a fight, but the sergeant-at-arms put a stop to it by closing the doors.

A company to run steamers between Norfolk, New Orleans, and Venezuela, with a capital stock of ten millions of dollars, has been chartered here.

The supreme court of Virginia to-day in the case of a man sentenced to be hung, reversed the decision of the lower court, on the ground that the prisoner had not been indicted by a grand jury.

From Europe.

LONDON, February 3.—The captain and two men of the schooner Moses Waring, lost at sea, were picked up and brought to Gibraltar. They had been seven days without food save human flesh.

The French press deplore the result of the debate on the new press law as causing the extinction of their liberties.

The ports of Hiago and Osaka, Japan, have been thrown open to foreigners.

Prince Monsfelt has been appointed president of the upper house of Reichrath and of the supreme court of Austria.

The gale on Saturday was very destructive to life and property here and in Liverpool. Houses were unroofed, many persons injured, and some were killed outright.

From Richmond.

RICHMOND, February 3.—In the convention three sections of ordinance on the executive department were adopted. The governor is to serve four years and not be eligible for the succeeding term. He shall be thirty years old, twenty years a citizen of the United States, and five years a citizen of Virginia.

Thomas R. Bell committed suicide last night.

TRANSPORTATION ADVANCED TO FREEDMEN.

How Planters May Obtain Laborers

The following circular in regard to advancing transportation to freedmen from one parish to another has recently been issued by the assistant commissioner:

HEADQUARTERS BUREAU REFUGEES, FREEDMEN, and Abandoned Lands, District of Louisiana. No. 191 Julia street, New Orleans, January 24, 1868.
Circular No 2.

Frequent applications being made to these headquarters for the transfer of freedmen from parishes where they are unemployed to parishes where they can be secured employment on plantations during the year, the following instructions are hereby promulgated for the information and guidance of the agents of this bureau:

No planter will be furnished with labor from another parish than that in which he is planting, unless he can pay money wages to those whom he wishes to employ.

Before taking steps to procure laborers for a planter the agent shall be furnished by him, in duplicate, with a full, clear, and explicit statement of the terms on which he proposes to engage them, the number of freedmen wanted, and the families to be provided for being distinctly specified.

This statement will be accompanied by a bond obliging the planter to employ the laborers, and provide for the families of such as have families immediately on their arrival at the point in the parish designated by the bureau agent.

Immediately on the arrival of the freedmen, the contracts with them shall be executed in the proper form under the supervision of the bureau agent, and two copies of the same filed in his office.

The expenses of transporting the freedmen from one parish to the other, including their subsistence en route, will be deducted rom their monthly wages and paid over to the bureau agent in the parish in the following manner:

The cost of their subsistence and one-third of the cost of transportation at the end of first thirty days, one-third of the cost of transportation at end of second month, and the remainder at the end of third month.

The bureau agent who may be called upon to furnish the laborers required, will then endeavor to secure the required number from the unemployed freedmen in his parish.

He will clearly explain to them the nature of the terms upon which they are to be employed, and will in each case inform the freedman of the name of the planter desiring to employ him, and as nearly as possible the location of his plantation.

Should a sufficient number consent and agree to be thus employed, he will immediately make application direct to these headquarters for the number of pounds of corn meal and meat necessary to feed said freedmen, including wives and children of those who are married, until they reach their destination; also, application for transportation, if the same is not otherwise provided, specifying the number of grown persons, and the number between five and fourteen years of age, as well as the points from and to which the freed people are to əq transported, route, etc.

Upon receipt of said application, the necessary transportation and supplies will be furnished him, together with the cost of rates of transportation and the cost of supplies, including freiget on latter.

The bureau agent will then collect the freed people together, taking care to have an exact list of the names and ages of all intended for each separate planter, issue to them their rations, and ship them in accordance with transportation order.

At time of shipment he will place them under charge of some reliable person, generally a representative from the planters who have agreed to employ them, and will give positive orders and instructions to such person that said freed people will, upon arrival at the point of destination, be turned over to the bureau agent in that parish.

The agent shipping the freed people as stated will communicate direct to the other agent the fact that he has shipped them, which will be accompanied by a separate report of the names and number of freed people who have engaged to work for each planter, specifying full cost of rations at time of issue, and stating rates and total amount for the number transported in each case.

Upon the arrival of the freed people in the parish where they are to be employed the bureau agent on duty in that parish will immediately take charge of them, and will at once cause proper contracts in triplicate to be executed with the planter for whom they were engaged in accordance with the agreement on file in his office, special reference being had to the list of freedmen intended for that plantation as furnished by the agent by whom they were engaged.

The agent will then turn over to the planter the proper freed people, and will at the same time furnish him a duplicate of the lists on which is specified the cost of the transportation and subsistence furnished each of the freed people employed by him.

Upon complying with the foregoing directions, each agent will forward through their respective sub-assistant commissioners a complete report of all action taken.

At the end of each month, the agent apportioning the amounts to be paid for subsistence and transportation as stated will collect from the planters the proper amounts as specified in the foregoing, and will turn over the same to the proper disbursing officer at these headquarters.

By order of Brevet Major General R. C. Buchanan, U. S. A., Assistant Commissioner.
LUCIUS H. WARREN,
Captain 39th U. S. Infantry, A. A. A. G.

---

In an old churchyard at Little Compton, Rhode Island, is sleeping the first white woman born in this country. On her tombstone is the following: "Here lyeth the body of Elizabeth, the wife of William Pabodie, who died May ye 31, 1717, and in the 94 year of her age. This is the first white female born in this country."

---

A John Bull, conversing with a Canadian Indian, asked him if he knew that the sun never sets on the queen's dominion? "No," said the Indian. "Do you not know the reason why?" asked John. "Because heaven is afraid to trust an Englishman in the dark," was the savage's reply.

---

A policeman in Cincinnati was charged the regular fare on the street cars, being out of uniform and without his star. He got out of temper in consequence and arrested the conductor for failing to call the names of the streets. It turned out that the offense was not a criminal one, so the conductor was discharged—and so was the active officer from the police force.

---

A young man named Cicero Buchanan has been arrested at Evansville, Indiana, for robbing the mails. He was employed in the postoffice, and having a passion for light literature used to put people's letters in his pockets. Sometimes he found greenbacks also, which he appropriated.

---

JUDGE WARMOTH.—We are much gratified to notice that the Republican State Convention of Louisiana has nominated Judge H. C. Warmoth for governor. Judge Warmoth, although a young man, has a national reputation. He is a native of Illinois, and personally well known to many of the people of Quincy. He spoke here in the fall of 1866, and told us then that reconstruction could never be accomplished without giving the ballot to the blacks. The convention could not have selected a more capable and deserving candidate.—Quincy (Illinois) Whig.

---

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST
IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT
FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.
II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.
III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.
IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.
V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.
VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.
VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.
VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.
IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.
X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par value and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET,
AND OF
FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,
AND
Dealers in Government Securities,
AND
FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,
No 5 Nassau Street, New York.

---

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper,
devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at
57......St. Charles Street......57
NEW ORLEANS.

The REPUBLICAN is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,
BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,
The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,
TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
AND THOSE OF THE
Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the REPUBLICAN indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

| | |
|---|---|
| Daily, one year....$16 00 | Weekly, one year....$5 00 |
| Daily, six months.. 8 00 | Weekly, six months.. 2 50 |

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscrptions will be received for the SUNDAY REPUBLICAN from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

---

TO THE LADIES.

Professor BLOT, who is good authority, says: "Great care should be used in selecting GENUINE Flavoring Extracts, both in regard to taste and health. I think none can compare with BURNET'S in this respect."

Housekeepers should insist upon obtaining these superior Extracts of reputable grocers and druggists. Depot 592 Broadway.

BURNETT'S STANDARD PREPARATIONS.

For more than eight years Burnett's Toilet Preparations and Cooking Extracts have maintained a large and constantly increasing sale, sustaining the opinion of the best judges that they are unrivaled.

Salesroom 592 Broadway, New York, and sold by all reputable dealers.

---

"Its exquisite beauty surpasses our anticipations."—Lady's Book.

THE CHILDREN'S HOUR:
A Monthly Illustrated Magazine for the Little Ones.

EDITED BY T. S. ARTHUR.

TERMS—$1 25 a year in advance. Five copies for $5. Ten copies, and one to the getter-up of club, $10. "The Children's Hour" and "Arthur's Home Magazine" one year for $2 50.

Specimen numbers 10 cents.

BISHOP SIMPSON says of

The Children's Hour:

"I have no hesitation in commencing it as one of the best Magazines published for children."

BISHOP STEVENS, of Pennsylvania, says of

The Children's Hour:

"I believe that its introduction into every household would prove a blessing to young and old."

REV. GEO. D. BOARDMAN says of

The Children's Hour:

"I am delighted with 'The Children's Hour.' I do not see how a more entertaining, instructive, or profitable Magazine could be put in the hands of our children."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TIMES says of

The Children's Hour:

"This dear little monthly visitant we believe to be by far the purest, safest, and most attractive magazine for the little ones at home, published in this country."

MR. JOHN B. GOUGH says of

The Children's Hour:

"I can indorse it thoroughly........ It is a most welcome visitor to the family of children at my own home."

The Children's Hour

is as beautiful as the best typography and the best artists can make it. Two volumes a year, beginning in January and July. The number for January, 1868, will be the most beautiful number of a child's magazine ever published. Terms as above.

Address
T. S. ARTHUR & SON,
809 & 811 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

---

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

---

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE
OF
Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868.

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the

Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

---

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 70 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.
Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.
For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.
The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.
The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.
Terms, cash in advance.
Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.
Address, THE TRIBUNE,
de18 3tD&3tW New York.

---

New Book of Choruses.

Forty-Five
OPERA CHORUSES.

Selected and arranged from the works of
Rossini, Auber, Bellini, Donizetti, Gounod, Verdi, Flotow, Spontini, Wagner, Herold, Bishop, Balfe, Benedict, and others.

Forming a Most Valuable Collection
FOR SOCIETIES, CONVENTIONS, CHOIRS SINGING SCHOOLS, CLUBS, AND SOCIAL CIRCLES.

By Edwin Bruce.
PRICE THREE DOLLARS.

Copies Mailed, post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,
d14 711 Broadway, New York.

---

SCROFULA OF EVERY PHASE, CAtarrh, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, Asthma, Liver and Kidneys, Bladder and Skin Diseases WM. R. PRINE, Flushing, New York, for sixty years proprietor of the Linnaear Nurseries, has discovered the remedial plants which are positive cures for the above and for other chronic diseases, Constipation, Dyspepsia, Diarrhea, Nervous Debility, Rheumatism, Gout, Piles, Diabetes, Jaundice, Dropsy, Uterine and other Female Maladies, Mercurial and other Blood Impurities hitherto incurable. Explanatory circular, one stamp. Treatise on all diseases, 25 cents. al

---

A copy of the American Cyclopedia given as a premium.

GET THE BEST.

A COMPREHENSIVE
DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.
MAINLY ABRIDGED FROM
Dr. Wm. Smith's Dictionary of the Bible.
WITH
Important Additions and Improvements, and Five Hundred Illustrations.

THIS BOOK is a condensation of the large work in three volumes, and contains entirely new matter, drawn from a wide range of first-class authority. The Dictionary is issued in semi-monthly numbers, of 48 royal 8vo. pages each. The whole will be completed in about twenty-two numbers, eight of which are now out.

PRICE OF EACH NUMBER, THIRTY CENTS.

The first number will be sent gratis to any address for examination, on receipt of a 3 cent stamp for postage.

GET UP CLUBS.

Three subscribers sent to us, will entitle the sender to a copy of the Dictionary gratis.
Three subscribees sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the Annual Cyclopedia for 18 6, in library binding—price $6
Thirty subscribers sent to us will entitle the sender to a copy of the New American Cyclopedia, 16 vols. 8 vo., the price of which is $80.
Agents wanted in all parts of the United States. Liberal terms offered.
D. ALLPETON & CO., Publishers,
no23 3t 443 and 445 Broadway.

---

"EUREKA,"

THE INFALLIBLE HAIR RESTORATIVE.

THE CLASSIC POETS have sung to us of a spring whose pure, ethereal waters impart perpetual youth and beauty to all who will drink of them. It is now conceded by all that the EUREKA is made of the water of that same spring, and its magical effects will be seen at once by those who use it. The hair will be restored to its youth and beauty, even where the snows of winter have fallen. In presenting this Hair Restorative to the public, I have no hesitation in saying that it is no humbug: that it will do all that is claimed for it, viz: Restoring the hair to its original color; preventing its falling off, and giving it a softness, youth and lustre that no other preparation can produce. The Eureka has been used by tens of thousands, and in every case has given entire satisfaction, and is now used universally. Dr. Van Zandt has pronounced it "a most happy compound, suited wonderfully to nature, and the most valuable preparation in use for changing the color of the hair—preventing it falling off, by restoring the scalp to a healthy condition." If you want a genuine preparation for the hair, try the EUREKA, and you will not be disappointed.

It is for sale by all druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
Manufactured by ROBERT FISHER, Agent,
no16 St. Louis, Mo.

---

AHEAD OF ALL COMPETITORS,
Is Richardson's New Method
FOR THE PIANO FORTE.

BEING THE ONLY BOOK THE TEACHER requires, and the book every pupil is attracted to. Its lessons are adapted to pupils of all ages, and its exercises attractive and useful in every stage of advancement This book has, on account of its actual merit, become the standard work of Piano instruction, and the only one which every well informed teacher and scholar uses.

Price $3 75; sent post-paid
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
no16 711 Broadway, New York.

---

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

AROMATIC
VEGETABLE SOAP,
Combined with Glycerine recommeneed for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N.Y. Sold by Druggists.
nov2m6

---

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the complexion, has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the Skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of mosquitoes, and other annoying insects. Sold at 592 Broadway, New York. oc17

---

THE MUSIC BOOK
For Every Boy and Girl is
MERRY CHIMES,
Containing Hundreds of Popular Songs and Pleasing Instructions and Exercises
BY WHICH ONE CAN LEARN TO SING THEM.

PRICE—Fifty Cents. Sent Postpaid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
oc17 tf 711 Broadway, New York.

---

INFORMATION WANTED—OF FRANK VARNAR, by his wife, Sarah Varnar, who used to live in Pickens District, South Carolina, in the family of James Johns. Address SARAH VARNAR, care of Shade Croom, Houston, Texas. d14

---

The October Phrenological Journal

Contains Portraits and Characters of Mary, Queen of Scots; Charlotte Bronte; Thomas Nast, the artist; Ira Aldridge, tragedian; Alfred Sewell, and others. Well-written articles on Anthropology; Married or Single; Boots and Beauty; Sick Headache, its Cause and Cure; The Fashions, Illustrated; Man's Spiritual Nature; Forming Character; The American Physiognomy; "Expression;" Whising Women; Grapes and Blackberries, Illustrated. $3 a year, or 30 cents a number.
Address S. R. WELLS, Editor,
oc1 389 Broadway, New York.

---

NOTICE.

ROOMS OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE TREATMENT OF PRISONERS OF WAR AND UNION CITIZENS. Washington, D. C., July 17, 1867.

IN PURSUANCE OF A SERIES OF RESOLUTIONS passed by the House of Representatives July 10, 1867, the undersigned were appointed a committee to investigate the "Treatment of Prisoners of War and Union Citizens held by the Confederate authorities during the late rebellion."

All persons in possession of important information upon either of these subjects are earnestly requested to address the Committee, as directed below, stating:

1. The name, age, and post office address of the writer.
2. If a soldier or seaman, his rank or position, and with what command he served.
3. A full statement of all facts known to the writer touching his own imprisonment or treatment, and that of others, either soldier or citizen, giving, as far as possible names, places, and dates, with names of Confederate officers in charge.

Correspondents from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Texas, and the States and Territories lying west of the Rocky Mountains will please address
JOHN P. C. SHANKS, M. C., Washington, D. C.

Correspondents from Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Nevada, and the Territories east of the Rocky Mountains will address
WILLIAM A. PILE, M. C., St. Louis, Mo.

Correspondents from Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Minnesota will address
ABNER C. HARDING, M. C., Monmouth, Ill.

Correspondents from the New England States will address
AARON F. STEVENS, M. C., Nashua, N. H.

Correspondents from Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, and Tennessee will address
WILLIAM MUNGEN, M. C., Findlay, Ohio.

Communications addressed to the members of the Committee will be free of postage.

It is the intention of the Committee to collect all facts necessary to make a thorough official history of this subject.

The various newspapers throughout the country are requested to give this circular a gratuitous insertion, together with such notice as they may deem proper.

JOHN P. C. SHANKS,
WILLIAM A. PILE,
ABNER C. HARDING,
AARON F. STEVENS,
WILLIAM MUNGEN,
Committee.

JOHN D. LARRABEE, Clerk.

---

BELLS.
BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.
All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

---

Agents Wanted.
(Male or Female,) to sell our celebrated
Franklin and Diamond Double Thread Sewing Machines.

Complete with Table, only $25.00. Single Thread Hand Machines are not practical for any sewing, at any price. We give away our machine to the poor and needy, and send them out on trial. Circulars and information free. Address
J. C. OTTIS & CO., Boston, Mass.

---

W. H. PEMBERTON,

158 - - - POYDRAS ST. - - - 158

NEW ORLEANS.

Between St. Charles and Carondelet Streets.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN

Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Colors
Varnishes, Glass, Etc.

Has in store and to arrive, a large supply of the following goods, which he will sell at low figures, either wholesale or retail:

White Lead in Oil, all kinds.
Window Glass, French and American, all sizes.
French and American Zinc.
American and English Venetian Red.
Oils of all descriptions.
Varnish of all kinds.
Stove Polish,
Bi Carbonate of Soda.
Sal Soda,
Alum.
Castile and Colgate Soaps.
Wash Blue.
Black Writing Ink and Marking Ink.

Manufactured by himself.

Also a great variety of Perfumery and Fancy Articles for Toilet.

The Store is also well supplied with all kinds of Drugs and Medicines, Fresh and of the Best Quality. Strangers visiting the City would do well to give him a call. 65-89

---

ROUGH AND READY
IRON WORKS.
Danville, Montour Co., Penn.

WILLIAM HANCOCK,
Proprietor,
Manufacturer of
RAILROAD IRON
OF ALL WEIGHTS AND PATTERNS.
MINE RAILS,
STREET RAILS,
STRAP RAILS,
Old Railroad Iron Re-Rolled.

The subscriber is prepared to furnish all kinds of
STEAM ENGINES,
ROLLS,
ROLLING-MILL MACHINERY,
Saw and Grist Mill

Machinery, gas retorts, mine car wheels and axles, globe valves, gauge cocks—most improved styles. Blow off cocks, steam whistles, steam and water fittings, screw bolts, iron and brass castings, and every description of foundry and machine work, boilers, etc., etc.

Plans, designs and estimates furnished without extra charge for all work ordered from
WM. HANCOCK,
BENJ. G. WELCH, General Agent.

---

NATIONAL
FREEDMEN'S SAVING
AND
TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.
Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,

No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.
Deposits of One Dollar or more received.
Interest payable in January and July, in each year.
All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.
All the profits belong to the depositors.
Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.
Investments are made only in securities of the United States.
W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

---

JONES, McDOWELL & CO., Little Rock, Ark.
J. B. SHAW & CO., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,
GENERAL
Commission Merchants
AND
COTTON FACTORS,

No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

---

MUSICAL LEAVES.

Published by Phillip Phillips & Co., Cincinnati.

THE BEST SABBATH-SCHOOL SINGING BOOK EXTANT.

Over 15,000 Sold in Eight Months.

This is the book that has been so highly recommended by the New York, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois State Sunday School Conventions.
☞ Send for specimen copy.
Forty cents each, or $30 for 100 cop

---

WILLIAM McCAMMON,
MANUFACTURER OF
BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME

ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.
☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address
WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.
f6

---

PIERCE & DWIGHT'S
SELF-RAISING FLOUR.
—FOR—
Bread, Biscuit, Cakes, Pastry, Etc, Etc.,

WITHOUT USING YEAST, YEAST POWDER, SODA OR SALT.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING:

Stir in cold water with a spoon, and bake at once, without kneading or waiting for the dough to rise.

For the healthfulness of Self-Raising Flour, consult your Physician.

Ask your Grocer for a six pound package.

For sale at
99..............Magazine Street..............99
fe9 NEW ORLEANS.

---

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS

Window Shades and Cornices,

AND

PAPER HANGINGS.

For Sale by

E. HEATH,

75 Camp street.

---

PEMBERTON'S
"Carbolic Acid Disinfectant."

This Powder is a compound of Carbolic Acid, Copperas, etc., possessing the properties of destroying contagion, decomposing pestilential effluvia, noxious exhalations, and neutralizing strong and offensive odors; removing the effluvia of sick rooms, sewers, cesspools, sinks, privies, etc.

It far surpasses the Chlorinated Lime in its actions and effect, and is certainly the best Disinfectant now in use. Thoroughly disinfecting the atmosphere, electrifying the oxygen, and rendering the respirable air both healthy and pure, being tirely free from all injurious effects on the throat and lungs, which so frequently attend the use of deodorizers

Prepared and sold by
W. H. PEMBERTON,
No. 158 Poydras st., N. O.

---

Grovesteen & Co.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.

499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

---

PITTSBURG FEMALE COLLEGE,

Rev. I. C. PERSHING, D. D. President.

Best sustained Ladies' School under the care of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States.

Superb brick buildings, with all the modern improvements.

Twenty-two Teachers.

Including Five Music Teachers.

Four hundred and twenty-six Pupils

French and German by native Professors. Sixty dollars per term, fourteen weeks, pays all expenses in boarding department except washing. Fall term commences September 4. Send to President Pershing, Pittsburg, Pa., for circular. aull tf

---

STAPLETON & CO.,
UNION HAT STORE,
95..........CANAL STREET..........97
NEW ORLEANS,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer
—IN—
Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,
—ALSO—
GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n20

---

MEDICAL.

---

Dr. J. WHITE'S INSTITUTE,
127 CARONDELET STREET,
Directly in rear of the City Hall.

The first aim of human beings is happiness, and happiness implies health of body and mind.

This Institute is established for the cure of all forms of disease, Chronic and Acute.

Dr. White does not allow any disease afflicting his patients, however virulent, to escape his vigilant care, as his patients universally testify.

It can easily be perceived how important it is that a full and correct diagnosis—detecting all the diseases that afflict the patient—should be attained. And it is no less important to the afflicted that the remedies should be equally clear to the physician; proving to his patient that when the local disease is eradicated, the whole system is completely renovated and restored to its normal condition. "A sound mind is a sound body."

Dr. White's experience and success for thirty years in an extensive practice in large cities, have brought to him for treatment a vast amount of every form of disease, justifying him in promising the cure of the patient if the vitals and vitality are not irreparably wasted.

His remedies cure the worst eruptions of the skin; all forms of ulcers, of whatever nature, to the incipient cancer, which so grievously afflict humanity. The remedies restore the stomach, liver, and blood, and all the secretions and excretions of the entire system, in unhealthy to a healthy condition. Instead of injuring the system or constitution, they renovate and repair the injuries and wastes of the entire organism.

One or two hours spent at the Institute with Dr. White frequently saves weeks of fever or other suffering—often life.

N. B. Persons desiring Dr. White's advice and remedies, will be careful to call at 127 Carondelet street, or address by letter, as there are several Dr. Whites in the city.

☞ Consultation free—stamps not "forgotten."
[feb3]

---

A NEW GLEE BOOK.
THE GREETING.

A COLLECTION OF GLEES, QUARTETS, Choruses, Part-Songs, etc. By L. O. Emerson, Author of "The Jubilate," "Harp of Judah," "Golden Wreath," "Merry Chimes," etc.

Upwards of Half a Million copies of Mr. Emerson's Music Books have been sold, a fact proving a popularity which has rewarded no other author of the same class of books and which cannot fail to insure for this new volume an immense sale. The contents of this work are, for the most part, new. A large number of valuable pieces have been contributed by Mr L. H. Southard whose name is a sufficient guarantee of their excellence. The marked features of the collection are Originality, Brilliancy and Variety; and it will be found, upon careful examination, that there is no Glee Book now before the public that in every particular will prove so completely satisfactory to Musical Societies and Conventions, Conservatories, Clubs, and Amateur Singers. Price, $1 38 Mailed post-paid.
OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO.,
se26 711 Broadway, New York.

---

UPHAM'S ASTHMA CURE

Relieves the most violent paroxysms in five minutes, and effects a permanent cure. Price $2. Sent post paid to any address by
S. C. UPHAM,
25 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Circulars free. Sold by all Druggists. oct 13t

---

HALLOWED SONGS.

FOR PRAYER MEETINGS AND SMALL CHURCHES.
A Small Hymn and Tune Book, of 25 pages, bound in muslin, at $1 each, of $75 per 100.
PHILIP PHILLIPS & CO.,
3 1y Cincinnati.

---

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 72, and 74 Washington st, New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.
No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.

For sale by F. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

---

BELLS.

PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS
Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c.,
HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

---

BELLS.

MENEELY' WEST TROY
Bell Foundry established in 1826. Bells for Churches, Academies, Factories etc., made of genuine Bell-metal, (Copper and Tin), mounted with improved patent mountings, and warranted. Orders and inquiries addressed to the undersigned, or to our General Agents, Fairbanks & Co., Scale Warehouse, 252 Broadway, New York, will have prompt attention, and an illustrated catalogue sent free, upon application.
E. A. & G. R. MENEELY,
West Troy, N. Y.

---

ROBERT PATON,
Manufacturer of
CHURCH, OFFICE AND SCHOOL
FURNITURE.
24 Grove St., N. Y.

---

SEAMLESS CLOTHING
Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.
Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.
JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 7. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1868. WHOLE NO. 107.

Poetry.

(For the New Orleans Advocate.)

THE BOW OF PROMISE.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

I heard a rushing above, around,
And raised my eyes the cause to see,
When a band of storm spirits, wild and loud,
Broke fiercely up from the angry sea.
They muffled their storm hoods about their brow,
And shook their tresses in frenzied glee,
And they called to each other so wild and loud,
And they chased each other up from the sea.

Some bore burdens of filtered waves,
And some bore thunderbolts black and grim,
And they shouted their orders out bold and loud,
And touched off their pieces wild and dim.
The sun beams bound up their yellow hair,
And hid with scared faces away from me,
And the wild flowers blooming so sweet and fair,
Struggled and sighed on the cold, black lea.

The wet birds huddled close under the leaves,
And never a note nor a wail made they,
For the sun was lost in the shadows wild,
And the night had vanquished day.
When an arrow, all hewn from the red sunlight,
Shot from the blackness across my way,
And out from the shadows a bow of light,
Beamed like the lamp of day.

The bow of promise; and then I knew
Why that glimmering arrow free,
And blessed the storm, with its terrors grim,
That gave the beautiful bow to me.

(For the New Orleans Advocate.)

"OUR NELLIE."

A sweet little face, beaming sunniest gladness,
Unconsciously banishing wearisome care;
A musical voice, touching no chords of sadness,
There's joy in the household if Nellie is there.

She conquers the heart with the bright inspiration
Of childhood's simplicity, innocence, truth;
She lisps forth "I love you!" without reservation;
A warm place is open to Nellie henceforth.

Forgetfulness comes as she prattles, unwitting
That life has its cares as the years bear us on;
A radiance is thrown over earth most befitting,
And fairest of flowers in our pathway are strewn.

Can grief be in store for thee, dear little sunbeam,
So trusting and artless, can thy heart be chilled?
Shall storms overtake, wrecking some cherished day dream?
Thy cup overflowing with anguish be filled?

May Heaven avert such a destiny, darling;
May he who the "little ones" guards shelter thee;
May Nellie be blithesome through all her life's morning,
Its evening brightened by love ever be.

S.

NEW ORLEANS, January, 1868.

(From Revival Sketches and Manual.)

REVIVALS.

How They are to be Sought for, and by What Means They May be Obtained.

These are vital practical questions. I am far from supposing that there are any exclusive methods of promoting revivals suited to all cases and circumstances. Whatever instrumentalities may be employed, there are two conditions which must never be lost sight of—that there can never be any true revival without the outpouring of the spirit, and that it can proceed no further than it is carried forward by that divine influence; and that a revival is never to be expected but in answer to prayer. But beyond these two conditions there is room for different administrations, as there are divers operations by the same spirit. Guided by the teachings of the word and spirit of God, there is room for the exercise of a sound discretion, aided by the best experience which the history of revivals furnishes.

"O Lord, revive thy work."

This prayer was offered by a prophet in a time of great religious declension. The people had "slidden back by a perpetual backsliding," and he felt that nothing short of a revival could save them from utter apostasy. It was the greatest and most urgent of all their needs.

As it was then, so it is now whenever a church is in a cold, backsliding state, and sinners are slumbering on the verge of the pit. That the need is not felt, that the danger is not apprehended, is so far from proving that no special revival is needed, that this state of things in any church and congregation makes a revival more necessary; the more profound the indifference, the greater the necessity.

Is this the case, dear brethren, with you? You either need a revival, or do not. Perhaps your church and congregation are large, strong, and united. You have a good minister, and support him well, and your congregation rather increases from year to year than diminishes. You are ready to say with the church of Laodicea, "We are rich and increased with goods, and have need of nothing." Is this your condition? Are these your contented feelings? Then, like that church, are you not spiritually "wretched and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked;" and except you repent, what will all your harmony and outward prosperity avail? How long is it that you have been thus settled down upon your lees, sowing pillows under all armholes? How many years since you have had a revival? How is with the rising generation? Are they converted, or likely to be, without a revival? The old members of your church are passing off, and who are to fill their places, if others are not "baptized for the dead?" And what are you doing? Are you on your knees, praying with the prophet, "O Lord, revive thy work in the midst of the years?" or are you waiting for one another, hoping that the whole church will wake up, and call upon God for the blessing? If waiting for this, your expectations will never be realized. That time will never come. We have no reason to think that all the members of any church are themselves truly converted; and if not, how can all the church be expected to unite in prevailing prayer?

Other churches around may be as languid as you are, or they may not. If they are, is that any reason why you should remain so? Ought it not to awaken your fears that God has forsaken the whole region, saying "they are joined to their idols; let them alone?" If, on the other hand, your neighbors are rejoicing in the midst of revivals, why should you not be excited and encouraged to strive for the blessing?

How, dear brethren, would it be with you in another case, somewhat analogous, though infinitely less urgent? Suppose there was a great drought in your town, consuming all your crops and threatening you with famine when what you have on hand shall all be eaten up, and suppose the same were the case with all the region round, would it give you any comfort to know you were no worse off than your neighbors? Or if the showers were refreshing their parched fields, would it not awaken and increase your anxiety for equally copious rains? Oh, with what eagerness would you watch the rising clouds, and how it would distress you to see them from day to day passing by upon the mountains, and leaving your farms to become "powder and dust" under a brazen and burning sky. And how can you remain indifferent while a more parching spiritual drought is consuming you? Will you not rise as one man, and call upon God to pour down the rain from the upper heavens, to revive his work in the midst of the years?

"Lord increase our faith."

The disciples had faith, but on the occasion in which this prayer is recorded they seem not to have had the faith necessary to work miracles in Christ's name. They now felt their deficiency, and prayed their master to help them to increase their faith so that they might be able to make full proof of its power. They were brought to feel their absolute dependence on Christ for the increase which they needed at the same time that they felt they deserved his rebuke for their unbelief. In like manner Christians are absolutely dependent on Christ to enable them to pray in faith for a revival, as when it is in progress, that it may be continued. How often have we heard the exhortation "pray, pray in faith, and God will certainly hear and answer you." This is very true. It shall not be said that such praying-breath was ever spent in vain. But faith is the gift of God; and how can you pray in faith till you receive the gift? The Christian, whether in a revival or out of a revival, is dependent on Christ for a spirit of prayer. Every true Christian has some faith, however weak and wavering, as the disciples had, and can therefore pray as they did: "Lord increase my faith;" but that faith, though less than "a grain of mustard seed," would be as much the gift of God as was the strong faith of Abraham or Moses.

If this be so, what is one of the first duties of the members of a church when their graces are languishing, and stupidity reigns throughout the whole community? Is it not prayer for themselves? Lord stir us up; give us a spirit of prayer for those who are perishing around us. Lord, we believe thy promises; help thou our unbelief. Increase our faith.

This is beginning at the beginning, and if you are in a cold, backsliding state what can you do? What will your prayers for a revival avail till you have a revival spirit of prayer? And will you not earnestly ask for that as the first and essential thing? See what David's penitential prayer after his fall was: "Restore unto me the joy of thy salvation, and uphold me by thy free spirit; then will I teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

So, dear friends, when iniquity abounds, and your love waxes cold, should you say "Lord, increase our faith;" then will we pray earnestly and prevailingly for the revival of thy work in the midst of us.

Oh! how much prayer for the conversion of sinners is lost for want of faith in the hearts of Christians?

(For the New Orleans Advocate.)

TRAVELS IN WESTERN AFRICA.

NEW ORLEANS, February 1, 1868.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

It is naw one month since you conversed with me, just as you and Bishop Ames were about leaving this city on a visit to the Texas conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. In that conversation you requested that I should write for the columns of the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE an account of my travels in Western Africa, setting forth my views concerning the missionary operations in the country, suggesting at the same time that such an account might prove interesting to many of my friends and readers of your valuable journal. I have not forgotten your kind request, although I have not heretofore complied with it. Though convinced of the need and possible usefulness of such an account as you asked from me, I have shrunk from a compliance with your request. Not to mention other grounds of reluctance, let me say here that I have felt it a venturesome thing to address the "colored people of America," albeit it be indirectly through the columns of your ever valuable journal. Neither my name, position, nor any personal qualities, give me authority thus to do. The only excuse I have is the depth and solemnity of all questions connected with Africa, and pertaining to the colored people of this country.

For this perhaps I may thus be pardoned for assuming so great a task. I may add here that I address the "colored people of America," because I am identified with them. And even now it is with doubt and diffidence that I conclude to send you this communication.

My object in writing this brief account of my travels in Western Africa is not to vex any of my colored friends by the iteration of the falsehood that "America is not their home," nor by the misty theory "that they will all yet have to go to Africa."

Three centuries residence in a country, and the sweat and toil they have contributed to its wealth, and the blood they have shed in the participation of its achievements for its liberties, seems clearly to give any people a right to their nationality therein without disturbance, and in fact, it seems to me a most serious thing to wantonly trench upon rights thus solemnly and providentially guaranteed a people by God himself.

My objects are quite different. One relates to what I have seen in Africa, and the other pertains to the best and most abiding interests of the millions of heathens in Africa—I mean their evangelization. And while it will be my aim to give a candid and truthful account of such matters as have fallen under my notice in Western Africa, I shall not conceal the disadvantages connected with the country, but in the course of my narrative shall mention them as occasion may require.

The evening of October 29, 1859, was cold and lowering as the hour arrived for the departure from the city of Pittsburg of the cars which were to convey us on our journey to Harrisburg, and thence to Baltimore, preparatory to our embarking for Africa. It was truly a cheerless night, and the streets through which we passed seemed almost deserted, save where here and there a single pedestrian, wrapping himself in his cloak, defied the peltings of the pitiless storm.

I need not say that the lowering appearance of the heavens tended in any degree to elevate the spirits of a youthful couple who were leaving the scenes of their early days, the homes of their youth, the thousand sweet associations of friends and "native land," on a mission to an almost unsettled country—Africa. But we had determined that the feelings of regret and despondency, so natural to the occasion, should not have a resting place in our bosoms, for experience had fully convinced us that they produced no beneficial results, but were oft-times productive of serious injury; so brushing away the hasty tears, which, in spite of all our philosophy, lingered in our eyes, we bounded into the cars with apparently light and joyful hearts. The door closed, the whistle screamed, and away went the iron horse, carrying us without much delay to Harrisburg. Here we met the Rev. John Fitzgerald, a Baptist missionary, who with his wife and child, and Mrs. Robert Hill, of Illinois, were also on their way to Baltimore, to take passage for Africa. After walking the streets of Harrisburg, the signal was sounded that the cars for Baltimore were about to leave the depot. So in the cars we tumbled, and onward we went, until the Monumental City appeared in view just ahead. Soon after we entered the Calvert street depot we left the cars and proceeded to the La Pierre House, kept by Mrs. S. J. Wallace. After a warm dinner and refreshing sleep, we proceeded to the office of the agent of the American Colonization society's vessel, Mary Caroline Stevens, and booked ourselves for a passage to the land of Ham. On the 1st of November, 1859, the hawser of the M. C. Stevens was loosened from the pier head at Fells point, and she glided down the river to the bay under the escort of the steam tug Lioness. When opposite the Ripraps, the tug left us, and the M. C. Stevens anchored. After oystering and otherwise preparing for sea, we weighed anchor and spread our canvas to the breeze, and soon the last glimpse of our much-loved America faded from our view, and we were plowing the dark and troubled waters of the Atlantic. After bestowing benedictions upon our country, and the many kind friends it contained, we applied ourselves to ascertaining who were our fellow-voyagers.

Upon investigation we found that the inhabitants of our ark consisted of sixty-three emigrants, and Dr. McKnight, of Iowa; Mrs. John Seys, of Ohio; Rev. James Thompson, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. David Kelly, Mrs. Macmorin, of Pennsylvania; Rev. John Fitzgerald, lady, and child, Mrs. Robert Hill, Illinois; R. S. Jones and Mr. Watts, North Carolina, who were all on their way to Africa, some to find a home from oppression, some to visit their relatives, some returning to their country of adoption, and some to lead the heathen to Christ.

After some preliminaries it was agreed upon by all on board that divine service should be held twice a day on Sundays and as often as practicable through the week.

We had not been at sea many days before we were favored with a manifestation of God's power in the form of a storm, which lasted for a week. Ah, these were terrible days, and followed by still more terrible nights. Days and nights of close-hauled sailing, angry seas, closed companion and cabin doors, wet decks, frightful pitching, terrific rolling, bilious headaches, despondent hearts, sour looks, cross answers, nausea, and all the concomitants of a storm. Still we drove on; not a single star peeped out from the heavens to shed its light upon us during those terrible nights, and the sun hid his face in the day. But we had a Christian band on board, a Lot and family, who prayed for our deliverance; then again we had at the helm as skillful a mariner as ever trod a deck, Captain Etchberger.

The storm over, nothing more occurred of any importance until November 28, 1859, a son was born to Mrs. F. K. Hyde, who was named by the Captain "Oceanus." Our time was spent in relating events of our lives, and religious meetings. On the night of December 16, 1859, we were aroused from our slumbers by the cry of land, ho! and an hour after the lights of the little village of Robertsport, Grand Cape Mount, Republic of Liberia, were visible from the decks of the vessel, and the anchor of our noble craft found its resting place in the mud of an African harbor. Being anxious to obtain a knowledge of the character of the population, the nature of the soil and climate of that country, and that mass of valuable information which travel alone can furnish, I immediately next morning applied myself to the accomplishment of my purpose.

Without much delay I entered one of the ship's boats, and was soon proceeding at a rapid rate toward the beach of the settlement of Robertsport. The scenery was truly grand and sublime. Cape Mount obtruded far into the ocean, and reared its mighty head 1200 feet above the level of the sea. It seemed as if Dame Nature had built for herself in that benighted land a huge and mighty fortress, with frowning battlements, defying the skill of man to rival its majestic grandeur.

Robertsport was laid off in 1856, with a view of establishing a moral, temperate, and industrious community, that would check the traffic of slaves that was being carried on between the foreign slave trader and the aborigines of the country at that time. The settlement is situated on the sea front of the cape; it is surrounded with a rich and extensive agricultural country, and a fine body of timber. It contains a number of small stores and dwellings. The public buildings consist of a handsome courthouse, jail, a clerk's office, customhouse, government building, three churches, belonging to the Methodist, Baptist, and Presbyterian denominations, and a commodious building of the American Colored society for the reception of emigrants. The streets are generally forty and sixty feet wide. The population amounted to about five hundred, of whom about three hundred are aborigines, and the residue Americo-Liberian. There are three lawyers, one physician, and four resident ministers of the gospel. The imports consist principally of liquors, American and English calicoes, cotton goods, powder, muskets, iron, cutlasses, beads, provisions, and furniture. Its exports consist of palm oil, ivory, cotton, hides, cayenne pepper, cocoa, native cloths, and gold dust, which are generally carried from the settlement by American, English, and German vessels. Six or seven small sloops are built and owned by the citizens of Robertsport, and some of them are heavily freighted at each departure with exports of the settlement alone, bound to the more leeward settlements of the republic.

A few miles above this village is a lake, about thirty miles wide, and very deep. The land in this place is various; much of it is gently undulating, with a good soil on its rivers. Considerable tracts are subject to inundation in the rains. In the interior of Grand Cape Mount are considerable tracts of table-land, high, rolling, and rich, with a due proportion of timber.

Grand Cape Mount was originally the home of Theodore Canot, the African slave trader, who built a fort to defend himself and accomplices from the American and English men-of-war that were on the search for slavers. The circumstances, character, form, and history of Canot's fortress are interesting, as it is intimately connected with the early history of the country. Once it was a most formidable piece of masonry, the materials of which were brought some distance from the interior. Within the walls were the magazine, slave pen, residence of Canot, storehouses, and quarters for his men, to which was attached a beautiful garden. But it is now a heap of ruins. Many of the stones have been removed by the citizens of Robertsport to their own settlement, and appropriated to building houses wherein they might worship God, and pray for the downfall of slavery and tyranny. Over the whole place where the fortress once stood is now a considerable growth of heavy trees.

About forty miles up the Manna river is the settlement of Erskineville, of about twenty families from Tennessee, who arrived there in 1866.

Having made many pleasant acquaintances in Robertsport among the government officers, missionaries, and other residents, we spread our sails, weighed anchor, turned our prow to open sea, and left for the city of Monrovia, the capital of the republic of Liberia, a description of which I shall give you in my next communication.

Respectfully,

FREDK. K. HYDE.

INTELLIGENCE FROM OUR MISSION ROOMS.

THE ANNIVERSARY AT ALBANY.—We have only time to say that our missionary anniversary occasion was a truly great one in all the essential elements of that term. The numbers present there could not have been more in the largest hall of the city. The speakers, including Governor Fenton, Judge Wright, Rev. Mr. Douglass, Dr. Sewall, and Bishop Janes, were in their happiest mood, and the great throng pronounced the meeting a success. The audience remained enchained with delight until half-past ten o'clock.

IN MEMORIAM.—At a meeting of the board of managers of the Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, held in the mission rooms, January 21, 1868, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from us our venerable and esteemed brother, James B. Oakley, Esq., who for more than sixty years was an active, devoted, and useful member of our church in this city, and continuously a member of this board since the organization of our missionary society in 1819; therefore,

1. Resolved, That we cherish with gratitude to God a lively remembrance of the Christian example of our departed brother. Distinguished through life by strict integrity and unusual gentleness, he filled the positions of public trust to which he was called by the church with honor, and enjoyed, as he deserved, the esteem of all with whom he mingled in private and social relations. Lovingly commending his household after him in hearty, generous sympathy with the institutions, usages, and enterprises of our church, he was emphatically given to hospitality, and for more than half a century the friends of the Savior, and especially Christian ministers, found a cordial welcome in his cheerful home.

2. Resolved, That while we sympathize with the bereaved family of our brother in the loss of a husband and father whose loving nature and uniform piety so enhanced their domestic happiness, we commend to them the consoling thought that their loss is his infinite gain.

3. Resolved, That the above resolutions be published in the Christian Advocate and the Methodist, and that a copy, duly certified by the officers of the society, be forwarded to the family.

PRECIOUS SAVINGS.—Our treasurer has received the following note from a man and his wife, who write:

Inclosed find seven dollars which we have saved the past year, and now forward to you that it may be used in carrying the glad tidings of joy to those who have not yet learned of the gospel of Christ, trusting that you will use it aright.

MISSIONARY INTELLIGENCE.—"I am satisfied," writes an earnest pastor to us, "that what our people want is missionary intelligence, and the money will be forthcoming." Well, our pastors are now very extensively providing to give this intelligence to their people through the Missionary Advocate and our other church papers, whose editors, now as ever, manifest a hearty interest in the cause, and are increasing the amount of missionary matter in their columns.

TO-DAY.—The man who does to-day that which is in the power of his hand to do, is likely to do more at his earliest opportunity. Read the following pleasant note from a man who sends the missionary offering of himself and family: "Inclosed please find a draft for twenty-five dollars, my family missionary subscription for the year. It is but a mite, but by paying it now I may be able to do something more hereafter."

NEVER BEFORE.—Curious words these in the relations where find them: "I thought I would try our Sunday schools on foreign missions; they had never before given anything for missions at all. (This is remarkable as coming from within a famous missionary-giving conference.) They seemed inspired with concern when told about the state of the heathen, and at once set about doing something." The first returns have come to our treasurer, and amount to twenty-eight dollars, for which they have received his receipt."

CHINA.—In a communication received at the Mission rooms from Dr. Maclay, superintendent, he says:

"I am thankful to report the members of the mission in about their usual health. The new mission year opens auspiciously. Brother and Sister Sites have gone probably some sixty miles into the interior on a preaching tour, and will be absent two or three weeks."

PHILADELPHIA.—The annual missionary collection was taken Sunday, January 19, in the Spring Garden street M. E. Church, in Philadelphia, of which Rev. A. Cookman is pastor. He had the valuable services of Rev. J. M. Buckley, of Brooklyn. Brother Cookman reports to us the gratifying results in the following language:

"You will be interested to learn that our contribution yesterday ($2500) will be a twenty-five per cent advance on the collection of last year. This amount, added to our missionary moneys collected in the Sunday school, will give us an aggregate of about $3600. Brother Buckley preached with great interest and acceptance. By a happy concurrence of events we were last year in our missionary collection the banner church of the banner conference of the banner denomination of the Christian world. We desire to hold our honorable and enviable position."

Les Pensees.

BY M. ANNESLEY.

Among men, do all the favors you can, but ask as few as possible. That is the way to retain your friendships. But with God, how different. When you go to him, gather up your wants, and the more minute and pressing you are, and frequently you call upon him, his smiles are the more gracious, so that you are really encouraged to become a beggar. But never omit thanksgiving. First, go to God, and then to man, when man is necessary to your relief.

No matter what is the sorrow, begin the day with praise. No matter what the joy, use supplication with humility.

Teach children scripture and hymns, and you furnish them with a secret source of happiness, and guard them from much evil. A child's mind is not a vacuum, but a treasure house where the embryo principles are laid up for future use.

You may be exclusive, but not independent. Keeping aloof from a person who is not up to our standard of right is not the way to do them good, or ourselves either. But to be godlike, we must go straight forward, and avoid little personal piques, in doing good for evil, whether it is real or imaginary, we suffer. It is a very precarious happiness that is disturbed by the "frames and feelings" of others. Do right, and look for the effects of right, even amid reigning injustice.

The Holy Spirit, that intimates the duty, also prepares the way in the hearts or circumstances of those with whom we have to do in its performance.

How strange it is that people set such a small value upon prayer, its present fruits, and after effects. "Keep the powder dry" is the great watch-word—work, work, but no time to pray, to trust in the Lord.

But a time frequently comes in the history of individual life, when, so shut up, they must trust in God, and then oh how ashamed to look after a neglected Savior and Almighty Friend.

We serve a jealous God, who will not pass by our neglects of him with impunity. He remembers what we forget, both in our good and evil, and rewards accordingly.

People may be sensible, and not literary; and ignorant persons may have a literary taste, but untoward circumstances be in the way of the gratification of their desires. It is indeed one of the comforts of life to have good taste and circumstances agree.

Novel readers reap a great deal of bad fruit, and it comes in clusters upon them when most inconvenient for their happiness and that of those about them. Among these evils are a secret restlessness and a morbid sensibility to the very common and easily passed over trials of life.

There are a great many other evils attending fictitious reading which we can not help but notice, yet the poor victim may not be aware of the cause. How blessed it is when we can look over a lapse of years, and have the secret consciousness that through grace and obedience to parental discipline we have not perverted the sacred use of sight or hearing to bad reading or hearing. For if the heart is guarded with sound knowledge and pure sentiment, we easily turn away from all corrupting influence.

"How shall the young secure their hearts
And guard their lives from sin?
They can the perfect rule impart
To keep the conscience clean."

Very few are free from the taint of having respect to persons. Position, wealth, reputation, or some other outward advantage, perhaps fine appearance, will command, even from some good people, a little more attention than yonder very plain, unassuming person receives, who lives in the retirement of her own unadorned excellence, which is an undercurrent of blessing on the earth.

Power of thought and flow of language are not always united gifts. But there is a sweet solace for the mind conscious of its own deficiency. The fountain of infinite wisdom is open, and gifts received in answer to prayer often excel those bestowed by nature.

IMPERFECT IN ORIGINAL

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion.....50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1868.

There was a delightful lovefeast held at our chapel last Tuesday evening. The Lord was with his people.

The editor of this paper visited First street church on the evening of the 6th, to attend to the subscription list of the Advocate, but such was the Divine influence present after his sermon, that he paid no attention to subscribers but invited mourners to the altar, and in response twenty-six persons came forward for prayers.

Price Reduced.

The New Orleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the Advocate they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the Advocate for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

Thomson University.

Several letters have come to hand containing inquiries as to the means for Christian education afforded by our church in the Southwest, and especially for young men who feel called to the work of the Christian ministry. Among the letters is the following:

Industry, January 24, 1868.

Rev. Dr. Newman—The account of our high school near New Orleans has produced quite a sensation among our young men, and a good many have a desire to go and be prepared for a more useful life. Among the rest are two young men—one the eldest son of Brother E. Schneider, and a young Honsun, son of a local preacher—who desire especially to go, and induced me to write these lines. Please write a few lines about the institute, and whether they can be received or not, if they can sustain themselves with labor, and what the expenses will be to get there, and by what route they have to go. Both are Germans, but speak excellent English, and are willing to work.

Your humble brother,
CARL BEIL.

Please write to Rev. Carl Biel, Millheim postoffice, Austin county, Texas.

In reply to this and other letters on the same subject we inform our preachers and people that the Thomson University has been regularly chartered, and the constitution accepted by the Mississippi Mission conference. John Baldwin, J. P. Newman, Cyrus Bussey, James Lynch, R. K. Howell, R. K. Diossy, John Page, N. L. Brakeman, and F. J. Emley were duly elected trustees by the conference; and at a meeting of the trustees held in this city January 29 the following officers of the board were elected:

Hon. John Baldwin, President.
J. P. Newman, D. D., Vice-president.
Rev. R. K. Diossy, Secretary.
Cyrus Bussey, Treasurer.

So soon as the trustees can make arrangements the institution will be opened, and especially a theological department. At the present time Mr. Baldwin is residing upon the place, and is superintending a large primary school, into which all who come are received. Due notice will be given to the public on all points of interest in the columns of the Advocate.

Religion First.

Sin reverses the order of nature. Under its baneful influences the first is last and the last is first. That which God commands shall be supreme, sin subordinates. Reason dictates primary attention to whatever is of first importance; this is common sense. And what is of greater importance than the safety of the soul from the destroying effects of sin? This should be the first great concern of man, and he's wise and happy who thus elects. It is because men forget the soul's danger and devote all their energies to the attainment of this life's objects that the Savior asked: "What will it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" That divine Teacher knew that life was of more value than bread, and that the soul was of greater worth than all the wealth and glory of this life.

But in their intense life-pursuits, men forget the great lessons of Providence and grace. A moment's reflection will convince the mind that God having given us life will also give us the means to sustain it, for life is a greater gift than food and raiment. If the Lord provides for the lesser animals, will he not provide for him whom he has created in his own image? And is it not the experience of men everywhere that no amount of solicitude on their part will be availing without God's blessing upon each human endeavor? It is an objection of too common utterance that religion and life's lawful pursuits and innocent enjoyments are incompatible. But religion is inseparably connected with all the relations of human life. It is an atmosphere, and how can we live without air? "In God we live and move, and have our being." Has God formed the endearing relations between parent and child? Religion utters her heavenly commands: "Fathers, provoke not your children to wrath, but bring them up in the nuture and admonition of the Lord." And again, "children, obey your parents in the Lord." Is marriage a Divine institution? The reciprocal injunctions are given: "Husbands love your wives, and wives, obey your husbands." Are some of our race destined to serve and others to rule? the mutual precepts are announced: "Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of heart as unto Christ." And "ye masters do the same things unto them, forbearing threatening, knowing that your master is also in heaven." Is it a law of nature that he that will not work shall not eat? How pertinent is the order: "Be diligent in business, serving the Lord." Has the great God established social relations between man and man and civil government for the well-being of society? He has uttered the command "Put them in mind to be subject to principalities, and powers, and obey magistrates;" and to rulers he says: "Judge righteously between every man and his brother, and the stranger that is within thy gates." And we can recall no relation of life for which we can not find a command, and no condition in society that is not sanctified by some religious precept.

How rational, therefore, that religion should be first in our affections, in our pursuits, in our enjoyments? The Hebrews brought the first fruits of their harvests to the Lord; and Christ said to his mother, "Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?" The first commandment with promise is unto children. Youth is God's time for conversion; "I love them that love me, and they that seek me early shall find me." Reader, art thou a youth? "Remember now thy Creator." Art thou in manhood's ripened hour? "Seek first the kingdom of God." Art thou an old man? "Now is the accepted time."

"Hasten, sinner, to be wise!
Stay not for the morrow's sun;
Wisdom, if you still despise,
Harder is it to be won.

"Hasten mercy to implore!
Stay not for the morrow's sun,
Lest thy season should be o'er
Ere this evening's stage be run."
—Scott.

African Methodists and Unitarians.

The following is from the Zion's Herald, of January 30:

The Suffolk Unitarian Association held a meeting last Sunday at Rev. Mr. Hale's church, to co-operate with the African Methodist Episcopal church in the southern work. Addresses were made by Rev. Messrs. Lowe, Hale, and Ellis, Rev. Mr. Brown, missionary secretary of the African Methodist Episcopal church, and Mr. Matthews, its general agent.

"Will you walk into my parlor?"
Said the spider to the fly,
"'Tis the prettiest little parlor
That ever you did spy."

No ecclesiastical alliance which the African Methodist Episcopal church might form would awaken even momentary surprise in our minds. Their truckling, shameful, and highly reprehensible alliance with the Methodist Church South, to oppose the mission of our church in the Southern states is a record against them. While we most gladly except from this charge Bishop Payne, and other worthy and prominent ministers of the African church, yet we do include Bishop Campbell and his preachers in the states of Louisiana, Texas, and Mississippi. We speak of these three states because we know whereof we affirm. To carry their points they have joined heart and hand with such men as Keener, McTyere, and Marvin to divide our congregations and interrupt the work of God. They had been warned repeatedly that Keener & Co, had no real sympathy with their movements, but had joined them to oppose us; yet such was their blindness to the indications that God was with us that they united with the most bitter traitors in the South to impede the advancement of our cause among the colored people. But this alliance has measurably failed, and the reasons are three: First, the alliance was a wicked one. Second, the Church South was using its colored allies to keep the blacks from us that they might be organized into a separate body, but subject to its jurisdiction. Third, the blacks themselves were too wise to be caught by those who sought their membership only for ecclesiastical domination. And what are the results of the failure? The Southern church is attempting to form colored conferences, and the African church through Bishop Campbell and his preachers is attempting the same thing. Wherever this man Campbell goes he not only slanders our people, but calls upon the blacks to separate themselves from the whites. He advocates a black church and a black government, both of which we heartily oppose. And when our friend Gilbert Haven pleads so eloquently against caste, and so earnestly urges us to a union with the African church, he should remember that he is inviting to our communion bishops and preachers who are in favor of caste—that is, of a black church. This is true of Campbell and his men in Louisiana, Texas, and Mississippi.

And to inform our colored people that while the bishops and preachers of the African church are working to build up a black church in the South, some of their leading ministers are uniting with the Unitarians in the North to advance their cause in the South. And who and what are Unitarians? They deny the supreme divinity of Christ, and lower him to the level of a man, and consequently reject the other cardinal truths of Christianity. Such are the persons with whom the African Methodists are now affiliating. Having failed of success with the old slavemasters of the South, they have gone and joined themselves with a church without a Christ, and vainly hope for success. But they are destined to another failure. For what will the colored man in the South do without a Divine Jesus? "who is very God and very man." The freedmen of the South when they were slaves proved Jesus true so many times, and so very precious to their souls, that they will not give him up now in the day of freedom.

It is stated in the little paragraph at the head of this article that "The Suffolk Unitarian Association held a meeting last Sunday at Rev. Mr. Hale's church to co-operate with the African Methodist Episcopal church in the Southern work." Now what is this Southern work? Do the Africans propose to join the Unitarian church, and deny the Jesus that bought them? No, there is no intimation of this kind in the paragraph, but it is stated that they effer to co-operate with them. But how can two co-operate when they do not agree? They do not agree as to the religious truth they severally profess to believe; indeed one denies what the other asserts. One declares that Jesus is divine, the other that he is human. If it were stated that they were to co-operate in an educational movement, that would be common ground on which both might stand; but it is for "missionary" purposes—that is, professedly to evangelize the South and bring the people by faith and repentance to a divine Jesus. This is the announced object of the African Methodists. Well, then; who has any faith that the Unitarians have such an object in view? It is not sufficient to say that they are indifferent as to the doctrines taught the colored people so long as they are elevated. But this would be to charge them with insincerity.

Now our opinion of the co-operation is this: That this is a selfish, sectarian alliance, and that the control of the black man in the South is the object of each. Campbell and his men are doing their best to establish a black church in the South, and hence their common exhortation is, "Come out from among the whites." On the other hand, the Unitarians hope to gain thereby a foothold in the South, and plant their church among the blacks. They attempted this three years ago in Louisiana, through the freedmen's bureau, of which at one time they had complete control; and they have since tried it in Texas through the same means. But in this state they failed, and men who have a divine Jesus in their creed and hearts are now at the head of the bureau in Louisiana. In Texas they have official control of the education of the state, but the Texans are such terrible sinners that they wont trust their souls to any but a divine Christ.

We, therefore, say to our people in the North that the African Methodists are opposing us at every step of our work in the South, and that Bishop Campbell is a sinner of no mean proportions. And we say to our brethren in the South, have nothing to do either with the African Methodists or their allies, the Unitarians. The old church is your home. Flock to her portals in thousands. Within her gates you will find equality before the altar, and the fullest and freest opportunities for the development of your Christian manhood.

A Word to White Men.

While it is true that a handsome majority of the loyal white men of Louisiana are in favor of the Republican state ticket, yet there are those in this city who are looking around for something better. But it is too late to look. The looking time is over and the time for work, hard work, and work all together has come. Some of these gentlemen complain that they were not consulted in the formation of the ticket; others are disappointed because they are not on the ticket, while some don't like the ticket. Doubtless the ticket might have been improved and would have been, had some of these gentlemen been put in nomination; but these persons who now complain failed to identify themselves with the organization of the Republican party of the state, and very naturally had no voice in the matter. It was not possible for the working members of the party to delay active operations till these gentlemen were ready to act, or to send committees to invite them to their meetings, or to put them on their ticket when they did not certainly know where they had stood. Had these gentlemen done their duty and joined their loyal fellow-citizens in organizing the party they would have had a controlling influence in the nominations, and some of them might have been the nominees for the people's suffrages.

Under existing circumstances these gentlemen are hoping for something more congenial to their taste. They may put forth another ticket, but it is destined to defeat so sure as night follows the morn. It may represent a respectable minority in more senses than one, and it will be respectably defeated. Or they may join themselves to those who fought so hard to crush our government and be their tools, either to defeat the new constitution or to be elected to office in this canvass, to be rejected at the next, and forever thereafter to give place to those who will laugh at their simplicity and despise their instability in not adhering to their own party, principles and candidates. It is a matter of surprise to us that these gentlemen can entertain for a moment the thought of trusting those who fought us in the war and who now seek the defeat of our new constitution. What have we ever gained by trusting them? We trusted them with the government before the war, and they plotted the nation's destruction. We trusted them in Grant's terms for Lee's surrender, and instead of a peaceful acquiesence in the fortunes of the war, they have not ceased to try to secure through Johnson what they had failed to gain through Davis; and by the misrepresentations of their press and pulpit, and by personal violence, have delayed the peaceful completion of reconstruction. There are a few noble exceptions to this statement, and we are proud to recall their names. But how has the press of this city treated our offers of conciliation; our efforts to place the government into the hands of the most honorable citizens; and the large sums of money which we have instrumentally brought into the state for the noblest purposes?

What abuses, slanders, and lies have the journals of this city indulged in and invented against Christian ministers, and civil officials, and military officers also, and what social and business ostracism has been practiced by nearly the whole herd of the supporters of these journals.

Our counsel to this minority of loyal white men is, to unite heartily with the recognized leaders of the Republican party of Louisiana, who will only too gladly receive your advice and your influence; and if those of the Johnson party wish your company let them come and vote with you. As to going to them, we have long since decided not to do it; if they come to us their votes shall not be rejected. Here then is our platform, and on it we expect to stand in triumph when the election is over; and having done all we expect to stand.

Grant and Johnson.

Were the question at issue between General Grant and Mr. Johnson one of veracity, the nation would not be long in deciding upon the merits of the case. For the American people have long since learned that Mr. Johnson's word is not to be trusted. He has gone back upon himself so often and falsified his word so frequently that our suspicions are awakened even when we know that he is telling the truth. He promised before God and the nation to make "treason odious," but he has made it honorable. He promised to be a "Moses" to the freedmen, but he has not ceased to be their Pharaoh. He promised to support the constitution of the United States, but he has not failed to violate its letter and spirit by the most vehement opposition to congress—the legislative branch of the government—by obstructing the execution of the acts of reconstruction and other laws which did not favor his own policy of reconstruction. His dismission of Stanton without the consent of the senate was a palpable violation of a well-known law, but one which was distasteful to him and his friends.

It is a safe and sound rule of judgment that when a man or set of men have denied the faith they once professed, and have in so doing falsified their history and broken their plighted word, that the testimony of such a man or set of men is not to be taken against the testimony of a man who has remained true to his principles, and who is known for his truth and veracity; and especially is this true when such men put forth their word to damage the cause which they have abandoned, and to crush a man who stands up firmly for that injured cause. On any other subject than reconstruction, we might dare to believe the word of Andrew Johnson, together with that of his secretaries, but on this subject we can repose no credence in what he or they testify. Having abandoned the cause represented by the Republican party, it is natural that they should misrepresent it. Besides, the testimony of Mr. Johnson's secretaries is ex parte, and made not only in the interest of their chief but in their own; for having abandoned the Republican cause, they know that the triumph of that cause is their own political infamy.

On the other hand and against their combined testimony is the word of a man whose habitual veracity has never been questioned; who has not gone back upon his record, and who has no forsaken cause to crush, and no doubtful cause to support. In judging of a man's veracity we must take in his whole life and ponder well his antecedents. Governed by this rule who can give credence to the word of Mr. Johnson, or Mr. Wells, or Mr. Seward, or any other one of the secretaries on this point? But guided by this rule who can doubt the solemn written word of Ulysses S. Grant? And it is a tremendous argument in Grant's favor, and one which the Southern press, which is now so violently assailing his veracity should remember, that notwithstanding the loyal men of this nation disapproved of the too generous terms of surrender which Grant offered to Lee, yet Grant has faithfully kept those terms on his part and stood up bravely when the people clamored against him and them. It is also a fact of mental philosophy, that interest may so warp a man's judgment on a given subject, that he is incapable of hearing or seeing or testifying otherwise than in favor of his own interest on that given subject; so that while we may suspect the accuracy of Mr. Johnson's secretaries on the famous interview, yet on other subjects they may be worthy of our respectful confidence.

The political history of this country proves that politicians will resort to the worst of measures to defeat an opponent. Grant is the only man in this nation that the Johnson party have good reason to fear in the contest for the next presidency. It is never honorable to question a man's motives, but when those motives are embodied in overt acts we have a right to judge.

No intelligent man can doubt the animus of this dispute on the part of Johnson and his friends. If Grant can be crushed, they fancy the presidential battle half won. And to do this the base attempt is made to defame his reputation for veracity, and thus undermine the confidence the people repose in him. But he was too wise to be led by Johnson to disobey his immediate superior (Stanton), and thus subject himself to court martial; and he will prove too brave to be clamored out of the true position he has now assumed. Ulysses S. Grant will be the next president of the United States.

Aid for the Planters.

The planters should accept without delay General Buchanan's offer, as contained in his recent order of January 23, 1868. This plan of aiding both planters and freedmen is original with Major General Buchanan, and is neither the plan of General Howard nor of Congress. The origin of the plan is as follows: Major General Howard ordered General Buchanan to issue indiscriminate supplies—that is, to destitute freedmen, without requiring a compliance with any other condition than that they represent that they are in actual want; but General Buchanan determined, if possible, to improve the industrial interests of Louisiana by furnishing supplies to the planters for their freedmen, which freedmen are employed by said planters. And we are glad to learn that this proposition of the commissioner of the freedmen's bureau, to advance supplies to planters at the rate of about $1500 for every twenty hands employed, has been received by the planters with many expressions of satisfaction. Already many of them have visited the city for the purpose of availing themselves of the liberal offer of the government.

Planters who had grown despondent at the gloomy prospects before them now express themselves as quite hopeful. It is well known to every man who is at all acquainted with this state that a considerable number of the planters have been seriously crippled in their means by overflows, bad management, the fall in the price of cotton, and in some instances possibly by damages inflicted on the crops by worms. They stand to-day entirely without resources. Their factors are unable to advance the means to prepare for the next crop, or unwilling to do so on terms less favorable than nearly ruinous. Not a barrel of pork or of meal, not a dollar's worth of supplies of any kind can be obtained by them in this market or any other without the cash, which they must obtain by borrowing. And if any one would know the rate of interest he would have to pay let him apply for a loan at once of our banks. No money can be raised in this city on the security of a lien on crops not yet planted. Something more tangible is required. And where credit can be obtained the planter is obliged to pay in the end a round rate interest for the money and a handsome commission for purchasing the supplies.

In this condition of affairs the government steps forward and offers on the compliance of certain easy conditions to advance substantial aid free of interest or charges for commissions. The only precaution taken is that for securing the principal of the sum advanced. The planters who are supposed to be familiar with all the details of the business accept with thanks the generous offer, and begin to speak already of brighter days ahead. But their "advisers, the factors," assail the arrangement and characterize it as a sort of financial outrage which the government proposes to perpetrate upon the planters. They contemplate the worst possible side of the picture. That the crops will fail, that the freedmen will not work faithfully, but will demand and receive pay the same as though they did; that all the planters who receive aid from the government will fail entirely to have the necessary amount to pay the debt to the government and discharge the lien, and hence all their movable effects will be seized and sold. No one but an interested party would have anticipated such a picture possible, and it is incredible that any one could have been found to put such things to paper. Yet we find in the columns of a paper professing to represent the commercial interests of this city a column of weakness, trying to prove that the government has entered into a conspiracy to bankrupt all the planters of the state, and sell them out. This paper is, no doubt, influenced by the factors, the middle men, whose occupation is fast departing from them under the improved labor system.

There is, fortunately, no compulsion in the case. Those planters who may elect to accept of the offer of the government are free to do so; while those who are disposed to listen to the interested counsel of their "advisers" have still the option of borrowing money from the factors if they can, pay a high rate of interest, or promise to do so, and then obtain their supplies by paying two and a half per cent commission to their "advisers." We shall see which proposition is the more generally accepted.

Honorable Women.—Not a few have adorned the Methodist Episcopal church all along the years of her history; among them was the recently departed Mrs. Mary W. Mason. The fragrance of her memory must be continued along the history of our society, for she was of the elect ladies who in the month of July, 1819, assembled to form the first auxiliary to the parent missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church. It pleased the Heavenly Father to satisfy her with long life in which to see the good of his chosen. She was for many years, if not from the beginning, the first directress of the Female Missionary society, and with respect to its best interest "was clad with zeal as a cloak." The indebtedness of this cause to her zeal is known to all who know her children and her children's children. It is felt through the labors of an editor of one of our church papers, and by the pen and labors and gifts of one of our most active and prosperous laymen. She will be no stranger among the immortals whose society she has gained.

Before the great Three One
They all exulting stand,
And tell the wonders he hath done
Through all their land:
The listening spheres attend,
And swell the growing fame,
And sing, in songs which never end,
The wondrous name.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,
H. C. WARMOTH.
FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,
OSCAR J. DUNN.
FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,
GEORGE BOVEE.
FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,
SIMEON BELDEN.
FOR AUDITOR,
GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.
FOR TREASURER,
ANTOINE DUBUCLET.
FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,
T. W. CONWAY.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

Opelousas District.

DONALDSONVILLE QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—COLD WEATHER—BROTHER KENNEDAY.

The Mississippi and the Lafourche continue to be low and very little business offers for the numerous steamers in the coasting trade. Failure of crops, foul weather, and low water make everything dull. The day of our meeting was very cold—no means of warming the church—so we had quite a chilly three hours session. The attendance was poor in consequence, but a large amount of conference business was done. This circuit will support its preacher, especially will Donaldsonville, Napoleon, and Woodlawn do their part. Donaldson church improves—it is gaining in numbers and intelligence. Our church is becoming better known and appreciated; opposition is ceasing, and Brother Kenneday is respected by all classes. He toils hard in the interest of morality, industry, piety, and education, and his worthy companion faithfully helps him. May God's blessing attend Thomas and Martha!

Quite a congregation came out to preaching Saturday morning and night. The pastor's report shows considerable loss at the plantation appointments by removals, places changing hands, and want of church accommodation. In towns and where we have houses for preaching and schools there is an increase. The day schools are suffering because the people are too poor to pay the teachers.

SABBATH SERVICES—HEAVY RAINS—EXPELLED MEMBERS—WOODLAWN CHURCH.

At nine o'clock the Sunday school children were catechised, and rewards given out. They show improvement. Preaching and the sacrament followed. It was a solemn gathering around the Lord's table. Many a vow was made, and sad hearts were comforted. In the afternoon love feast was held, one of the best ever known there. Out of doors the storm raged fearfully, but within the Master girded himself and fed us with heavenly manna. Though the night was dark and wet, the closing meeting was good, and it was said to have been throughout a precious Lord's day. At love feast three unworthy members were read out as expelled, while others started for heaven with us. Brothers Courtney, Bowman, and other local brethren are doing good service. This church is still unfinished, but a strong effort is being made to complete it this year. We hope to hold the next quarterly meeting in the new Woodlawn church. The work upon it is well advanced.

FRANKLIN QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—GOOD REPORT—NEW MEMBERS—MARCUS DALE—THANKS VOTED.

Another wintry day and no means of warming the church, but a good attendance at the conference; Franklin and Cypremont were well represented, and next day members came in from Centreville and Baldwin; more would have been present, but for a misunderstanding about the day of meeting. A large amount of business was transacted; Rev. M. Holloway and others were received from the Baptist church; several brethren were taken on trial as exhorters; arrangements were made for the support of Brother Lea, who is doing good and growing into favor fast; also for securing regular preaching every sabbath. Five appointments were reported, four Sunday schools in operation, and the circuit in good condition. John Goodwin applied to be received in good standing as a local deacon, but on being required to show his penitence by a probation, concluded rather to withdraw from the church, to which no objection was made. The name of Rev. Marcus Dale was entered upon the roll as a local elder. Mr. Lewis Young was re-elected treasurer of the church, and a vote of thanks for his services passed unanimously.

SABBATH SERVICES—SUNDAY SCHOOL—GOOD ORDER—DAY SCHOOLS—CENTREVILLE.

The Sunday school exercises were very interesting. The children recited the Catechism and other lessons well, sang excellently as usual, and were delighted with their pretty rewards, books, picture cards, and papers. They have not forgotten Mrs. Roberts' lessons. Brother Dale preached at 11 o'clock a good and faithful discourse, after which the Lord's supper was administered. In the afternoon a sermon was preached and love feast held. It was a very happy and profitable occasion. All the services were well attended. The house was full and the best of order—even solemnity—prevailed. At night another meeting was held and the quarterly conference closed with gratitude to God that we are so surely gaining ground in this large parish. The day school is gradually increasing, under the care of Rev Mr. Flannery, who also preaches to the people every other Sabbath. The class at Centreville is making efforts to buy land for a church. We have many faithful members there, and a good Sunday school. Brother Wadkins is trying to be useful at this point.

ITINERANT.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

Office—No. 1018 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Rev. A. J. Kynett, D.D., Correspond'g Sec'y. | Thos. T. Mason, Esq., Treasurer.

Rev. T. W. Lewis, presiding elder Charleston district, South Carolina conference, writes to the corresponding secretary as follows:

I am sad at the condition of our Church Extension society, and our embarrassment is increased by the fact that our Missionary society is in no better condition to relieve us. We have to start anew in every place in South Carolina. The colored people have no lands, no houses of their own, and nothing in their hands, and the proprietors of the soil are generally opposed to our founding churches and schools. The only favorable circumstance is that real estate is very low, and for a little money in hand we can purchase land, and put down our stakes for the future; building an arbor or cheap church for the present, thereby establishing ourselves and putting our ultimate success beyond a doubt.

I have encouraged the people in many places that if they would strain every nerve and do so much themselves I could secure aid for them. This I did with the belief that the Missionary society would appropriate three or four thousand dollars to my district for the coming year as they did five hundred dollars for the past; but the large deficit on last year's receipts has constrained the board to assign nothing for building purposes this year. This is a stunning blow to our work in South Carolina. Owing to the extreme poverty of our people they can do almost nothing themselves, but with a little help a vast amount can be accomplished.

Please send to us the draft for the two hundred dollars of which you wrote, percentage due us on appropriations authorized for last year.

At Camden our people own a beautiful two-acre lot, central in location, and a new church sixty by fifty feet, well seated, and finished outside, built last year under the supervision of Rev. J. W. Coles; also a parsonage about half finished. They have done all they can among themselves, and still owe $625, nearly all of which is in the lawyers' hands for immediate collection. I fear trouble, and have written to several friends in the North asking help. If I can secure the balance needed I propose to apply the two hundred you send us to this case.

The draft for $200 has been forwarded and that one case may be provided for; but what shall be done with the multitude of others calling for help? Think of it! Only seven hundred dollars for this whole work in South Carolina last year! Is our golden opportunity in this now broken and impoverished, but rapidly rising and reorganizing country, to pass thus away? What shall be the answer of the church?

The following comes from Rev. N. Shumate, presiding elder of Hannibal district, Missouri and Arkansas conference:

"I have a church in my district which was built partly on the pledge of the Church Extension society to aid to the amount of $800; but after the church was dedicated we were informed that our appropriation could not be paid for want of funds. Consequently the parties to whom the money is now more than one year over due, have notified us that if we do not pay them $500 by the first of February they will be under the necessity of forcing collection by the sale of the church.

"This church is located in Clarkesville, and just where a Methodist church is greatly needed. If you will help us to that amount by that time you will save us the mortification of seeing our people turned out of a house that they worked hard to built.

"The building cost us within a fraction of three thousand dollars, and we still owe one thousand dollars; but half of that amount we provide for here, but the five hundred dollars for which we ask must be met at the time or we will lose the property. This is true. If you can help us to that amount please let me hear from you at once."

What shall be done? The amount in the treasury is already overdrawn by two thousand dollars, and large numbers of such cases are pressing their claims. We apprise the church of the facts and await her answer.

Will not the hundred who were called for last week to raise and forward by April first five hundred dollars each, respond at once and send their names to the corresponding secretary? Will not every pastor who has not already taken his collection as required by the discipline take and forward it with as little delay as possible, making it as large as possible.

Much, very much depends upon the aid the society may be able to give these feeble and struggling societies with the opening spring. There should be no delay in this work.

We Will Try to Do Our Duty.—There can scarcely be a failure in the hands of such a missionary as the writer of the following note:

"The mission charge of which I am pastor, Prairie du Chien, West Wisconsin conference, reports progress. At the close of last year the total report of members was fifty-six. Since conference, September, 1867, forty-four have joined, forty-one on probation. This is the fruit of a revival in 'Lower Town.' A revival is in progress in 'Upper Town' which promises well. Some have found Jesus, and others are seeking. The list of subscribers to the Advocates has been increased nearly seven times over last year. I have one subscriber to every one and two-fifth members as reported last year. We will try to do our duty by the missionary cause."

Our German Mission in Paris, France.—This mission, under the care of Rev. W. Schwartz, is increasing in interest, as we learn from a letter from Rev. Dr. Jacoby, dated at Paris, January 1, 1868. He was on a visit to the mission, and says nothing is wanted to give it large success but a larger room in which to preach. We regard this mission as one of great importance, if we can have the money to give it effect. We congratulate Brother Schwartz on the fruits of his labor, and encourage him to look for further excellent results.

From the New Orleans Republican

MODERN DEMOCRACY.

Editor Republican:

Allow me to congratulate you upon your brief but withering ventilation of the recent fulmination from the central sanhedrim of the modern democracy of Louisiana. May the fruits of truth thus hurled at error be like bread cast upon the waters—even more so, in that the gathering up thereof may be not very many days hence.

Does it not strike you, Mr. Editor, as something more than lightly ludicrous for a class of politicians, who for a lifetime have been seeking and praying for an opportunity to destroy the unity of the national government, and rend asunder the federal constitution, and after a four years' war for this special purpose, brought about as the legitimate fruit of their apostacy to liberty and untempered sectional fanaticism, all resulting in an ignominious failure—the more ignominious because inaugurated for a mean and unnatural purpose—is it not, I repeat, something more than lightly ludicrous to see and hear such characters now wailing and howling of national unity, national loyalty, and national democracy? And at the same time denouncing and blackguarding and meanly slandering and impugning those "immortal few" in the South whose purpose and pride it has ever been to stake their fortunes, their lives, and their sacred honor for and upon the preservation and perpetuation of those great principles and issues of national glory and honor, as coupled with the beauties of political liberty and the loveliness and immortality of individual freedom—principles and issues which these same strangely fledged politicians have for so long a time striven so hard and so infamously to destroy! Such conduct, I say, savors of something deserving a harsher phrase than that of "lightly ludicrous." It is simply wickedly contemptible.

I can look back only a few years ago, when I was standing almost single-handed and alone in this state, striving with all my feeble power—none the less devoted and sincere because feeble—to hold the government together upon the time-honored issues and principles of national democracy, with the immortal Stephen A. Douglas in the lead; as against the foolish encroachments and wicked machinations of a sectional partyism, as headed by John C. Breckenridge, hissed on by such piratical and more than shameless political nondescripts as John Slidell and Judah P. Benjamin! What was the hue and cry then of these same patriotic gentlemen who now so lustily howl around political graves they have themselves dug, and call, with festering lips and polluted tongues, upon the name of national democracy? Their slogan watchword then was, "Secession and a Southern Confederacy." And in reply to any one who might be so foolish as to then stand up for the Union and for the application of national Democracy, their insulting and treasonable reply was, "There is no midway evasive ground!" A strong rope and the nearest limb was the just reward of every one who then dared lisp the name of conservatism or of national Democracy, or who refused to swear by treason and believe a lie and be damned!

Mr. Editor, I become so thoroughly disgusted in contemplating these things, that I must confess I at times have but little patience. Still, there are so many clever gentlemen and kind and warm-hearted personal friends mixed up in this heterogenious mass of dead and rotten political nonsense, that I find myself often in the same mood in which poor Joseph found himself when his wicked but destitute brethren "came down into Egypt" to get a little corn for bread to save their souls and their bodies from famishing—I involuntarily step aside and weep; and I would as fully and freely forgive, if the same true repentance could in this case be made manifest. But so long as my former Democratic brethren persist in licking in the lean flesh pots of those days—then full and refreshing, but now made empty by their own consummate folly—I shall continue to look upon them as unrepentant hypocrites, unworthy of help or confidence. If they believe in God let them keep His commandments. If they love their country let them swear by its flag and cease to denounce and persecute those who never disgraced it.

W. JASPER BLACKBURN.

New Orleans, February 12, 1868.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

Board of Aldermen.

The following members were present at rollcall: Messrs. Burbank, Carriere, Dewees, Schneider, and Woolfley.

Alderman Woolfley was called to the chair.

A communication was read from military headquarters removing some members from and appointing others to the board of aldermen, which has already been published.

A communication from the mayor, calling the board together last Friday night, and recommending an additional appropriation for the public schools, was read.

A motion by Alderman Burbank was made to proceed to the election of a president of the board and chairman of the committee on finance.

The motion was opposed by Alderman Schneider, who moved a postponement until the next meeting of the board, as among the absent members there might be gentlemen more fitted for these positions than among those present.

Alderman Dewees presented reasons why the matter should not be postponed, whereupon Alderman Schneider withdrew his motion.

Alderman Burbank nominated Mr. Woolfley for president, and moved that the nomination be closed. Carried.

Alderman Dewees moved that Mr. Woolfley be declared elected president by acclamation. Carried.

President Woolfley thanked the board for the honor conferred upon him, though a more humble position would be more satisfactory to him. He accepted the position, and should endeavor to perform the duties impartially, trusting to the forbearance and courtesy of the members.

Alderman Dewees moved that the president fill by his appointment the vacancies in the committees. He appointed Alderman Burbank chairman of the finance committee, and Alderman Schneider to be a member of that committee. The latter gentleman declined, the commercial business of his house being so large as to forbid his acceptance. He subsequently accepted.

The communication from the mayor relating to an additional appropriation for the public schools was referred to the finance committee.

From the board of assistant aldermen—Ordinance changing the limits of the third district pound district concurred in.

Resolution to appropriate a certain sum in payment of disinfectants used last summer and fall concurred in.

Resolution to appropriate one hundred and fifty feet of the landing at post No. 22 as a coal landing. Concurred in, and passed on its second reading.

Resolution extending the time of payment of license and taxes on professions to March 1, 1868. Concurred in and passed on its second reading.

Resolution reducing coffeehouse licenses to $250. Alderman Schneider on a motion to refer to finance committee favored the reduction to $150 as a benefit to property holders and the whole community. Unless a reduction is made, he said, one half of the coffeehouses are bound to shut up within two weeks.

Alderman Burbank moved that the resolution be concurred in. The vote being yeas 2, nays 2; the president voted nay, and hoped the resolution would be referred to the finance committee, as he wanted to oppress no one and no interest. So the resolution was defeated.

Alderman Schneider expressed his willingness to vote to concur in the resolution.

Alderman Carriere now moved a reconsideration of the vote whereby the resolution was non-concurred in, and his motion prevailed.

Alderman Burbank moved concurrence in the resolution.

Alderman Schneider moved to amend the resolution by substituting $200 for license instead of $300. On the motion there was a tie vote; the president voting in the negative the motion to reduce was lost and the resolution was then passed on its second reading. The coffeehouse licenses are, therefore, reduced to $250.

This closed the business from the lower board.

A communication from the builder of the Magnolia street iron bridge, expressing a desire to get $10,000 appropriated to him on account, was referred to the finance committee.

A petition from 150 steamboat and ship captains and merchants, against selling the revenues of the wharves to speculators, and for a reduction of wharf dues, was laid on the table, subject to call.

Report from the finance committee, with resolution recommending that Alderman Carriere be joined to the committee of the lower board on the question of the Commercial Waterworks, and the purchase or sale by the city. Adopted.

Resolution to reduce licenses on billiard tables to $50 on each table. The resolution was adopted and passed on its second reading unanimously.

In the resolutions for second reading from last meeting were the following:

Authorizing Crescent City railroad company to do some waterpipe laying. Passed on second reading.

Resolution authorizing advertisements for contracts for cleaning draining canals. Passed on second reading.

In the order of the day, a resolution to cancel the contract of S. Johnson for building an asylum for French orphans out of the Girod fund, the city paying out of the Girod fund $12,000 for the release of the contract. A resolution of Alderman Carriere to adopt the resolution was lost, and it was laid over to the next meeting.

At 8:45 the board adjourned.

Board of Assistant Aldermen.

This body met in regular session last evening, Mr. Perkins in the chair, and Messrs. Davies, Sterry, Sampson, Moore, Whitaker, Leaumont, and Smith present.

The following message from the mayor was read and referred to the finance committee:

Gentlemen—I herewith return without my signature the resolution estimating the probable receipts and expenditures of the current year, in compliance with section 124 of the city charter. My reason for so doing is that the appropriation for the public schools seems to me to be inadequate to the proper support of that most important department of the city government. The intelligence of the people being the foundation and bulwark of republican institutions, I would recommend a liberal appropriation for the support of the schools certainly not a less amount than was appropriated last year, while the more rigid economy is recommended in every other department.

Mr. Sampson offered a resolution authorizing the president to appoint a chairman of streets and landings committee, and after a week's delay that the same officer appoint other chairman.

Mr. Davies was opposed to the motion.

Judge Whitaker was of opinion that the present meeting was more for the purpose of organizing than otherwise.

Judge Leaumont thought that no injury would result to the city by a delay of one week in appointing officers.

Mr. Smith proposed that immediate action was necessary, and hoped that the board would adjourn until to-night, in the hope that a fuller meeting would be in session.

Mr. Sampson then withdrew his motion.

The treasurer reports receipts for the week $270,757 50; expenditures $65,939 80; balance on hand $724,769 75. Referred.

The street commissioner announced that he had made two appointments. The appointments were confirmed.

A petition from J. Artigues was referred.

Messrs. Spalding, DeBar, Alhaiza, and others in the theatrical line, asked a reduction in the license. Referred.

Mr. Davies suggested that a general revision in the license ordinance be discussed next week.

Mr. John Dunkin was granted permission to open a livery stable on Union street, between St. Charles and Carondelet streets, on second reading, and sent to other board.

The matter of misunderstanding between the finance committee and the controller was postponed.

The Villere street railroad proposition was adopted on second reading. A motion to reconsider was lost.

Several petitions were read from several portions of the city, asking for improvements, and were appropriately referred.

The board adjourned until to-morrow evening.

REGULAR NOMINATIONS INDORSED BY THE SIXTH WARD CLUB.

At a meeting of the Sixth Ward Radical Republican club, held at Economy hall last evening, the following resolutions, offered by Captain Jourdain, were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the Radical Republicans of the sixth ward of New Orleans, do sincerely, unanimously, and heartily indorse, and hereby ratify the nominations made by the state nominating convention held in the city of New Orleans January 13, 14, and 15, 1868.

Resolved, That all bolters of this party, and all attempts to split the Republican party, meet with our extreme disgust and abhorrence, and that we pledge all our efforts and votes to consign the bolters to political infamy.

FIRST WARD RADICAL REPUBLICAN CLUB.

Unconditional Indorsement of the State Ticket.

This club met on Tuesday evening at Polymnia hall, George W. Mader, Esq., president, in the chair, and a large and enthusiastic attendance of members.

Mr. Robinson then offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted amidst tremendous applause:

Resolved, That the First Ward Radical Republican club indorse unconditionally the Radical Republican state ticket, of which the Hons. H. C. Warmoth and O. J. Dunn are the leaders.

Resolved, That no person will be allowed to become a member of this club or address the same unless he supports that ticket.

The president then introduced the Hon. O. J. Dunn, the standard bearer for lieutenant governor, who was received with cheers.

Mr. Dunn then made a few telling remarks, and was followed by the Hon. G. M. Wickliffe in his usual happy style.

Messrs. J. A. Craig and J. P. Boyd then addressed the club to the great satisfaction of all.

Adjourned to meet next Tuesday evening at seven o'clock.

GEORGE W. MADER,
President First Ward Radical Republican club.
John L. Brown, Secretary.

LOUISIANA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Sixty-Second Day's Proceedings.

After the disposal of sundry resolutions the president appointed Mr. Wickliffe, chairman, and Messrs. Simeon Belden, L. Rodriguez, W. H. Cooley, R. Waples, W. L. McMillan, and P. G. Deslonde on the committee to revise the constitution.

The convention then adjourned, to allow the committee to report, until this morning at eleven o'clock.

Sixty-Third Day's Proceedings.

The committee on style and arrangement not being ready to report, the convention adjourned until to-morrow at 11 o'clock A. M.

The Alabama Election.

It is quite probable that a majority of the registered votes in Alabama were cast last week on the question of the constitution, nearly all for its ratification. The votes for the convention in October were 90,238, 82,912 being a majority of the whole number registered. The returns in the Montgomery Sentinel of Saturday morning, from seven counties, show a total vote of 11,560 against 13,481 in October. In some of these counties the vote of only two days is reported, and in none of them the entire vote, as the polls were open again on Saturday. Another county, Jackson, is reported to have given a vote equal to that of October. There are sixty-two counties in the state. The vote of Mobile city and county, with the exception of two precincts, was 5005, against 4556 in October. The associated press dispatches report the total vote in thirty-four counties to be 51,733. There are twenty-four other counties. Experience has proved that the press dispatches are not to be relied upon.

The Montgomery Sentinel says of the freedmen who thronged the streets of that city during the first three days of the election:

They deported themselves remarkably well. They came with a single purpose, that of ratifying the constitution which secures them their civil and political rights. They did it in many instances under circumstances that were enough to appal an intelligent white man, and then returned to the country. Some of them remained here three days, waiting to put in their ballots, and that, too, with scarcely anything to eat. They came in a peaceable manner, sought no collision with the rebels, and went back home determined as they had voted to fulfill their contracts for the year with their employers, if allowed to do it. Their conduct provoked the reluctant commendation of the rebels themselves, while it rises to the sublime.

The Montgomery Sentinel of Monday says that in some of the twenty-five counties then heard from the vote was increased over that of October, while in others there was a decrease, the average being about the same as that cast for the convention. Up to the date of that paper every indication was cheering for the ratification of the constitution, but the accurate vote will not be ascertained until the middle or last of next week.

The total vote of Montgomery county was 381 less than in October. On Saturday unusual obstacles were interposed by the opponents of the constitution, so that hundreds were unable to vote, and when the polls closed in Montgomery there were some two hundred freedmen at and near the boxes, waiting to put in their ballots.

The Mobile Register is jubilant over the efforts of the "constitutional clubs" to diminish the vote in all parts of the state, and claims that the "white front" exerted a powerful influence against the colored vote of Mobile. The rebel element of obstruction is thus complimented by its principal organ.

The Montgomery Sentinel states that on Wednesday night "the rebels broke into the room where the ballot boxes were deposited, and destroyed the boxes, together with the ballots cast during the first two days at Livingston."

Until the official declaration of the vote on the Alabama constitution is made, we shall incline to the belief that a majority of the votes registered were cast on that question, notwithstanding the predictions of associated press agents in the interest of the obstructives. The ultimate result will be the same in any event, and Alabama will soon be represented in congress, and become one of the loyal states of the Union.

Large and Small City Notes.

It is intended to destroy half a million dollars of large city notes this week by burning that amount of currency at the gasworks. This will reduce the notes of the city, in the form of currency, of the denomination of five dollars and upward, to about two and a half millions instead of three and a half millions dollars, the amount in existence when the present city treasurer was inducted into office.

None but small notes are now disbursed from the city treasury to meet the current expenditures, and besides that about $1000 per day of small notes are exchanged there for large notes, on which there is a discount of twelve or thirteen per cent. It happens unfortunately that the discount on the large notes is lessening as their withdrawal from circulation becomes more rapid, and that the discount on small notes is increasing as the volume of circulation expands. There is but one remedy for this fluctuation and speculation in the city currency, and that is its utter extinction as a circulating medium.

The New Orleans, Mobile, and Chattanooga railroad company meet with some opposition to grant a "right of way, the opening of a few hundred feet of street and the use of a valueless lot of ground donated to the city of Mobile thirty years ago in consideration of its being improved." A communication in the Register imputes this opposition to the stockholders of the Mobile and Great Northern railroad.

ORIGINAL NEWS ITEMS.

The New York World asserts positively that Mr. Adams, American minister to England, has resigned.

It is again rumored that the president has ordered Rousseau home to take the place of General Meade.

The Texas election for delegates to the constitutional convention commenced Monday, to continue five days.

The project of establishing a packet line of sidewheel steamers between Cincinnati and Pittsburg is likely to be a success.

The Planters' Banner thinks the orange trees, the leaves of which curled and looked sickly after the late freeze, are not materially injured.

The Washington correspondent of the New York World says Stanton has positively declared that he will not resign under any circumstances.

The Chicago Times, a Pendleton advocate, fiercely denounces the Breese movement in Illinois. It charges the movers with dividing the Western Democracy.

Judge Bond, of Baltimore, late Republican candidate for governor of Maryland, has written a letter declaring that he is for General Grant as the next president.

John G. Budd, one of the oldest merchants in Philadelphia, engaged in the New Orleans trade, died in the former city yesterday. He was seventy-one years old.

Hon. James Guthrie has sent in his resignation as one of the United States senators from Kentucky, on account of his continued sickness and inability to go to Washington.

The currency afloat at the present time consists of greenbacks $356,000,000, bank circulation $299,000,000, fractional circulation $31,000,000, state bank circulation $4,000,000. Total $690,000,000.

A steamboat excursion to Grand levee, the rebuilding of which has been recently placed under contract, is contemplated by several of the state officials, together with merchants, planters, and others interested in the work.

General Kilpatrick, minister to Chili, intends to resign, it is said, and return home to take part in the coming presidential campaign. A movement is being made to nominate him as the next Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey.

Vallandigham, of Ohio, and Swann, of Maryland, are unhappy Democrats, and disposed to make trouble among the faithful. Governor Swann refuses to grant the usual certificate of election to his successful competitor for the United States senate, Mr. Hamilton. How these brethren love one another.

The steamer Anna White was crushed so badly by the movement of the ice at St. Louis last week that she is considered a total loss. She was built at Cincinnati, and was formerly the tin-clad Forest Rose. The boat was owned by Taylor & White, valued at $10,000, and insured for $6000 against fire only.

Galusha A. Grow, of Pennsylvania, is suggested by the Philadelphia Press as the Republican candidate for vice-president. More than forty Republican papers in Pennsylvania go for him.

The Montgomery Sentinel says at some of the polls in that city it was amusing and ridiculous to see young rebels from the clubs watching around to take down the names of white men who voted the Republican ticket for publication. The same paper proposes to publish the names of all employers who discharge freedmen for voting.

The house committee on public lands will probably report a bill providing that in all future grants of land to aid in building railroads the even-numbered sections shall be subject at once to pre-emption and homestead settlement, and that the odd sections shall be sold only to actual settlers in limited quantities, and not to exceed a fixed maximum price.

The reconstruction committee have been considering the correspondence between the president and General Grant, and Messrs. Boutwell and Bingham have been designated to prepare a report and remit it to the full committee. Some members of the house think the president's course in directing disobedience of Stanton's orders is ground for impeachment.

Secretary Seward refused to the representatives of the press in Washington the privilege to witness the presentation of Mr. Thornton, the new British minister. The president had intimated that he would probably not confine his remarks to the text of the formal speech which had been prepared for him at the state department, and that he had no objection to being fully reported.

The camels recently brought here from Texas are to be placed in the New York Central park.

Judge J. N. Paschal, of San Antonio, Texas, who formerly resided in Rapides parish, has been given up by his physician, and can not possibly live.

The Chicago Post and Springfield (Illinois) Journal urge the nomination of Hon. Hannibal Hamlin as the Republican candidate for vice-president.

The Mobile board of aldermen have adopted the ordinance granting lands and privileges to the New Orleans, Mobile, and Chattanooga railroad company.

Snow fell to the depth of four inches in the vicinity of Trenton, Louisiana, two weeks ago, in consequence of which the roads were in a dreadful condition.

Posey Drew, suspected of stealing letters from the Richmond postoffice, addressed to Rev. William Brown, admitted the fact, but said "the spirit of the devil" prompted him to do so.

The ninth volume of the Homer Iliad, edited by Hon. W. Jasper Blackburn, closed on the first instant. The Iliad deserves the patronage of every Republican in that section of the state.

Stanton said to Ben Wade the other day: "Sir, I would as soon think of turning over the war department to the rebels during the war as of surrendering my trust now into the hands of Andrew Johnson."

Alabama obstructive papers are publishing the names of white men who voted for the constitution, and Alabama Republican papers are preparing "the roll of infamy," comprising the names of parties who discharged freedmen for voting as loyalty and manhood dictated.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

From Washington.

Washington, February 11.—The president's last letter to Grant opens as follows:

"The extraordinary character of your letter of the third would seem to preclude a reply, but the manner in which publicity has been given to the correspondence, whereof that letter formed a part, and the grave questions involved, induces this mode of giving the proper sequel to the communications which have passed between us. Statements of five members of the cabinet who were present during the conversation on the 14th, and copies of their letters to me are inclosed."

After quoting from Grant's letter the president says:

"Whenever a controversy upon matters of fact reaches the point to which this has been brought, further assertion or denial between the parties should cease, especially when on either side it loses the character of respectful discussion which is required by the relations in which the parties stand to each other."

After quoting again from Grant's letter, the president says:

"The point is that before you changed your mind you had secretly determined to do the very thing which you at last did—surrender the office to Mr. Stanton. You may have changed your views as to the law, but you certainly did not change your views as to the course you had marked out for yourself from the beginning."

The president argues at some length the legality of his order to Grant to disregard Stanton's orders, making the point that Grant will not obey his direct orders, but will obey his indirect orders. The president concludes: "Without further comment upon the insubordinate attitude which you have assumed, I am at a loss to know how you can relieve yourself from obedience to the orders of the president who is made by the constitution the commander-in-chief of the army and navy, and is therefore the official superior as well of the general of the army as of the secretary of war."

This morning's Chronicle contains the correspondence between the president and General Grant reported from the war department in answer to a call from the house. He then calls attention especially to that part of the correspondence relating to the conversation between General Grant and the president, and requests a statement of what was said on that occasion.

In reply, Secretary Welles says:

"My recollection of the conversation corresponds with your statement of it in your letter of the 31st January. The three points specified in that letter giving your recollection of the conversation are correctly stated."

Secretary McCulloch says: "I can not undertake to state the precise language used, but I have no hesitation in saying that your account of that conversation as given in your letter to General Grant of the 31st, substantially and in all important particulars accords with my recollection of it."

Secretary Randall says: "I have read carefully the correspondence in question, and particularly the letter of the president to General Grant of the 31st. The following extract from that letter is according to my recollection a correct statement of the conversation that took place between the president and General Grant at the cabinet meeting on the 14th of January:"

Mr. Randall then quotes the president's version of the conversation as published.

Secretary Seward's letter is quite long, giving a detailed account of his impressions of what the president said in his letter of the thirty-first. Seward says: "I did not understand Grant as denying nor as explicitly admitting these statements in the form and full extent to which you made them. His admission of them was rather indirect and circumstantial, though I did not understand it to be an evasive one." After further details Seward continues: "Certainly General Grant did not at any time in the cabinet meeting insist that he had in the Saturday's conversation either directly or finally advised you of his determination to retire from the charge of the war department otherwise than under your own subsequent direction. He acquiesced in your statement that the Saturday's conversation ended with an expectation that there would be a subsequent conference on the subject, which he as well as yourself supposed could reasonably take place on Monday. General Grant admitted that it was his expectation or purpose to call on you on Monday, and assigned reasons for the omission."

Secretary Seward's letter caused shouts of laughter and alternate derision and incredulity from the Republicans as his cautious narrative proceeded.

Secretary Browning's letter is also quite long, and is mainly a repetition of the others.

General Grant has already written a reply, opening as follows:

"I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 10th instant, accompanied by statements of five cabinet officers, of their recollection of what occurred in the cabinet meeting on the 14th of January. Without admitting anything contained in these statements where they differ from anything heretofore stated by me, I propose to notice only that portion of your communication wherein I am charged with insubordination."

General Grant then proceeds to argue the point at some length.

The impeachment fever is subsiding somewhat.

The defeat of the Alabama constitution causes much bitterness, and the delay in the senate in passing the supplemental bill is denounced by extremists in harsh terms. It is confidently asserted that the extremists will admit members elected at the recent election, and recognize the state as restored under the defeated constitution.

The congressional majority are sadly perplexed, and the wildest propositions are seriously discussed.

The reconstruction committee has postponed further meetings to Thursday, greatly, it is said, to Stevens' disgust, who favors immediate impeachment.

During the reading of the president's letter Mr. Butler stationed himself directly in front of the clerk, and seemed to enjoy it very much. Mr. Butler don't like General Grant.

It is fair to say that a majority of the house and galleries heard the communications read with evident humiliation and regret.

Washington, February 12.—The allegations that the chiefs of the freedmen's bureau favor such social and civil relations between the races as approximates to amalgamation, is anxiously discussed by moderate Republicans who have been favorable to the bureau's continuance.

Tennessee railroads hold several millions of dollars of claims, and the Southern railroad committee propose repudiating the Tennessee delegation, who are making an effort to except Tennessee roads from the proposed legislation.

B. B. French, an eminent Masonic dignitary, and formerly commissioner of public buildings has been appointed to a clerkship in the treasury department.

General McClellan is mentioned in connection with the mission to England.

The whisky metre commission is in session, Professor Henry, president.

The following is Sherman's bill, which was introduced to-day, and referred to the committee on the judiciary:

Whereas, The people of the state of Alabama have in strict compliance with the fifth section of the act of March 2, 1867, entitled "An act to provide for the more efficient goverement of the rebel states," formed a constitution of government in conformity with the constitution of the United States, framed by a convention of delegates in compliance with said act; and

Whereas, Said constitution has been ratified by a majority of the qualified persons voting on the question of ratification, and said constitution contains all the qualities required by said act; therefore

Be it enacted and declared by the senate and house of representatives, etc., That the state of Alabama is entitled to representation in congress, and senators and representatives shall be admitted therefrom on their taking the oath prescribed by law.

The noon dispatches regarding Grant and Hancock's correspondence are substantially correct. Further details are inaccessible.

Grant and Stanton had a prolonged interview to-day.

The Arkansas constitution enfranchises females and negroes, and makes them competent as jurors, and disfranchises those disfranchised by the reconstruction acts, and those voting against the adoption of the constitution.

Washington, February 12.—The correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, who is also an officer of the White house, telegraphs the following: "General Grant has ordered General Hancock to set aside the order reorganizing the New Orleans city council.

"To this General Hancock respectfully takes exception, and telegraphs General Grant that unless the latter revokes his order, he, Hancock, must ask to be relieved from the command of the fifth military district."

Memphis, February 12.—The Arkansas convention adopted the constitution by forty five to twenty-one. Nine Radicals bolted.

Tallahassee, Fla., February 11.—In convention to-day, twenty-seven delegates present, the committee reported adversely to the eligibility of Billings and Richards, white, and Pierce and Saunders, colored, who were expelled.

Hart, Stearns, and Davidson, white, and Wells, colored, were sworn in instead.

An ordinance was passed to pay expenses by the issue of bonds to the amount of $15,000, of which amount $13,000 would be taken by supporters of the convention.

A resolution was passed expunging all records of the convention since the third day, except the fact that no quorum was present.

Two candidates on the Billings ticket for state and congressional officers have been withdrawn.

Congressional Proceedings.

House.—After some personal explanations, the rights of American citizens abroad was resumed, and wildly discussed.

The president's response to General Grant, with accompanying documents, was read, and referred to the committee on correspondence.

The president was called on for General Grant's response.

The house then went into committee of the whole on appropriations. An amendment striking out the appropriation for assistant secretary pardon clerk and three fourth class clerks employed by the president was adopted.

The president sent General Grant's response to the house. Referred to the committee on reconstruction and ordered.

Senate—A petition was presented from the Georgia convention asking for a loan of $30,000,000 to planters of that state. Also one from the Mississippi convention asking relief for the destitute.

Mr. Wilson presented petitions from several citizens asking relief from political disabilities.

Reconstruction resumed and discussed to executive session. Adjourned.

The judiciary committee stands four to three against Edmunds' bill regulating impeachment proceedings.

The senate committee will report favorably upon the bill forbidding deposits in national banks in cities where assistant treasurers have offices.

It is rumored that the secretary of the treasury intends selling fifteen or twenty millions of gold this month.

Grant's last letter to the president closes by disclaiming any intention on his part, now or heretofore, to disobey any legal order of the president.

Guthrie has resigned the Kentucky senatorship on account of sickness. The legislature will elect his successor on the 18th.

The senate has rejected William D. Bishop for commissioner of patents, John M. Johnson, federal marshal of Virginia, and Leslie Coombs, marshal of Kentucky.

The president has nominated Henry F. Heriot collector of customs, Georgetown, South Carolina.

Washington, February 12—House.—After unimportant business the rights of American citizens abroad was resumed. Mr. Banks refusing all substitutes and amendments, moved the previous question, which was not seconded, and several amendments and substitutes were rushed in, and the bill was postponed.

The appropriation bill was resumed, when the house adjourned.

Washington, February 12—Senate.—Mr. Sherman introduced a bill declaring Alabama rest red to the rights of representation. Referred to the judiciary committee.

The senate then discussed the refusal of railroads coming into the District of Columbia giving equal rights to negroes in their cars.

Without further business the senate went into executive session, and adjourned.

Foreign News.

London, February 11.—Home Secretary Hardy yesterday received and replied to an address of the loyal Irishmen of London.

Sir Edward Brewster, physician, scientific discoverer and author, died to-day, aged eighty-seven years.

The British iron-clad Hercules, the largest in the world, was succe-sfully launched at Chatham dockyard to-day.

The Austrian reichrath reassembled. Bismarck is too ill to leave Berlin. No change in the Prussian cabinet will be proposed.

Dublin, February 11.—Lemon has been convicted of treason and murder. Sullivan has been indicted for seditious libel.

New York, February 11.—Cable Summary.—Minister Burlingame had arrived at Shanghai en route westward.

A shock of an earthquake at Shanghai caused considerable consternation.

The Imperialists claim to be gaining ground rapidly.

Cork, February 11.—A mob of Fenians drove the police through the streets with firearms yesterday, but none were hurt.

The police, being stoned by the mob yesterday, charged, and several of the mob were bayoneted. An attempt to lynch an informer was defeated.

London, February 12.—Dispatches from Abyssinia report Napier at the front, and that skirmishing is going on between the British and natives. No details given.

Bismarck's organ says the policy of Austria in befriending the Hanoverian provinces is dangerous.

La France insists that Bismarck has resigned.

Congressional proceedings regarding allegiance and citizenship are being discussed by the press, the comments of which are generally favorable to the American view.

London, February 12—Mr. Brett, M. P., succeeds Mr. Sellonyus as solicitor general.

Florida Convention.

Tallahassee, February 11.—The majority of the convention last night at eleven o'clock entered a protest against the action of the minority, deposed Mr. Richards from the chair, and elected Mr. Horatio Jenkins president, reorganized the convention, appointed new committees, deposed the former sergeant-at-arms, and elected Mr. M. Martin in his place, and passed a resolution that the convention had power to compel the attendance of absentees.

Tallahassee, February 12.—Convention—Nineteenth Day—A resolution was presented asking congress to repeal the cotton tax. Adopted.

The sergeant at-arms was ordered to notify the minority members that the convention was in regular session, and that their attendance is required.

Only three of the minority party have taken their seats since the return of the majority.

It is understood that General Meade leaves the subject of eligibilities to the convention.

A resolution was adopted calling for an investigation into the conduct of a colored delegate, charged with making an incendiary speech at a mass meeting on the 8th instant, in which he inaugurated riotous proceedings against three delegates who had gone with the absent majority, proposing to tar and feather, or hang and burn them. The convention went into secret session to consider the matter.

Governor Walker and Judge Kendall were called as witnesses to the proceedings.

Some of the minority say they intend meeting on Saturday next, and resume business pursuant to their adjournment, but it is not considered likely that they will do so.

North Carolina Convention.

Raleigh, February 12.—General Canby and staff, who arrived in this city yesterday, visited the convention to-day.

In committee of the whole the convention discussed the question of abolishing all distinctions between the courts of law and equity. Decided in favor of so doing, and instructed committee accordingly.

The convention has now been in session a month, at a cost to the people of over $40,000, and no article of the constitution has been perfected. One or two have had two readings.

Governor Worth in council yesterday advised the appointment of Colonel C. A. Cilley, of Caldwell, late of the United States army, to fill the vacancy in the superior court bench, occasioned by the resignation of Judge Fowler.

A HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

Where are all the birds that sang
A hundred years ago?
The flowers that all in beauty sprang
A hundred years ago?
The lips that smiled,
The eyes that wiled
In flashes shone
Soft eyes upon;
Where, oh! where are lips and eyes,
The maiden's smiles, the lover's sighs.
That lived so long ago?

Who peopled all the city streets
A hundred years ago?
Who filled the church with faces meek
A hundred years ago?
The sneering tale
Of sister frail—
The plot that work'd
A brother's hurt;
Where, oh! where are plots and sneers,
The poor man's hope, the rich man's fears,
That lived so long ago?

Where are the graves where dead men slept
A hundred years ago?
Who were they that living wept
A hundred years ago?
By other men
Treat known not them
Their lands are tilled—
Their graves are filled;
Yet nature then was just as gay,
And bright the sun shone as to-day,
A hundred years ago.

GENERAL ITEMS.

A Georgia magistrate examines the teeth of candidates for matrimony to ascertain whether they are of age.

An Indian came into Cheyenne the other day who had nine wives in four weeks. He was supposed to be en route for Utah.

$80,000,000 is what a Frenchman wants in order that he may build a bridge across the channel between England and France.

White gunpowder is now manufactured in France which leaves no trace in the gun. It is highly spoken of in French military circles.

It is stated that the funds removed from the treasury of the state of Georgia by Governor Jenkins before his removal amount to $350,000.

General Canby has done precisely that for which General Sickles was removed, viz: issued an order staying execution on real and personal property.

In 1840 Iowa had 42,624 white inhabitants, 72 colored, and 16 slaves. In the year of grace 1868 it has a white population of 550,000 and 5000 colored.

The latest feat for a circus acrobat consists in turning a double somerset over sixteen muskets with fixed bayonets, the guns being fired at the moment of the leap.

It is frequently the case in Canada that in digging wells for drinking water salt veins are struck, which bring in large sums of money to their owners, but have a bad effect on their habits.

Heinrich Heine said women always wrote with one eye on their page, and the other on some man, except the Countess of Hahn-Hahn, who had but one eye. That no doubt was on the man.

The Chicago Post says one of the most encouraging signs of the times is the vitality and boldness of the Republican papers of the south. With few exceptions they seem to be prosperous.

A number of Democratic leaders of New England and the Northwest have been in council in Washington. The New Englanders oppose Pendleton for president, while the Northwesterners insist upon him.

The New Haven Palladium says that one of the delegates to the recent Democratic state convention at New Haven was unable to be present in consequence of having been committed on a charge of chicken stealing.

The Republican congress, by a large majority, passed a bill stopping the contraction of the currency. Mr. Johnson, the Democratic president, refused to sign it, but suffered it to become a law by putting it in his pocket.

The Lynn, Massachusetts, Reporter says: "Our streets begin to show signs of their former life and activity when the whistles sound for twelve and six o'clock, and the operatives pour out in streams from the various manufactories."

An Ohio gentleman had a dream six months ago in which the day of his death was predicted to him. On the day intimated he took out an insurance policy of three thousand dollars, got on a railroad train, and was burned to death at Angola.

Vermont raised 59,600 pounds of tobacco in 1866. Wool is now worth so little that many farmers are disgusted with sheep raising, and are now going into the dairy business. Twenty new cheese factories are contemplated in the state the coming season.

A "house on runners" passed through Grand Rapids a few days since, in which was a stove, a table, a bed, and other necessary articles of household furniture, the house affording accommodations to a family, who were bound for a point one hundred miles north in the pine woods.

The total amount of lager beer manufactured in Milwaukee last year was 83,103 barrels, exclusive of white beer. Nearly a million dollars' worth of the white beer was manufactured. The breweries occupy some of the finest blocks in the city, and the cellars occupy whole squares under ground.

Among the speakers who will shortly address the citizens of New Hampshire on political topics are Major General Logan and Major General Hurlbut, of Illinois; General Schofield, of Pennsylvania; Generals Barnum and Sickles, of New York; Colonel McKee, of Kentucky, and Hon. John A. Bingham, of Ohio.

A young Swiss farmer carries off the prize for cool cruelty. In order to please his mistress he dosed his wife with strychnine, and when the poison began to operate lay down by her side, watched her agonies, and calmly handed her water from time to time, as she asked for it, until death ensued.

The young king of Greece is only twenty-two, has chestnut hair, blue eyes, an aquiline nose, full, round cheeks, and a face expressive of amiability and good humor rather than force of character. His queen, Olga, a girl of seventeen, is a pretty, plump blonde, and, most remarkable of all, is very economical in her habits.

The Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Republican says the president has intimated to several who have called on him within a day or two that he shall get over the war department situation by nominating to the senate a new secretary. One of the strange rumors which are circulating in this connection is that the president thinks of sending in the name of General Banks for the position.

A New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Post says that the people of Harlem enjoyed a sensation recently in the marriage of two gentlemen and two young women, which was performed sportively, but found the next day to be legal. The brides would prefer to abide by the law, but the bridegrooms, one of whom is a man of "great expectations," refuse to recognize the ceremony at all. An appeal is to be taken to our courts, or to the legislature.

General Butler.—The Nation in a recent notice of General Butler says:

His manner of dealing with rascals whom the civil law could not reach will always be one of the choicest chapters in the history of the war. His administration of the government of New Orleans was positively a contribution to civilization itself, and there will never be a true lover of his kind to the remotest ages who will not chuckle over it with delight. Would that a department could be created for him to rule in perpetuity, to which we could send all our hardened blackguards, rowdies, and snivelling cheats, and impostors! They would improve under his sway, and the spectacle would be highly moral.

Will be Brought to the Test.

In his conversation with the special correspondent of the New York World last week, Mr. Johnson firmly and emphatically replied "no!" to the question whether he would recognize Mr. Stanton as secretary of war. He added that it was in his power to reduce the secretary to "a mere clerk," and that "at the proper time he should take measures for doing so."

Several documents are now in course of preparation at the war department, which in the course of the present week will require transmission to the president, and action by him. This will bring Mr. Johnson directly to the point. If he receives and indorses the papers, he will in so doing recognize Stanton as secretary; if he refuses he will impede and obstruct the operations of the government.

Johnson's supporters have been threatening all sorts of things on his behalf; but thus far he has maintained a very prudential reserve. The "proclamation" announced a week ago is yet "forthcoming." The story that department officers had been instructed to hold no official intercourse with Stanton is rendered exceedingly improbable by the fact that they are all holding such intercourse. It is very possible that when Mr. Johnson is brought squarely to the position where he must decide upon obedience to the law, or discipline under its provisions, he will surrender as he has done before.—Albany Evening Journal.

Elegant Specimen.—This is a specimen of the elegant writing in the editorial columns of the Lacrosse Democrat:

The same pen that prophesied the death of Lincoln, at the same hour of the night that was written now writes again—General Grant, the macadamizer of Virginia roads with skulls of better men than himself, never will sit in the White house at Washington as president of the United States.

We would ornament the capitol at Washington with the swinging bodies of rump destructives, by hanging them from the windows tied by the neck. Then we would ship all the negroes, of every shade, grade, or description, to the turbulent island of St. Thomas, where we would get up a magnificent earthquake, sending them all to—Africa!

Radicalism of General Meade.—The Augusta (Georgia) Chronicle thus compliments General Meade:

We think there can be very little doubt now on the mind of any impartial man in the state that General Meade is as thorough and as bitter a radical as John Pope or Thad. Stevens. He implicitly believes in the omnipotence of the rump congress, and makes it a labor of love to enforce with the greatest degree of severity and vigor all the behests of his radical friends.

A Fireman's Story.—One of the "big sixes" had rushed into a burning building to rescue a child. The flames had cut off his egress and drove him to the fourth story. All means of escape appeared to be gone; he opened one of the windows and called out: "I say, Jackey, jus' you bring the old tub down to the kerb, put on the three-inch nozzle, and let her come!" Jackey put on the nozzle, the boys manned the brakes, up comes a stream as big as a bolony and hs stiff as a poker. "I jus' wrapped the little 'un in the old coat, put my legs and arms tight around the stream, and slid down to the pavement without hurtin' me or the child! If you don't believe it you can jus' come down to the house and see the baby!

Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, in a letter to the editor of the Janesville Gazette in 1862, before he swung the circle with Andrew Johnson, said: "As we have war, and the rebels will insist upon war, under the proclamation of the president, I would make a negro territory in the United States, beginning with South Carolina."

A wretched Virginia editor said lately:

In twelve months from this time any negro presenting himself at the polls and attempting to vote, will be shot, as he ought to be.

This shows the advanced sentiments of the conservative press.

Butler Applies the Screws.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Commercial Advertiser writes thus:

General Butler, in his examination of the witnesses before the special committee on ordnance, has made some of the officers, unused to having "the witness screws" applied to them, give somewhat conflicting testimony. He has also elicited the statement that portions of a correspondence produced have been burned, and that a model has been—accidentally or purposely—broken, and so repaired as not to be testimony. The army men are somewhat indignant on the subject, which may yet be the subject of discussion in the house.

The congressional committee on Southern railroads have lately reported that the amount owing to the government by these roads on the first of November, 1867, was $4,884,500 62. The committee recommends: First, no claims for use shall be allowed any Southern road, or any state in favor of any road; and, second, the indebtedness to the government, as provided by the terms of the bond, shall be liquidated, and, in default thereof, the government shall exercise its legal right to possession and disposal. The land grant question will be made the subject of special report.

A Wail.—The New Orleans correspondent of the New York Express wails:

The cause of the South is not only lost, but the South is lost, too, unless a little wisdom can be drilled into their heads. The present legislation in regard to the South is sinking her so deeply into the "slough of despond" that it will take generations to extricate her. She is bankrupt, her lands are idle, and her people starving. Will congress do anything to relieve her, or must the fairest portion of our land become a vast Sahara?

How to Stew Oysters.—Pick the oysters out of the juice with a fork, as dry as possible; stew the juice, thickening milk or water, of which the soup is to be made, until thoroughly cooked, then drop the oysters in, and just as the cooled soup begins to show signs of simmering, empty out altogether, and you will have rich soup and plump oysters, luscious enough to make you think you never tasted real oysters before.

We chew tobacco, the Hindoos lime, and the Patagonians guano. Our children delight in candy, the Africans in rock salt, while the Esquimaux leaps for a bite of a tallow candle. To us turtles are a savory dish; the Frenchman revels on frogs and snails; and other savages on snakes.

Musical cigar stands imported from Paris are now for sale. A knob at the top of the octagon case opens eight doors, displaying the cigars, and at the same time sets a music box running. But it is necessary for the owner to keep good cigars in it, if he wants to have it play melodiously.

Senator Morton will attend the Republican state convention of Indiana on the twentieth instant. A special car from Baltimore to Indianapolis, with the necessary cooking and sleeping apparatus, has been placed at his disposal, to go and return.

The human heart is like a feather bed, it must be roughly handled, well shaken, and exposed to a variety of turns to prevent it becoming hard and knotty.

There were not righteous people enough in Sodom to save it, but there was a pretty good Lot.

A PEN PICTURE.

A rich widow, in her habiliments of woe, is thus pen-pictured by a new-paper poet:

Her shawl was as sable as night;
And her gloves were as black as her shawl;
And her jewels—that flashed in the night—
Were black as a funeral pall.

Her robe had the hue of the rest,
(How nicely it fitted her shape,)
And the grief that was heaving her breast
Boiled over the billows of crape.

I couldn't help thinking the beauty,
In mourning the loved and the lost,
Was doing her conjugal duty
Entirely regardless of cost.

Conventions to be Held.—The following political conventions have been appointed:

February 19—Wisconsin, Democratic, Madison.
February 19—Georgia, Republican, Atlanta.
February 20—Indiana, Republican, Indianapolis.
February 22—Kentucky, Democratic, Frankfort.
February 22—New York, Democratic, Albany.
February 26—Iowa, Democratic, Des Moines.
February 26—Minnesota, Democratic, St. Paul.
February 26—Wisconsin, Republican, Madison.
February 27—Kentucky, Republican, Frankfort.
March 4—Pennsylvania, Democratic, Harrisburg.
March 4—Ohio, Republican, Columbus.
March 4—Missouri, Republican, St. Louis.
March 5—Maryland, Republican, Baltimore.
March 11—Pennsylvania, Republican, Philadelphia.
March 12—Massachusetts, Republican, Worcester.
April 15—Illinois, Democratic, Springfield.
April 29—Nebraska, Republican, Nebraska City.
May 6—Illinois, Republican, Peoria.
May 13—Minnesota, Republican, St. Paul.
May 20—National, Republican, Chicago.

A Washington dispatch says Mr. Wisewell, recently nominated for commissioner of internal revenue, has figured at Washington extensively for several months past as head man in the whisky ring from New York, and is notorious for being corrupt. He was formerly military commander of the District of Columbia, where he made considerable money by speculation. Another correspondent says Colonel Wisewell was badly wounded at Fredericksburg, and that he has presented recommendations without distinction of party from a large number of prominent business houses in New York, and from several leading political men in Vermont. Besides these, he has thousands of them from various sections of the country signed by men who never saw him.

The president wants Mr. Rollins removed because of his evidence in the impeachment investigation, and because he is a Republican in politics. He also charges that Rollins is working against the administration in New Hampshire. The senate is not likely to consent to his removal.

Reconstruction Progressing.—"Occasional," the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press, writes thus from Washington:

The Southern states are being surely and rapidly restored. I hear no news from any quarter of the South that is not good news. General Hamilton writes to General Wilson that Texas will be carried by twenty thousand majority for the Republican party, and that thousands of white men are assisting in the good work; and although there is division among political friends in Louisiana on the subject of the gubernatorial nomination, yet the last accounts from that quarter presage harmony and victory. With the exception of Virginia, where, as before the rebellion, the pro-slavery opposition is organized and defiant, every other Southern state will be speedily and thoroughly reconstructed.

Complimentary.—A correspondent writing from this city to the Daily Wisconsin, published at Milwaukee, is complimentary:

I find this city of New Orleans far surpassing the ideas I had formed of it, in almost every respect. It is more extensive in territory than I had supposed, being more than five miles long on the Mississippi river, and containing 250,000 inhabitants. It is the cleanest city of its size I was ever in, and appears to be the best governed. The strong arm of the military power is not discovered here, and all appear as free and as harmonious as a Northern city. Many of the public buildings here are massive and elegant structures, and the private dwellings will compare favorably with those of New York, Chicago, and Milwaukee. In the French section of the city the streets are narrower, and some of the buildings are low, but they are generally neat, and many have gardens which, owing to the salubrity of the climate, surpass anything of the kind in Northern cities.

Miles and Sides.—General Hancock orders thus:

Upon the application of Governor Baker and the warden of the Louisiana state penitentiary, the chief quartermaster, fifth military district, subject to the approval of the secretary of war, will temporarily furnish forage for twenty-five mules engaged in the work of the penitentiary upon the levees; the cost thereof to be charged against the state, and to be reimbursed as soon as the condition of the state treasury may permit.

Upon the application of the governor of the state, and subject to the approval of the secretary of war, the chief quartermaster, fifth military district, will issue to the warden of the Louisiana state penitentiary, at Baton Rouge, one hundred and eighty pairs of shoes (such as are furnished for soldiers) for the use of the prisoners at that place; the cost of said shoes to be charged against the state, and to be reimbursed as soon as the condition of the state treasury may permit.

The Louisiana Conservatives.—The New Orleans correspondent of a New York paper writes in this manner:

The conservatives are organizing clubs, raising funds, electing officers, and stirring about lively to defeat the conventionists, and to carry out the principles and ideas of the Democratic party (so-called.) They are endeavoring to secure the votes of "the scorned," and influence them in favor of the South and Southern men. To a certain extent they can do this, but a large majority of the blacks will vote the Republican ticket on all questions. The "conservatives" are depending on the West for advice and example, and will do as it does. If the Northwest nominate Pendleton for president the South will support him, although they have little confidence that he can be elected. Many are in favor of General Hancock, while others, forgetting or not caring for his liberal Southern views, vow they never will vote for a man who wears the hated uniform of a black-hearted and fanatical people who are crushing us, and grinding us into the dust.

The Florida Union, conservative, denounces General Meade as a "Gesler," and says that "there is but one officer, General Hancock, who can resist obedience to the radical congress."

ADVISED TO WITHDRAW.

A large meeting of the principal and sub-clubs of the Radical Republican party of the third ward was held last evening, at which resolutions were adopted advising Messrs. J. G. Taliaferro and F. E. Dumas to withdraw their names from the Tribune nomination in opposition to the regular ticket, and declaring that the Republicans of the third ward of the city of New Orleans will support none but the regularly nominated candidates of the Radical Republican state convention.

J. A. CRAIG, secretary.

Customhouse Receipts.

Comparative statement of receipts at the New Orleans customhouse for the month of January, 1867 and 1868:

| | Jan. 1868. | Jan. 1867. |
|---|---|---|
| Imposts | $289,096 25 | $607,650 20 |
| Fees | 2,893 19 | 3,178 16 |
| Storage | 1,140 65 | 711 20 |
| Cartage | 747 53 | 650 65 |
| Hospital | 166 84 | 965 71 |
| Tonnage | 23,816 55 | 33,321 64 |
| Total | $318,461 13 | $646,277 57 |
| | | 318 461 13 |
| Decrease | | $327,816 44 |

One reason for the diminution in receipts is that importations on which duties were formerly paid here now pass at once up the river to Western cities, where the duty is collected.

Commerce of New Orleans.—The number and tonnage of vessels entered and cleared at the customhouse in this city during the month just closed were as follows:

| | No. | Tonnage. |
|---|---|---|
| Tonnage of U. S. vessels entered from foreign ports | 15 | 10,083 |
| Tonnage of foreign vessels entered from foreign ports | 45 | 24,341 |
| Tonnage of U. S. vessels cleared to foreign ports | 41 | 32,028 |
| Tonnage of foreign vessels cleared to foreign ports | 35 | 20,874 |
| Tonnage of vessels in coasting trade entered | 112 | 82,469 |
| Tonnage of vessels in coasting trade cleared | 109 | 69,096 |
| Total | 358 | 229,433 |

Incomes of Actors.—The receipts of Mr. J. E. Owens are $1000 a night; Mr. Barney Williams, who has already amassed a handsome fortune, averages $500 a week, with Mrs. Barney Williams as much more in the season; John Brougham makes about $800 a week; Mrs. Lander the same. J. E. Murdoch is also very wealthy. Miss Maggie Mitchell, who is always, and has been from the first, very successful, makes about $1500 a week; Lotta, the next most successful actress, a sprightly little bit of "quicksilver," who has risen into celebrity only within the past two years, makes about $900 a week; J. S. Clark, about the same, or possibly about $1000; Mrs. D. P. Bowers, $500; E. L. Davenport, $500; J. W. Wallack, $500; Mr. F. S. Chanfrau, $500; Edwin Adams, $500; J. H. Hackett, $500; Miss Lucille Western, $500; Mr. and Mrs. Florence, $500.

Fourteen hundred and fifty new buildings have been erected in Toledo, Ohio, during the past twelve months, at a cost of $2,268,200. As there is scarcely a vacant house to be found in the town, the papers claim that the new dwellings represent an addition of at least 7,250 to the population.

Fifty-two thousand seven hundred and thirty-six hogs have been killed in Indianapolis the present season, of an average weight of 208 5-6 pounds.

BURNETT'S COCOAINE

Has received strong certificates of its virtue as a Hair Preparation from every section of the country. Worthless imitations abound. Be sure and call for Burnett's.

Burnett's Toilet Preparations and Cooking Extracts are remarkable for a delicacy of perfume and healthy purity very seldom met with. Ask dealers to order, or obtain them at headquarters, 27 Central street, and 592 Broadway, New York.

HOUSEKEEPERS should insist upon obtaining Burnett's Flavoring Extracts.

New York depot, 592 Broadway.

Convention Chorus Book.

A collection of Anthems, Choruses, Glees, and Concerted Pieces, for the use of Musical Conventions, Choral Societies, etc. The object of this work is to furnish at a very low price the best pieces of music of the classes above enumerated. It contains fourteen Sacred and seventeen Secular pieces from Oratorios, Operas, etc., and is the cheapest book of the kind published. Price 60 cents. Mailed free.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
fe8

TRINITY COLLECTION OF CHURCH MUSIC.

Containing the Psalms and Hymn Tunes, Chants, etc., used in Trinity Church, New York, and its three Chapels. By Edward Hodges, of Sidney College, Cambridge, England, with valuable additions by the Editor, S. Pareman Tuckerman, Mus. Doc., Organist and Director of Music in St. Paul's Church, Boston. Cloth $2 75; Boards $2 50. Sent postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers,
277 Washington street, Boston.
CHARLES H. DITSON & CO.,
711 Broadway, New York.
fe8

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Sthnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

JAMES VICK,
IMPORTER AND GROWER OF
Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF
Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the

Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than One Hundred Fine Wood Engravings of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK,
Rochester, N. Y.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.

II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.

III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.

IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.

V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.

VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.

VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.

VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.

IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.

X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par value and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET,
AND OF
FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,
AND
Dealers in Government Securities,
AND
FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

A NEW STEEL ENGRAVING OF CHARLES DICKENS,
SUITABLE FOR FRAMING.

Given Gratis to all Subscribers
TO APPLETONS' NEW POPULAR EDITION
OF
Chas. Dickens' Works,
NOW PUBLISHING.

On receipt of $4 50 we will mail, postpaid, to any address, as fast as published, the entire set of our

New, Cheap, and Elegant Edition of Dickens,

In seventeen volumes, together with an elegant impression of a

STEEL PORTRAIT OF DICKENS,

One of the best yet executed of the distinguished author.

Seven volumes of this edition of Dickens are now ready—"Pickwick Papers," 35 cents; "Oliver Twist," 25 cents; "American Notes," 15 cents; "Great Expectations," 25 cents; "Nicholas Nickleby," 35 cents; "Christmas Stories," 25 cents; "Dombey & Son," 35 cents. A volume is issued every week. The volumes, so far as issued, together with the Portrait, carefully wrapped, will be mailed immediately on the receipt of the price, as above.

Agents wanted in all parts of the country to sell this edition of Dickens. Every family, and every apprentice, mechanic, journeyman, farmer, and clerk will certainly buy Dickens at this low price. Send to Publishers for special terms to Agents.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers.
443 and 445 Broadway, New York.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING
Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Sale-room, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 75 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail sub scribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.
Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.
For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.
The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.
The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.
Terms, cash in advance.
Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.
Address, THE TRIBUNE,
de18 3tD&3tW New York.

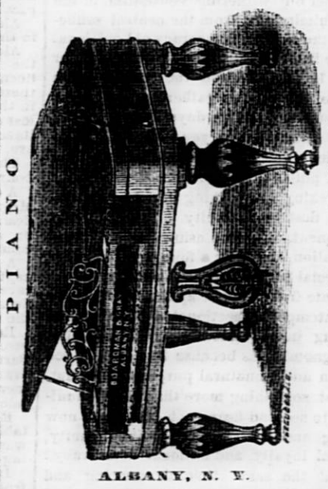
Jones, McDowell & Co., Little Rock, Ark. J. B. Shaw & Co., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,
GENERAL
Commission Merchants
AND
COTTON FACTORS,

No. 221 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.
Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM McCAMMON,
MANUFACTURER OF
BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.
All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address
WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.
e6

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS

Window Shades and Cornices,
AND
PAPER HANGINGS.

For Sale by
R. HEATH,
75 Camp street.

Grovesteen & Co.,
PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.
499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for Five Successive Years! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1 42y1

STAPLETON & CO.,
UNION HAT STORE,
95.....CANAL STREET.....97
NEW ORLEANS,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer
—IN—
Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,
—ALSO—
GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n23

NATIONAL
FREEDMEN'S SAVING
AND
TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. B. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAML. L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.
Principal office No. 57 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,
No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o'clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.
Deposits of One Dollar or more received.
Interest payable in January and July, in each year.
All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.
All the profits belong to the depositors.
Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.
Investments are made only in securities of the United States.
W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper, devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at

57.....St. Charles Street.....57
NEW ORLEANS.

The Republican is in all respects a first-class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS.

BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,

The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

AND THOSE OF THE

Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District.

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the Republican indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

Daily, one year.....$16 00 | Weekly, one year.....$5 00
Daily, six months.....8 00 | Weekly, six months.....2 50

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscriptions will be received for the Sunday Republican from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

MEDICAL.

JOHN C. BAKER & Co.'S
PURE COD LIVER OIL
The Great Remedy
FOR
Consumption, Scrofula & General Debility
COD LIVER OIL MUST BE PURE & FRESH
THE BEST BRAND
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. C. BAKER & Co. 718 Market St.
PHILA.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING
B. T. BABBIT'S
LABOR SAVING SOAP.
This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY
USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.
B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING
B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING
B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.
No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.
For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.
PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)
TROY BELL FOUNDRY
CHURCH BELLS
Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c., HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE.
FULLY WARRANTED.
For Circulars Address,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y.

BELLS.
BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT.
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.
Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.
All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. s7 1y

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK
AROMATIC
VEGETABLE SOAP.
Combined with Glycerine recommended for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N. Y. Sold by Druggists.
nov2m6

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 8. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1868. WHOLE NO. 108.

Poetry.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

THE SOUTHERN CHURCH.

AN ALLEGORY.

I had a dream—from off a stand-point high
I looked away o'er ocean, earth, and sky;
Beneath were cities proud, old forests grand,
Homes, farms, and villages o'er all the land.
And hoary crags, and rivers rushing free,
And broad savannas stretching to the sea.
There was the Southland, once so radiant fair,
All wrapt in ruin, sorrow, and despair.
From stately halls the wail of want and woe,
Came with the cry from squalid cabins low.
Some moaned lost wealth, and some their early dead,
While many, ah! were perishing for bread.
I looked for help—a Genius by my side
Pointed away, where on a restless tide
A mighty bark was struggling breakers near;
Her helm seemed shattered, sails were worn and sear.
What ship? I asked. Doth she no pilot keep?
No compass, chart—her crew are they asleep?
The Genius sighed: "The Southern Church you see,
Once o'er the waves she rode in majesty,
Diffusing light resplendent, pure, sublime,
A glorious beacon on the sea of time.
But when the storm came down she did not bow.
See yon dark mist that looms above her prow;
'Tis prejudice thus making all obscure,
Half clouding from her sight the cynosure.
Repinings deep corrode her pondrous wheel,
And roots of bitterness cling round her keel.
Oh! would she trim love's lamps, the gloom dispel,
And see the hand that doeth all things well."

[The above we received from a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church South—one who earnestly desires her prosperity, but who seems to think that prejudice lies in the way.]—Ed.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

SPRING BIRDS.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

Oh, the air is full of the music of wings
Of crimson and blue and brown,
Of little wings that cleft the air
When the snow and frost came down.
I hear them throbbing upon the air,
'Tis the pulse of returning spring,
The trees are unpacking their summer wear
From coffers so mystic and dim.

Oh, the music of little wings again,
Thrice welcome, bright wanderers, home,
Arbutus has woven her delicate trail,
And winter is dead and gone.
Then sing to me, sweet ones, sing loud, sing gay,
For the frost fiend is vanquished and gone,
But warble one dirge for the dead of the fray,
The brave leaves that fell in their brilliant array,
Their thin faces pressed to the ground.

Your hearts would have broke, little birds,
Had you witnessed them stagger and fall,
But they clung to their post till the last,
Till the flagstaff of winter was fast,
And his black flags were floating o'er all.

Oh, robin the red, on thy jacket
Was never so bright to me,
And blue birds, thy sapphire mantle
It gladdens my heart to see;
For I know you have brought all your songs along
To sing them over to me.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

Travels in Western Africa.

NUMBER TWO.

NEW ORLEANS, February 15, 1868.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

My last letter closed with the ship M. C. Stevens plowing the ocean on her way to the city of Monrovia. We came to anchor in Messurado roads, one and a half miles from shore, on the morning of the 18th December, 1859. The sea was smooth, the morning was calm and pleasant. There were nine vessels at anchor in the harbor, eight of which were foreign; the remaining one was the gunboat of the republic of Liberia. Two of the foreign vessels bore the star spangled banner at their masthead, and a throb of joy bounded in my bosom as I looked upon them and knew that I was not quite out of the civilized world. The Methodist Episcopal seminary, the tower of the Methodist Episcopal church, the store of Messrs. McGill & Bros., the government house, the residence of E. J. Roye, Esq., the lighthouse, the battery of Fort Norris, with its lone star and stripes kissing the breeze, were fully in view. Our anchor had scarcely found its bed when the cry was heard that "the harbor master's boat is coming." Said boat, which was a Whitehall built craft, bearing the ensign of the republic, and containing the revenue officer, in full uniform of blue, the agent of the American Colonization society, Dr. H. J. Roberts, and Rev. John Seys, United States commercial agent, was propelled by six stalwart naked aborigines, who plied their oars with skill, and kept up a perfect din of noise by their African boat song. The boat was soon alongside our vessel; the revenue officer and his associates came on board, and proceeded in a very businesslike manner to ascertain the condition of the vessel, passengers, emigrants, crew, etc. He was quite an intelligent and finely-formed young man, dark as ebony, spoke the English language quite fluently, and in an hour's chat gave us a deal of valuable information, together with the latest news from Europe. It was quite dinner hour when he and his companions left our ship. Soon after dinner, the captain, Rev. J. Thompson, Messrs. Jones, Kelly, Fitzgerald, McKnight, and myself, entered one of the ship's boats, and started for the city. When within a few yards of the beach we were met by a number of canoes and natives, who proceeded very unceremoniously to carry us from our boat to the shore, and very handsomely did they carry us through the surf to terra firma, where I met my dear brother Thomas, who had a few months previous arrived in the bark Rebecca, Captain Carter. Here I also met an old friend, John Bradbury Jordan, of this city, who had been in Africa some ten years, and was at that time controller of the treasury. After some introductions, I proceeded under the guidance of my brother and friend Jordan to see the city. We spent the day in strolling the streets, calling upon the president and his cabinet, Ex-President Roberts, Colonel B. P. Yates, and the legislature, which was then sitting in the government building. Here for the first time in my life I saw the black man administering government and performing all the functions properly appertaining to manhood.

I had also the pleasure of calling upon the Rev. Bishop Francis Burns, of the Methodist Episcopal church. I found him a man of clear judgment, liberal views, and great firmness. The city of Monrovia is situated on the Messurado river and Atlantic ocean, in six degrees nineteen minutes north, and longitude ten degrees forty-six minutes west. It is now the most important place in the African republic, being the seat of government and emporium of trade. The houses are built in the American style; a large proportion of them are of the most substantial kind — massive stone warehouses. Many of the private residences are of stone or brick, two stories high, the larger portion of both business and dwelling houses are frame of one and a-half stories. The streets are broad and straight. The following enumeration will give some idea of the business of the place: There are twelve stores, seven of which import directly from America and Europe; besides three grogshops, where the deadly upas is dealt out by the gill. There are here six attorneys, three physicians, eight clergymen attached to the following denominations, viz: two Methodist, two Baptist, two Presbyterian, and two Episcopalian. These have a church for each denomination, which in their appearance would do credit to some of the oldest towns in the United States. There are two hotels, two boarding houses, all of which are crowded with sojourners, either temporary or permanent in the business season of the year. The public institutions are the Methodist Episcopal Church, seminary, college, Masonic hall, Mechanics' Institute, president's mansion, courthouse, jail, government house, American colonization society receptacle, almshouse, lighthouse, and battery. There are three newspapers, viz: The Liberia Herald, African Republic, and True Whig.

There are also two volunteer military companies uniformed, two divisions of Daughters of Temperance, Dorcas society, Ladies' Benevolent Association, Union Sisters of Charity, and Mechanics' association, all of which are very popular. The population is now estimated at 5265, and the number of houses is about 460. Shoemakers, masons, tinners, and blacksmiths are abundant, but steady work in their departments is rather scarce, the greater portion of articles used in the mechanical branches being brought from abroad. The society of Monrovia will compare favorably with that of the most refined in some of the towns of the United States, and I believe that the integrity of the responsible commercial men of Monrovia will bear an honorable comparison with the same classes in similar circumstances in any other country.

The city of Monrovia is surrounded for several miles in extent with a forest of timber, fruit trees, bamboo, and mangrove. The corporate bounds extend two miles along the river, and one and a-half mile back. The city plot is laid out by the government upon a liberal scale. There are several squares reserved for public purposes, and a large reservation on the southern sea front for a public promenade.

The prices of lots in Monrovia depend upon their location. Best business stands command five hundred dollars each; lots more retired, for private dwellings, from sixty to one hundred dollars each. Some of the stores do a very large business, their transactions amounting to seven thousand dollars a year; others sell to the amount of three hundred, and even five hundred dollars.

Clerks and professional men only are not wanted. Of all these there seems to be no scarcity in any part of Western Africa.

Six vessels are owned here in whole, three of them foreign built, and some of them are heavily freighted at each departure with the exports of the city alone.

These exports would be much increased if the interior settlements were filled up, and railroad communication had with the back country. At present transportation from one town to another is performed by the aborigines, there being no mules or horses to execute the labor.

The market is well supplied with vegetables from the farming villages, at pretty high prices. The meats are tolerable, and vegetables excellent; the cultivated fruit is pretty abundant. The fish are snapper, mackerel, cat, cavalla, and bony. In this city reside the American consul general and minister, president, the Belgian and French consuls, the Haytien consul, and consul of Hamburg.

The greatest drawback to the prosperity of the republic of Liberia arises from the innumerable mangrove swamps on the seaboard, which causes a malaria to ascend over the settlements, producing what is called the African fever alias John Bull. Every person not born in Africa is subject to attacks of this peculiar disease, and I have known persons born in the republic that have been attacked with the fever and found an African grave. It varies in severity in different individuals; the blacks have it generally in a modified form, but light colored and white persons are confined to their beds from one to two months, and in most cases it proves fatal. This disease of which I have spoken is a wall of fire around tropical Africa, which the civilized man from Europe or America can never penetrate with safety; but the aborigines and black men pass through comparatively unharmed, as they suffer less from this disease than the white or light colored persons. Of this acclimating fever I shall speak more during my narrative. I found here people of all classes and grades from various states of America who had passed the acclimation, but never enjoyed the same health as they did in America. They were debilitated. While I believe that Africa should be redeemed, and its inhabitants who have so long been subjected to superstition and the degrading influence of liquor, given them by persons who sought gain through their destruction, brought to know what are the rights of manhood, yet I have come to the discouraging conclusion that ages must pass away and many a brilliant intellect be shrouded in African graves before the iron hand of the African fever has been raised and removed from that benighted land. The entire lack of capital and suitable machinery for draining and reclaiming the country, has and will deter many from making Africa their home. Those who go from America to Africa must not expect to find it a paradise, where labor, weakness, weariness, care, sickness, and death can never come. Those who seek it only from such glowing pictures will go there to sicken, pine away, and die.

The republic of Liberia has to encounter difficulties, to brave many a storm, and navigate through dangerous straits, over shoals and quicksands, with frowning, cragged rocks on every hand. After a residence of several years in Africa, and the facilities I had for acquiring a knowledge of the country, the marvel to me is that the African republic has prospered so rapidly under such discouraging elements. I sincerely hope that some Christian philanthropist may yet arise and make it a point to assist the republic by furnishing facilities enough for the reclaiming of the lowlands of Africa thereby making it habitable.

I have a great deal more to write, but time will not allow me to proceed farther. In my next I will give you an account of my visit to the settlements of New Georgia, Caldwell, Virginia, Clay, Ashland, Louisiana, and other places of interest. Respectfully,

FREDERICK K. HYDE.

[From Revival Sketches and Manual.]

Hinderances to Revivals.

Are there any, and if so, what are they? That there are no insuperable obstacles in the way we know, for revivals have often taken place where to human view they were least to be expected. And yet there are hinderances everywhere which nothing short of divine power can overcome. These are the world, the flesh, and the devil. I know of none but may be classed under one or the other of these three obstacles.

1. The world, by which I mean its inbred hostility to all spiritual religion, whether in individuals or communities; its direct hostility, its maxims, its allurements, its temptations in their wily and protean forms, stand directly in the way of a revival. There never would be one if the world thus understood could prevent it. In enlightened Christian communities unconverted men may profess to be the friends of true religion and to wish to see it prosper, but as in their hearts they are opposed to it they will, in one way or another, discourage that interest and concern in which a true revival consists. They want to have things continue as they are. "We are now at peace among ourselves," they say, "and why should it be broken in upon? Why not let well enough alone? Religion is a great thing," it may be added, "but all public excitements are dangerous. These revivals, as they are called, lead to enthusiasm and fanaticism. They often divide churches and families, and are rather to be dreaded than desired." Thus do the opposers of revivals reason in their hearts if they do not think it polite to speak it openly. All their influence is directly or indirectly against them. This in many places is a very great hinderance. And the world, ever wise to do evil, knows how to set the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life against the intrusion of revivals. It holds up so many dazzling fascinations, it keeps men so busy, so eager in the pursuit of pleasure, riches, and display, that they have no time for anything better. It spreads out all these allurements and hangs them up in their most tempting attractions along the broad way; and alas! with what success, drowning thoughtless multitudes "in destruction and perdition." How many revivals have been kept out by these hostile influences will not be known till the day of judgment, but they are certainty great hinderances. In fine, whatever the world can do to hedge up the way against revivals we may rest assured will be done in one way or another. But

2. The flesh is a still more insidious and dangerous foe to revivals. There is more danger within than without. The hinderances are greater from the church itself than from the world. It is reasonably expected that those who profess religion will do more to honor and promote it by their example, by their consistent lives, and by their active influence than any or than all others out of the pale of the church. Hinderances from this quarter are often many and exceedingly grievous. Sometimes there are bitter internal dissensions which would disgrace any mere worldly association. "Brother goeth to law with brother." The personal friends of the parties take sides with their respective favorites, and thus the breach is widened "as when one letteth out water."

The house is divided against itself. Criminations and recriminations are engendered and multiplied. The world looks on jeeringly and exclaims, "Behold how these Christians hate one another! If this is religion, we want none of it. If these are some of the fruits of revivals, the fewer the better."

Sometimes reproaches come from open and indulged immorality. Members of the church become intemperate, dishonest in their dealings, or fall into other habitual transgressions of the second table of the law, bringing great scandal upon their profession, and are not called to account by the church. They are allowed to retain their standing, and come to the Lord's table year after year. The world looks on and perhaps says, "Here you see some of the fruits of a great revival, as it was called years ago. These were some of the converts. See what they have come to, and see how the church winks at such scandalous violations of their covenant, when they are known and read of all men. We don't wish to see any more revivals."

Or if the church members become so confirmed to the world, to its feverish passions for money-getting and show, for doubtful if not positively sinful amusements, if they strive to outshine the gay and thoughtless in dress, in furniture, in parties, in equipage, if instead of "striving against sin" they fall in with the loose maxims of mere worldly men, it can not but be noticed by those who make no pretensions to piety, and thus prejudice many, not only against real religion, but against all revivals, since in many cases it is understood that the majority of the church members have been brought in during such seasons of religious interest. These are "works of the flesh," yielding to biases within and temptation without, which are among the greatest hinderances to revivals. Such churches are in no condition to receive the blessing. The wonder is, not that they are passed by for years and years, but that they are ever visited.

3. There are still other hinderances from a greater foe than either the world or the flesh, "the wiles of the devil," who is sure to guard the entrance to a revival by throwing every obstacle in the way that his vast capacity and malignity can invent. Against these the church can not too vigilantly work or too earnestly pray. His devices to keep out revivals and to oppose and corrupt them in their progress are inexhaustible. If he could prevent it there never would be another. Blessed assurance, that "for this purpose the Son of God was manifested, that He might destroy the works of the devil;" and He will do it. He is doing it by various instrumentalities in the heathen world, and by revivals there, as well as in Christian lands.

All these three—the world, the flesh, and the devil—are positive hinderances, and if God does not interpose either of them is sufficient to prevent a revival.

"Take up the stumbling blocks out of the way." Having pointed out some of the main hinderances and obstacles which lie in the way of revivals, I feel bound to show, if I can, what is to be done to remove the stumbling blocks—how the way of the Lord may be prepared that he may come into his vineyard and water it. Where great obstacles lie in the way of any thing they must be removed. This is the first step. It may or may not be all that is required in any given case, but it is the first thing to be done. The stone that blocks the wheels must be removed. Obstacles which by accident or design forbid the advance of the rail cars must be taken away. The track must be cleared; then they can proceed, but not before. So with all physical impediments; they must be removed, or in some way overcome. The same is true in morals and religion within their legitimate spheres. Whatever hinderances are found to lie in the path must be taken out of the way. These hinderances to revivals, as we have seen, are the world, the flesh, and the devil. We can not prepare the way by gaining "the friendship of the world," which "is enmity with God;" but by his help we can counteract its hostile influences upon ourselves and others. Neither individuals nor churches can secure themselves from those outward temptations which war against the soul, but by the grace of God they can resist them. They can let their own light so shine before men that there shall be no occasion to inquire, "What do ye more than others?" They can so withdraw from conformity to the world, and so carefully shun all appearance of evil as to shut the mouths of gainsayers and constrain them to admit that there must be a reality in religion, and that revivals which produce such fruits can not be of men, but must come from a higher power. A church that has let down its watch, and ceased to discipline its members when they fall away and bring reproach upon the cause of Christ can repent and purge out the old leaves and take away the reproach. A backsliding church can rise and shake herself from the dust, in spite of all the opiates the world has power to administer. She can betake herself in earnest to invite a revival, by taking up the stumbling blocks which impede the chariot of salvation. There is no preventing our adversary, the devil, from employing all his temptations and stratagems to keep out revivals. There is nothing that he hates and fears so much as the opening of the heavens to pour down righteousness upon a languishing church, and a dying congregation. With his consent, as I have said, there would never be another "awakening," great or small, to the end of the world. But we "are not ignorant of his devices," and he can be resisted. When the proper means are used to obtain the blessing, he can no more prevent a spiritual shower from descending upon the most parched inclosure of the vineyard than he can stay the bottles of heaven when the dust groweth into hardness, and clouds cleave fast together.

There are no hinderances to revivals from without or within but may be removed or overcome. It is not in wicked men or devils to fence out these visitations from on high, to throw stumbling blocks in the way that they can not enter. Every temptation, every opposing influence, whether open or secret, may be successfully resisted; "not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of hosts."

Jackson District.

VICKSBURG, February, 10, 1868.

DOCTOR NEWMAN:

The first quarterly meeting of the Vicksburg charge closed last night. Friday last was generally observed by the members as a day of fasting and prayer, and at night they assembled in general class meeting at the church.

Saturday morning at 9 o'clock there was preaching at the church and a good congregation. At night there was preaching again, the house was literally packed, and at the close of the exercises twenty-five persons, male and female, were seeking the Savior. Sunday we had prayer meeting at sunrise, preaching at 11 o'clock, also at 3 o'clock, when the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. A very large number communed. At night we had preaching and prayer meeting; twenty-eight penitents around the altar.

Our quarterly meeting certainly augurs well for our success the present year. We had crowded houses, and evidences of Divine Power in the rejoicings of Christians. Two persons professed religion, and over twenty-five are serious. The charge is truly in a prosperous condition. Sabbath school large and increasing. The people are full of energy, and propose to make extensive improvement on their church property within the next few months. Rev. Leo Baker, the preacher in charge, is certainly greatly blessed by the Lord in his labors.

We had the assistance of Rev. Mr. Jacobs, of Natchez, (a Baptist minister), and Rev. Mr. Logan, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, at our quarterly meeting.

There is very little suffering or distress among the colored people of Vicksburg. They are doing remarkably well these hard times. The schools are well attended, and the children are making great progress. Our next quarterly meeting will be that of the Yazoo city charge, 15th and 16th instant.

We got two cash subscribers for the ADVOCATE. Could have obtained many on credit.

JAMES LYNCH.
Jackson District.

Intelligence from our Mission Rooms.

FACTS AND FIGURES.—Several letters have come to hand, and direct personal applications are made for facts and figures to help on missionary occasions. We have prepared the following as a help:

What for War?—A French paper published the other day a statistical statement, which professes to give us the aggregate of the armies placed on foot by the European powers in time of peace. These collective forces reach, it appears, the appalling number of seven and a half millions of men under arms. Supposing each soldier to cost, on an average, one thousand francs a year, the whole expense is equal to very nearly twenty millions a day, or six hundred millions a month, or more than seven thousand millions a year ($1,312,500,000.) Our rents and taxes in America tell us, or make us feel, what we are doing.

What for the Prince of Peace?—The income of the missionary societies of England, America, Germany, France, etc., for 1866, was $4,425,000, or less than five mills to each of the 965,000,000 souls of the earth's population who are accounted (so far as Christ is concerned) heathen; they are either Jews, Mohammedans, or Pagans. Not to make the case darker for us than it is, let us add to the missionary money what is given to the Bible and tract cause, (not a moiety of which is sent to the heathen world); this was, in 1866, $2,404,380. If the whole of this too were given to the heathen world, we could not make it appear that the Protestant Christian world gives more than seven mills to each of those she believes to be sitting in darkness, "to open their eyes, to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God."

Now what for?—We will not say what, nor will we speak at all of others, but of Christian America, called to be the Lord's ministers. What are we doing? Read on. Taxes as follows: On cigars, $3,661,984 89; on smoking and chewing tobacco, $15,245,477 81; total on tobacco, $18,907,462 70. Again, on fermented liquors, $5,819,345 19; on distilled liquors, $29,641,409 34; total on liquors, $34,983,754 53; making a grand total of taxes paid on tobacco and liquors of $53,891,216 83. If the tax alone amounts to this enormous sum, what figures will show the cost of these articles to the consumers?

What for Amusements?—Let us see about two cities only: A semi-official statement, giving the receipts of the various places of amusements in New York and Brooklyn for the last year, shows a total exceeding $3,150,000.

What is Possible?—First, let us look at the resources of our great cities, and see what is done in one year. The report of Commissioner Wells of the aggreate amount of the business transacted in the commercial cities of the country by wholesale and retail dealers, and by auctioneers and merchandise brokers, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1867, as deduced from the return of taxes on "sales" and "licenses," was approximately as follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| New York | $1,976,565,000 |
| Philadelphia | 616,697,000 |
| Boston | 646,407,000 |
| Baltimore | 307,076,000 |
| New Orleans | 367,591,000 |
| St. Louis | 234,891,000 |
| Cincinnati | 180,753,000 |
| Chicago | 174,245,000 |
| San Francisco | 161,225,000 |
| Providence | 78,904,000 |
| Pittsburg | 76,240,000 |
| Louisville | 72,949,000 |
| Brooklyn | 61,480,000 |
| Milwaukee | 58,165,000 |
| Cleveland | 56,117,000 |
| Mobile | 54,291,000 |
| Buffalo | 51,783,000 |
| Detroit | 50,471,000 |
| Charleston | 36,574,000 |
| Newark | 34,396,000 |

Next.—Look at the resources of a few individuals. You have read the list of the taxes paid on the income of those who pay from ten to ten thousand and hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. You have seen a late list of houses in the city of New York which do a business annually of from three to thirty and forty million of dollars!

Once More.—What think you of the gifts of good people when under your own eye you see or read and feel that three million dollars and more have gone by fire in a single night in the city of Chicago alone?

What is Possible, do You Ask?—Ponder these facts and figures which we have put before you. Yes, you say, but these are too great, I can not compass them. Well, then, you are not a man who gives but one cent for the heathen world. You are a man of faith in God, and you can, if necessary, deny yourself in something for Jesus Christ, who died on the cross for those nine hundred and sixty-five millions of human souls.

Have You for His Sake and Theirs Denied Yourself of Anything?—Will you, if the cause demands it, you who are able to pay from one to ten thousand dollars per annum for house rent alone—will you give to an amount that will call for self-denial?

Is it Necessary?—Necessary to give to such an extent? Judge ye! You have read of the millions in darkness, and you know the Methodist Episcopal church is not sending one missionary to them this year, and you know also that the Missionary Society is in debt. Now what think you of the necessity of the case?

But You have Done Something.—Yes, there is probably one minister to every one thousand inhabitants of all Christian populations; they have, too, an open Bible, and an army of Sunday school teachers. Allow all this, and more. But among the heathen they have not one minister to each one hundred thousand souls! Consider that at such a rate at home, such cities and centres as Albany, Buffalo, Charleston, Cleveland, Detroit, Hartford, Jersey City, Lowell, Louisville, Milwaukee, New Haven, Pittsburg, Rochester, Savannah, Troy, Utica, and Washington, would be entirely destitute. What think you of this state of things?

We are not Quite Dead!—No. But what think you of a mission income of say not more than sixty-four cents from each of the members in full connection with the Methodist Episcopal church? This ought not to be considered satisfactory, should it? The minutes just published show that we have 971,866 members, and 174,215 probationers. Will any one deliberately say that we ought to think of a less income this year than one million dollars?

Increase of Collections.—Sounds from Washington, Philadelphia, and Boston and vicinity, indicate the rise in the tone of feeling for the cause of missions.

New Rochelle and the Huguenots.—We couple the place with these precious people because the town of New Rochelle, in Weschester county, New York, was originally settled by these persecuted ones. Great spoils have the Methodists won on this field; the worth of them is known in all the church. The one hundred per cent advance in their missionary collection which they made on last Sabbath gives us occasion for these pleasant memories.

Out on the Ocean, or Out on the Prairies.—There are now more than sixty members of the Bethel ship who have received certificates from the pastor during the current year. Such is the way this literally floating church is moving all the year and every year.

Mary Maunde is the name of a "lamb" in somebody's flock. It seems that she had been "saving up" all the year through that she might have something to give to the missionary cause to be used in India. Her wishes shall be gratified.

New Orleans Advocate.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞ Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ THE NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1868.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

It has been our intention for more than three weeks to hoist the name of Ulysses S. Grant for President of the United States, and to-day we do so with the utmost confidence in his election. We have waited to secure greater harmony and unanimity on the part of Republicans of Louisiana, and this having been accomplished, we now raise the banner, and on its ample folds inscribe

ULYSSES S. GRANT,

the next President of the United States.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

H. C. WARMOTH.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,

OSCAR J. DUNN.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,

GEORGE BOVEE.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,

SIMEON BELDEN.

FOR AUDITOR,

GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.

FOR TREASURER,

ANTOINE DUBUCLET.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,

T. W. CONWAY.

Rev. Dr. Newman will preach in his church to-morrow morning, at eleven o'clock, and in the evening at seven o'clock he will deliver a discourse on the character of Washington. Young men are specially invited.

Grand mass meeting of the Republicans at Mechanics' Institute this evening, at seven o'clock. Let there be a grand rally of the loyal men of this city, and prepare for the great work before you. Eminent speakers have been invited, and this will be the opening of the campaign in Louisiana.

REVIVAL. — Rev. Leo. Baker, preacher in charge of the Methodist Episcopal church at Vicksburg, Mississippi, writes that there is a revival in progress there. Several conversions have taken place. Twenty-five have joined the church. From Franklin, Louisiana, and from other portions of our work also, encouraging reports reach us of the spiritual state of the churches.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans ADVOCATE may be had for 1868 for THREE DOLLARS a year in ADVANCE, or ONE DOLLAR a quarter in ADVANCE.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the ADVOCATE they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the ADVOCATE for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

Washington's Birthday.

This is the 136th anniversary of Washington's birthday. Every American should recall the character of that great man with renewed admiration, and his life with profound gratitude. As the years increase between the living and the dead, the goodness of Washington is more apparent and his greatness more significant. Singularly pure in character, noble in nature, and unselfish in life, he stands forth in immense and sublime contrast with the man who, by an assassin's bullet, is now at the head of this nation. Few dreamt in the better days of the republic that such a man would be the successor of the illustrious Washington. We must, however, so far as possible, forget the president of to-day and recall the first president of the United States, and do honor to his great memory. And we rejoice that the day is to be commemorated by the ex-army and navy officers resident in New Orleans, who will hold a public meeting at Lyceum hall, at 11 A. M., and a banquet this evening. And we shall do honor to the dead, and aim to instruct the living by a suitable discourse in the Ames church to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The Tongue.

The sword and the sceptre, the pen and the tongue are the four most powerful instruments for good and evil known to man. The sword has been drawn in defense of individual rights, and to vindicate national honor; and it has also been unsheathed for bitter revenge, personal glory, and national conquest. The sceptre is older than the sword, and is the symbol of authority. It has been swayed alike by the wise and the foolish to protect the innocent, patronize the learned, support religion, screen the guilty, foster ignorance and sanction infidelity. The pen has a more enduring power than the sword and sceptre. It hands down the past; it embalms in more than mummy durability the discoveries of science, the inventions of art, the revelations of religion. But the tongue is older and more universally used, and more powerful than the sword, the sceptre, or the pen. The tongue is as old as Adam—and Eve too. It is an instrument on which man may play what tune he pleases. It has hymned the Creator's praise, and cursed His reverend name; it has eloquently plead the rights of suffering humanity, and as eloquently defended crime, oppression, and sin.

And what is the tongue? It is the instrument of taste, of deglutition, and of speech. Metaphysically it signifies language, and in this sense we use it to-day. No member of the human body has such power. The arm may inflict heavy blows, and the foot may crush its victim; but the evil tongue is like a two-edged sword, a consuming fire, and a deadly poison. None of our physical powers is so variously used, and this was St. James' opinion when he said: "Therewith bless we God the Father; and therewith curse we men; and out of the same mouth proceedeth blesssngs and cursings." It is related of Æsop, the Phygian, who was reckoned one of the wise men of Greece, and who was the slave of the philosopher Xanthus, that one day his master designing to treat some of his friends, he ordered Æsop to get the best things the market afforded. So he went and purchased tongues, and had them cooked with different sources; but his master was angry, and said: "Did I not tell you to get the best things the market could afford?" "And have I not obeyed your orders?" answered Æsop. "Is there anything better than tongues? bond of civil society, key of science, organ of truth and reason. By it cities are built; governments are established and administered; by it men instruct, persuade, and preside in assemblies, and by it we praise the gods." His master replied: "Go, then, and buy me the worst things the market affords, as some company will dine with me to-day." Æsop went, and again bought tongues, and to appease the anger of Xanthus and justify the purchase, he said to his master: "Tongues are the worst things in the world; instruments of all strife and contentions; formenters of lawsuits, source of divisions and wars, and organ of error, sin, calumny, and blasphemy."

The proper government of the tongue is evidence of a perfect Christian. "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man." God's praise of Job was: "In all this Job sinned not with his lips." David resolved: "I will take heed to my ways, that I sin not with my tongue." It was a saying of Solomon, that "the talk of the lips tendeth to penury," and also this: "Seest thou a man hasty in his words, there is more hope of a fool than of him," And the great Master said: "Let your communications be, yea, yea; nay, nay, for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil." It is man's (and woman's too) hardest task to learn to know when NOT to speak. In this babbling world silence is the exception. Some persons would die in four-and-twenty hours, if compelled to be silent that long. The weaker the ideas the swifter the tongue. Men who have nothing to say are always talking. Silence is sometimes more eloquent and powerful than speech. But Americans don't believe this, and hence they are the speech-makers of the world. They talk more sense and nonsense than any other people on the face of the globe.

Young Men's Association

The Young Men's Association (the meetings of which are held in our church,) held their first public meeting on last Monday evening. General Cyrus Bussy, president, occupied the chair; and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mr. Carr, the secretary, and were approved. Some changes were made in the standing committees, and it was resolved that cards of invitation be issued for the first public lecture in the church, which is to be delivered by Rev. Mr. Plumb on next Monday evening, in the Ames M. E. church, at 7½ o'clock.

The president then announced the subject for discussion, which was: "Are men the architects of their own fortunes?" In the absence of the gentleman to lead off on the affirmative, General Theodore F. Brown volunteered as his substitute, and although he preferred the negative, yet he argued very well against his own convictions. He referred to the potential power of the human will, and gave Columbus as an illustration of what a resolute man can do. He was followed by Mr. Henry, the appointee for the negative. He argued that with a will a man must have capacity to rise to greatness. His view of the subject was not sustained by the president, who declared the meaning of the question to be that a man is responsible for his own good or bad fortune. Dr. C. B. White took this view of the subject, and spoke well and to the point. Other speakers followed, and the debate passed off pleasantly.

Mr. Carr, the essayest of the occasion, then read the following interesting paper:

COMMERCE, WAR, AND CIVILIZATION.

All history is divided into two distinct classes, called sacred and profane. Within the fields of neither of these do we find anything to justify the conclusion that any portion of the white race was ever savage. On the contrary monumental history, the oldest and most reliable of all history as far as this inquiry is concerned, carries us back to a far-distant past, where tastes, skill, arts, and industry of those at the time, to which she may direct our attention, are bolder in design and execution, more sublime, more elaborate, and far more beautiful than any of the present day. It is true that the achievments then were not as various as now, but for that reason were they more sublime, more elaborate, and far more beautiful. Men then had time to think, to plan, and to execute. They were not perplexed then by the necessity to supply a thousand different wants, which fashion at this day characterizes as necessities. They did not give their whole time and attention to numerous and various studies and labors, but with that energy and perseverance which has ever characterized our forefathers of the past, they cling to the one lone object which they were pursuing until it was almost perfection itself; for to this day some of their inventions are unknown to us, and remain a mystery. In all the doings of the ancients they have displayed great concentration and continuous exertion of thought, taste, energy, and industry upon a few objects, and the effect of this is remarkably and beautifully apparent upon all their works of art. But to sacred history must we refer on this subject of aboriginal civilization, for she is more explicit and distinct than profane. Is there any doubt that Adam and his descendants were not civilized? and does not the Bible plainly inform us that those who existed before the flood were in a great degree versed in the arts and sciences?

Noah and his descendants were civilized, and Abraham and his family, who were wanderers in the interior of Arabia were no doubt far less informed than those generally around him. Near him we find the rich Phoenicians whose commerce extended to all parts of the then known world, and not far distant the rich cities of Jerusalem, Sodom, and Gomorrah, all these had intercourse with the nations far and near, and diffused their light and knowledge and useful information to those who by trade they come in contact with.

Now we will find that those living in the cities upon the seacoast, and in those who were on the route to far-distant India, that they were in advance in point of civilization to those with whom they traded from the interior, and as they bought the rich goods and wares of one nation and sold to that of another, thereby enriching themselves, they built ships and engaged largely in commerce with those who were far, and gathering from all with whom they came in contact, in this way their knowledge of their arts they gradually got surely robbed of the less civilized of the products of their skill and ingenuity, and thereby depressed their civilization.

It is a subject that admits of no dispute that a certain amount of civilzation is kindred to the human race from Adam down. Some have had the opportunity and improved it more than others, but all have some useful arts, some traits by which this amount of civilization can be traced, and thereby rates them above the brute creation in an equal proportion as those who by their intercourse with the various grades and nations and have benefitted thereby are above the most savage and ignorant.

It is a noticeable fact that savages become more ignorant as they have intercourse with the civilized, but this is easily explained and accounted for. What the savage has is clumsy, ungainly, and badly made, and badly supply the wants for which he intends it; his process of manufacture is tedious, slow, and laborious, while those of the more civilized are more adapted to his wants, neater in their construction, and to him seems cheaper by bartering the products of the chase or the collecting of whatever his country may produce. Then, as he ceases to supply himself with whatever his necessities may require, but relies solely on his more civilized neighbors, he must necessarily recede, and increased mortality, crime, and depressed civilization must be the results of this intercourse between those who are skilled in the arts and those who are unskilled and uninformed.

In this Southern section of our country civilization has been chiefly confined to the upper classes or the most wealthy, for the poor here do not possess that high degree of intellect for which those of the North and West are noted. We here prefer to till the soil, and with its products to buy the rich wares of our Northern merchants, to say nothing of what is yearly sent from across the ocean for our wants. We have found this to be most immediately profitable, and by doing so we have greatly contributed not only to their wealth and skill but to their advancement in civilization, whilst in the same proportion we are receding.

Viewing from the standpoint, then, that as the number of the useful and ornamental arts practiced by any people, and the skill and success with which they practice them, is the measure of their civilization, we will by no means stand and compare with other nations nor the Northern and Western states.

War is a civilizer. Yet, war, that of which we have seen so much, felt so much, and from the effects of which we are now suffering, is one of the most powerful elements of civilization. History tells us of numerous instances where the sword was the means of diffusing knowledge and light to the uncivilized and untutored. Alexander the Great in all of his conquests diffused Greek literature, arts, and sciences; and in centuries afterward, when those countries passed into the hands of the Romans, the light which he had diffused among them had spread almost throughout their length, and at the time of their conquest subsequently by the Greeks, they were in point of civilization equal to any of the countries of Europe. We find cities which owe their existence to the invaders rivaling Athens in literature and the arts, and only succumbing to those of other nations as by them they were conquered, for with them came their laws, sciences, arts, and customs. Then, in conclusion, we must admit that war, which we so much dread and abhor, is one of the most potent elements for the diffusion of civilization, and for whatever purpose it may be waged, and against whatever people or nation, and into whatever country or clime, its effects are more perceptible it influences far better, than that of all the other means which have been taken for the diffusion of knowledge and light to the uncivilized nations of the world.

Come Out of Your Hole.

How can we unearth the tens of thousands of white Union men in New Orleans? If we can credit their word of honor we must believe them when they declare their sentiments of loyalty to the national government, and their sympathy with the Republican cause. But their anatomy is defective; they lack the backbone of a strong will and of a defiant courage to stand up to what they think is right. As a rule they eschew politics, not from love or principle, but from interest. Wedded to a dollar they have conscientious scruples of doing anything that will put asunder what they have joined together. And as it is so much easier to float with the tide than row against it, they are keeping "shady" until the Republicans gain the day when they will lustily join the shout "we killed the bear." And when that good time comes we shall have all the friends we need, and some we don't need. But it may be that these "hidden Union men" may not be so warmly received by the victorious Republicans as they now imagine. To the WORKERS belong the spoils, and the workers will be remembered in the day of rewards.

There has not been a time in the history of the last four years when these hesitating Union men could render themselves and their country's cause more efficient service by a decided stand for the right, than at the present hour. Their coming out manly and squarely would strengthen the hands of those patriots who have borne the burden in the heat of the day, and would add fresh vigor to the cause of justice and mercy. They are sufficiently strong in numbers and influence to bid defiance to the business ostracism which the disloyal have always held over their heads, in terrorem. They have the capital, the skill, the genius, to control the commerce of this city, and build for themselves and for our community a glorious future. Conscious of these facts some have taken a decided stand, and are to-day giving shape to the new political power which is rapidly coming into existence. We, therefore, entreat every lover of his country, every citizen of enlightened convictions, every man with aspirations for success and prosperity, to come out on the "Lord's side."

Colonel Yerger.

In another column we give an excellent editorial from the New Orleans REPUBLICAN on Colonel Yerger's blood and thunder speech delivered one week ago in the St. Charles street theatre, before Mr. Johnson's friends. The bloody tone of that speech has alarmed the Times, and that journal has been saying all manner of queer things about Colonel Yerger, and peace, etc. Now we think the difference between Colonel Yerker and the Times is the difference between an honest, outspoken gentleman, and a time-serving journal, which is the weather-cock of public opinion, and which alternately presents you its head or tail, according to circumstances. We defend Colonel Yerger, not because we like his sentiments, but because he is an honest speaker, and because his friends are turning against him. We think with the Times that we have had enough of that "sort of talk," but the Times thinks so because painful experience has taught it a wholesome dread of the "congressional screw." Poor thing, it don't want to bleed again. Nor do we. We go in for peace, but peace with equal rights.

Sunday Political Meetings.

As a Christian and a patriot we must condemn the holding of political meetings on Sunday. The cause may be good, but it is other than religious. God's command remains unrevoked; "Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy." It is far better for our friends to attend church on that day, where they can be instructed in those greatly and sound moral doctrines which underlie all political prosperity, and which impart strength to those who advocate their country's cause. We can carry Louisiana in the coming election handsomely and triumphantly without infringing on God's holy day. The gentlemen who are at the head of our ticket should remember that nineteen-twentieths of the loyal voters of Louisiana are Sabbath christians, and look with pious jealousy upon the sacredness of that day. They have no sympathy with those who regard Sunday as a day of worldly recreation, and it is not likely that they will look with favor upon those who so treat it. Regard should be paid to the wishes of the majority.

Alabama.

Let Alabama be a warning to the Republicans of the South. In each of the states to be reconstructed similar efforts will be made to defeat the adoption of the constitution. This is the deliberate policy of the Johnson men of the South. They leagued and banded to oppose a state constitutional convention, but failing in this they now propose to throw their whole and combined strength against the new constitutions which may be offered for the suffrages of the people. And how do they design to accomplish their nefarious purpose? They themselves will either refuse to vote, or if they do they will vote against the new constitution. They will attempt to intimidate others by threats and blows from voting. They will threaten to discharge their laborers, whether whites or blacks, and will break friendship with all who vote against them. They will attempt to deceive the freedmen as to the time, place, and manner of election. They will buy up all certificates of registration they can find, and when the freedmen will not sell their birthright they will seek to remove the freedmen to a parish where they have not been registered, and where they cannot therefore vote. And if necessary to attain their ends they will resort to violence, and in the language of Colonel Yerger, "I am ready to wade again in human blood."

As the above were the tactics of the Johnson men in Alabama, so they will be in Louisiana, and therefore our friends should everywhere be on the alert. Each man should go and vote for the adoption of the constitution, no matter what temporary cost it may subject him to. You may do a life-work on that day, and consummate in an hour the long progressive work of half a century. On the issues of that day will hang the glory or shame of Louisiana.

That the Alabama constitution was fairly adopted we do not doubt, nor have we a doubt that Congress will admit the representatives from that state. We hold that Congress owes it to the nation not to allow the beneficent ends of national legislation to be defeated by the most nefarious tricks practiced by the known enemies of our country. So far as they could, the loyal men of that state voted according to the congressional plan of reconstruction, and therefore should be entitled to all the immunities flowing from that plan. And if Congress acts wisely and promptly in the case of Alabama, the Johnson men of the South may be persuaded that further opposition is useless, while the loyal men of the Southern states will be inspired with new zeal for their cause and with fresh hopes of speedy triumph

Opelousas District.

PRAIRIE RIDE—FARMS FOR SALE—HOSPITALITY—NEW IBERIA.

FEBRUARY, 1868.

Away again over the prairies, with loaded saddlebags; clear sky for a wonder, but miry roads. At noon was hospitably cared for by an old freedman's bureau friend, living near Jeannettes, whose learning and teaching abilities will yet do service to the cause of education in the South. Here was a fine little plantation for sale very low, like many other rich sugar farms on Bayou Teche. Toward night reached New Iberia, and by the courtesy of Captain White, a faithful bureau agent, enjoyed the hospitality of a warm-hearted family. This town is rapidly recovering from the ravages of yellow fever; nearly every house had been a house of mourning. Business is going on about as usual, and God is neglected as before by many who fled in terror from His scourge.

ST. MARTINSVILLE—MAYOR BAKER—REBELLION—UNITED STATES LAWS UNCONSTITUTIONAL—GENERAL HANCOCK.

On Saturday, the eighth instant, I arrived at St. Martinsville, and called upon the worthy mayor appointed by the United States government, but refused recognition by the other city authorities because, forsooth, they believe military law and congressional reconstruction unconstitutional. These are the men who refused to issue marriage licenses to our colored circuit preacher because, in their opinion, the civil rights bill was unconstitutional. Yet they believe rebellion and treason right, and one of them—an editor, too—declares he has "consecrated" the balance of his life to the destruction of the negro race. Let it be known that a large delegation of this class went recently to meet and fawn upon General Hancock. God grant that for the honor of our flag, and of humanity, the general may yet disappoint them.

NEGRO REVOLTS—A SCARED EDITOR—DEMOCRATIC CAPITAL — EARNEST CHRISTIANITY.

The grand jury is now in session at St. Martinsville, and examining into the grand "negro revolt" of several months ago. It had less foundation than the great insurrection in St. Mary parish last summer, gotten up by an editor and a lawyer, on the small capital of one colored man with a shotgun riding into Franklin on an old pony, at which fearful sight the white citizens were put under arms, and in three divisions, with confederate army officers, kept the city in safety. In St. Martin the panic arose from an address by a colored preacher to his church; in substance, that they were getting cold in religion and he should rally his army of earnest Christian soldiers, and march down the bayou to their help. This aroused the parish; colored men were forbid to leave their houses; no one was allowed to receive them within their doors; armed patrols were set, and a deputation waited upon the provost marshal to beg his assistance. Such terror is pitiable. Shakspeare says "conscience makes cowards of us all." The country should know that of such stuff is made up for Democratic capital "negro insurrections" and insubordination of the freedmen. Yet none, even these rebel politicians, can deny the value of our mission work to the colored people, and to every interest in the South. We have kind words from men of worth and position, and expect to work our way through every opposition by the force of "earnest Christianity," and confound our enemies by the logic of success,

QUARTERLY MEETING—RUM MAKING AND DRAM-DRINKING—PREACHERS SUPPORT.

The first quarterly conference was held on Saturday at three o'clock in the little shanty now occupied for church and day school. The attendance was good, eleven out of fifteen members being present. One was suspended for violating the rule on dram-drinking; he is penitent, and will yet prove a faithful church officer. Another was dropped for neglect of duty, and one withdrawn. The case of Tilman was reported and he was expelled. The committee found him making and selling rum. One-half of his cabin was occupied as a distillery, where two barrels of rum a day was made. He was also charged with neglecting church duties and breach of marriage promise. An estimating committee was appointed and arrangements made to support the preachers, Brothers Pinckney, of St. Martinsville; Milton, of Couteaux; White and Baptist, of Lafayette. Brother Ryan reported balance on lot paid, but nothing for his house rent or traveling expenses. Nothing raised toward building the church. Our people are poor and need outside help. This board of officers improves in discipline; the brethren are becoming acquainted with the rules and learning fast how to do church business. At night a social meeting was held and preparation made for the holy Sabbath.

SABBATH SERVICES — KNEE WORK — BROTHER BRYAN—A HAPPY DAY.

The Sunday school was interesting. Catechism, singing, and giving rewards occupied the hour. Brother Bryan takes much pains to feed the lambs of his flock. The love feast was edifying and comforting. One sister long ago heard a voice say to her in the cane-field, "Better pray, better pray." It followed her until the burden of sin became intolerable. She struggled long in vain, once saying, "I'll pray only this one week 'less I hear from 'massa Jesus." Soon the blessing came, and she has never been sorry she heeded that voice. An old servant of God told of his victories in prayer, and said, "I have great confidence yet in these old knees." Another talked about "the important man who for thirty-eight years sat at the pool waiting for the water to be troubled. It was not in vain, for at length Jesus passed by and healed him." The congregation at 11 o'clock preaching was large and attentive. In the afternoon Brother Bryan preached an instructive and fervent sermon. The Lord's supper was administered with many inconveniences, but with order and great comfort to the church, after which several members were received, and the services closed. It was a happy day, and will be of lasting benefit to the people. Though the day was stormy and traveling bad many came from a long distance, and they were richly rewarded.

DAY SCHOOL—CRY FOR HELP—STORMY RIDE.

On Monday morning Brother Bryan opened the day school, which had been suspended for want of a teacher, and poverty of the people. He has resolved to comply with the order of annual conference, and teach a portion of every day himself, even with little or no pay, so that the children are taught. About twenty came through the rain and mud to the cold open cabin. The preacher's little son is quite a help to his father in this good work. Our good friend the agent, Mr. White, and Major Chase at headquarters will probably do something in aid of the school. In no other place is help so much needed to build for school and church purposes. Alas! our pitiful appeals to the church and other friends of religion and education have so far been fruitless, and our interests are consequently suffering. The storm on Monday and Tuesday was terrible, and the cold severe; horse and rider, wet and weary, rejoiced to find home comforts at their journey's end. ITINERANT.

DEMOCRATIC AMIABILITY.

"They are not Egyptians, nor Abyssinians, they are Africans, and rather than submit to let them rule over us, they who only a short time ago were our property, I am ready to wade again in human blood."—Speech of Colonel E. M. Yerger at St. Charles Theatre, February 15, 1868.

We had hoped that such folly and wickedness as are above expressed were buried in the graves of Union and confederate soldiers; but it seems that in this month of February, 1868, at a public meeting of several thousand of the citizens of Louisiana, a distinguished orator of the Democratic party speaking to and apparently for that party, ventures to announce that rather than submit to the laws of his country he is "ready to wade again in human blood." Within hearing of the tread, and in sight of the banners of the soldiers of the United States, he dares to defy its power, and threatens to inaugurate a new rebellion.

Of Colonel Yerger's address the New Orleans Picayune says:

"Without indulging in any lengthened description of this gentleman's speech, we may say that it abounded in patriotic allusions and generous commendation of the purposes and principles of the Democratic party."

The New Orleans Crescent says:

"Colonel Yerger most eloquently represented the gallantry and patriotism of our sister state Mississippi, and spoke with a fervor and fire that made a great impression upon the assembly."

The New Orleans Bee says:

"Colonel Yerger is an eloquent and impressive speaker, knowing well how to touch the popular heart."

The New Orleans Times, speaking of the St. Charles theatre meeting, says:

"The great success of this meeting will give energy and encouragement to the organization of the Democratic party in this city and state, and we hope it will be followed up by similar meetings in the country parishes and throughout the South."

We have to say that this kind of talk and this spirit has deluged our land "in human blood;" that this kind of talk and this spirit did stain the streets of New Orleans with "human blood" during the July massacre; and that it is well for the government of the United States, and for Major General Hancock to bear these facts in mind.

The Republican party of Louisiana desires no war, no contention, no bitterness of feeling; but under the law, and to the full extent of the law, it will endeavor to carry out reconstruction—and if civil war shall come woe unto those on whose heads rests the responsibility.

For real and fancied reasons, to which it is not necessary to more particularly refer, the words and the spirit of the Hon. Colonel E. M. Yerger are being rapidly developed in New Orleans and throughout Louisiana. Even now the threat and the boast are openly made all over the state that Louisiana must not and shall not be reconstructed according to the congressional plan, even if it is necessary "to wade again in human blood." We are no alarmists—the loyal men of the South are not too easily excited—but it is full time that congress appreciated this condition of affairs, and that General Hancock understood that to keep his laurels green he must keep his powder dry.—N. O. Republican.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

IN MEMORIAM.

Madame Louise De Mortie, died October 10, '67, in New Orleans, of yellow fever. She had charge of the orphan asylum in that place, which was founded during the late war through her efforts.

You have laid her down to slumber 'neath the cypress and the pine,
One who sought the South, a stranger with a wealth of love divine.
She had fought the battle bravely and had gathered to her fold
Tender lambs by earth forsaken; Jesus mentioned them of old.
Now she's lying cold and pulseless, never more to hope or wait;
Ransomed spirits greet her coming, white robed angels ope the gate.

To those men whose deeds of prowess won them an undying name,
Gladly have we rendered justice, wove for them a wreath of fame;
Trumpets brayed and clarions sounded when victorious they appeared;
Who shall sing this woman's praies to many hearts endeared?
Orphan children called her blessed as she took them by the hand,
And dispelled the mists of darkness that had shrouded that young band.

All she had she gave for freedom, offered genius at its shrine;
War's alarms and midnight vigils, stamped upon her brow their sign;
Still she toiled on, all undaunted, and the Southern scourge defied;
But the poisoned barb had struck her, and our noble Mortie died.
All our gentle Northern sisters is there yet another hand
To complete the work unfinished—reunite the broken band.

Coward taunts no more can harm her, fever's heat no more she feels,
All the heart wounds here inflicted, graciously our Father heals.
Is she not a bright example, chose she not the better part,
When she trod the path of duty with an ever hopeful heart?
When our steps shall take us southward, let us o'er her ashes bend,
'Neath the cypress and the pine tree, lies the sable orphan's friend.

NEW YORK CITY. C. P. B.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

Office—No. 1018 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.
REV. A. J. KYNETT, D.D., Correspond'g Sec'y. | THOS. T. MASON, ESQ., Treasurer.

The following, written by one of the "immortal eighteen" who at the close of the war availed themselves of the first opportunity to come back to the "old church" in the Kentucky conference, and are now in full armor, fighting for God and our country in that bitterly contested field, is earnestly commended to every friend of the one cause throughout the whole church and country. We lay these examples of facts and appeals before our readers in the earnest hope that they may awaken the interest and practical effort necessary to this important cause:

There are many of our friends in the North who if they realized the nature of our work in this state would come up nobly to our help, but are now comparatively indifferent to our struggle on this battle ground of moral principles. The statements we will make are intended to remove prejudices, and give a more thorough and hopeful view of the interests of the Methodist Episcopal church in this part of the South.

And, First—There is not a more noble class of Christian men and women to be found anywhere than those who are identified with our church in this state. They deserve help. Many of them lived in the church South under protest for years before the late rebellion. Most of them had, however, considered it their duty to contribute to its support while in it, and had consequently invested liberally in building churches and parsonages, and endowing schools. Most of them were members of societies, who had in possession good church buildings which would have served their children after them; but for conscience sake they came out, and united with the old church, which is a synonym in the minds of many for all that is hateful and wrong; subjecting themselves and families to reproach and bitter social and commercial proscription, knowing also that the ministers whom they love are also proscribed in the pulpit, and in every other possible form. Many of these brethren worship in schoolhouses, courthouses, and in other places no more desirable than these; while their opponents worship in elegant and attractive church edifices. Nor did they take the step impulsively. It was the work of solemn conviction brought about by a long course of reflection, observation, and prayer; yet they are now giving more to support the ministry and provide churches than they ever did before.

Second—Our church is really doing a great work in Kentucky. Two years ago last September it numbered not quite 3000 members—now it will reach 16,000. Revivals are now being enjoyed in many places in the conference. Our progress is truly marvelous to ourselves, knowing the obstacles in our way. Church property has been bought and built to the value of about $200,000 in the two and a half years past. The Extension society has given us perhaps $20,000 of this amount. Our people have given nine dollars for each one given by the society, and much more would have been done could the society have given timely aid in other places, and there are many places where if aid can be given this year good churches and promising societies will come right up. Some of these places are of great importance to the church.

At Danville, Kentucky, a beautiful and flourishing town, we have a good society, but no house of our own. Our brethren are ready to do nobly, but can not possibly build a good house without aid from the society. If we had a good church there it would be a power in the state for Christ and our church.

At Carrollton, a beautiful town at the mouth of the Kentucky river, we have a society, but no place where our people have the assurance that they can meet to worship for any specified length of time. The presiding elder of the Shelbyville district of the Methodist Episcopal church South is trying to take advantage of this discouragement to our brethren by publicly inviting them to return to what he farcically calls "the Old Church," assuring them that many others are doing the same thing.

At Louisville we have a good congregation, made up mostly from the laboring classes. This society worships in a church which they call their own, but burdened with a debt which they can not possibly pay. This house must be sold unless help can be given them.

At Shelbyville, the most noted town in the state for educational institutions for its size and population, we have an excellent society. Its great educational advantages make it a place of great importance. Shelby college, in the hands of the Episcopal church, is located there. The Baptists have a female seminary. The Presbyterians a female college. The Baptists and Southern Methodists have each a male high school. It is also the location of Science Hill female academy—the oldest Protestant female school in the West, having been under the same principal since its institution, Mrs. Julia A. Tevis.

The society there has purchased an eligible lot for a church, with a good dwelling on it for a parsonage. Here a church must be built or we lose immensely, but our society are positively unable to do it. The room now occupied must be given up in the ensuing spring, and the congregation and flourishing Sunday school have no place to go. Such a crisis calls loudly upon the friends of loyal Methodism in the South. Then there are a great many other points of less note where a few hundred dollars would be a very great benefit. At Hillsborough a house has been built, with a promise of help from the Extension society, but we have just learned that the brethren there feel that unless help comes soon they must sell the house and yield the ground. This would be a sad affair to our friends and cause in that place. If we could have this year $30,000 from the Extension society, we could do without another dollar in the future and put it all back into the treasury in ten years, besides giving some assistance to weak churches at home. Our membership would swell rapidly, as many are ready to unite with us as soon as they see a prospect of church accommodations. Nor must our friends forget, that a large portion of our work is among the freedmen in Kentucky. We have two presiding elders' districts, manned with one exception, by colored ministers, and many of them who have not joined, are just waiting for help to build houses of worship. We hope the church generally will see and feel the importance of the situation and act without delay. This year is our crisis. Now is the important time. Delay is inevitable loss. Strike quickly, and we gain for all time to come.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

Rejoice Evermore.

BY M. ANNESLEY.

Every state of grace has its own specific requirements for God who knoweth all our infirmities never taxes us, or expects duty beyond our strength. Repentance and faith are the first works, and their fruit are apparent.

The deciples after they had gone in and out with Jesus three years were bidden in their last interview before his suffering to "ask and receive that their joy might be full." He once before commanded them to rejoice in that their names were written in heaven, and not to be filled with joy because of the miracles he sent them out to perform. Joy springs from an unwavering trust in God—a holy confiding friendship with Jesus—a state of rest in the soul that is quietly settled beyond fear and doubt—it is the triumph of faith in difficulty and trial. It is the fruit of holiness thus to rejoice evermore, to rejoice always, and in everything give thanks. There are transient joys overflowing blessings at times, and to these may succeed a season of long depression and doubts. In no state but that of an abiding union with Christ are we enabled to keep many of these commands and precepts given us in the epistles, etc. In reading the Bible, and giving instruction in its sacred thoughts, we should clearly define the fruit that is expected from each state of grace, that we may not hold up our master as an unreasonable head of his people. It is quite unnatural to expect a servant to fulfill the affectionate duties of a child. The servant may be sincere and upright in all that pertains to his situation, but he can not enter into the confiding trust of a child who dwells in the bosom of the parent, where an intimate, close, unbroken relationship subsists.

Now we can not expect any one to rejoice evermore, and always stand complete in the will of God, who is subject to the changes of the hearts partially sanctified where many evils remain, and cause it still to be subject to depressions, doubts, and fears, and an occasional yielding to temptation in conflict and trial.

The soul cleansed by the blood of Jesus, is unshaken in its trust, whatever be its suffering—it will justify God—will trust though he slay—will have, even when the tears dim the eye a secret well-spring of life within, which says, "thy will be done"—cheerfully, yea willingly.

And this triumphant submission will not change anything in the divine plan of dealing with the patient soul.

God takes no advantage of us in our helpless quietness before him, but notes for our good our loving confidence in his wisdom. Joy, the abiding quest of the soul, springs from perfect love, and is the fruit of holiness, the precious consciousness of being right before God.

It is not required of us to be in a state of extatic joy continually, but to possess a calm and holy triumph in the will of God, which does not save us from feeling in the time of trouble, or deep sympathy with trial and conflict in others; for the faith which rejoices evermore, looks through the trials, for the coming blessings.

We can under the new dispensation, do, what the Jews of old were commanded, "Serve the Lord with gladness."

It would be well for the pastors of churches to read all inquiries for friends from the pulpit, in their public congregations.

Information Wanted.

Robert and Lucy Noel seek information about their relatives, who lived in Liberty, Virginia, and were owned by William Lowry, twenty-nine years ago.

Their mother's name was Winny, their father's name Killis. Brothers—Booker, William, Henry, and Anderson. Sisters names—Julia Ann, Amanda, Osles, Obey, and Livingston. Roberts wife's mother, Rosetta, lived in Lynchburg. Her sisters were named Nancy, Mary, and Jane.

Address ROBERT NOEL,
Donaldsonville, La.

Thomas and Hannah Lee, of Shepherdstown, West Virginia, desire information concerning their children, who were sold from them before and during the war. The children's names are Mary Eveline Lee, George Harrison Lee, and John Henry Lee. They received a letter from the daughter, from Louisiana, but it was lost before being answered. Hence they know not her address.

Any information concerning them may be addressed to

REV. JOHN M. GREEN,
Shepherdstown, West Virginia.

CAMDEN, Wilcox county, Ala., Feb. 10.

DR. J. P. NEWMAN:

Dear Sir and Brother—Inclosed please find three dollars to pay subscription to ADVOCATE for 1868. The ADVOCATE has become a necessity in my family. May God in his goodness long spare you to labor in his vineyard. Cannot Alabama be included in your conference? Here is a large field ripe for the harvest, and laborers few and very indifferent. I never saw in my life so great and earnest a desire for the truth as it is in Christ as is exhibited by our colored brethren here, and comparatively nothing is being done by the churches here for their welfare, save to statedly collect from them every dime they can to pay ministers who do not preach for them. Come to the help of these people. We feel sure we have adopted our new constitution and shall soon enter upon an era of "equal rights to all men," and with good religious privileges are sanguine that the church of Christ would be built up and God's name glorified and we become a prosperous and happy people.

Fraternally, yours,
JAMES H. BURDICK.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

List of Letters Remaining at Wesley Chapel, February 20, 1868.

GENTLEMEN'S LIST.

| | |
|---|---|
| James Ford, | Frederick Gladden, |
| Richard Wood, | Humphrey H. Hill, |
| Charles Ross, | Edward McDonald, |
| Alfred Scarver, | Albert Mundy, |
| Archie McDowell, | Alfred Dorcey, |
| Jos. Rhodes and Jas. Drinkwater, | John Barker and John T. Randle, |
| George Birch, | Nicholas Walker, |
| Eli Buckner, | William Jackson, |
| Smith Walker, | Stephen L. Leerry, |
| Thomas Huston, | Thomas Preston, |
| Isaac Harris, | Charles Kelly. |

LADIES' LIST.

| | |
|---|---|
| Cora G. Neal, | Cornelia Peters, |
| Celia Smith, | Emeline Johnson, |
| Elizabeth Reggins, | Eliza Ross, |
| Martha Phillips, | Matilda Henderson, |
| Martha Jackson, | Margaret Fortinate, |
| Millie Moton, | Rosa Guss, |
| Amey King, | Beckey Jones, |
| Miss Amelia Johnson, | Annie Wright, |
| Amelia Ann Flowers, | Annie Brooks, |
| Miss Frances Jane Yancy, | Cordellia Jenkins, |
| | Nancy Verott, |
| Nancy Coleman, | Mahaly Jackson, |
| Mary H. Day, | Maria Earl, |
| Mary Washington, | Mary Jackson, |
| Harriet Brown, | Hannah Myer, |
| Henrietta Hunt, | Harriet Parker, |
| Henrietta Graham, | Henrietta Brown, |
| Elizabeth Carel, | Fannie Dennis, |
| Susan Brooks, | Miss Joanna Smith, |
| Sarah Richardson. | |

The Flash of Lightning.

A lady, for some reason of carelessness or over-weariness, retired at night leaving her room in great disorder. After sleeping a while she awoke in a violent storm of rain and thunder. She opened her eyes, but in the deep darkness no object could be discerned. Presently a flash of lightning, vivid and terrible, illuminated the whole apartment, and revealed with fearful distinctness all the confusion with which she was surrounded. The lady was greatly startled by the suddenness of the vision, and deeply impressed with the minuteness of the view. The clearness of noonday could not have exceled that midnight flash.

"It was," said she "like one of those occasional moments of moral illumination, when, in the searching light of God's truth, the soul sees its own disorder and distraction. My room, in the retirement and solitude of night, excited a sad sense of discomfort and shame. That other sight is hideous; for there comes with it an instant comparison with the order Christ enjoins on the habitation where he is an invited guest, with the beauty he furnishes for the soul's adorning, and the peace he offers to the chamber of rest."

The lady could not sleep again; she covered her eyes closely that the vision might not be repeated.

"So," she added, "when we have looked upon our inward state in the light of God's revelation, we shrink back stricken and ashamed, and fain would shield our eyes from the sickening view."

But if one glance at the soul's disorder is so repulsive to an eye accustomed and hardened to the tumults of sin, what must the sight of evil be to Him who is himself all light, all order, all beauty, all holiness? If one flash of lightning disconcerts a mind because it discovers a confusion a few moments of care would suffice to remove—if one moment of moral vision, when the soul sees itself as it is, seems more than it can endure, what would be if the fearful facts were never vailed, and it stood constantly open to its own judgments, its own abhorrence?

What if it stood thus, and there was no Savior to say, "I will remove your transgressions; I will forgive your iniquities; I will make your darkness light, and your morning joy."—Christian Banner

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

Correspondence Between Generals Grant and Hancock.

GENERAL HANCOCK TO GENERAL GRANT.

NEW ORLEANS, February 7, 1868.

General U. S. Grant:

I have removed nine members of the city council, two white and seven colored, for contempt of the order of the military commander in proceeding to an election for recorder of the second district, which is an elective office under the laws by the people, and not by the council. The attempt to hold the election was made while I was absent in Texas, but the council was referred to General Sheridan's order forbidding elections until reconstruction was completed, without the authority of the commanding general. Nevertheless, these members voted for an immediate election, and the project was carried. The election was about to be completed, when one or two members, more timid than others, left, and broke up the quorum.

A case in point is the order of General Mower. General order, Octobeer 15, 1867, removing the Jefferson City council for a like offense. My action in the matter was in accordance with the power granted by the reconstruction act, which allows the district commander to suspend or remove persons from office and provide from time to time for performance of the duties of the persons removed, by appointment.

(Signed) WINFIELD S. HANCOCK,
Major General, United States Army.

GENERAL GRANT TO GENERAL HANCOCK.

WASHINGTON, February 8, 1868.

Major General W. S. Hancock:

Suspend your order removing the city council in New Orleans until a full report of reasons is sent. Answer by mail.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT,
General United States Army.

GENERAL HANCOCK TO GENERAL GRANT.

NEW ORLEANS, February 9, 1868.

General U. S. Grant:

Your dispatch of the eighth of February, directing me to suspend my order No. 28 of the seventh of February, removing certain members of the city council of New Orleans, and until a full report of the reasons therefor should be sent to you, was received at 10 A. M. to-day.

I request that you may reconsider your action, and that my order in the premises be not suspended until you have the full report of the reasons called for by you. I telegraphed you at the moment the order was issued, giving as full a statement of my reasons for action as I thought could be made. I referred you to the order of General Sheridan forbidding elections, which you have on file at your headquarters, and stated that the city council had been previously notified of this order by me. I also referred you to an order of General Mower issued in October last, which set forth a parallel case, which you have on file.

In that case an appeal was taken to you for a reinstatement of the council removed by General Mower, which appeal you had not sustained. The present case was a defiance of that example, of General Sheridan's order, and of my letter cautioning the council to desist from this election, and a printed copy of which was forwarded to you January 26. It was also illegal under the law by which they claimed to act. I was astonished at the action of the council, and could not account for it except by the fact that they had been instigated to do it by designing men who believed that if I dared to make these removals it would end in my own removal from this place, and that they could not be molested at any rate.

My self-respect as commander of the district made it absolutely necessary that I should take summary measures regardless of the consequences with which partisans might threaten me. I do not know what fitter report could be forwarded in the case, for all papers explaining my action have been sent to you.

To suspend my order would be to destroy my usefulness here, and in such an event a sense of what I consider due to me and my position in this matter would necessitate a respectful request to be relieved from my present command.

Although I have been here seventy days this is the second occasion I have taken on my own responsibility to make a removal; the first, one or two days previous to this, both for grave causes, reported to you in detail by telegraph; and while I recognize the power of the general in chief to disapprove my action, I respectfully request that as I have acted upon a full knowledge of facts the general in chief may desire an addition to what has already been furnished him for a full understanding of the case under consideration.

My action in the premises was originally based on the first supplementary reconstruction acts of July 19, 1867.

I await your reply before issuing the order.

(Signed) W. S. HANCOCK,
Major General Commanding.

GENERAL GRANT TO GENERAL HANCOCK.

WASHINGTON, February 11, 1868.

Major General W. S. Hancock:

If your order removing the city council has been executed, and the new appointees are in, you need not suspend the order as directed.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT, General.

GENERAL HANCOCK TO GENERAL GRANT.

NEW ORLEANS, February 11, 1868.

General U. S. Grant, Commanding United States Army:

The change in the city council was an accomplished fact when your dispatch of February 9 was received. Several of the appointees had already filed copies of their oaths of office.

In my selection I have appointed the best men to office, without regard to their political sentiments. All must take the required oath. The change will be of immense advantage to the city, as the poor of which the city is principally composed, are dependent on the public confidence.

(Signed) WINFIELD S. HANCOCK,
Major General U. S. A.

From Washington.

The government is pushing claims against confederate agents abroad. Some seven million dollars worth of property has been attached in France. Claims against Mr. McRae approximate $12,000,000. He also sold twenty-six ships to various parties, proceedings against whom are about being instituted.

The treasury department suggests that 7-30 bonds due the 15th of June and July, amounting to $200,000,000, be promptly forwarded, otherwise there will be delay in returning 5-20 bonds into which 7-30s are convertible.

The president has pardoned Commodore Farran, who commanded at Pensacola navy yard but resigned to join the confederacy.

The whisky tax from 1863 to 1867 has averaged $27,000,000 per annum.

General Lorenzo Thomas has been assigned to duty as adjutant general of the army, relieving General Townsend, who has been acting since 1862.

Mr. Covode presented a communication, supported by affidavits, regarding alleged whisky frauds in New Orleans. The papers are quite voluminous. It alleges that each distiller pays the whisky ring $1000 per month—the revenue officers getting a portion of the money.

There are strong indications that Senator Thomas will be rejected.

Ethan Allan, collector of customs for Teche, Louisiana; Albert G. Gridley, general appraiser of merchandise for the South, and E. J. Morgan, surveyor of customs, Selma, Alabama, have been confirmed by the senate.

An official proclamation was issued today creating the new military division of the Atlantic, comprising the departments of the lakes, East, and Washington, to be commanded by General Sherman, with headquarters at Washington.

The president orders Grant to assign Sheridan to temporary command of the division of Missouri.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $213,000.

WASHINGTON, February 15.—Internal revenue receipts do-day $406,000; for the week $3,000,000; for the year $123,500,000.

A partial examination of the war office indicates that the building is weak and unsafe.

The new line of steamers organized between New York and New Orleans will leave each port every Saturday.

It is stated that General Sherman telegraphs, regretting his nomination and deprecating his confirmation as brevet general, and expressing disinclination to assume command of the new division with headquarters in Washington.

WASHINGTON, February 17.—General Steedmen has resigned the New Orleans internal revenue collectorship, to take effect the 15th of May.

Mr. Sumner presented a petition from citizens of Massachusetts, praying for the abolition of the presidential office as dangerous to the republic.

Mr. Trumbull's bill introduced to-day, defining the jurisdiction of courts of the United States, is in effect as follows:

It provides that all courts of the United States shall be bound by the acts of congress on political questions, and that it rests with congress to determine what government is the established one in any state; and it is declared that no civil state government exists in the excluded states of the South; and no so-called civil state government in such states shall be recognized by either the executive or judicial power of the United States until congress shall so provide, or until such state is represented in the congress of the United States.

The reconstruction acts are declared political in their character, the propriety of which no judicial tribunal is competent to question, and the supreme court of the United States is hereby prohibited from taking jurisdiction of any case growing out of the execution of said acts in either of said states until such state shall be represented, etc., and such cases now pending before that court shall be dismissed, and all acts authorizing an appeal, writ of error, habeas corpus, or other proceeding to bring before said court for review any case civil or criminal, arising out of the execution of said reconstruction acts are hereby repealed.

The president has nominated Thomas Sims as marshal of South Carolina, and W. McDonnough as postmaster at Galveston.

Senator Sherman says that the general will not accept either the brevet appointment or the command of the new department, and if the president declines to relieve him from the latter he will promptly tender his resignation.

Internal revenue receipts to-day $630,000

The house committee on freedmen's affairs have agreed to report a bill giving aid to the Memphis and St. Louis railroad company for the construction of a levee and road from Cape Girardeau to the mouth of the St. Francis river, Arkansas.

It is designed by the road to protect a large section of country now continually liable to overflows. The subject comes before this committee because if the aid asked for is wanted the company binds itself to employ a large number of freedmen and to sell them small tracts of land along the line at very reasonable rates for homesteads.

WASHINGTON, February 18.—There was a full cabinet meeting to-day, with the exception of Mr. Stanton.

The senate financial committee reported adversely on the house bill regulating deposits of public money.

The reconstruction committee have agreed to report a resolution allowing Mr. Butler, of Tennessee, to take his seat without taking the ironclad oath. Mr. Brooks moved to extend the same privilege to John Young Brown, which was rejected, only Messrs. Brooks and Beck voting affirmatively.

The bill removing political disabilities will not be reported immediately. Mr. Stevens favored further investigation.

Mr. Stevens was authorized to report his bill dividing Texas into four or more states.

The consideration of Mr. Bingham's election resolution, offered yesterday, was postponed.

Discussion has developed the fact that Mr. Stevens and other radical members of the committee will oppose Mr. Sherman's bill admitting Alabama.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $233,000.

Thomas C. McCrany succeeds Mr. Guthrie in the senate.

WASHINGTON, February 19.—During the discussion of the Thomas case General Lee was made the topic. Mr. Cameron said he was informed by a gentleman in whom he had confidence that General Lee having received an intimation that he might have command of the federal army, had assured him of his entire loyalty and devotion to the country. Mr. Cameron then consulted General Scott, who approved of placing Lee at the head of the army, and the place was offered to him (Lee) officially, with the approbation of General Scott, but Lee went to Virginia on the false pretense of seeing his family, and never came back. Mr. Cameron added that he would have arrested Lee if he had had a chance, but he never suspected that he would act perfidiously.

Mr. Johnson doubted the truth of this very much. (Laughter.)

Mr. Cameron continued: Gentlemen might laugh, but he would inform the gentleman who indulged in merriment (Mr. Conners) that he was as honorable a man as any man to be found in California.

The president's reply to the Baltimore municipal committee is conservative but determined. It developes nothing new, but concluded: "I repeat that the encouragement given me on this occasion is very acceptable. The stoutest heart when surrounded by doubts, and menaced with perils, needs countenance and support. The kind expressions of approval of the city council of Baltimore, sincerely appreciated, will be remembered with gratitude as long as life shall last."

Gen. Hancock's recent removals are still under consideration at General Grant's headquarters.

The committee on foreign relations considered the Samana bay acquisition to-day without action.

Secretary Seward advises citizens visiting Great Britain to secure passports.

Mr. Stevens opposes special legislation regarding Alabama's admission. If anything is necessary it might as well be wholesale, letting all in at once.

It is estimated that the canal around the falls at Louisville, on the Indiana side, will cost $3,500,000.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $250,000.

Mr. Norton, congressman elect, and the chairman of the Alabama Republican committee were on the floor of the house to-day urging her admission.

General O. L. Sheppard, colonel of the fifteenth infantry, has been ordered to take command of the sub-district of Alabama.

Surratt's trial has been postponed to the next term of court.

Proceedings of Congress.

WASHINGTON, February 17—House.—Mr. Bingham introduced the following which was referred to the committee on reconstruction:

WHEREAS, A large majority of the votes given at an election held on the fifth of February, 1868, were for the constitution presented by the convention of the people of the state of Alabama; and

Whereas, Certain combinations of citizens within said state refused to vote with the intent thereby to defeat the efforts of the friends of the Union to restore said state to its proper relation to the Union;

Therefore, be it ordained, etc., That the legislature elect under the new constitution of Alabama be convened at the capital of said state as soon as practicable, by order of the United States military commander, within said state of Alabama, and that upon the ratification by said legislature of the fourteenth article of the amendment to the constitution of the United States proposed by the thirty-ninth congress, and the establishment by law of impartial suffrage within said state, as authorized by said constitution of Alabama, the said state shall be admitted to representation in the congress of the United States, in accordance with the laws of the United States.

Nothing else of importance was presented under the regular call.

The house resumed the consideration of the appropriation bill. An effort to strike out appropriations for several South American missions failed. Finally the bill passed. Adjourned.

Senate—Senator Thomas' case was postponed, owing to Johnson's sickness.

A petition was presented by 100 New Jersey negroes, who ask an appropriation of $100 each to carry them to Liberia. Also a similar petition from Massachusetts negroes.

The South Carolina convention asked aid to extend the Port Royal railroad.

The judiciary committee reported a bill which provides that a majority of voters shall decide all elections under the reconstruction acts, and voting on adoption of constitutions. Duly registered persons may vote in any part of the state upon presentation of certificate of registration.

The bill converting into the treasury the proceeds from captured and abandoned property was discussed to adjournment.

House.—General Grant was directed to furnish the house his correspondence with General Hancock.

A resolution was offered taxing federal bonds two per cent.

The bill extending the patent for a wooden screw making machine was lost.

The speaker submitted a communication from the secretary of war covering orders issued by district commanders.

A resolution from the Virginia convention, praying for a reduction of the tobacco tax, was referred to the committee on ways and means. Adjourned.

Senate.—The president was asked whether he had created a new military department here and under what law.

The bill in relation to filling vacancies was passed. It provides that offices vacant by sickness or otherwise may be filled by the president for ten days, provided that appointees' salary shall not be increased.

The case of Senator Thomas, of Maryland, was resumed and discussed to executive session. Adjourned.

Senate.—No session.

House.—The consideration of the Kentucky election case was resumed. Mr. Smith, the minority candidate, pleaded his own case, and several others spoke in his behalf. Mr. Smith was defeated—30 to 101.

A resolution directing the speaker to notify the governor of Kentucky of the vacant seat was adopted.

The Grant and Hancock correspondence was presented.

The appropriation bill was resumed, and discussed to adjournment.

WASHINGTON, February 18.—House—Mr. Butler introduced a bill relative to a national bank. Referred to the committee on banking and currency. It provides, among other things, that every stockholder may vote according to the number of shares he holds in the following proportion: for one share, one vote; for every two additional shares, one vote more; but no stockholder shall have more than twenty votes. Absent stockholders may vote by proxy; but no salaried officer of the bank shall vote as proxy; no officer as proxy shall cast more than ten votes, and no person as proxy shall cast more than fifty votes.

A bill appropriating $50,000, to be expended by the secretary of state, to relieve and bring home American citizens abroad who have been arrested and subsequently released, passed by 114 to 29.

The president was called on for a report relative to the ship canal around the Ohio falls at Louisville.

A bill was introduced increasing revolutionary and war of 1812 pensions; it appropriates $2,000,000.

Mr. Washburne, of Illinois, opposed the bill, contending that $172,000,000 would be expended under its operations. Bill passed.

The house then went into committee of the whole on appropriations. Adjourned.

Senate.—A joint resolution was introduced to print a medical and surgical history of the rebellion.

The house resolution reducing the expenses of the war department passed.

A bill for the gradual reduction of the army and the abolishment of useless grades therein, passed.

Senator Thomas' case was resumed and discussed to adjournment.

WASHINGTON, February 19—Senate.—The secretary of the interior asks an appropriation for the removal of certain disaffected Cherokee Indians on Red river.

The judiciary committee reported in favor of the indefinite postponement of Sumner's and Drake's supplemental reconstruction bills.

The judiciary committee has amended the house supplemental bill, making a majority of voters ratify constitutions.

A resolution was introduced restoring soldiers' clothing destroyed to prevent contagion.

Mr. Wilson introduced a bill to restore Alabama to the Union. After the usual preamble, it is

Resolved, That the constitution of Alabama is hereby declared to be in conformity with the provisions of the "act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel states," passed March 2, 1867, and whenever the legislature elected under said constitution shall ratify the fourteenth article of the constitution of the United States, proposed by the thirty-ninth congress, the said state shall be admitted to representation in congress in accordance with the laws of the United States.

A bill was introduced removing Governor Holden's political disabilities.

The case of Senator Thomas, of Maryland, was resumed. He was rejected by 21 to 28. Adjourned.

House.—The judiciary committee reported a bill creating a law department. Also surrendering persons guilty and convicted of murder, piracy, assassination, arson, and forgery abroad. It authorizes the president to return such parties, and to prevent their coming into the United States. Passed.

The appropriation amendment, continuing twenty per cent extra pay to department employes, passed—88 to 44. The amendment striking out the pay of the president's clerks was rejected. The bill was read the third time and passed.

The house then went into committee of the whole on the army appropriation bill. It appropriates $33,000,000. The frequent introduction of General Grant's name as favoring or opposing certain measures provoked objection with considerable feeling. Mr. Butler said that the fathers of the republic only allowed the president to make recommendations.

The committee rose, after which the president was called on for the Sherman correspondence relative to the new department and brevet rank. Adjourned.

Florida Convention.

TALLAHASSEE, February 14, 9 P. M.—The excitement among the delegates has been intense for the past four hours, and there is serious apprehension of a collision between the Billings faction and the majority of the convention. The former have a large negro meeting to-night, and through the civil authorities the military are protecting the capitol from the possibility of a violent demonstration.

The convention had twenty-eight members present to-day.

The bill of rights was adopted, declaring the equal rights of all men, incorporating provisions of the Vermont and Missouri constitutions.

The legislative, judicial, and administrative articles of the constitution were adopted. All judges appointed by the supreme court for life and good behavior, circuit judges for eight years. County sheriffs and clerks of county courts to be elected by the people. State officers are to be appointed by the governor, and confirmed by the senate, consisting of secretary of state, attorney general, controller, treasurer, surveyor general, superintendent of education, adjutant general, and commissioner of emigration.

The bill of rights declares that the state shall ever remain a member of the American Union. The national articles establish uniform legislation.

An ordinance was passed to repeal the unequal taxation respecting the school tax on freedmen.

Mr. Butler was admitted as a delegate from the first district, and George Walker declared ineligible, because he was judge of elections.

The convention declared during the proceedings in Mr. Butler's case that it has full plenary powers, and is absolute and supreme in judging of the qualifications of its members.

The minority party generally absent themselves from the proceedings, and it is understood have but little confidence in the prospect of the constitution adopted by them being accepted by General Meade.

TALLAHASSEE, February 15.—Twenty-nine members in the convention to-day. Large crowds of colored citizens collected in the streets to-day before the convention met. The military, by request of Governor Walker, provided a guard for the convention to repel violence if opposed. The convention, however, assembled without interference, and adopted executive and amendment articles. Governor and lieutenant governor to be elected for a term of four years; the remainder of the state officers to be appointed by the governor, to be confirmed by the senate. County commissioners to be elective.

A caucus was held at noon to-day by the majority at which one of the minority attended who proposed measures of conciliation which were not agreed to. Two of the minority joined the body in session.

A mass meeting of negroes was held this afternoon in capitol square and addressed by colored and white speakers of the Billings faction. The speakers seemed to have given up the struggle for the mastery in the convention, and proposed to try the issue at ballot.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., February 18.—The convention to-day reorganized upon the basis proposed yesterday by General Meade. There was much excitement among the delegates and lobbyites.

General Meade, in conference with the leaders of both factions, made conciliatory propositions which were immediately accepted by the majority, and after consultation also by the minority, which was that the presidents of both wings of the convention resign; that the four delegates declared ineligible by the majority to take seats vacate; a majority of the convention to decide all questions; the question of eligibility to be determined in full convention; Colonel Sprague, commanding the state, to call the convention to order, and that a new organization be made.

At 12 M. Colonel Sprague called the convention to order. In his remarks he urged equal rights to all men and classes as the basis of the constitution. There were forty-five members present out of forty-six. Hernando Jenkins, late president of the majority party, was elected president by a vote of thirty-two to eight. The standing rules and resolutions of organization which were adopted by the majority were readopted.

General Meade and staff appeared in the hall after reorganization, and were introduced to the convention, and in response said he was gratified that both sides had approached him in a spirit of liberality, and he hoped harmonious action would ensue.

The strict test vote in the convention now stands thirty to fifteen. If the alleged ineligible members remain the convention will to-morrow take up the constitution thus far adopted by the majority, and readopt it.

W. H. Gleason was elected financial agent of the convention.

TALLAHASSEE, February 19.—The convention to-day by a vote of 25 to 15 declared Billings, Launder, Pearce, and Richardson ineligible, and their seats vacant. Billings by permission defended his eligibility in a violent speech. The excitement ran high, and Billings declared his ability to control the negro vote.

The minority report defending the legal eligibility of the members in question was presented, but not adopted. Adjourned.

After the adjournment of the convention a colored delegate was attacked by outside negroes, supporters of Billings' party, and struck for voting against the expelled members. One of the assailants was shot through the hip by the delegate, when the difficulty was brought to a summary close by the prompt action of the police, who arrested the whole party.

General Meade and staff left for Atlanta this morning.

It is now probable that the work for which the convention was called will be consummated.

Mississippi Convention.

JACKSON, February 15.—In the convention the bill of rights came up as a special order. The first section was referred to a select committee as submitted. It guaranteed suffrage to all persons irrespective of race, color, sex, or anything else. The seven succeeding sections were adopted. They embody no new ideas.

The member sent to Vicksburg to confer with General Gillem in regard to the taxes was in his seat to-day, but no report of his mission has been presented.

JACKSON, February 17.—The regular course of business in the convention to-day was interrupted by a personal affair which threw everything into confusion. Such epithets as liar, dog, coward, etc., were used. One member standing in the middle aisle announced his readiness to give satisfaction to any party aggrieved. Quiet was finally restored without hostilities. The trouble grew out of a resolution of censure.

JACKSON, February 18.—The two members engaged in a dispute yesterday made mutual concessions, apologized, and shook hands amid applause from all sides.

Three additional sections of the bill of rights were adopted.

The Democratic state convention meets here to-morrow.

JACKSON, February 19.—After adopting a new and modified tax ordinance, and ordering that two delegates be appointed to present the same to General Gillem, the constitutional convention adjourned to allow the use of the hall to the Democratic state convention. The latter body is largely attended, most of the counties of the state being represented.

From Richmond.

RICHMOND, February 15.—Convention—The oyster question was tabled and also the Georgia resolutions asking congress to loan the South $30,000,000.

Nothing else of importance.

Judge Underwood to-day remanded Churchwell Combs to the custody of the military. He decided that congress, which is the war making power, has not declared peace yet, and the country being in a state of armistice the civil courts have no right to take prisoners out of military custody.

The case goes to the supreme court.

General Schofield issued several orders today about registration. One orders a new registration in Richmond on March 2, and another provides that when voters in the state have changed their residence since the last registration they may register in the state where they reside. The third is for the guidance of registration boards, and directs that where persons have held United States offices and then voted voluntarily for secession they are disfranchised.

The holding of United States office is defined as having held an office to which the holder was appointed by the president, courts of law, or heads of departments. Those who have held county or town offices, created for the administration of justice, are disfranchised, but not their deputies. Executive pardon does not remove disfranchisement.

From Georgia.

AUGUSTA, February 14.—A special to the Macon Telegraph, dated Rome 13th, says: Ex-Controller General Barnes was arrested to-day by order of General Meade for refusing to deliver the records of his office, and is now confined in the barracks.

ATLANTA, February 15.—In the convention a motion to reconsider paragraph five of section first of the legislative committee's report adopted yesterday was defeated. Yeas 62; nays 62—the president casting in the negative.

It provides that no person holding office under the United States or state, except justices of the inferior court or of the peace and officers of the militia, shall be eligible to the legislature, and that no member of the legislature shall be appointed by the governor or elected by the legislature to any office of emoluments.

The finance committee was authorized to negotiate a loan to defray the expenses of the convention.

So much of the section passed yesterday as disfranchises persons convicted of larceny was reconsidered and striken out.

General Meade left last night for Florida.

ATLANTA, February 19.—In the convention a resolution instructing the next legislature to enact such laws as will compel all common carriers to provide equal accommodations for all persons, without distinction, was tabled—yeas 67, nays 60.

A resolution to prohibit the legislature from enacting such laws was badly defeated.

An affair of honor between Drs. Westmoreland and Powell, of Atlanta, was cut short yesterday by the arrest of the former.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

NEW YORK, February 18.—The tug boat James W. Wright exploded and burned. Four persons, including Captain Silas Dayton, were lost.

HARTFORD, Ct., February 18.—There is much distress here among the poor. Soup houses have been opened, but the means thus far is inadequate to full relief.

ST. LOUIS, February 18.—The ice has broken and the river is now clear several miles above and below the city. No damage done to the shipping. Several boats are loading.

LOUISVILLE, February 18.—Horace Greeley lectured here to-night to a large audience. Subject: "Self-Made Men."

HAVANA, February 18.—Sugar dull; offerred at 7½c. Arrived: Mercedita and Tappahannock.

GALVESTON, February 14.—Houston gave Smith and Raby 1050 of 1550 votes polled. Austin gives nearly a unanimous vote for Hamilton. Trouble stopped the voting at Bastrop. Convention undoubtedly carried. Conservatives voting against or wholly abstaining. No general returns received.

CHARLESTON, February 17.—Convention—Nothing of special interest transpired.

MOBILE, February 14.—Herdin P. Henry, the oldest printer in Mobile, died this morning, aged 62 years.

JACKSON, Miss., February 14.—Nothing of interest in the convention to-day.

NEW YORK, February 19.—The ship Artesia, from Boston for New Orleans, put into Bermuda on the 14th instant, leaking badly.

LIFE.

What does he ponder, standing there
At midnight dark, and cold, and stilly? —
That life is but a highway bare—
Bleak, bitter, desolate, and chilly;
That while the busy, thoughtless rout
Rush this way—that way—twenty more ways,
Poor feeble wretches, falling out,
Die all unheeded in the doorways.

That Genius oft must "pad the hoof,"
While Dullness soars on banknote pinions
(That—scarce affords to hire a roof,
This is the heir of vast dominions);
That, when a quarrel is begun,
It is not always Wrong begins it,
That, when the fight is fought and won,
It is not always Right that wins it:

That Virtue oft is punished sore,
And Vice struts off with stars and garters;
That man by Truth sets little store,
And Sham can boast a crowd of martyrs;
Yet that—howe'er our life is cast—
One solacing, unfailing trust is
That restitution comes at last—
The end is God's eternal justice!

The Producing Interest.

The signs of the times look somewhat propitious, as though a better day was dawning to dispel that gloom that is hanging over the depressed and overburdened industries of the nation. There is deficiency of production, and a still greater deficiency threatened, while non-producing capital, viciously employed, has been going on perfecting its arts and processes by which the productive industries of the country have been literally robbed. The issue is being raised in a most distinctive form between producing and non producing capital. Mr. Sherwood, who has announced himself as a candidate for the presidency, is taking the lead. In connection with this great scheme for a national system of equal rights, equal speed, cheap freight railways, he has taken the appeal to the producing interests. If we mistake not, his appeal will be regarded by the people with that friendly consideration which all public benefactors deserve.

Mr. Sherwood takes the ground that the producing interests have the right to control the policy of the government, and that no others have the moral right to speak, except as they may speak in behalf of these interests. This is high ground, and if sustained by the popular power, our condition, industrially, financially, and commercially will be rapidly improved.

It is not the province of our journal to engage in party politics, but on the contrary, to do what we can in the encouragement and advocacy of every improvement that is calculated to promote the material prosperity of the whole country. It will ever be our pleasure to speak well of the efforts of any man or class of men who aim at the accomplishment of the greatest public good.—American Railroad Journal.

The New York Tribune, referring to the correspondence between Johnson and Grant, says:

Arguing from the circumstances, we think these conclusions are plain:

1. When Grant entered the war office, he was in sympathy with Congress. Subsequent developments show the extent of that sympathy, and that the president knew of it.

2. Grant wanted reconstruction carried out, and took the war office to aid in the work.

3. He knew there was a law which made it his duty to resign the war office after Stanton's restoration by the senate.

4. He could not remain in the war office without giving the lie to his whole career.

We do not see how General Grant could have taken any other course. If he really made the promise the President alleges then he must be a fool or a knave, for his friends were making his canvass upon the express understanding that in this tenure of office law, as in all other laws, he would obey congress. We do not think there is a well-informed bricklayer in New York who does not take this view. For the president to suppose that Grant could follow any other path is to us incomprehensible.

GRANT AND JOHNSON.—A Washington special of the 11th to the Cincinnati Gazette, says of the latest correspondence read in congress:

Secretary Welles' letter was received with a roar of laughter from all parts of the chamber. Secretary Seward's letter was also received with laughter, and there is a great deal of inquiry for anybody who can tell on what side he finally finds himself. The manner in which Mr. Randall comes up to the full indorsement of the president is regarded as very characteristic. It is not seen by anybody how Mr. Johnson can make so much out of Mr. Seward and Mr. Browning, who are the only ministers that speak of matters in detail. The Democrats do not profess to think the president has materially strengthened his case, and it is generally reported and believed that his letter has been much toned down since it was first written. The Republicans are unanimous in saying that there is nothing in the communications of the president and his cabinet to hurt General Grant.

A THIRD PARTY.—Washington specials state:

Information in conservative circles is to the effect that considerable progress has been quietly made throughout the country, by those prominent in the Philadelphia convention, toward the inauguration of a combined movement looking to the formation of a third party upon the former plan of that convention. Hostility both to Grant, and such Democrats as Pendleton and Seymour, will mark the action taken, and the name of General Dix, which is constantly used by these men, indicates the kind of party organization contemplated. There have been numerous private meetings of sub-committees, in various parts of the country, and it is expected that the national committee, appointed at Philadelphia, will soon assemble here.

From East and West Baton Rouge, February 7, 9, and 10, we have the most favorable reports. Our friends write that the Radical Republicans are at work, that they are thoroughly united and confident of victory in spite of the falsehoods and money of rebels and copperheads.

The Monroe Intelligencer expresses the hope that many of their planters will take advantage of the order from the freedmen's bureau, and be independent of Carondelet street, the advice of our New Orleans cotemporaries to the contrary notwithstanding.

Full returns of the Alabama election will probably be received in a day or two. At Tuskegee one of the managers of the election put the tickets in his coat pocket and not in the ballot box. In Coosa county the polls were kept open but two days.

A line of steamships between this city and Havana and Mexico is projected, and several prominent gentlemen have taken subscription books and are soliciting subscribers.

Splendid Mexican sugar, considered equal to maple sugar, is selling at six and a quarter cents a cake, or about seven cents a pound, at San Antonio, Texas.

General Hancock has tendered to Tobias Gibson, of the parish of Terrebonne, a place upon the levee board, of which he has before been a member.

THE CONTEST OPENED!

The "Spirit" of Democracy in the Country Parishes.

THE FIRST SCENE PLAYED IN OPELOUSAS.

A Republican Meeting Disturbed.

The "spirit" which pervaded the meeting held on Saturday evening last at the St. Charles theatre seems to have reached the "country parishes" at an unusually quick pace, unless, perchance, it had previously existed in latent form, and only required the application of the electric spark to kindle it into action.

We are informed by what we consider reliable authority, that a meeting of Republicans held at the Opelousas Republican clubroom on Sunday last was entered by two persons clothed in federal uniform, one of whom used low, insulting language, and harangued the audience, and the other made a conservative speech, endeavoring to break up the meeting as they said, by order of General Hancock. The following is a copy of a dispatch received at this office yesterday:

OPELOUSAS, La., February 17,
Via New Iberia, February 16, 1868.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:

To-day the post commander, accompanied by the bureau agent, called at the Opelousas Republican clubroom while that body was in session, and stated that by order of General Hancock political meetings on Sunday were prohibited. He ordered the bureau agent to address the meeting. This official commenced to deliver a "conservative" address. The president of the meeting, on asking an explanation, was ordered—"Shut your mouth, sir." The commander made an insulting harangue to discourage the people from attending political meetings. After this masterly feat they retired to receive the congratulations of those whom they served to the best advantage. EMERSON BENTLEY.

Now, while we deprecate the holding of political meetings on Sunday, and would like to have many other meetings and places of resort which are open on that day closed, still we see no reason why the work should begin so far away from the great scene of public meetings and amusements which exist here on the Lord's day. If our informant is correct, we can but look upon the action of the authorities at Opelousas on Sunday last as the forerunner of the great scheme which was inaugurated here on Saturday night, for the purpose of preventing reconstruction, and in the words of one of the speakers of inaugurating another "shedding of blood." We earnestly hope we shall not hear of any more such actions on the part of the authorities, or of the members of the Democratic party.

THE ALABAMA ELECTION.

The Frauds and Violence Practiced.

The Montgomery Sentinel has accounts from day to day of the perpetration of gross frauds and vindictive violence, perpetrated and used upon the freedmen and Union white men at the polls during the late election. The following is copied from one day's issue of the paper:

At least three thousand freedmen were prevented, it is said, from voting at Hayneville in Lowndes county, in consequence of the mismanagement of the polls at that place by the board of registration, who were in sympathy with the rebels, and opposed to the constitution. It is said the sheriff, an officer specially instructed by General Hayden to keep order and the peace, made a most unprovoked assault upon one of the managers of the election, because the manager had made some protest against the outrageous conduct of said sheriff.

At least two thousand persons were prevented from voting for the constitution at Union Springs, Bullock county, during the late election, in consequence of the opposition of the managers of the election.

At Wetumpka there were crowds of bitter rebels armed at the polls, and as white Union men would vote, this armed mob would hiss and howl at them. The managers of the polls refused hundreds of votes because names were not printed correctly on the poll lists. In Lee the scenes of 1860 and 1861 were re-enacted, and all kinds of threats and intimidation used to prevent votes from being polled.

In Bullock county at least 2000 freedmen were prevented from voting. In Lowndes county, the rebels took entire control of the ballot boxes, and destroyed them, so that no vote can be counted from that county. In Choctaw, organizations are formed to run all Union white men out of the county who voted for the constitution. In Pike county, freedmen were kept from the polls by armed men. In Macon, armed men stood at the polls, swearing that "no negro should vote there."

But one place of voting was opened in Barbour county, and that at Clayton. The polls at Clayton were not opened until about 12 o'clock on Wednesday, but as soon as the polls were opened, the votes were taken in with a rapidity unprecedented in the history of voting, until Friday evening, the registrars not receiving the notice of extension during Saturday.

At almost every poll in every county organized bands of armed rebels crowded the polls, and claimed the right to challenge every vote cast, thus making voting tedious, and otherwise hindering votes from being cast, thus proving conclusively that no impartial election can be held in Alabama only under the protection of a military force. In a large number of counties the polls were kept open only two days.

It is said that Governor Fitzpatrick turned off all the freedmen in his employ for going to Wetumpka and voting for the constitution.

The superintendent of the laborers on the Alabama and Florida railroad, of Alabama, turned off quite a number of freedmen employed on that road for voting for the constitution. This road was granted several thousands of acres of land by congress. Possibly they may want this grant of lands continued hereafter.

THE STATE TICKET.—The Republican Pioneer says:

To it we will give our most earnest and undivided support, for on its success depends the fate of every loyal citizen of the state. We hail it as the standard of freedom for Louisiana; we have nailed it to the mast, and with it "we sink or swim, live or die, survive or perish." It is a most judicious selection, an honor to the convention that made the choice, and can not fail to receive the support of every true Republican.

General Pile, from the St. Louis district, has been pressing the treasury officials to make St. Louis a port of entry, with certain privileges in the matter of shipment of goods. At first they scouted the proposition, but after a long contest he has carried his point, and a bill has been agreed upon which General Pile will soon introduce.

EDITORIAL AND NEWS ITEMS.

St. Louis on Thursday was pretty well obstructed by floating ice.

The governor of Utah recommends the revision of the divorce laws.

Grant, in the strategy of fighting, is unquestionably the chief; but in the strategy of lying Johnson is king.

About the 25th instant two vessels will sail from New Orleans for Venezuela with such emigrants as desire to visit that fertile country.

Mrs. Swisshelm has recovered sixty thousand dollars in real estate near Pittsburg, from her divorced husband, who made exclusive claim to it.

The horses and coach of the Red river mail line when crossing at Monette's ferry went overboard and were soon under water. The horses are lost.

The "White Fawn," that great spectacular drama, is to be produced in Boston, where the stage is much better and tenfold larger than in New York.

The cost of the public printing was for the session of 1866-7 upward of $200,000 less than for the session of 1859-60, when the Democrats were in a majority.

A delegation of railroad men was before the house postoffice committee this week, urging compensation for running postage cars on all the leading railroads of the country.

The decision of the supreme court Monday, on the Georgia injunction case, is regarded at Washington as significant, in that it indicates a purpose on the part of the court to keep out of political questions.

Mr. Henry P. Farron, a lawyer of Atlanta, and now an extreme radical in politics, is one of the most prominent candidates for governor of Georgia, under the new constitution.

The United States senate was occupied on Wednesday in discussing a resolution providing for an inquiry into the circumstances attending the ejection of a colored woman from the cars of the Washington and Alexandria railroad.

The first election in New York subsequent to the nomination by the Syracuse convention of Grant and Fenton, was the charter election of Palmyra, where the Republicans carried the day for the first time in ten years.

Johnson has filled all stations, from alderman to president; but there remains one station he has never filled which an exchange thinks he is eminently deserving of, and that is a police station.

John Weldon publishes a card in the Mobile Register, explaining that he voted for the constitution because he was tired of a seven years war, and because he thought it was the shortest way to get into the Union.

Our rebel sympathizing exchange papers unite in commendation of General Hancock's removal of loyal men from official positions. They with equal unanimity condemn General Grant for ordering the former to undo what he has lately done.

Arkansas will hold its election on the ratification of the constitution, and for officers under it, including representatives to congress, on the 13th of March. Thus, Arkansas will be ahead of Louisiana as a reconstructed state.

The obstructives of Montgomery propose not to trade with or employ Republicans, whereupon the Sentinel rejoins by advising Union men of that city, whose trade sums up over two million dollars a year, not to trade with the obstructives.

John M. Langston, the colored orator, on his way North from New Orleans, made a speech at his birthplace in Virginia, during which he stated that he was the son of one of the most influential and beloved of the old aristocracy, "who now sleeps by the side of my slave mother in the village graveyard."

Mails now arriving at Boston from the South and West at 5.10 P. M. are sorted on the train before its arrival for the city carriers, and delivered immediately to the carriers' stations as well as to the main office, from whence the delivery to private residences and business houses commences immediately.

General Grant's levees, since the publication of the correspondence between him and the president, are more thronged than ever. From eight o'clock in the evening until long after midnight, at a late levee, an immense multitude, a living stream, poured through the mansion, in at one door and out at the other.

It is expected that a resolution will pass the house of representatives against payments to Southern railroads of heavy claims for services and damages during the war. Should the resolution pass, they will have to pay whatever they owe the government, or else be confiscated instead of receiving any pay for claims.

A letter from General Sewell, of the freedmen's bureau in Georgia, says things in that state are improving. There is a good demand for labor, and fair wages are generally paid to colored men. There is corn enough to last till the new crops are made, and the government need issue rations only to old men and women.

The Kentucky Democratic papers are taking the ground that the "process of abolishing slavery has been revolutionary," and that the whole matter will be reconsidered when military power shall be withdrawn. This shows the programme. If slavery can not be restored, the Southern Democrats intend to demand payment for their slaves.

The New York Herald's staff is reduced, and is worked much harder than it used to be. Its circulation has fallen off, while the circulation of the World is increasing, solely for the reason that the latter is superior as a newspaper. There is no political significance in this. Surprise that the World should go up while the Herald is going down is an injustice to the reading public, who may certainly be expected to discern which is the better of two newspapers as quickly as in the case of any other things they pay for, and who are dropping the Herald and buying the World accordingly. The daily journal, no matter what its political character may be, that excels as a newspaper and merits success, is certain to secure it. The REPUBLICAN will win its way into public favor as the best newspaper in New Orleans. This is no idle boast.

A REPORT ON THE STATE FINANCES.

We have been favored with a copy of a report on the condition of the state treasury recently made by Treasurer Giffen and Auditor Peralta to General Hancock. Reference is made to the last annual report of the auditor, in which he predicted the present financial difficulties under which the treasury labors, unless the proper legislative aid was given. The proposition to fund the debt by issuing bonds for city money is alluded to, and it is the opinion of these officers that the failure of that scheme was hurtful to the state credit.

The total outstanding debt of the state, past due, including certificates of indebtedness (state notes) is $1,613,000.

Amount collected up to December 31, 1867, $300,000.

Deficit, $1,313,000.

The estimated receipts from all sources for 1868 are $1,400,000.

Expenditures for same period $1,013,080. Leaving a surplus of $386,920.

But deducting this amount from the deficit for 1867, ($1,313,000) leaves a debt unprovided for of $926,080.

To raise this amount two plans are presented; one to fund the debt and levy a tax to meet the bonds, which are to be short dated, and to pledge the receipts from such tax to their payment. The other proposition is to levy a tax and pay the obligations directly from the treasury as fast as the money is paid in. But the gist of the whole matter is added as a sort of postscript to a supplemental letter about the levee bonds. In this little paragraph Messrs. Peralta and Giffen say that "the taxes of 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, and 1864, suspended by act No. 155 of the legislature, amount to $1,300,000." Here lies the cause of the whole difficulty. The want of this amount has put the state to hundreds of thousands of dollars expense in various ways, such as printing their plasters and their inevitable depreciation. The state government has been sustained by the money of those who actually paid, so far as it would go, and has now become bankrupt for want of what is justly due. A law, order, or regulation, directing the payment at once of a portion of this suspended tax, would have a wonderful effect on the credit of the state at this time. This tax is assessed on property the owners of which are no doubt amply able to pay it.

The total levee debt is estimated at $1,200,000.

The Montgomery Sentinel states that the rebel planters have recovered from their fit of anger, which was the cause of their turning off laborers for voting, and have discovered that without the freedmen their corn cribs and smokehouses will be empty next fall, and are, therefore, engaging them to work again.

MARRIED.

At Baldwin's Landing, St. Mary's parish, Louisiana, by the Rev. R. K. Diossy, JOHN NICHOLS and MARY KINCHEN, all of St. Mary's parish.

ASTHMA.

Our statement is corroborated by physicians and invalids in all parts of the country, that JONAS WHITCOMB'S REMEDY FOR ASTHMA IS AN ABSOLUTE SPECIFIC for that dreadful disease. JOSEPH BURNETT & CO., Sole Proprietors, 592 Broadway, New York, and 27 Central street, Boston.

For sale by all druggists.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR.

Ladies dressing the hair elaborately for the evening will find that BURNETT'S COCOAINE will keep it in shape for hours.

BURNETT'S

STANDARD COOKING EXTRACTS are carefully prepared from fruits and spices of the best quality, and challenge competition. Reference is made to the principal purveyers, confectioners, and hotels in the United States. All grocers sell them. Salesroom 592 Broadway, New York.

THE MUSICAL SCALE.

BY HORACE P. BIDDLE.

This work is an effort to throw some light upon a subject which has received the attention of firstclass minds at different periods. Many new principles are explained, and the facts laid down are all capable of demonstration; but whether the basis of induction is sufficiently broad and firm to sustain the conclusions given is a question submitted to the judgment of the reader.

Price $1 25. Mailed postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., New York.

fe22

AN OUTLINE OF MUSICAL FORM.

Designed for Musical Students, both Amateur and Special. By S. B. MATHEWS. The material for this book has been drawn from such German works as were accessible to the writer, and from a very thorough and patient study of Musical Form, as manifested in the Works of the greatest Masters. It is the only treatise in English on this department of Musical Science.

Price 60 cents. Sent postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., New York.

fe22

$100 A Month Salary

Will be paid for Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample retailing at $4 50 for 50 copies.

A. D. BOWMAN & CO., 48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 13t

JAMES VICK,

IMPORTER AND GROWER OF

Flower and Vegetable Seeds,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF

Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868,

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the

Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than ONE HUNDRED FINE WOOD ENGRAVINGS of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

☞ Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.

II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.

III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.

IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.

V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.

VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.

VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.

VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.

IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.

X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par value and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET,
AND OF
FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,
AND
Dealers in Government Securities,
AND
FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

A NEW STEEL ENGRAVING OF CHARLES DICKENS,

SUITABLE FOR FRAMING.

Given Gratis to all Subscribers

TO

APPLETONS' NEW POPULAR EDITION OF

Chas. Dickens' Works,

NOW PUBLISHING.

On receipt of $4 50 we will mail, postpaid, to any address, as fast as published, the entire set of our

New, Cheap, and Elegant Edition of Dickens,

In seventeen volumes, together with an elegant impression of a

STEEL PORTRAIT OF DICKENS,

One of the best yet executed of the distinguished author.

Seven volumes of this edition of Dickens are now ready—"Pickwick Papers," 35 cents; "Oliver Twist," 25 cents; "American Notes," 15 cents; "Great Expectations," 25 cents; "Nicholas Nickleby," 35 cents; "Christmas Stories," 25 cents; "Dombey & Son," 35 cents. A volume is issued every week. The volumes, so far as issued, together with the Portrait, carefully wrapped, will be mailed immediately on the receipt of the price, as above.

Agents wanted in all parts of the country to sell this edition of Dickens. Every family, and every apprentice, mechanic, journeyman, farmer, and clerk will certainly buy Dickens at this low price. Send to Publishers for special terms to Agents.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 443 and 445 Broadway, New York.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles: particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

fe17 1y JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer. C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies, at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers.....$2 00
Mail subscribers, clubs of five.....9 00
Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each.....1 75
Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers.....34 00
Ten copies, to one address.....16 00
Twenty copies, to one address.....30 00
An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers....$4 00
Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers... 7 00
Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy. 3 00
Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.
Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.
For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.
The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.
The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.
Terms, cash in advance.
Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.
Address, THE TRIBUNE, New York.

de18 3tD&3tW

JONES, McDOWELL & CO., Little Rock, Ark. — S. S. SHAW & CO., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,

GENERAL

Commission Merchants

AND

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 327 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

☞ Liberal advances made on consignments.

Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM McCAMMON,

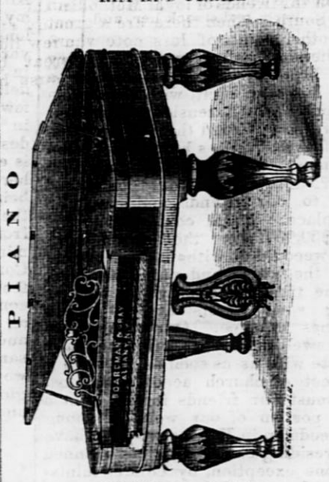
MANUFACTURER OF

BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.

☞ All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address

s6 WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS

Window Shades and Cornices,

AND

PAPER HANGINGS.

For Sale by

E. HEATH.

75 Camp street.

Grovesteen & Co.,

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.

499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

STAPLETON & CO.,

UNION HAT STORE,

95.....CANAL STREET.....97

NEW ORLEANS,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer

—IN—

Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,

—ALSO—

GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION

n29

NATIONAL FREEDMEN'S SAVING AND TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.

Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,

No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o'clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.

Deposits of One Dollar or more received.

Interest payable in January and July, in each year.

All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.

All the profits belong to the depositors.

Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.

Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE, Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper, devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at

57.....St. Charles Street.....57
NEW ORLEANS.

The REPUBLICAN is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,

BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,

The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

AND THOSE OF THE

Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the REPUBLICAN indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

Daily, one year....$16 00 | Weekly, one year....$5 00
Daily, six months.. 8 00 | Weekly, six months.. 2 5

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscriptions will be received for the SUNDAY REPUBLICAN from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

MEDICAL.

JOHN C. BAKER & Co.'S
PURE COD LIVER OIL
The Great Remedy
FOR
Consumption, Scrofula & General Debility
COD LIVER OIL MUST BE PURE & FRESH
THE BEST BRAND
MANUFACTURED ONLY BY
J. C. BAKER & Co. 718 Market St. PHILA.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S
LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.

Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.

No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.

For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.

PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS
Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c., HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established 1837.

VANDUSEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

AROMATIC VEGETABLE SOAP,

Combined with Glycerine recommended for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE & CO., N. Y. Sold by Druggists.

nov2m6

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 9. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1868. WHOLE NO. 109.

Poetry.

[From the Methodist Home Journal.]

JESUS WEPT.—John 11—35.

BY MRS. H. W. FRANCIS.

[The following beautiful poem was suggested to the author by reading Dr. Newman's description of Bethany, as published in his work, "From Dan to Beersheba."]

A chilling breath swept o'er the terraced slopes
Of fair Olives, which in discordant tones
And accents drear, a mournful requiem sang;
All things were clothed in gloom, and weary seemed,
As swollen streams in murmuring cadence flowed
Along the vales of loved Judea. The moon's
Pale face was veiled 'mid curtains dark whose folds,
With fleecy fringes droop'd in pensive woe.
The twinkling stars their gladsome lustre hid,
As lonely night, with measured tread, slow wound
Her noiseless way o'er earth, and at each step
With moistened breath put out the light of day.
From peaceful folds the timid flock ne'er strayed,
'Twas silence all! No sound disturbed the air
Save some shrill note from startled bird awake,
From fear portentious of impending ill,
On restless wing its wild, sad moaning made;
Or dove from distant cot with cooing chimes,
Is calling to its mate for company.
The withered buds of choicest beauty slept
Unconscious all as o'er their mother earth,
They drooping hung, unheeding and untouched;
The sighing winds descending, sought the Palm,
Whose spreading branches fitful stirred, as low
In graceful attitude bereft of fruit
Was bending.
Cypress trees swayed to and fro
Like mourners mute by inmost feeling moved,
Their tall heads bow'd as brooding ill: each leaf
Its deepen'd color bore; meet emblem of
The hour to come. And these with numerous Fig
And Olive, and many a clust'ring vine
With rustling sound were now in shadow cast;
Whose forms nought heeding played o'er faded grass;
Filling the soul with sad, subduing thoughts.
Fit time for holy worship of the God
Of earth and heav'n, who all things goodly sought
For man's improvement here, and better state;
Whose only Son beloved, He freely gave,
Atonement made for sins of fallen world.
But woe was Time! when, with relentless hand
He marked that quiet home where ever clung
Fond mem'ries of the past, and loving ones,
In humble Bethany. Where once bright hopes,
And dreams of happy childhood spread their light,
And where, in later days, a welcome cheer
Remained in store for him who sought for rest,
For lo! a deep'ning wail stole on the ear,
And smothered sobs, as by the midnight couch
Two lovely watchers stood, in deep distress,
They gazed in solemn awe. Unearthly breath
Came stealing o'er young manhood's aching brows,
And as those sisters bent in weight of woe,
It bathed that noble brow in palor there
And sealed each fever'd lip in death.
The last sad hour had come; the fatal blow
Was struck that severed from their fond embrace
A brother dear, and only prop of life;
Losing from ling'ring hold to which they clung,
The first, best object of their earthly love.
With hands upraised in agonizing prayers
Their spirits sank in deep despairing grief,
For message they had sent in early time
With news of fearful ill to Bethabara,
Yet earth too slow when hearts so sad await,
Had twice around her axis turned; and still
He tarried; though He knew His friend was dead.
With natures two, this Son of Light appeared
To teach the way of life, that e'er reproach
Nor unbelief could challenge it. To this Intent He sought not at the time to come,
But rather at some future period,
When death in culminating hope should bring
To Him more fitting time for work divine;
Then to His chosen ones He said, "Let's go
From Jordan's stream, to sad Judea; our friend
Doth sleep, and I must him awake; my work
Is there begun, I needs must haste away."
When Martha knew her Lord had come from far.
Him went she out to meet with stricken heart,
With holy faith, and filial fear she said,
"O, Lord, hadst thou been here, our brother had
Not died; but even now I know what'er
Thou'lt ask of God thou wilt not be denied."
Then He in words of comfort spake and said,
"Thy brother dead shall rise again." "I know,"
She said, "that in the resurrection morn
He'll rise." Then quick replied the Lord,
"I am the resurrection and the life;
He that in me believes though dead, yet shall
He live: and he who lives in me shall never die.
And this dost thou believe?" Then unto Him
She saith, "Yea, Lord: I do believe that thou
Art Christ the Son of God,' and when she thus
Had said, she went her way and Mary called:
Who, quick rose, and to her master went.
Whom, when she saw, with weeping eyes, low at
His feet, in rev'rence fell; repeating now
The same sad words that Martha with Him met,
When He her prostrate form beheld, so crushed
With weight of sore distress, His spirit groan'd within
And He was troubled. Then sought He the place
Where Lazarus lay. They in their anxious grief
Did say, "come Lord and see," And Jesus wept.
His human heart with deep compassion stirred,
And now within His spirit groan'd again.
And coming to the cave, where damp and chill,
Was all that earth could claim; dust unto dust
Resigned; he bid them take away the stone,
And there His twofold nature proved his part
Divine, in power that taught the dead to live,
And, as the stone was rolled away, He raised
His eyes, and said, "Father I thank thee, thou
Hast heard my prayer: I knew thou always didst,
'Twas but that these might know me thou has sent
I prayed; and when He thus had spoke, He cried
With voice that shook the tomb, and bade the dead
Come forth. That lump of clay, that lifeless clod
Obeyed:—for lo! it was the voice of God.
The glory of the Father, now in full
Resplendence shone, light of a ruined world,
In the Eternal Son.
Peace be within
Thy walls El-Lazieyehi* for thou art blest!
Thy name on hist'ry's page will ever live,
And every thing in thee will stand through time
Enshrined in tears of sacred memory:
While saints adoring, lowly bend the knee
In worship holy for the mighty works
And deeds of love that have been wrought in thee.

H. W. F.

*So named in honor of him who was raised from the dead.

A Sermon Preached at First Street Church, New Orleans, by Rev. H. Green, (Colored.)

Hebrew 2, 3: "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

The Apostle of our blessed Lord considered this a great salvation. And how came it to be a great salvation? Because it was spoken by the Lord and confirmed to us by them that heard Him. God manifested himself so that we could understand it from them, that is by miracles and gifts by the Holy Ghost. It shows us that God did not leave us to hear of salvation only, but He planted it with miracles and signs to let them know that He was on hand. The history of these miracles is a testimony. The psalmist says, "What is man that thou art mindful of him?" That seemed to be the great wonder that God should visit man with divers miracles and signs. God intended that man should go forth and show his glory. And the apostle says, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

These words spoken by the Lord were confirmed to us by those that heard them. Can you say you know anything that you have not been taught? How do you know that your bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost unless you were taught it? How do these children know the hymns they sing and the other knowledge they have unless it was taught them? That's the way of the history of all countries which men have built, we only know what we've been told about it. Now if I go down St. Charles street, there just beyond Gravier stret. I'll see a big building. That's the St. Charles hotel. I come uphere and tell you all; you believe it, especially if you know that a good many of these have been down about there and none of them denies what I say it's so plain a truth. Well, so these things are confirmed to us by them that heard them. We take their testimony. You know we must have faith in one another. If we have not it will go hard with the people.

We must understand something of this great salvation, especially those of us that have not always been free. How glad you were when you heard the Yankees had brought up their gunboats and you all were to be freed. Every Union man this side of the sun was glad. Well, now, salvation is the freedom that belongs to the human family. Salvation was ordained to be to all the world. The world is in darkness without it.

When salvation comes, it comes with joy and gladness. On salvation's river saints make their way from earth to glory.

It was the want of salvation in the land that you was in bondage, and because salvation is in the land more abundantly that you now are free. Why the devil had a lot of folks down here in prison once, salvation went next day and turned them all loose.

When Satan gets into a man, money gets above salvation. When the devil is cast out salvation gets to the top again. On account of salvation we are in the church to-day. Some people are in one bad place to day, some in another. In grogshops and around drinking. But some one says: "What have you got to do with grogshops?" I got a heap! I wish I had more, I'd shut 'em up on Sunday, I tell you.

Why I've seen folks that would sell whisky and yet pretend to be Christians. Yes, sell brandy all day to corrupt the world and make men brutes, and then say that they were Christians. They'd swell out as big as a terrapin full of meat, and talk about "our church," about its being one of the first churches in the city and always full. I tell you if the devil had a church and had brandy enough, he'd have plenty of hearers.

* * * * *

If you want salvation pray for it, and it will come and make you happy. There's great power in prayer. I remember when I was a young man and first came to this part of the country, most all the folks were French Catholics and creoles, and spoke the French language.

They used to say that these American niggers, as they called us who spoke English, had prayed so much that they had got God mad. Yes, God was mad they said through these American niggers, from Virginia and up that way. I heard this not once nor twice but many times. They used to think that all the poor crops, and the cattle dying, and every such thing came through our praying. They talked about the time "since this Merican god came into Louisiana."

Ah! if you'ld only repent, you'ld know at one dash what salvation is. Salvation is bigger than the sea! high as heaven! deeper than the depths beneath! stronger than the powers of darkness!

"It soothes our sorrows, heals our wounds,
And drives away our fears."

The world will never get anything greater than salvation. God gave the darling attribute of his bosom to die for man's redemption to purchase this great salvation. For all men his blood flowed. Yes, it flowed even for the Roman soldier that pierced him. "How then shall we escape if we neglect this great salvation."

If I knew more about this salvation I'd tell more. I'm going to pray the Lord to open a little bigger door that I may know know more about it.

You can never drain the well of salvation, so ask all you want. God is pouring it out here and pouring it out there, but you can never drain the well. It will never fall out with you or leave you. It will go with you up the river and down the river, across the ocean, up hill, and down hill, everywhere.

Old folks, young folks, little children, all, salvation is for you. Neglect it and God will neglect you. "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

The Methodist Bishops.

Looking at a picture of the nine bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, we are impressed with the fact that there are few men in the United States to whom more power is intrusted. Power, but not emolument; for their position is the furthest removed from one of dignified leisure. In the picture before us their likenesses are appropriately arranged in a circular form, with that of the senior bishop in the centre. Appropriately circular, we say, for, like everything in Methodist economy, the bishops revolve. They are one wheel of a vast system of wheels; and, if they exert their power in bidding others remove, there are none upon whom the burdens of the itinerant system fall so heavily as upon themselves. In the greatness of their journeys they are more than apostolic. Bishop Thomson presided a few years ago at a conference on the banks of the Min, in the Celestial Empire, and his very next presidency, we believe, was on the banks of the Minnesota. Their going forth is from the ends of the earth, and their circuit unto the ends thereof. In proportion to the greatness of their ecclesiastical authority is the greatness of their responsibility. At each quadrennial session of the General Conference a "Committee on Episcopacy" reviews rigidly all questionable points in the administration of each bishop, and their high position does not protect them from a most rigorous accountability.

The venerable senior bishop, Morris, occupies the centre of the picture before us. He is a benign and portly old gentleman, of truly episcopal proportions. He holds his cane in his right hand, and sits in a genial old age, after a lifetime of toil, waiting the Master's call. Not at all an orator, he is yet a speaker and writer of great clearness and conciseness, and his published writings are models of forcible thought and perspicuous diction. He is eminently Western in his make-up, genial in sympathy, earnest in piety; but not at all ascetic, and possessed of a humor so abundant and a wit so quaint and so keen that he is socially fascinating. His gentle but cutting sarcasm is a terror to those who have more cant than sense.

Of quite a different character is Bishop Janes. With a small frame, originally slight, but tending of late to embonpoint, a nose rather aquiline, and a voice shrill and piping, but which has been subjected to a discipline not less severe and hardly less successful than the elocutionary training of Demosthenes, Dr. Janes is the embodiment of will. He is, perhaps, the greatest ecclesiastical administrator of the present generation. It is doubtful if his superior in executive ability can be found in the country. Having submitted cheerfully and conscientiously to the hardships of the itinerant system as they existed a quarter of a century ago, he is disposed to exact something like the same devotion from others. Had he lived in the Middle Ages he would inevitably have ruled a great religious order. Janes, if not the greatest man on the Methodist bench, is perhaps the greatest bishop. He is always a forcible speaker, often eloquent. Aquiline in feature and mind, he pounces upon his ideas with an exultant, eagle-like swoop. His financial ability is of the highest order.

Bishop Scott is the genial, gentlemanly, saintly man of the bench. Devout, without a particle of ascetism, he overflows with Christian and human sympathy. Pretending neither to oratory nor greatness, he is yet an excellent preacher and a man of great practical sense. His life and spirit are full of piety of the old, earnest, Methodistic type.

The large frame, full chest, prominent brows, and somewhat massive lower face proclaim Simpson a very prince of pulpit orators. Nature does not often make a man great in all respects, and Bishop Simpson is not pre-eminent as an administrator, scholar, or writer. His sermons have many fine things, but they do not satisfy expectation when read. It is the majestic presence, the noble voice, the grand, earnest, triumphant face, all surcharged with the electricity of an enthusiastic soul, that make Dr. Simpson the orator that he is. Not that he is without notable mental gifts, but that is the addition of his wonderful physical magnetism that gives him his royal position as an orator. More perhaps by his surroundings than by natural inclination he was made a conservative in church politics; but on the breaking out of the war he used all his lofty gifts as an orator in support of President Lincoln's administration, and it fell to his lot to give the utterance to the national sorrow at the tomb of the president. Since the war he has spoken earnestly and frequently on national subjects.

Bishop Baker is, like Bishop Janes, a New Englander. He is a refined and polished scholar, bearing yet the stamp of his years of service in the chair of a professor. His diffidence is always apparent, though it never causes a loss of aplomb. Thoroughly versed in parliamentary usage, always ready and self-possessed, he has few equals as a presiding officer, and his work on the discipline is the standard of Methodist law.

Bishop Ames, though of Puritan ancestry, is yet a Western man by birth and by every characteristic of mind and body. Like Bishop Janes, he is eminent for executive ability. With a will fully equal to that of Janes, he is less careful in using it, and is sometimes thought arbitrary. His mind is like his frame, massive, and his sympathies deep and tender. The one word which characterizes him is statesmanship. As a preacher his movement is smooth, his discourse singularly clear, with passages of genuine sublimity, and a pathos that stirs his hearers to the depths of their natures.

With a fine physical presence, a face full of dignity, somewhat forehead-bald, Bishop Clark looks, as he is, the refined scholar, carrying with him still the impress of his life in a literary institution. He is a smooth and polished writer, an accurate and pleasant speaker, stating his propositions clearly, and advocating them forcibly. His work entitled "Man all Immortal," though scholarly, hardly does him justice, being more a popular resume of the old current arguments than a development of any new lines of thought on the subject. He was for years editor of the Ladies' Repository at Cincinnati.

With a rich humor and a sarcasm that knew how to take advantage of the absurd position of his opponents, who were anti-slavery in politics while they were conservative in the church, Dr. Kingsley used his official position as editor of the Western Christian Advocate, at Cincinnati, to urge the adoption of a more stringent and unequivocal rule against slaveholding. His political articles were also bold and trenchant; and when the progressive party came to elect bishops, it was almost a foregone conclusion that Dr. Kingsley would be among them. Like several of his colleagues, he has been a professor; but no one would suspect it from his manner. Without being eloquent, he is forcible, manly, and strong in all that he says.

Last upon the list, and in some respects, we think, greatest on the list, is Bishop Edward Thomson. Petite in stature, absent-minded in bearing, with hearing a little impaired, and modest almost to excess, he is not, perhaps, just the man for an office so executive in its character as that of the Methodist Episcopacy. But as a writer he has qualities of the rarest sort. None of our eminent American writers excel him in purity of diction, or in the "art of putting things." As a speaker his voice is defective, and his manner generally somewhat deficient in animation. He often confines himself closely to his manuscript; but we have known an audience to be carried into rapturous applause by the triumphant eloquence of his thoughts. His books of essays and travels are the classics of American Methodist literature.

Such are the nine Methodist bishops—who, on the whole, are nine as able men as any Christian denomination can boast.—Independent.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

Looking Unto Jesus.

BY M. ANNESLEY.

It is sometimes thought that woman in her sympathy with those who are in trouble is akin to Jesus, in his sympathy with our fallen nature, for in the days of his flesh he never denied an applicant for his mercy, and was sensitive to a request, even through the hem of his garment. And though he is on high, he is the same sensitive Jesus still.

At the close of a little meeting a lady said to a poor man, "that was for you, about trusting in God." With much emotion he answered, "I know it; I know it." Another friend was standing by, who had done much for him this suffering winter. She took his hand and said, "Now, Mr. M., I want you to promise me that you are in need," at the same time putting some money in his hand. With choked feeling he replied, "Mrs. L., I cannot tell my wants." She sweetly answered, "You need not tell me, only look at me and I will understand you."

We thought, what a beautiful illustration of "looking unto Jesus," when our hearts are so full of sorrow that we know not how to utter our wants into his ear; if we only look unto him he will understand us and meet us in our trouble.

For the New Orleans Advocate.

The Invalid Family.

BY M. ANNESLEY.

The poor have many shivering thoughts passing their minds when chill November pierces their clothing and cranny habitations, and they know not what will become of them. One poor family cost us many a thought for their winter comfort. The father was not able to do hard work, as once was in his power, only a little here and there at something light. He is sexton in a mission chapel, and this brings in something to save them from utter destitution. The mother is a helpless invalid, through rheumatism, and must be wheeled back and forth to her bed; her hands are so twisted by disease that it is with suffering she can do the easiest mending. The two little boys are helpful to their mother, but can not do anything toward daily bread; and this is our invalid family. As we looked in upon them one autumn afternoon we thought how would they get along and be at all comfortable with that old, ricketty stove to consume coal but give out no heat, and how would that poor woman be able to bear that cold, bare floor in her feeble, diseased state?

However, she always met us with a smile, and was very uncomplaining. But "the desires of the righteous are granted," and what one alone was not able to accomplish several friends did. One went and saw the old stove was a sad provocation, and put a new one in its stead and a ton of coal. Another looked upon that bare floor and gave a carpet which covered it fully. Other wants were supplied, so that our invalid family will, we think, weather the winter through, gratefully thanking God for the loans His people have made to Him in their attentions to His suffering members.

[From Revival Sketches and Manual.]

The Savior's Return.

"When Jesus returned the people gladly received him, for they were all waiting for him." Christ had crossed over the Lake of Galilee to Gadara, where he found a raving maniac among the tombs possessed with many devils, and cast them out. How long he staid there we are not informed; but when he came back he found the people gathered on the shore and waiting for him. They had enjoyed his presence and instructions, and seen his miracles, and they were so anxious for his return that they resolved to be at the place of landing in season to welcome him, and when he came they received him with rejoicing.

This incident is full of instruction and encouragement, and was doubtless recorded for our learning on whom the ends of the world are come. Let us inquire then what is meant by waiting for Christ's return, when he has been for a longer or shorter time absent.

First—It implies desire. When we wait for an absent friend it is not in a state of indifference; it is because we want to see him and want to enjoy the pleasure of his society. So it was with that waiting company on the shore of the lake. They would not have gathered there, much less would they have waited, if they had not wished for his return. Neither can a church that once enjoyed the special presence of Christ in a revival be said to be waiting for a like blessing if they do not earnestly desire his return. Time passes. Years perhaps roll away. They sometimes talk about him and profess, it may be, to lament his long absence. But they are not waiting for him till they desire his return so earnestly as to pray for it. Anything short of this is not waiting for him.

Second—Waiting for Christ implies hope and expectation. Thus when you are waiting for a valued friend, who has been some time absent, you have some expectation at least that he will come, though you do not certainly know when, else you would not wait for him; you could not; you would have no motive to wait any longer, however anxious you might be to meet and welcome him. Neither could a church in a time of general declension be said to wait for the Savior's return if they had no encouragement to expect it. It is not in the constitution of the human mind, sanctified or unsanctified, to wait for anything without hope or expectation. The multitude would not have stood on the shore of Gallilee, anxiously looking across the water to catch the first glimpse of the boat, if they had not expected it. They would have gone away, or rather they would not have come.

Third—Waiting for Christ to come and revive his work implies a preparation in the church to receive him. When he came back from his mission across the lake the people "gladly received him." They were ready to listen to his instruction and witness his wonderful works. This was what they came together for. They did not remain at home till they heard that he had landed, but went down to meet and welcome him. This was their preparation. This was the proof that they were anxiously waiting for him.

And how do you do when you are expecting a visit from a dear friend, or when you are looking for some distinguished guest, and do not know at what time he will come whether to-day or to-morrow? You don't put off your preparation till the coach drives up to the door. You consider before hand what kind of reception he will reasonably expect, and do your best to prepare for it. You would not, when you met him, say: "I am very glad to see you; I have been expecting and waiting for you a long time," when you had got nothing ready to make him welcome and comfortable. There may be delay, but there is no real waiting like that which we are now considering, which does not include these three things at least—desire, expectation, and some good degree of preparation for the desired visit or blessing.

And now, dear brethren, how is it with you? How is it with your church? Much as we hear and read of revivals, and however so many of them there may be in the land, hundreds, yea, thousands of churches, remain unvisited, and yours may be one of the number. How long is it then since the Savior made you his last visit? How many years since he was with you, calling sinners to repentance, and making them "willing in the day of his power?" How long has he been gone, and you mourned his absence? Are you waiting for him to return, as the people were at the Lake of Galilee? Do you earnestly desire him to come to you speedily? Does this desire ascend up to his mercy seat in earnest, persevering prayer? Do you expect him? You may, if you ask aright; for his ear is always open, and he has bound himself by great and precious promises. Have you not been long in a state so cold and indifferent as almost, if not quite, to give up the hope that he will ever return; and have you not very much given over asking him? The people of Galilee received him joyfully, because they were waiting for him, and prepared for his return. Are you, I ask again, looking anxiously out for him? If he were to return, are you prepared to welcome him into your houses and into your hearts? Would he find you waking, and looking out for his return; or would he find you saying: "A little more sleep, a little more slumber, a little more folding of the hands to sleep?" Oh, brethren, this will not do! "It is high time to wake out of sleep." Souls are perishing, and you are answerable. Christ would, ere this, have been with you, reviving his work, if you had been waiting for him. Whose urgent voice is it but his that I seem to hear at your very threshold: "Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in unto him, and sup with him, and he with me." And if he will come to me who is waiting for him, how much more if he finds all his friends as he did on the shore of Galilee?

Jackson District.

YAZOO CITY.

EDITOR OF NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE: I left Jackson for Yazoo City on the 3 o'clock A. M. train, arrived at Vaugn station at 5:40 A. M., and from thence took stage to Yazoo. This stage ride was harder than a day's labor at sawing wood, for the old fashioned vehicle would rock furiously on its stout leather straps as its wheels struggled over the rough, uneven road. It was slow, too; for we were over seven hours in reaching our destination. It was a dear ride; for the fare was five dollars. Seven dollars and twenty-five cents from Jackson to Yazoo, a distance of little over fifty-five miles!

Yazoo City is a quite compactly built little city on the banks of the Mississippi. Notwithstanding the dull times it exhibits quite a deal of bussines life. Its appearance indicates energy among its citizens. I found Brother Gibbs, the pastor of our church, well situated, happy at home, eminently prosperous in his field of labor, and greatly beloved by the people.

Some of our white citizens had anticipated my coming, and at three o'clock Saturday afternoon an immense audience, with a sprinkling of whites, were assembled at the church, demanding a speech. I spoke on the importance of industry, education, and the exercise of true manhood. At night we had preaching and a crowded house; might have had penitents, but our services were cut short to prepare for quarterly conference.

Now there comes next an event that has deeply afflicted this community. About three o'clock I was awakened by the ringing of our church bell—the church is on the lot adjoining my place of lodging. Other bells sound alarming peals. I spring from my bed; open the door; the sky is lit with crimson splendor. "Fire! fire! the town is on fire!" In an instant I was among the excited crowd, who were battling with the flames that had already nearly devoured one of the largest stores in the city. In vain did the little old rusty engines play upon the towering blaze—on they swept in maddened grandeur, and crash after crash was heard as one roof after another fell. In about two short hours nineteen buildings were destroyed, and among them the finest stores in Yazoo City.

We thank God it is no worse, for it seemed at one time that the whole city would be destroyed. The loss can not be less than two hundred thousand dollars.

The enterprising merchants who are the victims of this fire are deserving of great sympathy. We hope they will speedily meet with that aid which will enable them to rebuild. The most of the property was uninsured.

Notwithstanding our hard work at the fire and great excitement I preached at eleven o'clock to a crowded house. In the afternoon sacrament was administered, and there was an overwhelming demonstration of the Spirit's power. At night, after preaching, there were many penitents around the altar. Nineteen persons joined the church on last sabbath, half of them having come from other churches. Forty-five have joined since conference. I therefore "book" Yazoo charge "all right."

There is a very general serious impression on the minds of the community at this time. I think there are signs of a gracious revival. A very intelligent and moral young man, George Thomas, who acts as clerk for the church, is charged with the duty of setting down the names of those who are received. He is not a professor of religion, and yet so greatly did the Spirit strive with him, that he secretly put his name down on the church book, and will no doubt soon find peace in Jesus.

The colored people of Yazoo are very industrious, and none are suffering.

The African Methodist Episcopal church at this point is not flourishing. They have but few members. The pastor of our church seeks to maintain the most brotherly relations, but so far all of his overtures have been rejected. Why will not our brethren of the African Methodist Episcopal church quit their suicidal course?

I got one cash subscriber for the ADVOCATE.

My next quarterly conference is at Jackson. JAMES LYNCH,
Presiding Elder, Jackson District.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

She Hath Done What She Could.

No doubt this is the secret record of many a godly woman who is not widely known beyond her own household. It is not great and public love to Jesus that only meets his favor, but he is pleased with the perfume of many an alabaster box broken in secret places—in the family, at the sick bedside—in the endurance of poverty and trial. The sweet perfume rises in "Thy will be done," and there as she sits at his feet, he says, "She hath done what she could." M. A.

Secret of Success.

It is not by regretting what is irreparable that true work is to be done, but by making the best of what we are. It is not by complaining that we have not the right tools, but by using well the tools we have. Where we are and what we are is God's providential arrangement, and the wise and manly way is to look our disadvantages in the face and see what can be done with them. Life, like war, is a series of mistakes, and he is not the best Christian nor the best general who makes the fewest false steps. Poor mediocrity may do that, but he is the best who wins the most splendid victories by the retrieval of mistakes. Forget mistakes; organize victory out of mistakes.

New Orleans Advocate.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion.....50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞THE NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1868.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

H. C. WARMOTH.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,

OSCAR J. DUNN.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,

GEORGE BOVEE.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,

SIMEON BELDEN.

FOR AUDITOR,

GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.

FOR TREASURER,

ANTOINE DUBUCLET.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,

T. W. CONWAY.

Rev. Dr. Newman will preach in his church to-morrow morning at eleven o'clock, and at 7 P. M. he will deliver the fourth sermon in the course on the Prodigal Son—"The Prodigal's Recovery."

COLLATION.—There will be a collation given for the benefit of the Marais Street Methodist Episcopal Church, at the Lutheran Hall, on Gravier street, between Howard and Freret streets, on Wednesday, March 4, at seven o'clock. Tickets for supper fifty cents.

The article on Western Africa, by Mr. Hyde, is unavoidably crowded out this week, but will appear in our next issue.

Hon. Thomas W. Conway

is again in our midst. He is deservedly one of the most popular Republicans in the state, and his election is certain. The freedmen remember him with gratitude for his kindness to them when he was at the head of the freedmen's bureau, and every freedman in the state will vote for him. He has the skill, energy, and adaptation to reorganize the educational department of our state, and this is an additional reason why every black man in Louisiana should vote the ticket that bears the name of THOMAS W. CONWAY.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the ADVOCATE they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the ADVOCATE for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans ADVOCATE may be had for 1868 for THREE DOLLARS a year in ADVANCE, or ONE DOLLAR a quarter in ADVANCE.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

New Orleans Advocate, Official Journal of the United States.

On the 25th instant we received the following official notification:

"In pursuance of the authority vested in me by an act of Congress I have selected the paper published by you as one of the papers in which such laws, treaties, and advertisements as are described shall be published; and I have this day notified each head of the several executive departments and each judge of United States courts in Louisiana of this selection.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

EDWARD MCPHERSON,

Clerk of the House of Representatives United States.

To the publisher of the New Orleans ADVOCATE, New Orleans, La."

For the above courtesy we return our thanks, and shall endeavor to do the work assigned us in a satisfactory manner. There is no loyal weekly published in Louisiana which has a larger circulation than the ADVOCATE, and not more than one daily. There is not a village of any considerable size in this state where the ADVOCATE is not regularly sent in from five to thirty copies, and it is customary for some of our preachers to read the ADVOCATE from the pulpit to the people. And this official printing will enable us to increase its circulation to a still larger degree.

Christian Activity.

What a tireless worker was Christ! St. Matthew says that "Jesus went about all Galilee, healing all manner of sickness among the people:" and St. Peter informs us that our Lord "went about doing good." Coming into the world as the teacher of God's will and of man's duty, he assailed error wherever it appeared; denounced prejudice whenever manifested, and taught truth whenever he could get a Nicodemus as a hearer or a multitude as his auditory. At the tender age of twelve, when most youths of that age are given to play, he was found in the temple reasoning with the Jewish doctors; and when his mother reproved him for his absence how remarkable his reply: "Wist ye not that I must be about my father's business?" Although his public ministry lasted but three years, yet how numerous were his sermons. He went from village to village, and whether by the wayside to the blind man, or at Jacob's well to the women of Sychar, or on the wave-crest to Peter, or on the deck of a fishboat to his disciples, or on the mount and in the Temple to the multitude, he lost no opportunity to teach truth to the people. Although He never passed out of the little province of Palestine, yet He was a constant traveler, repeating his journeys from the river to the sea, from Bethlehem to Ceasarea to Phillippi. It is no marval that He was weary and slept. And to the sermons He preached and the conversations He held, He added the labors of the great physician and the good Samaritan. Pitying the physical condition of man, He cast out devils, restored the lame, deaf, dumb, and blind, healed the lepers, and raised the dead. And it is only reasonable to conclude that only a tithe of the miracles He wrough are recorded. Nor should we lose sight of the fact that after the labors of the day were over, He usually spent the night, in whole or in part, in prayer to His Heavenly Father.

Such is the example of Christian activity which our Lord has set before us. We may not imitate Him in the miracles He wrought, or in the matchless sermons He delivered, but we may imitate His spirit to labor for the good of others. Too many of His followers seem content with securing their own salvation, and rarely if ever seek to do good to others, but such persons are deceived. Genuine piety is essentially benevolent. The true Christian is intent on the salvation of others. He longs to tell of a Savior's love, and watches for opportunities to speak a word for Jesus. In a more comprehensive view the intelligent and earnest Christian is no less systematic in his endeavors to do good than he is zealous in accomplishing what he finds to do. It may, therefore, be well for us to glance at some of the fields of Christian labor.

I. There is the family, the precious household, composed of the dear ones at home. He is more than an infidel who neglects the spiritual interests of his own family. As is the family so is society, for society is but the aggregation of families. Home influence is the most potent power in this world, and every parent should tremble with the weight of this tremendous responsibility. No where is he to walk with greater circumspection than before his children; no where is he to watch the movements of his spirit with greater care; no where is he to be so kind and gentle, so devout and happy, as in the ordinary movements of home. Never should he forget for a moment that God demands of him the conversion of his children.

II. The church is another field for usefulness. Each member is an influential constituent part of the whole. It is a universal law that the aggregate character of a family, a church, or a nation, is the result of the character of each individual. Bodies give off caloric till an equilibrium of temperature is restored. All things in heaven, earth, and hell tend to assimilation. Herein is the power of the individual member. A dead member is like a diseased limb, commmunicating its putrifaction to the rest of the body. On the other hand, what influence a single living member may exert for Christ in his own immediate church. How many there are to be revived, to be strengthened, to be cheered. And where in all this wide world is example so powerful as in the church of God? It is the place for example, and we expect exumple from each.

III. Nor should we fail to maintain the Sunday-school. This is Christ's flower garden, and his people are the gardeners. It may be overgrown with wild weeds of neglect, choking the feeble little flowers, until only now and then one is visible; or it may be beautiful to look upon, when the paths are all clean, the flower-beds evenly and tastefully laid out, freed from weeds and wild grasses, and where the flowers singly or in groups are thriving, sweet to smell and beautiful to look upon. Jesus loves to walk in such a garden. Great talents are not indispensible to such a field of labor. He who has but one talent may labor here, and if nothing more may cultivate some simple flower. Nor should it be forgotten that in no department of Christian labor is the reward so remunerative and certain as in the Sunday-school.

IV. Were there not danger in overwhelming the mind with the magnitude of the thought we might mention the world as a field for Christian activity. But this is too large, and hence it is better to speak of your immediate neighbor in whose behalf you should labor. Often ask the question, What is the spiritual condition of my bosom friend, my business associate, my casual acquaintance? This is the work that God lays right at your door. It is not necessary to cross seas and scale mountains and traverse continents to find those without Christ. They are nigh thee; perhaps they are now at thy side.

Impeachment.

The great excitement of the past week has been the impeachment of the President. Since the murder of Mr. Lincoln no event has occurred which has so aroused and intensified the public feeling. For several days the excitement in Washington was extreme, and rumors reached us of a probable clash of arms; but we are glad to record the fact that the public mind has calmly settled down to the necessities of the hour, and to the solemn determination that Mr. Johnson MUST be removed from his high position, which he has dishonored by the repeated abuse of Congress and the violation of the acknowledged laws of the land. It has been the wish of the Republican party to allow Mr. Johnson to remain in office his official term, and to this end Congress has patiently endured his all but armed opposition for two years. Indeed, such is the profound respect for that office entertained by the Republicans that they preferred to suffer wrong rather than have it said that an American president had been degraded, although the degradation was just. But patience has ceased to be a virtue, and with great unanimity the house has voted to impeach Andrew Johnson, President of the United States. It was a solemn hour in the history of the republic, and one which every Republican would have gladly avoided; but Congress would not have been true to its high responsibilities if immediate steps had not been taken to vindicate the nation's laws, and remove from power an officer who has treated with contempt the legal acts of the legislative branch of the republic. Not twenty days ago the purpose of impeaching Mr. Johnson had been abandoned, and there is a gentleman now in this city, who in company with many of the Republican congressmen, together with their ladies, attended one of the President's receptions, cordially shook him by the hand, and desired that the future might be better than the past. But Mr. Johnson interpreted their friendly overture as a triumph on his part, and as an ignominious yielding on the part of the Republicans, and such was his deportment on the night of the reception, that the above-mentioned gentlemen predicted that "Mr. Johnson would do some foolish thing within ten days." And the prediction came to pass. The devil, in the person of Jerry Black, suggested to the President: "Now is your time; now you have them; they have failed; you have conquered; and now show your hand." Following Mr. Black's suggestion the President again removed Mr. Stanton, which was a violation of the tenure of office law, and appointed General Lorenzo Thomas Secretary of War ad interim. Mr. Stanton refused to obey the order, and he is still in possession of the war department. His removal is the cause and the occasion of the action of Congress, and the whole nation will approve their calm and judicious course. The Senate has been formally informed of the action of the House, and thecommittees ordered by law have been appointed, and ere another issue of the ADVOCATE, Andrew Johnson may stand before the bar of the Senate to answer to the charges preferred against him. Several attempts have been made to institute proceedings in the supreme court of the United States, that the constitutionality of the tenure of office law might be decided before the final action in the Senate; but these attempts have all failed, and the high probability is that the trial will proceed. And of the magnitude and solemn dignity of such a trial all must be conscious, and one which none can contemplate without profound interest. It will be the first trial of a president of the United States in the history of this country.

General Grant.

And now, Mr. President, when my honor as a soldier, and integrity as a man have been so violently assailed, pardon me for saying I can but regard this whole matter from begining to end as an attempt to involve me in a resistance to the law for which you hesitated to assume the responsibility, in order to destroy my character before the country. I am in a measure confirmed in this conclusion by your recent orders, directing me to disobey orders from the secretary of war, my superior and your subordinate, without countermanding his authority whom I am to disobey. With assurance Mr. President, that nothing less than a vindication of my personal honor and character could have induced this correspondence on my part,

I have the honor to be, very respectfully your obedient servant,

U. S. GRANT, General.

Rarely in American history has any public man, by square rugged acts, without any ostentation or seeking for display wrought for himself, slowly but surely, so solid a foothold in the respect and confidence of the American people as has General Grant in the last few years. Next to the sterling qualities of patriotism, prudence, patience, perseverance, and indomitable will which have especially illustrated his career, we esteem most highly in him, that characteristic one of reticence which has been so widely criticised. The American youth who are to shape their aspirations and model their characters upon the examples furnished from the lives of the public men now on the stage of action, owe a large debt to the man who has pre-eminently taught the people the worth of silence. If Grant had done nothing else than to teach Young America that a man can become great and honored in the United States without making speeches, it would be the best thing for the future statesmen of the country that he should be made its president. When our young men will be taught by public opinion, and a few such examples as that of Grant, that the avenues to political distinction and preferment are no longer to be won by blating on the street corners and at ward clubs, and that the mere gift of speech is no longer in popular ettimation the best measrue of political ability, a sound and wholesome turn will be given to their energies and ambitions. More young men will seek to become successful engineers, farmers, and tanners; and fewer will ruin themselves and disgrace professions for which they are not adapted, by trying to become lawyers and doctors, or swell the ragged and mangy ranks of the American lazzaroni, the professional politicians, whose existence is fast becoming a festering sore on the body politic. Lesson first of Grant's success to the American people will be the value in politics as in other things of good hard sense, and of keeping your mouth shut. Lesson second is that of the safety of a greater reliance on the people in all emergencies, and of less dependence upon so-called popular leaders, or idols of the mob.

A plain, silent man, and an humble citizen of six years ago, carries away the honors of the greatest war of our history from the most brilliant genuises and the foremost military men of the country, and now bids fair to outrun the astute, the eloquent, the distinguished, the popular, the trained, the influential, the learned, and the really able jurists, statesmen, and legislators of the land, in the race for that goal of American ambition, the presidency.

That means this; not that the man of learning, eloquence, popular influence, mental power, and political eminence, is not better qualified than any plain, silent, and obscure man you can pick up; but that a plain man, with the homely but sterling qualities of good hard sense, judgment of men, determination, prudence, perseverance, and honesty, in sufficient measure, is a good man at all times, in the most trying emergencies, in war or in peace, to have at the helm, and that when once found the people will not lightly let him go. This we take it so far, to be chief lesson of Grant's successful career and the key to the hold which he eminently possesses upon the confidence of the people; not that we do not believe he has qualifications of a higher and wider range than these, which he is not generally credited with in the estimation of those who frame public opinion, but that they are the ones which have chiefly contributed to his present elevation, and have been the most valuable to the country.

We think that a discerning unprejudiced mind can not fail to discern in his acts, writings, sayings, and character as a whole, the indications of certain intellectual and moral qualities of a very high order, immeasurably superior indeed, to those possessed by the hordes of scheming politicians, the so called statesmen of the day, who surround him, and the swarms of shallow pated critics who think that they have measured him with their own narrow tape lines.

If magnanimity, a certain loftiness of sentiment which despises mean things, generosity, truthfulness, an absence of jealousy, the faculty of selecting right counselors and useful subordinates, firmness, tenacity, endurance, patience, the capability of growth with circumstances and of elevating oneself above the prejudices of one's surroundings and education, and a capacity of being still taught something, if these mean anything in a man and are indications of a high, noble nature, capable of becoming greater and better with high opportunities, we think that Grant's history shows that he possesses them, and that he is one of the few men now before the public eye who is capable, through their having, of rendering the presidency more illustrious than the presidency will him. We think that there are a very few of our public men whose acts have shown so thorough, just, and prompt an appreciation of all the emergencies through which we have passed and are passing, such faithful and constant adherence to his convictions, with such studious refraining from the courting of popular favor and notoriety. These are the highest qualities of true statesmanship; and believing him to possess them in a pre-eminent degree, we nominate for president Ulysses S. Grant.

Hancock.

When this gentleman assumed command of the fifth military district we extended to him the hand of welcome and bade him God-speed. We had carefully watched his course during the war and had followed his gallant career through many a well fought battle. We knew him only as a soldier of the Republic and one who deservrd well of his countrymen, and as such we received and awarded to him such a welcome as his military genius and services demanded. We knew that he had been appointed by Mr. Johnson to superceed our gallant and Republican Sheridan, and that the disloyal of this city hailed his appointment with great ecstacy; yet we felt bound to give General Hancock a cordial welcome. For our course in the matter we were denounced in our annual conference and remonstrated with by personal friends; yet we think we did right under the circumstances, and we sincerely wish that like circumstances justified a like course on our part at the present time.

But General Hancock is another illustration that a gallant soldier is not necessarily a wise statesman. With a pomposity poorly becoming our Republican institutions, and with a flourish of trumpets inconsistent with the gravity of the events through which we are passing he assumed command. His order announcing that he entered upon his duties as commander of the fifth military district was the keynote of his administration, and has been the keynote of the disloyal in Louisiana ever since. Sent here as a military commander, came here as a military officer, and came to execute a military law; yet he announced his purpose to give supremacy to civil law. With more common sense than Hancock, General Meade announced that he came to execute the reconstruction laws of Congress, which are essentially military. And such should have been the announcement of the commander of this district. Yet had his course been uniform, his administration would have been more tolerable; but when his Democratic views demanded it, he disregarded the spirit and letter of the reconstruction laws of Congress, and gave preference to the civil laws of Louisiana, as when he revoked the jury order, which allowed black men to serve as jurors. On the other hand, when he found it agreeable to his Democratic views to ignore the civil laws of Louisiana, and use the power which the reconstruction laws of Congress gave him, he did so, as when he removed the members of the common council because they had acted under the civil law. Urged on by disloyal partisan leaders, he did the same thing when he interrupted the Baker investigation, using his military power to stop the investigation, before a civil tribunal which was not in sympathy with the political views of his friends, and turn Mr. Baker and others over to a civil officer who is not in sympathy with congressional reconstruction. And we venture the assertion that Hancock's repudiation of the state notes is the most remarkable interference with the civil laws of Louisiana to be found on the military records of this state. This is the beginning, and a fair specimen of Democratic repudiation; but we trust Democracy will not be allowed another opportunity of repudiation.

Such are some of the contradictions of the administration of General Hancock in Louisiana. We could wish that he was one thing or the other—all military or all civil in his administration, and then we would know where to find him.

And it is equally true that Hancock has steadily ignored the political rights of the black man extended to him by the acts of Congress. By a special order the man of color is not permitted to sit as juror; and it is a remarkable fact that his order changing the complexion of the common council appointed by Sheridan took out EVERY BLACK MAN in that council. In these acts he has not carried out the spirit and letter of the congressional acts of reconstruction, and has denied citizenship to a class of men who have been made citizens by the highest legislative power in the land. And the black men of Louisiana have nothing to hope from Johnson's military appointee in Louisiana.

Of course, we do not claim the right to dictate a man as to his social life—that is, as to those with whom he may associate; but we do claim that a commanding general sent here to execute the laws of Congress should number among his advisers some of the friends of Congress. Yet it is a notable fact that those with whom General Hancock takes "sweet counsel" are men who have not a particle of sympathy for nor faith in the reconstruction acts of Congress. We do not know of a single republican of standing who has received the confidence of General Hancock. Such is his contempt for Republicans, that he declined to associate with his old companions in arms lest he should be suspected of lending aid to the Republican party. We refer now especially to his absence from the reunion of ex-officers of the Union army and navy, held in celebration of Washington's birthday. We know not what General Hancock hopes to gain by such a course. But we assure him, with all due respect, that he is now trusting those who court him only to use him, and rejecting those who will have the power to determine his future, as well as that of every other general now commanding in the South.

Washington's Birthday.

The chief feature in the celebration of this day was the meeting of the ex-officers of the army and navy of the United States, held in Lyceum hall at 11 A. M. The hall was elegantly decorated with flags and flowers, and a band of music played several national airs. General Cyrus Bussey was the orator of the day. In consequence of a severe cold, he was compelled to omit parts of his well prepared address and to hurry through his oration. This his audience regretted, as all were proud of the man who would boldly stand up in New Orleans and avow his loyal sentiments and treat with scorn and contempt the spirit of prejudice manifested toward those who have chosen Louisiana as their adopted state. When in usual health, we regard General Bussey one of the most agreeable and effective speakers in New Orleans. At the close of his oration, General Sheldon was called out and gave utterance to those lofty sentiments of patriotism which awakened responsive cheers throughout the audience. But the absence of General Hancock was generally regretted. A committee had waited on him eight days previously and had invited him to be present, but at the last moment he sent a note that he had a previous engagement. But we are frank to say that General Hancock has more previous engagements than any other public man we have ever known. The fact, is General Hancock declined to associate with his old comrades in arms, because it would be distasteful to the Johnson men in this city, and to his master in the White house at Washington.

In the evening the ex-officers held a banquet in the same hall, an account of which may be found in another column.

Young Men's Association.

The first lecture in the course before the Young Men's Association was delivered in the Ames M. E. Church on last Monday evening. The audience was so large as to greatly encourage this effort of the young men. General Bussey, the president of the association, presided, and made some timely remarks touching the interest the public should take in this movement. He then announced Rev. Mr. Plumb, of the Congregational Church, who gave a most instructive and entertaining lecture on the spirit and manner in which young men should engage in the activities of life, especially in working for Christ. His analysis of true and false ambition was accurate and incisive. He held up to public contempt the jealous man who seeks to displace another from a position of power and influence, to gratify his own sordid love of human praise, and who would rather not have good done at all, if he himself can not be the recognized agent. He said the good man cared not where he worked for God, and would not turn away from the poor and lowly, so long as he could do his Master's will. His picture of the man who made self the centre of all his plans was well drawn, and the feeling inspired in the audience by the picture was one of mingled scorn and pity. In a practical manner Mr. Plumb pointed out how young men should work for God, and presenting such motives as are high and holy. At the conclusion of the lecture Dr. Newman moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer, which was unanimously adopted. General Bussey then announced that on next Monday evening the association would hold a meeting, at which Mr. Theo. J. Brown would give a recitation, Judge Shannon read an essay, Messrs. Wallace and Carr debate an important subject, and that on the Monday evening following Judge Howe would deliver the second lecture in the course before the association.

Mass Meeting.

One of the grandest mass meetings ever held in this city took place last Saturday evening at the Mechanics' Institute. So many thousands were in attendance that it was found necessary to organize a meeting outside of the Institute in addition to the one held within. Governor Warmoth, Congressman Sypher, and Hon. Mr. Blackburn made the principal addresses, and which were received with great enthusiasm. This meeting was the opening of the campaign in Louisiana, and was a grand beginning. It was only another proof that the masses are for the REGULAR STATE TICKET, and intend that H. C. Warmoth shall be the next governor of Louisiana.

The Lord's Prayer.

We have received from the publisher, F. Gerhard, 15 Dey street, New York, an illustrated copy of the Lord's Prayer. The size of the engraving is twenty-four by thirty inches. Price $2. Address the publisher.

EDITORIAL NOTICES.

Advertising Agencies.

Whoever has goods, wares or professional ability, of which they wish to inform the world, they can not do better than apply to a first class advertising agent, who has nearly all the papers of the United States and Canadas on file, especially the religious papers, and can tell their circulation, rates, etc. Among these agencies we know of none more reliable, none who make quicker returns, and none that we can more cheerfully recommend than the firm of Carlton & Smith, 171 Broadway, New York. Having done business with them ever since the publication of the ADVOCATE, we speak from experience.

A. Simon, 85 Baronne street, is now receiving subscriptions for the "American Conflict," the history of our late war, by Horace Greeley.

This is acknowledged on all hands, even by those who are no friends of Mr. Greeley, to be the most impartial, comprehensive, and reliable history of the war that has yet been written.

Its commendations are not confined alone to the Northern press, but that of the South has also spoken in its praise. The work is published in good style, and at a very reasonable price.

"Arthur's Home Magazine" for March abounds as usual with interesting and instructive reading matter. Two beautiful engravings adorn it, one of which, "Leaving Home," speaks volumes. A piece of music, "They Met but Once;" "Bursting of an Iceberg;" "Left Alone in the Mammoth Cave," "Temperance Stories," etc., are among its contents. Published by T. S. Arthur, Arch street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The first Alaska paper was published by the expedition sent by the Western Union Telegraph company, and was called the Esquimaux.

The mayor of St. Louis has relieved over seventeen thousand poor this winter, and still there is great suffering.

SPEECH

OF

W. JASPER BLACKBURN

OF CLAIBORNE PARISH.

DELIVERED BEFORE A REPUBLICAN MASS MEETING AT THE MECHANICS' INSTITUTE, NEW ORLEANS, FEBRUARY 22, 1868.

REPUBLICAN FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS:

The right peaceably to assemble and freely interchange views in regard to a common destiny has ever been the boast of American citizenship, and it is for this purpose that we as freemen have met together to-night. But can we resist the recollection that the lapse of time has been brief since the day dawned upon the free exercise of this right in the "land we love"—the glorious, smiling, sunny South? Let us not, however, dwell too sadly upon the past, but proceed to enjoy the present, and build for the future.

My friends, is there a man now before me among all this great "sea of upturned faces," of every hue, who can lay his hand upon his "naked left breast" and feel the throbbing pulsations of his quickening heart and then turn his face to heaven and fail to thank the God of mercy and of all goodness that he is an inhabitant, a citizen, of the land of Columbia, the land of Washington, the land of freedom? And does not his warm and gushing blood course with increased and accelerated quickness as he calls to mind the living, gladdening truth, that we are now just treading upon the sacred altars of a new liberty and a new civilization which shall soon far eclipse, not only the past of our own history, but all the history of the civilized world? For whereas, my friends, the blot, the withering curse of slavery has heretofore, until recently, bedimmed the otherwise comely brilliancy of American statesmanship, and marred the otherwise glorious pages of our country's record, it is now no longer so, but henceforth the soil of America is to be, as it should ever have been, in fact and in truth, the "Land of the free, and the home of the brave." Does not this thought make your heart throb with joy and gladness, and with increased awe and veneration toward the God of love? No longer can any slave tread the soil of America, dedicated anew as it is to freedom, and baptized afresh in the blood of the martyrs of liberty. Let this fact be recorded here to-night; let it be "printed in a book," and "graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever," as the spirit of the immortal Washington on whose birthday we are assembled, looks down from the jeweled walks of Heaven and blesses the record.

This much, fellow citizens, by way of generality. Now you must bear with me, if I seem somewhat slow and tedious; for I design that what I say here to-night shall be printed, and I desire that it shall appear just as I deliver it, and I ask, respectfully, that no reporter will misrepresent me or change what I say, unless it be for the better, in style of expression.

We have met, my friends, to ratify the Radical Republican nominations for state officers at the ensuing election. Let us see how the land lies. Of course we will pass resolutions ratifying and heartily indorsing every regular nominee on the state ticket. That is easily done, and will not take long. But the thing for us to do is to meet our enemies and defeat them; and as a skillful general will first try to ascertain the strength of his enemy, and next his plans of operation, let us, in like manner, look to this in a political sense, and inquire into the purposes of our adversaries, and scan their means of accomplishment.

I lay it down, then, as a starting point, and as a proposition which can not be successfully met and refuted, that the main purpose of our enemy is to defeat the present plan of reconstruction, and thus destroy the political power of the true friends of the national government as against the exploded theory of state sovereignty; and that the main weapon to be used in the accomplishment of this purpose is the hypocritical hue and cry of love for the Union, and concern for the welfare of the so-called negro. And as there are many other speakers present to address you, I will devote my time specially to my own immediate section—the fifth congressional district. For data I will look to the public press there as an indication of what may be termed a rotten, though a predominating, "public sentiment," among that class known as enfranchised rebels.

First in this line I will quote from the organ of the so-called Conservative Democracy in my own town and parish—a paper which eulogizes those who pander to treason, and vilifies the friends of liberty. A scion of played out chivalry just retiring from the editorial tripod of this journal indulges in the following strain:

He gives this, among other reasons, for selling out his interest in the paper, viz:

"Finding, too, that the so-called convention would not prevent our continuing to practice law, we concluded to sell out to those who had more time and money than we," etc.

So you see how he appreciates our leniency in allowing him to practice law, for he is a sort of a lawyer; but you may see more plainly his sense of gratitude from some other sentiments in his valedictory. He proceeds as follows:

"As for ourself, we think the strong arm of an emperor will soon be required to govern the nation." * * *

"We verily believe the leaders of the Radicals would, and will, force another war, rather than fail to cram down our throats the hellish reconstruction bill of congress," etc. * * * * * *

"One more civil war, and farewell to democracy and republicanism. The paralyzed, oppressed, robbed, insulted, heart-broken South, God bless her!" etc. * * *

"We are passing through the different stages of national existence more rapidly and on a grander scale than other nations, it may be, but their history will be our history. Republicanism must give place to monarchy in a few years, at most. May God speed the day! if it will be any relief from the oppression and wrongs of radicalism and a negro equality party. We, for one, are ready to fight again at any moment, if the battle cry is sounded against the party now in power in congress."

Thus you can plainly see that this ex-editor is mad, and that too without any system; is mad because the rebellion failed and because the former slaves are now free.

Then comes this retiring gentleman's successor, one Allen C. Hill, a real live brother of the immaculate and never to be forgotten Ben Hill, of Georgia; but as Ben is said to carry all the brains of the family, the honor of carrying all the midriff is by mutual consent accorded to Allen. But Allen is my neighbor, and a very clever fellow in his way; but is, like his smarter brother, a raving maniac in politics. Listen at him:

"Our motto is, 'This is a white man's country, with a white man's government, and the white man must, will, and shall rule.'"

He italicises this to make it more emphatic, just as if the school children all over the land did not know it is the veriest platitude and quibble ever uttered, meaning much or nothing, according to the sense in which it is used. It proves, however, what I have before said, that these men seek to win the day by duplicity and falsehood.

But he proceeds and proves his love and the love of his party for the poor downtrodden freedman in the following handsome manner and style:

"All means by designing men to give place and power to the African race, over, or equal to our own blood and kindred, will be opposed with all the vim with which we are possessed.

"We submit to the powers that be, the emancipation of the negro, but will not withhold our honest conviction, that the negro was created for a slave, constructed socially, physically, and morally by God himself for slavery, and nothing else. That he, in due time, will return to his natural state by the hand of Providence, either by the virtue of a true constitutional government, or by the mean, cowardly measure of a military radical despotism.

"We shall fight against negro equality (except with themselves and their associates), as unnatural—impossible—debasing to the white man, and unkind to the negro."

Another platitude, you see, and a contemptible quibble to deceive, or an ignorant ebullition of nonsense.

But he proceeds further: Listen, my colored friends, and prepare to admire the high toned and well cultivated generosity of this very refined conservative Democratic party—a party upon whose support those who oppose our ticket mainly if indeed not solely rely. Listen:

"We oppose negro suffrage, because this is a trust, not a right, and not to be placed in the hands of a baboon or a fool, and the white man who advocates this doctrine is untrue to himself, false to his country, a deceiver of the negro, and barters away his own liberty for a few short days of promotion through the vote of these poor unfortunate victims.

"We can not consent to negro rule. Born a slave, by nature a fool, educated alone in blind imitation, he can not make laws to control the white race. This is too much for the American mind."

That is all very fine, and I know you will not fail to appreciate it properly. But there is more yet of the same sort in the same paper. I find in its classic columns a numerously signed call for a public meeting, the main object and purpose of which is thus candidly expressed:

"The citizens of the parish of Claiborne are respectfully and earnestly solicited to attend a mass meeting in the town of Homer, on Saturday, the 15th of February next. The object of this meeting is to take into consideration and devise the best and most expeditious method of defeating the ratification of the negro radical constitution, which will soon be submitted to the people of Louisiana for their action thereon."

Thus you see this "God and morality party" is predetermined to vote against the forthcoming constitution whatever it may be.

This "call" then proceeds to give the reasons for organization:

"It is essential that we should organize, and be prepared to meet this demon of radicalism that threatens to destroy every vestige of civil liberty, to annihilate the dearest rights and privileges of citizenship; to make you aliens and outlaws in the land of your fathers; to reduce you and your children to the debased condition of vassals; to elevate your newly-enfranchised slaves to the dignity of office; to make you bow submissively to this unprincipled and ignorant horde of Africans, who in their savage exultation will inflict upon you the most inexorable tyranny, and forge for you and your children new and more galling chains of slavery."

Now, my friends, you all can see how unjust and even infamous is such language as this. When I look back and call to mind what I know, from my own personal observation, in regard to the long patience and submissive suffering of the poor, downtrodden, bleeding slave, and the heartless, soulless exactions of some, at least, of his former drivers and task-masters, my heart bleeds within me, while at the same time my soul looms up to the God of freedom in grateful thankfulness, and I am tempted to shout aloud in renewed accents of fresh gladness the song of Moses, as he stood upon the dry and safe shores of the Red sea and beheld the destruction of the heartless pursuers! Look back even during the years of the late war in the South; mark the conduct of the faithful and submissive slave to his proud and traitorous master through those dark years of trial and suffering; and then talk to me if you can about the "savage exultation" which the African will ever inflict upon the white race of this country! I have seen and know too much of these things to have less than a burning, withering contempt for the man or the party who would use such language or resort to such means for political success.

I might pass from the opposition journals of my own town and parish—for we have two such sheets in Claiborne—to the howling tory sheets of the adjacent parishes. For mind you, fellow citizens, there is not a single loyal newspaper in the fifth congressional district of any long standing and outspoken independence except the Homer Iliad. And I say this neither the more nor less boldly and emphatically because I am the proprietor and editor of that paper. I am proud to be so. It stands alone in its glory now as in the past, battling fearlessly for the right against brute and brutish force; like a lion at bay beset and snarled at by enraged but impotent jackals. The Iliad will support your ticket, and it is the only paper in North Louisiana that will, and its editor will support your ticket on the stump as well as through the columns of his paper. I shall do so defiantly, asking of my adversaries no boot.

But I must quote another morsel or two from the Conservative Democratic press of North Louisiana—from the loyal columns of a channel which gives expression to the loyal and truly converted devotion of a truly repentant and loyal constituency!

I have met lately with a copy of a sheet called the Jackson Flag, well known to me before, published in the parish of Jackson, adjoining to Claiborne. It is edited by one "William Stran Custis," who claims to be a lineal descendant of the George Washington family—"on the mother's side." Perhaps he is. If so, he is a degenerate son of a noble ancestry. "But let that pass." I find in his columns some resolutions adopted by the "white men," so-called, of his parish, second-handed from the columns of another tory fugleman of the same "school of music"—the Ouachita Telegraph—a certain class of so-called white men of which latter parish, it seems, first having had the distinguished honor of adopting them.

I will give an extract or two:

"Resolved, That we view with feelings of alarm the headlong course of the radical party in its efforts to subvert the constitution of our fathers, and to erect upon its ruins a system of government repugnant to the teachings of history, destructive to the material and political interests of the country, contrary to the will of the people, as expressed at the recent elections, and ruinous in every aspect to the hopes, interests, and permanent welfare of the American people."

Very modest and sincere, as you will see! Of course these patriotic souls feel great apprehension that the only loyal party now in the country will "subvert" a constitution which they failed to destroy in a four years war! This is very reasonable as well as modest in them, patriotic souls as they are!

"Resolved, That in our solemn judgment the country is verging upon a state of public affairs, under the rule of this party, out of which will spring ruin, anarchy, and a hopeless dissolution of the ties which bind the states, North as well as South, together; and in view of our helpless condition, we therefore earnestly appeal to the conservative sentiment of the North to rescue the reins of government from hands so willfully inclined, and to give us back "the constitution as it is and the Union as it was."

Modest again, and quite as honest! They can now see "ruin, anarchy, and a hopeless dissolution," etc., in a loyal reconstruction of the government, but no such fruits were visible to them in the "infamous rebellion" from the shambles of which they have so recently emerged like vanity shorn of its jewels. And now they want the "Union as it was," including slavery! Of course they do; but thank God, they will never get it. Never!

3. Resolved, That we desire a permanent peace and an early restoration to those rights under the constitution, from which we have been so long and so causelessly excluded, we deplore all agitation which shall tend to keep alive the bitter feelings which were engendered in the heat of armed contest, and which should have perished with the surrender of the defeated confederate forces; and we desire once more to see civil law—administered by the best, ablest, and most vigilant champions of American liberty and progress—become the supreme arbiter between all classes of our people and the harbinger of prosperous and better days.

Oh! poor prodigal creatures! Let the fatted calf be slain! "So long and so causelessly excluded!" Why did they not "think of these things" when they were inaugurating a war against liberty in behalf of slavery? Their present condition would be truly pitiable were not their pretensions so supremely ridiculous and contemptible.

4. Resolved, That as we greatly covet the tranquility and prosperity of those states whose affairs are administered under the benign influence of intelligent white suffrage and the harmonious concert of action of elective civil functionaries, we will, following their example, guard with scrupulous care the admission to the privileges of the elective franchise of any person or persons not fitted therefor, believing, as we here solemnly declare, that when such franchise is indiscriminately exercised, it will result in the upheaval of society, in the ruin of every class of our people alike.

That will do! There is much more of the same sort, in the same strain, in the same paper: a great whining and supplication to the black man not to allow the carpet-baggers and other white radicals to bring on a war of races, and the like. But the "upheaval of society," as a result of colored suffrage in the South, is deemed a good stopping point. It comes with an excellent grace from a set of "educated white men," who voted secession in the calm of a profound and prosperous peace, and thus inaugurated war, and veiled their country in sackcloth and ashes! Think you there was no "upheaval" there? Rather a "downheaval," I should say!

The few extracts, fellow-citizens, which I have quoted from the rebel press of North Louisiana will serve to show you the temper of the "loyal white masses" with whom I have to deal there. And I think this record, brief as it is, will not seem very savory to the loyal sensibilities of our commanding general when displayed in plain print in noonday at the sanctuary of his headquarters. He can at once see the temper of the people—a majority of the white people at least—under the reconstruction acts, which he is sworn to enforce. To suppose that he would wilfully and knowingly uphold and encourage such a set of unreasonable and reckless destructionists would be to suppose that he would wilfully and willingly stultify himself as a man and a gentleman, and blacken forever his bright record as a gallant chieftain in defense of human liberty and constitutional government.

The way is before us, friends, and we have a great work to do; and whatever we find to do in the name and in behalf of loyalty and liberty, let us do it with a will and in earnest. Let us not lag nor be afraid to assert our rights and defend our cause at all times and under all circumstances. We are in the right, and let us justify ourselves as the defenders of the right in the sight of God and just men. Our state ticket may not be all it should be or might have been, but it is a loyal ticket, and let us elect it. And our constitution may not be, when adopted, all that it should be or might have been, but then it will be a loyal constitution, and must and shall be ratified. Let us "be just and fear not." Be just even to our enemies. No, not just to them, but merciful. Justice would hang a large majority of them; but let us do unto them as they would not under like circumstances do unto us—let them live. And if after all our acts of forbearance and mercy they still slander and revile us, let us say to them as "My Uncle Toby" said to the fly: "Go, thing, there is room enough in the world for you and I."

Yes, fellow-citizens, it is not only more becoming in us as loyal men and as gentlemen to be too lenient rather than too exacting toward our erring rebel neighbors, but it is more in accordance with that true, self-sacrificing spirit typified through the example of our Redeemer, and which all men should exercise as far as is possible with human flesh. "To err is human; to forgive divine." We should remember this; and if we should lose in this world by the exercise of this virtue, the gain will await us hereafter. And aside from all considerations such as these, we should bear in mind that we have in our midst many noble and generous spirits who favored secession at the beginning, or who in some way criminated themselves during the war, and are now disfranchised, but really at heart truly repentant, ready to aid in reconstructing the government in a proper way, and are indeed gentlemen, worthy to be trusted in all the relations of life. Such men should be looked upon as sufficient to save the Sodom and Gomorrah of the dead rebellion from a too harsh proscription. I, for one, am willing to take such men by the hand, and work diligently for their speedy and permanent political salvation; and if in thus relieving the truly worthy and deserving, some who are destitute of honor and are unworthy of such treatment are also relieved, then I would plead justification upon the safe and time-honored maxim that it is better that ninety-nine guilty ones should go unpunished than that one innocent party should be wrongfully dealt with.

And there is another important fact which every consistent, steadfast Union man in the South should bear in mind whenever the subject of disfranchisement and proscription comes up. It is a fact palpable to us all—to myself at least—that some of the most turbulent and dangerous characters with whom we have to deal in this important matter of reconstruction are so-called original Union men; men who shouted for the Union until they found their slaves freed, but then turned and cursed not only the day on which they were born, but cursed God and damned the government and their native land. They planted upon slavery and lost, and now seem determined to let their souls sink with their earthly hopes. Such characters are to be watched and shunned politically. They are joined to their idol—let them alone. But the honest confederate, who fought bravely upon principle, and now fairly acknowledges his defeat, will do to trust, and he should not be cast off under the ban of disfranchisement and proscription.

In reconstructing this government we should look to the future as well as to the past. We should have higher motives than personal aggrandizement, or any mere momentary political triumph. We should, it is true, at all hazard see that the government is restored upon a basis which will secure and guarantee for all time perfect equality of right at the ballot box and before the courts; but while we are doing this one great essential thing, we should also bear in mind the equally paramount living truth, as taught us by all history, viz: That no free republican goverment can long stand if any considerable portion of the intelligence of the country are proscribed at the ballot box, and excluded from participation in the law-making department. Nor would I see immortal and blessed woman longer cast off and proscribed in the matter of franchise; nor in any other matter over which government, either civil or ecclesiastical, has any control or direction for the amelioration of the condition of mankind in common. Perhaps she might not want to vote; many of them might refuse or fail to exercice the privilege if granted them; but men do the same thing, and the argument is as good on the one hand as on the other. For myself I would fain see universal suffrage, regardless alike of color and of sex, become the hand-maid of universal freedom. At least I would make no general test or qualification but love of country, as shown through obedience to government. Such are my individual private sentiments publicly expressed, but I do not ask my party to indorse them. As member of the constitutional convention I moved to strike out the word "male" in connection with the right or privilege of franchise. The proposition was referred to the appropriate committee, but no report was ever made. I understand the reason of this failure. I am thought too fast in this respect for the locality if not for the age in which I live. And it may be true that every locality of this government is not yet prepared for such a display of liberality, for such a practical application of JUSTICE. It is a lamentable fact that men are too prone to linger in the cause of the right, and the living patent fact that they are much more so than women, is a plain, palpable, self-evident proof that they are at least no more entitled to vote. Woman, as a general thing, has a much keener and more accurate sense and perception of right, and much more nerve to meet the issue than man. She is in every conceivable sense less selfish and more incorruptible than man. Her influence in the private and social walks of life is felt to a degree which alone holds the world back from a great retrograde into rack and ruin; and there is no good reason why her influence at the ballotbox and in the public walks of life should be less redeeming. I for one am quite willing to give her a fair and a patient trial.

Fellow-citizens, I might prolong my remarks to greater length; but you are standing and already weary, and there are many others to speak after me. I will only add, that I stand before you now, as I have ever stood under all circumstances and in every trial, the friend of liberty and the friend of humanity. And in regard to the great and much-vexed question of political and civil equality, I have only this to say: The American flag, the simple and beautiful emblem of liberty, greatness, and glory, is the flag of my country. I respect, revere, and even worship it. I only desire that its destiny shall be my destiny, and its immortality my immortality; and when I die, the greatest and grandest funeral honors and rites I could ask would be to have it as a winding sheet—"unwept, unhonored, and unsung," it may be—but thus to sleep, under the sod of my native land as one who never disgraced his name nor forfeited his birthright of liberty by seeking to destroy the country which gave him birth and disrupt the government which ever fostered and protected him. And, my friends, the man who fights under that flag, and swears by it, and keeps his oath, is my brother and my friend; and the woman, be she white or black, who pays her political devotions at its sacred shrine, will ever find in me a friend and protector who never knew fear.

[At the close, and during the delivery of this address, the speaker received earnest and prolonged applause.]

A Boy Left to Himself.

We copy the following chapter from a new and interesting book, the title of which is "Heavenward—Earthward," by Harriet B. McKeever, published by J. C. Garrigues & Co., 148 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. They are the publishers of many of the most interesting books for youth that we have seen.

We should be glad to see the work mentioned above in every sabbath school and in every family of boys in the country.

The influence of certain books read in youth have no doubt often saved the man in after years. How necessary then to provide good reading matter for the children.

This work can not but prove a good investment to a parent, as an assistant in molding aright the character of his sons. And when we say that it is a good work for boys, we would not have it inferred that it would not be interesting to others. On the contrary, it would be, and not a few parents might learn much therefrom in regard to the proper method of governing and training a family.

James Craig was a man of wealth, living in great luxury. His house was princely, his carriages and horses corresponding in extravagance. Having lost all his children but one son, that unfortunate boy was humored in every whim, and pampered with unbounded indulgence.

Douglass Craig was a remarkably handsome boy, with good talents and many fine traits of character, frank in disposition, and generous to a fault. He was high spirited and fond of sport. The sole object of life ever set before him, either by precept or example, was that of the epicureans whose motto is, "Let us eat and drink, for to-morrow we die." When remonstrated with his parents would say, as others are saying now:

"It is charming to see such high spirits; I would not crush them on any account."

From early childhood he was furnished liberally with money, and many a time when returning from a walk his nurse would tell how he had emptied his purse to give to some poor man, woman, or child that happened to come in his way. Papa and mamma would pat their darling boy on the head, and say he was "a little prince of generosity."

Douglas, liked to be praised, and perhaps the next time his generosity was lavished upon some drunken sot who would squander it at the nearest dram shop.

When a little fellow he had a room furnished with the most costly toys; an elegant hobby-horse, a small pony, a whole encampment of soldiers that could march, drums, fifes, guns, and swords, tops, kites, and books which he would destroy almost as soon as purchased. Left to himself, his generous impulses were all misdirected, doing harm rather than good. But what cared the parents for that? "It was such a pity to check the boy!"

Sometimes this parental license led him into society and associations that were beneficial, sometimes just the opposite. Allowed to choose his own companions, he had taken a great fancy to the Hoffman children, who lived in the same block. Liking to be with them, he was persuaded to go with them to Miss Hartley's infant school. Its sprightliness pleased him, and the kind lady soon drew little Douglass to her.

None were more punctual than he, and none more generous in his donations to the missionary box.

He had passed through the probation of that infant nursery, and entered higher classes until he had reached Mr. Gillespie's.

Parental influence was bringing forth fruit. Douglass was growing to be a large boy. It did not always suit him to be present on Sunday; sometimes it was too cloudy, sometimes he had overslept himself from the dissipation of the night before, and the servants had received their orders "not to disturb Master Douglass."

Now and then he was simply disinclined to go, and, left to himself, the ill weeds were growing fast.

Mr. Gillespie was a faithful, conscientious teacher, and to please him Douglass would occasionally take a fresh start, and for a few Sundays would be more punctual, and even study his Bible lesson, but there was no real interest felt in the exercises, and his attendance was henceforth intermitting.

Douglass was not standing still in his moral progress during all these years. Truth, resisted, was closing up the young heart. Occasionally it would force its way into some unguarded corner, for there are evil sentinels around the citadel of the heart, and Douglass was now in their power. Did he know it? Alas! no. His spirits were just as buoyant, his cheek as rosy, his eye as bright, as if all were right within; but the worm was at the root, corruption aiding the secret gnawing. He was now much less anxious to please his teacher, and bent upon what he termed fun. Sometimes there were magic lantern exhibitions, and Douglass was generally present—not, however, to reap instructions, but to have "a good time." He would always contrive to create a disturbance by making improper noises, whistling, sneezing, calling out, throwing paper balls, or emptying out a box of snuff in his neighborhood. What a pity that Douglass did not know how disgraceful such conduct was!

Even on anniversary days, when each scholar should do his utmost to make everything pass off happily, Douglass was occupied in creating disturbances, giving improper answers, trying to make the boys around him laugh, and lending himself altogether to the ministry of the evil one.

Miserable business for boys! for a disturber of the house of God and the Sunday school is likely to become a disturber of the state.

Left to himself, Douglass was going rapidly down hill. Earthward were all his impulses, earthward all his aims—only following, however, the teachings of parental example and ungodliness,

He is seldom at church now. His father has purchased a fine country seat, and very frequently they drive out on Sunday to spend the day in the country; and in boating, fishing, and riding the sabbath hours roll on to judgment. Think of that, boys, when tempted to rob God of sacred time!

He is getting to be a "fast young American," and when his parents are remonstrated with, the father says:

"All will be right by-and-by; boys must 'sow their wild oats;' look at the Carters! there's a specimen of the iron rule."

But he did not say also, "Look at the Hoffmans;" this was not convenient.

In the meanwhile the "wild oats" were overrunning the ground that might have brought forth good seed if golden grain had been early sown.

How many boys who read these pages are like Douglass Craig?

Miss Hartley does not forget her little scholars, and is especially attached to the warm-hearted, generous boy who sat once upon the infant gallery. She has followed him with her kind solicitude, her gentle warnings, and her earnest prayers. She remembers the tearful eye and the glowing cheek of the little boy when he used to listen to the story of a Savior's love, and can not give him up to the guidance of his own wayward impulses. Accordingly we see the good lady on her benevolent errand to the Craigs. It is with a trembling heart that she rings the front door bell, but she is impelled by strong convictions and strengthened by earnest prayer.

With a heart full of love for the wayward boy, she waits for Mrs. Craig in the magnificent parlor.

Clad in a rich morning wrapper, the lady sweeps into the room.

"Did you ask to see me, Miss Hartley?"

"I come as your friend, my dear madam, and trust that I may be allowed the privilege of such a title."

Mrs. Craig bowed, but coldly.

"I have always remembered Douglass with very warm affection, and it is to speak of him that I have called."

"I do not wonder that you speak of our son, for I believe that everybody loves him that knows him."

"It is because I love him that I come to utter a warning concerning the course that he is allowed to pursue."

"What course, Miss Hartley?"

"I have been told, my dear madam, that he is allowed to go alone, or with whom he pleases, to the theatre, to the circus, or elsewhere. You can not be aware of the associates which he has formed, or of the temptations which beset him."

"Our Douglass is a very manly, sensible boy, Miss Hartley, and will not disgrace himself by low associates."

"I did not say that they were low, Mrs. Craig, but though refined I know that they are vicious. Only a few evenings since he was seen in one of the gambling saloons near the theatre, in company with the son of Horace Burke, and both boys were playing at the faro table."

"I am sorry to hear that, Miss Hartley; I will talk to Douglass. We think it better to allow him to choose his own associates; it makes him manly and independent."

"Independent at his age, Mrs. Craig! Let me beseech you as you value your son's best interests not to be misled by such a fallacy. Douglass will be destroyed by such a course."

"He is a fine boy, Miss Hartley; very truthful and generous; and with these qualities we do not allow ourselves to have any fears."

"There is another life beyond this, Mrs. Craig; interests deeper than those of time are at stake."

"So the ministers say. But I have no idea of checking the boy's flow of spirits; care will come soon enough."

"You believe in the value of the soul, do you not, Mrs. Craig?"

"I think that people who live a good, moral life, without making such a fuss about religion, and wearing a face as long as my arm, are just as likely to be saved as these Pharisees."

"I am not contending for a long face, my dear madam, or for the crushing of a youthful spirit. I only urge the importance of directing this exuberance; and no brighter, happier path can be chosen than a life in harmony with the designs of our Creator."

"One would not think so to look at the Carters. The father is one of the strictest order of religionists, and I know that his children hate the very name of religion, and ridicule their father."

"That is no argument against real piety. I will bring in contrast the Hoffmans. Where do you see a more blessed, happy family?"

"I must own that Nelson is a pattern for any boy; but still I would not like to see our Douglass so restrained. I am not afraid; all will come right at last. I thank you for your kind interest, for I do believe in your love for my boy."

Miss Hartley took her leave, and in the hall met her former pupil.

Douglass sprang forward to meet his old friend, and grasping her hand, said:

"How do you do, ma'am? I am very glad to see you. I suppose that you have been to warn mamma against some of my wild pranks."

"Is there need, Douglass?" said the lady.

"Perhaps so," said the boy, as the remembrance of her early lessons recurred to his mind. "I am not exactly what my good Sunday school teacher would wish, but not so bad after all; after I have 'sown my wild oats' I will think about serious things;" accompanying these words with a smile that fascinated even her.

"After, Douglass?" said the good lady, her voice trembling with emotion, for the words rang in her ears. "'When I have a convenient season I will call for thee.' If you only knew the blessedness of serving God, Douglass, you would never feed again upon the husks of earthly pleasure."

The boy's eyes filled, and he respectfully kissed the hand that lay upon his arm, for he both loved and respected his faithful teacher.

"Don't you want something for your charity purse, Miss Hartley?" said the boy, taking out his porte-monnaie. "Father gave me a bundle of notes last night, and I should like you to have some."

"I am just in need of help for two very pressing cases, Douglass, and will gladly be your almoner. I know they are worthy families, and deserving of your gift.

"There is a mite," said the boy handing her three five dollar notes.

"Thank you, my young friend," said the lady. "I can make hearts glad with this."

As she put the notes away in her porte-monnaie she thought, "How sad that one so generous should have a heart for all but Jesus, my own dear Master!"

Douglass conducted the lady to the door, and stood looking after her as with quick, elastic step she passed down the street. He thought of her serious words of warning—"After, Douglass? 'When I have a convenient season I will call for thee.'" The spirit pressed home solemn thoughts of eternity.

"What if my life should be a short one! Then comes eternity with its everlasting ages of happiness or woe."

Douglass looked down the street again, but his kind friend had disappeared.

"She is on her way to heaven," said the youth, "but where am I?" He slowly entered the house and closed the door.

His mother's voice called to him from the upper landing.

"Come up, Douglass," said the lady; "here are three tickets for the opera. It will be splendid to-night. Your father can not go, and you must accompany me."

"Certainly, dear mother; it is just the one I want to hear."

Another door was closed with these words, and the spirit took his flight once more! once more!

Thus two immortals within that splendid mansion trifled with their never-dying souls.

Let us glance a moment at the heaven-bound pilgrim who had dropped her golden seeds that morning in their path. Turning away from the home of luxury with all its elegance she glanced upward to the skies, but could see no mansion there for the dwellers in this bower of ease, for every aim and aspiration, every thought and word was groveling earthward.

"Oh! for the rending of the veil that hides the glories of eternity from these candidates for immortality!"

Thus prayed this earnest Christian as she traveled over the crowded thoroughfare.

Heavenward her hopes, heavenward her pilgrim footsteps.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR January—New Volume—is rich in good reading, and profusely illustrated with portraits. Sketches of Patrick Henry, Edward Everett, Frederick W. Robertson, Fitz Greene Halleck, with Kings, Queens, and Emperors of Europe; Uses of Culture in the Ministry; Napoleon on Suicide; The Idiot Trained; A Day on James Island; Florida Indians; Oliver Cromwell; A Stuck-Up Nose; Our Country; The Lion, Lioness, and Cubs—Character and Habits; A Quaker Wedding; Pedestrianism; An Offer of Marriage; The Prince Imperial; with Physiognomy, Physiology, Ethnology, Psychology, and Social Science. Only $3 a year, or 30 cents a number. Address S. R. WELLS, 389 Broadway, New York. Now is the time to subscribe.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

FROM WASHINGTON

Special Dispatches to the N. O. Republican

WASHINGTON, February 22, 1868.

Secretary Stanton still retains possession of the war office. He is determined to hold on until he is removed by lawful authority. In consequence of the assumption by Brigadier General Lorenzo Thomas, adjutant general of the army, that he was acting secretary of war, and claimed possession of the war office, he was arrested to-day on a warrant issued by Judge Cartter, chief justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia. The charge against him is obstructing the enforcement of the tenure of office law, and usurping the functions of the head of the war department. He was subsequently released on bail in the sum of five thousand dollars.

The reconstruction committee has prepared and agreed to a report for impeaching President Johnson. It is now ready to be presented to the house.

The Republican members of congress are at last unanimous and determined. They will probably take immediate action on the report as soon as submitted to the house. The Democrats will, of course, fillibuster; and already several plans have been suggested by which it is hoped final action can be put off.

The capitol is crowded with people to-day, all of them more or less excited.

Secretary Stanton slept in the war office last night. General Grant is with him to-day.

The house has agreed to the proposition to allow debate on impeachment until five o'clock on Monday, when the final vote will be taken.

Every Republican member of the house who is present in Washington favors impeachment.

President Johnson is greatly troubled. He begins to realize probably the difficulties before him, which have been brought upon him by listening to the advice of bad counselors.

WASHINGTON, February 24, 1868.

Secretary Stanton and his friends still hold possession of the war office. All the officers and assistants recognize his authority as undisputed.

Adjutant General Lorenzo Thomas is very much disgusted with the perplexities which surround him in consequence of his attempt to aid President Johnson in his efforts to remove Secretary Stanton.

The president has determined to obtain a writ of quo warranto for the purpose of testing Secretary Stanton's right to remain in the war office.

Brevet Major General W. H. Emory, who commands the department of Washington, refuses to serve the president. He is bound by law to obey such orders only as come to him through the usual subordinate channels.

Major General George H. Thomas, who has just been nominated by the president for brevet lieutenant general and brevet general, has telegraphed to Senator Wade that he declines to accept the promotion, and respectfully requests the senate to refuse to confirm the nomination.

Senators Howard, of Michigan, and Saulsbury, of Delaware, had a personal rencontre in the street.

The members of the cabinet deny any responsibility for the recent acts of the president in the Stanton case.

The impeachment of Mr. Johnson will certainly take place. The Republican members of the house are unanimous for it.

General Grant is now considering General Hancock's order removing a portion of the New Orleans city council.

This city is now full of rumors, and the papers are publishing extras with wonderful frequency.

Ex-Governor B. F. Flanders, Dr. Thomas Cottman, William Stiles, recorder of mortgages for the parish of Orleans, J. H. McKee, and Captain S. P. Griffin, all of New Orleans, are here. WILLARD'S.

WASHINGTON, February 24, 7 P. M.

In the house to-day Edward McPherson, clerk, read Mr. Stevens' closing speech on the question of impeachment. The house was densely crowded. At five o'clock the vote was taken on the resolution impeaching Andrew Johnson, president of the United States, for high crimes and misdemeanors, and carried by 126 yeas to 47 nays.

Adjutant General Thomas to-day made another demand upon Secretary Stanton for possession of the war office and the mails. He was refused, and then went home sick.

The president to-day sent a message to the senate explaining his recent conduct, and giving his reasons therefor.

A great snow storm is now prevailing here. WILLARD'S.

WASHINGTON, February 25, 1868.

The military have all declared against President Johnson in his late attempt to override the laws. All officers recognize Secretary Stanton as the head of the war department, and their superior officer. All orders issued by General Grant or Secretary Stanton, who are in perfect accord with each other, are implicitly obeyed.

Hon. Thaddeus Stevens, of Pennsylvania, and John A. Bingham, of Ohio, to-day announced to the senate that the house had passed a resolution for the impeachment of Andrew Johnson, president of the United States.

A committee of seven senators was thereupon appointed to make arrangements for the impeachment, consisting of Messrs. Howard (Rep.) of Michigan, Trumbull, (Rep.) of Illinois, Morton, (Rep.) of Indiana, Conkling, (Rep.) of New York, Edmonds, (Rep.) of Vermont, Pomeroy, (Rep.) of Kansas, and Johnson, (Dem.) of Maryland.

Adjutant General Lorenzo Thomas, who returned home sick after his last unsuccessful attempt to get possession of the war office, has completely subsided, and we hear nothing more of him.

The usual weekly reception of the president was held last night at the White house, but no Republicans were present. There was a large crowd in attendance, however, of the Democratic conservative stripe.

WILLARD'S.

EDITORIAL AND NEWS ITEMS.

"For the fun of the thing" was what an ex-rebel soldier said he shot a colored man for in Jackson, Mississippi, a few days ago.

One Myers has sued the Cincinnati Commercial for calling him a gaspipe. If it had called him a fool it would have been meeter.

Four hundred and ten human beings live in one house in Monroe street, New York. This is herding more closely than in New Orleans.

J. C. Van Wickle, parish of Pointe Coupee, has been appointed a member of the board of levee commissioners vice Edward J. Gay, declined.

The city treasurer has between twenty and thirty thousand coupon money to pay out, all in small notes, which holders accept instead of greenbacks.

On Monday last one New Orleans steamer at Cincinnati accepted 1000 barrels of pork at seventy-five cents, and 150 casks of bacon at twenty-five cents freight.

Brevet Major W. A. Wainwright, assistant quartermaster, arrived in this city Thursday evening, and reported for duty at military headquarters yesterday morning.

Colonel Bob Tyler, who was mixed up in rebel bonds, has gone from Montgomery to Washington to direct congress what to do with Alabama, and also to tell General Sherman that he must accept the brevetship tendered by Andrew Johnson.

Mr. Sumner on Monday presented a petition for the abolition of the office of president, as it is a source of corruption constantly increasing in strength, and dangerous to the liberties of the country. The petition was referred.

On Monday, in the senate, two petitions from colored persons, one from residents of New Jersey, and the other from residents of Massachusetts, asking for congressional aid to enable them to emigrate to Liberia, were presented and referred.

A convention of railroad officials at Richmond last week adjourned to meet again in Weldon, after appointing a committee to prepare a new through schedule. Give us greater speed, railroad managers, and lessen the time between New Orleans and New York.

General Hancock orders that Captain Charles Barnard, assistant quartermaster, volunteers, will proceed to and make a personal inspection of the national cemeteries in this military district (commencing with Texas) with a view to their immediate completion under such special instructions as he may receive from the chief quartermaster.

Internal Revenue Commissioner Rollins requests the removal of Benjamin H. Sheppard from the office of collector of internal revenue for the third district of Mississippi, who was a provost marshal for General Bragg, a rebel quartermaster at Okalona, and a pilot of rebel forces from Okalona to Tupelo.

A special telegram to the St. Louis Republican says of the St. Charles theatre Democratic meeting that "the list of vice-presidents, numbering over six hundred, comprises the names of nearly every influential man in New Orleans." This is peculiarly complimentary to the vice-presidents who were sojourning at the time in the parish prison.

Birthday Anniversary.

Washington's birthday was not forgotten, and the entire city was clothed in holiday attire, greatly favored by exceedingly pleasant weather. All foreign consuls in compliment to the day floated their flags, all public buildings did likewise, and the several printing offices were more or less decorated, while forests of masts along the levee were as gay as a city belle. General Hancock made a partial review of several regiments of soldiers who were dressed in bright blue. As an anniversary, the day was appropriately celebrated.

The feature of the day was the meeting and orations at Lyceum hall, held by the Union Army and Navy Officers' association, both at midday and at night, the particulars of which can be found in another column, and the great mass meeting at Mechanics' Institute.

State Appointments.—On the recomendation of Governor Baker, of Louisiana, the following appointments are announced by General Hancock, to fill existing vacancies:

Town of Columbia, parish of Caldwell.—J. F. Varner, to be mayor; G. W. Pierce, R. B. Signoski, H. Haas, T. Hough, and C. Meredith, to be councilmen.

Parish of Bossier.—Samuel M. Furniss, to be justice of the peace, seventh ward.

Parish of Concordia.—Louis Frazier, to be justice of the peace, second ward.

Parish of Jackson.—C. M. McCullough, to be police juror, third ward.

Parish of Vermillion.—Lessin Abshire, to be constable for the fifth justice court.

Town of Abbeville, parish of Vermillion.—Lorenzo I. Tansey, to be mayor; Lastie Broussard and David Frank, to be aldermen.

Parish of East Baton Rouge.—Rodolphe G. Delardorie, to be police juror, tenth ward.

Parish of Plaquemines.—Alfred Bodin, to be justice of the peace, first ward.

Parish of St. Landry.—Thomas H. Thompson, to be justice of the peace, tenth ward; Louis Stagg, to be justice of the peace, ninth ward; Valentine Savoy, to be constable, eighth ward.

Relief to Planters.—Brevet Major General Buchanan, assistant commissioner of the bureau of freedmen, promulgates this circular for information:

The following modifications of circular No. one, current series, from these headquarters, are found to be advisable, and are promulgated for the information of all concerned:

1. So much of the third paragraph as directs that a copy of the bond will be forwarded to these headquarters, is so amended as to require that the copy of the bond properly executed, as also the planter's affidavit, with a copy of the contract under which the freedmen are employed, will be forwarded together to these headquarters for approval. The bond, if approved, will be returned for completion at the time that the supplies are forwarded.

2. In consequence of the exceedingly limited means at the disposal of the assistant commissioner of the bureau, as notified to him by the chief of the bureau at Washington it becomes necessary to restrict relief to the smallest class of planters. Therefore no application of those working more than fifteen hands can be entertained.

An Irish sailor once visited a city where he said "they copper-bottomed the tops of their houses with sheet lead."

UNION ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS' ASSOCIATION.

Meeting and Banquet.

This association yesterday met in its annual session in Lyceum hall, for the purpose of not only celebrating its own anniversary, but that of the birth-day of Washington.

The hall was tastefully decorated with banners and battle-flags—flags that are stained and tattered from the strife of war. The large picture of Washington was draped in the folds of the stars and stripes, and a framed likeness of the martyred Lincoln was prominently placed in front of the president's stand, where all eyes must behold and revere it.

Captains Roberts and Ludecke showed themselves competent to decorate.

A band made the hall echo with a national air that found a hearty response in the hearts of the large audience present.

General L. A. Sheldon, the president, announced that after a prayer by the Rev. N. L. Brakeman, formerly of the first Indiana artillery, General Cyrus Bussey would deliver the speech of the occasion.

The general, in a pleasant way, said that he hoped on the next anniversary he might see the association swelled into numbers so large that the hall would not have capacity to contain them all. He found in this section many fellow ex-officers who had, like himself, made Louisiana their future home. The speaker paid a tribute to the memory of Washington. He stated that this association was in no way a political organization. He referred to Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, who in his youth emigrated from the East to the Carolinas, which he found a howling wilderness, but through his machine made the land to bloom in plenty, but at the same time riveted shackles on slaves; he was cheated out of the benefits of his great patent, and then returned to his former home and produced the Springfield rifle, an instrument that during the war was greatly instrumental in unriveting the chains of bondmen.

Unexpectedly civil war convulsed the country, but friends of the Union promptly responded ere a formal call had been made, and sober citizens were on the instant converted into as brave soldiers as the world ever saw draw sword. The speaker for a moment dwelt on the parting of those who were to march to battle from home and all its peaceful associations. For himself, he was afraid that the war would end before he might have an opportunity to smell gunpowder, but by marching his men both day and night he was gratified in meeting the foe—foes composed of traitors to their country. At first success was not with us; a sin was on our shoulders that Providence must punish—that sin was slavery—and when that sin was abolished we were from that time successful to the final issue. We might have continued fighting until doomsday had not Lincoln wisely abolished slavery.

We are here this day in part to perpetuate them emory of departed compatriots—men who in the strife fell in honorable battle. When finally Lee surrendered his weakened forces and the light of peace began to dawn there was a solemn hiatus, and the victory lacked one essential—Lincoln had been murdered; Lincoln, the man only second to the great Washington.

We are now living in the calm which has followed a terrible strife, but we find the South wofully devastated and impoverished, her finances and products greatly reduced; mourning and poverty are dwellers in nearly every habitation. In the other portion of our Union there is prosperity in most branches of business, but the weeds of mourning are there too.

We have land to give away, sufficient to furnish each inhabitant of the world with seven acres, and then our beautiful country would not be so densely populated as Belgium, and all can thrive. With a few men our national debt appears as a pall that can never be lifted. To such I say their fears are groundless. The increase in the value of our lands and the development of our untold mineral resources are annually increasing at the extraordinary rate of thirty-three per cent. At the end of ten years where will be the friends of the lost cause? None will have the hardihood in the year 1900 to acknowledge their participation in the late conflict. We will all then be living under the starry flag—that flag which has been deeply dyed in blood of the world's bravest men.

There exists in this section of our Union a prejudice against Northerners; a prejudice that is illustrated by an incident: A man's team and wagon had become stalled in a miry place, and the driver despaired moving on. A man suggested that if he unloaded his wagon perhaps the trouble might be remedied. But the wagon had no load. There is nothing in the prejudice, therefore it cannot be moved.

The speaker urged his hearers to preserve their integrity and keep in the straight paths of rectitude. For himself he was ready to strike hands here in his adopted state with any who would muster under the folds of the American flag, it mattered not what their proclivities were heretofore.

The band struck up "Yankee Doodle" spiritedly and a good natured audience cheered heartily.

General Sheldon announced that the meeting must now necessarily adjourn, as the hall was demanded by the caterer who was to furnish the banquet. Still the assemblage was unwilling to retire and persistent calls were made for other speakers.

The president was impelled to address them for a few minutes; and his sentiments were evidently in full accordance with those of his friends.

The Union Army and Navy Officers' association then adjourned until night, in the same room, for the purpose of greeting each other and invited friends at a festive board.

We noticed several prominent citizens at the meeting, and quite an array of ladies. Mayor Heath was invited, and accepted a seat beside the President.

The meeting mentioned above reassembled at night to partake of a rare banquet in the same hall. At eight o'clock about three hundred guests seated themselves at a table loaded with rare delicacies.

Nothing was left undone to make the banquet both pleasing and beautiful. The tables were prettily decorated with fresh spring flowers and dainties of tropical and home productions.

When a signal was given that the board was fully prepared for guests, gentlemen accepted seats at random. The president, General Sheldon, occupied the head of the central table. On his right sat Judge Durell, General Hartsuff, and Judge Howe; on the left, Mayor Heath, General Steedman, Colonel J. O. Nixon (Crescent) and Rev. Dr. Newman. The last named gentleman asked a blessing of Divine grace on the bounties before the guests. And then began the battle of destruction on useful and ornamental objects. Soon popping of champagne corks suggested toasts, and the president announced them in their order:

"Memory of Washington." Responded to by Rev. Dr. Newman. After the applause had subsided, the doctor said:

It has always been deemed a difficult task to give a correct analysis of those personal qualities which have rendered Washington so extraordinary in the estimation of mankind. But like Milton's angel, and the statue of Jupiter Olympus, by Phidias, he was an ORIGINAL character. He is without an antecedent and without a subsequent. Men complain that his personal qualities were not brilliant; that there were no salient points in his character. But he was like unto an illuminated circle, each and every part equally bright. Of all of this world's heroes, he possessed the solid virtues of true greatness in a larger degree than any other man, and possessed them in the most harmonious proportions. As we scan the brow of night, many a heavenly body is more brilliant than the north star, but of all the stellar hosts, not one is more useful to mankind. The dewdrop may sparkle on the grass and in the daisy's cup, and the summer cloud may emit its waters and in turn be spanned by the celestial bow, but what is the dew or shower to the ocean Washington is America's polar star, the ocean of her wealth, and the sun of her prosperity. Mankind are captivated by the tears of Alexander, who wept because he had found a limit to his ambition; by Cesar crossing the Rubicon; and by Napoleon's daring usurpations of power. But Washington could weep over his suffering troops; cross the Delaware in midwinter to drive an usurper from his country; and exercise the legitimate power intrusted to him. And where, in all the mighty past or the living present, shall we find his equal? He stands out alone on the page of history, sublime in his isolation. Among the Greeks Aristides is their greatest statesman and warrior. His wisdom and prudence raised him to the highest honors of the state, and his triumphs at Marathon and Salamis achieved for him the greatest honors. Yet Aristides took pride in remaining poor, and he taught the doctrine that it was proper to deceive when the interests of the state demanded it. Cyrus, son of Cambyses, is renowned for his wisdom, moderation, and courage; but this picture of Cyrus by Xenophon was not what Cyrus was, but what he should have been. As a warrior, statesman, and man of letters, Cesar stands first among the Romans, but his bloody wars with his own countrymen to reach the throne are stains upon his character. Peter the Great of Russia is deservedly illustricus. He organized the first Russian navy; established courts of justice, schools of learning, and houses of mercy, and from barbarism raised his people to glory. But Peter the Great was a tyrant, drunkard, and a libertine. Frederick the Great of Prussia is among the most distinguished princes of which history has preserved a memorial; but Voltaire was his bosom friend, and to express his contempt for mankind and religion desired, when he died, to be buried with his dog. There is another of whose transcendent powers it were difficult to speak in terms of adequate praise, but the luster of Napoleon's name is forever tarnished by his indifference of human life and his broken marriage ties. But our Washington possessed the wisdom and prudence of Aristides without his fallacies, the moderation of Cyrus without his ambition, the martial genius of Cesar without his crimes, the patriotism of Peter the Great without his vices, the energy of Frederick the Great without his life of scandal, and the statesmanship of Napoleon without his rashness.

As a warrior, Washington has been compared to the Roman Fabius Maximus, but the comparison is one of circumstances and not of genius. Nature had endowed Washington with a martial genius capable of the most brilliant exploits, but circumstances compelled him to adopt the Fabian tactics. In personal heroism he has no superior. Did Murat, in a paroxism of passion, spur all along the fire of a Russian battery? Washington did the same at Kipp's Bay, bidding defiance to the missiles of death. Did Napoleon rush over the bridge of Arcola, and plant the national standard amid the storm of fire that swept it? At Princeton, when his troops began to waver, Washington grasped a standard, plunged the rowels into his steed, shouted "Follow your general!" and rode up to the very muzzles of the guns, and sat calmly beneath his country's flag. It is fair to estimate a warrior's greatness by what he accomplishes with the means at his command. Washington's continental army was the most comical spectacle the sun ever shone upon. George III called our soldiers "a rustic rout, with calico frocks and fowling pieces." When Baron Steuben entered our army he determined to organize it but after months of trial gave it up in despair, and swore at them in three languages at once—German, French, and English—and then called upon his aids to curse the blockheads. Lafayette said the only regularity he saw was the "short men were placed in front and the long ones behind," and old Putnam explained this by saying, "The Americans are never afraid of their heads, they only think of their legs; shelter them and they will fight forever." But it was the spirit of '76 that conquered British arms. Such was the spirit of Patrick Henry who said, "Give me liberty or give death." Such was the spirit of Warren who exclaimed, "Put me where the attack will be hottest". Such was the spirit of Putnam who led his troops against the enemy with only five cartridges to a man, and crying, "Powder, powder, ye Gods give us powder." Such was the spirit of Dominic Chadwell who, finding our troops at the battle of Rahway without wadding threw them a copy of Watt's psalms, saying, "There, boys, put Watts into them." Such was the spirit of our fathers who declared, "That these United colonies are and of right ought to be free." Such was the spirit of Washington, "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

"The United States of America." Response by General T. A. Sheldon. Music—"Hail Columbia."

"The Memory of Washington and Lincoln." Drank in silence standing. Music—"Washington's March."

To the toast, "The general commanding the armies of the United States," Colonel Charles Case made a pleasing response, closing with stating his belief that General Grant was not only persevering but honest; it was these two qualities in him that not only saved but made this nation what it is to-day; and these two qualities will surely make him the next president of this country. The hall echoed and re-echoed with shouts that confirmed the sentiment. General Steedman proposed three cheers for General Grant, and they were rung out with a good will. Three cheers were given for General Steedman.

Judge W. W. Howe was called on to respond to "The Judges of the Supreme Court of the United States." He knew the subject to be a dry one, and was not prepared to say much on the subject, and when away from the bench was inclined to "sink the shop." He was unable to sing a song, tell a story, or make a speech. He eulogized Washington in a most pleasing strain, in a style that was really eloquent. The judge is of the belief that, although residing in Louisiana, but born in New York, he is a citizen of the United States, and disliked Japanese ideas about citizenship.

General Bussey responded to the toast, "Congress of the United States." The soldiers, he said, were indebted to congress for rations and pay—two necessary articles in war. Congress represents the common people, the eyes of the people are on congress, and as congress fulfills its mission the plaudits of that people will be heard.

"The State of Louisiana." Colonel J. O. Nixon, of the New Orleans Crescent, was called to his feet, and stated that his province was not in speech, but the pen; but he would speak for Louisiana. Like many of those around him he was a carpet-bagger, although not exactly a new-comer. At the age of sixteen years he left what is sometimes called New Jersey, by school-boys supposed to be in the United States. He came here to find a home, and found one. He attended the banquet as a citizen and not as a soldier, and appealed to those present to assist in developing Louisiana. It is true he took up the confederate cause, but he now belongs to the United States. The colonel suggested to his hearers that they imitate his example and practice, in taking a mate here and making a nest. He was loudly cheered, and on suggestion of Colonel Parker three cheers were shouted for Colonel J. O. Nixon and his carpet-bag.

"The Commanding Generals of the Department of the Gulf and the Fifth Military District." Major Morse in reply enumerated the several generals who had been in command in this department. When the name of General Sheridan escaped his lips the walls of the hall trembled with voices raised high in homage. The speaker explained the reason of General Hancock's absence—military business. Three cheers were given for Generals Hancock and Hartsuff. General Hartsuff in a few words thanked the association for the call and the cheers. The glee club sang, in a pleasing manner, "The Artillerist's Oath."

"Rank and File of Army and Navy of United States." Captain A. B. Long spoke for the rank, saying that for the peace we are enjoying to day we may thank the rank. H. C. Dibble, Esq., responded on behalf of the private soldier, and he did full justice to the subject. "The honor of the living is not less than the glory of the dead."

"The Press." Responded to by Dr. M. A. Southworth, of the New Orleans Republican, as follows:

Mr. president and comrades—We thank you for the honor your toast does to us. We thank you for the pleasure of this most agreeable reunion of old companions in arms.

In these modern times the sword and the pen have married each other. Armies and reporters travel and travail together; and while the head, the heart, and the sword win glory and power the pen gives immortality to the hero.

The clashing of antagonistic principles and practices, the ceaseless strife between the true and the false, the right and the wrong, and the endless battle of every day life, are no less trying to men than the dangers of physical warfare, the charge of the cavalry or the roaring of the cannon. A moral victory is higher, nobler, and more glorious than the conquest of physical foes. Mr. Presidentand comrades, may your records in peace be like your records in war—and may we be around to print them.

"Star Spangled Banner." General West was not slow to respond in an appropriate strain, and rejoiced that the old flag again waved over us all. He then proposed the restoration of civil government in this state.

"President of the United States." Response by General J. B. Steedman. "Hail to the Chief."

"Admiral Farragut." Response by Captain Gouca. Music—"Life on the Ocean Wave."

"Memory of the Dead of the Army and Navy of the United States." Drank in silence. Music—"Dead March."

Several volunteer toasts were offered and heartily received.

Major McKay, in a few pleasant and fitting remarks alluded to the Corps d'Afrique. No sooner were the words uttered than cheer after cheer went up enthusiastically for the Corps d'Afrique and the colored infantry.

"Our next Governor." On the announcement of this toast Judge Warmoth was lustily called for, and he answered as soon as the cheering ceased, but our reporter was quite unable to catch his words.

Judge Durell followed in a short speech, and when he finished, about midnight, there was a banquet hall deserted.

Probably no gentleman who had the good fortune to participate will ever forget the aniversary of the Union Army and Navy Officers' association of Louisiana celebration.

All the responses to the toasts were received with enthusiasm.

The lateness of the hour when the meeting adjourned necessarily prevents our reporter furnishing as complete a report as he intended. His notes, however, are full.

Below we append a list of the officers of the association elected to serve for the ensuing year:

General L. A. Sheldon, president.
General J. R. West, first vice-president.
Colonel Charles Case, second vice-president.
General Cyrus Bussey, third vice-president.
Colonel Don A. Pardee, treasurer.
Major J. D. Rouse, secretary.
Major William Grant, corresponding secretary.

Executive Committee.—General F. J. Herron, chairman; Colonel J. M. G. Parker, Captain C. H. Roberts, F. H. Hinman, paymaster United States navy; Captain C. O. Ludecke.

Dentistry.—We take great pleasure in recommending all who wish an excellent job of dentistry done to Dr. B. F. Wright, 153 Customhouse street, between Bourbon and Burgundy streets. Dr. Wright expects to start North soon to spend the summer, and up to the time of his departure will attend to the work of all who call on him at ONE-HALF of his heretofore moderate rates, if paid in greenbacks. As he is a workman of the best order, we do not see why his rooms should not be crowded during the time he remains in the city, even though it is hard times.

DIED:

FISHER—Another saint has fallen. Sister ERSLEY FISHER, a native of Richmond, Virginia, and for the last twenty-five years a good and faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal church in this city, departed this life on the 15th instant.

ELCON—Died, February 14, 1868, PHILIP ELCON, a native of Baltimore, Maryland, and over twenty years a resident of this city and for a long period a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

BURNETT'S TOILET PREPARATIONS,

And Flavoring Extracts were submitted, years ago, to the public, in the belief that their quality would insure them success. In this the proprietors were not disappointed. Obtain them of dealers or of the proprietors. New York Office 592 Broadway.

BRILLIANCY OF COMPLEXION

Is desirable in a lady; and for the preservation of it, Burnett's Kalliston is guaranteed to be a Most Powerful Auxiliary. Inflammation from sunburn, and the dryness caused by the wind and air, is remedied by its application. It softens the skin, and is admirably adapted for gentlemen's use after shaving.

All druggists sell it.

THE MUSICAL SCALE.

BY HORACE P. BIDDLE.

This work is an effort to throw some light upon a subject which has received the attention of firstclass minds at different periods. Many new principles are explained, and the facts laid down are all capable of demonstration; but whether the basis of induction is sufficiently broad and firm to sustain the conclusions given is a question submitted to the judgment of the reader.

Price $1 25. Mailed postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., New York.
fe22

AN OUTLINE OF MUSICAL FORM.

Designed for Musical Students, both Amateur and Special. By S. B. Mathews. The material for this book has been drawn from such German works as were accessible to the writer, and from a very thorough and patient study of Musical Form, as manifested in the Works of the greatest Masters. It is the only treatise in English on this department of Musical Science.

Price 60 cents. Sent postpaid.

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Publishers, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO., New York.
fe22

$100 A Month Salary

Will be paid for Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample retailing at $4 50 for 50 copies.

A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 13t

JAMES VICK,

IMPORTER AND GROWER OF

Flower and Vegetable Seeds,

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

VICK'S ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF Seeds, and Floral Guide for 1868.

Is now published and ready to send out. It makes a work of about one hundred large pages, containing full descriptions of the

Choicest Flowers and Vegetables Grown,

With plain directions for Sowing Seed, Culture, etc. It is beautifully Illustrated, with more than One Hundred Fine Wood Engravings of Flowers and Vegetables, and

A Beautiful Colored Plate of Flowers,

Well printed, on the finest paper, and one of the most beautiful as well as the most instructive works of the kind published.

Sent to all who apply, by mail post paid, for ten cents, which is not half the cost. Address JAMES VICK, Rochester, N. Y.

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The Central Pacific Railroad Company offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.
II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.
III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.
IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.
V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.
VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.
VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.
VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.
IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.
X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par valne and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company, NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET, AND OF

FISK & HATCH, BANKERS, AND Dealers in Government Securities, AND FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO., No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

A NEW STEEL ENGRAVING OF CHARLES DICKENS, SUITABLE FOR FRAMING.

Given Gratis to all Subscribers TO APPLETONS' NEW POPULAR EDITION OF Chas. Dickens' Works, NOW PUBLISHING.

On receipt of $4 50 we will mail, postpaid, to any address, as fast as published, the entire set of our New, Cheap, and Elegant Edition of Dickens, In seventeen volumes, together with an elegant impression of a STEEL PORTRAIT OF DICKENS, One of the best yet executed of the distinguished author.

Seven volumes of this edition of Dickens are now ready—"Pickwick Papers," 35 cents; "Oliver Twist," 25 cents; "American Notes," 15 cents; "Great Expectations," 25 cents; "Nicholas Nickleby," 35 cents; "Christmas Stories," 25 cents; "Dombey & Son," 35 cents. A volume is issued every week. The volumes, so far as issued, together with the Portrait, carefully wrapped, will be mailed immediately on the receipt of the price, as above.

Agents wanted in all parts of the country to sell this edition of Dickens. Every family, and every apprentice, mechanic, journeyman, farmer, and clerk will certainly buy Dickens at this low price. Send to Publishers for special terms to Agents.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers
443 and 445 Broadway, New York.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GREELY.

The publishers of the NEW YORK TRIBUNE having received many inquiries from time to time for a good likeness of the Editor, have made an arrangement with Messrs. Derby & Miller to furnish copies of Ritchie's engraving, from a photograph by Brady, which will be sent to such subscribers to the Tribune as wish it on the conditions below. This is much the best likeness of Mr. Greeley that has been engraved. The print sells for $1. Each subscriber who sends us $10 for the Daily, $4 for the Semi-Weekly, or $2 for the Weekly Tribune, the paper to be sent by mail, and who requests the engraving at the time of subscribing, will have a copy carefully mailed, post-paid, to his address. One will likewise be sent to any person who forwards a club of ten or more Semi-Weeklies or twenty or more Weeklies at our club rates, and asks for the portrait at the time of remitting. We do not propose this as a premium, but to gratify the many friends of the Tribune, who feel a desire to possess a good likeness of its founder.

TERMS OF THE TRIBUNE:

WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, single copy, 1 year—52 numbers | $2 00 |
| Mail subscribers, clubs of five | 9 00 |
| Ten copies or over, addressed to names of subscribers, each | 1 70 |
| Twenty copies, addressed to names of subscribers | 34 00 |
| Ten copies, to one address | 16 00 |
| Twenty copies, to one address | 30 00 |

An extra copy will be sent for each club of ten.
For sale by all newsmen.

SEMI-WEEKLY TRIBUNE.

| | |
|---|---|
| Mail subscribers, 1 copy, 1 year—104 numbers | $4 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 2 copies, 1 year—104 numbers | 7 00 |
| Mail subscribers, 5 copies, or over, for each copy | 3 00 |

Persons remitting for 10 copies $30 will receive an extra copy six months.

Persons remitting for 15 copies $45 will receive an extra copy one year.

For $100 we will send 34 copies and the Daily Tribune.

The NEW YORK DAILY TRIBUNE is published every morning (Sundays excepted) at $10 per year; $5 for six months.

The TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1868 will be ready in January, 1868. Price twenty cents; seven for a dollar.

Terms, cash in advance.

Drafts on New York, or Postoffice orders, payable to the order of the Tribune, being safer, are preferable to any other mode of remittance.

Address, THE TRIBUNE,
de18 3tD&3tW New York.

JONES, McDOWELL & CO., Little Rock, Ark. J. B. SHAW & CO., Fort Smith, Ark.

BUSSEY & CO.,

GENERAL

Commission Merchants

AND

COTTON FACTORS,

No. 321 Commercial Street, St. Louis, Mo.
No. 48 Carondelet Street, New Orleans, La.

Liberal advances made on consignments.

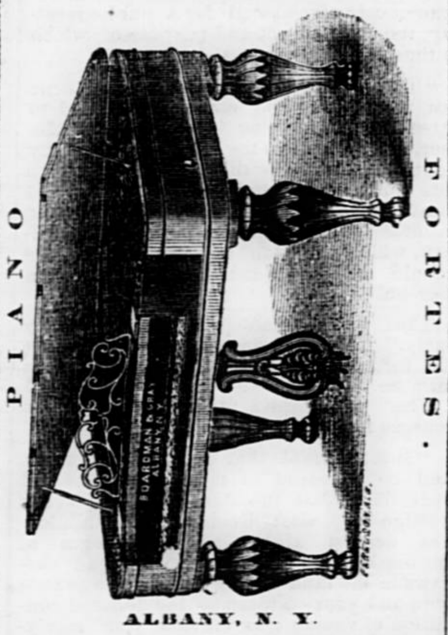
Refers to State Savings Association, St. Louis, Mo.; Pike, Lepeyre & Brothers, New Orleans, La.; Lockard & Ireland, Cincinnati, O.; J. Peters & Co., Louisville, Ky.

WILLIAM McCAMMON,

MANUFACTURER OF

BOARDMAN & GRAY'S PATENT IMPROVED INSULATED IRON RIM AND FRAME

PIANO FORTES.



ALBANY, N. Y.

PIANOS FOR SMALL PARLORS, SITTING ROOMS, SCHOOLS, ETC.

All four large round corners. Full, round, mellow Tone, easy and elastic touch, elegant and ornamental in appearance—a beautiful piece of furniture.

All the Pianos have the patent Iron Frame and Rim cast in one piece, making them the most perfect and durable made, and especially adapted to warm climates. Address

s6 WM. McCAMMON, Albany, N. Y.

UPHOLSTERER'S GOODS

Window Shades and Cornices,

AND

PAPER HANGINGS.

For Sale by

E. HEATH,

75 Camp street.

Grovesteen & Co.,

PIANO FORTE MANUFACTURERS.

499 Broadway, New York.

These Pianos received the highest award of merit at the World's Fair, over the best makers from London, Paris, Germany, the cities of New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Boston, also the Gold Medal at the American Institute, for FIVE SUCCESSIVE YEARS! Our pianos contain the French Grand Action, Harp Pedal, Overstrung Bass, Full Iron Frame, and all modern improvements. Every instrument is warranted FIVE YEARS. Made under the supervision of Mr. J. H. GROVESTEEN, who has a practical experience of over thirty-five years, and is the maker of over eleven thousand piano fortes. Our facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell these instruments from $100 to $200 cheaper than any first-class piano forte. 1-42y1

STAPLETON & CO.,

UNION HAT STORE,

95..........CANAL STREET..........97

NEW ORLEANS,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer

—IN—

Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,

—ALSO—

GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION

n29

NATIONAL FREEDMEN'S SAVING AND TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.

Principal office No. 87 Cedar street. American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,

No. 114 CARONDELET STREET.

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o'clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.

Deposits of One Dollar or more received.

Interest payable in January and July, in each year.

All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.

All the profits belong to the depositors.

Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.

Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE, Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

The New Orleans Republican

S. L. BROWN & Co., Proprietors.

A Daily and Weekly Paper, devoted to News, Literature, Commerce, and the Dissemination of Republican Principles, is published every day except Monday, at

57..........St. Charles Street..........57

NEW ORLEANS.

The Republican is in all respects a first class paper. Particular attention will be given to all matters affecting the interests of the South and Southwest.

In addition to the current news of the day, we shall publish

Proceedings of the Common Council, Constitutional Convention, and all other important and deliberative bodies,

THE LAWS & TREATIES OF CONGRESS,

BANKRUPT ADVERTISEMENTS,

The advertisements of the U. S. Marshal,

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,

AND THOSE OF THE

Quartermasters and Commissaries for this District

The publishing for the United States Government alone will render the Republican indispensable to every man in the State.

Its character as an earnest Republican Journal should commend to it the support of every Union man and soldier in the country; and not only should they subscribe for it themselves, but urge others to do so, thereby assisting us in its circulation, and thus contribute to secure the proper results of the war.

TERMS:

Daily, one year... $16 00 | Weekly, one year... $5 00
Daily, six months.. 8 00 | Weekly, six months.. 2 5

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN,

An eight page paper, is published every Sunday morning. It is devoted to Religious, Literary and Political articles, in addition to the current Local, Commercial and Telegraphic information of the day. Separate subscrptions will be received for the Sunday Republican from those who desire it. Price $5 a year in advance.

MEDICAL.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP. This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.

Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.

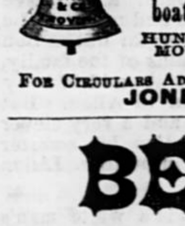
No 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.

For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

BELLS.

PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY



CHURCH BELLS

Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c., HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

For Circulars Address, JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y.

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established 1837.

VANDUSEN & TIFT,

102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

AROMATIC VEGETABLE SOAP, Combined with Glycerine recommended for the delicate skin of Ladies and Children. Invented by COLGATE CO. N. Y. Sold by Druggists.

nov2m6,

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 10. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1868. WHOLE NO. 110.

Poetry.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

BATS.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

When the night steals on, and the skies are gray,
And the stars are out in the "milky way;"
When the round, red moon like a full blown rose
Fills all earth with her lambent glows;
When the frog wails forth its vespers crude,
And the wild hen coos to her faithful brood,
Up from the meadows and dusky flats,
Gloomy and fitful flutter the bats.

When the farmer's daily toils are done,
And he musing sits on his own door stone,
While toiling all day on the heated flats,
He longed for the hour of the twilight bats.
When the fever-heated day should close,
And the cool dewdrop on the clover blows.

And my thoughts steal back to my early days,
When I knew the summer and all her ways;
When dreaming alone on the brown old wall
I listened and longed for the night bird's call;
For the katydid's nightly and endless affray,
Only exhausted at breaking of day,
So brief in their language, so pointed and flat.
And they always began at the flit of the bat.
There is joy in my heart when the misty hours
Spill their nectar in all the flowers;
For I think of a step I shall surely hear
And a voice that has grown so dear, so dear.
And I place a chair on the wide flag stone,
And I say in my heart, he'll come, he'll come;
For I know he is near when the blackening flats
Send forth their puffs of dusky bats.

And they fly in circles, and fly so low,
That they sometimes flap my very brow;
And the light of their phosphorescent eyes
Leer into mine with a look so wise,
For they seem to read from my heart within
That I'm waiting, and watching, and longing for him:
And they seem to tell by their witty tact,
That my joys depend on a bat, a bat.

And who has not hailed such messengers small
As part of their joys, that make up their all;
And their language, 'though crude, will ever be
The language of joy and hope to me.

Long years have gone, and I watch no more
On the blue flag stones of that olden door;
But those young love days forever come
When my thoughts steal back to my early home;
When through the gloom of the purpling flats
I watched for the flit of the twilight bats.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

TRAVELS IN WESTERN AFRICA.

NUMBER THREE.

NEW ORLEANS, February 22. 1868.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

In keeping with my promise made to you in letter number two, I resume my narrative. The next point to which my attention was directed was New Georgia. It is situated on the west side of Stockton creek, four and a half miles above Monrovia. It was laid off for the purpose of colonizing those poor recaptives who were taken from slave ships by American men of war. It formerly enjoyed, on account of its proximity to Monrovia, an extensive and valuable palm oil and native cloth trade; but at present it has few or no advantages, and from the number of decayed and deserted houses, appeared to be on the decline. The situation is damp and disagreeable; in high water, or rains, it is frequently inundated. The Americo-Liberians seldom pass a season without suffering from the effects of the miasma arising from the lagoons in the vicinity. The natives and recaptives, whether on account of their being inured to the climate, their manner of living, or from their possessing more hardy constitutions, are little affected by it, but generally enjoy good health. The settlement now contains two churches, Methodist and Baptist, and about one hundred inhabitants, who are principally farmers and fishermen.

Caldwell is situated ten miles above Monrovia on the west bank of the St. Paul river. It is a fine agricultural settlement, peopled by industrious farmers. It contains about one hundred and fifty inhabitants, with one Methodist and one Episcopalian church, the former being in the ascendency.

Virginia, on the east bank of the river about five miles from its mouth, is settled principally by emigrants from the Old Dominion, and mostly of the religious sect known as Hard Shell Baptists. It contains a Baptist church built of brick and several trading places. The dwelling houses are principally frame, one story high. The population is estimated at about ninety-eight. Though no considerable sickness has prevailed in this settlement for some years past it can not be regarded as less healthful than the more elevated portions of the surrounding settlements.

Clay-Ashland occupies a beautiful situation on the eastern bank of the river, fifteen miles from its mouth. The town stands on an elevated level, and embraces a view of the river of two or five miles in each direction. It has three or four stores. The Methodist, Baptist, Episcopalian, and Presbyterian denominations each have houses of worship; they are handsomely built brick edifices with towers and bells, and provided with ministers; four spinning machines, mechanics, and trades of various descriptions, and its streets are graced with handsome brick and frame houses containing about one hundred and thirty inhabitants. In this township is the residence of Right Rev. John W. Roberts, of M. E. Mission church, also of the wealthiest coffee planters, Messrs. Hooper, Blackledge, and Johns. Further, the settlement was originally settled by the estate of the immortal Henry Clay, in honor of whose memory the town is named.

New York is on the east bank of the river, three miles above Clay-Ashland, and settled with thrifty and enterprising farmers. It is the home of Jesse Sharp, the wealthiest sugar planter in the republic of Liberia, and contains a steam saw and two steam sugar mills.

Louisiana, on the opposite side of the river, is another farming settlement, containing two steam sugar mills, distillery, and about eighty inhabitants. The public building is a Baptist church. The principal farmers in this settlement are the Messrs. Coopers & Sons, of Virginia, who are extensively engaged in the cultivation of sugar cane.

White Plains, contiguous to Louisiana, is also a farming district. It contains the Methodist Episcopal mission house and school, and about fifty-five inhabitants, the principal of whom are Rev. Philip Gross, of Methodist Episcopal church; Hon. Augustus Washington, Hon. David Kelly, and Thomas Howland, all of whom are engaged in cultivating sugar cane. There are four hand sugar mills and one distillery in this settlement, also a superior brickmaker named David Carter, who can command twelve dollars a thousand for brick of his manufacture. This place was the scene of the Gotorah massacre. The head of the chief who commanded the murderers is now in the office of Messrs. Fowler & Wells, of New York. This was the home of those Methodist heroines Mrs. Wilkins and Miss Kilpatrick.

Millsburg, on the east side of the river, and near the falls, is extensively covered with sugar cane, and contains a handsome brick Methodist church, which is generally well filled on sabbaths. It has within its boundaries the largest steam sugar mill in the republic, owned by Leo L. Lloyd, two hand sugar mills, and one distillery. Its population is estimated at about ninety-five.

John B. Jordan, of New Orleans, was the pioneer of sugar cane cultivation in Western Africa, he having introduced the first steam mill in the settlement of Louisiana.

Harrisburg, about two miles above the falls, on the west side of the river, is a flourishing farming settlement. It boasts of having the Alexander high school, conducted by the Presbyterians, two churches, belonging to the Methodist and Presbyterian denominations, and a population of about one hundred souls, who are devoted to coffee and sugar cane cultivation.

Such is the hasty view of the several farming settlements on the St. Paul river. After a refreshing sleep at the residence of Hon. A. Washington, I prepared for my journey to Careysburg, which was interiorward. Placing all the females in hammocks, and putting our luggage upon the backs of native carriers, we started in high glee. Our course now lay through a dense forest, and after passing through several native towns, being stared at and called new comers, we arrived on Tuesday evening at Careysburg, which I found a flourishing and thriving place, and presenting a busy appearance. With its situation I was much pleased, but more gratified with the enterprise of its citizens.

Every one was active and industrious. There were no loungers, no idlers, no "loafers" to be seen. Every person seemed engaged in some occupation, and pursuing it with industry and zeal. Buildings were springing up, and the hum of busy industry was sounding through the town.

Careysburg is without doubt the healthiest settlement in the republic of Liberia, and the greatest wonder. In 1857 the savage African there built his little hut; the noble deer there saw undismayed his own image reflected from the polished mirrors of the glassy streams; the adventurous settler then cultivated a small portion of the fertile soil, and was living far, far away from the comforts of civilization. Ten years have rolled by, and how changed that scene! That savage is now further interior; he has left his native hills, his hunting grounds, his devil bush, the grave of his father, and now is building his home in the gigantic forest, again to be driven away by the ax of the woodsman and the mighty tide of civilization. That gallant deer no longer bounds secure through those mighty forests, but startles at the rustling of every leaf or sighing of every wind, fearing the rifles of the numerous Nimrods who now pursue the daring chase. That adventurous settler is now surrounded by luxury and refinement; a township with a population of over eight hundred souls has now arisen; its roofs glitter in the morning sun, its streets are alive with the busy hum of the African trader and Americo-Liberian farmer.

The wand of the magician or the spell of the talisman never effected changes like these; nay, even Aladdin's lamp in all its glory never performed greater wonders. What has produced this great change and prosperity? I answer, its natural advantages and the untiring industrial enterprise of its citizens. Its situation for health and natural fortifications is unsurpassed by any settlement in the African republic. The Mandingo path open to it the trade of the north and east. But the great share of its prosperity is to be attributed to the harmony, temperance, and religious indomitable perseverance of its citizens, most of whom are young; many there are upon whose temples the golden locks of youth are not darkened; many who a short time previous were oppressed and afflicted in America had bade adieu to their native hills and immured themselves in the wilderness of Africa, determining to acquire both fame and fortune. And what has been the result? While many of their companions and former associates were toiling and struggling in the lowly vale of life, with scarcely enough of the world's gear to drive away the cravings of actual want, the enterprising adventurer amassed wealth, contributed to build up in Africa a noble township, the pride of his adopted country, the foundations of whose prosperity were laid on the broad basis of public morals and Christian benevolence, and has truly caused the wilderness to bloom and blossom like the rose. Such are always the rewards of ever daring minds.

This place will unquestionably become one of the greatest inland towns in the republic of Liberia, and second only to Monrovia. The air is pure and balmy. Its geographically central position fits it most admirably for the future capital of the republic, while its location by nature in the heart of the most fertile mountainous region in Western Africa, and the important public works contemplated to intersect it, can not fail of rendering it a place of extensive business and crowded population.

The care which the original surveyors took to give the winds a full sweep through the town has distinguished it as the most healthful place in the republic of Liberia, and has made it the resort of a large number of people during acclimation.

The natural advantages of the place, and the enterprise and capital that will concentrate here, with the favorable prospects for health, must soon make this the emporium of trade and business for all the interior country. It only requires a good road, with bridges over the several streams, from St. Paul river to the township, and a railroad to the interior, to give Careysburg a communication with all the principal wealthy African towns in the country, and make it the grand depot for the missionary, merchant, stranger, and traveler. It is upon careful examination and mature reflection that I have arrived at the conclusion above stated.

The country around Careysburg is the most fertile and beautiful that can be imagined. It consists of an intermixture of woods and prairies, diversified with gentle slopes, sometimes attaining the elevation of hills, and irrigated with a number of clear streams, which empty their waters partly into the St. Paul river and partly into the DuQueah river. As a farming country it unites the fertile soil of the finest lowland prairies with an elevation which exempts it from the influence of stagnant waters, and a summer climate of delightful serenity, while its natural meadows present all the advantages for raising stock of the most favored part of Africa. This town is surrounded for several miles in extent with one of the finest bodies of timber in the republic, from which vast quantities of lumber may be produced, and comprises most of the varieties common to America. Besides oaks of several species, there are mahogany, cedar, rosewood, locust, cherry, teak, mulberry, mango, poplar, etc., large quantities of which are conveyed by native carriers to the river, (about sixteen miles from the township,) and from thence to Monrovia. Various mineral productions exist, and are found in quantities; the chief are iron and limestone. Gold is found in the vicinity of Careysburg in quantities sufficient to pay for building palaces; the natives, with whom time is of but little value, can afford to "wash out" at the rate of a few cents a day, but Americo-Liberians require dollars where savages require but mills. In the richer valleys of the interior hundreds of women may be seen in company, each furnished with a bowl and a bunch of switches, with which to stir up the earth in the vessels, and a small hoe for digging. The particles of gold by their weight sink to the bottom of the vessel when the contents are agitated, and are picked out, morsel by morsel from the grains of sand or other heavy matter which accompanies them. The gold is then bought up by petty African merchants, who give cotton goods and trinkets in exchange, and by them is carried to the seaport towns where it is bought by the American, Englishman, or German, for like commodities or rum. The principal productions of the soil are rice, corn, potatoes, beans, peas, cassava, millet, plantains, bananas, cotton, and sugar cane, all of which arrive to great perfection. Garden vegetables and fruits of all kinds attain a most luxuriant growth. Rice is worth two dollars per bushel at this time, corn one dollar, potatoes seventy-five cents, beans and peas twenty cents per quart. Among its public structures are two large receptacles, or hotels for immigrants, a block gunhouse, warehouse for immigrant stores, sash and blind factory, and houses of worship for one Methodist, one Baptist, and one Presbyterian society, all of which have ministers and respectable congregations. The Methodist Episcopal church is a neat frame with cupula, a bell, and embraces the largest proportion of the religious community about Careysburg, and claims the tribute of praise from every beholder.

"These temples of His grace,
How beautiful they stand!
The honors of our native place,
And bulwarks of our land."

No people cherish the sentiment conveyed in these lines more than do those of Careysburg. Not a town in the republic of its population has been so liberal in its contributions to every measure of Christian benevolence.

The town also contains an excellent Methodist Episcopal school for both sexes. The sabbath schools are exerting an important influence upon the rising generation, and on the surrounding aborigines. There are also eight spinning machines and one weaving machine at work, besides one physician, mechanics, farmers, and trades of every description.

There is a "Union Sisters of Charity" benevolent association, a volunteer company, a live stock company, an iron manufacturers' company, a lyceum, a Daughters of Golden circle, and a liquor distilling company in this settlement.

The streets cross at right angles, and are eighty feet wide, and lined with neat dwelling houses, having fine gardens front and rear, giving the town a rural appearance. Many of the buildings, however, are small; and the humble cabin, the abiding place of some of the pioneer settlers not unfrequently meets the eye. Good morals, religious privileges, the advantages for education given by the Methodist Episcopal denomination, with an intelligent and agreeable society, make Careysburg a desirable residence.

The inhabitants of the township having emigrated from Louisiana, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Georgia, and the Carolinas, and going there with a small capital and their accustomed habits of industry, soon succeeded in subduing those fertile lands to a state of high cultivation. And such is the comparative ease with which land can be brought into cultivation that the farmer will accomplish there in three years what would not be attained in America with the same labor in ten years, which circumstance alone, when duly considered by him who has a small capital and is about to emigrate to Africa to find a home, is an inducement amply sufficient to give a decided preference to Careysburg.

From the hill of Careysburg the prospect is uncommonly fine. Looking toward the east you first behold extensive fields of rice, cane, cassavas, and potatoes, etc., whose green and the brilliant hues of a thousand flowers form the most lively contrast. Beyond this the settlement of Paxtonville. Turning to the west your eyes fall upon the little settlement of Lincolnville, with its fields of corn and rice, and rows of little white cottages in the background, the blue mountains shutting from your view the setting sun. Language can not convey, words can not express to you the faintest idea of the grandeur and splendor of an African sunset in December.

In concluding this description of Careysburg, I feel authorized to say that in excellency of soil, abundance of water, timber, etc., this township is unsurpassed by any portion of the republic, and holds out at this time strong inducements to the emigrating farmer to make this his permanent, his prosperous, his happy home. But I must pause. My eyes grow heavy, and I feel I am trespassing on your limits. More in my next letter, so I bid you good night. For now

"The lamp of day is quenched beneath the deep,
And soft approach the balmy hours of sleep."

Respectfully,
FREDERICK K. HYDE.

Jackson District.

JACKSON.

Saturday and Sunday before last, 22nd and 23rd ultimo, quarterly meeting was held at Jackson. The church is in a prosperous condition, and the new minister in charge, Rev. Moses Adams, is much encouraged in his work of inaugurating a more thorough system of administration. This is a pleasing feature, inasmuch as our churches so greatly need training and nursing.

The services on Sabbath were largely attended. In the afternoon there was a sprinkling of all colors. A great many persons communed, and we had an occasion of solemnity rarely witnessed. Several persons became serious, and after a sermon from Rev. C. W. Fitzhugh at night, they bowed around the altar. Three persons united with the church by certificate from other branches of the Methodist Church.

SABBATH SCHOOL.

The sabbath school is very large, numbering I think over two hundred; Brother Adams is superintendent; four educated ladies from the North engaged in teaching day school, are the teachers, and we have what may be termed a live Sunday school. I addressed them at length in the morning, and told them of the Sunday school books given by our Sunday School union; the hearts of the little ones showed exultation by their sparkling eyes and smiling faces. Surely if Dr. Wise or Dr. Carlton had seen them they would have said, "The Sunday School union is paid back." Jackson Methodist Episcopal Sunday school will show its gratitude by a Sunday school collection.

IMPROVEMENT.

Brother Adams has secured through the activity of several of the members and the contributions of friends a bell, whose solemn peals resounding in the beautiful grove around the church, summons the people to the house of God. The church stands on an acre lot, and the people have concluded to quit paying ten dollars a month rent for a house for the preacher, and put up a parsonage.

THE TIMES.

The times are hard, yet I see no actual suffering in Jackson. Money is alarmingly scarce, yet the people get enough to eat somehow. The sitting of the convention would circulate a little more money in Jackson but the delegates receive only convention warrants, as no tax to defray expenses has yet been collected. These warrants have been sold as low as twenty-five cents on the dollar, none for more than fifty. The recent passage of a tax ordinance by the convention, and late advices from the North, have given them an upward tendency.

THE CONVENTION.

The Mississippi state convention will make one of the best constitutions that will be presented to congress by the rebel states. They are progressing slowly but surely. The opposition element in the convention is strong. Men have been elected who have betrayed their constituents, and glory in parliamentary filibustering.

The ablest delegate of the opposition is Judge Watson, of Marshall, an ex-member of the confederate congress. He fiercely opposes universal suffrage, and made an elaborate speech last week in which he denounced it, and charged the black race with native incapacity and barbarity. At the instance of several gentlemen that he considers his peers I challenged him to a public discussion. He solicited an introduction, and verbally declined. Whether it was because he feared being overshadowed by a dark skin, or the darkness of his own dark cause, I know not.

MERIDIAN AND MARION.

Last Saturday and Sunday quarterly conference and quarterly meeting was appointed at Meridian and Marion. The quarterly conference was held at both places on Saturday, though five miles apart. Sunday we expected would be a "high day," but late Saturday evening the clouds gathered thick and heavy, and soon the sounding rain upon the roof foretold disappointment. The rain continued with fury all day Sabbath.

THE CHURCH AT MERIDIAN

barely "holds its own." The brother appointed to the charge at our last annual conference has not arrived, nor has he written to his people or his presiding elder. Is he dead or alive? Who can tell us about Brother Murrell? After waiting a reasonable lenth of time, official responsibility and the wants of the church may imperatively demand that the presiding elder supply the field with another preacher.

The Marion brethren will improve their church this year.

Rev Aaron Moore, the preacher in charge of the Marion circuit, is a delegate to the convention, and is distinguishing himself by his rare sagacity united with intelligent firmness. The people of the circuit hold him in high regard, and much good is expected from his labors this year.

In my next I shall say something of the Sunday and day schools at Meridian. They are worthy of note and of extraordinary success. The teachers are Mr. Bishop, Misses Jarvis and McClelland. The two latter have Oberlin college for their alma mater. Mr. Bishop is a well educated gentleman, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

BROTHER RYAN'S EXODUS.

I have not been to Columbus lately, but near there, and see many from there of intelligence and reliability, and can find no one who knows anything of Ryan's "three thousand" who want to go to Liberia. Brother Ryan has been imposed on or else the old father has had a dream.

NEW SOCIETIES.

Brother Handy, preacher in charge at Canton, wrote me last week, "Come up as soon as you can; a society of sixty members have united with us." Scott county contains a large colored population. No school or Methodist Episcopal church in the county. I have visited there, and if I can find means to provide a preacher for them in any way large numbers will be under our watchful care. The white people in Scott county would put a Chinese wall around it if they could to keep out all Yankees, Northern preachers, and teachers. The prejudice against us is strong.

My next quarterly meeting will be at Enterprise.

JAMES LYNCH.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

Letter from John Baldwin.

A BARN CONVERTED AND A CHURCH FORMED.

DANBY PLACE, February 23, 1868.

DEAR DR. NEWMAN: Our meeting place at the quarters became too small. What could we do? We went to the barn, the floor of which is fifty-two feet by thirty-two, took the floor out of the centre floor overhead, which gave a front and side gallery, then sawed the bell post into blocks and placed them in rows on the lower floor and placed the boards taken from the floor above on the blocks which gave, with the benches from the quarters, accommodations or room for from 500 to 1000 people. Whether our barn, which is on the College Campus, is like the one in Bethlehem we can not tell. Ours will accommodate 800 people and twenty-two oxen at the same time. As we have not the oxen we think their stalls will remain vacant while we occupy the barn for a church. Last Sabbath our church was dedicated by the presiding elder, Brother Diossy, which commenced by singing and prayer in the Sabbath-school, then drilling the children as well as all present in the elements of reading. And here let me say I believe before I return North in June I shall have 100 started fairly in reading. Our Sabbath-school being regularly organized by the elder, after which he preached with great success. He then organized a church of thirty-three persons, with stewards and leaders, amid tears of joy and shouts of glory. So you see, doctor, we are fairly started.

We can not boast of a costly church, as the whole expense of fitting up did not exceed three dollars, sawing bell post, and all. Did you know, doctor, what the rebs did with that big bell that used to hang on that post? They made it into guns to kill the Yankees. We thought we would use the post for better purposes. We have no doctors of divinity in our church, but we have Uncle Ben for our leader, who has been whipped during forty years past on an average of once a week on this very plantation for preaching the gospel. Over two thousand whippings, and the Lord only knows how many lashes. Such material, we think, will answer as a foundation on which to build Thomson University.

JOHN BALDWIN.

HUMOROUS.

The young man who sang "I'm lonely fince my mother died," isn't quite so lonely now. The old man married again, and his step mother makes it lively enough for him.

A daily paper says that a lioness belonging to Thayer & Noye's circus, died at Baltimore on Monday, after giving birth to a cud. Another warning against the use of tobacco.

The neatest bit of pleantry which the quarrel in England between the Evangelical churchmen and the ritualists has given rise to, is in the assertion made by the former party that, "Eve before the fall was Eve-angenlical, but afterward took to vestments,"

A DESOLATE SPECTACLE.—What can be a more desolate spectacle than an old maid sitting on an inverted half-bushel in a cold kitchen, with her feet on the rim of a slop bucket, pareing her corns with a case knife by the light of a tallow candle?

During the late bathing season, a pompous individual walked up to the office of a seaside hotel, and with a considerable flourish signed the book, and in a loud voice exclaimed: "I'm lieutenant governor of ——." "That doesen't make any difference," said the lanlord, "you'll be treated just as well as the others."

SATISFACTORY.—"Halloa, boy, did you see a rabbit cross the road there just now?" "A rabbit!" "Yes, be quick; a rabbit." "Was it a kinder gray varmint?" "Yes, yes." "A longish cretur with a short tail?" "Yes, be quick, or he'll gain his burrow." "Had it long legs behind and big ears?" "Yes, yes; and sorter jumps when it runs." "Well, I haint seen no such cretur about here."

AS OUR MOTHERS DO.—The other evening three little girls were playing among the sage bushes in the back yard. Two of them were "making believe keephouse" a few yards distant from each other, neighbors as it were. One of them says to the third little girl, "There now, Nellie, you go to Sarah's house, and stop awhile and talk, and then you come back and tell me what she says about me, and then I'll talk about her; then you go and tell her all I say, and then we'll get mad and won't speak to each other, just like our mothers do, you know. Oh, that'll be such fun."

A LUDICROUS BLUNDER.—A clergyman of a country village church, says a Connectinut paper, desired to give notice that there would be no service in the afternoon as he was "going to officiate for another clergyman." The clerk, as soon as the sermon was finished, rose up with all due solemnity and called out, "I am requested to give notice that there will be no service this afternoon, as Mr. L. is going a fishing with another clergyman." Mr. L. of course corrected the awkward yet amusing blunder.

COOL, RATHER!—Professor Duncan, of Aberdeen, asked a lady to marry him; she answered him "No!" and the subject was dropped; but they soon met again. "Do you remember," said the lady, "a question you put to me?" The professor said he remembered. "And do you remember my answer?" "O, yes," said the professor. "Well, Mr. Duncan," proceeded the lady, "I have been led to change my mind." "And so have I," dryly responded the professor.

Some years ago a clergyman was preaching to a large audience in a wild part of Illinois, and announced for his text, "In my father's house are many mansions." He had scarcely read the words when an old coon stood up and said: "I tell you folks that's a lie! I know his father well. He lives fifteen miles from old Kentuck, in an old log cabin, and there ain't but one room in the house."

On a winter's night, when the moon shone bright, and the snow was crusted o'er, with a maid as fair as seraphs are, I slid from a hill down lower. Ere we reached the place, like a horse on a race, our swift gliding sled careened; and with tresses fair, streaming back in the air, sweet Sallie went eend over eend.

A RING DOVE, RATHER!—"My "My turtle dove, I adore you!" said a a gay young fellow to his lady-love. "That's all very well," said she; "but I'm tired of this sort of billing and cooing. If you love me so much, why don't you take me to church, and make me your ring-dove?"

New Orleans Advocate.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion.....50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, MARCH 7, 1868.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

H. C. WARMOTH.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,

OSCAR J. DUNN.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,

GEORGE BOVEE.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,

SIMEON BELDEN.

FOR AUDITOR,

GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.

FOR TREASURER,

ANTOINE DUBUCLET.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,

T. W. CONWAY.

Rev. Dr. Newman will preach in his church to-morrow at 11 A. M. and at 7½ P. M. In the evening he will deliver the concluding sermon in the course on the Prodigal Son—"His Happy Reception."

On Monday evening at 7½ o'clock, Judge Howe lectures in the Ames Church before the Young Men's Association.

London Bakery.—Our friends John Westrup & Son have concluded to remain in New Orleans for a while, and have gone into the cracker business. Their place is, 38 Julia street, and we hope our readers will give them a call. Their crackers, biscuits, and rusks are the best we ever ate, and are universally liked.

Something New.—Mr. S. R. Wells editor Phrenological Journal, has published:

"The Good Man's Legacy." An excellent sermon, by Rev. Samuel Osgood, D. D., with portrait and sketch of Dr. Richard Rothe, of Heidelburg. Price twenty-five cents.

"Consumption: Its Cause, and Cure by the Swedish Movement," with illustrations and directions for home application, by David Wark, M. D. Price thirty cents.

"Education of the Heart." The necessity of moral culture for human happiness. By Hon. Schuyler Colfax. Sent postpaid for ten cents. Address the publisher, 389 Broadway, New York.

A Word to Our Preachers.

Our preachers will now report as to the number of copies of the Advocate they require for their charge. This is the last issue for the month of January, 1868. You have had sufficient time to canvass your churches, and you now know how many copies you will need. Some of our preachers have already reported, and their reports are excellent and full of encouragement. They inform us that they sell a single copy of the Advocate for ten cents when they cannot induce persons to subscribe for the whole year, and that the people like the paper so well that they come regularly and buy it. Let us hear from you, brethren, at once, and send us good reports.

Price Reduced.

The New Oleans Advocate may be had for 1868 for Three Dollars a year in advance, or One Dollar a quarter in advance.

We shall continue to send to all subscribers in the North and West until they otherwise order, and we shall send them their bills by February 1, 1868.

Impeachment.

The preliminaries of the great trial are now settled, and the presidential prisoner will soon be arraigned before the bar of the Senate of the United States. It will be the most august trial either in the history of this or of any other country. Not that Mr. Johnson is a great man, but because he is the head of the greatest nation on the face of the globe; and the crime charged against him is the violation of the supreme law of the land. The court will be the United States Senate, over which the chief justice of the supreme court of the nation will preside. Such a court will be as august as the Jewish Sanhedrim or as the Athenian Areopagus. Wise as may have been the members of those ancient and venerable tribunals, yet the combined talent and learning in our American Areopagus will be without a parallel in the history of the world. Of the impartiality of the decisions of the court there can not be a shadow of doubt. Partisans may say the condemnation of the illustrious prisoner is a forgone conclusion, but we are proud to say that no one of the senatorial jurors has been known to have expressed his opinion on the merits of the case. And from the decisions of that court there will be no appeal; its verdict will be final. It has been suggested that inasmuch as the supreme court of the United States has not decided on the constitutionality of the law, the violation of which Mr. Johnson stands charged, therefore that court may yet decide it unconstitutional, and in the event of the president's condemnation he will be regarded by mankind as an injured man; but the court which will try Mr. Johnson is higher than the United States supreme court, and from its decision, an appeal can not be taken to a lower court.

The political significance of this great trial, is of transcendant importance. The resisting power of our government has been magnificently demonstrated within the last seven years. It has survived a civil war, the tremendous shock of which has no equivalent in martial annals; it has come forth renewed from a revolution, which radically changed the social system of nearly half our people; it outlives the death of slavery; and while it bowed its mighty head in humble submission to Almighty God, in the murder of its chief magistrate, yet in that fearful hour, the great machinery of our government moved on so noislessly as not to disturb the solem silence of that mournful hour. It now remains for the great republic to pass through the additional ordeal of the trials and deposition of its constitutional head. That the national government is capable of undergoing such a change, and that without a revolution, we have every reason to believe. And in this will appear the superiority of the American republic over the monarchies of the old world; and that while Charles I, of England, and Louis XVI, of France, were deposed by the sword, Andrew Johnson will be removed from office without the spilling of a drop of blood, or interrupting for a moment the harmonious movement of the national administration. And this result is being evinced by the conduct of Mr. Johnson's supporters. His Democratic friends are abandoning him in this supreme hour, just as the supporters of a bad cause always break in the time of adverse fortunes.

They rallied around him to use him, and when he ceases to be a power in their hands they will be the first to cry "crucify him." The telegrams which the President is reported as receiving, offering him men and money in his opposition to Congress, are but the tooting of so many penny trumpets which please children but do not scare men. When the hour comes the great Republican masses of this country will send up to Congress such assurances of support as to send trembling through the ranks of the Democracy, and strengthen the mighty joints of a Republican Congress. The solemn, august trial has commenced, and the world shall soon behold the sublime spectacle of a great and free people removing from the highest position of authority and power, a man who has violated the laws of the land, and who has sought thereby to make treason honorable.

Captain W. B. Armstrong.

This gentleman has just been relieved as disbursing agent of the Freedmen's Bureau in New Orleans, and the event calls for an emphatic endorsement of his character as a man and his actions as a public servant. During a residence of nearly five years in this city, he has been connected with the quartermaster's department, and as such, he has been the custodian of millions of government property. Both Maj. Gen. Howard and the Assistant Commissioners in Louisiana have entertained a very high regard for him and reposed implicit confidence in his official integrity; and he leaves the Bureau with the kindest assurances from Gen. Howard of his very sincere esteem for him and his regrets that the economy of the service requires the displacement of all volunteer officers by those of the regular army.

The order relieving Captain Armstrong is especially regretted by the freedmen of Louisiana, who remember him as their constant and devoted friend. He is among the few men connected with the bureau who are in full sympathy with the emancipation of the slaves, and who act toward them from principle rather than for the consideration of position and salary. He has had a heart to feel for those whose sudden change from slaves to freemen exposed them to many insults and acts of injustice. Although laying no claim to political greatness, yet the freedmen of Louisiana will affectionately associate the name of Armstrong with those of Butler and Banks, and were he offered to-day for the votes of the black men of the state, he would poll a larger vote than any other man in New Orleans. And it is equally gratifying to us to state that Captain Armstrong stands high in the estimation of our white fellow-citizens both for his courtesy, integrity, and patriotism. Many of them have had large business connections with him, and have had opportunities to test his fidelity. And it gives us pleasure to state that the Captain has concluded to reside in Louisiana as his future home, and as a friend of religion, education, and freedom, and as a true Republican he will be of great service to the cause of reconstruction.

Bolters.

It appears to be necessary, still, to call the attention of our party friends here to the fact that the Republican organization is a national one; to the additional fact that outside of this national organization no state party or local political organization, no matter how it may style itself, radical or "true radical," can be of any service to the cause of Republican principles, or be at all successful.

The dream of forming an exclusively negro party in these states, on the guerrilla style, which shall court the favor of either the Republican or copperhead party, according to their bids for its support, is nothing more than another phase of secession; a sort of caricature of the reality which will prove utterly impracticable, and which none but a few impracticables of more intellect and ambition, than honesty or honor, among the colored people, and a few, very few, sore-headed and weak-minded white men are deluded by.

The mass of the colored men of this state have no faith in the men who preach to them that the question of loyalty or disloyalty is an obsolete one, and that new and additional tests of Republicanism are required in this state to those of the party at large.

It was urged by the Tribune for a long time that certain tests of radicalism were required in Louisiana, additional to, and independent of the publicly declared principles of the Republican party of the nation.

In other words that a man might be a very good Republican at the North and still not be accepted as such in Louisiana.

The Tribune, and a small class of its followers, set the fashion of styling those Republicans who did not servilely follow its lead "snakes," and "copperheads." The Tribune carried this so far that, when the State Republican Convention appointed a State Central Committee it had the audacity to advise the old committee, which was functus officio, to still assume to act, and to disregard the will of the party. This arbitrary and insubordinate action of the Tribune was, out of motives of conciliation and generosity, yielded to by the party, and the regular committee admitted to its organization the refractory members of the old committee who had rebelled. Thus it was hoped dissensions were healed and the pretensions of the Tribune to leadership appeased.

The constitutional convention assembled, and the Tribune deserting the men who had carried its banner and followed its vagaries hitherto, allowed the conservatives to triumph by electing Judge Taliaferro as their chosen candidate. This course, by winning a few friends before its treachery to its old supporters was fully understood, secured it the printing of the convention by a close vote. Then followed the state nominating convention. The Tribune entered warmly into the canvass, and after the assembling of the convention entered the lists with its candidate for governor Major F. E. Dumas. It tried hard to secure the nomination, and did nearly succeed.

If it had succeeded, the convention would have been regular and the nomination binding. It did not succeed, and forthwith the convention became a fraud and the nominations irregular. It admitted the legitimacy of the convention by going into it with its candidate, and denied it only after it was defeated.

But this is not all. Pretending, after its defeat that the convention was bogus, and the nominations fraudulently obtained, it refused to support them upon the pretence that the convention did not truly represent the wishes of the people. But it did not have faith enough in its own pretensions, to submit its complaints to the people at their primary elections and call for a new convention. It could not even trust its own wire-workers and co-conspirators, but without a shadow of authority from the people, the editors of the Tribune, in their own private room, concocted a ticket and have the effrontery to present it to the people of Louisiana as the true Republican Ticket.

We have just one word for Dr. Roudanez self-elected despot and dictator of Louisiana, it is this; your subterfuges and your excuses are the old, well known, and wornout ones of the Bolter. By bolting, you have placed yourself in antagonism to the Republican party of Louisiana, and to the great solid and compact Republican party of the United States, and more than all, to the best interests of the people of your own color. As a bolter you will fall, and as one you will be judged, and as one you will land, where you are fast tending at every step, in the arms of the copperheads and enemies of the Union.

New Mayor.

The constitutional convention has provided that a municipal election shall be held at the same time the new constitution is offered for adoption, and the state officers therein provided for, are elected. Of course the mayoralty will be the chief feature in the forthcoming municipal election, and the importance of selecting a good man for this position is apparent to all. We care not how poor a man is so long as he is honest, nor how obscure if he is loyal, but we must have an honest, loyal, and Republican mayor, no matter whether he is a "new comer" or an "old comer." We can not disguise the fact that the Republicans will need to vote every one of their men to carry the municipal election of New Orleans. The white and black vote is about equally divided. There are at least five thousand white Union men, and the same number of black men, who hold the balance of power, and who are unreliable for either party. They have a vote, but they are not committed to either side. Yet they can be induced to vote for a good man.

The Democrats will bring out their best men for the election, and will seek to nominate for mayor an unexceptionable Union man; but Republicans can't go for him, neither can the "ten thousand" vote for him, as we may naturally enough suppose that despite his unionism he will be subject to the rule of the Democracy. It will be the old story of the monkey and the cat's paws. It will simply be the Democrats in false faces, or the Democracy playing the "Mistick Krewe of Comus." The object of such a nomination will be to secure the votes of the "ten thousand" by the respectability of their nominees.

Republicans, therefore, should put forward their best man for mayor, whose uprightness, patriotism, and social position will command the respect of all men; whose true Republicanism will reflect great credit upon their party, and whose devotion to the interests of our colored fellow citizens will claim their undivided support. Any man less than this will not do; any man less than this can not be elected. If such a man is not put forward by the Republicans, there is danger of a third ticket, which may lose the city to the cause of the Union. Let the Republicans think twice before they act once in a matter of so much importance.

Ostracism.

There is a class of Union men in our community who are either to the "manor born," or who have lived here so long as to have won for themselves the appellation of "old citizens," who, more than any other set of men in New Orleans, have experienced the grinding spirit of Southern ostracism This spirit is the most heartless, relentless, and essentially infernal ever manifested outside of perdition. And this spirit is as rife to-day as at any time before or since the war. Those who are animated by it are capable of anything by which their hatred of Unionism is unmistakably evinced. They have adopted the old Jesuitical tenet, "The end justifies the means." To them lying is as truth-telling, slander as praise, and robbery as honesty, if a Union man is thereby injured.

"New-comers" may be despised and slandered, and their ill treatment is gentle compared to that which the old Union citizens receive. The latter know what it is to be "cut" by old and cherished friends; to be ostracised from the social circle and injured in business transactions; and to be neglected by their professedly Christian pastor and virtually turned "out of the synagogue." Only those who suffer can know the mental sufferings of such Union men and women. They drink in secret the cup of sorrow to its dregs. But is there no relief for them? Are they still to be persecuted? Will they not yet be masters of the situation? We believe there is but one course left the m, and that is to join heart and hand, fortune and honor, life and happiness, with those of our citizens who have recently chosen Louisiana as their adopted state. By this natural union they must create a new class in society which will soon be the dominant and popular class.

It is not possible that this foolish spirit of astracism can long survive. Nature forbids it, commerce wars against it, religion condemns it. Yet if treated with a cowardly hand it may live longer to annoy, but if grasped with the iron hand of couragous, manly, and determined loyalty, the foul spirit "will down." Every true Union man should boldly assert his principles, not unbecomingly, but with candor and propriety; and united with every other Union man in New Orleans, create a public sentiment that hell can't burn nor traitors crush out. There can not be less than twenty thousand such (white) citizens in our midst, and by a wise and determined combination they can control business, politics, and religion, and rule the social world in New Orleans.

Jefferson Davis.

This miserable man is wearing out his time in our city. His presence neither excites interest in the people nor calls forth comments from the press. For him personally the Southern people entertain no regard, and only defend his name because he was the leader of their now "lost cause." They feel toward him much like blind men feel whom a blind man has led into a ditch. They attribute to him more than to any other confederate leader, the mistakes which brought misfortune to their arms, death to their households, and poverty to their hearthstones. The companionship of bad men in endurable only when wickedness is triumphant; in defeat and adversity they hate each other. And this feeling of disgust will increase as the good work of reconstruction advances to completion, and when that good time comes the American people, North and South, will couple the name of Jefferson Davis with that of Benedict Arnold.

A New Church.

Rev. Henry Green, in connection with his arduous duties as pastor of one of our largest colored churches in the city, frequently goes out to neglected portions of the country and preaches to the people.

He has been requested for some time past by the people at Bay St. Louis, on Mississippi Sound, to come over and organize a society, as they all wished to belong to the "Mother Church." Accordingly he went over and spent last sabbath with them, and organized a church of fifty members. There being a young colored man there, a member of our church, who is engaged in teaching, and being highly recommended by the people, Brother Green licensed him as an exhorter, and left him for the present in charge of the society.

This work—the organizing of societies—all about this portion of our work is what is very much needed at present, and the success of this effort of Father Green's shows what might be accomplished by a presiding elder in traveling from town to town throughout his district.

Mrs. Lu Billings Spalding,

The author of so many beautiful articles written for the Advocate and copied therefrom into other journals, is the wife of Lieutenant Spalding, of the first United States infantry, stationed in this city.

Many of her articles are so sweet and touching, and withal so homelike, that they can not fail to awaken the admiration of the reader.

Mrs. Spalding is a poetess of no ordinary ability, and her articles would do honor to those making greater pretensions than herself.

Though she is the paid contributor of several other papers, yet we are pleased to inform the readers of the Advocate that we have secured her services to our columns for the future.

Information Wanted.—Stephen J. Ambush wishes information of his brother Simon Ambush, who was sold from Washington, District of Columbia, about twelve years ago, by James Robinson; also of his sister who was sold South, from Maryland, about sixteen years ago; also of his cousin Chesterfield, and Millie Davis.

Address Stephen J. Ambush, care Ebenezer (colored) Church, Washington, D. C.

Opelousas District.

Franklin, La., February, 1868.

THE ORPHANS' HOME AND OUR UNIVERSITY, FENCING, BUILDING, AND PLANTING.

For some time past the work of removing rubbish and gathering materials for building the Orphans' Home on Bayou Teche has been going forward. Sixteen thousand feet of new lumber has just been received from the sawmill, and workmen are busy stacking huge piles of brick. The Home garden and orchard are being prepared, several miles of new fence has been put up; the renters on our farm are briskly driving their plows, and getting ready to plant sugarcane, cotton, corn, and potatoes to feed the orphan's and themselves. The university place adjoining also looks like business. Brother Baldwin has made about six miles of new fence; his renters are hard at work. He has sold several town lots, and in the fall is to commence the college buildings on the beautiful campus.

BROTHER BALDWIN SUED—A WORTHLESS FREEDMAN—SHARP LAWYER—TEMPERANCE AND HONESTY.

Our friend has just had the first lawsuit in his long and active life. It created quite a sensation in Franklin. A freedman was persuaded to sue him for wages claimed as due for fencing. He had been discharged as an intemperate and worthless fellow; after having been paid one hundred and ten dollars, for work which had to be all done over, and which the witnesses testified was worth nothing. The lawyer induced one witness to say Mr. Baldwin told him, he wanted just such a fence; others were persuaded to say it was worth twenty cents a panel to break the way. We can get plenty of laborers to clear and fence, all the time at such rates. The justice decided against Mr. Baldwin, and gives it as his opinion that an appeal would be decided the same way. The sharp lawyer undertook to give Mr. Baldwin a lecture on honest dealing; he would charge nothing for it. Mr. Baldwin and his kind coming here must be taught that the good, honest, dear freedmen must not be cheated, and are not so easily deceived. They could not be paid for their hard labor with lectures on temperance, religion, or politics; in fact, whatever was the case in Ohio or elsewhere, in Louisiana such things are not a legal tender. The result of this suit was going to teach Mr. B. honesty. So this venerable philanthropist, who has given away two or three hundred thousand dollars for education and religion, and is in the South on the same mission of divine love, is badgered and ridiculed to make sport for the idlers of Franklin.

BALDWIN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH—THE OLD BARN—SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

The Sabbath, according to appointment, was devoted to the organization of a church at Baldwin, on the college grounds. An old barn was fitted up comfortably for church and school purposes. The spacious room will accommodate two or three hundred people, while below and around some forty head of oxen and mules may be sheltered and fed. We were reminded of the place where the babe of Bethlehem was born, and wise men gathered to worship him. Precious memories and omens of good! The children's meeting was first of course. Brother and Sister Baldwin have attended to this important interest ever since their arrival. Over a hundred old and young have been under instruction with charts and oral teaching. Hereafter they will have help and a regular organization. To-day fifty-three children and more adults were present. Catechism, singing, rewards, and addresses filled the hour. A large Bible class is formed, and the prospect is encouraging.

Rev. Mr. Small writes from Alexandria in this district:

"I have got a donation of ground in Pineville from a generous friend, and from the same gentleman all the timber for framing the church; but our people are so very poor they can do nothing. Without help we can go no further. Dear Elder, wont you please try to get us assistance to build, so as to have a place to serve God in, and to hold day-school? We are now in a small cabin, where a good congregation meets, and a large Sunday school. I mean to open a day-school very soon in Pineville. We want to see you very much. Order has not been before known here, and everybody is pleased with our doings. Here and in Alexandria the spirit of God is at work—many mourners. There is great suffering. Without government rations people would starve to death."

PREACHING AND ORGANIZATION—THIRTY-FIVE MEMBERS—LOVE FEAST.

At eleven o'clock a large audience gathered for preaching, and gave earnest attention; after which the church was formed with thirty-five members and probationers, one local preacher, two exhorters, three leaders, and two stewards. Several came forward with broken hearts, while many more seemed to feel that God was with us. In the afternoon Brother Frére preached a loving sermon. A love feast was then held, in which rich testimonies were given of Divine grace. Brother Baldwin told us about the great Vineland camp meeting. Sister B—— made an earnest, tender appeal for Christian holiness, and related some of their experiences in relation to coming South in the cause of education and religion. It was a happy and profitable meeting, and a blessed Lord's day. Thus the seed is planted and watered. Let us have earnest prayer all over the land, that God may give the increase.

ITINERANT.

The New Orleans Advocate

has been chosen with other loyal papers to publish officially the proceedings of the State Constitutional Convention, and these proceedings will be published without additional expense to our subscribers.

ANOTHER LETTER FROM MR. CONWAY.

Roudanez.

Editor Republican:

Dr. L. C. Roudanez, editor and proprietor of the New Orleans Tribune, attempts to contravert my statement that he had never given a picayune to aid the Republican cause in this state by saying that he lost in business upward of thirty thousand dollars; and he proceeds to prove his business losses by quotations from his books. He virtually admits my statement to be true, for he shows no proof of having ever given a cent to the party to which he would seem to claim allegiance; he merely attempts to prove that he lost money in his business. Other Republicans have lost money in the publication of newspapers, and in other pursuits, but we have never heard their business losses put down to the account of the political party to which they claimed to belong. The case of Roudanez is the first of the kind known to us.

He must have thought that he was the party as a certain ruler did that he was the state, and consequently that what his private losses were must have been the losses of all the Republicans of Louisiana. This is funny. Had he shown by any receipts from the treasurer of any club, or from the Central committee, or in any other way, that he ever paid a cent to the party I would be glad to give him credit for it, but to see him try to humbug the people with the idea that what he lost in business was equal to so much paid into the treasury of the party is ridiculous. What Roudanez says of me personally, and of the motives which prompt my labors for the cause of equal rights, is so much the reverse of what has appeared in the Tribune a hundred times that I need say nothing about it. The people know. The great meeting of the colored people in the Orleans theatre in 1865, when Andy Johnson removed me from the office of commissioner of the freedmen's bureau, pronounced a very different judgment from that of Roudanez in his paper of yesterday. It was one of which I may ever be proud. Perhaps it would be well for the doctor to refer back to the Tribune, which published an account of that meeting, and refresh his memory as to the opinions which the colored people then entertained concerning me. He feels sore now, and is not in a humor to enjoy such references.

I think I have said enough about Roudanez. He refutes nothing I have said, for he knows how true my statements are.

I helped him get the federal printing last spring, as he knows by letters in his possession; but he tried to destroy the Republican party when he found he could not rule it, and thus provoked the clerk of the house of representatives to revoke the order which gave him that printing.

The poor man has brought agony upon himself, and has no one else to blame for it. I dismiss him for the present, and leave him to his fate. THOMAS W. CONWAY.

The Firemen's Parade.—One half of the population of New Orleans yesterday had "firemen" on the brain. From an early hour in the morning until our paper goes to press there were firemen here and everywhere. Of course Canal street was the central point, and from Clay's statue the procession began to file away. We took a stand by Lafayette square, and found that the time occupied in passing was three-quarters of an hour.

Our space will not permit us to mention all or even more than a few of the companies that yesterday passed in review. In every instance men and machines and horses were quite perfection in all that goes to make a complete and available outfit. Hope Hook and Ladder was probably the most admired of all. A beautiful white figure of hope delicately covered with some fine fabric was at once typical and lasting. A service of silverware was quite prominent under bows shielded with illusion. The men were as neat as the truck in appearance.

Pelican Hook and Ladder was as tidy as need be, and her embellishment was a life size pelican feeding her young in a golden nest. The truck is entirely new, and cost $2000.

American No. 2 was decked with a feminine aboriginal, life size, gaily painted, and was greatly admired.

"Protection," of Jefferson, flaunted a fine new banner, just presented by young ladies of their neighborhood. Men and machine were in excellent keeping.

Columbia, hand engine, attracted considerable attention, as well it might.

Jefferson 22 called for many words of praise from all sides. In the rear of the engine sat three pretty children—two tiny girls and a boy—who seemed to rather like the fun. On the front part of the machine was a small carved figure of a fireman bearing a rescued infant in his arms.

Crescent 24 was indeed tastefully decorated, and made her mark in the procession.

However, there was not a single company out yesterday that did not do honor to itself in its adornments and to the fire department. We wish we could mention all the beauties and peculiarities we saw.

The entire route as advertised was lined by citizens, all anxious to have a long good look at the men and their pets who are ever ready to rescue the richest or the poorest from danger. The "boys" traveled up town and down town, and did not seem wearied when disbanded on Canal street. After that each company went on expeditions of its own, some to a hearty dinner, others to call on particular friends, and others to keep on marching around the streets.

Perhaps some of them watched too long and too often, at least the tenor of an editorial in another column would indicate that not a few of the men forgot "fireman" and took up "soldier" when they shouted cheers for Jefferson Davis at the St. Charles hotel.

Altogether, the celebration was quite as brilliant, or perhaps finer, than any preceding one, if that were possible.

Henry Clay Deane made a ferocious Democratic speech in New Hampshire lately, and at the close dared any man to come forward and avow himself a Republican saying, "I want to see him if there be such a one, and to ask him how he feels." At once a farmer in the rear of the hall rose and said, "Here is a Republican." "Well," said the orator, "how do you feel?" "Feel?" replied the old fellow, "I feel like a grain of wheat in a bushel of hen manure!"

The Democratic convention of Mississippi proposes to reassemble for the purpose of nominating a full state ticket and candidates for congress, so that they may either defeat the constitution or elect obstructive officers and congressmen under it. The policy of inaction is likely to be abandoned by the Democrats.

Preaching.

[From Revival Sketches and Manual.

Preaching is the chief intrumentality by which the way of the Lord is prepared, when religion has sunk to a low ebb, and he is about to revive his work. The first thing is that the church be awakened from its slumbers. Till this is done, there is very little hope that sinners will be awakened; and it requires an earnestness in the pulpit, a directness of appeal, a sounding of alarm to professors, which shall make their ears tingle. They must be dealt with plainly, as standing in the way of a revival, as stumbling blocks lying in the path instead of living witnesses for Christ before the world. The guilt as well as the danger of their backslidings must be faithfully pointed out. They must be earnestly exhorted to "repent and do their first works;" to examine themselves whether they are in the faith, whether their own hopes are well founded, whether remaining as they are, they can have any good evidence that they are not yet in their sins. They must be told plainly that there are false professors in the churches, and they must be exhorted to awake and rise from the dead, that Christ may give them life. They must be shown that they are in a fearful degree answerable for the reigning worldliness and spiritual death around them. In dealing with them the preacher must use the word of God, which is sharper than a two-edged sword, as the surgeon uses his knife, though it cut deep into the quick. It may lead some real Christians for a time to distrust and renounce their hope. It probably will, but it will do them good in the end by making them more watchful, and prayerful, and faithful to their covenant vows. Under such a course of preaching it may be hoped that the wise virgins will be startled from their slumbers, and that "fearfulness will surprise the hypocrites." It may require more than one sermon, or two. It probably will. How many no minister can tell till he has made the trial and witnessed the effect. Let him not give over till he has made full proof—"line upon line, precept upon precept." He must expect that many of his hearers will wonder why he should dwell so much upon one topic, and it will not be strange if some of his best members should feel that he bears too hard upon them, though they may not tell him so. But if his searching appeals sink down in their hearts and rouse them to prayer and action, and God pours out his spirit, they will be thankful that their preacher did not let them alone till by the grace of God they were constrained to rise and shake themselves from the dust. Said one of the most pious deacons of my church, after a glorious revival which brought in nearly all the most influential men in the place, "I wondered before the work commenced why you preached so long and pointedly to the church. I knew we were in a cold state and needed to be waked up, but at the time it seemed almost cruel in you to lay the blame of our never having had a general revival so heavily upon the church; I now see that we needed it, and bless God, that he moved you to deal so faithfully with us, both in the pulpit and out of it." Some others had the same hard thoughts, were led to change their minds in the same way, after they had seen and rejoiced in the salvation of God. If we had all the facts, I believe it would be found that nearly all of the most powerful revivals have been immediately preceded by a loud and earnest sounding of alarm in the ears of the churches. How can any pastor of a dead church who "travails in birth" for souls, rest satisfied till, relying on divine aid, he has faithfully made the attempt? Nor should it be confined to the pulpit. The subject should be kept before the mind of the church at weekly lectures and prayer meetings, and in private exhortations, till it shall be evident that she is in some good degree prepared to receive a blessing. As soon as that shall be the case, the prayers will go up from many lips, "Lord, what wilt thou have us to do?" When a church is brought to this point there is every reason to hope that God is about to revive his work in the congregation. And then the way is prepared for a series of pointed and rousing discourses to the impenitent. Then is the time for the preacher to wield "the sword of the spirit;" to lift up his voice like a trumpet, to cry aloud and not spare. Just here, the first thing to be aimed at is to gain the sinner's attention. Failing in this, though an angel were to come down from heaven and occupy the pulpit, his preaching would avail nothing. It would do no more good than speaking into the cold ear of death. The careless sinner must somehow be influenced to "think on his ways," to consider what his actual condition is, what his relations to God are, what the law requires, what the gospel offers, and what must be the inevitable consequences of his living as he has done, and dying in his present state. I say you must first gain his serious attention before you can hope your preaching will do him good. And how is he to be awakened? "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord." Nevertheless, it hath "pleased God by the foolishness of preaching," as the Greeks stigmatized it, to awaken sinners as well as to save them. And in such a state of things, when a cloud of mercy has come over a place, what kind of preaching is wanted? What texts and subjects are best adapted to wake the slumbering, and constrain them to flee from the wrath to come? Not such preaching as a backsliding church needs, not such as young converts want, but a series of discourses upon such topics as these: the entire sinfulness of the human heart in the sight of a holy God; the strictness and righteous penalty of his law; the certainty that it will be inflicted in the awful and endless punishment of all who die impenitent—leading sinners to despair of obtaining salvation by the merit of their own works, or by their own strivings, be they ever so earnest; stripping them of all their vain excuses, driving them from all their refuges of lies, and pointing them to the cross of Christ as their only refuge. Many of the most successful preachers in winning souls to Christ have dwelt much and earnestly upon these preparatory topics, as I venture to call them, in the commencement of revivals. They are needed; they come at the right time; this is the proper place for them in the use of the means which God has appointed, and I see not how any minister can hope for a thorough work of the Lord in the conversion of sinners who does not show them the desperate wickedness of their hearts, who does not make the law thunder in their ears, and uncover the pit of destruction before them. This is what Whitfield did; this is what Wesley did, this is what Edwards did, this is what Bellamy and the Tennents did; this is what all the most successful laborers in revivals have done since their day; and I hazard nothing in saying that the work has been deep and thorough in proportion to the thoroughness of the preaching in its earlier stages. Sinners must be "shut up to the faith" by the flaming sword turning every way, before they will despair of help from any but an Almighty arm. No man, however critical his case may be, will send for a physician till he believes he is sick, and then the more critical he regards his condition, the more ready will he be to use the remedies which the best medical skill can prescribe. So with the sinner; he is sick unto death, but he will never apply to the great physician till he feels that the case is desperate. The first thing is to bring him to feel this, and to cry out for help. There must be no palliations. His heart must be probed to the bottom, and its corruption laid bare, so that he may loathe himself in his own sight, and smite upon his breast and cry out with the publican, "God be mindful to me a sinner." In laying so much stress as I have done upon holding up the terrors of the law in the beginning of a revival, and dwelling mostly for some time upon the guilt and danger of impenitence, I do not mean that the way of escape from the wrath to come should be kept out of sight even then. The voice of mercy from Calvary should be heard in the midst of the loudest threatenings from Sinai. But Sinai mut utter its thunders. The careless must be alarmed, so as to cry out for help, before they will be ready to receive it. While here and there the Lord opens the heart of a Lydia at once to receive with joy the good news of salvation, this has not been the ordinary method. In the language of the old divines, there must be "law-work" to bring sinners to Christ. The experience of Paul in this regard has been the experience of multitudes who have been converted in revivals; "I was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died." It is of unspeakable importance that the means of grace be used with impenitent sinners. Jericho's walls must tumble down on the blowing of the ram's horns. Naaman must wash seven times in Jordan, that he may be cured of his leprosy. Those doctrines which the world calls hard sayings, are the most powerful means in the hands of the blessed Spirit to pull down and destroy Satan's strongholds in the hearts of sinners. No preaching and conversation seems so effectual to drive them from their hiding places and refuges of lies, as to tell them plainly that they are eternally undone if the mercy of God is not displayed in their favor; that they have not the least claim on Him, and if he does not have mercy, they are gone forever; that they may as well despair of helping themselves first as last, and the reason why they do not find relief is merely because they will not yield, and bow to a holy sovereign God.

Newman Hall on Southern Methodism.

Rev. Newman Hall, who was lately among us, writes to a London paper a brief description of his journey to Richmond and Petersburg, in which he describes an interview with a Southern clergyman, which proves the persistent adherence to the "lost cause" of that class of persons. What they expect to do hereafter for the recovery of their favorite enterprise has not yet been revealed; but proofs are abundant of the expectation among the Southern clergy of "a good time coming" at some future day, for the cause of slavery and disunion. Mr. Hall says:

On our way back to Richmond a Southerner loudly proclaimed, in the presence of the governor, his love for the rebel cause, and that he had no apology and no regret to express. I suggested that his speaking in the presence of the governor was a proof that the South enjoyed great freedom under their conquerors. He replied: "Sir, I am as good as the governor. I am a Virginia gentleman." Then he went on to denounce Great Britain, to express his hope that she would be assailed by Yankee gunboats, and to denounce the negro race as unfit for freedom. He himself had been a slaveholder. He was a Methodist clergyman of the Southern church, with which the other branch of Methodists refuse communion. I hope the English Methodists will beware and distinguish between their brethren in the North and these unconverted slave owners and rebels.

INTELLIGENCE FROM OUR MISSION ROOMS.

THE MONTHLY MEETINGS.—The monthly meetings of the board of managers of our Missionary society are not of equal interest. But the late one on the 8th ultimo, being the first and so soon after the decease of our brother and vice-president, D. L. Ross, was of unusual interest. For the first time the board had the pleasure of appreciating the services of Vice-President James H. Taft as the chairman of their meeting. In him they found a layman of ability, worthy to occupy the chair in which such men as Francis Hall, Moses F. Odell, and D. L. Ross had presided. The devotional exercises of the meeting were led by Rev. J. M. Tuttle, of the Newark conference. The minutes of the late regular meeting having been read, the corresponding secretary rose in the presence of an unusually large attendance of the board, and announced with deepest feeling in most fitly chosen words the great sorrow that had come to himself and to the board in the decease of Brother Daniel L. Ross. In the midst of the profoundest sense of loss, Vice-Presidents Fancher and Crawford were appointed a committee to retire and prepare a minute of this solemn event, to be entered upon the board. The corresponding secretary reported a great awakening at Shahjehanpore, India, which was taking hold on high caste and low caste natives, leading them in some instances to come in families for christian baptism. The uncommon sight of women, as well as men coming publicly to this ordinance, served still further to awaken the community. Ninety-nine persons were baptized within two weeks. A glorious awakening in Sweden, particularly in Stockholm, Gottenburg, and Carlskrona, was also reported. These reports, as if by common impulse, moved the board to unite in singing the doxology, "praise God, from whom all blessings flow," and we doubt not that this will roll along and be prolonged until it shall have reached those missions again, from whose new found joys ours rise and widen, as they flow along the ranks of the redeemed. Mr. John Stephenson was elected a manager, and Mr. Oliver Hoyt was elected a vice-president of the society, to fill the vacancies caused by the death of Brother Ross. As usual, many applications were made for appropriations to meet "unforseen emergencies," arising in the missions at home and abroad. The great awakening and spreading work in Scandinavia created an emergency for increasing the force of missionaries in that field; happily the men are found on the field, so the bishop had no need to ask largely to meet such a want. The burning of the house of a missionary at home, or some other equally "unforseen" emergency, vouched for by the presiding elder having charge of the work, and indorsed and approved by the superintending bishop of the conference, always secures an approbation from the board, so long as there is a dollar left in the treasury, or left unappropriated, of the so-called "contingent fund," whether there be money in the treasury or not.

N.B.—The treasury is now in debt $113,000! If all our pastors and every home missionary would so state to their societies and congregations, we have no doubt it would help it to swell the already rising current now setting in toward our treasury, and we greatly need to have this current flow on.

THE LATE DANIEL L. ROSS, ESQ. Since the last meeting of the board one of its most active members, who was also an honored officer of the Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, has been suddenly removed by death. Daniel L. Ross, for eleven years a member of this board, and for eight years a vice-president of the society, died at his residence in this city on the twelfth of February, in the prime of his manhood, and in the midst of his usefulness. As we pause with painful emotion to note this afflictive bereavement we deplore our loss as a mysterious dispensation of Providence, yet we bow with submission to the stroke, believing that our heavenly Father in infinite wisdom has directed the event. Very high qualities of mind and heart adorned the character of our lamented brother, and we especially note his suavity of manner and his fideliiy to the church and its institutions, and in view of our intimate relations with him, personally and officially, we are moved with sentiments of profound grief at the tidings of his death, and at the thought that he will associate with us no more at this board, where his wise counsels and his generous sympathy in the cause of missions have been so conspicuous and so well appreciated. But while our hearts are heavy we derive comfort from the reflection that the Christian walk and conversation of our departed brother, through all his busy life, were such as became the profession he made as a follower of Jesus, and to make him a living epistle, known and read of all men, and that grace was given him at last to triumph over death, and to resign, with the cheerful trust of faith, his orphan children to the care of a covenant-keeping God. We warmly cherish the memory of his name and the remembrance of his private worth and Christian character, conmingled with the assurance that his faith and labors in Christ are gloriously consummated in everlasting happiness. As a mark of respect to his memory, we direct that this minute be entered on the journal of the board, and, with deep sympathy for his bereaved children, that a copy duly authenticated be forwarded to his son, Arthur B. Ross; also, that a copy be furnished to The Christian Advocate and to The Methodist for publication.

CHINA.—Brother and Sister Hart arrived, November 29, in Kiukiang, the capital city of the province of Kiangsi, which lies directly west and inland of the Fokien province, now occupied by our mission at Foochow. Brother and Sister Todd will have joined them ere the church shall have read this paragraph; and these four missionaries will lay the foundation of our new mission in that province, which is the first and only Protestant mission there.

GATHERED HOME.—While the mission is gathering in precious souls the great Master and Head of the church is gathering them to himself in heaven. Read the following beautiful death of an old Chinaman, reported to the Mission Rooms by Dr. Maclay, December 9, 1867:

"One of our aged Christians, Father Sieu Mi, has just passed to his home above. He was converted and joined the church about nine years ago, and since embracing the Gospel has been a most devoted Christian. He died on his knees. It would seem that, feeling his end approaching, he knelt on his bed to pray, and while in that posture his soul passed away to dwell with God. Glorious victory."

O may I triumph so
When all my warfare's past!

LABOR AND LOVE.—Here are a few lines, with a check for one hundred dollars. The writing is in these words: "Since I sent to the treasury in August I have been laboring and saving to get something to send to the Missionary society, and have got together one hundred dollars. You have here a check for the same. I wish to have this appropriated to foreign missions."

FIFTY PER CENT ADVANCE.—We are happy to announce that Thirtieth street church gave at her annual missionary collection on sabbath last seven hundred dollars. This is fifty per cent in advance of her last year's offering. This church has been true in all her appointments, Sunday school and all, to the parent missionary society.

RELIGIOUS MISCELLANIES.

THE HAPPY COMBINATION.—There is nothing purer than truth, nothing sweeter than charity, nothing warmer than love, nothing brighter than virtue, and nothing more steadfast than faith. These united in one mind form the purest, sweetest, richest, brightest, holiest, and most enduring happiness. A study of Paul's epistle to the Phillippian Christians (Phil. 4, 8) will serve to beget and strengthen these graces in the soul.

MY STAFF.—"Did ye ask if I had a Bible?" said a poor old widow in London; "did ye ask me if I had a Bible? Thank God I have a Bible. What should I do without my Bible? It was the guide of my youth, and it is the staff of my age. It wounded me, and it healed me; it condemnded me, and it acquitted me to the Savior! It has given me comfort through life, and I trust it will give me hope in death." Golden Fountain.

THE WAY TO THE CROWN IS BY THE CROSS.—We must taste the gall if we are to taste the glory. If justified by faith we must suffer tribulations. When God saves a soul he tries it. Some believers are much surprised when they are called to suffer. They thought they would do some great thing for God; but all he permits them to do is to suffer for his sake. Go round to every one in glory; each has a different story to tell, yet every one a tale of sufferings. But mark, all were brought out of them. It was a dark cloud, but it passed away. The water was deep, but they reached the other side. Not one there blames God for the way he led them thither. "Salvation!" is their only cry. Child of God, murmur not at your lot. You must have a palm as well as a white robe. Learn to glory in tribulations also.—M'Cheyne.

"WE SHALL EAT THE FRUIT."—A blacksmith had in his possession, but under mortgage, a house and piace of land. Like many others, he was at one time fond of the social glass, but was happily induced by a friend to join a temperance society. About three months after he observed his wife one morning busily employed planting rose bushes and fruit trees. "Mary," said he, "I have owned this cot for five years, and yet I have never known you before to care to improve and ornament it in this manner." "Indeed," replied the smiling wife, "I had no heart to do it until you gave up the drink. I had often thought of it before, but I was persuaded that, should I do it, some strangers would pluck the roses and eat the fruit. Now, with God's blessings, this cot will be ours, and we and our children may expect to enjoy the produce. We shall pluck the roses and eat the fruit."

Many persons look upon religious schools from the reasoning standpoint. I always look upon religious sects, claimants for public confidence, not so much from the category of their benefits, and still less from their logical presence and power; I look for the results. I look to see what moral power they have who hold these sentiments, and what the power of their views is upon the understanding, the conscience and the lives of men. A system or sect that is simply beautiful, that deals simply with not-believings, that goes on to correct, and correct and correct the things that are misbelieved, but that believes nothing with vengeance; that is enthusiastic in nothing; that is fanatical in nothing; that has no transcendent, intense faith—what power can such a system or sect as that have upon this world? All its taste, all its fine discriminations, all its fine distinctions—they are good; and so is moonshine good, that quivers and dazzles upon the ever-changing tides; but it is not moonshine that makes the tides. It is moon power that makes them. And so, men that believe, men of positive and intense convictions, are the men that have power to make tides in the world. And I respect power—moral, above all.

IF THOU KNEWEST THE GIFT OF GOD.—Perhaps there is no cry more striking than that of the Eastern water carrier. "The gift of God," he says, as he goes along with his water-skin on his shoulder. It is impossible to hear this cry without thinking of our Lord's words to the women of Samaria:

"If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith unto thee, give me to drink, thou would'st have asked of him, and he would have given the living water."

It is very likely that water so valuable and so often scarce in hot countries, was in those days, as now, spoken of as "the gift of God," to denote its preciousness; if so, the expression would be exceedingly forcible to the woman as well as full of meaning.

The water carrier's cry in Egypt must always rouse a thoughtful mind to the recollection of the deep necessities of the people; of the thirst which they know not of; and the living water, which few, if any, have offered to the poor Moslems in that great city; and makes him wish and pray for the time when the sonorous cry of "Ye aatee Allah! shall be the type of the cry of one bringing the living water of the gospel, and saying, "Behold the gift of God.

However early in the morning you seek the gate of access you find it already open; and however deep the midnight moment when you find yourself in the sudden arms of death, the winged prayer can bring an instant Savior near, and this wherever you are. It needs not that you ascend a special Pisgah or Moriah. It need not that you should enter some awful shrine, or put off your shoes on some holy ground. Could a memento be reared from every spot from which an acceptable prayer has passed away, and on which a prompt answer has come down, we should find Jehovah-shammah, "the Lord hath been here," inscribed on many a cottage hearth and many a dungeon floor. We should find it not only in Jerusalem's proud temple, David's cedar galleries, but in the fisherman's cottage, by the brink in Genesareth, and in the upper chamber where Pentecost began. And whether it be the field where Isaac went to meditate, or the rocky knoll where Jacob lay down to sleep, or the brook where Israel rested, or the den where Daniel gazed on the hungry lions and the lions gazed on him, or the hillsides where the Man of Sorrows prayed all night, we should still discern the prints of the ladder's feet let down from heaven—the landing place of mercies because the starting point of prayer.—Hamilton.

So fit and useful is morning devotion, it ought not to be omitted without necessity. If our circumstances will allow the privilege, it is a bad sign when no part of the morning is spent in prayer. If God finds no place in our minds at that early and peaceful hour, he will hardly recur to us in the tumults of life. If the benefits of the morning do not soften us, we can hardly expect the heart to melt with gratitude through the day. If the world then rush in and take possession of us, when we are at some distance and have had a respite from its cares, how can we hope to shake it off when we shall be in the midst of it, pressed and agitated by it on every side? Let a part of the morning, if possible, be set apart to devotion; and to this end we should fix the hour of rising so that we may have an early hour at our own disposal. Our piety is auspicious, if we can renounce, as too many do, the pleasures and benefits of early prayer, rather than forego the senseless indulgence of unnecessary sleep. What! we can rise early enough for busiaess. We can even anticipate the dawn, if a favorite pleasure or an uncommon gain request the effort. But we cannot rise that we may bless our great Benefactor, that we may arm ourselves for the severe conflicts to which our principles are to be exposed! We are willing to rush into the world, without thanks offered or a blessing sought! From a day thus begun, what ought we to expect but thoughtlessness and guilt?—[Dr. Channing.

Our Book Concern.

The financial exhibit of the book agents, Drs. Carlton & Porter, shows a total sales from the New York book concern amounting to $682,251 92, a large increase over any preceding year. The total sales for the last four years have been $2,463,299, 63, an amount nearly double those of the preceding quadrennial period. The balance sheet for 1867 shows a profit of $63,452 39. New and important books have been added to the general catalogue. The list of Sunday-school books has been enriched by valuable additions. There has also been a large increase in the circulation of our periodicals. The Chrtstian Advocate, in the midst of strong competition, has reached a weekly issue of about 29,000 copies, with a fair prospect of 30,000 copies. The Quarterly Review has also an increased circulation. The Sunday-school papers have also had a large increase in their circulation during the year. At the date of the committee meeting the list of these papers showed the following: Sunday-School Advocate, 139,500 copies; Sunday-School Journal, 20,000; Good News, 49,000. The depositories connected with the Book Concern contribute greatly to the circulation of our books and periodicals in their several localities.

The report of the committee to the conferences, besides mentioning the facts substantially given above, will also state that "the premises, though unfortunately located, are kept in the best order which their restricted limits will permit; that neatness and regularity marks the appearance of the various departments, while all the appliances of machinery that can reduce the cost of production, and thus reduce the price of our publications, are carefully applied, and that the books and accounts are kept with all the care and skill which have been heretofore employed, and which have afforded the necessary protection against any loss to the concern from fraud or accident."

The following resolution, unanimously adopted by the committee, has been handed us for publication:

Resolved, That the social and official intercourse we have had with our brethren, the agents and the editors of the Book Concern, and the uniform ubranity and courtesy with which they have treated us, and responded to our several calls, give us pleasure and satisfaction to record.

The meeting of the committee was one of entire harmony, and the presence and intercourse, officially and personally, of the members, was of such a character as to enable the agents and editors to reciprocate most fully and heartily the courteous and pleasant assurance contained in the above resolution.

Mrs. Flora Stuart, a colored woman of Londonderry, N. H., is said to be the oldest person in the United States. She was born in Boston in 1750, and is consequently twenty-six years older than the Declaration of Independence. She was formerly a slave, owned by the Simpson family of Windham. On the 6th inst., she visited Manchester and had a photograph taken.

"POLITENESS IN PRAYER."—A few days since we heard a presiding elder repeat the following paragraph from a prayer which he had heard offered by some modern Addisonian professor: "We would not presume to dictate to thee; O Lord, with regard to thy administration, but we beg leave respectfully to suggest that it might be well for thee to revive thy work."

LAZINESS.—An exchange mentions an instance in which a person was excluded from a Baptist church on the charge that he was too lazy to be a Christian. If this test were to be generally applied, so far as it relates to activity in the church, we fear it would create a wide-spread consternation. But the Scriptures expressly declare woe against those who are at ease in Zion.

Delegates to Democratic Convention.

The following delegates have been elected by the Democrats of this city to represent the several wards in the Democratic state convention, to be held to-morrow:

First Ward—Judge J. N. Lea, Thomas L. Macon, Henry Renshaw, Jr., William Henderson, J. M. Reid, and William L. Pool.

Second Ward—George W. Race, Charles J. Leeds, Daniel Mahony, James McCloskey, Thomas R. Brady, James Mann, and Thomas Murray.

Third Ward—General R. L. Gibson. M. W. Clony, John Hart, M. Lardner, John Connors, J. McCormick, J. O'Connor, George Walters, Alexander Ward, and T. O'Hara.

Fourth Ward—H. F. Sturcken, Sid Harper, A. J. Wagner, George Cronan, and S. D. McNeil.

Fifth Ward—R. D. Hubbard, Charles Ramel, Leonce Bouny, John Peralta, and E. Z. Bozonier.

Sixth Ward—Arthur Gastinel, Anthony Sambola, and Frank Kathman.

Ninth Ward—Fred. Losburg, F. Wynn, and A. Pellerin.

Tenth Ward—James P. Eustis, B. F. Jonas, Francis Martin, Henry Jackson, Gerald Farrell.

Eleventh Ward—J. H. Kennard, H. Ellerman, John Breen.

Many of the gentlemen named above are disfranchised for having voluntarily aided the rebellion, and therefore have no vote. Others who might have been accepted by the board of registers neglected to present themselves. They may be eligible as delegates to a Democratic convention where the rules of voting have never been very rigid, but when they come to the polls they will prove not formidable opponents to the Republican party.

Theory and Practice.

While listening to an eloquently delivered lecture on ethnology by Dr. Fontaine, in the Lyceum hall last night, in which he proved to his own satisfaction the inferiority of the negro race, and their utter unfitness to participate in the responsibilities of republican government, we musingly remembered the fact that one of the ablest men in the board of assistant aldermen, then sitting in the same building, is a black man and a candidate for the position of lieutenant governor of this state, a position he will fill with credit to himself and honor to the state. Science has heretofore made some equally bad mistakes.

Mr. Johnson's desk is crowded with letters and telegrams from Northern and Southern Democrats, tendering him assistance if he will only take up the cudgel against congress and refuse to recognize them. None of the names yet appended to these missives of aid and comfort are to be found on the rolls of the national army of the last six years, and yet he reposes upon them as though their promises were really made to be kept, and not mere caveats on whisky inspectorships and country post-offices.

DENTISTRY.—We take great pleasure in recommending all who wish an excellent job of dentistry done to Dr. B. F. Wright, 153 Customhouse street, between Bourbon and Burgundy streets. Dr. Wright expects to start North soon to spend the summer, and up to the time of his departure will attend to the work of all who call on him at ONE-HALF of his heretofore moderate rates, if paid in greenbacks. As he is a workman of the best order, we do not see why his rooms should not be crowded during the time he remains in the city, even though it is hard times.

MARRIED.

HARKNESS—HANEY—At Natchitoches, Louisiana, February 13, 1868, by Rev. E. Hayward, WASHINGTON HARKNESS, of Maryland, to Miss ANGELINE HANEY, of Virginia.

BOWN—MARTIN.—At the residence of the bride, 139 Burgundy street, on Thursday evenining, March 5, by Rev. N. L. Brakeman, Mr. JULIUS PETER BROWN to Mrs. MARIA MARTIN, both of this city.

BERRY—HAMILTON—By the same, February 16, SIMON BERRY, of Natchitoches, to Miss MARIA HAMILTON, of Mississippi.

BRIGGS—JOHNSON—By Rev S. Small, Alexandria, Louisiana, January 9, 1868, ROBERT BRIGGS and MINERVA JACKSON.

GRIFFIN—HOPKINS—By the same January 18 OSBORN GRIFFIN and HAGAR HOPKINS.

WILLIAMS—HARDIN—By the same, February 12, ISAIAH WILLIAMS and EVILENA HARDIN.

THOMPSON—COLEMAN—By the same, February 21, PETER THOMPSON and JOANNA COLEMAN.

All of Rapides parish.

WILKINS—FOSTER—By Rev. E. Jackson January 20, 1868, DANIEL WILKINS and ALICE FOSTER.

WILKINS—FOSTER—By the same, January 23, WILLIAM WILKINS and DORAH FOSTER.

PETER—LAVIGNE—By the same, January 26, JEFF. PETER and IRENE LAVIGNE.

HUGHES—BELL—By the same, January 28, ELI HUGHES and POLLY BELL.

SUMMERS—BROWN—By the same, February 23, FORD SUMMERS and LOTTIE BROWN.

All of St. Landry parish, Louisiana.

DIED:

THOMAS—At Washington, Louisiana, February 24, 1868, JEFFERSON THOMAS, a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal church.

LATEST BY TELEGRAPH.

Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Senate.—The finance committee were directed to inquire into the expediency of repealing taxes on incomes and manufactures.

The clerk of the house announced the passage of impeachment articles and the appointment of managers. The secretary of the senate was directed to inform the house that the senate was ready to proceed with the impeachment trial.

The bill funding the national debt was resumed. After executive session the senate adjourned.

House.—The following were introduced under the regular call:

A bill by Mr. Blaine to build levees on the western bank of the Mississippi river, and reclaim overflowed land.

A joint resolution protecting industrial interests.

A resolution that as much speed be given to the impeachment trial as is compatible with justice.

A resolution increasing twenty per cent the import duty on wines, spirits, and manufactures of cotton, wool, silk, and iron.

A bill by Mr. Raum, of Illinois, to construct a railroad from Cairo, Illinois, to the Rio Grande, and provide for homesteads along the road.

A memorial from the Wisconsin legislature to connect the waters of Lake Michigan and the Mississippi river.

The judiciary committee were directed to inquire whether congress has power to regulate freights on railroads running from one state into another.

A motion to suspend the rules and admit a protest against impeachment was lost by 49 to 82.

The impeachment managers introduced two additional articles. The seventh of the first series being stricken out these are known as ten and and eleven. They were adopted by a strict party vote. The tenth is Butler's, charging the president with misdemeanors in speeches while swinging around the circle. The eleventh is comprehensive, charging the president with saying in 1866, in Washington, that congress was illegal, and could only act so far as he chose to recognize it, and violation of two or three bills in his efforts to keep Secretary Stanton out of office, after the senate had overruled his reasons for suspension. This article includes Mr. Stevens' charges which failed yesterday.

The managers are authorized to send for persons and papers. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—House—Immediately after meeting, Mr. Jencks proceeded to urge his article declaring that impeachment would be incompatible without charging criminal intent. The previous question failed of a second, and the article was lost.

The house then went into committee of the whole to proceed with the managers to the senate to present articles of impeachment. The Democratic members remained in the house, the others formed a procession and paraded to the senate chamber.

After their return the Tennessee contested election case was taken up, but postponed.

General Grant was directed to report the number of votes cast for and against the Alabama constitution.

The Military committee reported a bill for the protection of soldiers and sailors against claim agents. Adjourned.

Senate—The chair submitted a communication from Mr. Chase, which was referred to a special committee.

A resolution authorizing the erection of a warehouse at Fortress Monroe, was referred to the military committee.

The sergeant-at-arms announced the impeachment managers. The managers approached the bar, accompanying the members of the house. Bingham then read the articles. Butler's, which quotes largely from the president's most stinging speeches, caused a sensation. The chair said that the senate would take action upon the matter, and the managers retired.

The resolution admitting to the gallaries by tickets was postponed.

A committee of three senators was appointed to notify the chief justice and to conduct him to the vice-president's seat tomorrow at 1 o'clock.

Several votes taken during the proceedings indicated the determination on the part of the senate to adhere to its rules notwithstanding Mr. Chase's letter.

Adjourned.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Lewis Woolfley was nominated to-day as assessor of internal revenue for the first district of Louisiana. His nomination was referred to the finance committee with a strong probability of confirmation. The event is important as showing continued intercourse between the senate and the executive.

Mr. Bingham was selected chairman of impeachment. Mr. Stevens received the lowest vote on the ballot for managers.

The president has recognized Adolph Boder consul for Austria at New Orleans.

William L. Stanford has been confirmed by the senate as local appraiser of merchandise at New Orleans.

Colonel Daniel E. Sickles has been ordered to report to General Hancock to command the twentieth infantry.

Secretary Stanton left the war office for a few minutes to-day for the first time since the 21st of February.

Matt Carpenter, of Wisconsin, followed Black in the McCardle case argument before the supreme court.

There was a brief cabinet meeting to-day.

Internal revenue receipts to-day nearly $1,000,000.

It is stated that the public debt statement will show several millions increase.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Mr. Wade presided to-day during the entire session. This probably settles the question as to whether he will vote on the final issue.

Mr. Farnsworth's telegraph bill contains fifteen sections, mostly devoted to the protection of the public against fraud and injustice from telegraph companies, agents, and operators. Punishment is made severe.

The president has recognized Jean Baptiste Lawson as consul of France at Richmond; Adolfus Bader consul of Austria at New Orleans; Alexis Robert consul of the Pontifical states at New Orleans, and Carlos Heinsius vice-consul of the Argentine republic and its dependencies, Darien, Brunswick, and St. Mary at Savannah, Georgia.

The supreme court is still engaged on the McCardle case. Mr. Trumbull spoke to-day. Dudley Field follows. The court allows twelve hours to each side.

Internal revenue receipts to-day, $1,054,000; gold in the treasury, $106,250,000.

Chief Justice Chase writes the senate expressing in mild and somewhat indirect terms non-concurrence with some of their preliminary proceedings, holding that when the senate sits for impeachment trial it sits unquestionably as a court. The senate must necessarily receive notice of intention to impeach from the house; but the organization of the senate into a court should precede the actual announcement of impeachment on the part of the house; and articles of impeachment should only be presented to the court of impeachment. No summons or other process should issue except from the organized court, and rules for the government of the court should be formed only by the court itself. Mr. Chase finds himself unable to come to any other conclusions than those herein given, but adds: "I am informed that the senate has proceeded upon other views, and it is not my purpose to contest what its superior wisdom may have directed."

Mr. Chase, by implication, claims in his communication the right to sit as part of the court and to govern it, from the following paragraph: "The Federalist is regarded as the highest cotemporary authority on the construction of the constitution, and in the sixty-fourth number the functions of the senate, sitting in their judicial capacity as a court for the trial of impeachments, are examined In a paragraph explaining the reasons for not uniting the supreme court with the senate in the formation of the court of impeachment, it is observed: 'To a certain extent the benefits of that union will be obtained by making the chief justice of the supreme court the president of the court of impeachments, as is proposed in the plan of the convention, while the convenience of an entire incorporation of the former into the latter will be substantially avoided.'"

The Democracy of the North are showing their teeth.—New Orleans Crescent.

They had a good deal better show their sense.—Galveston Bulletin.

OFFICIAL NOTICES.

PROPOSALS FOR HORSES AND MULES.

OFFICE CHIEF QUARTERMASTER,
District of Texas,
Austin, February 22, 1868.

PROPOSALS WILL BE RECEIVED AT THIS office until THURSDAY, the nineteenth day of March, for the delivery at the Depot of San Antonio, Texas, of—

367 HORSES,
120 MULES, within forty (40) days after date of contract:

Horses must be sound in all particulars, well broken in, full flesh and condition, not less than fifteen hands high, from five (5) to nine (9) years old, and well adapted to cavalry purposes. Horses between nine (9) and ten (10) years old, if still vigorous, sprightly, and healthy, may be accepted.

Mules must not be less than four (4) years old, strong, stout, compact, well developed animals, in full health, and free from any blemish or defect which would unfit them for severe work.

All Horses and Mules delivered will be subject to a rigid inspection, and such as do not conform to the above specifications will be rejected.

Proposals will be received for lots of twenty-five and upward.

Bidders are requested to be present at the opening of the bids.

The right is reserved to reject any or all bids if not deemed satisfactory.

Bids to be in duplicate, sealed and indorsed on outside of wrapper "Proposals for Horses," or "Mules," as the case may be, and directed to the undersigned, care of Brevet Brigadier General J. A. Potter, Chief Quartermaster, District of Texas, Austin, Texas.

(Signed) CHAS. H. TOMPKINS,
Brvt. Brig. Gen. and Chief Quartermaster,
mh3 6t Fifth Military District.

PROPOSALS FOR BUILDING LEVEES.

OFFICE ASST. QUARTERMASTER U. S. ARMY,
New Orleans, La., March 2, 1868.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN COMPLIANCE with paragraph five, special orders No. 46, dated Headquarters Fifth Military District, New Orleans, Louisiana, February 29, 1868, a contract for building the levee on the plantation known as the Ezra Davis plantation, in the parish of St. Charles, Louisiana, right bank of the river, about twenty-two miles from New Orleans, Louisiana, will be adjudicated according to plans and specifications to be submitted by W. A. Freret, State Engineer, to the lowest bidder, at 12 M., March 7, 1868, at the office of Captain C. H. Hoyt, Assistant Quartermaster United States army, 204 Camp street, New Orleans, Louisiana.

Specifications can be seen at this office previous to and on the day of adjudication.

C. H. HOYT, Captain,
mh3 4t Assistant Quartermaster U. S. A.

PROPOSALS FOR STOVES, NAILS, AND REFRIGERATORS.

SEALED PROPOSALS ARE INVITED, AND will be received at the office of the Medical Purveyor, 101 Magazine street, New Orleans, La., until MONDAY, March 9, 1868, at 12 M., for the delivery within five (5) days thereafter at Warehouse 135, New Levee street, of any or all of the following items:

STOVES, Cooking, for wood, nine-inch, fifty (50), to be of approved pattern, new, with best quality of fixtures, (latter to be specified in detail,) oven doors tin lined; ten (10) feet of pipe and an elbow with each. Bids may also be made to furnish eight (8) inch stoves, in part.

NAILS, cut, of best quality, pounds twelve hundred (lbs. 1200), half ten-penny, balance eight-penny, less 100 lbs six penny.

REFRIGERATORS, twenty-five (25); dimensions, four (4) feet long, two (2) feet high, two (2) feet depth or thickness, (or thereabouts), equal in size, quality, and finish to sample at 135 New Levee street. (Delivery of these can be delayed, if desired and agreed upon.)

Payments will be made in cash in United States Treasury notes after the acceptance of the articles. The right is reserved of rejecting any or all bids not deemed advantageous to the United States.

C. B. WHITE,
Brevet Major U. S. A., A. A. Medical Purveyor.
mh4 4t

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALES.

Alfred Marchand vs. John P. Becker

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana, No. 5468.—By virtue of a writ of seizure and sale, issued by the above-named Court in the above entitled suit, I have seized and will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the 4th day of April, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., at the door of the Courthouse, in Greensboro, parish of St. Helena, Louisiana, the following described PROPERTY, viz:

All and singular the right, title, interest, and claims of the defendant, John P. Becker, in and to certain pieces or parcels of land, situate, lying and being in Amite City, parish of St. Helena, in this State, described upon the plan of said town, on file in the office of Warren A. Grice, Notary Public in and for said parish of St. Helena, under date of April 9, 1860, commencing on the last line of square No. forty-five, 280 feet south of the northeast corner of said square, and running thence south parallel with the New Orleans, Jackson, and Great Northern Railroad 507 feet, thence west 475 feet to First street, thence north along the line of First street 502 feet, thence east 475 feet, to place of beginning, containing about five and one-half acres.

Also, a lot of land immediately in the rear of the above described, and commencing on the last line of square No. forty four, 280 feet south of the northeast corner of said square, and running thence south, fronting on First street 499 feet, thence west 365 feet, thence north 495 feet, thence east 355 feet, to the place of beginning, containing about four and one-half acres; together with all the buildings and improvements thereon or thereunto belonging, and being the same property acquired by the said defendant from Mrs. Garda E. Calhoun, by act passed before said W. A. Grice, notary, on the 6th day of March, 1867. Which above described property will be sold to satisfy the plaintiff's Alfred Marchand's claim, viz: twenty-five hundred dollars, together with interest and all costs, with privilege special mortgage upon said property as per said writ.

Terms of Sale—Cash in United States Treasury notes: act of sale and internal revenue stamps at expense of purchaser.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
District of Louisiana.
No. 503—mh3 10 17 24 31 ap4

J. P. Van Bergen vs. J. N. Wafford.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana, No. 5368.—By virtue of a writ of fieri facias issued and to me directed by the above named court in the above entitled suit, and received by me on the first day of February, 1868, I have seized and taken into my possession, and will expose for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the 28th day of March, 1868, at the door of the courthouse, at Franklin, in the parish of St. Mary, at the hour of twelve (12) o'clock at noon, the following described property, viz:

1. A CERTAIN TRACT OF LAND, established as a sugar plantation, situated in the parish of St. Mary, Louisiana, fronting on the Bayou Shaffer and on the Bayou Bœuff, containing about twelve hundred superficial acres and known as the "Wafford plantation," bounded on the east by lands belonging to Messieurs Vincent, on the north by Bayou Bœuff, and on the west by Bayou Shaffer, together with all the buildings and improvements thereon, as well as all the appurtenances and improvements of husbandry, live-stock, etc., thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining.

2. A CERTAIN TRACT OF LAND OR SUGAR PLANTATION, situated in the parish of St. Mary, Louisiana, on the west bank of Bayou Shaffer, bounded east by said bayou, west by public lands, south by lands of Barker Dazy and by lands of Thomas Evins, and containing about one hundred and twenty-seven acres. Also another tract of land, situated on said Bayou Shaffer, containing about fifty-nine and one-tenth acres, bounded east by said bayou, north by lands of Barker Dazy, (as supposed,) south and west by public lands, together with all the buildings and improvements on said tract of land, and all the appurtenances thereunto belonging or in anywise appurtaining.

3. A CERTAIN TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situated in the aforesaid parish of St. Mary, on the southeast side of Bayou Bœuf, and running back forty arpents, with twenty arpent fronting on Bayou Bœuf, bounded below by the land of Jared T. Sanders, and above by lands belonging to Tarleton, and containing eight hundred arpents, more or less, together with all the buildings and improvements thereon, as well as all the stock, appurtenances, implements of husbandry, etc., thereunto belonging, or in anywise appertaining, viz:

On Tract 1—Dwelling House and Outbuildings, 14 Negro Quarters, Sugarhouse and Machinery, 1 Stable and Corn Crib, Blacksmith Shop, Draining Machine, 2 Mules, 2 Harrows, 2 sets Mule Harness, 2 Spades, 1 Axe, 8 Plows, and about fifteen acres Seed Cane.

On Tract 2—Dwelling House and Outbuildings, 4 Negro Quarters, 1 Cane Mill, and 4 Sugar Kettles.

Seized as above stated, to satisfy the plaintiff's, J. P. Van Bergen's claim of ten thousand one hundred dollars, with interest and all costs as per judgment.

Terms of Sale—Cash in United States Treasury notes: costs of deed and Internal Revenue stamps at expense of purchaser.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, February 25, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 460—fe26 mh4 12 20 28 District of Louisiana.

Paul H. Lewis vs. Charles Izard.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana—No. 5485.—By virtue of a writ of seizure and sale issued by the above named court in the above entitled suit, and received by me on the second of March, 1868, I will expose for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the 4th day of April, 1868, at twelve o'clock noon, at the entrance to the Customhouse, on Old Levee street between Canal and Customhouse streets, in this city, the following described property, viz:

TWO CERTAIN LOTS OF GROUND, situated in the first district of this city in the square bounded by Nayades, Clio, Prytania, and Erato streets, designated as lots Nos. 30 and 32 on a plan deposited in the office of T. O. Starke, Notary, as plan No. 303; said lots adjoin each other and measure each twenty-nine feet front on Erato street by a depth between parallel lines of one hundred and fifty-nine feet nine inches and ten lines, together with all the buildings and improvements thereon, which above described property will be sold to satisfy the plaintiff's, Paul H. Lewis' claim, viz: the sum of thirty-five hundred dollars, interest, and all costs, as per act of mortgage on file, passed before Edward Barrett, Notary, in this city on the sixteenth day of October, 1866.

Terms—Cash in United States Treasury notes, and costs of deed and Internal Revenue stamps at expense of purchaser.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
District of Louisiana.
No. 502—mh3 10 17 24 31 ap4

The New York Warehouse and Security Company vs. Mary C. Stirling.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana, No. 5257.—By virtue of a writ of fieri facias, issued and to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the fourteenth day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at the entrance to the Customhouse, on Old Levee street—

7 bales of COTTON, marked "I & Co." and 32 bales of COTTON, marked "I." Samples at the United States Marshal's office on the 11th of March.

Terms—Cash, at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, second day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 501—mh3 7 10 14

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATE OF ALEXANDRE LANDRY

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ALEXANDRE LANDRY, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the thirtieth day of March, A. D 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 517—mh5 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATES OF CERF & MEYER,

And David Cerf and Leon Meyer, Individually.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estates of CERF & MEYER, and DAVID CERF and LEON MEYER, individually, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans, and State of Louisiana, who were adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the seventh day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 515—mh5 ap7 District of Louisiana.

ESTATES OF JOHN P. EGGLESTON AND CHARLES H. JONAS,

Individually, and as Surviving Partners of Block, McAffee & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON the fourth day of March A. D., 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estates of JOHN P. EGGLESTON and CHARLES H. JONAS, individually, and as surviving partners of Block, McAffee & Co., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and the delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or either of them, or for their or either of their use, and the transfer of any property by them or either of them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the thirtieth day of March A. D., 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 519—mh5 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF CHRISTOPHER J. CAFFREY,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Nolan & Caffrey.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CHRISTOPHER J. CAFFREY, individually, and as a member of the firm of Nolan & Caffrey, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition: that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to chose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the eighth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 520—mh5 ap8

ESTATE OF WILLIAM H. HERRICK,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Gordon & Herrick.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-eighth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of WILLIAM H. HERRICK, individually, and as a member of the firm of Gordon & Herrick, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the thirtieth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 513—mh5 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF FRANCIS WEBB.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of FRANCIS WEBB, of the parish of St. James and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the ninth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 523—mh5 ap9 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF GEORGE PEARSON,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Pearson & Winslow.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-eighth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of GEORGE PEARSON, individually, and as a member of the firm of Pearson & Winslow, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the second day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 480—mh3 ap2 District of Louisiana.

LEGAL NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 63.

IN THE MATTER OF PATRICK McCANN, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS PATRICK McCANN, INDIVIDually, and as a member of the firm of Keegan & McCann, of the city of New Orleans and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the 26th day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, February 29, 1868.

K. LOEW,
mh3 12 20 Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 65.

IN THE MATTER OF MATTHEW W. McCHESNEY, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS, MATTHEW W. McCHESNEY, of the parish of Orleans and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the Act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the 24th day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, February 26, 1868.

K. LOEW,
mh1 8 17 Deputy Clerk.

UTITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.

DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

IN THE MATTER OF SAMUEL KAHN, Bankrupt.

In Bankruptcy—No. 46.

WHEREAS SAMUEL KAHN, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

K. LOEW,
mh6 20 29 Deputy Clerk.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATE OF M. A. WINEHILL,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of M. A. Winehill & Brother.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of M. A. WINEHILL, individually, and as a member of the firm of M. A. Winehill & Brother, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the seventh day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 504—mh4 ap7

ESTATE OF CHARLES L. C. DUPUY.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CHARLES L. C. DUPUY, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the fourth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 509—mh4 ap4 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF KNOX & HIGGINS,

And Hugh B. Knox and Randall G. Higgins, Individually.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of KNOX & HIGGINS, AND HUGH B. KNOX and RANDALL G. HIGGINS, individually, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the second day of April, A. D 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 505—mh4 ap2 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL R. WALKER.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of SAMUEL R. WALKER, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the sixth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 510—mh4 ap4 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF ROBERT McBRIDE.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ROBERT McBRIDE, of the town of Thibodaux, in the parish of Lafourche and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of property belonging to such bankrupt, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any properte by him are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the third day of April A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana
No. 508—mh4 ap3

ESTATE OF THOMAS APPLETON,

Individually, and Transacting Business as Appleton & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D., 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of THOMAS APPLETON, individually, and transacting business as APPLETON & CO., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the twentieth day of April, A. D., 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal
No. 506—mh4 ap18 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF RICHARD NUGENT.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868 a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of RICHARD NUGENT, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the third day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 507—mh4 ap3 District of Louisiana.

ESTATES OF JOHN J. LANE AND ALEXANDER G. LANE,

Composing the Firm of A. G. Lane & Brother.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the joint and separate estates of John J. Lane and Alexander G. Lane, composing the firm of A. G. Lane & Brother, of the parish of Carroll and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law: that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their joint and separate estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the first day of May, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
United States Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 512—mh4 my1

ESTATE OF JOHN W. AUSTIN.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 3, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOHN W. AUSTIN, of the parish of Iberville and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the ninth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 511—mh4 ap11

ESTATE OF A. W. MACKIE AND GEORGE W. PRATT,

Individually, and as Members of the Firm of A. W. Mackie & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of A. W. MACKIE and GEORGE W. PRATT, individually, and as members of the firm of A. W. Mackie & Co., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twentieth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 486—mh3 ap18 District of Louisiana.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer.
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATE OF RICHARD POWER.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of RICHARD POWER, of the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the thirtieth day of March A. D 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F J. HERRON, U. S Marshal,
No. 499—mh 3 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF VALENTINE E. BEAMER

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of VALENTINE E. BEAMER, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the eighth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 496—mh3 ap8

ESTATE OF JORDAN HOLT.

OFFICE UNITED STATES MARSHAL,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JORDAN HOLT, of Baton Rouge, in the parish of East Baton Rouge and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the seventh day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana
No. 494—mh3 ap7

ESTATE OF PIERRE DEGUILHEM.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of PIERRE DEGUILHEM, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the thirtieth day of April, A. D 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 4 2—mh3 ap2 District of Lonisiana.

ESTATE OF WILLIAM C. FULHAM

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of WILLIAM C. FULHAM, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-seventh day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 493—mh3 ap10 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JOHN C. COFIELD,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firms of Cofield & Davis and Davis & Cofield.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOHN C. COFIELD, individually, and as a member of the firms of Cofield & Davis and Davis & Cofield, of the parish of St. Bernard and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana before John F. Deane, Register, on the eleventh day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 495—mh3 ap11 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF HENRY DESOBRY.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of HENRY DESOBRY, of Plaquemines, in the parish of Iberville and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the second day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 489—mh3 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF J. CURTIS WALDO.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of J. CURTIS WALDO, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the sixth day of April A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 481—mh3 ap4

ESTATE OF GEORGE W. KIDD.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of GEORGE W. KIDD, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the first day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 488—mh3 ap1

ESTATE OF WILLIAM MAURY.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of WILLIAM MAURY, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-fifth day of May, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 483—mh3 my23 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF CAROLINE PERRY.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CAROLINE PERRY, of the parish of Pointe Coupee and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on her own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to her or for her use, and the transfer of any property by her, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of her estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the twentieth day of March, A. D, 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 485—mh3 20 District of Louisiana.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATE OF J. M. SEIXAS,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firms of Gladden & Seixas, and Conner & Seixas.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of J. M. SEIXAS, individually, and as a member of the firms of Gladden & Seixas, and Conner & Seixas, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans, and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-ninth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No 430—mh3 ap27 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH B. WOOLFOLK.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOSEPH B. WOOLFOLK, of Rosedale, in the parish of Iberville and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the second day of April, A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 487—mh3 ap2 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JAMES A. CAMPBELL

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JAMES A. CAMPBELL, of the parish of East Feliciana and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the fourth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 484—mh3 ap4

ESTATE OF THOMAS F. WALKER.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of THOMAS F. WALKER, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the eighth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 518—mh5 ap8 District of Louisiana.

ESTATES OF JOHN F. WYCHE AND JOHN B. RICHARDSON,

Composing the Firm of John F. Wyche & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the joint and separate estates of JOHN F. WYCHE, of the parish of St. Martin and State of Louisiana, and JOHN B. RICHARDSON, of the city of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts, individually and as members of the firm of John F. Wyche & Co., on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the fourth day of May, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 522—mh5 my2 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF ROSCOE C. OGLESBY,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firms of Lewis & Oglesby and Blackmon & Oglesby.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE nineteenth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ROSCOE C. OGLESBY, individually, and as a member of the firms of Lewis & Oglesby and Blackmon & Oglesby, of Jefferson, in the parish of Jefferson and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the third day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 491—mh3 ap3

ESTATE OF HENRY OTIS.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of HENRY OTIS, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts, and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the thirtieth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 498—mh3 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JAMES STAFFORD.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-eighth day of February, A.D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JAMES STAFFORD, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the twenty-eighth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 497—mh3 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF CHARLES N. WELSHANS.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-eighth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CHARLES N. WELSHANS, of the parish of West Baton Rouge and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the twenty-seventh day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 482—mh3 27 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF GUSTAVE F. WEILL.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of GUSTAVE F. WEILL, of the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitken, Register, on the twenty-fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 514—mh5 25 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF ABRAHAM BASS.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ABRAHAM BASS, of the town of Lake Providence, in the parish of Carroll and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the sixth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 516—mh5 ap4 District of Louisiana.

U. S. MARSHAL'S MONITIONS

J. B. Grimaldi vs. the Tugboat Vulcan Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9031.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The tugboat VULCAN, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by J. B. Grimaldi for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said tugboat, her tackle, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fourth day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON,
No. 521—mh5 11 17 21 United States Marshal.

Alcus, Scherck & Autey, vs Steamboat Henry Ames, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9027—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The steamboat HENRY AMES, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Alcus, Scherck & Autey for causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamboat Henry Ames, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, second day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 500—mh3 10 17 21

PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST IN GOLD COIN.

THE BEST INVESTMENT FOR SURPLUS CAPITAL.

The attention of Investors, Trustees, Executors, and others desiring an unusually safe, reliable, and profitable form of permanent investment, is called to the advantages and assurances of the

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY offer for sale their FIRST MORTGAGE THIRTY YEAR SIX PER CENT. GOLD BONDS, and submit to investors the following among other obvious considerations, and invite the comparison with the merits and excellencies of any class of corporate securities:

I. These bonds are based upon the most vital and valuable part of the Grand National Pacific Railroad, soon to become the main channel of communication on the continent.

II. The local settlement, and the business therefrom is remarkably large and profitable, and must constantly increase.

III. The hardest part of the road is now built, and the remainder will be rapidly carried forward over the Salt Lake Plains.

IV. The greater part of the means necessary to build the road is provided by the United States government, upon a subordinate lien.

V. The state and chief cities of California have contributed upward of $3,000,000 to the enterprise, without lien.

VI. The grant of land is destined, at an early day, to prove of far greater market value than the total of the First Mortgage Bonds issued upon the road and equipments.

VII. This road lies altogether among the gold and silver producing regions, and its revenues are received in coin.

VIII. The management of this Company has been distinguished for prudence and economy; and the surplus earnings, after payment of expenses and interest, are devoted to construction purposes.

IX. The internal liabilities of the Company upon the portion now in operation are less than a third the net earnings.

X. Both principal and interest are payable in gold, under special provisions of both National and State enactment.

The bonds are in sums of $1000 each, with semi-annual gold coupons attached, payable in January and July, and are offered for sale at 95 per cent of their par valne and accrued interest from January 1 added, in currency.

At this time they yield nearly

Nine per Cent upon the Investment

These bonds bid fair to attain the most prominent position among the non-speculative investments of the country, and will be actively dealt in at the money centers in Europe.

Holders of Government Securities have an opportunity of exchanging them for Central Pacific Bonds, bearing an equal rate of interest, with the principal abundantly secured, and of realizing a profit of ten to fifteen per cent in addition.

Orders sent with the funds through responsible Banks or Express Companies will receive prompt attention. Bonds sent by return Express, to any address in the United States, at our cost. Information, Descriptive Pamphlets, Maps, etc., furnished on application at the office of the Railroad Company,

NO. 54 WILLIAM STREET.
AND OF
FISK & HATCH,
BANKERS,
AND
Dealers in Government Securities,
AND
FINANCIAL AGENTS OF THE C. P. RR. CO.,
No. 5 Nassau Street, New York.

BURNETT'S KALLISTON,

As a Wash for Beautifying the Complexion has no equal. It is distinguished for its cooling and soothing properties, and is admirably adapted to all unnatural conditions of the skin; removing Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, Redness and Roughness of the skin, etc.; curing Chapped Hands, and allaying the irritation caused by the bites of musquitoes and other annoying insects.

Sold at 592 Broadway, and by all druggists.

POPULAR HOTELS all use and recommend Burnett's Flavoring Extracts as the best. All grocers and druggists sell them.

New York Office 592 Broadway.

$100 A Month Salary

Will be paid for Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample retailing at $4 50 for 50 copies.

A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.
[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 13t

STAPLETON & CO.,
UNION HAT STORE,
95..........CANAL STREET..........97
NEW ORLEANS,
Wholesale and Retail Dealer
—IN—
Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,
—ALSO—
GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n20

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

COLGATE & Co.'s Fragrant Toilet Soaps are prepared by Skilled workmen from the best Materials, and are known as the STANDARD by Dealers and Consumers.

Sold Everywhere.

MEDICAL.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.

Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.

No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.

For sale by F. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

ONE OUNCE OF GOLD WILL BE given for every ounce of adulteration found in B. T. BABBITT'S LION COFFEE. This Coffee is roasted, ground, and sealed "hermetically," under letters patent from the United States government. All the Aroma is saved, and the Coffee presents a rich, glossy appearance. Every family should use it, as it is fifteen to twenty per cent stronger than other pure Coffee. One can in every twenty contains a one dollar greenback. For sale everywhere. If your grocer does not keep this coffee, and will not get it for you, send your orders direct to the factory.

B. T. BABBITT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington street, New York

BELLS.

PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY

CHURCH BELLS
Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c., HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY
Established 1837.
VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:1y

RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD
—FOR—
THE PIANOFORTE
—IS—
UNEXCELLED! UNEQUALED!
—AND—
The Standard Book of Instruction
Thirty Thousand Copies are Sold Yearly,
And it is no exaggeration to say that
Quarter of a Million Scholars
HAVE BECOME ACCOMPLISHED PIANISTS

By using this Book. It is adapted alike to the youngest and to the oldest; to the beginner for the first lessons, and to the amateur for general practice.

Sent postpaid. Price $3 75.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,
Publishers, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
mh7 711 Broadway, New York.

NATIONAL FREEDMEN'S SAVING AND TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.

Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,
No. 114 CARONDELET STREET

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o'clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.

Deposits of One Dollar or more received.

Interest payable in January and July, in each year.

All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.

All the profits belong to the depositors.

Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.

Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 11. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1868. WHOLE NO. 111.

Poetry.

[From Chambers' Journal.]

"FOUND DEAD IN THE STREET."

The labor is over and done;
The sun has gone down in the west;
The birds are asleep every one,
And the world has gone to its rest—
Sleepers on beds of down,
'Neath cover of silk and gold,
Soft as on roses new blown
Slept the great monarch of old;
Sleepers on mother's breast,
Sleepers happy and warm,
Cosy as birds in their nest,
With never a thought of harm!
Sleepers in garrets high,
'Neath coverlet ragged and old;
And one little sleeper all under the sky,
Out in the night and cold!
Alone in the wide, wide world,
Christless, motherless he;
Begging or stealing to live, and whirled
Like waif on an angry sea.

The daisy looks up from the grass,
Fresh from the fingers of night,
To welcome the birds as they pass
And drink in fresh rivers of light.
Sleepers on mother's breast,
Waken to summer and mirth;
But one little sleeper has gone to his rest,
Never to waken on earth—
Dead—found dead in the street,
All forsaken and lorn;
Damp from head to the feet,
With the dews of the sweet May morn.

Dead—for the want of a crust!
Dead—in the cold night air!
Dead—and under the dust,
Without ever a word of prayer;
In the heart of the wealthiest city
In this most Christian land,
Without ever a word of pity,
Or the touch of a kindly hand!

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

Travels in Western Africa.

NUMBER FOUR.

NEW ORLEANS, February 29, 1868.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

In my last communication I endeavored to exhibit the superiority of the interior settlement of Careysburg over the seaboard settlements, as regards health, I shall now give you a condensed view of the leeward settlements—Marshall, Edina, Buchanan, Greenville, and Harper.

Marshall is situated at the junction of Bargey river and the Atlantic ocean, and about forty-five miles southeast of Monrovia. It now has two stores, one Presbyterian, one Methodist, and one Baptist house of worship; one steam saw mill belonging to Messrs. B. P. Yates & Son, the usual number of mechanics, and a population of from seventy-five to ninety.

From Marshall to Edina, in Grand Bassa county, an easy two-hours sail, is an entire change. This place is built upon a flat sandy promontory with two sides to the water. It contains the residence of the executive officer of the county, Hon. J. D. Preston; as well as that of the customs collector, N. G. Weaver. The wealthiest shipowner of the county, John L. Cruso, of Tennessee, resides here. The religious denominations are the Methodist, Baptists, and Episcopalians. The Methodist society, which is the largest, has a neat frame house of worship, which is always filled on days of service. The population numbers about two hundred and fifty, among whom are two lawyers, four ministers, and three or four merchants.

Buchanan, the chief town in the county of Grand Bassa, and third in point of importance in the republic, is on the Benson river, at the distance of sixty-five miles from Monrovia, between which small vessels regularly ply. It stands on a slightly elevated spot, overlooking the township of Edina, the waters of the Atlantic, with the river immediately in front, flowing toward its outlet in river St. John, through which it discharges into the sea. The town numbers five hundred and eighty-four inhabitants, possesses commodious places of worship, a first-rate hotel, and extensive warehouses, as a great mart for the export of camwood and palm oil. The inhabitants are generally industrious, intelligent, moral, and a large proportion professors of religion. In the life time of Thomas Buchanan this city was the capital of the Liberia, and suffered from severe wars made by Grando and Bowie.

The remains of Governor Buchanan are placed under a fine marble monument, in a camwood grove overlooking the river.

Buchanan and Edina derive their support from the exportations of palm oil and camwood, which are unexcelled on the coast. During six or seven months of the year it is all bustle and activity; crowds of canoes, and boats, and small sloops, and schooners throng the rivers and make the townships thriving business places. In fact, one-third, if not one-half the population of the county derive their means of livelihood throughout the year from the receipts of their business during the "busy season."

All the houses in Buchanan are adorned with arcades or large covered balconies. A bar at the mouth of the harbor at present restricts the entry of large vessels, but they lie in the roads and discharge into launches, from which the articles slung to a stout pole are lugged on native men's shoulders to their destination.

This township is the seat of justice for the county, and contains a large brick courthouse and jail. The scenery of the suburbs is agreeable, the soil fertile, and the climate tolerably healthful. Here lies the remains of S. A. Benson, ex-president of the republic.

Two hours smart sailing in the Liberian schooner Edina, Captain Crusoe, brought me to the city of Greenville, in Sinoe county. It stands upon the flat summit or piece of table land, which slopes gradually to the ocean, and has two fronts. The outer or sea front overlooks the ocean, with the vessels at anchor in the roads, and is directly exposed to the sea breeze, and may be called the official or fashionable quarter, having the Methodist, Congregationalist, and Presbyterian churches, the customhouse, the vice-president's residence, and neat villas and a pleasant promenade, resorted to by the bon ton and townspeople after the heat of the day is over. The river front overlooks Sinoe river, and its rocky islands, and is the business portion of the city. Greenville ranked as the garden spot of the republic previous to the massacre of 1856. It contains about seven hundred inhabitants. Ashmun, Bluntsville, and Savannah are pleasant suburban villages occupied by farmers.

The commerce of the place is not very great. It has a goodly proportion of mechanics, and its inhabitants are principally from Mississippi, Georgia, and the Carolinas, and Whigs in politics. The next place of importance in the African republic, is the city of Harper, two hundred and eighty-five miles south of Monrovia, standing at the further extremity of Cape Palmas, Maryland county, where a small fresh water stream mingles with the sea inlet.

The first settlers gave the name of Maryland in Liberia, to the spot. The city of Harper is the seat of the county executive, C. H. Harmon, and contains the customhouse and government buildings. The town has several neat churches, ranges of commodious stone warehouses, and stores, well built brick houses, and veranda cottages, a handsome hotel, a hospital supported by voluntary contributions, a local newspaper, and a lofty lighthouse which serves as a land mark, the light being visible fifteen miles at sea. The population, including the suburbs amounted to seven hundred in 1866. Harper is the depot of the Royal Mail steamship company. The several religious denominations, make this a rendezvous, and at certain seasons it is quite animated with convocations pertaining thereto. Here resides the Right Rev. John Payne, of P. E. mission. Here, too, labored that good man, Rev. C. C. Hoffman, attracting much attention by his Christian zeal and opposition to the traffic of liquor in the county. Here, also, are the graves of Governor John B. Russwurm and Chief Justice Boston J. Drayton. The aspect of everything in the republic is thoroughly American.

Thus, in a condensed view, I have given you an account of the settlements of the republic of Liberia. Now I shall speak of the country called Bopora, lying interiorward. On the 28th January, 1861, Mr. John B. Jordan, myself, and twenty-one native boys and men, turned our backs to the seaboard and faced the interior. The weather was bright and beautiful. The thermometer on the window ledge registered eighty-seven degrees, but the air outside was cool. About five o'clock that afternoon we halted before the barricaded native town of a sable Vey chief named Vimora, into which he admitted us after half an hour's parley.

After partaking of a social meal, consisting of fowl and rice, my companions turned into their hammocks preparatory to becoming victims to Morpheus, but I being of a searching temperament proceeded to ascertain who were the persons to whom we were to be indebted for a night's lodging, etc. Upon investigation I learned that I was in the town of a Vay chief named Vimora, who was of gigantic stature, his height being no less than six feet six inches. He was dressed in a native cloth shirt and bombos, or short trousers, sandals upon his feet, and carrying in his hand a spear. His followers, numbering about 200, were as black as their chief, and dressed in the same style, excepting they carried English muskets. They acted toward me very friendly, and I assure you I treated them with due respect. Early on the twenty-ninth I awoke my companions, and after breakfasting with his sable majesty we took up our line of march on foot through various native towns until Gatoombay appeared in hailing distance. Here we were refused admittance upon the plea that the American man had burnt the town once in retaliation for a most foul murder committed by the Golahs. So to the next native town we footed, and were admitted by a sulky looking man, who inquired of us our destination. After being informed that we were on our way to Mamorah, the king of Bopora, we were politely treated to a supper of rice and chicken.

Feeling footsore and sleepy, I primed my revolvers, and swung my hammock and tumbled in, determining to sleep. At five o'clock on the morning of the 30th the cavalcade was again in motion; the forest grew denser. Toward evening we reached the hospitable town of another sable chief, Taliquenquiah, where at daybreak we were placed in hammocks slung to a pole, and placed upon the shoulders of two stout native men, who went splashing through creeks and forest, day and night, until February 3, when the hills of Bopora came to view. Here we found the forest trees loftier, larger, and denser. There were numerous mud houses of large size, the barking of dogs, the firing of guns, with the busy hum of man invading the territory hitherto given up to the beast. The scenery of this section of Africa is in many places remarkably fine and striking. Tall gum trees and palms cover some of the hills, while others are perfectly white with African cotton. Seen from a distance nothing can be more picturesque than the appearance of the mud and thatched dwellings of every variety clustering on the slopes of the hills, or in the glens between them. At night also the dark outline of the huts, the hundreds of fires, the discharge of arms, and the music of the native instrument with which some savage is solacing himself after a day of toil, combine to form a picture which powerfully excites the imagination. But all impressions of the beautiful vanish, and pleasurable feelings are extinguished as inspection becomes close. The men are savages in appearance, and often in manners, habited in the garb common to heathens, namely, one yard of cloth around their loins, frequently begrimed from head to foot with paint or clay. But the moral evils of the scene are far worse features than its material ills. The crowd of Bopora has included some of the most desperate and depraved of mankind, eager to deprive a fortunate stranger of his gains, and intent upon maintaining themselves by plunder without toil. Order and security are preserved around these heathen towns by force of arms—every man has to look to his own safety. In retiring to rest the greatest precautions are necessary, and are had recourse to, as if in a country where war is raging, and in fear of a midnight onslaught. Guns and pistols are loaded and placed ready for use. Sentinels are appointed for the nightly watch, and intruders are warned at their peril to stand off. Few civilized strangers hazard being out after dark, except the ill-disposed; for should a house be approached accidentally a pistol shot will ten to one encounter the unknown visitor. To the qualifications for a traveler in Africa previously mentioned the following must be added: Ability to sleep under a tree in the open air, to go for a week unshaved, to eat meals composed of boa constrictor, to be pestered with venemous serpents, to have a snake for a bedfellow, to submit to be swindled out of your ammunition by the savages, with a large amount of self-reliance to encounter dangers and contend with savage cruelty. But there are cheering as well as painful things to record of Bopora and the kindred localities, which I shall give an account of in my next. Respectfully,

FREDRICK K. HYDE.

Opelousas District.

NUMBER FIVE.

PRAIRIE STORM—POOR WHITE FOLKS—TELEGRAPH — VERMILLIONVILLE — HELP NEEDED.

The programme now reads—three hundred miles in the saddle, and more than that distance by the Red river steamers, Shreveport being the farthest point. The skies promised fair weather as the day began, but about mid-afternoon out on the broad prairie, a wind storm arose, soon followed by drenching rain; no traveler could long withstand such a wind; shelter was scarce, but the good horse soon reached a poor hut, where for nearly an hour he stood trembling near its dilapidated wall. What a house it was; not fit for cattle; yet the home of a poor widow with seven children, white folks too. The pigs, chickens, corn, and children under the same roof, and that leaky; no floor no sash, no fence. Night was fast approaching, so it was necessary to push on soon as the wind lulled, though rain still fell in torrents. Never before was I so thankful to the discoverer of the telegraph; it would have been impossible to find our way in the darkness without an occasional sight of the poles along the road, now covered with water. A courteous welcome at Doctor Pickett's prairie home, a good fire, and the unexpected meeting with our friend Mr. Heath, of New Orleans, soon made us forget the storm. Mr. H. is here to see after property interests on the Teche, and may possibly settle among us. At Vermillionville I found an old acquaintance, Mr. Rice, on duty under the bureau, and looking faithfully after its interests; a good school is taught in the village by a colored man from the North. In this neighborhood Brother Bryan is trying to buy a building and lot for church and school purposes; with some help from the mission and the bureau it can be secured; by this means much good may be done in this parish.

AVOIRDUPOIS LADIES — OPELOUSAS CHURCH—SLANDER REFUTED—DEMOCRATIC MEETING—YOUNG CONVERTS.

Another day's ride over the prairies brought me, soon after dark, to Opelousas, and the hotel of Madame Tetines. Here are three generations, grandmother, mother, and daughter, all born free, and each weighing over two hundred. They are famed for their good table and kind feeling. Our new church is a prominent object in the town, and will soon be ready for use, floor, covering, and windows only being needed. Mr. DeLacy, our builder, has done himself justice here, as in his other churches, and Brother Jackson has toiled faithfully through many difficulties.

Quite a stir was made recently among the Republicans by an order from General Hancock to cease their club meetings, as I was told. It arose from the impression that they manifested a riotous spirit; wicked men for party purposes, or worse, have studiously circulated the slander, and imposed upon many government officials in this matter. I learned, and can say confidently, that the colored people of St. Landry are well-behaved under great provocation to the contrary. No white person has been killed, assaulted, or even insulted by them, while many colored people have suffered by violence, fraud, and indignities. Drunkenness is rare among them, and their political meetings are conducted with almost the decorum of religious services.

On the afternoon of my visit a Democratic conservative meeting was held in the courthouse. Only whites were present, and there was very little enthusiasm. A feeling seemed to prevail that they had no business there. Some had doubts whether they should meet in conclave to condemn the course of the government they had fought to destroy. The resolutions and speeches said they had gathered to resist the blows aimed at them, and would manfully oppose them. These young converts were zealous in behalf of the constitution and the laws; they grieved over "the destruction threatening the glorious Union established by our forefathers;" quoted Patrick Henry, "A handful of men, armed in the sacred cause of liberty," etc.; one said for generations Louisianians had been tried and ever found incapable of dishonor; he eulogized the rebel generals; said Congress had ostracised ten states; had had the effrontery to establish military dictatorships, etc., etc. These sentiments were loudly applauded. Much use was made of the words "superior and inferior" race, and the claim was boldly made to the exclusive right to vote and hold office by the whites. Pity there is such a disposition to make a question of color and not merit.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—POVERTY IN THE PARSONAGE—SUNDAY SERVICES.

The Opelousas first quarterly conference was held in the Washington church. It was a good meeting; all but two members passed a good examination, and they are all fast learning their duties; one was suspended, and one stricken from the roll. Six appointments were reported, with over three hundred members and probationers, a small loss from last report. Four conversions, eight baptisms, five marriages. The people are becoming settled, finding homes and work. Still many from loss of crops, wages unpaid, and ravages of yellow fever, are left poor and helpless. A good committee on preacher's support was appointed, and it is hoped his wants will be supplied. The past quarter has been a hard one. More than once his family has been all day without food in the house.

The sabbath meetings were interesting; many came from the country; nineteen joined the church; five children were baptized; one marriage solemnized; about thirty persons subscribed toward Brother Jackson's support sums of ten cents to one dollar a month. The new church is finished, except seats and pulpit, and our people "mighty proud" and thankful for it. Cases of yellow fever have occasionally occurred since it prevailed here, and many are fearing its return the coming summer.

ITINERANT.

Disfranchised Preachers.

The Hon. Rufus Waples has placed the whole country under great obligations to him for including in his article on disfranchisement "those who, in the advocacy of treason, preached sermons during the late rebellion;" and that this disfranchisement shall continue until such shall file in the office of secretary of state, "a certificate, setting forth that he acknowledges the late rebellion to have been moraliy and politically wrong, and that he regrets any aid or comfort he may have given it." And this certificate is to be published in the official journal of the state.

Of the justice of this retribution on the rebellious clergy of Louisiana every impartial mind must be fully convinced. They, more than any other class in society, taught the people treason, and led the people into the rebellion. They had the ear of the women of the South, and failed not to use their power as professedly Christian pastors to excite the fears, the hate, and revenge of the Southern women, and to this religious influence more than to any other cause is due their intense and unsubduable animosity to the Union and loyal people. They were taught from the sacred altar that their persons would be subjected to insult and violence by the "Yankee invaders;" that their homes would be plundered, and their slaves incited to rape, rapine, and murder. These clergymen also had the ear of the young men of the South, and failed not on every occasion to fire their youthful hearts by the most gross misrepresentations, and in the holy language of religion and patriotism induced them to enter the army of the rebellion. Nor did they confine their treasonable efforts to the pulpit, for many of them abandoned that and "took the stump" to rouse the masses to fight in destruction of the benign government of our fathers. Excited to delirium, and fanatical to insanity, they preached sermons, made speeches, wrote addresses, talked treason on the streets, in the stores, and around the domestic altar, presented confederate flags, and then having done their uttermost to plunge the South into a bloody war, they themselves run away at the first smell of gunpowder, and at the first sound of the Yankee guns.

Let us take such a man as Palmer of this city, whose treasonable sermons are now remembered only as bloody pictures are recalled, and whose blasphemous appeals to the Almighty still chill the heart. We recall with absolute horror his empty boast that he would wade knee deep in blood rather than submit to Yankee rule; and that he would stake the truthfulness of Christianity upon the success of the war for the South. During the war he labored as no other man labored for its success; and when all was lost he was only too glad to return to a city which to-day is a standing lie to all his gross misrepresentations as to the character of the Northern soldier and citizen. And since his return, while he begged to come back and live under the "Yankee rule," yet he has neither spoken a word nor written a line of regret for his past errors and sins, but like Lee, lends an ominous silence to the opposition of the South to the liberal acts of congres. And next to him is Walker of this city; not next to him in intellect, but next to him in bitterness of hostility to the government under which he now finds protection. As a shadow follows the body that projects it so he followed Palmer, even to running away when Butler came, and "Joe" remained in a safe place till the old ladies of his church sent the word: "Now, Joe, you can come back; and we won't let anybody hurt you." Next on the roll is Keener, who is a traitor by choice, and therefore is worse than he who is one from education. For this man's whole family are among the truest of the true of the loyal people of Baltimore, and whose Christian mother, who is now in glory, sent us word: "I am a Union woman." This man's ante bellum offenses might be pardoned, were he not to-day the most bitter and implacable secessionist in New Orleans. The vocabulary of Billingsgate is not foul enough for him to express his thoughts of meanness and hate of the national congress and of loyal men.

With what propriety can either the state or national government disfranchise such a man as R. K. Howell for holding a subordinate office during confederate rule, and not disfranchise such ministers as Messrs. Palmer, Walker, and Keener. We therefore thank Mr. Waples for his substitute which is no less just than merciful, for it opens to the disfranchised the door of repentance. These remarks may revive the old saying that "ministers are most bitter toward ministers;" but not that theirs is the bitterness of envy, but because they know better than any other class in society what a minister should be, and how great is the responsibility of such when they do wrong. And in conclusion, we trust that Palmer or Walker will immediately set the example; write their confession; file it in the office of secretary of state, and be restored to citizenship under that government which they have so ignominiously failed to destroy.

Lee's College.

On the second instant a small audience assembled in the great hall of the Cooper Institute, New York, to aid Washington college, of which Robert E. Lee is president. Among the signers of the call for the meeting, were Messrs. Greeley, Chapin, Brady, Tyng, and Beecher; and Henry Ward Beecher was the chief speaker on the occasion. It may seem unkind in us to disapprove of the meeting, and unworthy of us to condemn Messrs. Beecher and Greeley and others for the part they took in behalf of General Lee's college; but we believe the movement was wrong in principle and in practice. One of the speakers felt his embarrassment and attempted to relieve himself of his difficulty by making a distinction between "General" Lee and Robert E. Lee, and his chief commendation of the latter was that since the war he has been quiet on political questions, and avoided public demonstrations. But it is this very silence which, in our judgment, constitutes Lee's great offense. His retirement is owing to the mortification which he naturally feels from the defeat he has suffered, and not from any sorrow for the terrible slaughter our countrymen suffered at his hands. His political sentiments are unchanged, and he is to-day harmless because he lacks power and opportunity to repeat the bloody tragedy in which he was the chief actor. His college will be the school of secession and treason, and within its classic halls the youth of the South will learn to admire a man who is pronounced by the national government a traitor, and declared by his own disfranchisement to be a rebel. Sustaining Lee's college is opposing the United States government, for the decisions of the latter and the character of the former are inconsistent.

Every true patriot should desire the advancement of education in the South, but all Southern institutions should be nationalized. Our country has been heterogeneous too long; its future peace and prosperity depend upon making it homogeneous. The influence to unify must come largely from our schools of learning, and the men who stand at the head thereof must be national men. Lee would be dangerous at the head of Yale or Middletown, as he is as president of Washington college, and yet his influence without a recantation, could not be otherwise than baneful upon the minds of the rising generation. Neither Mr. Beecher nor Mr. Greeley can appreciate the effect of their eccentricities in such matters upon the loyal people in the South; and the only possible cure that we can suggest of their moral vagaries, is to have them come to Louisiana, and one open a church and the other edit a paper, and they would soon learn the importance of absolute and thorough work with a people who form an exception to the law of kindness.

It is impossible for one dead issue to cling to another.—Houston Journal.

No so. The Journal clings to the confederacy. Both are "deader" than was Lazarus, for he did rise from the grave, but they never will.—Galveston Bulletin.

When intoxicated, a Frenchman wants to dance, a German to sing, a Spaniard to gamble, an Englishman to eat, an Italian to boast, a Russian to be affectionate, an Irishman to fight, and an American to make a speech.

Convention Adjourned.

After a session of eighty-one days the constitutional convention of Louisiana adjourned sine die last Monday, March 9. And now that the convention of 1864 and that of 1868 have become history we may speak of their proceedings in comparative terms. Whatever may be the private irregularities of the members of the convention just adjourned, they had sense enough to avoid the public exhibitions of their inebriety, and to maintain a decorum worthy of a deliberative body invested with high and solemn powers. Conscious of the depleted condition of the state treasury, and aware that both duty and policy demanded economy, they have completed their great work at a cost surprisingly low. And the constitution which they have framed is remarkable for its harmony with the reconstruction acts of congress, and for those broad and liberal views which were evolved by the war, and which will be the glory of the age in which we live.

Dr. Ready and the Whisky Ring.

Whatever may be his qualifications or disqualifications for assessor of internal revenue, Dr. James Ready has the superb recommendation of being cordially hated by the whisky ring who are now urging his removal from office. But we hope the finance committee of the senate will think twice before they yield to the pressure of such a combination to remove a man from office who has faithfully discharged his duties, and in doing so has brought down their wrath upon him. We have the best of reasons for believing that the gentleman now before the senate for confirmation as Dr. Ready's successor, is the candidate of the whisky ring, and this is a sufficient reason why he should not be confirmed.

Judge Howe's Lecture.

The second lecture in the course before the Young Men's association of our church was delivered on last Monday evening. The audience was large, and listened with deep interest to a lecture which was learned and eloquent. The subject was Chief Justice Martin, of Louisiana, who was a profound jurist, an honest man, and an eccentric character; and his life and times were recalled by the able lecturer in a manner no less worthy of himself than the audience before him.

Information Wanted.

Eliza Prodder, formerly belonging to Mrs. Prodder, of Biloxi, Harrison county, Mississippi, wishes to find her grandchild, Anna Eliza. She formerly belonged to Drygoon, and was sold to Mrs. Frelonder. She was sold again by Mrs. Frelonder to Mr. Bradford, in Madison county, Mississippi. Her mother was sold from her to New Orleans. She has a brother by the name of Charles Henry. Information in regard to her may be sent to Rev. E. Green, pastor of Poet street M. E. church, New Orleans.

By Clara Lindsey of her daughters Henrietta and Mary, who formerly belonged to Samuel K. Hanson, Winchester, Kentucky. Send information to the inquirer, in care of Rev. Henry Green, pastor of First street church, New Orleans.

The "Sabbath School Index," by R. G. Pardee, A. M. The only notice we need to give of this valuable work and of the sabbath school officers and teachers is simply to state that among the subjects treated therein is the history and progress of sabbath schools, conventions, institutes, duties of the various officers, the teacher, his preparation, the best plans of teaching, illustrative, pictorial, and object teaching, the blackboard, infant classes, Bible classes, the art of questioning, visiting the scholars, the conversion and culture of children, sabbath school music, the question box, and the answer box, mistakes of teachers.

Every officer and teacher in the sabbath school should read this work. It is cheap and in the reach of all. Published by J. C. Garrigues & Co., 148 South Fourth street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Jeff. Davis was treated to an ovation by the firemen, on his arrival at New Orleans, a few days since.

And yet it is complained that the North is radical.—Chicago Journal.

New Orleans Advocate.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months.....2 00
Three Months.....1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion.....50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, MARCH 14, 1868.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

H. C. WARMOTH.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,

OSCAR J. DUNN.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,

GEORGE BOVEE.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,

SIMEON BELDEN.

FOR AUDITOR,

GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.

FOR TREASURER,

ANTOINE DUBUCLET.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,

T. W. CONWAY.

Rev. Dr. Newman will preach in his church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 7½.

The Ecclesiastical Almanac, containing statistics of all religious denominations, etc., can be obtained by inclosing thirty cents to W. . Henry, assistant editor of the Advocate.

Marriage Certificates.—Those wishing cheap marriage certificates can obtain them postpaid by sending to the assistant editor of the Advocate. Price $3 per hundred or thirty for $1. Others for 60 cents a dozen and $1 50 per dezen.

Wheat Prizes.—At the annual meeting of the New York Agricultural society on the twelfth of February, Orange Judd, editor of the American Agriculturalist, (the paper which at the beginning of the year received for several days in succession between 8000 and 10,000 subscribers, daily,) placed in the hands of the executive committee $300, for wheat prizes. One hundred dollars for the best two barrels of white winter wheat, $100 for best two barrels of red winter wheat, and $100 for best two barrels of spring wheat. Competition open to all in the United States and Canadas.

Full particulars given in the March number of the American Agriculturalist, which can be obtained by addressing that paper 245 Broadway, New York. Price fifteen cents per copy, or $1 50 per year.

The Northwestern Farmer for March comes to us with its usual quota of useful and highly interesting matter. This is altogether the largest, finest, and best farm journal ever published in the West, of which we have any knowledge. $1 50 a year. T. A. Bland, publisher, Indianapolis, Ind.

Messrs. Krull & Dickey, wholesale and retail booksellers and stationers, 106 Canal street, New Orleans, Louisiana, dealers in law, medical, miscellaneous, school, and juvenile books. We have received from the above house the "History of the United Netherlands," by J. L. Motley; "A French Country Family;" "Brownlows;" "One of the Family;" and "Margaret's Engagement," a more extended notice of which will be given hereafter.

Items.

By the politeness of Mr. Thomas J. Durant, we have before us a copy of an able pamphlet, entitled, "Three Hundred Millions of Dollars saved in Specie by the Meaning of a Word." This is an interesting and lengthy document, addressed to Secretary McCulloch by Victor Considerant, formerly member of the national assembly of France under the republic, and editor of the Democracie Pacifique.

THE CONSTITUTION.

The convention which convened on November 23 has adjourned, after the comparatively short session of a little over three months, and as the result of its labors has submitted to the people of the state a constitution which every unprejudiced person will pronounce to be fully equal in style, arrangement, and composition to the average of such instruments in the Union. In its carefully considered and well drawn provisions upon the judicial, legislative, and executive departments it equals any former constitution of this state. In fact they are in the main the same as those contained in the constitutions of all the states. In none of these three, except the judiciary, have any important changes been made. The alterations in that are important, and in our opinion, except one, vastly for the better. They are briefly these: The making of all judges of inferior courts elective; the establishment of parish courts, giving to these courts the opening and settlement of all successions, civil jurisdiction in all suits in which successions are involved when the amount does not exceed five hundred dollars, and granting an appeal in such cases direct from the parish to the supreme court; and providing for two sheriffs, a criminal, and a civil sheriff, in the parish of Orleans.

Of these changes the most important and most radical one is the creation and constitution of the parish courts. The judges are not required to be lawyers, and for the bulk of small suits in which the mass of the people are mostly interested, a class of courts, easy of access, prompt in action, and cheap, are opened where the law in its bearings upon the practical matters of everyday life will be submitted to the interpretation of the average good sense and intelligence of common men, as it will be represented by the unprofessional persons who will fill these places. In this very fact where many see danger we think that we can discern the elements of progress and success. If the law as it affects the thousand and one transactions of daily life between people of ordinary means and common pursuits, is not such that it can be safely interpreted by a cheap and common magistracy of this sort, reflecting the ordinary business sense of the people, then such a magistracy will speedily lead to one result. The laws will be made so that plain common people can understand and safely interpret them for themselves and for others. And when this is accomplished it will be the most important and useful reform that can be had. In our opinion the most valuable portion of this improvement in the judiciary was made in the convention after the article had passed through two committees, upon the motion of Mr. Hiestand to strike out the words "learned in the law" after the word "judge," which passed, to the great horror of many of the members of the legal profession.

Under the title of bill of rights we find another innovation, which though characterized as meaningless and frivolous by its opponents, elicited one of the most animated and prolonged debates of the convention.

In article thirteen of the constitution as it finally passed as proposed by Mr. Pinchback, with the assistance and emendations of Messrs. Waples, Crane, and Belden, we find the most original and significant proposition of the convention.

It proposes by constitutional enactments to define and protect a certain class of rights which have hitherto been left exclusively to the arbitrament of interest and caprice. We refer to the rights of individuals as members of the public in all licensed or chartered places or conveyances of public resort. These have hitherto been left to the control of private judgment, because it was held that self-interest and the competition of trade would naturally compel public carriers and keepers of places of entertainment, sale, and amusement, to extend to every member of the public that courtesy and attention which was the right of the one to receive and the duty of the other to extend.

And here, upon the ground that these rights have never before been made the subject of legal enactments, simply because no necessity had hitherto arisen that they should be, the old fogies of the convention took the stand that they should not and could not be ascertained and fixed by law. All the sophistry and special pleading of Mr. Cooley, and of every partisan of old-time prejudices in the convention, was brought to bear. The cry of social equality was raised. Threats of Northern impatience and indignation, and of Southern vengeance in the day of reckoning to come, were freely indulged in. But the sober good sense of the convention overcame the ingenuity, learning, and eloquence of the champions of prejudice, and cut the Gordian knot by simply resolving that if the words "public rights" had meant nothing heretofore, and the rights of this class had not been defined and recognized by law before, they should mean something, and be recognized and defined hereafter. In their sagacity and common sense in this matter we certainly think that the lawmakers showed themselves superior to the lawyers, and Louisiana has set an example worthy to be followed by her sister states, in one of which, the learned and distinguished and eloquent scholar and gentleman, Frederick Douglass, can be excluded from a public table, at which the commonest, roughest, and most boorish person, if of a different complexion, can sit. Under its operation we hope the time will speedily come when such outrages as are daily perpetrated by the Jackson railroad, when it sells a first-class ticket to a passenger and then compels him to ride in a fourth-class, dirty, uncomfortable car, merely because he is black, will not be tolerated.

The extension of suffrage to all persons, without distinction of color, and the admission of all children to the public schools were reforms so natural and so logically following the very facts upon which the congressional plan of reconstruction is based as to hardly provoke debate in the convention and to need no extended remarks at this time. Their justice and necessity were admitted by all, except a few whose prejudices were incurable. They are chiefly noticeable now from the fact of their denial by the so-called free state convention of 1864. Their almost unanimous indorsement by this convention is the best demonstration of that sound principle of politics that the best method of fitting any class of men for self-government and enabling them to take care of and elevate themselves is to give them the ballot. Article 124, which provides for the extinguishment of all tacit mortgages and privileges in this state as affecting third persons, after the year 1870, unless duly recorded, is the entering wedge of a most important and wide-reaching legal reform, the necessity for which has long been felt and acknowledged by the best jurists of the state.

The articles prohibiting to clerks of courts the exercise of any judicial powers, and confining the police magistrates of municipalities to the exercise of their functions as committing magistrates and administrers of the police regulations of their respective municipalities, is an excellent reform, and will be a powerful corrective of the abuses which have so long existed in our recorder's courts.

The disfranchising clause for participation in the rebellion is extraordinarily lenient and liberal, so much so as to justify the suspicion that its author, Mr. Waples, was inclined to be a little facetious, in his quiet way, toward our defeated and disgusted rebel friends—rather more so, we fear, than they would be to us if we were to change places. It disfranchises none, from the highest to the lowest, except the stubborn, unrepentant, malignant rebel, who can not find it in his heart to say peccavi.

It only requires of him to acknowledge his error and swear true allegiance hereafter to the state and the United States.

In our opinion it is the best provision we have seen upon the subject of disfranchisement, and is worthy of imitation in the Southern states, and well calculated, as our friend Blackburn would say, to create a sound, healthy sentiment of loyalty, and a wholesome sense of the blunder of secession.

The points we have thus cursorily indicated comprise the principal improvements in this constitution upon the old one. They are some of them fundamental and far-reaching, none of them violent or extreme, and all of them, we think, except that of an elective judiciary, judicious, well-timed, and necessary. We commend the instrument to the careful, unprejudiced perusal of every reader.

Hancock.

The French have a proverb that an "imprudent friend is more to be feared than a wise enemy," and Major General Hancock has reason to offer the prayer, "Save me from my friends." We know that it was the deliberate purpose of the Johnson men of this city to gain control of the administration of the commanding general of this district, and for this purpose a delegation was sent to meet him; and ever since his arrival in our midst they have so managed to retain their influence over him that he has been their tool. A more consummate lot of political hypocrites never surrounded a commanding general than those men who have insinuated themselves into the society of General Hancock, and who have forced their advice upon him. They belong to a class of men who ought not to be trusted for a moment in political matters. It is not in the nature of things that they should be sincere in their friendship for any man who opposed their darling scheme of secession and rebellion. They are to-day the same simon pure, unqualified, and infernal rebels that they were when fighting to destroy our great government. As the negro can not change his skin, nor the spotted dog his spots, neither can these natural born rebels change from disloyalty to loyalty. It is bred in their bones. We read of some devils who go not out except by fasting and prayer, but the Union people would starve to death if they should undertake to fast for the casting out of the devil of secession. He absolutely refuses to come out because there is no swine filthy enough to receive him. We have witnessed several attempts to coax this devil out, and thereby lead the Southern people into the Union again. Banks sought to dance him out, but the reconstructed left Banks to pay the fiddler. Canby sought to quiet the demon of impartial justice and much long suffering; but that "honest old Roman" was too pure to command his respect. Butler and Sheridan are the only two men who thoroughly comprehended the situation and whose administrations will be the admiration of all coming generations.

We have no language adequately to express our admiration for Major General Hancock as a soldier for the Union. As a corps commander he was the glory of the army of the Potomac, and his name will ever be linked with the heroic deeds and triumphant achievements of that branch of our army that was a wall of brass in protecting the national capital, and which finally covered itself with glory in the capture of Richmond. Such is our gratitude to any soldier who fought nobly for the republic that neither the stately sentences of prose nor the burning words of poesy can fully convey to them the thankful emotions of our hearts. It was with such feelings that we bade General Hancock welcome to our city, and with such feelings we now contemplate him as a soldier. And notwithstanding the grave mistakes he has made in following the counsels of fanatical Democrats and ex-confederate officers, we stand ready to render him the same support that we did to Sheridan, if Hancock will throw off those who have assumed to be his advisers, whose judgments are perverted, and whose hearts are insincere. General Hancock's place is side by side and shoulder to shoulder with Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, and Thomas, (not Lorenzo), whose political record is consistent with their military career, and who to-day stand on the constitution of their country, and refuse to abandon it, though presidential favors were the offered price.

Mayor's Proclamation.

Mayor Heath had the good sense to issue, on last Sunday morning, a proclamation on the city currency. It was a plain statement of facts, and created no little stir in the political and financial world. The city press came out in violent terms against his honor's proclamation, but found it a hard nut to crack. The Picayune told an Indian story, which was well enough as a story, but sober people couldn't see the point. The Devil's Daily bellowed like a mad bull, threw dirt into the air, lifted its tail on high, lowered its head for a fight, and then—well, what? Nothing! The Crescent was as clear as mud on the subject, and will think so on a second perusal of its own article.

The truth is the mayor's proclamation was so well put that its statements had a salutary effect upon the money market. On last Saturday night, when the mayor was writing his timely message to the people, city money could be bought on the streets for fifty cents on the dollar: but on Monday morning public confidence was restored to such a degree by the mayor's proclamation that the discount was considerably lessened, and several merchants sent their names to Mayor Heath proposing to take city money at par. And as was officially announced, the finance committee have matured a plan which will retire about two millions of the city notes, and which will have the effect of ultimately securing to our city the circulation of the national currency, which will be an admirable substitute.

Sixth Street Church.

Sixth Street church has been placed under the pastoral care of Rev. Henry Green. Some nine months ago the church was purchased for the sum of $5000, payable in five equal installments. The first payment was made with the $1000 from our missionary society, leaving a debt of $4000. The society is small and weak; and the second payment is due in July, and of the $1000 then due, they have but $300 coming for rent of the church for school purposes. The pastoral change is made with the hope of saving the church, and is another illustration that colored churches must have colored pastors to insure success. We hope Father Green will succeed. His task is a difficult one, and will require much patient labor. And we trust that his church will be a warning to our presiding elders and preachers, not to burden our new societies with such heavy debts. In behalf of this little society, we therefore bespeak the sympathy and aid of all our people.

In order to lay before our readers at as early a day as possible the constitution of the state of Louisiana, adopted by the constitutional convention, our columns are thereby necessarily very crowded. Other editorials will be found on our first page.

OFFICIAL.

CONSTITUTION

—OF THE—

STATE OF LOUISIANA.

Adopted in Convention at New Orleans, Saturday, March 7, 1868.

PREAMBLE.

We, the people of Louisiana, in order to establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

CONSTITUTION.

TITLE I.—BILL OF RIGHTS.

Article 1. All men are created free and equal, and have certain inalienable rights; among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. To secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

Art. 2. All persons, without regard to race, color, or previous condition, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and residents of this state for one year, are citizens of this state. The citizens of this state owe allegiance to the United States; and this allegiance is paramount to that which they owe to the state. They shall enjoy the same civil, political, and public rights and privileges, and be subject to the same pains and penalties.

Art. 3. There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in this state, otherwise than for the punishment of crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

Art. 4. The press shall be free; every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of this liberty.

Art. 5. The right of the people peaceably to assemble and petition the government, or any department thereof, shall never be abridged.

Art. 6. Prosecutions shall be by indictment or information. The accused shall be entitled to a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the parish in which the offense was committed, unless the venue be changed. He shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself; he shall have the right of being heard by himself or counsel; he shall have the right of meeting the witnesses face to face, and shall have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor. He shall not be tried twice for the same offense.

Art. 7. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient securities, unless for capital offenses, where the proof is evident, or the presumption great, or unless after conviction, for any crime or offense punishable with death or imprisonment at hard labor. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended.

Art. 8. Excessive bail shall not be required; excessive fines shall not be imposed; nor cruel or unusual punishments inflicted.

Art. 9. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, or the person or things to be seized.

Art. 10. All courts shall be open; and every person for injury done him in his land, goods, person, or reputation shall have adequate remedy by due process of law, and justice administered without denial or unreasonable delay.

Art. 11. No law shall be passed fixing the price of manual labor.

Art. 12. Every person has the natural right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience. No religious test shall be required as a qualification for office.

Art. 13. All persons shall enjoy equal rights and privileges upon any conveyance of a public character; and all places of business, or of public resort, or for which a license is required by either state, parish, or municipal authority, shall be deemed places of a public character, and shall be opened to the accommodation and patronage of all persons, without distinction or discrimination on account of race or color.

Art. 14. The rights enumerated in this title shall not be construed to limit or abridge other rights of the people not herein expressed.

TITLE II.—LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Art. 15. The legislative power of the state shall be vested in two distinct branches; the one to be styled the house of representatives, the other the senate, and both the general assembly of the state of Louisiana.

Art. 16. The members of the house of representatives shall continue in office for two years from the day of the closing of the general elections.

Art. 17. Representatives shall be chosen on the first Monday in November every two years, and the election shall be completed in one day. The general assembly shall meet annually on the first Monday in January, unless a different day be appointed by law, and their sessions shall be held at the seat of government.

Art. 18. Every elector under this constitution shall be eligible to a seat in the house of representatives; and every elector who has reached the age of twenty-five years, shall be eligible to the senate; Provided, that no person shall be a representative or senator unless at the time of his election he be a qualified elector of the representative or senatorial district from which he is elected.

Art. 19. Elections for members of the general assembly shall be held at the several election precincts established by law.

Art. 20. Representation in the house of representatives shall be equal and uniform; and after the first general assembly elected under this constitution shall be ascertained and regulated by the total population, each parish in the state being entitled to at least one representative. A census of the state by state authority shall be taken in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and every ten years thereafter. In case of informality, omission, or error in the census returns from any parish or election district, the general assembly may order a new census taken in such parish or election district; but until the state census of eighteen hundred and seventy-five, the apportionment of the state shall be made on the basis of the census of the United States for the year eighteen hundred and seventy.

Art. 21. The general assembly, at the first session after the making of each enumeration, shall apportion the representation amongst the several parishes and representative districts, on the basis of the total population, as aforesaid. A representative number shall be fixed, and each parish and representative district shall have as many representatives as the number of its total population will entitle it to have; and an additional representative for any fraction exceeding one-half of the representative number. The number of representatives shall never exceed one hundred and twenty, nor be less than ninety.

Art. 22. Until an apportionment shall be made in accordance with the provisions of article 20, the representation in the senate and house of representatives shall be as follows:

For the parish of Orleans:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| First representative district | | | Two |
| Second | " | " | Three |
| Third | " | " | Four |
| Fourth | " | " | Two |
| Fifth | " | " | Two |
| Sixth | " | " | One |
| Seventh | " | " | Two |
| Eighth | " | " | One |
| Ninth | " | " | Two |
| Tenth | " | " | Three |
| Orleans, right bank | | | One |
| Ascension | | | Two |
| Assumption | | | Two |
| Avoyelles | | | Two |
| Baton Rogue, East | | | Three |
| Baton Rogue, West | | | One |
| Bienville | | | One |
| Bossier | | | Two |
| Caddo | | | Three |
| Calcasieu | | | One |
| Caldwell | | | One |
| Carroll | | | Two |
| Catahoula | | | One |
| Claiborne | | | Two |
| Concordia | | | Two |
| De Soto | | | Two |
| Feliciana, East | | | Two |
| Feliciana, West | | | One |
| Franklin | | | One |
| Iberville | | | Two |
| Jackson | | | One |
| Jefferson | | | Four |
| Lafayette | | | One |
| Lafourche | | | Two |
| Livingston | | | One |
| Madison | | | One |
| Morehouse | | | One |
| Natchitoches | | | Two |
| Ouachita | | | Two |
| Plaquemines | | | One |
| Pointe Coupee | | | Two |
| Rapides | | | Three |
| Sabine | | | One |
| St. Bernard | | | One |
| St. Charles | | | One |
| St. Helena | | | One |
| St. James | | | Two |
| St. John Baptist | | | One |
| St. Landry | | | Four |
| St. Martin | | | Two |
| St. Mary | | | Two |
| St. Tammany | | | One |
| Tensas | | | Two |
| Terrebonne | | | Two |
| Union | | | One |
| Vermillion | | | One |
| Washington | | | One |
| Winn | | | One |
| Total | | | One hundred and one |

And the state shall be divided into the following senatorial districts, to wit:

The first, second, and third representative districts of New Orleans shall form one senatorial district, and elect three senators.

The fourth, fifth, and sixth representative districts of New Orleans shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The seventh, eighth, and ninth representative districts of New Orleans and the parish of St. Bernard shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The tenth representative district of New Orleans shall form one district, and elect one senator.

Orleans right bank and the parish of Plaquemines shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Jefferson, St. Charles, and St. John Baptist shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Ascension and St. James shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Assumption, Lafourche, and Terrebonne shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Vermillion and St. Mary shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Calcasieu, Lafayette, and St. Landry shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Livingston, St. Helena, Washington, and St. Tammany shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Pointe Coupee, East Feliciana, and West Feliciana shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parish of East Baton Rouge shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of West Baton Rouge, Iberville, and St. Martin shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Concordia and Avoyelles shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Tensas and Franklin shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Carroll, Madison, and Morehouse shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Ouachita and Caldwell shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Jackson and Union shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Bossier, Bienville, and Claiborne shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parish of Caddo shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of De Soto, Natchitoches, and Sabine shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parish of Rapides shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Catahoula and Winn shall form one district, and elect one senator.

Thirty-six senators in all.

Art. 23. The house of representatives shall choose its speaker and other officers.

Art. 24. Electors in all cases except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during their attendance on, going to, and returning from elections.

Art. 25. At its first session under this constitution, the general assembly shall provide by law that the names and residence of all qualified electors shall be registered, in order to entitle them to vote; but the registry shall be free of cost to the elector.

Art. 26. No person shall be entitled to vote at any election held in this state, except in the parish of his residence, and at the election precinct in which he is registered; Provided, That no voter in removing from one parish to another shall lose the right to vote in the former until he has acquired it in the latter.

Art. 27. The members of the senate shall be elected for the term of four years; and when assembled, the senate shall have power to choose its own officers, except as hereinafter provided.

Art. 28. The general assembly shall divide the state into senatorial districts whenever it apportions representation in the house of representatives.

Art. 29. No parish shall be divided in the formation of a senatorial district, the parish of Orleans excepted; and whenever a new parish shall be created it shall be attached to the senatorial district from which most of its territory is taken, or to another contiguous district, at the discretion of the general assembly, but shall not be attached to more than one district. The number of senators shall be thirty-six, and they shall be apportioned among the senatorial districts according to the total population of said districts.

Art. 30. In all apportionments of the senate the total population of the state shall be divided by the number thirty-six, and the result produced by this division shall be the senatorial ratio entitling a senatorial district to a senator.

Single or contiguous parishes shall be formed into districts having a population the nearest possible to the number entitling a district to a senator; and if the apportionment to make a parish or district fall short of, or exceed the ratio, then a district may be formed having not more than two senators; but not otherwise. No new apportionment shall have the effect of abridging the term of service of any senator already elected at the time of making the apportionment. After an enumeration has been made, as directed in the twentieth article, the general assembly shall not pass any law, till an apportionment of representation in both houses of the general assembly shall be made.

Art. 31. At the first session of the general assembly after this constitution goes into effect, the senators shall be divided equally by lot into two classes; the seats of the senators of the first class to be vacated at the expiration of the term of the first house of representatives; those of the second class at the expiration of the term of the second house of representatives; so that one-half shall be chosen every two years successively. When a district shall have elected two senators, their respective terms of office shall be determined by lot between themselves.

Art. 32. The first election for senators shall be held at the same time with the election for representatives; and thereafter there shall be elections of senators at the same time with each general election of representatives, to fill the places of those senators whose term of office may have expired.

Art. 33. Not less than a majority of the members of each house of the general assembly shall form a quorum to transact business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and shall have full power to compel the attendance of absent members.

Art. 34. Each house of the general assembly shall judge of the qualification election, and returns of its members, but a contested election shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

Art. 35. Each house of the general assembly may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish a member for disorderly conduct, and with a concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member, but not a second time for the same offense.

Art. 36. Each house of the general assembly shall keep and publish weekly a journal of its proceedings; and the yeas and nays of the members on any question at the desire of any two of them, shall be entered on the journal.

Art. 37. Each house may punish by imprisonment any person not a member for disrespect or disorderly behavior in its presence, or for obstructing any of its proceedings; such imprisonment shall not exceed ten days for any one offense.

Art. 38. Neither house shall adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which it may be sitting during the sessions of the general assembly without the consent of the other.

Art. 39. The members of the general assembly shall receive from the public treasury a compensation for their services, which shall be eight dollars per day during their attendance, going to, and returning from the sessions of their respective houses. This compensation may be increased or diminished by law, but no alteration shall take effect during the period of service of the members of the house of representatives by which such alteration shall have been made. No session shall extend beyond the period of sixty days, to date from its commencement; and any legislative action had after the expiration of said period of sixty days shall be null and void; but the first general assembly that shall convene after the adoption of this constitution may continue in session for one hundred and twenty days.

Art. 40. The members of the general assembly, in all cases except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and going to or returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house shall not be questioned in any other place.

ART. 41. No senator or representative during the term for which he was elected, nor for one year thereafter, shall be appointed to any civil office of profit under this state which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which may have been increased during the time such senator or representative was in office.

ART. 42. No bill shall have the force of a law until on three several days it be read in each house of the general assembly, and free discussion allowed thereon, unless four-fifths of the house where the bill is pending may deem it expedient to dispense with this rule.

ART. 43. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose amendments as in other bills; Provided, it shall not introduce any matter under the color of an amendment which does not relate to raising revenue.

ART. 44. The general assembly shall regulate by whom and in what manner writs of election shall be issued to fill the vacancies which may occur in either branch thereof.

ART. 45. On the confirmation or rejection of the officers to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays; and the names of the senators voting for and against the appointments respectively shall be entered on the journals to be kept for the purpose, and made public on or before the end of each session.

ART. 46. Returns of all elections for members of the general assembly shall be made to the secretary of state.

ART. 47. In the year in which a regular election for a senator of the United States is to take place the members of the general assembly shall meet in the hall of the house of representatives on the second Monday following the meeting of the general assembly, and proceed to said election.

TITLE III.—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

ART. 48. The supreme executive power of the state shall be vested in a chief magistrate, who shall be styled the governor of the state of Louisiana. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and together with the lieutenant governor, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows: The qualified electors for representatives shall vote for governor and lieutenant governor at the time and place of voting for representatives; the returns of every election shall be sealed up and transmitted by the proper returning officer to the secretary of state, who shall deliver them to the speaker of the house of representatives on the second day of the session of the general assembly then to be holden. The members of the general assembly shall meet in the house of representatives to examine and count the votes. The person having the greatest number of votes for governor shall be declared duly elected; but in case of a tie vote between two or more candidates, one of them shall immediately be chosen governor by joint vote of the members of the general assembly. The person having the greatest number of votes polled for lieutenant governor shall be lieutenant governor; but in case of a tie vote between two or more candidates, one of them shall be immediately chosen lieutenant governor by joint vote of the members of the general assembly.

ART. 49. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant governor who is not a citizen of the United States, and a resident of this state two years next preceding his election.

ART. 50. The governor shall be ineligible for the succeeding four years after the expiration of the time for which he shall have been elected.

ART. 51. The governor shall enter on the discharge of his duties on the second Monday in January next ensuing his election, and shall continue in office until the Monday next succeeding the day that his successor shall be declared duly elected, and shall have taken the oath or affirmation required by the constitution.

ART. 52. No member of congress or any person holding office under the United States government shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant governor.

ART. 53. In case of impeachment of the governor, his removal from office, death, refusal or inability to qualify, or to discharge the powers and duties of his office, resignation or absence from the state, the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor for the residue of the term, or until the governor, absent or impeached, shall return or be acquitted, or the disability be removed. The general assembly may provide by law for the case of removal, impeachment, death, resignation, disability, or refusal to qualify, of both the governor and the lieutenant governor, declaring what officer shall act as governor; and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed, or for the remainder of the term.

ART. 54. The lieutenant governor or officer discharging the duties of governor, shall, during his administration, receive the same compensation to which the governor would have been entitled had he continued in office.

ART. 55. The lieutenant governor shall by virtue of his office be president of the senate, but shall only vote when the senate is equally divided. Whenever he shall administer the government, or shall be unable to attend as president of the senate, the senators shall elect one of their own members as president of the senate for the time being.

ART. 56. The governor shall receive a salary of eight thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant.

ART. 57. The lieutenant governor shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly upon his own warrant.

ART. 58. The governor shall have power to grant reprieves for all offenses against the state, and, except in cases of impeachment, shall, with the consent of the senate, have power to grant pardons, remit fines and forfeitures after conviction. In cases of treason he may grant reprieves until the end of the next session of the general assembly, in which the power of pardoning shall be vested. In cases when the punishment is not imprisonment at hard labor, the party upon being reprieved by the governor shall be released if in actual custody until final action by the senate.

ART. 59. He shall be commander-in-chief of the militia of this state, except when they shall be called into the service of the United States.

ART. 60. He shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the senate appoint all officers whose offices are established by the constitution, and whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for; Provided, however, That the general assembly shall have a right to prescribe the mode of appointment to all other offices established by law.

ART. 61. The governor shall have power to fill vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of the next session thereof, unless otherwise provided for in this constitution; but no person who has been nominated for office and rejected by the senate shall be appointed to the same office during the recess of the senate.

ART. 62. He may require information in writing from the officers in the executive department, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

ART. 63. He shall, from time to time, give the general assembly information respecting the situation of the state, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he may deem expedient.

ART. 64. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the general assembly at the seat of government, or at a different place if that should have become dangerous from an enemy or from epidemic; and in case of disagreement between the two houses as to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he may think proper, not exceeding four months.

ART. 65. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

ART. 66. Every bill which shall have passed both houses shall be presented to the governor; if he approve he shall sign it; if he do not he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it originated, which shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of all the members present in that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of the members present in that house it shall be a law. But in such cases the vote of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of members voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within five days after it shall have been presented to him, it shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly, by adjournment, prevent its return, in which case the said bill shall be returned on the first day of the meeting of the general assembly after the expiration of said five days, or be a law.

ART. 67. Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of both houses may be necessary, except on a question of adjournment, shall be presented to the governor, and before it shall take effect be approved by him, or, being disapproved, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the members present.

ART. 68. There shall be a secretary of state, who shall hold his office during the term for which the governor shall have been elected. The records of the state shall be kept and preserved in the office of the secretary; he shall keep a fair register of the official acts and proceedings of the governor, and when necessary shall attest them; he shall, when required, lay the said register and all papers, minutes, and vouchers relative to his office before either house of the general assembly, and shall perform such other duties as may be enjoined on him by law.

ART. 69. There shall be a treasurer of the state, and an auditor of public accounts, who shall hold their respective offices during the term of four years. At the first election under this constitution, the treasurer shall be elected for two years.

ART. 70. The secretary of state, treasurer, and auditor of public accounts shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state, and in case of any vacancy caused by the resignation, death, or absence of the secretary, treasurer, or auditor, the governor shall order an election to fill said vacancies; Provided, The unexpired term to be filled be more than twelve months; when otherwise, the governor shall appoint a person to perform the duties of the office thus vacant until the ensuing general election.

ART. 71. The treasurer and the auditor shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum each. The secretary of state shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum.

ART. 72. All commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the state of Louisiana; and shall be sealed with the state seal, signed by the governor, and countersigned by the secretary of state.

TITLE IV.—JUDICIARY DEPARTMENT.

ART. 73. The judicial power shall be vested in a supreme court, in district courts, in parish courts, and in justices of the peace.

ART. 74. The supreme court, except in cases hereinafter provided, shall have appellate jurisdiction only; which jurisdiction shall extend to all cases when the matter in dispute shall exceed five hundred dollars; and to all cases in which the constitutionality or legality of any tax, toll, or impost of any kind or nature whatsoever, or any fine, forfeiture, or penalty imposed by a municipal corporation shall be in contestation, whatever may be the amount thereof; and in such cases the appeal shall be direct from the court in which the case originated to the supreme court; and in criminal cases, on questions of law only, whenever the punishment of death, or imprisonment at hard labor, or a fine exceeding three hundred dollars is actually imposed.

ART. 75. The supreme court shall be composed of one chief justice and four associate justices, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum. The chief justice shall receive a salary of seven thousand five hundred dollars, and each of the associate justices a salary of seven thousand dollars annually, payable quarterly on their own warrants. The chief justice and the associate justices shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, for the term of eight years. They shall be citizens of the United States, and shall have practiced law for five years, the last three thereof next preceding their appointment in the state. The court shall appoint its own clerks, and may remove them at pleasure.

ART. 76. The supreme court shall hold its sessions in the city of New Orleans from the first Monday in the month of November to the end of the month of May. The general assembly shall have power to fix the sessions elsewhere during the rest of the year; until otherwise provided, the sessions shall be held as heretofore.

ART. 77. The supreme court, and each of the judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus at the instance of persons in actual custody in cases when they may have appellate jurisdiction.

ART. 78. No judgment shall be rendered by the supreme court without a concurrence of a majority composing the court. Whenever the majority can not concur in consequence of the recusation of any member of the court, the judges not recused shall have power to call upon any judge or judges of the district courts, whose duty it shall be when so called upon to preside in the place of the judge or judges recused, and to aid in determining the case.

ART. 79. All judges, by virtue of their office, shall be conservators of the peace throughout the state. The style of all process shall be "The state of Louisiana." All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the state of Louisiana, and conclude "against the peace and dignity of the same."

ART. 80. The judges of all courts when ever practicable shall refer to the law in virtue of which every definitive judgment is rendered; but in all cases they shall adduce the reasons on which their judgment is founded.

ART. 81. The judges of all courts shall be liable to impeachment for crimes and misdemeanors. For any reasonable cause the governor shall remove any of them, on the address of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the general assembly. In every such case the cause or causes for which such removal may be required shall be stated at length in the address, and inserted in the journal of each house.

ART. 82. No duties or functions shall ever be attached by law to the supreme or district courts, or the several judges thereof, but such as are judicial; and the said judges are prohibited from receiving any fees of office, or other compensation than their salaries, for any official duties performed by them.

ART. 83. The general assembly shall divide the state into judicial districts, which shall remain unchanged for four years, and for each district court one judge, learned in the law, shall be elected for each district, by a plurality of the qualified electors thereof. For each district there shall be one district court, except in the parish of Orleans, in which the general assembly may establish as many district courts as the public interests may require. Until otherwise provided there shall be seven district courts for the parish of Orleans, with the following original jurisdiction: The first, exclusive criminal jurisdiction; the second, exclusive probate jurisdiction; the third, exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from justices of the peace; the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh district courts, exclusive jurisdiction in all civil cases, except probate, when the sum in contest is above one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. These seven courts shall have such further jurisdiction, not inconsistent herewith, as shall be conferred by law.

The number of districts in the state shall not be less than twelve nor more than twenty. The clerks of the district courts shall be elected by the qualified electors of their respective parishes, and shall hold their office for four years.

ART. 84. Each of said judges shall receive a salary to be fixed by law, which shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office, and shall never be less than five thousand dollars. He must be a citizen of the United States, over the age of twenty-five years, and have resided in the state and practiced law therein for the space of two years next preceding his election. The judges of the district courts shall hold their office for the term of four years.

ART. 85. The district courts shall have original jurisdiction in all civil cases when the amount in dispute exceeds five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. In criminal cases their jurisdiction shall be unlimited. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil ordinary suits, when the amount in dispute exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest.

ART. 86. For each parish court, one judge shall be elected by the qualified electors of the parish. He shall hold his office for the term of two years. He shall receive a salary and fees, to be provided by law. Until otherwise provided, each parish judge shall receive a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum, and such fees as are established by law for clerks of district courts. He shall be a citizen of the United States and of this state.

ART. 87. The parish courts shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the justices of the peace in all cases when the amount in controversy is more than twenty-five dollars, and less than one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. They shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in ordinary suits, in all cases when the amount in dispute exceeds one hundred dollars and does not exceed five hundred dollars, subject to an appeal to the district court in all cases when the amount in contestation exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. All successions shall be opened and settled in the parish courts; and all suits in which a succession is either plaintiff or defendant may be brought either in the parish or district court, according to the amount involved. In criminal matters the parish courts shall have jurisdiction in all cases when the penalty is not necessarily imprisonment at hard labor or death, and when the accused shall waive trial by jury. They shall also have the power of committing magistrates and such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on them by law. There shall be no trial by jury before the parish courts.

ART. 88. In all probate matters, when the amount in dispute shall exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, the appeal shall be directly from the parish to the supreme court.

ART. 89. The justices of the peace shall be elected by the electors of each parish, in the manner to be provided by the general assembly. They shall hold office for the term of two years, and their compensation shall be fixed by law. Their jurisdiction in civil cases shall not exceed one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, subject to an appeal to the parish courts in all cases when the amount in dispute shall exceed ten dollars, exclusive of interest. They shall have such criminal jurisdiction as shall be provided for by law.

ART. 90. In any case when the judge may be recused, and when he is not personally interested in the matters in contestation, he shall select a lawyer having the qualifications required for a judge of his court to try such cases. And when the judge is personally interested in the suit, he shall call upon the parish or district judge, as the case may be, to try the case.

ART. 91. The general assembly shall have power to vest in the parish judges the right to grant such orders and to do such acts as may be deemed necessary for the furtherance of the administration of justice; and in all cases the power thus granted shall be specified and determined.

ART. 92. There shall be an attorney general for the state, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state at large. He shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant, and shall hold his office for four years. There shall be a district attorney for each judicial district of the state, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the judicial district. He shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars, payable quarterly on his own warrant, and shall hold his office for four years.

ART. 93. There shall be a sheriff and coroner elected by the qualified electors of each parish, except the parish of Orleans. In the parish of Orleans there shall be elected by the qualified electors of the parish at large one sheriff for the criminal court, who shall be the executive officer of said court, and shall have charge of the parish prison. There shall also be elected by the qualified electors of the parish at large one sheriff, who shall be the executive officer of the civil courts, and who shall perform all other duties heretofore devolving upon the sheriff of the parish of Orleans, except those herein delegated to the sheriff of the criminal court. The qualified electors of the city of New Orleans, residing below the middle of Canal street, shall elect one coroner for that district, and the qualified electors of the city of New Orleans, residing above the middle of Canal street, together with those residing in that part of the parish known as Orleans right bank, shall elect one coroner for that district. All of said officers shall hold their office for two years; and receive such fees of office as may be prescribed by law.

ART. 94. No judicial powers, except as committing magistrates, in criminal cases shall be conferred on any officers other than those mentioned in this title; except such as may be necessary in towns and cities; and the judicial powers of such officer shall not extend further than the cognizance of cases arising under the police regulations of towns and cities in the state. In any case where such officers shall assume jurisdiction over other matters than those which may arise under police regulations, or under their jurisdiction, as committing magistrates, they shall be liable to an action of damages in favor of the party injured, or his heirs; and a verdict in favor of the party injured shall, ipso facto, operate a vacation of the office of said officer.

TITLE V.—IMPEACHMENT.

ART. 95. The power of impeachment shall be vested in the house of representatives.

ART. 96. Impeachments of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, auditor of public accounts, state treasurer, superintendent of public education, and of the judges of the inferior courts, justices of the peace excepted, shall be tried by the senate; the chief justice of the supreme court, or the senior associate judge thereof, shall preside during the trial of such impeachments. Impeachments of the judges of the supreme court shall be tried by the senate. When sitting as a court of impeachment the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators present.

ART. 97. Judgments in cases of impeachment shall extend only to removal from office, and disqualification from holding any office of honor, trust, or profit in the state; but the convicted parties shall nevertheless be subject to indictment, trial, and punishment according to law.

TITLE VI.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

ART. 98. Every male person of the age of twenty-one years or upward, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and a resident of this state one year next preceding an election, and the last ten days within the parish in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed an elector, except those disfranchised by this constitution, and persons under interdiction.

ART. 99. The following persons shall be prohibited from voting and holding any office: All persons who shall have been convicted of treason, perjury, forgery, bribery, or other crime punishable in the penitentiary, and persons under interdiction.

All persons who are estopped from claiming the right of suffrage by abjuring their allegiance to the United States government, or by notoriously levying war against it, or adhering to its enemies, giving them aid or comfort, but who have not expatriated themselves, nor have been convicted of any of the crimes mentioned in the first paragraph of this article, are hereby restored to the said right, except the following: Those who held office, civil or military, for one year or more under the organization styled "The Confederate States of America;" those who registered themselves as enemies of the United States; those who acted as leaders of guerrilla bands during the late rebellion; those who in the advocacy of treason wrote or published newspaper articles or preached sermons during the late rebellion, and those who voted for and signed an ordinance of secession in any state. No person included in these exceptions shall either vote or hold office until he shall have relieved himself by voluntarily writing and signing a certificate setting forth that he acknowledges the late rebellion to have been morally and politically wrong, and that he regrets any aid and comfort he may have given it; and he shall file the certificate in the office of the secretary of state, and it shall be published in the official journal;

Provided, That no person who prior to the first of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, favored the execution of the laws of the United States popularly known as the reconstruction acts of congress, and openly and actively assisted the loyal men of the state in their efforts to restore Louisiana to her position in the Union, shall be held to be included among those herein excepted. Registrars of voters shall take the oath of any such person as prima facie evidence of the fact that he is entitled to the benefit of this proviso.

ART. 100. Members of the general assembly and all other officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I, (A. B.,) do solemnly swear (or affirm,) that I accept the civil and political equality of all men, and agree not to attempt to deprive any person or persons on account of race, color, or previous condition, of any political or civil right, privilege, or immunity enjoyed by any other class of men. That I will support the constitution and laws of the United States and the constitution and laws of this state, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as —— according to the best of my ability and understanding. So help me God."

ART. 101. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies—giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason except on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on his confession in open court.

ART. 102. All penalties shall be proportioned to the nature of the offense.

ART. 103. The privilege of free suffrage shall be supported by laws regulating elections, and prohibiting under adequate penalties all undue influence thereon from power, bribery, tumult, or other improper practice.

ART. 104. No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in pursuance of specific appropriations made by law. A statement and account of receipts and expenditures of all public moneys shall be made annually, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law; and the first general assembly convening under this constitution shall make a special appropriation to liquidate whatever portion of the debt of this convention may at that time remain unpaid or unprovided for.

ART. 105. All civil officers of the state at large shall be voters of and reside within the state; and all district or parish officers shall reside within their respective districts or parishes, and shall keep their offices at such place therein as may be required by law.

ART. 106. All civil officers shall be removable by an address of two-thirds of the members elect to each house of the general assembly, except those whose removal is otherwise provided for by this constitution.

ART. 107. In all elections by the people the vote shall be taken by ballot; and in all elections by the senate and house of representatives, jointly or separately, the vote shall be given viva voce.

ART. 108. None but citizens of the United States and of this state shall be appointed to any office of trust or profit in this state.

ART. 109. The laws, public records, and the judicial and legislative proceedings of the state shall be promulgated, and preserved in the English language; and no law shall require judicial process to be issued in any other than the English language.

ART. 110. No ex post facto or retroactive law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall be passed; nor vested rights be divested, unless for purposes of public utility, and for adequate compensation made.

ART. 111. Whenever the general assembly shall contract a debt exceeding in amount the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, unless in case of war, to repel invasion, or suppress insurrection, it shall, in the law creating the debt, provide adequate ways and means for the payment of the current interest, and of the principal when the same shall become due; and the said law shall be irrepealable until principal and interest be fully paid; or unless the repealing law contain some adequate provision for the payment of the principal and interest of the debt.

ART. 112. The general assembly shall provide by law for all change of venue in civil and criminal cases.

ART. 113. The general assembly may enact general laws regulating the adoption of children, emancipation of minors, and the granting of divorces; but no special law shall be passed relating to particular or individual cases.

ART. 114. Every law shall express its object or objects in its title.

ART. 115. No law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title; but in such case the revived or amended section shall be re-enacted and published at length.

ART. 116. The general assembly shall never adopt any system or code of laws by general reference to such system or code of laws; but in all cases shall specify the several provisions of the law it may enact.

ART. 117. No person shall hold or exercise at the same time more than one office of trust or profit except that of justice of the peace or notary public.

ART. 118. Taxation shall be equal and uniform throughout the state; all property shall be taxed in proportion to its value, to be ascertained as directed by law; the general assembly shall have power to exempt from taxation property actually used for church, school, or charitable purposes. The general assembly may levy an income tax upon all persons pursuing any occupation, trade, or calling. And all such persons shall obtain a license as provided by law. All tax on income shall be pro rata on the amount of income, or business done. And all deeds of sale made or that may be made by collectors of taxes, shall be received by courts in evidence as prima facie valid sales. The general assembly shall levy a poll tax on all male inhabitants of this state over twenty-one years old, for school and charitable purposes, which tax shall never exceed one dollar and fifty cents per annum.

ART. 119. No liability, either state, parochial, or municipal, shall exist for any debts contracted for or in the interest of the rebellion against the United States government.

ART. 120. The general assembly may determine the mode of filling vacancies in all offices for which provision is not made in this constitution.

ART. 121. The general assembly shall pass no law requiring a property qualification for office.

ART. 122. All officers shall continue to discharge the duties of their offices until their successors shall have been inducted into office; except in cases of impeachment or suspension.

ART. 123. The general assembly shall provide for the protection of the rights of married women to their dotal and paraphernal property, and for the registration of the same; but no mortgage or privilege shall hereafter affect third parties unless recorded in the parish where the property to be affected is situated. The tacit mortgages and privileges now existing in this state shall cease to have effect against third persons after the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy, unless duly recorded. The general assembly shall provide by law for the registration of all mortgages and privileges.

ART. 124. The general assembly, at its first session under this constitution, shall provide an annual pension for the veterans of eighteen hundred and fourteen and eighteen hundred and fifteen residing in the state.

ART. 125. The military shall be in subordination to the civil power.

ART. 126. It shall be the duty of the general assembly to make it obligatory upon each parish to support all paupers residing within its limits.

ART. 127. All agreements, the consideration of which was confederate money, notes, or bonds, are null and void; and shall not be enforced by the courts of this state.

ART. 128. Contracts for the sale of persons are null and void; and shall not be enforced by the courts of this state.

ART. 129. The state of Louisiana shall never assume nor pay any debt or obligation contracted or incurred aid of the rebellion; nor shall this state ever in any manner claim from the United States or make any allowance or compensation for slaves emancipated or liberated in any way whatever.

ART. 130. All contracts made and entered into under the pretended authority of any governments heretofore existing in this state, by which children were bound out without the knowledge or consent of their parents, are hereby declared null and void; nor shall any child be bound out to any one for any term of years, while either one of its parents live, without the consent of such parent, except in cases of children legally sent to the house of correction.

ART. 131. The seat of government shall be established at the city of New Orleans, and shall not be removed without the consent of two-thirds of the members of both houses of the general assembly.

ART. 132. All lands sold in pursuance of decrees of courts shall be divided into tracts of from ten to fifty acres.

ART. 133. No judicial powers shall be exercised by clerks of courts.

ART. 134. No soldier, sailer, or marine in the military or naval service of the United States shall hereafter acquire a residence in this state by reason of being stationed or doing duty in the same.

TITLE VII.—PUBLIC EDUCATION.

ART. 135. The general assembly shall establish at least one free public school in every parish throughout the state, and shall provide for its support by taxation or otherwise. All children of this state between the ages of six (6) and twenty-one (21) shall be admitted to the public schools or other institutions of learning] sustained or established by the state, in common, without distinction of race, color, or previous condition. There shall be no separate schools or institutions of learning established exclusively for any race by the state of Louisiana.

ART. 136. No municipal corporation shall make any rules or regulations contrary to the spirit and intention of article one hundred and thirty-five (135.)

ART. 137. There shall be elected by the qualified voters of this state a superintendent of public education, who shall hold his office for four years. His duties shall be prescribed by law, and he shall have the supervision and the general control of all public schools throughout this state. He shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant.

ART. 138. The general exercises in the public schools shall be conducted in the English language.

ART. 139. The proceeds of all lands heretofore granted by the United States for the use and support of public schools, and of all lands or other property which may hereafter be bequeathed for that purpose, and of all lands which may be granted or bequeathed to the state, and not granted or bequeathed expressly for any other purpose which may hereafter be disposed of by the state, and the proceeds of all estates of deceased persons to which the state may be entitled by law, shall be held by the state as a loan, and shall be and remain a perpetual fund on which the state shall pay an annual interest of six per cent, which interest, with the interest of the trust fund deposited with this state by the United States, under the act of congress approved June the twenty-third, eighteen hundred and thirty-six, and the rent of the unsold lands, shall be appropriated to the support of such schools, and this appropriation shall remain inviolable.

ART. 140. No appropriation shall be made by the general assembly for the support of any private school, or any private institution of learning whatever.

ART. 141. One half of the funds derived from the poll tax herein provided for shall be appropriated exclusively to the support of the free public schools throughout the state, and the university of New Orleans.

ART. 142. A university shall be established and maintained in the city of New Orleans. It shall be composed of a law, a medical, and a collegiate department, each with appropriate faculties. The general assembly shall provide by law for its organization and maintenance; Provided, That all departments of this institution of learning shall be opened in common to all students capable of matriculating. No rules or regulations shall be made by the trustees, faculties, or other officers of said institution of learning, nor shall any laws be made by the general assembly violating the letter or spirit of the articles under this title.

ART. 143. Institutions for the support of the insane, the education and support of the blind and the deaf and dumb, shall always be fostered by the state, and be subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the general assembly.

TITLE VIII.—MILITIA.

ART. 144. It shall be the duty of the general assembly to organize the militia of the state; and all able-bodied male citizens between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, not disfranchised by the laws of the United States and of this state, shall be subject to military duty.

ART. 145. The governor shall appoint all commissioned officers, subject to confirmation or rejection by the senate, except the staff officers, who shall be appointed by their respective chiefs, and commissioned by the governor. All militia officers shall take and subscribe to the oath prescribed for officers of the United States army and the oath prescribed for officers in this state.

ART. 146. The governor shall have power to call the militia into active service for the preservation of law and order, or when the public safety may require it. The militia when in active service shall receive the same pay and allowances as officers and privates, as is received by officers and privates in the United States army.

TITLE IX.—MODE OF REVISING THE CONSTITUTION.

ART. 147. Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives, and if the same shall be agreed to by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their respective journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon; and the secretary of state shall cause the same to be published three months before the next general election for representatives to the general assembly, in at least one newspaper in every parish in the state in which a newspaper shall be published. And such proposed amendment or amendments shall be submitted to the people at said election; and if amajority of the voters at said election shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments, the same shall become a part of this constitution. If more than one amendment shall be submitted at one time, they shall be submitted in such manner and form that the people may vote for or against each amendment separately.

TITLE X.—SCHEDULE.

ART. 148. The ordinance of secession of the state of Louisiana, passed twenty-sixth of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, is hereby declared to be null and void. The constitution adopted in eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and all previous constitutions in the state of Louisiana, are declared to be superseded by this constitution.

ART. 149. All rights, actions, prosecutions, claims, contracts, and all laws in force at the time of the adoption of this constitution, and not inconsistent therewith, shall continue as if it had not been adopted; all judgments and judicial sales, marriages, and executed contracts made in good faith, and in accordance with the existing laws in this state, rendered, made, or entered into, between the twenty-sixth day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, and the date when this constitution shall be adopted are hereby declared to be valid, except the following laws:

"An act to authorize the widening of the new canal and basin," approved March fourteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

"An act to amend and re-enact the one hundred and twenty-first section of an act entitled, 'An act relative to crimes and offenses,'" approved December twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-five.

"An act for the punishment of persons for tampering with, persuading, or enticing away, harboring, feeding, or secreting laborers, servants, or apprentices," approved December twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-five.

"An act to punish, in certain cases, the employers of laborers and apprentices," approved December twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-five.

"An act in relation to exemption from state, parish, and city taxes for the years eighteen hundred and sixty-two, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and eighteen hundred and sixty-five, in certain cases." Certified sixteenth March, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

"An act granting ferry privileges to C. K. Marshall, his heirs, or assigns." Approved March tenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

"An act to authorize the board of levee commissioners of the levee district in the parishes of Madison and Carroll to issue bonds," etc., etc. Approved March twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

Section third of "An act to organize the police of New Orleans, and to create a police board therein." Approved twelfth February, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

ART. 150. The laws relative to the duties of officers shall remain in force, though contrary to this constitution, and the several duties be performed by the respective officers, until the organization of the government under this constitution.

ART. 151. The general assembly shall provide for the removal of causes now pending in the courts of this state to courts created by or under this constitution.

TITLE XI.—ORDINANCE.

ART. 152. Immediately upon the adjournment of this convention this constitution shall be submitted for ratification to the registered voters of the state, in conformity to the act of congress passed March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, entitled "An act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel states," and the acts supplementary thereto.

ART. 153. The election for the ratification of the constitution shall be held on Friday and Saturday, the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, at the places now prescribed by law; and the polls shall be kept open from 7 o'clock A. M. to 7 o'clock P. M. At that election all those in favor of ratifying the constitution shall have written or printed on their ballots "For the constitution," and those opposed to ratifying the constitution shall have written or printed on their ballots "Against the constitution."

ART. 154. In order to establish a civil government, as required by act of congress, passed March twenty-third, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, an election shall be held at the same time and place at which the constitution is submitted for ratification for all state, judicial, parish, and municipal officers, for members of the general assembly, and for congressional representatives, at which election the electors who are qualified under the reconstruction acts of congress shall vote, and none others; Provided, That any elector shall be eligible to any office under any municipal corporation in this state.

ART. 155. At the election for the ratification of the constitution, and for officers of the civil government as required by congress, all registered electors may vote in any parish where they have resided for ten days next preceding said election, and at any precinct in the parish, upon presentation of their certificates of registration, affidavit, or other satisfactory evidence that they are entitled to vote as registered electors.

ART. 156. The same registrars and commissioners who shall be appointed by the commanding general of the fifth military district to superintend the election for the ratification or rejection of the constitution shall also, at the same time and place, superintend the election for all officers and representatives herein ordered; provided they be authorized so to act by the commanding general. And in case the commanding general should not so authorize said registrars and commissioners, the committee of seven appointed by this convention to take charge of the whole matter of the ratificatinn of the constitution and the election of civil officers shall appoint one registrar for each parish in the state, except the parish of Orleans, and one in each district of the parish of Orleans, counting Orleans right bank as one district, who shall, each in his parish or district, appoint a sufficient number of commissioners of election to hold the said election for the said civil officers and representatives at the same time and place as herein provided for.

ART. 157. Returns shall be made in duplicate, sworn to by the commissioners holding the election, and forwarded within three days thereafter to the registrars of the parish or district. The registrars shall immediately forward one copy of said returns to the chairman of the committee of seven, appointed by this convention, who shall, within ten days after the last return has been received, make proclamation of the result of said election.

ART. 158. All civil officers thus elected shall enter upon the discharge of their duties on the second Monday after the return of their election shall have been officially promulgated, or as soon as qualified according to law, and shall continue in office for the terms of their respective offices herein prescribed, said terms to date from the first Monday in November following the election.

ART. 159. The general assembly, elected under this constitution, shall hold its first session in the city of New Orleans on the third Monday after the official promulgation aforesaid, and proceed immediately upon its organization to vote upon the adoption of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, proposed by congress, and passed June thirteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six; said general assembly shall not have power to enact any laws relative to the per diem of members, or any other subject, after organization, until said constitutional amendment shall have been acted upon.

ART. 160. All registrars and commissioners appointed under this constitution shall, before entering upon their duties, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by congress, approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An act to prescribe an oath of office;" the said oath of office shall be administered to each registrar by the chairman of the committee of seven and to each commissioner by the registrar appointing him.

ART. 161. All registrars, commissioners, and other officers necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this ordinance, except as otherwise provided for by the reconstruction acts of congress, shall be paid out of any funds raised by virtue of the tax ordinance adopted by the convention, December twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, not otherwise appropriated.

JAMES G. TALIAFERRO,
President;

C. C. ANTOINE,
L. W. BAKER,
S. BELDEN,
A. BERTONNEAU,
W. JASPER BLACKBURN,
O. C. BLANDIN,
HENRY BONSEIGNEUR,
EMILE BONNEFOI,
WILLIAM BROWN,
DENNIS BURREL,
WILLIAM BUTLER,
W. R. CRANE,
R. I. CROMWELL,
SAMUEL E. CUNEY,
A. J. DAMAREST,
CHARLES DEPASSEAU,
P. G. DESLONDE,
JOSEPH DESLONDE,
AUG. DONATO, JR.,
DAVID DOUGLAS,
GUSTAVE DUPART,
ULGER DUPART,
C. B. H. DUPLESSIS,
J. B. ESNARD,
LOUIS FRANCOIS,
HENRY W. FULLER,
JOHN GAIR,
R. G. GARDINER,
LEOPOLD GUICHARD,
PETER HARPER,
JOHN S. HARRIS,
O. H. HEMPSTEAD,
W. H. HIESTAND,
J. H. INGRAHAM,
R. H. ISABELLE,
THOMAS ISABELLE,
GEORGE H. JACKSON,
SIMON JONES,
GEORGE Y. KELSO,
JAMES H. LANDERS,
VICTOR M. LANGE,
CHARLES LEROY,
J. B. LEWIS,
RICHARD LEWIS,
JOHN LYNCH,
FREDERICK MARIE,
THOMAS M. MARTIN,
J. A. MASSICOT,
WILLIAM R. MEADOWS,
BENJAMIN McLERAN,
W. L. McMILLEN
MILTON MORRIS,
S. R. MOSES,
WILLIAM MURREL,
JAMES MUSHAWAY,
THEOPHILE MAHIER,
J. P. NEWSHAM,
JOSEPH C. OLIVER,
S. B. PACKARD,
JOHN PIERCE,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK,
ROBERT POINDEXTER,
CURTIS POLLARD,
GEORGE W. REAGAN,
DANIEL H. REESE,
FORTUNE RIARD,
D. D. RIGGS,
J. A. H. ROBERTS,
L. RODRIGUEZ,
N. SCHWAB,
CHARLES SMITH,
SOSTHENE SNAER,
HIRAM R. STEELE,
CHARLES H. THIBAUT,
E. D. TINCHANT,
M. H. TWITCHELL,
NAPOLEON UNDERWOOD,
P. F. VALFROIT,
JOHN B. VANDERGRIEFF,
MICHEL VIDAL,
RUFUS WAPLES,
G. M. WICKLIFFE,
HENDERSON WILLIAMS,
DAVID WILSON.

Attest:

WILLIAM VIGERS,
Secretary.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 11, 1868.

I certify that the foregoing is a correct copy of the constitution as taken from the official records of the convention.

HUGH J. CAMPBELL,
Minute Clerk.

MARRIED.

WILLIAMS—LONG—On Bayou Bœuf, Louisiana, February 22, 1868, by Rev. A. Hilton, ANTHONY WILLIAMS and CHARLOTTE LONG, both of Avoyelles parish.

DIED.

SCOTT—In New Orleans, February 29, 1868, VICTORINE SCOTT, aged twenty-eight years.

The deceased was a native of Rapides parish, but for several years has resided in New Orleans, and has been a faithful member of Marias street Methodist Episcopal church.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATES OF PILCHER & GOODRICH,

And Mason Pilcher and Ferdinand M. Goodrich. Individually.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 9, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-ninth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estates of PILCHER & GOODRICH, and Mason Pilcher and Ferdinand M. Goodrich, individually, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who were adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the first day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 541—mh10 ap1 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JOHN B. HOWARD.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana.
New Orleans, March 5 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOHN B. HOWARD, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-eighth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 529—mh6 ap28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF DAVID B. PUGH.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana.
New Orleans, March 5, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of DAVID B. PUGH, of the parish of Lafourche and State of Lousiiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition: that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the tenth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M. F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.

No. 527—mh6 ap10 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF ALFRED VOORHIES.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 5, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ALFRED VOORHIES, of St. Martinsville, parish of St. Martin and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition: that the payment of any debts, and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the fourth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 11 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 526—mh6 ap4 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF J. J. PERSON AND MOSES CLARK,

Individually, and as Members of the Firm of J. J. Person & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 10, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE seventh day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of J. J. PERSON and MOSES CLARK, individually, and as members of the firm of J. J. Person & Co., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the twentieth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 544—mh11 ap18 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF R. L. DESHA.

OFFICE OF UNITED STATES MARSHAL,
District of Louisiana,
Monroe, La., March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of R. L. DESHA, of ———, in the parish of Franklin and State of Louisiana, who has been adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the office of W. J. Q. Baker, in the town of Monroe, parish of Ouachita, before W. J. Q. Baker, Register, on the twentieth day of April, A. D., 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M. F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.

Per M. M. GRADY, Deputy, as Messenger.
No. 539—mh11 ap18

ESTATE OF CHARLES W. PHILLIPS.

OFFICE OF UNITED STATES MARSHAL,
District of Louisiana,
Monroe, La., March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A.D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CHARLES W. PHILLIPS, of ——, in the parish of Ouachita and State of Louisiana, who has been adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him, or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the office of W. J. Q. Baker, in the town of Monroe, parish of Ouachita, before W. J. Q. Baker, Register, on the twentieth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
Per M. M. GRADY, Deputy, as Messenger.
No. 540—mh11 ap18

ESTATE OF THOMAS J. C. BATCHELOR.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 6, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE sixth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of TOHMAS J. C. BATCHELOR, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the sixth day of April A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 536—mh7 ap4 District of Louisiana.

ESTATES OF HENRY F. GIVEN AND DICKSON A. GIVEN,

As Members of the Firm of Given, Brown & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana.
New Orleans, March 6, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of HENRY F GIVEN and DICKSON A. GIVEN, as members of the firm of Given, Brown & Co., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-fourth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 537—mh7 ap24 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF J. B. GRIBBLE,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Cutrer, Harrison & Co.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana.
New Orleans, March 11, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fifth day of March, A. D., 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of J. B. GRIBBLE, individually, and as a member of the firm of Cutrer, Harrison & Co., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the fourteenth day of May, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 547—mh12 my14 District of Louisiana.

SEAMLESS CLOTHING Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATE OF ARTHUR LEVY.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 6, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE sixth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ARTHUR LEVY, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the thirtieth day of May, A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 534—mh7 my30 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF MRS. FRANCES CULBERTSON.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 11, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE seventh day of March, A. D., 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of MRS. FRANCES CULBERTSON, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on her own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to her or for her use, and the transfer of any property by her, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of her estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 546—mh12 25 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF CHRISTOPHER J. CAFFREY,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Nolan & Caffrey.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CHRISTOPHER J. CAFFREY, individually, and as a member of the firm of Nolan & Caffrey, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition: that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to chose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the eighth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M. F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.

No. 520—mh5 ap8

ESTATE OF WILLIAM H. HERRICK,

Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Gordon & Herrick.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-eighth day of February, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of WILLIAM H. HERRICK, individually, and as a member of the firm of Gordon & Herrick, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the thirtieth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 513—mh5 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF ALEXANDRE LANDRY

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ALEXANDRE LANDRY, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the thirtieth day of March, A. D 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 517—mh5 28 District of Louisiana.

OFFICIAL NOTICES.

PROPOSALS FOR SAND AND PLASTER PARIS.

OFFICE CHIEF QUARTERMASTER,
Fifth Military District,
New Orleans, La., March 11, 1868.

SEALED PROPOSALS IN TRIPLICATE ARE invited and will be received at this office until 12 M. SATURDAY, the 13th instant, for the immediate delivery at Fort Jackson, Louisiana, of—

500 Barrels of Sharp PLASTERING SAND.
10 Barrels PLASTER PARIS.

Material to be of best quality, and subject to inspection before acceptance.

Bids will be opened at time above named, and bidders are invited to be present.

The United States reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Bids must be indorsed "Proposals for Sand and Plaster Paris," and addressed to the undersigned.

(Signed) CHAS. H. TOMPKINS,
Brvt. Brig. Gen. and Chief Quartermaster,
mh12 3t Fifth Military District.

PROPOSALS FOR REPAIRING WHARVES.

OFFICE CHIEF QUARTERMASTER,
Fifth Military District,
New Orleans La., March 10, 1868.

SEALED PROPOSALS ARE INVITED AND will be received at this Office until 12 M., MONDAY, the 16th instant, for repairing Government Wharf at Jackson Barracks, Louisiana, and constructing Bulk Head in accordance with plans and specifications on file in this office.

Bids will be made in duplicate, and will state price, time in which the work will be performed, and full general particulars. All necessary information can be procured at this office.

Bids will be opened at the time above named, and bidders are invited to be present.

The United States reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Bids must be indorsed "Proposals for repairing Wharf at Jackson Barracks," and addressed to the undersigned.

(Signed) CHAS. H. TOMPKINS,
Brevet Brigadier General and Chief Q. M.,
mh11 5t Fifth Military District.

GOVERNMENT AUCTION SALE.

UNITED STATES ENGINEER OFFICE,
New Orleans, March 10, 1868

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE following-named articles of BRIDGE TRAINS and EQUIPAGE will be sold at public auction, in lots to be designated by the officer of the army designated to superintend the sale, at the engineer's depot, Brownsville, Texas, the sale to commence on the 25th instant, and to continue from day to day till completed—

26 Pontoon Boats, 30 Pontoon Wagons, 14 Chess Wagons, 1 Bu k Wagon, 2 Pool Wagons, 7 Forage Wagons, 7 Anchors, 180 Balks, 458 Chess Planks, 14 Boat Hooks, 113 Oars, 2 Abutment Sills, 107 Oar Locks, 50 Rack Sticks, 14 Rack Collars, 5 Pin Pumps, 6 Balk Lashings, 193 Balk and Rack Lashings, 6 Cables, 2 Axes, 21 Augers and Handles, 3 Adzes and Handles, 17 Chisels, 7 Drawing Knives, 2 Spirit Levels, 4 Mallets, 3 Taps No 9 Handles, 4 Caulking Irons, 1 Iron Square, 2 Hand Saws, 4 Cross Cut Saws, 1 Tool Chest, 1 Grind Stone, 256 Long-handle Shovels, 7 Long-handle Spades, 5 Hasps, 3 Hinges and Hooks, 7 Broad Axes, 50 pounds Putty, 647 pounds Manilla Rope, 2 coils Manilla Rope.

Terms—Cash at sale in legal United States currency.

By order Brevet Brig. Gen. M. D. McAlester, Major of Engineers.

M. R. BROWN,
First Lieutenant Corps of Engineers.
mh10 6t

NOTICE.

OFFICE CHIEF C. S. FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
New Orleans, La., March 7, 1868.

SEALED PROPOSALS IN DUPLICATE WILL be received till March 24, 1868, at 12 M., for furnishing the United States Subsistence Department with all the POTATOES they may require for the months of April, May, June, and July, 1868.

The articles furnished must be of the very best quality, put up in good barrels, with head lined, and delivered at the subsistence depot free of charge for cooperage or drayage, with the name of the seller marked on each package.

No bids will be received from parties who have heretofore failed to comply with their engagements with any branch of the government.

Bids to be directed to the undersigned, and marked "Proposals for Potatoes."

A. BECKWITH,
mh10 6t Brevet Maj Gen. and C. S., U. S. A.

NOTICE.

OFFICE CHIEF COMMISSARY SUBSISTENCE,
Fifth Military District,
New Orleans, La., March 7, 1868.

SEALED PROPOSALS IN DUPLICATE ARE invited till the twenty first day of March, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., for furnishing the United States Subsistence Department with the following Stores, viz:

100,000 One hundred thousand pounds, of BROWN SUGAR, equal to No. 14 of the Dutch standard. 15 per cent tare will be taken for the hogsheads and boxes. Hogsheads and boxes must be full.

Bids will also be entertained for a good quality of LOUISIANA SUGAR, in hogsheads. 15 per cent tare will be taken.

Bidders will be required to submit samples of their Sugar with their bids.

—ALSO—

1000 One thousand barrels of Choice Extra FLOUR, equal to the Government standard samples, which can be had by application at the Subsistence Office.

Payment will be made for the above named articles at such time as the Department may have money, and in such funds as may be furnished for that purpose.

All the above articles to be delivered at the Anchor Press in this city within twenty days from the acceptance of the bids.

No bids will be entertained from parties who have heretofore failed to comply with their engagements with any branch of the Government.

Bids to be directed to the undersigned, and marked "Proposals."

A. BECKWITH,
mh7 6t Brevet Maj. Gen. and C. S., U. S. A.

LEGAL NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 10.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM C. WATKINS, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS WILLIAM C. WATKINS, OF the parish of Orleans and District aforsaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 9, 1868.
mh14 21 29 K. LOEW, Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 37.

IN THE MATTER OF ROBERT H. BARRON, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS ROBERT H. BARRON, OF THE parish of West Feliciana and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said ceurt a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixteenth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 12, 1868.
mh13 22 30 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 1.

IN THE MATTER OF HENRY D. STONE, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS HENRY D. STONE, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the second day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 11, 1868.
mh13 20 26 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

No. 38.—In Bankruptcy.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM D. WINTER, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS WILLIAM D. WINTER, OF THE parish of West Feliciana and District aforesaid, dul declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixteenth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans. March 12, 1868.
mh13 22 30 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 10.

IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM C. WATKINS, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS WILLIAM C. WATKINS, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof, from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 9, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh11 20 29 Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 24.

IN THE MATTER OF THOMAS S. GARRETT, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS THOMAS S. GARRETT, OF THE parish of Iberville and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt, under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 7, 1868.
mh10 2 28 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

UTITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

IN THE MATTER OF SAMUEL KAHN, Bankrupt.

In Bankruptcy—No. 46.

WHEREAS SAMUEL KAHN, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 4, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh6 20 29 Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 92.

IN THE MATTER OF DANIEL BERRY, Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of D. Berry & Co., Bankrupt.

WHEREAS DANIEL BERRY, INDIVIDUally, and as a member of the firm of D. Berry & Co., of the parish of Orleans and district aforesaid, duly declared Bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the 24th day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, February 26, 1868.
K. LOEW,
fe28-mh8 17 Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT. DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

IN THE MATTER OF PAUL GOODLOE, BANKrupt.

In Bankruptcy—No. 8.

WHEREAS PAUL GOODLOE, OF THE CITY of New Orleans, and parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared Bankrupt under the Act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof, from all his debts and other claims provable under said act.

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest that the 24th day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's office, New Orleans, February 24, 1868.
fe26 m8 18 K LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES. FOR THE DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 139.

IN THE MATTER OF H. B. CLAFLIN & CO., vs. H. L. Liberman, Bankrupt.

A WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY has been issued by the said court against the estate of H. LIBERMAN, of the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, in said District, adjudged a bankrupt upon the petition of his creditors; and the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to said bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; a meeting of the creditors of said bankrupt, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at New Orleans, in said District, on the thirtieth day of April, A. D. 18 8, at 11 o'clock A. M., at the office of C. S. Kellogg, one of the Registers in Bankruptcy of said Court.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 548—mh12 ap30

Notarial blanks, lawyers' briefs, and all kinds of legal forms accurately printed at the office of the REPUBLICAN, No. 57 St. Charles street

U. S. MARSHAL'S MONITIONS

Jacob Sample and Others vs. Steamboat Southerner, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9035.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The steamboat SOUTHERNER, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Jacob Sample and others for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamboat Southerner, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, eleventh day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON,
No. 545—mh12 17 24 28 United States Marshal.

James Fowler, Thomas Doyle, and Others vs. Schooner Cora, Her Boats, Tackle, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9032.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Schooner CORA, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., and her Boats, now libeled by James Fowler and Thomas Doyle and others for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said schooner Cora, her tackle, apparel, etc., and boats, should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, sixth day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRCN,
No. 538—mh7 12 17 21 United States Marshal.

J. B. Grimaldi vs. the Tugboat Vulcan Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9031.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The tugboat VULCAN, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by J. B. Grimaldi for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said tugboat, her tackle, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fourth day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON,
No. 521—mh5 11 17 21 United States Marshal.

United States vs. a Certain Still, Etc. in Carrollton, Louisiana.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9028.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

A certain STILL, etc., now libeled by the United States of America for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said Still, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fifth day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 524—mh6 11 17 21

George W. Garrison and Alexander Harris, vs. Schooner Lone, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9034.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Schooner LONE, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by George W. Garrison and Alexander Harris, for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said schooner Lone, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, tenth day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 542—mh11 17 24 28

United States vs. a Certain Still on Pontchartrain Railroad.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9029.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

A certain STILL, etc., now libeled by the United States of America, for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said Still, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fifth day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 525—mh6 11 17 21

Alcus, Scherck & Autey, vs Steamboat Henry Ames, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9027.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Steamboat HENRY AMES, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Alcus, Scherck & Autey for causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamboat Henry Ames, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, second day of March, 1868.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 500—mh3 10 17 21

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALES.

A. C. Low vs. Steamer Mary Swan, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9019.—By virtue of an order of Court to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, the twenty-first day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at entrance to Customhouse building, on Old Levee street—

The steamer MARY SWAN, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., as she now lies in the river opposite Poydras street.

Terms—Cash at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, tenth day of March, 1868. F. J. HERRON,
No. 543—mh11 14 17 21 U. S. Marshal.

James Barclay vs. Steamer New Era, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9010—By virtue of a writ of venditioni exponas to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on WEDNESDAY, the eighteenth day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at entrance to Customhouse building, on Old Levee street—

The Steamer NEW ERA, her Tackle, etc., as she now lies in the Mississippi river, opposite this city.

Terms—Cash, at the time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fifth day of March, 1868. F. J. HERRON,
No. 530—mh6 10 14 18 United States Marshal.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.

In Bankruptcy—No. 63.

IN THE MATTER OF PATRICK McCANN, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS PATRICK McCANN, INDIVIDually, and as a member of the firm of Keegan & McCann, of the city of New Orleans and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the 26th day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, February 29, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh3 12 20 Deputy Clerk.

DENTISTRY.—We take great pleasure in recommending all who wish an excellent job of dentistry done to Dr. B. F. Wright, 153 Customhouse street, between Bourbon and Burgundy streets. Dr. Wright expects to start North soon to spend the summer, and up to the time of his departure will attend to the work of all who call on him at ONE-HALF of his heretofore moderate rates, if paid in greenbacks. As he is a workman of the best order, we do not see why his rooms should not be crowded during the time he remains in the city, even though it is hard times.

NOTICE TO REGISTRARS.

HEADQUARTERS FIFTH MILITARY DISTRICT,
Office of Secretary for Civil Affairs,
New Orleans, La., March 12, 1868.

Circular No. 6.

REGISTRARS OF ELECTION IN THE STATE of Louisiana will immediately notify the Secretary for Civil Affairs at these Headquarters, of the acceptance or non-acceptance of their appointments.

By command of Major General Hancock:

W. G. MITCHELL.
Bvt. Lt. Col., Secretary Civil Affairs.

APPLETON'S EDITION OF THE WAVERLEY NOVELS,

Now Publishing,

From New Stereotyped Plates, uniform with the New Edition of Dickens, containing all the Notes of the Author, and printed from the latest edition of the Authorized Text.

To Be Completed in Twenty-Five Volumes,

PRICE 25 CENTS EACH.

Printed on Fine White Paper, Clear Type, and Convenient in Size, Pronounced "A Miracle of Cheapness."

ORDER OF ISSUE:

1. Waverley.
2. Ivanhoe.
3. Kenilworth.
4. Guy Mannering.
5. Antiquary.
6. Rob Roy.
7. Old Mortality.
8. The Black Dwarf, and a legend of Montrose.
9. Bride of Lamermoor.
10. Heart of Midlothian.
11. The Monastery.
12. The Abbot.
13. The Pirate.
14. Fortunes of Nigel.
15. Peveril of the Peak
16. Quentin Durward.
17. St. Ronan's Well.
18. Redgauntlet.
19. The Betrothed, and Highland Widow.
20. The Talisman.
21. Woodstock.
22. Fair Maid of Perth.
23. Anne of Gierstein.
24. Count Robert of Paris.
25. The Surgeon's Daughter.

On receipt of six dollars we will send the entire set of Waverley Novels, as published, and a copy of a new

STEEL-PLATE PORTRAIT OF SIR WALTER SCOTT,

from a painting by Sir Thomas Lawrence, suitable for framing; the Books and Engraving to be sent free of postage to any part of the United States.

Either of the above sent to any address on receipt of the price, twenty-five cents per volume.

On receipt of ten dollars a complete set of Dickens (in uniform style), seventeen volumes, and Waverley, twenty-five volumes, will be sent post paid. The cheapest ten dollars' worth to be found in the whole range of literature. Forty-two volumes for ten dollars.

Extraordinary opportunity for the million to purchase a set of Sir Walter Scott's World Renowned Waverley Novels.

CLUB RATES.

| | |
|---|---|
| One complete set, 25 volumes | $ 6 00 |
| Three complete sets, 25 volumes | 16 00 |
| Five sets | 26 00 |
| Ten sets | 50 00 |

Mailed at our expense.

Any person obtaining four subscribers for the Waverley novels, and remitting us twenty-four dollars, will be entitled to a set of Dickens, seventeen volumes, gratis. All mailed at our expense.

Any person obtaining eight subscribers, and remitting forty-eight dollars, will receive a copy of the Waverley gallery, containing twenty-six steel engravings of the female characters in the Waverley novels, bound in elegant morocco, price fifteen dollars.

Canvassers wanted in every town in the United States. A great opportunity is afforded to industrious men and women to make money, as every man, woman, and child will purchase the Waverley novels at this low price.

For special rates, apply to the publishers,

D. APPLETON & CO.,
443 and 445 Broadway, New York.

Certificate from Ira A. Bean, Esq., Urbana Ohio, in favor of Jonas Whitcomb's Remedy for Asthma.

URBANA, APRIL 3, 1855.

MR. JOSEPH BURNETT:

Dear Sir:: For twenty-five years I was afflicted with the Asthma. I left New England and came to Ohio, with the hope of obtaining relief from a change of climate, which I partially realized, but as I became accustomed to this atmosphere my distress gradually returned.

My sufferings were indescribable, and with me so was the effect of Jonas Whitcomb's remedy.

I commenced its use four months since, was cured within one month, and have not had a return of the disease nor any symptoms of it since, and my general health has constantly improved.

Yours truly, IRA A. BEAN,
592 Broadway.

Joseph Burnett & Co., Boston and New York, proprietors. For sale by all druggists.

AGENTS WANTED.

We want first-class Agents to introduce our NEW STAR SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINES. Extraordinary inducements to good salesmen. Further particulars and Sample work furnished on application to W. G. WILSON & CO., Cleveland, Ohio; Boston, Massachusetts; or St. Louis, Missouri.

$10 TO $20 A DAY GUARANTEED.

Good Agents wanted to introduce our NEW STAR SHUTTLE SEWING MACHINE —Stitch alike on both sides. The only first-class, low priced machine in the market. We will consign Machines to responsible parties, and employ energetic Agents on a salary. Full particulars and sample work furnished on application. Address

W. G. WILSON & CO.,
St. Louis, Mo.

STAPLETON & CO., UNION HAT STORE,

95..........CANAL STREET..........97

NEW ORLEANS,

Wholesale and Retail Dealer

—IN—

Hats, Caps, and Military Furnishing Goods,

—ALSO—

GUNS, PISTOLS, AND AMMUNITION
n20

COLGATE & CO. NEW YORK

COLGATE & Co.'s Fragrant Toilet Soaps are prepared by Skilled workmen from the best Materials, and are known as the STANDARD by Dealers and Consumers.

Sold Everywhere.

$100 A Month Salary

Will be paid for Agents, male or female, in a new, pleasant, permanent business; full particulars free by return mail, or sample retailing at $4 50 for 50 copies.

A. D. BOWMAN & CO.,
48 Broad street, New York.

[Clip out and return this notice.] fe22 13t

MEDICAL.

JOHN C. BAKER & Co.'S PURE COD LIVER OIL The Great Remedy FOR Consumption, Scrofula & General Debility COD LIVER OIL MUST BE PURE & FRESH THE BEST BRAND MANUFACTURED ONLY BY J. C. BAKER & Co. 718 Market St. PHILA.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S LABOR SAVING SOAP.

This Soap is made from pure and clean materials, CONTAINING NO ADULTERATION OF ANY KIND, will not injure the most delicate fabric, and is especially adapted for woolens, which will not shrink after being washed with this soap. It may be used in hard or salt water. It will remove paint, grease, tar, and stains of all kinds. One pound warranted equal to two pounds of ordinary family soap. Directions sent with each bar for making three gallons handsome soft soap from one pound of this soap. Each bar is wrapped in a circular containing full directions for use, printed in English and German. Ask your grocer for "B. T. Babbit's Soap," and take no other

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72 and 74 Washington St., New York.

50 MAKE YOUR OWN SOAP PER-CENT SAVED BY

USING B. T. BABBIT'S PURE CONCENTRATED POTASH, or READY SOAP-MAKER. Warranted double the strength of common Potash, and superior to any other saponifier or lye in the market. Put up in cans of 1 pound, 2 pounds, 3 pounds, 6 pounds, and 12 pounds, with full directions in English and German for making hard and soft soap. One pound will make fifteen gallons of soft soap. No lime is required. Consumers will find this the cheapest Potash in the market.

B. T. BABBIT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S BEST MEDICINAL SALERATUS, "made from common salt." Bread made with this Saleratus contains, when baked, nothing but common salt, water, and flour.

Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington st., New York.

50 PER-CENT SAVED BY USING

B. T. BABBIT'S STAR YEAST POWDER. Light biscuit or any kind of cake may be made with this "Yeast Powder" in 15 minutes. No shortening is required when sweet milk is used.

No. 64 to 74 Washington street, New York.

For sale by E. J. Hart & Co., Webster & Co., and others at New Orleans, and by Grocers and Druggists generally.

ONE OUNCE OF GOLD WILL BE given for every ounce of adulteration found in B. T. BABBIT'S LION COFFEE. This Coffee is roasted, ground, and sealed "hermetically," under letters patent from the United States government. All the Aroma is saved, and the Coffee presents a rich, glossy appearance. Every family should use it, as it is fifteen to twenty per cent stronger than other pure Coffee. One can in every twenty contains a one dollar greenback. For sale everywhere. If your grocer does not keep this coffee, and will not get it for you, send your orders direct to the factory.

B. T. BABBITT,
Nos. 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 72, and 74 Washington street, New York

BELLS.

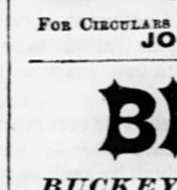
PURE BELL METAL (Copper & Tin.)

TROY BELL FOUNDRY



CHURCH BELLS

Chimes & BELLS of all sizes for Churches, Factories, Academies, Steamboats, Plantations, Locomotives, &c.,

HUNG WITH PATENT ROTARY MOUNTINGS, THE BEST IN USE, FULLY WARRANTED.

FOR CIRCULARS ADDRESS,
JONES & CO., Troy, N. Y

BELLS.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY

Established 1837.

VANDUSEN & TIFT,
102 and 104 East Second st., Cincinnati, O.

Manufacturers of Bells for Churches, Academies, Plantations, etc., made of the genuine Bell Metal, and mounted with our Patent Improved Rotary Hangings.

All Bells warranted in quality and tone. Catalogue and Price List sent on application. 87:ly

RICHARDSON'S NEW METHOD

—FOR—

THE PIANOFORTE

—IS—

UNEXCELLED! UNEQUALED!

—AND—

The Standard Book of Instruction

Thirty Thousand Copies are Sold Yearly,

And it is no exaggeration to say that

Quarter of a Million Scholars

HAVE BECOME ACCOMPLISHED PIANISTS

By using this Book. It is adapted alike to the youngest and to the oldest; to the beginner for the first lessons, and to the amateur for general practice.

Sent postpaid. Price $3 75.

OLIVER DITSON & CO.,
Publishers, Boston.
CHAS. H. DITSON & CO.,
mh7 711 Broadway, New York.

NATIONAL FREEDMEN'S SAVING AND TRUST COMPANY.

CHARTERED BY ACT OF CONGRESS.

OFFICERS:

M. T. HEWITT, President.
W. S. GRIFFITH, First Vice-President.
A. S. BARNES, Second Vice-President.
REV. J. W. ALVORD, Cor. Secretary.
D. LANSING LAMBERT, Rec. Secretary.
SAM'L L. HARRIS, Gen'l Financial Inspector.

Principal office No. 87 Cedar street, American Exchange Bank Building, New York city.

BRANCH AT NEW ORLEANS,

No. 114 CARONDELET STREET

Open every day, Sundays and holidays excepted, from 9 o'clock A. M. to 3 o'clock P. M., and on Saturdays from 6 to 8 o'clock P. M.

Deposits of One Dollar or more received.

Interest payable in January and July, in each year.

All deposits will be repaid with interest due when required.

All the profits belong to the depositors.

Branches have been established in the principal cities from New York to New Orleans, and accounts can be transferred from one Branch to another without charge or interrupting the interest.

Investments are made only in securities of the United States.

W. R. CRANE,
Chairman pro tem. Advisory Committee.
O. J. DUNN, Secretary.
C. S. SAUVINET, Cashier.

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 12. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1868. WHOLE NO. 112.

Poetry.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

WHERE DOES THE SPIRIT OF CHILDHOOD DWELL?

BY "M."

There is music in little pattering feet,
As they restlessly run each new treasure to greet;
Though it comes to the ear with a broken rhyme,
And is measured, too, in imperfect time;
There's the soul of melody still in the sound
Of those little feet pattering over the ground.

But they tread more heavily by and by,
As the years in their passage rapidly fly.
Is the gleeful tripping forgotten so,
That their movements now are so wearily slow?
Oh, where does the spirit of childhood go?

There's a joyous ring in the laugh of a child,
As it floats on the air so merry and mild;
For it tells of a heart that is free from all care,
That has not yet learned where the minor chords are
Of the life-harp, which is so wondrously strung
That it echoes each touch, its light fibers among.

There are thoughts of mingled sorrow and joy,
Of a happiness dimmed by sin's alloy,
Which the voices of riper years suggest,
As in mirth they unite at pleasure's behest;
Then where can the spirit of childhood rest?

"Except as little children ye are,
Ye may not enter the kingdom there"—
Were the words of Him, who has gone to prepare
A home where His loved ones shall ever abide—
Where the storms of earth can never betide.
O there, where His angels will guard it well,
May not the lost spirit of childhood dwell?

New Orleans, March 14, 1868.

[For the New Orleans Advocate.]

I'M SIGHING FOR SPRING.

BY LU SILLINGS SPALDING.

I am sighing for the dews and the mosses,
The moss and the dews so clear.
I am watching the hedge for the leaves to break,
Watching the whole long year.
Till I catch the pale green ripples,
Surging along the plain,
And the scarlet throated lilies
Are brightly out again.

I am pining for the grass and the daisies,
The daisies with faces white,
For the warm, wet dews on my fingers,
As I gather the roses bright,
With their red hearts closely folded
In their silken napkins thin,
When the brightening leaves and branches
Are touched by the wand of spring.

Then hasten, sweet spring, O quickly,
Young spring, in blanket of green,
For the tulips are weary of sleeping,
The lilies are waking again
Neath the mold, and the leaves are waking;
Their dreaming has vanished to pain:
And the throat of the bluebird is throbbing
To carol its notes again.

WESLEY'S SERMONS.

SERMON II.—The Almost Christian.
Preached at St. Mary's, Oxford, before the University, July 25, 1741.

"Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Acts xxvi: 28.

And many there are who go thus far; ever since the Christian religion was in the world there have been many in every age and nation who were "almost persuaded to be Christians." But seeing it avails nothing before God to go only thus far, it highly imports us to consider—

First, What is implied in being almost;

Secondly, What in being altogether a Christian.

I. (I.) 1. Now in the being almost a Christian is implied, first, heathen honesty. No one, I suppose, will make any question of this; especially since by heathen honesty here I mean, not that which is recommended in the writings of their philosophers only, but such as the common heathens expected one of another, and many of them actually practiced. By the rules of this they were taught that they ought not to be unjust; not to take away their neighbor's goods, either by robbery or theft; not to oppress the poor, neither to use extortion toward any; not to cheat or overreach either the poor or rich in whatsoever commerce they had with them; to defraud no man of his right; and, if it were possible, to owe no man anything.

2. Again, the common heathens allowed that some regard was to be paid to truth as well as to justice. And, accordingly, they not only held him in abomination who was foresworn, who called God to witness to a lie; but him also who was known to be a slanderer of his neighbor, who falsely accused any man. And, indeed, little better did they esteem willful liars of any sort, accounting them the disgrace of human kind, and the pests of society.

3. Yet, again, there was a sort of love and assistance which they expected one from another. They expected whatever assistance any one could give another without prejudice to himself. And this they extended not only to those little offices of humanity which are performed without any expense or labor, but likewise to the feeding the hungry, if they had food to spare; the clothing the naked with their own superfluous raiment; and, in general, the giving to any that needed such things as they needed not themselves. Thus far, in the lowest account of it, heathen honesty went, the first thing implied in the being almost a Christian.

(II.) 4. A second thing implied in the being almost a Christian is, the having a form of godliness, of that godliness which is prescribed in the gospel of Christ; the having the outside of a real Christian. Accordingly the almost Christian does nothing which the gospel forbids. He taketh not the name of God in vain; he blesseth and curseth not; he sweareth not at all, but his communication is yea, yea; nay, nay. He profanes not the day of the Lord, nor suffers it to be profaned, even by the stranger that is within his gates. He not only avoids all actual adultery, fornication, and uncleanness, but every word or look that either directly or indirectly tends thereto; nay, and all idle words, abstaining both from all detraction, backbiting, tale bearing, evil speaking, and from "all foolish talking and jesting;" briefly, from all conversation that is not "good to the use of edifying," and that consequently "grieves the Holy Spirit of God, whereby we are sealed to the day of redemption."

5. He abstains from "wine wherein is excess;" from revelings and gluttony. He avoids as much as in him lies all strife and contention, continually endeavoring to live peaceably with all men. And if he suffers wrong, he avengeth not himself, neither returns evil for evil. He is no railer, no brawler, no scoffer, either at the faults or infirmities of his neighbor. He does not willingly wrong, hurt, or grieve any man; but in all things acts and speaks by that plain rule, "Whatsoever thou wouldst not he should do unto thee, that do not thou to another."

6. And, in doing good, he does not confine himself to to cheap and easy offices of kindness, but labors and suffers for the profit of many, that by all means he may be able to help some. In spite of toil or pain, "Whatsoever his hand findeth to do, he doeth it with all his might;" whether it be for his friends, or for his enemies; for the evil or for the good. For, being not slothful in this, or in any business, as he hath opportunity he doeth good, all manner of good to all men; and to their souls as well as their bodies. He reproves the wicked, instructs the ignorant, confirms the wavering, quickens the good, and comforts the afflicted. He labors to awaken those that sleep; to lead those whom God hath already awakened to the fountain opened for sin and for uncleanness, that they may wash therein and be clean; and to stir up those who are saved, through faith, to adorn the gospel of Christ in all things.

7. He that hath the form of godliness, uses also the means of grace; yea, all of them, and at all opportunities. He constantly frequents the house of God: and that, not as the manner of some is, who come into the presence of the Most High, either loaded with gold and costly apparel, or in all the gaudy vanity of dress, and either by their unseasonable civilities to each other, or the impertinent gayety of their behavior, disclaim all pretensions to the form, as well as to the power of godliness. Would to God there were none even among ourselves who fall under the same condemnation: who come into this house, it may be, gazing about, or with all the signs of the most listless, careless indifference, though sometimes they may seem to use a prayer to God for his blessing on what they are entering upon; who, during that awful service, are either asleep, or reclined in the most convenient posture for it; or, as though they supposed God was asleep; talking with one another, or looking round, as utterly void of employment. Neither let these be accused of the form of godliness. No; he who has even this, behaves with seriousness and attention in every part of that solemn service. More especially when he approaches the table of the Lord, it is not with a light or careless behavior, but with an air, gesture, and deportment which speak nothing else, but "God be merciful to me a sinner."

8. To this, if we add the constant use of family prayer, by those who are masters of families, and the setting times apart for private addresses to God, with a daily seriousness of behavior; he who uniformly practices this outward religion, has the form of godliness. There needs but one thing more in order to his being almost a Christian, and that is, sincerity.

(III.) 9. By sincerity, I mean a real inward principle of religion from whence the outward actions flow. And, indeed, if we have not this, we have not heathen honesty: no, not so much of it as will answer the demand of a heathen Epicurean poet. Even this poor wretch, in his sober intervals, is able to testify,

Oderunt peccare boni, virtutis amore:
Oderunt peccare mali formadine pœnæ.

So that, if a man only abstains from doing evil in order to avoid punishment, Non paces in cruce corvos saith the pagan; there, "Thou hast thy reward." But even he will not allow such a harmless man as this to be so much as a good heathen. If then, any man from the same motive, viz: to avoid punishment, to avoid the loss of his friends, or his gain, or his reputation, should not only abstain from doing evil, but also do ever so much good; yea, and use all the means of grace; yet we could not, with any propriety, say, this man is even almost a Christian. If he has no better principle in his heart, he is only a hypocrite altogether.

10. Sincerity, therefore, is necessarily implied in the being almost a Christian; a real design to serve God, a hearty desire to do his will: it is necessarily implied, that a man have a sincere view of pleasing God in all things; in all his conversation; in all his actions; in all he does or leaves undone. This design, if any man be almost a Christian, runs through the whole tenor of his life. This is the moving principle, both in his doing good, his abstaining from evil, and his using the ordinances of God.

11. But here it will probably be inquired, Is it possible that any man living should go so far as this, and nevertheless, be only almost a Christian? What more than this can be implied in being a Christian altogether? I answer, first, that it is possible to go thus far, and yet be but almost a Christian, I learn, not only from the oracles of God, but also from the sure testimony of experience.

12. Brethren, great is "my boldness toward you in this behalf." And, "forgive me this wrong," if I declare my own folly upon the house-top, for yours and the gospel's sake. Suffer me, then, to speak freely of myself, even as of another man. I am content to be abased so ye may be exalted, and to be yet more vile for the glory of my Lord.

13. I did go thus far for many years, as many of this place can testify; using diligence to eschew all evil, and to have a conscience void of offense; redeeming the time; buying up every opportunity of doing all good to all men; constantly and carefully using all the public and all the private means of grace; endeavoring after a steady seriousness of behavior, at all times and in all places; and, God is my record, before whom I stand, doing all this in sincerity; having a real design to serve God; a hearty desire to do his will in all things; to please him, who had called me to "fight the good fight," and to "lay hold on eternal life." Yet my own conscience beareth me witness in the Holy Ghost, that all this time I was but almost a Christian.

II. If it be inquired, What more than this is implied in the being altogether a Christian? I answer.

(I.) 1. First, The love of God. For thus saith his word, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." Such a love of God is this as engrosses the whole heart, as takes up all the affections, as fills the entire capacity of the soul, and employs the utmost extent of all its faculties. He that thus loves the Lord his God, his spirit continually "rejoiceth in God his Saviour." His delight is in the Lord, his Lord and his All, to whom "in everything he giveth thanks." "All his desire is unto God, and to the remembrance of his name." His heart is ever crying out, "Whom have I in heaven but thee, and there is none upon earth that I desire besides thee." Indeed, what can he desire beside God? Not the world, or the things of the world. For he is "crucified to the world, and the world crucified to him." He is crucified to the desire of the flesh, the desire of the eye, and the pride of life. Yea, he is dead to pride of every kind; for, "love is not puffed up;" but "he that, dwelling in love, dwelleth in God and God in him," is less than nothing in his own eyes.

(II.) 2. The second thing implied in the being altogether a Christian, is the love of our neighbor. For thus said our Lord, in the following words: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." If any man ask, Who is my neighbor? we reply, every man in the world; every child of his, who is the Father of the spirits of all flesh. Nor may we in any wise except our enemies, or the enemies of God and their own souls. But every Christian loveth these also as himself, yea, "as Christ loved us." He that would more fully understand what manner of love this is, may consider St. Paul's description of it. It is "long suffering and kind." It "envieth not." It is not rash or hasty in judging. It "is not puffed up," but maketh him that loves the least the servant of all. Love "doth not behave itself unseemly," but becometh "all things to all men." She "seeketh not her own," but only the good of others, that they may be saved. "Love is not provoked." It casteth out wrath, which he who hath is not "made perfect in love." "It thinketh no evil. It rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth. It covereth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

(III.) 3. There is yet one thing more that may be separately considered, though it can not actually be separate from the preceding, which is implied in the being altogether a Christian, and that is the ground of all, even faith. Very excellent things are spoken of this throughout the oracles of God. "Every one," saith the beloved disciple, "that believeth, is born of God." "To as many as received him, gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe in his name." And "this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Yea, our Lord himself declares, "He that believeth in the Son hath everlasting life; and cometh not into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life."

4. But here let no man deceive his own soul. "It is diligently to be noted, the faith, which bringeth not forth repentance, and love, all good works, is not that right living faith which is here spoken of, but a dead and devilish one. For, even the devils believe that Christ was born of a virgin; that he wrought all kinds of miracles, declaring himself very God; that, for our sakes he suffered a most painful death, to redeem us from death everlasting; that he rose again the third day; that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of the Father, and at the end of the world shall come again to judge both the quick and the dead. These articles of our faith the devils believe, and so they believe all that is written in the Old and New Testament. And yet, for all this faith they be but devils. They remain still in their damnable estate, lacking the very true Christian faith."

5. "The right and true Christian faith is," to go on in the words of our own church, "not only to believe that holy Scripture and the articles of our faith are true, but also to have a sure trust and confidence to be saved from everlasting damnation by Christ. It is a sure trust and confidence which a man hath in God, that by the merits of Christ his sins are forgiven, and he reconciled to the favor of God; whereof doth follow a loving heart, to obey his commandments."

6. Now, whosoever has this faith, which purifies the heart, (by the power of God, who dwelleth therein,) from pride, anger, desire, from all unrighteousness, from "filthiness of the flesh and spirit;" which fills it with love stronger than death, both to God and all mankind; love that doth the works of God, glorying to spend and be spent for all men, and that endureth with joy, not only the reproach of Christ, the being mocked, despised, and hated of all men, but whatsoever the wisdom of God permits the malice of men or devils to inflict; whosoever has this faith, thus working by love, is not almost only, but altogether a Christian.

7. But who are the living witnesses of these things? I beseech you, brethren, as in the presence of that God before whom "hell and destruction are without a covering—how much more the hearts of the children of men," that each of you would ask his own heart, "Am I of that number? Do I so far practice justice, mercy, and truth, as even the rules of heathen honesty require? If so, have I the very outside of a Christian? The form of godliness? Do I abstain from evil, from whatsoever is forbidden in the written word of God? Do I, whatever good my hand findeth to do, do it with my might? Do I seriously use all the ordinances of God at all opportunities? And, is all this done with a sincere design and desire to please God in all things?"

8. Are not many of you conscious that you never came thus far? that you have not been even almost a Christian? that you have not come up to the standard of heathen honesty? at least not to the form of Christian godliness—much less hath God seen sincerity in you, a real design of pleasing him in all things. You never so much as intended to devote all your words and works, your business, studies, diversions, to his glory. You never even designed or desired that whatsoever you did should be done "in the name of the Lord Jesus," and as such should be a "spiritual sacrifice, aeceptable to God through Christ."

9. But supposing you had, do good designs and good desires make a Christian? By no means, unless they are brought to good effect. "Hell is paved (saith one) with good intentions." The great question of all then still remains. Is the love of God shed abroad in your heart? Can you cry out, "My God, and my All?" Do you desire nothing but him? Are you happy in God? Is he your glory, your delight, your crown of rejoicing? And is this commandment written in your heart, That he who loveth God loveth his brother also? Do you then love your neighbor as yourself? Do you love every man, even your enemies, even the enemies of God, as your own soul? As Christ loved you? Yea, dost thou believe that Christ loved thee, and gave himself for thee? Hast thou faith in his blood? Believest thou the Lamb of God hath taken away thy sins, and cast them as a stone into the depths of the sea? That he hath blotted out the handwriting that was against thee, taking it out of the way, nailing it to his cross? Hast thou indeed redemption through his blood, even the remission of thy sins? And doth his Spirit bear witness with thy spirit that thou art a child of God?

10. The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who now standeth in the midst of us, knoweth that if any man die without this faith and this love, good it were for him that he had never been born. "Awake, then, thou that sleepest, and call upon thy God: call in the day when he may be found. Let him not rest till he make his goodness to pass before thee," till he proclaim unto thee the name of the Lord; "the Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long suffering and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity, and transgression, and sin." Let no man persuade thee by vain words to rest short of this prize of thy high calling. But cry unto him day and night, who, "while we were without strength, died for the ungodly," until thou knowest in whom thou hast believed, and canst say, "My Lord and my God!" Remember "always to pray and not to faint," till thou also canst lift up thy hand unto heaven, and declare to Him that liveth for ever and ever, "Lord, thou knowest all things, thou knowest that I love thee."

11. May we all thus experience what it is to be, not almost only, but altogether Christians; being justified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Jesus; knowing we have peace with God through Jesus Christ; rejoicing in hope of the glory of God; and having the love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost given unto us!

Colored Romanism.

The World announces with evident satisfaction that:

"A church in Charleston has just been consecrated to the sole use of colored Catholics. This ceremony marks a very long step in the work which the Catholic communion is doing in the way of evangelizing the freed people. That work was begun at once upon the close of the war, and has gone on as quietly as steadily up to the present time.

"The Roman Catholic church, ancient and conservative as she is, has always been quicker of apprehension than most other Christian bodies to discern when chances of extension showed themselves, as her admirable organization has always enabled her to take more immediate advantage of such chances. The work which she has now undertaken is as truly a missionary work, among creatures morally as remote from her as was that of Du Halde in the Flowery Kingdom, or that of Francis Xavier among the islands of the sea. She now proposes to contend with the schoolmarms and bureaucrats of New England for the control of the new Africa in America. It is by no means clear that her chances in the strife are not the best. The worship of the Catholic church, its gorgeous vestments, its pomp of symbolism, its stately music, its unknown ritual, would be certain, one would say a priori, to allure the senses and touch the sensibilities of those who are still children in everything but years."

REMARKS.—Not long after Butler and Farragut had restored New Orleans to the Union, two intelligent and gentlemanly representatives of the colored people of that city—Roudanez and Bortonneau by name—were sent North in quest of guarantees for their continued enfranchisement. In reply to our inquiries, they informed us that they were Catholics, as were some 40,000 of the colored people of their city, but their archbishop and all his clergy were red-hot partisans of slavery and secession. Our conclusion was that this would have to be changed before they got a great many colored persons into their church besides those born in it.

We trust this effort to win the colored people over to Romanism will be vigorously persisted in. It is quite true, as the World says that the Catholic church has certain obvious advantages over her rivals in appealing to the imagination, of uncultured, semi-barbarous races. But these can only be rendered effective in winning the blacks by a hearty change of attitude and bearing toward their races. If the champions of a "white man's government" should inaugurate another rebellion in its behalf, Catholic bishops must not make haste to order a Te Deum in honor of its first trifling success. The Catholic clergy must not be all rebels within the circle of open revolt, and nearly all sympathizers with the rebellion's purposes outside of that circle. The Catholic laity must not be thick-and-thin partisans of slavery wherever it exists, and of black disfranchisement and vassalage where it does not. Catholic mobs must not burn colored orphan asylums and hunt colored women and children through the streets of our city, seeking to torture and kill them for no fault but their color. In short, the general bearing of Romanists toward blacks must be radically changed if the Roman church is to have a fair chance to win the colored to her communion.

We trust, therefore, that she is embarking in this enterprise with her characteristic ardor and resolution. Whatever the measures of her success great good must result from the effort. She has considerable leeway to make up, which is an additional reason for stripping to the work. If her hierarchy has taken hold of this job in earnest our grogshops must soon cease to echo the cruel, heathenish babble of a natural, unconquerable antipathy between whites and colored. By all means let her do her "level best" to win the colored. And the first step on this road is to teach her followers to cease hating, oppressing, and slandering them. Clear the way. New York Tribune.

Letter from John Lee.

FRANKLIN, March 3, 1868.

REV. DR. NEWMAN:

You give some directions in the ADVOCATE to the preachers to send in their reports stating the number of copies required in their charges, which report I can not give at present: you said we have had sufficient time, that's so; but now for my excuse, and I hope it will be a satisfactory excuse both to you and yours. The delay was occasioned by the present revival that is existing in Franklin, notwithstanding I have sought every opportunity to lecture upon our devoted ADVOCATE, and to encourage its progress. For which you have spent so much time, labor, and money, to uphold and support, and I have every reason to believe that it will find great success in this section of the country. The money that I shall gather for the paper I will turn over to the presiding elder. And God grant that every preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church may go to work and stir up the people, and direct their attention and interest to this important paper.

I suppose you would like to hear something about the revival. When I came to Franklin, I had some severe opposition, principally from false brethren; but I continued in prayer, night and day, to God, that He would revive His work, and His church in Franklin, and I well know that He has answered my prayers. And we have now a glorious revival in this place which has continued three weeks and is increasing daily. The house has been crowded every night for three weeks with people seeking Jesus. Many have been truly converted to Jesus, and it is my aim to preach nothing to the people but Jesus Christ and him crucified.

I also divide the time by preaching at Centreville and some other places on the road, and I am trying to impress it upon the minds of the people in Centreville the necessity of building a church. And, after preaching a great deal upon the subject, I proposed that they should, without delay, make the first subscription for that purpose, and with one accord, the little congregation came up promptly and subscribed to the amount of $175. I think we have money enough to purchase the site, but to get the ground will be my hardest task. It is indeed a lamentable fact, that all the land belongs to the white citizens, and it is just as they please whether we get it or not. But we will continue in prayer to God that he will open their hearts to sell us a little piece of land to build a house to be dedicated to His service.

I will write to you again at the close of the revival, and give you a full account thereof. And, I earnestly hope that this letter may find you and your household enjoying the best of health, and I almost at the point to beg you to answer my letter, but I know your daily labors, how oppressing they are so I would not intrude, for you know I have been with you in health and in sickness. I stood at your bedside looking with a wishful eye upon you, when you had forgotten all the cares of this world, when your friends were helpless; and how I hated to see your enemies begin to rally for a triumph in victory, for little did they know that things would turn out as they did, and that God was refining his gold. So you know to all these things I was an eye witness, which things by me shall never be forgotten, and I would not take the assurance to ask you to answer this when I hear from you every week by the ADVOCATE, nevertheless I would indeed like to see some of your handwriting.

Your obedient servant.

JOHN LEE.

City and Parish Nominations.

From the lack of personal acquaintance with several of the city and parish nominees, we are unable to speak of their fitness for the positions to which they have been nominated; but some of the candidates are our personal friends, and we are happy to bespeak the votes of our readers in their behalf.

H. C. DIBBLE, ESQ.

This young gentleman deserves well of the Republicans of Louisiana. Having fought bravely for the Union and the freedom of the slaves, he chose New Orleans for his home, and here commenced the practice of law. Step by step he has advanced, till he is to-day one of the rising young men of the "New South." Intelligent, upright, and eloquent, he is one of the truest and bravest Republicans in the state. And we feel sure that HENRY C. DIBBLE will be our next district attorney.

DR. WILLIAM H. HIRE.

We believe in the law of compensation, and have no doubt that it is the will of Providence that Dr. Hire shall be coroner of the first and second districts of the parish of Orleans, that he may decently bury those who attempted to kill him on the thirtieth of July, 1866. An educated gentleman and a practitioner of many years standing, a fast friend of the black man and a staunch Republican, Dr. Hire should receive the vote of every citizen.

THE JUDGES.

We cannot now speak of these gentlemen individually, but we are proud to say that the good people of New Orleans should rejoice in the privilege of voting for such men as Messrs. Howe, Shannon, Boyd, and Fish. Learned, pure, competent, their election will raise the judiciary of Orleans one hundred per cent, investing it with a dignity and power which it never possessed before.

CITY COUNCIL.

Mr. J. M. G. Parker will do honor to our city council. As postmaster for New Orleans he displayed great executive ability, and he will be a tower of strength in his new position. And among the assistant aldermen we are glad to notice the name of Captain Armstrong, for whom every man, black and white, in his district should vote. Like Lincoln and Grant he has Western common sense, which is the best sense this country has known since the days of George Washington.

Dr. Pemberton, the well-known druggist on Poydras street, is the "right man in the right place," and can aid in healing the body politic. In the dark days of our struggle Dr. Pemberton never flinched from his duty as a loyal citizen and a true Republican.

LEGISLATURE.

Charles Fox, Esq., is the nominee for representative to the state legislature from the second ward of the first district of the parish of Orleans. Whether we consider Mr. Fox as a lawyer or a politician, he is fully competent for the responsibilities of a state legislator. He is one of the most effective orators in Louisiana, and will add largely to the working strength of the party.

In the second district P. B. S. Pinckback is in nomination as one of the state senators, and will certainly be elected. He is one of our newly enfranchised citizens, and was one of the best debaters in the late convention. He is very popular among his own people, and we trust that they will have reason to be proud of him in the future. His colleague is Hugh J. Campbell, secretary of the board of aldermen and minute clerk to the late constitutional convention.

Mr. Campbell is a true and noble man, and the colored people of the second district should remember that he fought for their freedom: and if elected, will defend their rights. He is a gentleman of thorough education, and well versed in the history of our country, and is our choice for state senator.

New Orleans Advocate.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months..... 2 00
Three Months..... 1 00

INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50

Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.

☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 25 Baronne street.

SATURDAY, MARCH 21, 1868.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

H. C. WARMOTH.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,

OSCAR J. DUNN.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,

GEORGE BOVEE.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,

SIMEON BELDEN.

FOR AUDITOR,

GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.

FOR TREASURER,

ANTOINE DUBUCLET.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,

T. W. CONWAY.

Rev. Dr. Newman will preach in his church to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock and in the evening at 7½.

Collation.—At the collation given on the 10th instant by Mrs. Evans Green for the benefit of Poet street church, the profits amounted to about $200. This is the third collation given by Mrs. Green to raise money to pay the debt on this church. The total amount realized by the three is $600.

We infer that she is a worker as well as her husband.

Hancock and Reynolds.—Major General Hancock has been ordered to Washington, and Major General Reynolds commands the fifth military district. This change is having a salutary effect upon the business and loyalty of our city. General Reynolds is well known to our citizens both as a gentleman and a soldier. He believes in Congress, and is sufficiently sensible to execute the laws of Congress without any foolish attempt to recognize as supreme the civil governments now extant. We trust the general will hasten to our city, where his presence will be powerful and salutary, and he will receive a hearty welcome from every loyal man.

Acknowledgement.

The following letter, accompanying a box of clothing, was received a few days since at the Orphans' Home in this city from the office of the Freedman's Aid Society at Cincinnati, Ohio :

Danville, Ind., February 19, 1868.

Dear Brethren: I have carefully invoiced this box of clothing and books at $185.

Please give this place credit on your books.

Danville has done well.

Yours, etc.,
J. R. STILLWELL, Agent.

Information Wanted.

Mrs. Lenka Brown, (colored) wife of William Brown, of Marshall, Harrison county, Texas, wishes to inquire through the pastors of the churches in Texas and Louisiana of her husband and her mother and stepfather, from whom she has been separated some time. She left her mother in Marshall. Her mother's name is Ann Grenberry and her stepfather's name is James Granberry. Any information of their whereabouts will be thankfully received. Address

Rev. W. B. AVERY,
Pastor of M. E. Church,
Hansboro, Miss.

The Mails for Ouachita River.—A gentleman of Monroe, writing on the 13th inst. to his New Orleans correspondent, adds the following: "On account of high water between Delhi and Vicksburg our mails are now accumulating at the latter place, except those of Saturday and Wednesday, brought by steamer. Can't you get Postmaster Taliaferro to send all our mail matter by steamers? We are all interested in this."

MARRIED.

CLANCY—DENVER.—In New Orleans, on the evening of March 18, 1868, by Rev. W. M. Henry, Mr. JOHN CLANCY to Mrs. ANN DENVER, all of New Orleans.

Four Years in New Orleans.

Four years ago to-day we arrived in New Orleans, intrusted with the important mission of reorganizing the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southwest. General Banks was in command, and a man was then respected for his loyalty. The great ecclesiastical and educational movements which now promise to be the glory of our state were then in their inception. The noble efforts of the minister of the gospel and of the school teacher received the public sanction of the military, and the countenance of loyal men. His excellency, Michael Hahn, was then governor of Louisiana, and Captain Stephen Hoyt was acting mayor of New Orleans, and it is with no ordinary pleasure that we now recall the efforts of those gentlemen to advance the cause of public education, and the formation of new religious societies. Nor were we less fortunate in having the support of the city press in the great work of political and moral reconstruction. The New Orleans Times, now the Devil's Daily, was then the most patriotic sheet published in the city, and we remember with gushing emotions of gratitude how its present editor treated its readers with our sermons and the speeches which Union orators were called upon to make. But "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, son of the morning." And with the Times also fell the other city papers, so that at one time there was not a single paper in New Orleans to advocate the rights of freedom, and vindicate the claims of loyalty.

Nor can we forget the social preeminence which Union people then enjoyed in the Crescent city. Mrs. General Banks' receptions were informal and delightful, affording the opportunity to strangers from the North of enjoying the refined amenities of social life. And chief among the guests of Mrs. Banks was old Jacob Barker, venerable to look upon but a little doubtful to be trusted. Nor was he the only one of the South who "shone resplendant in those elegant assemblages," for others like he did not seriously object to associate with the Yankees, provided it was popular. In those palmy days of loyalty it was popular to be a Yankee, as it will be in the good time coming, and to Mrs. Banks more than to any other lady from the North are we indebted for the social power which the "carpet-baggers" then justly enjoyed, and which was so much dreaded by the disloyal portion of the community.

For a year and a half after our arrival we held possession of the several Methodist churches in the city, which had been wrested from us in 1844 by the slave power of the South. During that time the large church on Carondelet street was thronged each Sabbath with citizens and strangers, and our heroic soldiers rejoiced in a sanctuary in which they could have the gospel expounded as they had heard it in their Northern homes. About the same time some noble spirits were officiating in other of our city churches. Rev. Mr. Chubbuck was in Christ church, and the Coliseum Baptist Church was occupied by the lamented Mr. Horton, who fell in the massacre of 1866, and who deserves a martyr's monument.

But the accession of Andrew Johnson to the presidential chair, marks the decadance of loyalty in New Orleans and the return of that ostracism whisch Union men have ever since suffered from the hands of those who, by an assassin's knife, had gained a temporary mastery. Throwing the whole weight of his administration against the loyal men of the South, he patronized the worst of traitors, and encouraged them to drive from their homes, and business, those who would not submit to the dictation of the old slave masters. He restored property to men who deserved imprisonment in solitary confinement; pardoned others who had forfeited all claims to life, and appointed men to power who were only fit to be the companions of his own drunken carousals. Nor was he content with these outrages on justice and liberty, but, like a Julian the Apostate, he entered the sanctuaries of God and drove from their altars devout worshippers, whose only crime was their loyalty to the government of the United States. He issued his military orders and restored the Methodist and Baptist churches to rebel pastors who had just returned from the confederacy, and who returned because they could no longer resist the armies of the Union; and by these acts of restoration he compelled members to abandon churches which they had helped to build, and in which they refused to worship with unrepentant rebels. It was so with nearly two hundred of our own church members, who, like sheep without a fold, wandered about from hall to hall, till the completion of their new church. But we believed in the wholesome doctrine that the "triumph of the wicked is short," and with this faith we resolved to go forward in the work of the religious reconstruction of this portion of the South.

But those were dark days. Enemies multiplied and friends were few and faint-hearted. Union men became discouragde and left the South, or determined to have nothing to do with religion or politics. The war being over, thousands of confederate officers and soldiers returned to New Orleans and gave a preponderating power to the disloyal party. Rebels could boast that Johnson was their friend, and by his orders, the military made little distinction between the loyal and disloyal citizen. And this condition of things continued for a year and a half, when they logically culminated in the massacre of our Union citizens in the summer of 1866.

Christmas of 1865 was the midnight of this terrible period, but it was on that holy day that Bishop Thomson organized the Mississippi Mission Conference. It was a small beginning, but we had faith in the future, and out of that beginning have grown two annual conferences. We commenced with five preachers and we have now in the two conferences eighty-one preachers; then we had but 2692 members; we have now 19,555; then we had but 13 local preachers; now we have 172; then we had five churches, valued at $47,000, but now 63, valued at $223,000. On that Christmas day we could report but 1386 Sunday school scholars, but now there are five thousand.

And these conference organizations include Louisiana, Mississippi, and Texas, and there is scarcely an interior town in these three great states where our preachers—the Methodist itinerant—may not be found. It is a great thing, to take possession of a large state and claim it for Christ; and as Methodists we can not but rejoice in the wonderful adaptation of our economy to take and to hold such a territory for the Master. And our power to maintain possession is greatly increased by the New Orleans Advocate, the Orphans Home and the Thomson University, all of which are elements of power, and which are too well known to the public to require a lengthy description here. Our position in this city is desirable and encouraging. We have one of the most elegantly neat churches in New Orleans, which by its congregation and two large Sunday schools, is a rising power in our community.

And after this too hasty review of four memorable years, we are impressed with three thoughts :

1. Our indebtedness to the Missionary society for its munificent donations to aid this work, and for which our people should not cease to give God most hearty thanks.

2. So soon as reconstruction is an accomplished fact, the M. E. Church will be the controlling church in the South. Now is the time of her probation and trial, and if faithful to Him who hath called her to this great mission, He will make her a thousand fold more than she is in numbers, wealth and power to do good.

3. The whole church should be more and more sensible of the magnitude, the solemn importance and promising future of our beloved Zion in the South. God has given us the land to possess it. He providentially opened the door for us to enter first, and up to this time no other organization (not Southern) has scarcely a foothold: and our success is no less worthy of our gratitude than it is inciting to new efforts. And by wisdom and prudence, earnestness and devotion, we may hope for evenmore glorious results in the four years to come.

Sunday Political Meetings.

Some time since we respectfully suggested that Sunday political meetings should not be sanctioned by the Republicans of Louisiana; but we regret to say, that on last Sunday, a large political meeting was held in St. Bernard, and that some of the leaders of the party were the chief speakers. This we profoundly regret, and hope it may not occur again. Republicans should remember that while they maintain human rights, they should not trespass on God's prerogatives; and one of His prerogatives is to command us to "keep the sabbath day holy." And these gentlemen should remember that the church is jealous of her sabbaths, and that she will not support any man who disregards the sanctity of the Sabbath day. It may have a salutary effect upon those interested to state that in one of our colored churches on last Sunday, the preacher referred to this political meeting in St. Bernard, and strongly condemned it; and if similar meetings are held, the effect will be to arouse the whole church against the party who officially approves the same. Therefore, as a christian, patriot and Republican, we earnestly protest against Sunday political meetings, and counsel our friends to manifest a decent respect for the religious opinions of mankind.

New Hampshire.

Where is the boasted reaction? Since the last Fall elections in the North Mr. Johnson's friends in the South have vauntingly predicted a "great reaction in the Northern mind." But the old Granite state has given the lie to the prophecy, and sounded the key-note of the presidential campaign of '68. And as goes New Hampshire so goes the nation. Excepting New Jersey or Connecticut there is no state in the Union where Republican success is so significant of the triumph of the future. Her citizens are by nature the most staid and conservative, and by education the most thoughtful and intelligent. They are far removed from passion and fanaticism; they are the fellow-citizens of Franklin Pierce, yet their emphatic verdict is IMPEACHMENT.

This is the real import of Harriman's three thousand majority. It is the enunciation of the president's condemnation before the trial has taken place; it is the solemn verdict of the people from the bar of public opinion. So many have been Mr. Johnson's misdemeanors, so flagrant his crimes, that the American people have tried and condemned the man who has been a disgrace to his citizenship and to the holy office he was accidentally called to fill, from the day of his drunken inaugural to the late attempt to take advantage of the senility of an old soldier, and make him the instrument of his own vileness. And we are content. Republicans, rejoice! We have felt the iron heel of this drunken usurper too long. God is about to place in turn, His heel upon the neck of him who was "Born for a curse to virtue and mankind."

New Colored Conference Proposed.

At the last session of the Kentucky conference the following petition was presented :

At a meeting of the colored elders, deacons, and preachers of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held in Grace Church, Newport, Kentucky, on the 27th day of February, 1868, the subject of the formation of a separate annual conferende for the colored people within the bounds of the present Kentucky annual conference of the said Methodist Episcopal Church was considered, and on motion the following resolution was adopted by a vote of nineteen to three:

Resolved, That believing as we do that the organization of an annual conference in the state of Kentucky, composed of colored members, would tend to a more rapid and permanent upbuilding of the cause of God among the colored people, while it could not impede, but would probably facilitate the progress of that cause among the whites, we would hereby respectfully request the bishops, if they conceive they are empowed to do so, to set us off as a separate conference at as early a day as shall seem practicable; and if they have not authority to do so, we would hereby request that the Kentucky Conference, now in session in this place, would take such action as shall secure the favorable consideration of the subject of our wishes by the next General Conference of the said Methodist Episcopal Church.

HENRY H. LYTLE, Chairman.
E. C. Moore, Secretary.

After some discussion the following was adopted by the conference :

Resolved, That it is the sense of this conference that, at the earliest day practicable, a separate conference, composed of colored members, ought to be organized in Kentucky.

Remarks.—Of course we are not posted as to the local reasons for the above action of the Kentucky conference; and because brethren have sometimes misinterpreted our action in the Southwest from lack of local knowledge, we therefore speak with greater caution on the subject. Yet we believe it is the most Christianly and the wisest policy ecclesiastically to have mixed conferences—that is, to unite in one conference our white and colored preachers in those sections where they are called to labor side by side. The Mississippi Mission conference was organized on this basis, and was the first in the new South to set the godly example. Our colored churches may not be willing to receive white preachers, and our white members may be disinclined to belong to mixed churches. Yet the preachers should stand on a common level, and transact together the business of the church. Unless our Kentucky brethren can show extraordinary reasons for this conference separation of our ministers, we trust the General Conference will not accede to their request. The time has fully come when we should discountenance CASTE in our church, and the ministers of the Lord Jesus should first set the example. We hold that the same reasons which for the present justify separate churches do not justify separate annual conferences, and we therefore hope that after the session of the next General Conference, we shall have neither white conferences, nor colored conferences, but annual conferences in which all shall be brethren—equals before the altar, and by unity in conference business present to the world a unified church.

General J. Hale Sypher.

It has been our intention for some time to express our hearty indorsement of the nomination of this distinguished gentleman for congress from the second district. His nomination was the spontaneous hearty expression of the people of his district not only of their high appreciation of his laborious and effective labors for the success of republican principles in this state, but of their admiration of a gallant and glorious war record of which any one should be proud, and respect and esteem for him as a neighbor, a friend, and a gentleman. General Sypher is a native of Pennsylvania, and was born in 1837, and is a descendant of the sober, steady German population, which have occupied some of the finest sections of that state, and made it the garden of the Middle states.

His grandfather and grand uncles were revolutionary soldiers. Gen. Sypher was educated at an abolition college, Alfred University, Alleghany conuty, New York, and there imbibed that hatred of slavery and love of universal liberty which prepared him in the fast approaching crisis to cast all his energies and heart on the side of his country in the great struggle for constitutional liberty and Union.

As a sample of the value of such institutions of learning at the South in educating the minds and sympathies of the youth of the land and preparing them to resist the gigantic and steadily incroaching schemes of the slaveholding oligarchy, we mention the fact that Alfred University was a station of the "underground railroad," and that it was the habit of its boys to contribute from their slender purses liberally to the many worn and foot-sore fugitives from slavery. Young Sypher has often given his last half-dollar to the trembling object of pursuit who was seeking his rightful liberty. When the war broke out young Sypher forsook his law books and enlisted as a private on the fourth day of April, 1861.

He served in Western Virginia, and was at the battles of Phillipi, Laurel hill, Rich mountain, and Carrack's ford. At the expiration of his three months service he recruited a battery of light artillery at his own expense, and was sent with it to Kentucky. There he participated with distinction in the battles of Wild Cat and Mill Springs in Kentucky, and in all the campaigns and great battles of the army of the Cumberland under Generals Buell, Rosecranz, and Thomas, among which are the famous names of Nashville, Shiloh, Stone river, Chattanooga, Mission ridge, and Lookout mountain, up to the arrival of our army before Atlanta. During this time he was wounded three times and promoted twice.

In 1864 he resigned his captaincy and proceeded to Washington, and passed a very successful examination before Gen. Casey's board, and was commissioned by the president as colonel of artillery and assigned to the command of the 11th United States artillery, stationed in Louisiana. His regiment was composed of colored men, mostly from the South, many of whom were liberally educated.

On March 13th, 1865, he was promoted to the rank of brevet brigadier general, "for faithful and meritorious services during the war."

In November, 1865, he took his regiment back to its state, Rhode Island, and was there mustered out, the services of the regiment being no longer required.

In December, 1865, he returned to Louisiana and engaged extensively in planting in connection with his brother, investing sixty thousand dollars in that work. On his plantation he established schools for his employees, employing teachers and furnishing books at his own expense. For the most of the time his residence has been in New Orleans, for the purpose of devoting himself to his professien, the law, and also of giving his aid more efficiently to the work of reconstruction, in which he has enlisted all his energies and talents.

General Sypher is a gentleman of liberal culture, fine talents, and untiring energy and industry. In all his social and personal relations he is noted for his strict integrity and high personal sense of honor. His warm, impulsive, and generous nature constitute him a firm friend and an uncompromising opponent. As a natural result he is surrounded by a troop of zealous personal friends, who make their cause his own, and who will insure him a brilliant triumph.

He is one of the most effective and convincing speakers in the state. His oratory is of the genuine, earnest, and common sense kind, which appeals to the understanding and hearts of the people, and always find a response. The second district will honor itself and subserve well the interests not only of New Orleans but of the whole state by sending General Sypher to congress. His extensive acquaintance with the capitalists and public men of the North will give him great advantages and enable him to be of signal benefit to the material interests of Louisiana.

We append an extract from a letter of Governor James G. Smith, of Rhode Island, to Secretary Stanton, which will be of interest because of its high endorsement from so responsible an officer, of General Sypher as a soldier, a gentleman, and an honest man :

State of Rhode Island, Executive Department, Providence, October 20, 1865.

My Dear Sir: Our fourteenth regiment Rhode Island heavy artillery, now the eleventh United States colored artillery (H), has, under the command of Colonel J. Hale Sypher, gained a position and reputation for discipline unusually creditable to his energy and capability, the regiment at the time he took the command being in an almost disorganized condition.

Colonel Sypher passed General Casey's examining board, and was one of the few officers recommended for appointment as colonels. He has served in all the grades during the late war, and his integrity, energy, and unflinching patriotism, with his complete knowledge of tactics and army regulations, has gained for him the high position he now holds.

* * *

I have the honor to be, most truly,
JAMES Y. SMITH, Governor.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War.
Washington, D. C.

OFFICIAL.

CONSTITUTION

—OF THE—

STATE OF LOUISIANA.

Adopted in Convention at New Orleans, Saturday, March 7, 1868.

PREAMBLE.

We, the people of Louisiana, in order to establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this constitution.

CONSTITUTION.

TITLE I.—BILL OF RIGHTS.

Article 1. All men are created free and equal, and have certain inalienable rights; among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. To secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed.

Art. 2. All persons, without regard to race, color, or previous condition, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and residents of this state for one year, are citizens of this state. The citizens of this state owe allegiance to the United States; and this allegiance is paramount to that which they owe to the state. They shall enjoy the same civil, political, and public rights and privileges, and be subject to the same pains and penalties.

Art. 3. There shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude in this state, otherwise than for the punishment of crime, whereof the party shall have been duly convicted.

Art. 4. The press shall be free; every citizen may freely speak, write, and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of this liberty.

Art. 5. The right of the people peaceably to assemble and petition the government, or any department thereof, shall never be abridged.

Art. 6. Prosecutions shall be by indictment or information. The accused shall be entitled to a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the parish in which the offense was committed, unless the venue be changed. He shall not be compelled to give evidence against himself; he shall have the right of being heard by himself or counsel; he shall have the right of meeting the witnesses face to face, and shall have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor. He shall not be tried twice for the same offense.

Art. 7. All persons shall be bailable by sufficient securities, unless for capital offenses, where the proof is evident, or the presumption great, or unless after conviction, for any crime or offense punishable with death or imprisonment at hard labor. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended.

Art. 8. Excessive bail shall not be required; excessive fines shall not be imposed; nor cruel or unusual punishments inflicted.

Art. 9. The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures shall not be violated; and no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, or the person or things to be seized.

Art. 10. All courts shall be open; and every person for injury done him in his land, goods, person, or reputation shall have adequate remedy by due process of law, and justice administered without denial or unreasonable delay.

Art. 11. No law shall be passed fixing the price of manual labor.

Art. 12. Every person has the natural right to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience. No religious test shall be required as a qualification for office.

Art. 13. All persons shall enjoy equal rights and privileges upon any conveyance of a public character; and all places of business, or of public resort, or for which a license is required by either state, parish, or municipal authority, shall be deemed places of a public character, and shall be opened to the accommodation and patronage of all persons, without distinction or discrimination on account of race or color.

Art. 14. The rights enumerated in this title shall not be construed to limit or abridge other rights of the people not herein expressed.

TITLE II.—LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Art. 15. The legislative power of the state shall be vested in two distinct branches; the one to be styled the house of representatives, the other the senate, and both the general assembly of the state of Louisiana.

Art. 16. The members of the house of representatives shall continue in office for two years from the day of the closing of the general elections.

Art. 17. Representatives shall be chosen on the first Monday in November every two years, and the election shall be completed in one day. The general assembly shall meet annually on the first Monday in January, unless a different day be appointed by law, and their sessions shall be held at the seat of government.

Art. 18. Every elector under this constitution shall be eligible to a seat in the house of representatives; and every elector who has reached the age of twenty-five years, shall be eligible to the senate; Provided, that no person shall be a representative or senator unless at the time of his election he be a qualified elector of the representative or senatorial district from which he is elected.

Art. 19. Elections for members of the general assembly shall be held at the several election precincts established by law.

Art. 20. Representation in the house of representatives shall be equal and uniform; and after the first general assembly elected under this constitution shall be ascertained and regulated by the total population, each parish in the state being entitled to at least one representative. A census of the state by state authority shall be taken in the year eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and every ten years thereafter. In case of informality, omission, or error in the census returns from any parish or election district, the general assembly may order a new census taken in such parish or election district; but until the state census of eighteen hundred and seventy-five, the apportionment of the state shall be made on the basis of the census of the United States for the year eighteen hundred and seventy.

Art. 21. The general assembly, at the first session after the making of each enumeration, shall apportion the representation amongst the several parishes and representative districts, on the basis of the total population, as aforesaid. A representative number shall be fixed, and each parish and representative district shall have as many representatives as the number of its total population will entitle it to have; and an additional representative for any fraction exceeding one-half of the representative number. The number of representatives shall never exceed one hundred and twenty, nor be less than ninety.

Art. 22. Until an apportionment shall be made in accordance with the provisions of article 20, the representation in the senate and house of representatives shall be as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| For the parish of Orleans: | | | |
| First representative district | | | Two |
| Second | " | " | Three |
| Third | " | " | Four |
| Fourth | " | " | Two |
| Fifth | " | " | Two |
| Sixth | " | " | One |
| Seventh | " | " | Two |
| Eighth | " | " | One |
| Ninth | " | " | Two |
| Tenth | " | " | Three |
| Orleans, right bank | | | One |
| Ascension | | | Two |
| Assumption | | | Two |
| Avoyelles | | | Two |
| Baton Rogue, East | | | Three |
| Baton Rogue, West | | | One |
| Bienville | | | One |
| Bossier | | | Two |
| Caddo | | | Three |
| Calcasieu | | | One |
| Caldwell | | | One |
| Carroll | | | Two |
| Catahoula | | | One |
| Claiborne | | | Two |
| Concordia | | | Two |
| De Soto | | | Two |
| Feliciana, East | | | Two |
| Feliciana, West | | | One |
| Franklin | | | One |
| Iberville | | | Two |
| Jackson | | | One |
| Jefferson | | | Four |
| Lafayette | | | One |
| Lafourche | | | Two |
| Livingston | | | One |
| Madison | | | One |
| Morehouse | | | One |
| Natchitoches | | | Two |
| Ouachita | | | Two |
| Plaquemines | | | One |
| Pointe Coupee | | | Two |
| Rapides | | | Three |
| Sabine | | | One |
| St. Bernard | | | One |
| St. Charles | | | One |
| St. Helena | | | One |
| St. James | | | Two |
| St. John Baptist | | | One |
| St. Landry | | | Four |
| St. Martin | | | Two |
| St. Mary | | | Two |
| St. Tammany | | | One |
| Tensas | | | Two |
| Terrebonne | | | Two |
| Union | | | One |
| Vermillion | | | One |
| Washington | | | One |
| Winn | | | One |
| Total | | | One hundred and one |

And the state shall be divided into the following senatorial districts, to wit :

The first, second, and third representative districts of New Orleans shall form one senatorial district, and elect three senators.

The fourth, fifth, and sixth representative districts of New Orleans shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The seventh, eighth, and ninth representative districts of New Orleans and the parish of St. Bernard shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The tenth representative district of New Orleans shall form one district, and elect one senator.

Orleans right bank and the parish of Plaquemines shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Jefferson, St. Charles, and St. John Baptist shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Ascension and St. James shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Assumption, Lafourche, and Terrebonne shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Vermillion and St. Mary shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Calcasieu, Lafayette, and St. Landry shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Livingston, St. Helena, Washington, and St. Tammany shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Pointe Coupee, East Feliciana, and West Feliciana shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parish of East Baton Rouge shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of West Baton Rouge, Iberville, and St. Martin shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Concordia and Avoyelles shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Tensas and Franklin shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Carroll, Madison, and Morehouse shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parishes of Ouachita and Caldwell shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Jackson and Union shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Bossier, Bienville, and Claiborne shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parish of Caddo shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of De Soto, Natchitoches, and Sabine shall form one district, and elect two senators.

The parish of Rapides shall form one district, and elect one senator.

The parishes of Catahoula and Winn shall form one district, and elect one senator.

Thirty-six senators in all.

ART. 23. The house of representatives shall choose its speaker and other officers.

ART. 24. Electors in all cases except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during their attendance on, going to, and returning from elections.

ART. 25. At its first session under this constitution, the general assembly shall provide by law that the names and residence of all qualified electors shall be registered, in order to entitle them to vote; but the registry shall be free of cost to the elector.

ART. 26. No person shall be entitled to vote at any election held in this state, except in the parish of his residence, and at the election precinct in which he is registered; Provided, That no voter in removing from one parish to another shall lose the right to vote in the former until he has acquired it in the latter.

ART. 27. The members of the senate shall be elected for the term of four years; and when assembled, the senate shall have power to choose its own officers, except as hereinafter provided.

ART. 28. The general assembly shall divide the state into senatorial districts whenever it apportions representation in the house of representatives.

ART. 29. No parish shall be divided in the formation of a senatorial district, the parish of Orleans excepted; and whenever a new parish shall be created it shall be attached to the senatorial district from which most of its territory is taken, or to another contiguous district, at the discretion of the general assembly, but shall not be attached to more than one district. The number of senators shall be thirty-six, and they shall be apportioned among the senatorial districts according to the total population of said districts.

ART. 30. In all apportionments of the senate the total population of the state shall be divided by the number thirty-six, and the result produced by this division shall be the senatorial ratio entitling a senatorial district to a senator.

Single or contiguous parishes shall be formed into districts having a population the nearest possible to the number entitling a district to a senator; and if the apportionment to make a parish or district fall short of, or exceed the ratio, then a district may be formed having not more than two senators; but not otherwise. No new apportionment shall have the effect of abridging the term of service of any senator already elected at the time of making the apportionment. After an enumeration has been made, as directed in the twentieth article, the general assembly shall not pass any law, till an apportionment of representation in both houses of the general assembly shall be made.

ART. 31. At the first session of the general assembly after this constitution goes into effect, the senators shall be divided equally by lot into two classes; the seats of the senators of the first class to be vacated at the expiration of the term of the first house of representatives; those of the second class at the expiration of the term of the second house of representatives; so that one-half shall be chosen every two years successively. When a district shall have elected two senators, their respective terms of office shall be determined by lot between themselves.

ART. 32. The first election for senators shall be held at the same time with the election for representatives; and thereafter there shall be elections of senators at the same time with each general election of representatives, to fill the places of those senators whose term of office may have expired.

ART. 33. Not less than a majority of the members of each house of the general assembly shall form a quorum to transact business; but a smaller number may adjourn from day to day, and shall have full power to compel the attendance of absent members.

ART. 34. Each house of the general assembly shall judge of the qualifications, election, and returns of its members, but a contested election shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed by law.

ART. 35. Each house of the general assembly may determine the rules of its proceedings, punish a member for disorderly conduct, and with a concurrence of two-thirds, expel a member, but not a second time for the same offense.

ART. 36. Each house of the general assembly shall keep and publish weekly a journal of its proceedings; and the yeas and nays of the members on any question, at the desire of any two of them, shall be entered on the journal.

ART. 37. Each house may punish by imprisonment any person not a member for disrespect and disorderly behavior in its presence, or for obstructing any of its proceedings; such imprisonment shall not exceed ten days for any one offense.

ART. 38. Neither house shall adjourn for more than three days, nor to any other place than that in which it may be sitting, during the sessions of the general assembly, without the consent of the other.

ART. 39. The members of the general assembly shall receive from the public treasury a compensation for their services, which shall be eight dollars per day during their attendance, going to, and returning from the sessions of their respective houses. This compensation may be increased or diminished by law, but no alteration shall take effect during the period of service of the members of the house of representatives by which such alteration shall have been made. No session shall extend beyond the period of sixty days, to date from its commencement; and any legislative action had after the expiration of said period of sixty days shall be null and void; but the first general assembly that shall convene after the adoption of this constitution may continue in session for one hundred and twenty days.

ART. 40. The members of the general assembly, in all cases except treason, felony, or breach of the peace, shall be privileged from arrest during their attendance at the sessions of their respective houses, and going to or returning from the same; and for any speech or debate in either house shall not be questioned in any other place.

ART. 41. No senator or representative during the term for which he was elected, nor for one year thereafter, shall be appointed to any civil office of profit under this state which shall have been created, or the emoluments of which may have been increased during the time such senator or representative was in office.

ART. 42. No bill shall have the force of a law until on three several days it be read in each house of the general assembly, and free discussion allowed thereon, unless four-fifths of the house where the bill is pending may deem it expedient to dispense with this rule.

ART. 43. All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the house of representatives, but the senate may propose amendments as in other bills; Provided, it shall not introduce any matter under the color of an amendment which does not relate to raising revenue.

ART. 44. The general assembly shall regulate by whom and in what manner writs of election shall be issued to fill the vacancies which may occur in either branch thereof.

ART. 45. On the confirmation or rejection of the officers to be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays; and the names of the senators voting for and against the appointments respectively shall be entered on the journals to be kept for the purpose, and made public on or before the end of each session.

ART. 46. Returns of all elections for members of the general assembly shall be made to the secretary of state.

ART. 47. In the year in which a regular election for a senator of the United States is to take place the members of the general assembly shall meet in the hall of the house of representatives on the second Monday following the meeting of the general assembly, and proceed to said election.

TITLE III.—EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

ART. 48. The supreme executive power of the state shall be vested in a chief magistrate, who shall be styled the governor of the state of Louisiana. He shall hold his office during the term of four years, and together with the lieutenant governor, chosen for the same term, be elected as follows: The qualified electors for representatives shall vote for governor and lieutenant governor at the time and place of voting for representatives; the returns of every election shall be sealed up and transmitted by the proper returning officer to the secretary of state, who shall deliver them to the speaker of the house of representatives on the second day of the session of the general assembly then to be holden. The members of the general assembly shall meet in the house of representatives to examine and count the votes. The person having the greatest number of votes for governor shall be declared duly elected; but in case of a tie vote between two or more candidates, one of them shall immediately be chosen governor by joint vote of the members of the general assembly. The person having the greatest number of votes polled for lieutenant governor shall be lieutenant governor; but in case of a tie vote between two or more candidates, one of them shall be immediately chosen lieutenant governor by joint vote of the members of the general assembly.

ART. 49. No person shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant governor who is not a citizen of the United States, and a resident of this state two years next preceding his election.

ART. 50. The governor shall be ineligible for the succeeding four years after the expiration of the time for which he shall have been elected.

ART. 51. The governor shall enter on the discharge of his duties on the second Monday in January next ensuing his election, and shall continue in office until the Monday next succeeding the day that his successor shall be declared duly elected, and shall have taken the oath or affirmation required by the constitution.

ART. 52. No member of congress or any person holding office under the United States government shall be eligible to the office of governor or lieutenant governor.

ART. 53. In case of impeachment of the governor, his removal from office, death, refusal or inability to qualify, or to discharge the powers and duties of his office, resignation or absence from the state, the powers and duties of the office shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor for the residue of the term, or until the governor, absent or impeached, shall return or be acquitted, or the disability be removed. The general assembly may provide by law for the case of removal, impeachment, death, resignation, disability, or refusal to qualify, of both the governor and the lieutenant governor, declaring what officer shall act as governor; and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability be removed, or for the remainder of the term.

ART. 54. The lieutenant governor or officer discharging the duties of governor, shall, during his administration, receive the same compensation to which the governor would have been entitled had he continued in office.

ART. 55. The lieutenant governor shall by virtue of his office be president of the senate, but shall only vote when the senate is equally divided. Whenever he shall administer the government, or shall be unable to attend as president of the senate, the senators shall elect one of their own members as president of the senate for the time being.

ART. 56. The governor shall receive a salary of eight thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant.

ART. 57. The lieutenant governor shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly upon his own warrant.

ART. 58. The governor shall have power to grant reprieves for all offenses against the state, and, except in cases of impeachment, shall, with the consent of the senate, have power to grant pardons, remit fines and forfeitures after conviction. In cases of treason he may grant reprieves until the end of the next session of the general assembly, in which the power of pardoning shall be vested. In cases when the punishment is not imprisonment at hard labor, the party upon being reprieved by the governor shall be released if in actual custody until final action by the senate.

ART. 59. He shall be commander-in-chief of the militia of this state, except when they shall be called into the service of the United States.

ART. 60. He shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of the senate appoint all officers whose offices are established by the constitution, and whose appointments are not herein otherwise provided for; Provided, however, That the general assembly shall have a right to prescribe the mode of appointment to all other offices established by law.

ART. 61. The governor shall have power to fill vacancies that may happen during the recess of the senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of the next session thereof, unless otherwise provided for in this constitution; but no person who has been nominated for office and rejected by the senate shall be appointed to the same office during the recess of the senate.

ART. 62. He may require information in writing from the officers in the executive department, upon any subject relating to the duties of their respective offices.

ART. 63. He shall, from time to time, give the general assembly information respecting the situation of the state, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he may deem expedient.

ART. 64. He may, on extraordinary occasions, convene the general assembly at the seat of government, or at a different place if that should have become dangerous from an enemy or from epidemic; and in case of disagreement between the two houses as to the time of adjournment, he may adjourn them to such time as he may think proper, not exceeding four months.

ART. 65. He shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

ART. 66. Every bill which shall have passed both houses shall be presented to the governor; if he approve he shall sign it; if he do not he shall return it with his objections to the house in which it originated, which shall enter the objections at large upon its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If, after such reconsideration, two-thirds of all the members present in that house shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent with the objections to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered, and if approved by two-thirds of the members present in that house it shall be a law. But in such cases the vote of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of members voting for or against the bill shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively. If any bill shall not be returned by the governor within five days after it shall have been presented to him, it shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly, by adjournment, prevent its return, in which case the said bill shall be returned on the first day of the meeting of the general assembly after the expiration of said five days, or be a law.

ART. 67. Every order, resolution, or vote, to which the concurrence of both houses may be necessary, except on a question of adjournment, shall be presented to the governor, and before it shall take effect be approved by him, or, being disapproved, shall be repassed by two-thirds of the members present.

ART. 68. There shall be a secretary of state, who shall hold his office during the term for which the governor shall have been elected. The records of the state shall be kept and preserved in the office of the secretary; he shall keep a fair register of the official acts and proceedings of the governor, and when necessary shall attest them; he shall, when required, lay the said register and all papers, minutes, and vouchers relative to his office before either house of the general assembly, and shall perform such other duties as may be enjoined on him by law.

ART. 69. There shall be a treasurer of the state, and an auditor of public accounts, who shall hold their respective offices during the term of four years. At the first election under this constitution, the treasurer shall be elected for two years.

ART. 70. The secretary of state, treasurer, and auditor of public accounts shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state, and in case of any vacancy caused by the resignation, death, or absence of the secretary, treasurer, or auditor, the governor shall order an election to fill said vacancies; Provided, The unexpired term to be filled be more than twelve months; when otherwise, the governor shall appoint a person to perform the duties of the office thus vacant until the ensuing general election.

ART. 71. The treasurer and the auditor shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum each. The secretary of state shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum.

ART. 72. All commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the state of Louisiana; and shall be sealed with the state seal, signed by the governor, and countersigned by the secretary of state.

TITLE IV.—JUDICIARY DEPARTMENT.

ART. 73. The judicial power shall be vested in a supreme court, in district courts, in parish courts, and in justices of the peace.

ART. 74. The supreme court, except in cases hereinafter provided, shall have appellate jurisdiction only; which jurisdiction shall extend to all cases when the matter in dispute shall exceed five hundred dollars; and to all cases in which the constitutionality or legality of any tax, toll, or impost of any kind or nature whatsoever, or any fine, forfeiture, or penalty imposed by a municipal corporation shall be in contestation, whatever may be the amount thereof; and in such cases the appeal shall be direct from the court in which the case originated to the supreme court; and in criminal cases, on questions of law only, whenever the punishment of death, or imprisonment at hard labor, or a fine exceeding three hundred dollars is actually imposed.

ART. 75. The supreme court shall be composed of one chief justice and four associate justices, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum. The chief justice shall receive a salary of seven thousand five hundred dollars, and each of the associate justices a salary of seven thousand dollars annually, payable quarterly on their own warrants. The chief justice and the associate justices shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, for the term of eight years. They shall be citizens of the United States, and shall have practiced law for five years, the last three thereof next preceding their appointment in the state. The court shall appoint its own clerks, and may remove them at pleasure.

ART. 76. The supreme court shall hold its sessions in the city of New Orleans from the first Monday in the month of November to the end of the month of May. The general assembly shall have power to fix the sessions elsewhere during the rest of the year; until otherwise provided, the sessions shall be held as heretofore.

ART. 77. The supreme court, and each of the judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus at the instance of persons in actual custody in cases when they may have appellate jurisdiction.

ART. 78. No judgment shall be rendered by the supreme court without a concurrence of a majority composing the court. Whenever the majority can not concur in consequence of the recusation of any member of the court, the judges not recused shall have power to call upon any judge or judges of the district courts, whose duty it shall be when so called upon to preside in the place of the judge or judges recused, and to aid in determining the case.

ART. 79. All judges, by virtue of their office, shall be conservators of the peace throughout the state. The style of all process shall be "The state of Louisiana." All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the state of Louisiana, and conclude "against the peace and dignity of the same."

ART. 80. The judges of all courts whenever practicable shall refer to the law in virtue of which every definitive judgment is rendered; but in all cases they shall adduce the reasons on which their judgment is founded.

ART. 81. The judges of all courts shall be liable to impeachment for crimes and misdemeanors. For any reasonable cause the governor shall remove any of them, on the address of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the general assembly. In every such case the cause or causes for which such removal may be required shall be stated at length in the address, and inserted in the journal of each house.

ART. 82. No duties or functions shall ever be attached by law to the supreme or district courts, or the several judges thereof, but such as are judicial; and the said judges are prohibited from receiving any fees of office, or other compensation than their salaries, for any official duties performed by them.

ART. 83. The general assembly shall divide the state into judicial districts, which shall remain unchanged for four years, and for each district court one judge, learned in the law, shall be elected for each district, by a plurality of the qualified electors thereof. For each district there shall be one district court, except in the parish of Orleans, in which the general assembly may establish as many district courts as the public interests may require. Until otherwise provided there shall be seven district courts for the parish of Orleans, with the following original jurisdiction: The first, exclusive criminal jurisdiction; the second, exclusive probate jurisdiction; the third, exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from justices of the peace; the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh district courts, exclusive jurisdiction in all civil cases, except probate, when the sum in contest is above one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. These seven courts shall have such further jurisdiction, not inconsistent herewith, as shall be conferred by law.

The number of districts in the state shall not be less than twelve nor more than twenty. The clerks of the district courts shall be elected by the qualified electors of their respective parishes, and shall hold their office for four years.

ART. 84. Each of said judges shall receive a salary to be fixed by law, which shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office, and shall never be less than five thousand dollars. He must be a citizen of the United States, over the age of twenty-five years, and have resided in the state and practiced law therein for the space of two years next preceding his election. The judges of the district courts shall hold their office for the term of four years.

ART. 85. The district courts shall have original jurisdiction in all civil cases when the amount in dispute exceeds five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. In criminal cases their jurisdiction shall be unlimited. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil ordinary suits, when the amount in dispute exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest.

ART. 86. For each parish court, one judge shall be elected by the qualified electors of the parish. He shall hold his office for the term of two years. He shall receive a salary and fees, to be provided by law. Until otherwise provided, each parish judge shall receive a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum, and such fees as are established by law for clerks of district courts. He shall be a citizen of the United States and of this state.

ART. 87. The parish courts shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the justices of the peace in all cases when the amount in controversy is more than twenty-five dollars, and less than one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. They shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in ordinary suits, in all cases when the amount in dispute exceeds one hundred dollars and does not exceed five hundred dollars, subject to an appeal to the district court in all cases when the amount in contestation exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. All successions shall be opened and settled in the parish courts; and all suits in which a succession is either plaintiff or defendant may be brought either in the parish or district court, according to the amount involved. In criminal matters the parish courts shall have jurisdiction in all cases when the penalty is not necessarily imprisonment at hard labor or death, and when the accused shall waive trial by jury. They shall also have the power of committing magistrates and such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on them by law. There shall be no trial by jury before the parish courts.

ART. 88. In all probate matters, when the amount in dispute shall exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, the appeal shall be directly from the parish to the supreme court.

ART. 89. The justices of the peace shall be elected by the electors of each parish, in the manner to be provided by the general assembly. They shall hold office for the term of two years, and their compensation shall be fixed by law. Their jurisdiction in civil cases shall not exceed one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, subject to an appeal to the parish courts in all cases when the amount in dispute shall exceed ten dollars, exclusive of interest. They shall have such criminal jurisdiction as shall be provided for by law.

ART. 90. In any case when the judge may be recused, and when he is not personally interested in the matters in contestation, he shall select a lawyer having the qualifications required for a judge of his court to try such cases. And when the judge is personally interested in the suit, he shall call upon the parish or district judge, as the case may be, to try the case.

ART. 91. The general assembly shall have power to vest in the parish judges the right to grant such orders and to do such acts as may be deemed necessary for the furtherance of the administration of justice; and in all cases the power thus granted shall be specified and determined.

ART. 92. There shall be an attorney general for the state, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state at large. He shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant, and shall hold his office for four years. There shall be a district attorney for each judicial district of the state, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the judicial district. He shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars, payable quarterly on his own warrant, and shall hold his office for four years.

ART. 93. There shall be a sheriff and coroner elected by the qualified electors of each parish, except the parish of Orleans. In the parish of Orleans there shall be elected by the qualified electors of the parish at large one sheriff for the criminal court, who shall be the executive officer of said court, and shall have charge of the parish prison. There shall also be elected by the qualified electors of the parish at large one sheriff, who shall be the executive officer of the civil courts, and who shall perform all other duties heretofore devolving upon the sheriff of the parish of Orleans, except those herein delegated to the sheriff of the criminal court. The qualified electors of the city of New Orleans, residing below the middle of Canal street, shall elect one coroner for that district, and the qualified electors of the city of New Orleans, residing above the middle of Canal street, together with those residing in that part of the parish known as Orleans right bank, shall elect one coroner for that district. All of said officers shall hold their office for two years; and receive such fees of office as may be prescribed by law.

ART. 94. No judicial powers, except as committing magistrates, in criminal cases, shall be conferred on any officers other than those mentioned in this title; except such as may be necessary in towns and cities; and the judicial powers of such officer shall not extend further than the cognizance of cases arising under the police regulations of towns and cities in the state. In any case where such officers shall assume jurisdiction over other matters than those which may arise under police regulations, or under their jurisdiction, as committing magistrates, they shall be liable to an action of damages in favor of the party injured, or his heirs; and a verdict in favor of the party injured shall, ipso facto, operate a vacation of the office of said officer.

TITLE V.—IMPEACHMENT.

ART. 95. The power of impeachment shall be vested in the house of representatives.

ART. 96. Impeachments of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, auditor of public accounts, state treasurer, superintendent of public education, and of the judges of the inferior courts, justices of the peace excepted, shall be tried by the senate; the chief justice of the supreme court, or the senior associate judge thereof, shall preside during the trial of such impeachments. Impeachments of the judges of the supreme court shall be tried by the senate. When sitting as a court of impeachment the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators present.

ART. 97. Judgments in cases of impeachment shall extend only to removal from office, and disqualification from holding any office of honor, trust, or profit in the state; but the convicted parties shall nevertheless be subject to indictment, trial, and punishment according to law.

TITLE VI.—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

ART. 98. Every male person of the age of twenty-one years or upward, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and a resident of this state one year next preceding an election, and the last ten days within the parish in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed an elector, except those disfranchised by this constitution, and persons under interdiction.

ART. 99. The following persons shall be prohibited from voting and holding any office: All persons who shall have been convicted of treason, perjury, forgery, bribery, or other crime punishable in the penitentiary, and persons under interdiction.

All persons who are estopped from claiming the right of suffrage by abjuring their allegiance to the United States government, or by notoriously levying war against it, or adhering to its enemies, giving them aid or comfort, but who have not expatriated themselves, nor have been convicted of any of the crimes mentioned in the first paragraph of this article, are hereby restored to the said right, except the following: Those who held office, civil or military, for one year or more under the organization styled "The Confederate States of America;" those who registered themselves as enemies of the United States; those who acted as leaders of guerrilla bands during the late rebellion; those who in the advocacy of treason wrote or published newspaper articles or preached sermons during the late rebellion, and those who voted for and signed an ordinance of secession in any state. No person included in these exceptions shall either vote or hold office until he shall have relieved himself by voluntarily writing and signing a certificate setting forth that he acknowledges the late rebellion to have been morally and politically wrong, and that he regrets any aid and comfort he may have given it; and he shall file the certificate in the office of the secretary of state, and it shall be published in the official journal:

Provided, That no person who prior to the first of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, favored the execution of the laws of the United States popularly known as the reconstruction acts of congress, and openly and actively assisted the loyal men of the state in their efforts to restore Louisiana to her position in the Union, shall be held to be included among those herein excepted. Registrars of voters shall take the oath of any such person as prima facie evidence of the fact that he is entitled to the benefit of this proviso.

ART. 100. Members of the general assembly and all other officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I, (A. B.,) do solemnly swear (or affirm,) that I accept the civil and political equality of all men, and agree not to attempt to deprive any person or persons on account of race, color, or previous condition, of any political or civil right, privilege, or immunity enjoyed by any other class of men. That I will support the constitution and laws of the United States and the constitution and laws of this state, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as —— according to the best of my ability and understanding. So help me God."

ART. 101. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies—giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason except on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on his confession in open court.

ART. 102. All penalties shall be proportioned to the nature of the offense.

ART. 103. The privilege of free suffrage shall be supported by laws regulating elections, and prohibiting under adequate penalties all undue influence thereon from power, bribery, tumult, or other improper practice.

ART. 104. No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in pursuance of specific appropriations made by law. A statement and account of receipts and expenditures of all public moneys shall be made annually, in such manner as shall be prescribed by law; and the first general assembly convening under this constitution shall make a special appropriation to liquidate whatever portion of the debt of this convention may at that time remain unpaid or unprovided for.

ART. 105. All civil officers of the state at large shall be voters of and reside within the state; and all district or parish officers shall reside within their respective districts or parishes, and shall keep their offices at such place therein as may be required by law.

ART. 106. All civil officers shall be removable by an address of two-thirds of the members elect to each house of the general assembly, except those whose removal is otherwise provided for by this constitution.

ART. 107. In all elections by the people the vote shall be taken by ballot; and in all elections by the senate and house of representatives, jointly or separately, the vote shall be given viva voce.

ART. 108. None but citizens of the United States and of this state shall be appointed to any office of trust or profit in this state.

ART. 109. The laws, public records, and the judicial and legislative proceedings of the state shall be promulgated, and preserved in the English language; and no law shall require judicial process to be issued in any other than the English language.

ART. 110. No ex post facto or retroactive law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall be passed; nor vested rights be divested, unless for purposes of public utility, and for adequate compensation made.

ART. 111. Whenever the general assembly shall contract a debt exceeding in amount the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, unless in case of war, to repel invasion, or suppress insurrection, it shall, in the law creating the debt, provide adequate ways and means for the payment of the current interest, and of the principal when the same shall become due; and the said law shall be irrepealable until principal and interest be fully paid; or unless the repealing law contain some adequate provision for the payment of the principal and interest of the debt.

ART. 112. The general assembly shall provide by law for all change of venue in civil and criminal cases.

ART. 113. The general assembly may enact general laws regulating the adoption of children, emancipation of minors, and the granting of divorces; but no special law shall be passed relating to particular or individual cases.

ART. 114. Every law shall express its object or objects in its title.

ART. 115. No law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title; but in such case the revived or amended section shall be re-enacted and published at length.

ART. 116. The general assembly shall never adopt any system or code of laws by general reference to such system or code of laws; but in all cases shall specify the several provisions of the law it may enact.

ART. 117. No person shall hold or exercise at the same time more than one office of trust or profit except that of justice of the peace or notary public.

ART. 118. Taxation shall be equal and uniform throughout the state; all property shall be taxed in proportion to its value, to be ascertained as directed by law; the general assembly shall have power to exempt from taxation property actually used for church, school, or charitable purposes. The general assembly may levy an income tax upon all persons pursuing any occupation, trade, or calling. And all such persons shall obtain a license as provided by law. All tax on income shall be pro rata on the amount of income, or business done. And all deeds of sale made or that may be made by collectors of taxes, shall be received by courts in evidence as prima facie valid sales. The general assembly shall levy a poll tax on all male inhabitants of this state over twenty-one years old, for school and charitable purposes, which tax shall never exceed one dollar and fifty cents per annum.

ART. 119. No liability, either state, parochial, or municipal, shall exist for any debts contracted for or in the interest of the rebellion against the United States government.

ART. 120. The general assembly may determine the mode of filling vacancies in all offices for which provision is not made in this constitution.

ART. 121. The general assembly shall pass no law requiring a property qualification for office.

ART. 122. All officers shall continue to discharge the duties of their offices until their successors shall have been inducted into office; except in cases of impeachment or suspension.

ART. 123. The general assembly shall provide for the protection of the rights of married women to their dotal and paraphernal property, and for the registration of the same; but no mortgage or privilege shall hereafter affect third parties unless recorded in the parish where the property to be affected is situated. The tacit mortgages and privileges now existing in this state shall cease to have effect against third persons after the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy, unless duly recorded. The general assembly shall provide by law for the registration of all mortgages and privileges.

ART. 124. The general assembly, at its first session under this constitution, shall provide an annual pension for the veterans of eighteen hundred and fourteen and eighteen hundred and fifteen residing in the state.

ART. 125. The military shall be in subordination to the civil power.

ART. 126. It shall be the duty of the general assembly to make it obligatory upon each parish to support all paupers residing within its limits.

ART. 127. All agreements, the consideration of which was confederate money, notes, or bonds, are null and void; and shall not be enforced by the courts of this state.

ART. 128. Contracts for the sale of persons are null and void; and shall not be enforced by the courts of this state.

ART. 129. The state of Louisiana shall never assume nor pay any debt or obligation contracted or incurred in aid of the rebellion; nor shall this state ever in any manner claim from the United States or make any allowance or compensation for slaves emancipated or liberated in any way whatever.

ART. 130. All contracts made and entered into under the pretended authority of any governments heretofore existing in this state, by which children were bound out without the knowledge or consent of their parents, are hereby declared null and void; nor shall any child be bound out to any one for any term of years, while either one of its parents live, without the consent of such parent, except in cases of children legally sent to the house of correction.

ART. 131. The seat of government shall be established at the city of New Orleans, and shall not be removed without the consent of two-thirds of the members of both houses of the general assembly.

ART. 132. All lands sold in pursuance of decrees of courts shall be divided into tracts of from ten to fifty acres.

ART. 133. No judicial powers shall be exercised by clerks of courts.

ART. 134. No soldier, sailor, or marine in the military or naval service of the United States shall hereafter acquire a residence in this state by reason of being stationed or doing duty in the same.

TITLE VII.—PUBLIC EDUCATION.

ART. 135. The general assembly shall establish at least one free public school in every parish throughout the state, and shall provide for its support by taxation or otherwise. All children of this state between the ages of six (6) and twenty-one (21) shall be admitted to the public schools or other institutions of learning sustained or established by the state, in common, without distinction of race, color, or previous condition. There shall be no separate schools or institutions of learning established exclusively for any race by the state of Louisiana.

ART. 136. No municipal corporation shall make any rules or regulations contrary to the spirit and intention of article one hundred and thirty-five (135.)

ART. 137. There shall be elected by the qualified voters of this state a superintendent of public education, who shall hold his office for four years. His duties shall be prescribed by law, and he shall have the supervision and the general control of all public schools throughout this state. He shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant.

ART. 138. The general exercises in the public schools shall be conducted in the English language.

ART. 139. The proceeds of all lands heretofore granted by the United States for the use and support of public schools, and of all lands or other property which may hereafter be bequeathed for that purpose, and of all lands which may be granted or bequeathed to the state, and not granted or bequeathed expressly for any other purpose which may hereafter be disposed of by the state, and the proceeds of all estates of deceased persons to which the state may be entitled by law, shall be held by the state as a loan, and shall be and remain a perpetual fund on which the state shall pay an annual interest of six per cent, which interest, with the interest of the trust fund deposited with this state by the United States, under the act of congress approved June the twenty-third, eighteen hundred and thirty-six, and the rent of the unsold lands, shall be appropriated to the support of such schools, and this appropriation shall remain inviolable.

ART. 140. No appropriation shall be made by the general assembly for the support of any private school, or any private institution of learning whatever.

ART. 141. One half of the funds derived from the poll tax herein provided for shall be appropriated exclusively to the support of the free public schools throughout the state, and the university of New Orleans.

ART. 142. A university shall be established and maintained in the city of New Orleans. It shall be composed of a law, a medical, and a collegiate department, each with appropriate faculties. The general assembly shall provide by law for its organization and maintenance; Provided, That all departments of this institution of learning shall be opened in common to all students capable of matriculating. No rules or regulations shall be made by the trustees, faculties, or other officers of said institution of learning, nor shall any laws be made by the general assembly violating the letter or spirit of the articles under this title.

ART. 143. Institutions for the support of the insane, the education and support of the blind and the deaf and dumb, shall always be fostered by the state, and be subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the general assembly.

TITLE VIII.—MILITIA.

ART. 144. It shall be the duty of the general assembly to organize the militia of the state; and all able-bodied male citizens between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, not disfranchised by the laws of the United States and of this state, shall be subject to military duty.

ART. 145. The governor shall appoint all commissioned officers, subject to confirmation or rejection by the senate, except the staff officers, who shall be appointed by their respective chiefs, and commissioned by the governor. All militia officers shall take and subscribe to the oath prescribed for officers of the United States army and the oath prescribed for officers in this state.

ART. 146. The governor shall have power to call the militia into active service for the preservation of law and order, or when the public safety may require it. The militia when in active service shall receive the same pay and allowances as officers and privates, as is received by officers and privates in the United States army.

TITLE IX.—MODE OF REVISING THE CONSTITUTION.

ART. 147. Any amendment or amendments to this constitution may be proposed in the senate or house of representatives, and if the same shall be agreed to by two-thirds of the members elected to each house, such proposed amendment or amendments shall be entered on their respective journals, with the yeas and nays taken thereon; and the secretary of state shall cause the same to be published three months before the next general election for representatives to the general assembly, in at least one newspaper in every parish in the state in which a newspaper shall be published. And such proposed amendment or amendments shall be submitted to the people at said election; and if amajority of the voters at said election shall approve and ratify such amendment or amendments, the same shall become a part of this constitution. If more than one amendment shall be submitted at one time, they shall be submitted in such manner and form that the people may vote for or against each amendment separately.

TITLE X.—SCHEDULE.

ART. 148. The ordinance of secession o the state of Louisiana, passed twenty-sixth of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, is hereby declared to be null and void. The constitution adopted in eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and all previous constitutions in the state of Louisiana, are declared to be superseded by this constitution.

ART. 149. All rights, actions, prosecutions, claims, contracts, and all laws in force at the time of the adoption of this constitution, and not inconsistent therewith, shall continue as if it had not been adopted; all judgments and judicial sales, marriages, and executed contracts made in good faith, and in accordance with the existing laws in this state, rendered, made, or entered into, between the twenty-sixth day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-one, and the date when this constitution shall be adopted are hereby declared to be valid, except the following laws:

"An act to authorize the widening of the new canal and basin," approved March fourteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

"An act to amend and re-enact the one hundred and twenty-first section of an act entitled, 'An act relative to crimes and offenses,'" approved December twentieth, eighteen hundred and sixty-five.

"An act for the punishment of persons for tampering with, persuading, or enticing away, harboring, feeding, or secreting laborers, servants, or apprentices," approved December twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-five.

"An act to punish, in certain cases, the employers of laborers and apprentices," approved December twenty-first, eighteen hundred and sixty-five.

"An act in relation to exemption from state, parish, and city taxes for the years eighteen hundred and sixty-two, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and eighteen hundred and sixty-five, in certain cases." Certified sixteenth March, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

"An act granting ferry privileges to C. K. Marshall, his heirs, or assigns." Approved March tenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

"An act to authorize the board of levee commissioners of the levee district in the parishes of Madison and Carroll to issue bonds," etc., etc. Approved March twenty-eighth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven.

Section third of "An act to organize the police of New Orleans, and to create a police board therein." Approved twelfth February, eighteen hundred and sixty-six.

ART. 150. The laws relative to the duties of officers shall remain in force, though contrary to this constitution, and the several duties be performed by the respective officers, until the organization of the government under this constitution.

ART. 151. The general assembly shall provide for the removal of causes now pending in the courts of this state to courts created by or under this constitution.

TITLE XI.—ORDINANCE.

ART. 152. Immediately upon the adjournment of this convention this constitution shall be submitted for ratification to the registered voters of the state, in conformity to the act of congress passed March second, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, entitled "An act to provide for the more efficient government of the rebel states," and the acts supplementary thereto.

ART. 153. The election for the ratification of the constitution shall be held on Friday and Saturday, the seventeenth and eighteenth days of April, eighteen hundred and sixty-eight, at the places now prescribed by law; and the polls shall be kept open from 7 o'clock A. M. to 7 o'clock P. M. At that election all those in favor of ratifying the constitution shall have written or printed on their ballots "For the constitution," and those opposed to ratifying the constitution shall have written or printed on their ballots "Against the constitution."

ART. 154. In order to establish a civil government, as required by act of congress, passed March twenty-third, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, an election shall be held at the same time and place at which the constitution is submitted for ratification for all state, judicial, parish, and municipal officers, for members of the general assembly, and for congressional representatives, at which election the electors who are qualified under the reconstruction acts of congress shall vote, and none others; Provided, That any elector shall be eligible to any office under any municipal corporation in this state.

ART. 155. At the election for the ratification of the constitution, and for officers of the civil government as required by congress, all registered electors may vote in any parish where they have resided for ten days next preceding said election, and at any precinct in the parish, upon presentation of their certificates of registration, affidavit, or other satisfactory evidence that they are entitled to vote as registered electors.

ART. 156. The same registrars and commissioners who shall be appointed by the commanding general of the fifth military district to superintend the election for the ratification or rejection of the constitution shall also, at the same time and place, superintend the election for all officers and representatives herein ordered; provided they be authorized so to act by the commanding general. And in case the commanding general should not so authorize said registrars and commissioners, the committee of seven appointed by this convention to take charge of the whole matter of the ratification of the constitution and the election of civil officers shall appoint one registrar for each parish in the state, except the parish of Orleans, and one in each district of the parish of Orleans, counting Orleans right bank as one district, who shall, each in his parish or district, appoint a sufficient number of commissioners of election to hold the said election for the said civil officers and representatives at the same time and place as herein provided for.

ART. 157. Returns shall be made in duplicate, sworn to by the commissioners holding the election, and forwarded within three days thereafter to the registrars of the parish or district. The registrars shall immediately forward one copy of said returns to the chairman of the committee of seven, appointed by this convention, who shall, within ten days after the last return has been received, make proclamation of the result of said election.

ART. 158. All civil officers thus elected shall enter upon the discharge of their duties on the second Monday after the return of their election shall have been officially promulgated, or as soon as qualified according to law, and shall continue in office for the terms of their respective offices herein prescribed, said terms to date from the first Monday in November following the election.

ART. 159. The general assembly, elected under this constitution, shall hold its first session in the city of New Orleans on the third Monday after the official promulgation aforesaid, and proceed immediately upon its organization to vote upon the adoption of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, proposed by congress, and passed June thirteenth, eighteen hundred and sixty-six; said general assembly shall not have power to enact any laws relative to the per diem of members, or any other subject, after organization, until said constitutional amendment shall have been acted upon.

ART. 160. All registrars and commissioners appointed under this constitution shall, before entering upon their duties, take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by congress, approved July second, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, entitled "An act to prescribe an oath of office;" the said oath of office shall be administered to each registrar by the chairman of the committee of seven and to each commissioner by the registrar appointing him.

ART. 161. All registrars, commissioners, and other officers necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this ordinance, except as otherwise provided for by the reconstruction acts of congress, shall be paid out of any funds raised by virtue of the tax ordinance adopted by the convention, December twenty-fourth, eighteen hundred and sixty-seven, not otherwise appropriated.

JAMES G. TALIAFERRO,
President;

C. C. ANTOINE,
L. W. BAKER,
S. BELDEN,
A. BERTONNEAU,
W. JASPER BLACKBURN,
O. C. BLANDIN,
HENRY BONSEIGNEUR,
EMILE BONNEFOI,
WILLIAM BROWN,
DENNIS BURREL,
WILLIAM BUTLER,
W. R. CRANE,
R. I. CROMWELL,
SAMUEL E. CUNEY,
A. J. DAMAREST,
CHARLES DEPASSEAU,
P. G. DESLONDE,
JOSEPH DESLONDE,
AUG. DONATO, JR.,
DAVID DOUGLAS,
GUSTAVE DUPART,
ULGER DUPART,
C. B. H. DUPLESSIS,
J. B. ESNARD,
LOUIS FRANCOIS,
HENRY W. FULLER,
JOHN GAIR,
R. G. GARDINER,
LEOPOLD GUICHARD,
PETER HARPER,
JOHN S. HARRIS,
O. H. HEMPSTEAD,
W. H. HIESTAND,
J. H. INGRAHAM,
R. H. ISABELLE,
THOMAS ISABELLE,
GEORGE H. JACKSON,
SIMON JONES,
GEORGE Y. KELSO,
JAMES H. LANDERS,
VICTOR M. LANGE,
CHARLES LEROY,
J. B. LEWIS,
RICHARD LEWIS,
JOHN LYNCH,
FREDERICK MARIE,
THOMAS M. MARTIN,
J. A. MASSICOT,
WILLIAM R. MEADOWS,
BENJAMIN McLERAN,
W. L. McMILLEN
MILTON MORRIS,
S. R. MOSES,
WILLIAM MURREL,
JAMES MUSHAWAY,
THEOPHILE MAHIER,
J. P. NEWSHAM,
JOSEPH C. OLIVER,
S. B. PACKARD,
JOHN PIERCE,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK,
ROBERT POINDEXTER,
CURTIS POLLARD,
GEORGE W. REAGAN,
DANIEL H. REESE,
FORTUNE RIARD,
D. D. RIGGS,
J. A. H. ROBERTS,
L. RODRIGUEZ,
N. SCHWAB,
CHARLES SMITH,
SOSTHENE SNAER,
HIRAM R. STEELE,
CHARLES H. THIBAUT,
ED. TINCHANT,
M. H. TWITCHELL,
NAPOLEON UNDERWOOD,
P. F. VALFROIT,
JOHN B. VANDERGRIEFF,
MICHEL VIDAL,
RUFUS WAPLES,
G. M. WICKLIFFE,
HENDERSON WILLIAMS,
DAVID WILSON.

Attest: WILLIAM VIGERS,
Secretary.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 11, 1868.

I certify that the foregoing is a correct copy of the constitution as taken from the official records of the convention.

HUGH J. CAMPBELL,
Minute Clerk.

LEGAL NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 88.
IN THE MATTER OF LEOPOLD BEER, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS LEOPOLD BEER, OF THE CITY of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixteenth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 13, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh15 25 ap8 Deputy Clerk.

LEGAL NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
No. 38.—In Bankruptcy.
IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM D. WINTER, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS WILLIAM D. WINTER, OF THE parish of West Feliciana and District aforesaid, dul declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixteenth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 12, 1868.
mh13 22 30 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
FOR THE DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 38.
IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM D. WINTER, Bankrupt.

To the Hon. Edward H. Durell, Judge of Said Court.

THE PETITION OF THOMAS BUTLER, OF the parish of West Feliciana, and of EMORY E. NORTON, of the city of New Orleans, said State, assignee of the estate of said bankrupt, respectfully represents: That a large portion of the estate of said bankrupt surrendered by him to his creditors, and liable for his debts, consists of the following property—

1. LANDS in West Baton Rouge (1)—Section 39, part of section 37, fractional sections 22, 23, 26, lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 12, 13 of section 27, all in township 5 S., range 11 E., containing 980 acres, and forming part of "Arbrouth" plantation, with remains of sugarhouse, and such other improvements as are left. The incumbrances on these said lands are—
First—Lien for state and parish taxes. (Nos. 2 and 4 on schedule A 1.)
Second—Tacit mortgage in favor of Samuel Winter. (No 2 schedule A 2.)
Third—Mortgage to Bank of Louisiana. (No. 3 same schedule.)
Fourth—Mortgage to Thomas R. Jennings. (No. 4 same schedule.)
Fifth—Mortgage to heirs Sarah M. Winter. (No. 5 of same schedule.)

2. LANDS in West Baton Rouge—The southwest ¼ of section 27 S., 5 R. 11; fractional section 28, 5 R. 11, containing 111 48-100 acres, and forming part of same plantation.

3. The northeast ¼ of northeast ¼ of section 36, and southwest ¼ of section 25, T. 6, R. 10, containing 201 65-100 acres, and situated on Bayou Poydras. The incumbrances on second and third, as described above, are—
First—Lien for State and parish taxes.
Second—Tacit mortgage of Samuel Winter.
Third—Mortgage to Thomas R. Jennings.
Fourth—Mortgage of Mrs. Sarah M. Winter.

4. LANDS in East Baton Rouge—The undivided half of 1768 acres of land on or near the Comite river, composed of parts of sections 25, 26, 27, 34, 35, 36, T. 5, R. 1 E., and fractional half of section 17, and half of section 16 in T. 5 S. R. 2 E.
The incumbrances on these lands are—
First—Lien for State and parish taxes.
Second—Mortgage in favor of Samuel Winter.
Third—Mortgage in favor of Sarah M. Winter.

That among the personal property surrendered by said bankrupt are two mares and colts, which are perishable, and should be sold. That it is impossible to fix and ascertain the amounts for which the mortgagees of the above described mortgaged lands will be creditors after deducting the value of the mortgaged property, and that the final settlement of said estate is impracticable unless said lands are sold, and the proceeds of the same divided among said mortgagees according to the rank of their several mortgages; wherefore they pray that a sale of all the before-mentioned and described property may be ordered to be made at such time and place, and in such manner as your honor may designate, for the purpose of paying and discharging said mortgages, and as in duty bound. etc.

(Signed) THOMAS BUTLER,
(Signed) E. E. NORTON,
Assignees.

Upon filing the above petition it is ordered by the Court that said mortgagees, and all persons interested, show cause upon the twentieth day of March, 1868, before the Court at 11 o'clock A. M. why the prayer of this petition should not be granted, and why said property should not be sold by said assignees, and why all mortgages and liens recorded against said property should not be erased and canceled, so that said assignees may convey a clear and unincumbered title to any purchaser, reserving to the owners of said mortgages and liens all their rights in law upon the proceeds thereof after deducting the expenses of said sale; and it is further ordered that service of this petition and order be made by publishing the same three times in the New Orleans Republican, and by personal service upon the Bank of Louisiana, J. W. Burbridge, agent of Thomas R. Jennings.

March 14, 1868.
(Signed) E. H. DURELL, Judge.
Clerk's Office—True copy:
K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.
New Orleans, March 14, 1868. mh17 18 19

TO THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
Sitting in Bankruptcy.
IN THE MATTER OF LOEB, SIMON & CO—No. 86.

THE PETITION OF E. E. NORTON, JOHN LIVINGSTON, and A. D. DIETER, all of New Orleans, assignees of the estate of said bankrupts, respectfully represents that among the assets surrendered by said bankrupts there is the following described real estate to wit:

A Four Story Brick BUILDING (iron front) No. 84 Canal street, New Orleans.

This property was purchased by M. Simon and S. Loeb from the executors of S. F. Slatter, deceased.

That said real estate is incumbered by mortgages to the amount of about $109,000, as follows:
1. A mortgage in favor of the city of New Orleans for about $5000.
2. A mortgage in favor of the executors of Slatter for about $40,000, now held and owned by W. S. Pike, Mr. J. E. Zuntz, and W. O. Denegre, Executors, etc., and Sullivan, Billings & Hughes, Attorneys of parties unknown.
3. A mortgage of about $40,000, now held and owned by W. G. Vincent.
4. One mortgage of $15,000, and one of $15,500, held by unknown parties.

And your petitioners further represent that it is impossible to ascertain the value of said property, and the amount and priority of the various liens and mortgages existing thereon, without a sale of said property freed and discharged from all said mortgages and liens, and that such sale is necessary to a proper, fair, and expeditious settlement of the said bankrupt's estate.

Wherefore your petitioners pray that said real estate above described may be sold according to law, upon such terms as this honorable Court shall direct, and that the mortgages and liens resting thereon shall be raised and canceled, so that the purchasers may have a clear and unincumbered title, and they pray for all such further orders and relief as are necessary to carry out the prayer of this petition.

(Signed) H. D. STONE,
Attorney for Assignees.

On motion of H. D. Stone, attorney for the assignees of Loeb, Simon & Co., bankrupts, and upon the filing of the above petition, it is Ordered by the Court, that the holders of the mortgages therein described be notified to appear and show cause, upon the twentieth day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., before the United States District Court, District of Louisiana, why said petition should not be granted, and why said assignees should not be authorized to cause to be erased and canceled all mortgages, judgments, and liens recorded in favor of said holders and owners, or in favor of any other person, so that they may convey a clear and unincumbered title to any purchaser thereof, reserving to the owners of any such mortgage, lien, or judgment all their rights in law to the proceeds of the sale of said property, after defraying the expenses of this petition, and order, and said sale, and that service of this petition and order be made upon said holders of mortgages, and all other persons interested, either by publishing this petition and order three times in the New Orleans Republican, or by personal service of a copy of this petition and order.

March 14, 1868.
(Signed) E. H. DURELL, Judge.
True copy: K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.
Clerk's Office, March 14, 1868.
mh17 3t

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
IN THE MATTER OF SAMUEL KAHN, Bankrupt.
In Bankruptcy—No. 46.

WHEREAS SAMUEL KAHN, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 4, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh6 20 29 Deputy Clerk.

DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
FOR THE DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 139.
IN THE MATTER OF H. B. CLAFLIN & CO., vs. H. L. Liberman, Bankrupt.

A WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY has been issued by the said court against the estate of H. LIBERMAN, of the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, in said District, adjudged a bankrupt upon the petition of his creditors; and the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to said bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; a meeting of the creditors of said bankrupt, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at New Orleans, in said District, on the thirtieth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 11 o'clock A. M., at the office of C. S. Kellogg, one of the Registers in Bankruptcy of said Court.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 548—mh12 ap30

SEAMLESS CLOTHING Manufacturing Company.

Manufacturers of superfine Soft and Stiff WOOL HATS, of the latest and most approved styles; particularly adapted to the southern trade. Also a fine assortment of Patent Seamless CAPS.

Salesroom, No. 255 Canal street, New York; Factory at Matteawan, Duchess county, N. Y.

JOHN FALCONER, Treasurer
fe17 1y C. R. MARVIN, Sales Agent.

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE OF ASSIGNEE OF HIS APPOINTMENT.
In Bankruptcy.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA—SS.
AT MONROE, LA., THE SECOND DAY OF MARCH, A. D. 1868.

THE UNDERSIGNED HEREBY GIVES NOtice of his appointment as Assignee of estate of B. P. PATTON, in the parish of Morehouse, and State of Louisiana, within said district, who has been adjudged a Bankrupt upon his own petition by the District Court of said district.

D. B. TROWSDALE, Assignee, ect.
mh13 3t

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.
FOR THE DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 37.
IN THE MATTER OF ROBERT H. BARROW, Bankrupt.

To the Honorable Edward H. Durell, Judge of Said Court.

THE PETITION OF WILLIAM D. WINTER, of the parish of West Feliciana, said State, and EMORY E. NORTON, of the city of New Orleans, assignees of the estate of said bankrupt, respectfully represents—

That the estate of said bankrupt, surrendered by him to his creditors, and liable for his debts, consists of—

I. The SATTON PLANTATION, in the parish of West Baton Rouge, said estate containing about 1230 (twelve hundred and thirty) acres, bounded north by lands of W. D. Winter, east by the Mississippi river, south by lands of the estate of Mr. Courtney, west by the lands of W. D. Winter and the False river claims, with all the improvements thereon, consisting of sugarhouse, quarters, stables, etc.

II. NINE HUNDRED SHARES of the stock of the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, secured by mortgage on said lands.

That the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana, whose domicil is in said city of New Orleans, claims to hold the first mortgage upon said property to secure

1. The sum of ninety thousand dollars, the amount due by said bankrupt on his subscription to nine hundred shares of the mortgage stock of said bank.

2. The sum of thirty-three thousand five hundred and sixty-six dollars, the balance due by said bankrupt to said bank on the loan obtained by him as a stockholder, upon which balance interest is claimed from the — day of April, 1861, at ten per cent per annum.

That Mrs. Mary E. Barrow, wife of said bankrupt, who resides in the parish of West Feliciana, claims the second mortgage on said property for the sum of say $8000 (eight thousand) dollars, the balance due her by said bankrupt on the judgment obtained by her against him for her paraphernal claims.

III. A TRACT OF LAND in the parish of West Feliciana known as the McDermott tract, containing about four hundred acres, bounded north by lands of Dr. W. P. Walker, east by lands of C. H. Gibbons, south by lands of Mrs. James Flower, and west by the Linwood place.

That sundry persons as holders of several notes secured by mortgage thereon in favor of Green and Crump, claim to hold the first mortgage on said land.

That the second mortgage is claimed thereon by said Mrs. Mary E. Barrow, wife of said Robert H. Barrow.

IV. A promissory note of G. B. M. Kay, given for rent of the Satton plantation in 1867, and subject to the conditions of said lease.

That it is impossible to fix and ascertain the amounts for which said mortgagees will be creditors after deducting the value of the mortgaged property, and that the final settlement of said estate is impracticable, unless said lands are sold and the proceeds of the same divided among said mortgagees according to the ranks of their several mortgages.

Wherefore, they pray that a sale of all the before mentioned and described property may be ordered to be made at such time and place, and in such manner as your honor may designate, for the purpose of paying and discharging said mortgages, and as in duty bound, etc.

(Signed) W. D. WINTER.
E. E. NORTON,
Assignees.

Upon filing the above petition it is ordered by the Court that said mortgagees and all persons interested show cause upon the 20th day of March, 1868, before the court, at 11 o'clock A. M., why the prayer of this petition should not be granted and why said property should not be sold by said assignees, and that all mortgages and liens recorded against said property should not be erased and canceled so that said assignees may convey a clear and unincumbered title to any purchaser, reserving to the holders of said mortgages and liens all their rights in law upon their proceeds thereof, after deducting the expenses of said sale. And it is further ordered that service of this petition and order be made by publishing the same three times in the New Orleans Republican and by personal service upon the Citizens' Bank of Louisiana.

March 14, 1868.
(Signed) E. H. DURELL, Judge.
Clerk's Office: A true copy.
New Orleans, March 14, 1868. mh17 18 19

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 63.
IN THE MATTER OF PATRICK McCANN, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS PATRICK McCANN, INDIVIDually, and as a member of the firm of Keegan & McCann, of the city of New Orleans and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the 26th day of March, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, February 29, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh3 12 20 Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 10.
IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM C. WATKINS, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS WILLIAM C. WATKINS, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof, from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 9, 1868.
K. LOEW,
mh11 20 29 Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 1.
IN THE MATTER OF HENRY D. STONE, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS HENRY D. STONE, OF THE parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the second day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 11, 1868.
mh13 20 26 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT,
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 10.
IN THE MATTER OF WILLIAM C. WATKINS, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS WILLIAM C. WATKINS, OF the parish of Orleans and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 9, 1868.
mh14 21 29 K. LOEW, Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 24.
IN THE MATTER OF THOMAS S. GARRETT, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS THOMAS S. GARRETT, OF THE parish of Iberville and district aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt, under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said Court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 7, 1868.
mh10 21 28 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT.
DISTRICT OF LOUISIANA.
In Bankruptcy—No. 37.
IN THE MATTER OF ROBERT H. BARRON, Bankrupt.

WHEREAS ROBERT H. BARRON, OF THE parish of West Feliciana and District aforesaid, duly declared bankrupt under the act of Congress of March 2, 1867, has this day filed in said court a petition praying for a discharge and certificate thereof from all his debts and other claims provable under said act—

Notice is therefore given to all creditors who have proved their debts, and to all other persons in interest, that the sixteenth day of April, 1868, at 11 A. M., is assigned for the hearing of the same, and that they may then and there attend and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of the said petition should not be granted.

Clerk's Office, New Orleans, March 12, 1868.
mh13 22 30 K. LOEW, Deputy Clerk.

IN BANKRUPTCY.

ESTATE OF MRS. FRANCES CULBERTSON.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 11, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE seventh day of March, A. D., 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of MRS. FRANCES CULBERTSON, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on her own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to her or for her use, and the transfer of any property by her, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of her estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before C. S. Kellogg, Register, on the twenty-fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 9 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 546—mh12 23 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF CHARLES N. WELSHANS.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE twenty-eighth day of February, A. D 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CHARLES N. WELSHANS, of the parish of West Baton Rouge and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the twenty-seventh day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 482—mh3 27 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF ISOM C. DAVENPORT.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 12, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE third day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of ISOM C. DAVENPORT, of the parish of Jefferson and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the fourth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 550—mh13 ap4 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JOHN W. DODD,
Individually and as a Member of the Firm of Dodd & Bateman.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 17, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourteenth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOHN W. DODD, individually, and as a member of the firm of Dodd & Bateman, of Jefferson City, in the parish of Jefferson and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at No. 13 St. Charles street, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before Don A. Pardee, Register, on the fourteenth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
United States Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 561—mh18 ap14

ESTATE OF H. VON PHUL, JR.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 6, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of H. VON PHUL, JR., of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the sixth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 532—mh7 ap4 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF CAROLINE PERRY.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 2, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of CAROLINE PERRY, of the parish of Pointe Coupee and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on her own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to her or for her use, and the transfer of any property by her, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of her estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitkin, Register, on the twentieth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 485—mh3 20 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JOHN D. WILCOX,
Individually, and as a Member of the Firm of Reeves, Wilcox & Lambert.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 16, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE thirteenth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOHN D. WILCOX, individually, and as a member of the firm of Reeves, Wilcox & Lambert, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to chose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the eighteenth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 560—mh17 ap18 District of Louisiana.

ESTATES OF ROBERT ALEXANDER AND JAMES ALEXANDER,
Composing Firm of Alexander & Brother.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 16, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fourteenth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the joint and separate estates of ROBERT ALEXANDER and JAMES ALEXANDER, individualy, and as members of the firm of Alexander & Brother, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who have been adjudged bankrupts on their own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupts, to them or for their use, and the transfer of any property by them, are forbidden by law: that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupts, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of their joint and separate estates, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the eighth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 559—mh17 ap8 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JESSIE R. IRWIN.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 5, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JESSIE R. IRWIN, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition: that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the thirtieth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 526—mh6 28 District of Louisiana.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH BENJAMIN.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 18, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE seventeenth day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of JOSEPH BENJAMIN, of New Orleans, in the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt, to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before John F. Deane, Register, on the fifteenth day of April, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON,
U. S. Marshal, District of Louisiana.
No. 564—mh19 ap15

ESTATE OF GUSTAVE F. WEILL.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE,
District of Louisiana,
New Orleans, March 4, 1868.

THIS IS TO GIVE NOTICE THAT ON THE second day of March, A. D. 1868, a WARRANT IN BANKRUPTCY was issued against the estate of GUSTAVE F. WEILL, of the parish of Orleans and State of Louisiana, who was adjudged a bankrupt on his own petition; that the payment of any debts and delivery of any property belonging to such bankrupt to him or for his use, and the transfer of any property by him, are forbidden by law; that a meeting of the creditors of the said bankrupt, to prove their debts and to choose one or more assignees of his estate, will be held at a Court of Bankruptcy, to be holden at the Customhouse building, in the city of New Orleans, Louisiana, before J. R. G. Pitken, Register, on the twenty-fifth day of March, A. D. 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.

F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal,
No. 514—mh5 25 District of Louisiana.

U. S. MARSHAL'S MONITIONS

Alcus, Scherck & Autey, vs Steamboat Henry Ames, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9027—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Steamboat HENRY AMES, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Alcus, Scherck & Autey for causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamboat Henry Ames, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, second day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 500—mh3 10 17 21

Good Intent Dry Dock Company vs. Steamer J. M. Sharp, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9038—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Steamer J. M. SHARP, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libelled by the Good Intent Dry Dock Company for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamer J. M. Sharp, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned, and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, thirteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 552—mh14 18 24 28

George L. Morrill vs. Schooner Florence Shay, Her Tackle, apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9041—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Schooner FLORENCE SHAY, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by George L. Morrill for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said schooner Florence Shay, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, eighteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 563—mh19 26 ap3 11

Thomas J. McCullough and others vs. Steamer Southerner, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9037—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Steamer SOUTHERNER, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Thomas J. McCullough and others for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause if any they have or can, why the said steamer Southerner, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, eighteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 562—mh19 26 ap3 11 U. S. Marshal.

J. Durville vs. Steamer Hunter, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9036.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The steamer HUNTER, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by J. Durville for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamer Hunter, her tackle, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, twelfth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 551—mh13 18 24 28

Thomas Morgan vs. Schooner Cora, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT for the District of Louisiana, No. 9039.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Schooner CORA, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Thomas Morgan for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said schooner Cora, her tackle, etc. should not be condemned, and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, sixteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 557—mh 17 24 28 ap4

United States vs. the Distillery of Frank Page, No. 635 Tchoupitoulas street.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9040.—In obedience to a warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The DISTILLERY of Frank Page, No. 635 Tchoupitoulas street, now libeled by the United States of America for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said Distillery should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's office, New Orleans, sixteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
United States Marshal.
No. 558—mh17 24 28 ap4

Jacob Sample and Others vs. Steamboat Southerner, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc,

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9035.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The steamboat SOUTHERNER, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by Jacob Sample and others for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said steamboat Southerner, her tackle, apparel, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, eleventh day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 545—mh12 17 24 28 United States Marshal.

James Fowler, Thomas Doyle, and Others vs. Schooner Cora, Her Boats, Tackle, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9032.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The Schooner CORA, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., and her Boats, now libeled by James Fowler and Thomas Doyle and others for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said schooner Cora, her tackle, apparel, etc., and boats, should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelants.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, sixth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 538—mh7 12 17 21 United States Marshal.

J. B. Grimaldi vs. the Tugboat Vulcan Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9031.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

The tugboat VULCAN, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., now libeled by J. B. Grimaldi for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said tugboat, her tackle, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fourth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 521—mh5 11 17 21 United States Marshal.

BILLS OF EXCHANGE, PROMISSORY Notes, Bills of Lading, Dray Receipts, Bank Checks, and all kinds of Commercial Printing neatly executed at the Republican office, No. 57 St. Charles street.

U. S. MARSHAL'S MONITIONS

United States vs. a Certain Still, Etc. in Carrollton, Louisiana.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9028.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

A certain STILL, etc., now libeled by the United States of America for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said Still, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fifth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 524—mh6 11 17 21

United States vs. a Certain Still on Pontchartrain Railroad

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9029.—In obedience to an admiralty warrant, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I have seized and taken into my possession—

A certain STILL, etc., now libeled by the United States of America, for the causes set forth in the libel now pending in the District Court of the United States.

And I do hereby cite and admonish the owner or owners thereof, and all and every person or persons having or pretending to have any right, title, or interest in or to the same, to be and appear at a District Court of the United States, for the District aforesaid, to be holden at the city of New Orleans, on or before the THIRD MONDAY from the date hereof, to show cause, if any they have or can, why the said Still, etc., should not be condemned and be sold agreeably to the prayer of libelant.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, fifth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 525—mh6 11 17 21

U. S. MARSHAL'S SALES.

A. C. Low vs. Steamer Mary Swan, Her Tackle, Apparel, etc.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, for the District of Louisiana, No. 9019.—By virtue of an order of Court to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder on SATURDAY, the twenty-first day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at entrance to Customhouse building, on Old Levee street—

The steamer MARY SWAN, her Tackle, Apparel, etc., as she now lies in the river opposite Poydras street.

Terms—Cash at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, tenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 543—mh11 14 17 21 U. S. Marshal.

United States vs. Distillery of Henry Lusse, No. 170 New Levee street.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT for the District of Louisiana, No. 8953.—By virtue of a writ of venditioni exponas, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on FRIDAY, the 27th day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at entrance to Customhouse building, on Old Levee street—

The CONTENTS of the Distillery of Henry Lusse, as per inventory on file in this office.

Terms—Cash, at time of adjudication, in U. S. Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, sixteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 555—mh17 21 24 28

W. H. Bushnell vs. H. H. Drake.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana, No. 5203.—By virtue of a writ of fieri facias to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the twenty-eighth day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at entrance to Customhouse building, on Old Levee street—

36 CARTOONS, 10 TRUNKS, and 8 CASES, containing 2355 pairs, more or less, Ladies' Children's and Men's BOOTS, SHOES, and GAITERS, assorted as per inventory on file in my office.

Terms—Cash, at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, sixteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 556—mh17 20 24 28

United States vs. the Distillery No. 12 Calliope street.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana—No. 5448—By virtue of a writ of venditoni exponas, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on THURSDAY, the twenty-sixth day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at entrance to Customhouse building, on Old Levee street—

The CONTENTS of the Distillery No. 12 Calliope street, as per inventory on file in this office.

Terms—Cash, at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, thirteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 553—mh14 18 21 26 U. S. Marshal.

United States vs. Distillery of John Myers

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, for the Fifth Circuit and District of Louisiana, No. 5378—By virtue of a writ of venditioni exponas, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on WEDNESDAY, the 25th day of March, 1868, at twelve (12) o'clock M., at the United States internal revenue bonded warehouse No. 9, corner of Julia and Foucher streets—

3 pipes RUM.

Terms—Cash, at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, twelfth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON, U. S. Marshal.
No. 549—mh13 17 21 25

United States vs. Eighteen Barrels Whisky and Thirty-One Hundred Cigars.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT for the District of Louisiana, No. 8865.—By virtue of a writ of venditioni exponas, to me directed in the above entitled suit, I will proceed to sell to the highest bidder, on SATURDAY, the twenty-eighth day of March, 1868, at 11 o'clock A. M., at United States internal revenue bonded warehouse, No. 9, corner of Julia and Foucher streets—

Thirty-one hundred CIGARS more or less.

Terms—Cash, at time of adjudication, in United States Treasury notes.

United States Marshal's Office, New Orleans, sixteenth day of March, 1868.
F. J. HERRON,
No. 554—mh17 20 24 28 U. S. Marshal.

OFFICIAL NOTICES.

COLLECTOR'S SALE.

UNITED STATES CUSTOMHOUSE,
Collector's Office,
New Orleans, March 14, 1868.

THE FOLLOWING GOODS HAVING REMAINED in warehouse unclaimed for more than one year, will be sold at public auction, in accordance with law and the regulations of the Treasury Department, at Warehouse No. 1, Customhouse building, Customhouse street entrance, on THURSDAY, April 2, 1868, at 10 o'clock A. M.—

| | |
|---|---|
| 2 cases Bottled Ale. | 2 Filtering Stoves. |
| 2 tierces Molasses. | 4 octaves Sweet Wine |
| 1 box Cigars. | 2 Cotton Trucks. |
| 8 Cooking Stoves and 4 cases furniture for same. | 9 boxes Raisins. |
| | 1 bbl Molasses. |
| | 1 Bedstead. |
| 1 tierce Molasses. | 12 casks Curry Combs |
| 1 hhd. Molasses. | 2 trks Personal Effects |
| 1 tierce Molasses. | 1 box containing scaling ladder. |
| 1 box Cigars. | |
| 2 cases cont'g Pianos. | 53 cases Rhine Wine. |
| 4 cases Magnesia, | 1 bbl. Irish Whisky. |
| 24 boxes Tin Plate, | 591 bdls. Iron Ties. |
| 1 case Meerschaum Pipes. | 12 casks Curry Combs |
| 2 casks Chloride Lime. | 1 box Samples. |
| 7 bdls Iron Ties. | 2 pkgs Samples. |
| 12 cases Brandy. | 100 baskets Champagne |
| 8 octaves Brandy. | 50 boxes Champagne. |
| 1 case Soap, etc. | 5 baskets Champagne |
| 7 crates Earthenware. | 2 cases cont'g fire extinguishers. |
| 1 keg Rum. | |
| 2 cases Quinine. | 167 bdls Iron Ties. |
| 1 cask Bottled Ale. | 3 boxes Labels. |
| 27 gross Tooth Brushes. | 1 case Mustard. |
| 1 bbl. cont'g Water Filterer. | 1 box Whisky. |
| | 1 box Salad Oil. |
| 1 box Matches. | 1 case Muscat Wine |
| 2 bags Cloves. | 1 box Books. |
| 1 case Tacks. | 1 bag Coffee. |
| 1 case Wine. | 2 cases Absynthe. |
| 1 case Books. | 28 pkgs Samples. |

WM. P. KELLOGG,
mh15 17 20 22 24 27 29 31 ap2 Collector.

Succession of J. C. Shannon.

SECOND DISTRICT COURT OF NEW ORleans, No. 14,133.—By virtue of a writ of fieri facias against R. J. Ker, Henry Webre, and J. R. Shannon, in favor of H. B. Eggleston, to me directed by the Honorable the Second District Court of New Orleans, in the above entitled cause, I will proceed to sell at public auction, at the Merchants' and Auctioneers' Exchange, Royal street, between Canal and Customhouse streets, in the Second District of this city, on SATURDAY, the eleventh day of April, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., the following described property, viz—

TWO LOTS OF GROUND situate in the faubourg Jackson, in the city of New Orleans, designated by the Nos. 3 and 4 of square No. 65, measuring each, American measure, thirty feet front on St. Louis street, between Olympia and St. Patrick streets, by one hundred and eleven feet five inches in depth, the whole according to a plan of John Schreiber, dated July 20, 1837, deposited in the office of J. Cuvellier, notary public in this city.

Seized in the above suit as belonging to defendant R. J. Ker.

Terms—Cash on the spot.

GEORGE W. AVERY,
mh11 28 ap11 Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans.

E. F. Mioton vs. L. Allibert.

THIRD DISTRICT COURT OF NEW ORleans, No. 21,405—By virtue of a writ of fieri facias to me directed by the Honorable the Third District Court of New Orleans, in the above entitled cause, I will proceed to sell at public auction, at the Merchants' and Auctioneers' Exchange, Royal street, between Canal and Customhouse streets, in the Second District of this city, on TUESDAY, the thirty first day of March, 1868, at 12 o'clock M., the following described property, viz—

A CERTAIN LOT OF GROUND, together with the buildings and improvements thereon, and all privileges and servitudes thereunto belonging, situate in the Second District of this city, in the square bounded by Toulouse, Franklin, Treme streets, and Canal Carondelet Walk, designated as the number two, and forming the corner of Toulouse and Franklin streets, and measuring, in French measure, forty-three feet front on Franklin street by one hundred feet in depth, and front on Toulouse street.

Being the same property acquired by defendant, by purchase from Joseph Isidore DePouilly, and Louis Gagnet, as per act passed before P. C. Cuvellier, Notary Public, in this city, on the ninth day of February, 1854.

Seized in the above suit.

Terms—Cash on the spot.

GEO. W. AVERY,
fe29mh14 31 Sheriff of the Parish of Orleans

OFFICIAL:

JOURNAL

OF THE

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION

OF

LOUISIANA.

SEVENTY-SECOND DAY.

[CONTINUED.]

ART. 68. There shall be a secretary of state, who shall hold his office during the term for which the governor shall have been elected. The records of the state shall be kept and preserved in the office of the secretary; he shall keep a fair register of the official acts and proceedings of the governor, and, when necessary, shall attest them; he shall, when required, lay the said register, and all papers, minutes, and vouchers relative to his office before either house of the general assembly, and shall perform such other duties as may be enjoined on him by law.

ART. 69. There shall be a treasurer of the state and an auditor of public accounts, who shall hold their respective offices during the term of four years. At the first election under this constitution the treasurer shall be elected for two years.

ART. 70. The secretary of state, treasurer, and auditor of public accounts shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state, and in case of any vacancy caused by the resignation, death, or absence of the secretary, treasurer, or auditor, the governor shall order an election to fill said vacancies: Provided, The unexpired term to be filled be more than twelve months; when otherwise the governor shall appoint a person to perform the duties of the office thus vacant until the ensuing general election.

ART. 71. The treasurer and the auditor shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum each. The secretary of state shall receive a salary of three thousand dollars per annum.

ART. 72. All commissions shall be in the name and by the authority of the state of Louisiana, and shall be sealed with the state seal, signed by the governor and countersigned by the secretary of state.

TITLE IV.—JUDICIARY DEPARTMENT.

ART. 73. The judicial power shall be vested in a supreme court, in district courts, in parish courts, and in justices of the peace.

ART. 74. The supreme court, except in cases hereinafter provided, shall have appellate jurisdiction only, which jurisdiction shall extend to all cases when the matter in dispute shall exceed five hundred dollars, and to all cases in which the constitutionality or legality of any tax, toll, or impost of any kind or nature whatsoever, or any fine, forfeiture, or penalty imposed by a municipal corporation shall be in contestation, whatever may be the amount thereof; and in such cases the appeal shall be direct from the court in which the case originated to the supreme court; and in criminal cases on questions of law only whenever the punishment of death, of imprisonment at hard labor, or a fine exceeding three hundred dollars is actually imposed.

Mr. Bertonneau moved to lay the amendment of Mr. Crane to article seventy-five on the table.

Adopted—yeas 50, nays 20—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Baker, Belden, Bertonneau, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Cooley, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Demarest, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, Douglass, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Ferguson, Gardiner, Harris, Harrison, Hempstead, Ingraham, Thomas Isabelle, Jones, Kelso, Landers, Lange, Leroy, R. Lewis, Marie, Massicot, Morris, Myers, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pinchback, Pollard, Reese, Riggs, Snaer, Steele, Thibaut, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Wilson—50.

Nays: Blackburn, Brown, Burrel, Crane, Depasseau, G. Duparte, Esnard, François, Harper, R. H. Isabelle, Martin, Meadows, Moses, Murrell, Mushaway, Pierce, Riard, Rodriguez, Smith, Williams—20.

Mr. Bertonneau moved to lay on the table the amendment to article seventy-five proposed by Messrs. Cooley, Crawford, and Crane.

Adopted—yeas 58, nays 12—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Baker, Bertonneau, Blackburn, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Brown, Burrel, Cromwell, Dearing, Depasseau, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, U. Dupart, Duplesssis, François, Ferguson, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Thomas Isabelle, Jones, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Richard Lewis, Lynch, Martin, Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Myers, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Pollard, Reese, Riard, Riggs, Rodriguez, Snaer, Thibaut, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vidal, Wickliffe, Wilson—53 yeas.

Nays: Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Demarest, G. Duparte, Esnard, Harrison, Mushaway, Smith, Vandergriff, Waples, Williams—12 nays.

Articles seventy-five and seventy-six were adopted as follows:

ART. 75. The supreme court shall be composed of one chief justice and four associate justices, a majority of whom shall constitute a quorum. The chief justice shall receive a salary of seven thousand five hundred dollars, and each of the associate justices a salary of seven thousand dollars annually, payable quarterly, on their own warrants. The chief justice and the associate justices shall be appointed by the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, for the term of eight years. They shall be citizens of the United States, and shall have practiced law for five years, the last three thereof next preceding their appointment, in the state. The court shall appoint its own clerks; it may remove them at pleasure.

ART. 76. The supreme court shall hold its sessions in the city of New Orleans from the first Monday in the month of November to the end of the month of May. The legislature shall have power to fix the sessions elsewhere during the rest of the year; until otherwise provided the sessions shall be held as heretofore.

Article seventy-seven, amended by striking out the word "all," third line, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 77. The supreme court, and each of the judges thereof, shall have power to issue writs of habeas corpus, at the instance of persons in actual custody, in cases when they may have appellate jurisdiction.

Articles seventy-eight, seventy-nine, eighty, eighty-one, and eighty-two were adopted, as follows:

ART. 78. No judgment shall be rendered by the supreme court without a concurrence of a majority composing the court. Whenever the majority can not concur, in consequence of the recusation of any member of the court, the judges not recused shall have power to call upon any judge or judges of the district courts, whose duty it shall be, when so called upon, to preside in the place of the judge or judges recused, and to aid in determining the case.

ART. 79. All judges, by virtue of their office, shall be conservators of the peace throughout the state. The style of all process shall be The State of Louisiana. All prosecutions shall be carried on in the name and by the authority of the state of Louisiana, and conclude against the peace and dignity of the same.

ART. 80. The judges of all courts, whenever practicable, shall refer to the law, in virtue of which every definitive judgment is rendered; but in all cases they shall adduce the reasons on which their judgment is founded.

ART. 81. The judges of all courts shall be liable to impeachment for crimes and misdemeanors. For any reasonable cause the governor shall remove any of them, on the address of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the general assembly. In every such case the cause or causes for which such removal may be required shall be stated at length in the address, and inserted in the journal of each house.

ART. 82. No duties or functions shall ever be attached by law to the supreme or district courts, or the several judges thereof, but such as are judicial; and the said judges are prohibited from receiving any fees of office, or other compensation than their salaries, for any official duties performed by them.

Mr. Hempstead moved to lay on the table the amendment to article eighty-three, proposed by Messrs. Crawford, Cooley, Pinchback, Waples, Taliaferro.

Adopted.

Article 83—Amended by striking out, third and fourth lines, the words "and for their respective," and inserting the words "for each;"

And inserting after the word "electors," fourth line, the word "thereof;"

And striking out all in the fifth and sixth lines to the word "for;"

And striking out, eleventh line, all after the word "Orleans," to the fourteenth line, and inserting the following:

"With the following original jurisdiction: The first, exclusive criminal jurisdiction; the second, exclusive probate jurisdiction; the third, exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from justice of the peace; the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh district courts, exclusive jurisdiction in all civil cases, except probate, when the sum in contest is above one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. These seven courts shall also have such further jurisdiction, not inconsistent herewith, as shall be conferred by law.

And striking out, sixteenth and seventeenth lines, the word "districts," and inserting the word "parishes,"

Was adopted, as follows:

ART. 83. The legislature shall divide the state into judicial districts, which shall remain unchanged for four years, and for each district court one judge, learned in the law, shall be elected for each district by a plurality of the qualified electors thereof. For each district there shall be one district court, except in the parish of Orleans, in which the legislature may establish as many district courts as the public interests may require. Until otherwise provided, there shall be seven district courts for the parish of Orleans.

With the following original jurisdiction: the first, exclusive criminal jurisdiction; the second, exclusive probate jurisdiction; the third, exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from justices of the peace; the fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh district courts, exclusive jurisdiction in all civil cases except probate, when the sum in contest is above one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. These seven courts shall also have such further jurisdiction, not inconsistent herewith, as shall be conferred by law.

The number of districts in the state shall not be less than twelve nor more than twenty. The clerks of the district courts shall be elected by the qualified electors of their respective parishes, and shall hold their office for four years.

Mr. Harper moved to amend article eighty four by striking out the word "therein," at the end of the fifth line, and the words "next preceding his election," in the ninth line.

Laid on the table.

Article eighty-four was adopted, as follows:

ART. 84. Each of said judges shall receive a salary to be fixed by law, which shall not be increased or diminished during his term of office, and shall never be less than five thousand dollars. He must be a citizen of the United States, over the age of twenty-five years, and have resided in the state, and practiced law therein for the space of two years next preceding his election. The judges of the district courts shall hold their office for the term of four years.

Article eighty-five, amended by striking out all the third line, from the word "they" to the word "interest," sixth line, inclusive," and striking out the words "not probate," second line,

Was adopted, as follows:

ART. 85. The district courts shall have original jurisdiction in all civil cases, when the amount in dispute exceeds five hundred dollars exclusive of interest. In criminal cases their jurisdiction shall be unlimited. They shall have appellate jurisdiction in civil ordinary suits, when the amount in dispute exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest.

The following amendment to article eighty-six was laid on the table:

To strike out, first line, the words "elected by the qualified electors of the parish," and insert the words "appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate;"

To strike out, third line, the word "two" and insert the word "four."

W. H. COOLEY,
T. S. CRAWFORD,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK,
R. WAPLES,
J. G. TALIAFERRO.

The following amendment was laid on the table.

To insert after the word "judge," first line, the words "who shall have practiced law in this state at least one year previous to his appointment."

R. WAPLES,
W. H. COOLEY.

The following amendments were adopted:

Article eighty-six—To strike out, second and third lines, the word "they" and insert the word "he;"

And to strike out, in the second line, the word "their" and insert the word "his;"

And to strike out, sixth line, the word "now," and insert in seventh line the word "district" before "clerk."

And to strike out, second line, the word "offices" and insert the word "office."

Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

The following amendment was adopted:

To add, seventh line, the words "and of this state." Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

Mr. Crawford moved to amend by adding after the word "he," whenever it occurs, the words "or she."

Mr. Oliver moved to lay on the table.

Adopted.

Mr. Waples moved to reconsider the last vote.

Mr. Hempstead moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Adopted.

Article eighty-six, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 84. For each parish court one judge shall be elected by the qualified electors of the parish. He shall hold his office for the term of two years. He shall receive a salary and fees, to be provided by law. Until otherwise provided, each parish judge shall receive a salary of one thousand two hundred dollars per annum, and such fees as are established by law for clerks of district courts. He shall be a citizen of the United States, and of this state.

The following amendments to article eighty-seven were adopted:

Strike out, ninth line, from the word "in" to the word "matters," thirteenth line inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"All successions shall be opened and settled in the parish courts; and all suits in which a succession is either plaintiff or defendant may be brought either in the parish or district court, according to the amount involved;"

And add the letter "s" to the word "power," seventeenth line, and add the letter "s" to the word "magistrate," seventeenth line;

And strike out word "a" before "magistrate," in seventeenth line.

Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

Article eighthty-seven, as amended, was adopted as follows:

ART. 87. The parish courts shall have concurrent jnisdiction with the justices of the peace, in all cases when the amount in controversy is more than twenty-five dollars, and less than one hundred dollars exclusive of interest. They shall have exclusive original jurisdictiog in ordinary suits, in all cases when the amount in dispute exceeds one hundred dollars and does not exceed five hundred dollars; subject to an appeal to the district court in all cases when the amount in contestation exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest. All successions shall be opened and settled in the parish courts; and all suits in which a succession is either plaintiff or defendant may be brought either in the parish or district court, acoording to the amount involved. In criminal matters the parish courts shall have jurisdiction in all cases when the penalty is not necessarily imprisonment at hard labor or death, and when the accused shall waive trial by jury. They shall also have the powers of committing magistrates and such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on them by law. There shall be no trial by jury before the parish courts.

Article eighty-eight was adopted, as follows:

ART. 88. In all probate matters when the amount in dispute shall exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, the appeal shall be directly from the parish to the supreme court.

The following amendment to article eighty-nine was adopted:

Article eighty-nine—To strike out, seventh line, the word "twenty-five," and insert the word "ten."

Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

Mr. Newsham moved to amend by striking out, second line, all from the word "parish" to the word "assembly," third line, and inserting the words "in the manner prescribed by law."

Adopted.

Mr. Smith was called to the chair.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to reconsider the vote upon Mr. Newsham's amendment.

Adopted.

Mr. Newsham's amendment was rejected.

Article eighty-nine as amended was adopted as follows:

ART. 89. The justices of the peace shall be elected by the electors of each parish in the manner to be provided by the general assembly. They shall hold office for the term of two years, and their compensation shall be fixed by law. Their jurisdiction in civil cases shall not exceed one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest, subject to an appeal to the parish court in all cases when the amount in dispute shall exceed ten dollars, exclusive of interest. They shall have such criminal jurisdiction as shall be provided for by law.

The following amendment to article ninety was adopted.

Article ninety—to strike out, fourth line, the words "judges of the courts," and insert the words "a judge of his court."

Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

Article ninety, as amended, was adopted as follows:

ART. 90. In any case where the judge may be recused, and when he is not personally interested in the matters in contestation he shall select a lawyer, having the qualifications required for a judge of his court, to try such cases. And when the judge is personally interested in the suit, he shall call upon the parish or district judge, as the case may be, to try the case.

Article ninety-one was adopted as follows:

ART. 91. The general assembly shall have power to vest in the parish judges the right to grant such orders and to do such acts as may be deemed necessary for the furtherance of the administration of justice; and in all cases the power thus granted shall be specified and determined.

The convention adjourned until to-morrow at 10 A. M.

A true copy:

WM. VIGERS, Secretary.

SEVENTY-THIRD DAY.

NEW ORLEANS, February 27, 1868.

The convention met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by the president at 10 A. M.

The roll was called, and the following members answered to their names:

J. G. Taliaferro, president; Messrs. Antoine, Bertonneau, Blandin, Bonseigneur, Bonnefoi, Brown, Burrel, Butler, Cooley, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Donato, U. Dupart, Duplessis, François, Ferguson, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, R. H. Isabelle, Thos. Isabelle, Jones, Kelso, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Marie, Martin, Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Myers, Oliver, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reese, Riggs, Roberts, Rodriguez, Schwab, Snaer, Thibaut, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—53 members present.

Prayer by the Rev. Josiah Fiske.

The minutes were read and adopted.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. R. H. Isabelle called up his resolution of February, as follows:

WHEREAS, This convention has adopted a resolution instructing the warrant clerk to make warrants in small sums to suit the demands of delegates and employes of this convention, which has increased the labors of the warrant clerk to such an extent as to compel him to ask for assistance; and

Whereas, Lucian Lamaniere did volunteer his services as assistant to facilitate the issue of warrants for several days past; therefore be it

Resolved, That a compensation of one hundred and fifty dollars be paid said L. Lamaniere for volunteer services rendered as assistant warrant clerk.

Which was adopted.

Mr. Harper called up his resolution of February 26:

Resolved, That the official printer be authorized to print two hundred copies of the resolution offered by Mr. Blackburn, and adopted February 19, 1868, authorizing tax collectors to redeem the warrants of their respective parishes, and that these copies be forwarded by the secretary of this convention to the state auditor for distribution to the tax collectors for their information and guidance.

Which was adopted.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Mr. Cooley moved to amend article ninety-two by adding the word "quarterly" after the word "payable," eighth line.

Adopted.

The article, as amended, was adopted as follows:

ART. 92. There shall be an attorney general for the state, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the state at large. He shall receive a salary of five thousand dollars per annum, payable quarterly on his own warrant, and shall hold his office for four years. There shall be a district attorney for each judicial district of the state, who shall be elected by the qualified electors of the judicial district. He shall receive a salary of fifteen hundred dollars, payable quarterly on his own warrant, and shall hold his office for four years.

The following amendment to article ninety-three was adopted:

Article 93—To strike out, sixth line, the words "exclusive control" and insert the word "charge."

Recommendod by the

COMMITTEE.

The following amendment to article ninety-three, by Mr. Wickliffe, was adopted:

Article 93—Amend by adding after "Orleans," in tenth line, "except those herein delegated to the sheriff of the criminal court."

Also, in line twelve, after the word "Orleans," add the word "residing;" and after the word "below," add "the middle of;" and and after the word "above," in fourteenth line, add the words "the middle of."

Adopted.

Article ninety-three, as amended, and reading as follows, was adopted:

ART. 93. There shall be a sheriff and coroner elected by the qualified electors of each parish, except the parish of Orleans. In the parish of Orleans there shall be elected by the qualified electors of the parish at large one sheriff for the criminal court, who shall be the executive officer of said court, and shall have charge of the parish prison. There shall also be elected by the qualified electors of the parish at large one sheriff, who shall be the executive officer of the civil courts, and who shall perform all other duties heretofore devolving upon the sheriff of the parish of Orleans, except those herein delegated to the sheriff of the criminal court. The qualified electors of the city of New Orleans residing below the middle of Canal street shall elect one coroner for that district, and the qualified electors of the city of New Orleans residing above the middle of Canal street, together with those residing in that part of the parish known as Orleans, right bank shall elect one coroner for that district. All of said officers shall hold their office for two years, and receive such fees of office as may be prescribed by law.

Mr. Cooley moved to adopt the following as an additional article of the constitution:

TITLE IV.—JUDICIARY DEPARTMENT.

ART. 94. No judicial powers, except as committing magistrates, in criminal cases, shall be conferred on any officers other than those mentioned in this title; except such as may be necessary in towns and cities; and the judicial powers of such officers shall not extend further than the cognizance of cases arising under the police regulations of towns and cities in the state. In any case where such officers shall assume jurisdiction over other matters than those which may arise under police regulations, or under their jurisdiction, as committing magistrates, they shall be liable to an action of damages in favor of the party injured, or his heirs; and a verdict in favor of the party injured shall, ipso facto, operate a vacation of the office of said officer.

Mr. Isabelle moved to amend by striking out all after the word "heirs."

Mr. Pinchback moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Adopted.

The article was adopted.

Title IV. was adopted as a whole.

Mr. Waples moved to adopt the following as an article of the constitution:

ART. 95. Every judicial officer elect shall apply to the supreme court for a certificate of competency; and if, after examination, the said court shall find the applicant competent, they shall grant the certificate, and he shall be qualified to enter upon the duties of the office; but, if they find him incompetent, they shall refuse the certificate, and his office shall be filled according to this constitution.

Mr. Moses moved to lay the article on the table.

Adopted—yeas 50, nays 18—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Belden, Bonseigneur, Bonnefoi, Brown, Burrel, Butler, Crane, Cromwell, Cuney, Douglass, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Gardiner, Guichard, Harper, Harris, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Lange, Leroy, R. Lewis, Marie, Martin, Massicot, Meadows, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Mushaway, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Riggs, Roberts, Rodriguez, Schwab, Snaer, Thibaut, Valfroit, Vidal, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—50 yeas.

Nays: Baker, Blackburn, Cooley, Crawford, Demarest, Depasseau, Esnard, Ferguson, Harrison, Thomas Isabelle, Kelso, Myers, Reese, Riard, Smith, Twitchell, Vandergriff, Waples—18 nays.

Article ninety-four was adopted, as follows:

TITLE V.—IMPEACHMENT.

ART. 94. The power of impeachment shall be vested in the house of representatives.

The following amendment to article ninety-five was adopted:

Article ninety-five, to insert, sixth line, the word "associate" before the word "judge."

Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

The following amendment to article ninety-five, by Mr. Wickliffe, was adopted:

Article ninety-five, in line two, after "secretary of state" add "auditor of public accounts."

G. M. WICKLIFFE.

Article ninety-five, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 95. Impeachments of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general, secretary of state, auditor public accounts, state treasurer, superintendent of public education, and of the judges of the inferior courts, justices of the peace excepted, shall be tried by the senate; the chief justice of the supreme court, or the senior associate judge thereof, shall preside during the trial of such impeachment. Impeachment of the judges of the supreme court shall be tried by the senate. When sitting as a court of impeachment the senators shall be upon oath or affirmation, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the senators present.

The following amendment to article ninety-six was adopted:

Article 96—To strike out, third line, the word "under" and insert the word "in."

Recommended by the

COMMITTEE.

Article ninety-six, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 96. Judgments in all cases of impeachment shall extend only to removal from office, and disqualification from holding any office of honor, trust, or profit in the state; but the convicted parties shall, nevertheless, be subject to indictment, trial, and punishment according to law.

The following amendment to article ninety-seven was laid on the table:

Article 97—To strike out, fifth and sixth lines, the words "except those disfranchised by this constitution."

W. H. COOLEY,
W. R. CRANE.

Mr. Blackburn moved to amend the article by striking out the word "male," first line.

Mr. Pinchback moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Adopted—yeas 49, nays 15—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Bonnefoi, Burrel, Butler, Cooley, Crawford, Cromwell, Cuney, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Esnard, François, Gardiner, Harrison, Hempstead, T. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Kelso, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Marie, Martin, Massicot, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Mushaway, Myers, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Riard, Riggs, Roberts, Rodriguez, Snaer, Steele, Twitchell, Valfroit, Waples, Williams, Wilson—49 yeas.

Nays: Baker, Blackburn, Brown, Crane, Ferguson, Harper, Harris, Ingraham, Meadows, McLeran, Reese, Smith, Thibaut, Vandergriff, Wickliffe—15 nays.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to amend the article by striking out, fourth line, the word "sixty," and inserting the word "ten."

Adopted—yeas 43, nays 18—as follows:

Yeas: Bertonneau, Burrel, Butler, P. G. Deslonde, Esnard, François, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, T. Isabelle, Jones, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Marie, Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Myers, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Riggs, Rodriguez, Schwab, Smith, Snaer, Thibaut, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vidal, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—43 yeas.

Nays: Brown, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cromwell, Cuney, Dearing, Donato, U. Dupart, Douglass, Ferguson, Harrison, Jackson, Kelso, Mushaway, Roberts, Steele, Waples—18 nays.

Mr. Smith moved to reconsider the last vote.

Mr. Hempstead moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Adopted.

The following amendment was laid on the table:

To strike out, second and third lines, the words "subject to the jurisdiction thereof."

W. H. COOLEY.

Article ninety-seven, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

TITLE VI—GENERAL PROVISIONS.

ART. 97. Every male person, of the age of twenty-one years or upward, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, and a resident of this state one year next preceding an election, and the last ten days within the parish in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed an elector, except those disfranchised by this constitution, and persons under interdiction.

Mr. Packard moved to strike out article ninety-eight, and insert in its place as an article of the constitution the following:

The following persons are hereby prohibited from voting and holding any office of profit or trust either by election or appointment in this state, to wit:

All persons convicted of treason, or any crime punishable with death or imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary for over six months. All persons under interdiction. And all persons, who having previously taken an oath as a member of congress, or as an officer of the United States or of any state legislature, or as an executive or judicial officer of any state, to support the constitution of the United States, shall have engaged in insurrection or rebellion against the same, or given aid or comfort to the enemies thereof.

The words "executive or judicial officers" shall be construed to include all civil offices created by law for the administration of any general law of the state, or for the administration of justice; provided, that the legislature may, by a two-thirds vote of the house, remove such disabilities.

Mr. Pinchback was called to the chair.

Mr. Blandin moved to lay the substitute of Mr. Packard on the table.

Adopted—yeas 37, nays 33, as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Baker, Belden, Bertneau, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Brown, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Dearing, Demarest, Depasseau, Deslonde, P. G., Donato, Douglass, Duparte G., Duplessis, Esnard, Fuller, Ferguson, Kelso, Leroy, Martin, McLeran, Mushaway, Pinchback, Reese, Riard, Rodriguez, Smith, Steele, Thibaut, Tinchant, Twitchell, Valfroit—37 yeas.

Nays: Burrell, Cromwell, François, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, Isabelle R. H., Isabelle Thos., Jackson, Jones, Landers, Lange, Lewis, R., Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Schwab, Snaer, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—33 nays.

Mr. Waples moved to postpone the further consideration of article ninety-eight until to-morrow.

Mr. Tinchant moved to lay the motion to postpone on the table.

Adopted.

Mr. Tinchant moved to adopt the following amendment.

ART. 98. To strike out, fifth line, all after the word "interdiction," to the end of the article.

W. R. CRANE.
W. H. COOLEY,
J. G. TALIAFERRO.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to lay the following amendment on the table:

To insert, twenty-fourth line, after the word "rebellion," the words, "also all who served in the confederate army, above the rank of colonel."

R. WAPLES.

The motion to lay on the table prevailed.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to expunge article ninety-eight.

The chair decided the motion to expunge not in order.

Mr. Waples raised the point of order that a motion to expunge an article already adopted could not be entertained.

The chair so ruled.

Mr. Cooley appealed.

The chair reversed its decision upon advisement, and sustained the point of order.

Mr. Wickliffe appealed.

The convention adjourned until to-morrow at 10 A. M.

A true copy:

WILLIAM VIGERS, Secretary.

SEVENTY-FOURTH DAY.

NEW ORLEANS, February 28, 1868.

The convention met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by the president.

The roll was called and the following members answered to their names:

J. G. Taliaferro, president; Messrs. Antoine, Baker, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Brown, Burrel, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cromwell, Cuney, Dearing, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, Douglass, Duparte G., Dupart U., Duplessis, Fuller, Ferguson, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, Harrison, Ingraham, Isabelle R. H., Isabelle Thomas, Jackson, Jones, Kelso, Landers, Lange, Leroy, R. Lewis, Martin, Massicot, Meadows, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Myers, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Pollard, Reese, Schwab, Snaer, Steele, Thibaut, Twitchell, Underwood, Vandergriff, Vidal, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—62 members present.

Prayer by the Rev. Josiah Fiske.

The minutes were read and adopted.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. R. H. Isabelle:

Resolved, That the warrant clerk of this convention be and is hereby authorized to issue warrants in sums of $200 each, to Messrs. G. Krumble, A. S. Pickard, O. M. Tennison, and A. T. Turner, who have shown a disposition to make a fair and impartial report of the proceedings of this convention.

Lies over.

By Mr. P. G. Deslonde:

Motion, that this convention extend their thanks to General Grant and the United States congress for their brilliant actions in the great work of reconstruction of the Southern states.

Lies over.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

The appeal of M. Wickliffe from the decision of the chair being under consideration, the chair was sustained.

Mr. Valfroit moved to take from the table Mr. Packard's substitute for article.

Mr. Pinchback moved to lay the motion to take from the table on the table.

Adopted—yeas 39, nays 35—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Baker, Belden, Bertonneau, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Brown, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Demarest, Depasseau, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, Douglass, G. Duparte, Duplessis, Ferguson, Harrison, T. Isabelle, Kelso, J. B. Lewis, Martin, McLeran, Mushaway, Myers, Pinchback, Reese, Riard, Riggs, Snaer, Steele, Thibaut, Twitchell, Vandergriff, Vidal—39 yeas.

Nays: Burrel, Cromwell, U. Dupart, François, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Landers, Lange, Leroy, R. Lewis, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Roberts, Underwood, Valfroit; Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—35 nays.

Mr. Waples offered as a substitute for article ninety-eight the following:

The following persons shall be prohibited from voting or from holding any office: All persons who shall have been convicted of treason, perjury, forgery, bribery, or other crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, and persons under interdiction. All persons who have forfeited the right of suffrage by abjuring their allegiance to the United States government, or notoriously levying war against it and adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort, are hereby restored to the right of suffrage, except the following: Those who held office, civil or military, for one year or more, under the organization styled "The Confederate States of America;" those who registered themselves as enemies to the United States; those who acted as leaders or officers of guerilla bands during the late war or rebellion; those also who in the advocacy of treason, wrote or published newspaper articles, or preached sermons during the late rebellion; and those who voted for and signed an ordinance of secession in any state. Any person included in these exceptions shall neither vote nor hold office until he shall have relieved himself by voluntarily writing and signing a certificate setting forth that he acknowledges the late rebellion to have been morally and politically wrong, and that he regrets any aid and comfort he may have given to it; and he shall file the certificate in the office of the secretary of state, and it shall be published in the official journal.

Mr. Cooley moved to amend by adding:

And all those who burnt cotton or caused it to be burnt, whether acting on their own responsibility or by order of others.

Mr. Oliver moved to lay the amendment on the table.

Adopted—yeas 45, nays 28—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Belden, Bertonneau, Blackburn, Blandin, Burrel, Butler, Cromwell, Douglass, G. Duparte, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Esnard, François Gardiner, Harper, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Lange, Martin, Meadows, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pollard, Reagan, Reese, Roberts, Snaer, Tinchant, Twitchell, Underwood, Valfroit, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—45 yeas.

Nays: Bonnefoi, Brown, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Demarest, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, Fuller, Ferguson, Harris, Harrison, Thomas Isabelle, Kelso, Landers, J. B. Lewis, R. Lewis, Mushaway, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Riard, Riggs, Steele, Thibaut, Vandergriff—28 nays.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to amend by adding:

All persons who held an office as justice of the peace under the so called confederate government for any length of time.

Mr. Underwood moved to lay all the amendments on the table.

Mr. Waples raised the point of order that a motion to lay the whole subject on the table could properly only be held to refer to the subject immediately under consideration, which was the last amendment offered.

The chair decided that the point of order was not well taken.

Mr. Underwood appealed.

The chair was not sustained.

The motion to lay on the table prevailed.

The question recurring upon Mr. Waples' amendment, Mr. Packard moved to amend by adding:

Provided, That those who have aided in reconstruction shall not be held to be included among those excepted.

Which was adopted—yeas 56, nays 16—as follows:

Yeas: Baker, Bertonneau, Blackburn, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Brown, Burrel, Cromwell, P. G. Deslonde, Douglass, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Esnard, François, Gardiner, Guichard, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Richard Lewis, Massicot, Meadows, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Murrel, Myers, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Reese, Riard, Riggs, Schwab, Steele, Thibaut, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—56.

Nays: Antoine, Belden, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Demarest, Depasseau, Donato, Harrison, Kelso, Martin, Mushaway, Smith, Tinchant—16.

The question recurring upon the substitute of Mr. Waples, as amended, as follows:

ART. 98. The following persons shall be prohibited from voting or from holding any office; all persons who shall have been convicted of treason, perjury, forgery, bribery, or other crime punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, and persons under interdiction.

All persons who have forfeited the right of suffrage by abjuring their allegiance to the United States government, or notoriously levying war against it and adhering to its enemies giving them aid and comfort, are hereby restored to the right of suffrage, except the following: those who held office, civil or military, for one year or more, under the organization styled "the confederate states or America;" those who registered themselves as enemies of the United States; those who acted as leaders of guerrilla bands during the late rebellion; those who, in the advocacy of treason, wrote or published newspaper articles, or preached sermons during the late rebellion; and those who voted for and signed an ordinance of secession in any state. Any person included in these exceptions shall neither vote nor hold office until he shall have relieved himself by voluntarily writing and signing a certificate setting forth that he acknowledges the late rebellion to have been morally and politically wrong, and that he regrets any aid and comfort he may have given it; and he shall file the certificate in the office of the secretary of state, and it shall be published in the official journal; Provided, That those who have aided in reconstruction shall not be held to be included among those excepted.

It was adopted—yeas forty-four, nays thirty—as follows:

Yeas: Baker, Blackburn, Brown,

Burrell, Cromwell, Deslonde P. G., Esnard, Francois, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, Isabelle R. H., Jackson, Jones. Landers, Lange, Leroy, Lewis R., Massicot, Meadows, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Murrell, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Reese, Riggs, Schwab, Steele, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—44 yeas.

Nays: Antoine, Belden. Bertonneau, Bonnefoi, Blandin, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Demarest, Depasseau, Donato, Douglass, Duplessis, Fuller, Guichard, Harrison, Isabelle Thomas, Kelso, Martin, Mushaway, Myers, Pinchback, Riard, Smith, Thibaut, Tinchant, Vandegriff—30 nays.

Mr. Cooley was colled to the chair.

Mr. Tinchant recorded the following reasons for his vote on Mr. Waples' substitute:

I vote against the adoption of the article for the following reasons:

1. Because I think that all men who voluntarily aided or assisted the rebellion against the United States in any way, shape, or manner, are equally guilty and ought to be treated all alike.

2. Because having been taught to look upon the men of my race as fully equal to the white men, and able to fight their way through without the help of any partial prescriptive measure directed against their opponents.

3. Because I think that this article embodies such principles as are in direct conflict with those which are the most sacred to the heart of any honest and wise Republican.

Mr. Brown gave notice that he will, on to-morrow, move the reconsideration of the vote by which article ninety-eight was adopted.

Mr. Valfroit recorded the following reasons for his vote:

I have voted yes not with intention of disfranchising anybody, but to support the fourteenth amendment of congress, in expecting to see the disability soon removed by congress.

P. F. VALFROIT.

Mr. Pinchback recorded the following reasons for his vote:

I vote against the article because I firmly believe that two-thirds of the colored men of this state do not desire disfranchisement to such a great extent. P. B. S. PINCHBACK.

Mr. Hempstead moved to reconsider the vote last taken.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Wilson moved to amend article ninety-nine by adding:

That since the adoption of this constitution I have not fought a duel with deadly weapons, nor have I sent or accepted a challenge to fight a duel with deadly weapons, or acted as a second in carrying a challenge, or aided or advised any person thus offending or assisting.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to amend article ninety-nine by inserting in the seventh line, after the word "men," "that I am not disfranchised by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, and by this constitution."

Laid on the table.

The following amendment was rejected:

ART. 99. To strike out the entire article, and insert article ninety-seven, majority report, as follows:

ART. —. Members of the general assembly, and all other officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I (A. B.) do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support the constitution and laws of the United States, and the constitution and laws of this state, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as ——, according to the best of my ability and understanding. So help me God."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article ninety-nine was adopted, as follows:

ART. 99. Members of the general assembly, and all other officers, before they enter upon the duties of their offices, shall take the following oath or affirmation: "I (A. B.) do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I accept the civil and political equality of all men, and agree not to attempt to deprive any person or persons on account of race, color, or previous condition of any political or civil right, privilege, or immunity enjoyed by any other class of men. That I will support the constitution and laws of the United States, and the constitution and laws of this state, and that I will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties incumbent on me as ——, according to the best of my ability and understanding. So help me God."

Yeas 48, nays 16, as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Bertonneau, Blandin, Burrel, Cromwell, Cuney, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, U. Dupart, Francois, Guichard, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, R. H. Isabelle, Thomas Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Kelso, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Richard Lewis, Martin, Meadows, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Myers, Mushaway, Murrel, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Reese, Riard, Thibaut, Tinchant, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vidal, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—48 yeas.

Nays: Baker, Blackburn, Bonnefoi, Brown, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Dearing, Esnard, Ferguson, Massicot, Smith, Steele, Vandergriff, Waples—16 nays.

Mr. Cromwell moved that the sergeant-at-arms be ordered to compel the attendance of absent members, and was seconded by the delegates, and the sergeant-at-arms was so ordered. Pending the execution of the order, the proceedings of the convention were suspended.

Mr. Waples raised the point of order that the order to compel the attendance of absent members did not necessarily suspend the proceedings of the convention.

The chair decided adversely.

Mr. Waples appealed.

The chair was not sustained.

Mr. Blackburn recorded the reasons for his vote.

Articles 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, and 107 were adopted as follows, the following amendment of the committee to article 103, being laid on the table:

Article 103, to strike out all after the word "law," fourth line.

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Messrs. Baker and W. J. Blackburn recorded the following reasons for their votes:

Ninety-ninth article:

I vote no because the article as proposed contains several lines which I consider unnecessary, the same substance being contained in an oath to support the constitution of the United States and of this state.

L. W. BAKER.

Ninety-ninth article:

I vote no on the form of this oath for the reason that I consider it as irritating in verbiage while nothing is gained in principle.

W. JASPER BLACKBURN.

ART. 100. Treason against the state shall consist only in levying war against it, or in adhering to its enemies, giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason except on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on his confession in open court.

ART. 101. All penalties shall be proportioned to the nature of the offense.

ART. 102. The privilege of free suffrage shall be supported by laws regulating elections, and prohibiting under adequate penalties all undue influence thereon from power, bribery, tumult, or other improper practice.

ART. 103. No money shall be drawn from the treasury but in pursuance of specific appropriations made by law. A statement and account of receipts and expenditures of all public moneys shall be made annually in such manner as shall be prescribed by law, and the first legislature convening under this constitution shall make a special appropriation to liquidate whatever portion of the debt of this convention may at that time remain unpaid or unprovided for.

ART. 104. All civil officers of the state at large shall be voters of and reside within the state; and all district or parish officers shall reside within their respective districts or parishes, and shall keep their offices at such place therein as may be required by law.

ART. 105. All civil officers shall be removable by an address of two-thirds of the members elect to each house of the general assembly, except those whose removal is otherwise provided for by this constitution.

ART. 106. In all elections by the people the vote shall be taken by ballot; and in all elections by the senate and house of representatives, jointly or separately, the vote shall be given viva voce.

ART. 107. None but citizens of the United States and of this state shall be appointed to any office of trust or profit in this state.

The following amendments to article 108 were adopted:

Article 108—To strike out, second line, the word "written."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

To strike out, third line, the words "and conducted," and insert after the word "promulgated" the word "and."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article 108—To add to the article the words "and no law shall require judicial process to be issued in any other than the English language."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article 108, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 108. The laws, public records, and the judicial and legislative proceedings of the state shall be promulgated, and preserved in the English language, and no law shall require judicial process to be issued in any other than the English language.

Article 109 was stricken out.

The following amendment to article 110 was adopted:

Article 110—to strike out, fourth line, the word "previously."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

The article, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 110. No ex post facto or retroactive law, nor any law impairing the obligation of contracts, shall be passed; nor vested rights be divested, unless for purposes of public utility and for adequate compensation made.

The following amendment to article 111 was adopted:

Article 111—To strike out, seventh line, after the word "irrepealable," the word "unless," and insert the word "until."

To strike out the letter "s" in "contains," eighth line.

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article 111, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 111. Whenever the general assembly shall contract a debt exceeding in amount the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, unless in case of war, to repel invasion, or suppress insurrection, it shall in the law creating the debt provide adequate ways and means for the payment of the current interest and of the principal when the same shall become due, and the said law shall be irrepealable until principal and interest be fully paid, or unless the repealing law contain some adequate provision for the payment of the principal and interest of the debt.

Articles 112 and 113 were adopted, as follows:

ART. 112. The general assembly shall provide by law for all change of venue in civil and criminal cases.

ART. 113. The general assembly may enact general laws regulating the adoption of children, emancipation of minors, and the granting of divorces, but no special law shall be passed relating to particular or individual cases.

The following amendments to article 114 were adopted:

Article 114—To strike out the words "passed by the general assembly."

And to strike out, second line, the words "shall embrace but one object, and that shall be expressed by the title," and insert the words "shall express its object or objects in its title," so that the article shall read, "Every law shall express its object or objects in its title."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article 114 as amended was adopted, as follows:

Article 114—Every law shall express its object or objects in its title.

Articles 115, 116, and 117 were adopted, as follows:

ART. 115. No law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title, but in such case the revived or amended section shall be re-enacted and published at length.

ART. 116. The general assembly shall never adopt any system or code of laws by general reference to such system or code of laws, but in all cases shall specify the several provisions of the law it may enact.

ART. 117.—No person shall hold or exercise at the same time more than one office of trust or profit, except that of justice of the peace or notary public.

The following amendments to article 118 were rejected:

Article 118—To strike out all from the word "and," ninth line, to the word "sales," eleventh line, inclusive.

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

To strike out, thirteenth line, all after the word "purposes," and insert the following: "But no property shall be taxed more than two per cent per annum upon its assessed value, and no poll tax shall exceed one dollar and fifty cents per annum."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Mr. Cromwell moved to amend by striking out all after the word "sales," eleventh line.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Meadows moved to amend by striking out, in the fourteenth line, the words, "and fifty cents."

Laid on the table.

Artcle 118 was adopted, as follows:

ART. 118. Taxation shall be equal and uniform throughout the state; all property shall be taxed in proportion to its value, to be ascertained as directed by law; the general assembly shall have power to exempt from taxation property actually used for church, school, or charitable purposes. The general assembly may levy an income tax upon all persons pursuing any occupation, trade, or calling. And all such persons shall obtain a license as provided by law. All tax on income shall be pro rata on the amount of income, or business done. And all deeds of sale made or that may be made by collectors of taxes, shall be received by courts in evidence as prima facie valid sales. The general assembly shall levy a poll tax on all male inhabitants of this state over twenty-one years old, for school and charitable purposes, which tax shall never exceed one dollar and fifty cents per annum.

Article 119 was stricken out, as recommended by the committee on revision.

Articles 120, 121, 122, and 123 were adopted, as follows:

ART. 120. No liability, either state, parochial, or municipal, shall exist for any debts contracted for or in the interest of the rebellion against the United States government.

ART. 121. The general assembly may determine the mode of filling vacancies in all offices for which provision is not made in this constitution.

ART. 122. The general assembly shall pass no law requiring a property qualification for office.

ART. 123. All officers shall continue to discharge the duties of their offices until their successors shall have been inducted into office; except in cases of impeachment or suspension.

The following amendments to article 124, recommended by the committee, were rejected:

ART. 124. To strike out the entire article, and insert the following: "No tacit mortgages except those now in existence shall ever be enforced or recognized in this state."

R. WAPLES,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK,
W. H. COOLEY,
J. G. TALIAFERRO.

ART. 124. If the above substitute is not adopted, we recommend to strike out, third line, the words "and for the registration of the same," and to strike out, third line, the words "or privilege," and to strike out, sixth line, the words "and privileges," and to add, eighth, line the word "five," and to strike out, tenth line, the words "and privileges."

R. WAPLES,
W. H. COOLEY,
J. G. TALIAFERRO,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK.

The follewing amendment was adopted:

To add, second line, the words "dotal and" before "paraphernal."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article 124, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 124. The general assembly shall provide for the protection of the rights of married women to their dotal and paraphernal property for the registration of the same; but no mortgage or privilege shall hereafter affect third parties unless recorded in the parish where the property to be affected is situated. The tacit mortgages and privileges now existing in this state shall cease to have effect against third persons after the first day of January, eighteen hundred and seventy, unless duly recorded. The general assembly shall provide by law for the registration of all mortgages and privileges.

The following amendment to article 125 was adopted:

ART. 125. To add to the article the words "residing in the state."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Article 125, as amended, was adopted as follows:

ART. 125. The general assembly, at its first session under this constitution, shall provide an annual pension for the veterans of 1814 and 1815, residing in the state.

Article 126 was stricken out, as recommended by Mr. Crane, of the committee.

Article 127 was adopted as follows:

ART. 127. The military shall be in subordination to the civil power.

The following amendment to and proposition to strike out article 128 were rejected:

ART. 128. To substitute for the entire article the following:

"It shall be the duty of the general assembly to provide for the support of all paupers residing within the state."

R. WAPLES.

ART. 128. To strike out the entire article.

W. H. COOLEY,
J. G. TALIAFERRO,
W. R. CRANE,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK.

Mr. Schwab moved to amend by adding at the end of the article:

And all unsettled judgments rendered shall be opened by the courts for inquiry, without reference to the time rendered, whether the consideration thereof were confederate money, such judgment shall be null and void.

Laid on the table.

Articles 128 and 129 were adopted, as follows:

ART. 128. It shall be the duty of the general assembly to make it obligatory upon each parish to support all paupers residing within its limits.

ART. 129. All agreements, the consideration of which was confederate money, notes, or bonds, are null and void, and shall not be inforced by the courts of this state.

The following amendment to article 130 was adopted:

Article 130—To strike out, first line, the words "still unexecuted."

R. WAPLES,
P. B. S. PINCHBACK,
J. G. TALIAFERRO.

Article 130, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 130. Contracts for the sale of persons are null and void, and shall not be enforced by the courts of this state.

Mr. Belden moved to adopt the following as an additional article of the constitution:

The legislature shall pass a general homestead exemption law; provided, the property exempted from seizure and sale shall not exceed in value the sum of two thousand dollars.

Mr. Crane moved to amend by striking out "two thousand," and inserting "one hundred and twenty thousand."

The amendment was rejected.

The motion of Mr. Belden was laid on the table.

Article 131 was adopted as follows:

ART. 131. The state of Louisiana shall never assume nor pay any debt or obligation contracted or incurred in aid of the rebellion; nor shall this state ever in any manner claim from the United States, or make any allowance or compensation for slaves emancipated or liberated in any way whatever.

Mr. Meadows moved to adopt the following as an additional article of the constitution:

ART. —. All contracts made and entered into under the pretended authority of any governments heretofore existing in this state, by which children were bound out without the knowledge or consent of their parents, are hereby declared null and void; nor shall any child be bound out to any one for any term of years, while either one of its parents live, without the consent of such parent, except in cases of children legally sent to the house of correction.

Mr. Burrel moved to lay the article on the table.

Lost—yeas 9, nays 48—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Cooley, Cuney, Jones, McLeran, Reese, Riard, Thibaut, Waples—9 yeas.

Nays: Baker, Belden, Bertonneau, Blackburn, Blandin, Brown, Burrel, Butler, Crane, Crawford, Cromwell, Depasseau, G. Duparte, U. Dupart, Esnard, Francois, Gardiner, Guichard, Harper, Harris, R. H. Isabelle, Thomas Isabelle, Jackson, Kelso, Landers, Lange, R. Lewis, Martin, Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Mushaway, Oliver, Packard, Pierce Pinchback, Pollard, Riggs, Schwab, Snaer, Twitchell, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Vidal, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—48 nays.

The article, as follows, was adopted:

ART. 132. All contracts made and entered into under the pretended authority of any governments heretofore existing in this state, by which children were bound out without the knowledge or consent of their parents, are hereby declared null and void; nor shall any child be bound out to any one for any term of years, while either one of its parents live, without the consent of such parent, except in cases of children legally sent to the house of correction.

The convention adjourned until to-morrow at 10 o'clock, A. M.

A true copy:

WM. VIGERS, Secretary.

SEVENTY-FIFTH DAY.

NEW ORLEANS, February 29, 1868.

The convention met pursuant to adjournment, and was called to order by the president at 10 o'clock A. M.

The following members answered to their names:

J. G. Taliaferro, president; Messrs. Antoine, Baker, Belden, Bertonneau, Blackburn, Blandin, Burrel, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Cromwell, Cuney, Dearing, Depasseau, P. G. Deslonde, Donato, Douglass, G. Duparte, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Francois, Harris, Harrison, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Thomas Isabelle, Jones, Kelso, Landers, Lange, Leroy, R. Lewis, Martin, Massicot, Meadows, McLeran, Moses, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reese, Riard, Riggs, Roberts, Rodriguez, Schwab, Smith, Snaer, Thibaut, Twitchell, Underwood, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—61 members present.

The minutes were read and adopted, with a correction in the wording of the question of order raised by Mr. Waples.

ORIGINAL RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. Underwood:

Resolved, That Mr. Thomas B. Waters, formerly assistant secretary, return to the warrant clerk of the convention the warrants issued to him for per diem, from the first day of February to the eighteenth of February, 1868.

Lies over.

By Mr. Wickliffe:

Resolved, That the committee on printing be authorized and instructed to have published in pamphlet form ten thousand copies of the constitution, after being adopted as a whole, and that they be authorized to have said work done where it can be executed in the most workmanlike manner, in the shortest time, and at the lowest price.

Lies over.

Resolved, That the constitution, after its adoption as a whole, be published in three regular issues up to the time of the general election for the ratification of the same, in the New Orleans REPUBLICAN, New Orleans Advocate, and Homer Iliad.

Lies over.

By Mr. R. H. Isabelle:

WHEREAS, The present existing laws in this state provide for heavy bonds or securities to be furnished by officeholders of several state, parish, or municipal offices, both elective and appointive; and

Whereas, It is evidently true that the larger portion of real estate in this state is owned by persons who are opposed to the reconstruction of Louisiana on loyal basis; and

Whereas, It may be difficult for the first loyal officers elected or appointed under this constitution to furnish such heavy bonds or securities; therefore, we do adopt the following

ORDINANCE.

To suspend fifty per cent of the amount of lands or securities prescribed under the present existing laws of this state.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained by the constitutional convention of the state of Louisiana assembled, That fifty per cent of the amount of bonds or securities as required for the state, parish, and municipal officers in this state be and is hereby suspended during the first term for which officers are elected or appointed under this constitution.

SEC. 2. Be it further ordained, That so much of any law that may exist as to require bonds or securities of any of the above mentioned officers to be furnished by persons owning property within that any of said officers may be elected or appointed, is also suspended during the term as mentioned in the foregoing section; so as to allow bonds or securities to be furnished by persons owning property within any part of this state; Provided, That the first general assembly elected under this constitution may annul or alter this ordinance at any time.

Lies over.

By Mr. Blackburn:

Resolved, That the patriotic and loyal majority in the congress of the United States, as headed by General Grant and Secretary Stanton, deserve and will receive the approbation and co-operation of all who wish to see the wheels of government relieved from the charges of treason.

Lies over.

By Mr. Blackburn:

Resolved, That the secretary of this convention be allowed extra compensation to the amount of $500, as a compliment for the faithful, prompt, and efficient manner in which he has discharged his official duty; and that the warrant clerk be and he is hereby authorized to issue warrants accordingly.

Mr. Cooley moved to suspend the rules to place the resolution upon its passage.

The rules were suspended, and the resolution was adopted.

Mr. O. H. Hempstead moved that an extra compensation of $200 be allowed the minute clerk, the warrant clerk, and the clerks of the committees on printing, enrollment, and contingent expenses, for the faithful manner in which they have performed their duties during the session of this convention.

Lies over.

Mr. Belden called to the chair.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Mr. Brown moved to take from the table the motion to reconsider the vote upon the adoption of article ninety-eight.

Mr. Underwood moved to indefinitely postpone the motion to take from the table.

Lost—yeas 31, nays 33—as follows:

Yeas: Blackburn, Burrel, Butler, Cromwell, Dupart U., Francois, Gardiner, Harris, Hempstead, Jackson, Jones, Lange, Leroy, Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Riggs, Valfroit, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—31.

Nays: Antoine, Belden, Bertonneau, Blandin, Bonseigneur, Bonnefoi, Brown, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, Depasseau, Donato, Douglass, Duparte G., Duplessis, Esnard, Harrison, Isabelle T., Kelso, Martin, Mushaway, Myers, Pinchback, Riard, Roberts, Smith, Snaer, Steele, Thibaut, Tinchant, Vandergriff—33 nays.

The motion to take from the table was lost—yeas 34, nays 36—as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Beldin, Bertonneau, Blanden, Bonseigneur, Bonnefoi, Brown, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Cuney, Depasseau, Donato, Douglass, G. Duparte, Duplessis, Esnard, Ferguson, Harrison, T. Isabelle, Kelso, Martin, Mushaway, Myers, Pinchback, Riard, Roberts, Smith, Snaer, Steele, Thibaut, Tinchant, Vandergriff—34 yeas.

Nays: Blackburn, Burrel, Cromwell, U. Dupart, Francois, Gardiner, Harper, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Lange, Leroy, Massicot, Meadows, Morris, Moses, Newsham, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reagan, Reese, Riggs, Twitchell, Underwood, Valfroit, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—36 nays.

Mr. Jones called to the chair.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Mr. Belden recorded the following reasons for his vote:

I am opposed to the substitute to article ninety-eight, offered by the delegate from Orleans, Mr. Waples, for the following reasons:

I think it is wrong to make no discrimination between the man who for years labored for a dissolution of the Union and the man who always favored a Union of the states, and only ceased to advocate the some when driven to a different course by irresistible and overpowering force. This article has the effect of disfranchising men who opposed to the last extremity secession and war, while it leaves as voters and officeholders the very men who plunged the state into war, and brought desolation and ruin on the fairest portion of the United States.

Therefore I am in favor of disfranchising the political adventurers and officeholders who led the state into secession and war, and none others. The time to judge of the guilt of men is just before the war commenced, and not after the country was in an actual state of war. The politician, statesman, and officeholder who quietly closeted himself at a time when the people were quiet, happy, and prosperous, and cooly meditated war, and consequent desolation, is a monster who should never be allowed again to participate in the councils of his country.

But while it is right to forever disfranchise the men who led the country into war, it is wrong to disfranchise men who were driven into rebel armies by the most reckless and relentless despotism that appears in the annals of history.

I am therefore opposed to the article, because in its effects it disfranchises men who were not the authors of the late war, while it does not touch the politicians and officeholders who are the authors of all our trouble. They are again turned loose upon the political world, because they were too depraved to fight in a war of their own creation, and the men are alone disfranchised who opposed secession, and were driven into the rebellious armies by those political tyrants who are now free.

Article 132 being under consideration, Mr. Waples moved that the convention proceed to select the location of the capitol of the state by ballot.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Crane moved to adopt the following recommendation of members of the committee on revision.

Article 132, to strike out the words "Baton Rouge," and insert the words "New Orleans."

R. WAPLES,
J. G. TALIAFERRO,
W. R. CRANE.

Mr. Underwood moved to lay the motion of Mr. Crane on the table.

Lost—yeas 41, nays 27, as follows:

Yeas: Bertonneau, Blandin, Bonseigneur, Burrel, Butler, Crane, Cromwell, Depasseau, Donato, Douglass, G. Duparte, Duplessis, Esnard, Ferguson, Harris, Hempstead, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Thomas Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Landers, Lange, Leroy, Martin, Massicot, Morris, Mushaway, Packard, Pollard, Riard, Riggs, Roberts, Rodriguez, Smith, Snaer, Steele, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Waples, Wickliffe, Wilson—41.

Nays: Antoine, Baker, Belden, Bonnefoi, Brown, Cooley, Crawford, Cuney, Dearing, P. G. Deslonde, U. Dupart, Francois, Harper, Harrison, Kelso, R. Lewis, Moses, Myers, Oliver, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Reagan, Reese, Thibaut, Underwood, Vidal, Williams—27.

The motion of Mr. Crane prevailed.

Article 132, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

ART. 132. The seat of government shall be established at the city of New Orleans, and shall not be removed without the consent of two-thirds of the members of both houses of the general assembly.

Mr. Lange moved to reconsider the last vote.

Mr. Blandin moved to lay the motion to reconsider on the table.

Adopted.

Mr. Underwood moved to take from the table the motion to reconsider.

The chair decided the motion not in order.

Mr. Underwood appealed.

The chair was sustained.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to adopt the following as an article of the constitution:

ART. —. All lands sold in pursuance of decrees of courts shall be divided into tracts of from ten to fifty acres. No individual, company, or corporation shall be allowed to purchase more than one hundred and fifty acres at such sale.

Mr. Waples asked that the question be divided so as to take the vote upon the first and second clauses of the proposed article separately.

The first clause, as follows, was adopted:

ART. —. All land sold in pursuance of decrees of court shall be divided into tracts of from ten to fifty acres.

Yeas 42, nays 11, as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Bertonneau, Blandin, Burrel, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Cromwell, Cuney, Depasseau, P. G. Deslonde, G. Duparte, U. Dupart, Duplessis, Esnard, Harris, Ingraham, R. H. Isabelle, Jackson, Jones, Lange, Martin, McLeran, Morris, Moses, Myers, Oliver, Packard, Pierce, Pinchback, Poindexter, Pollard, Riard, Smith, Snaer, Thibaut, Valfroit, Vandergriff, Vidal, Waples, Wickliffe, Williams, Wilson—42 yeas.

Nays: Bonnefoi, Crawford, Dearing, Thomas Isabelle, Kelso, Leroy, Richard Lewis, Reese, Snider, Steele, Twitchell—11 nays.

The second clause was rejected, as follows:

No individual company or corporation shall be allowed to purchase more than one hundred and fifty acres at such sale.

Yeas 16, nays 39, as follows:

Yeas: Antoine, Cromwell, Cuney, Francois, Harris, Jackson, Landers, Lange, Newsham, Oliver, Pierce, Poindexter, Pollard, Reese, Wickliffe, Williams—16 yeas.

Nays: Bertonneau, Blandin, Bonnefoi, Burrel, Butler, Cooley, Crane, Crawford, Dearing, Depasseau, Deslonde P. G., Duparte G., Dupart U., Duplessis, Esnard, Ingraham, Isabelle R, H., Isabelle Thomas, Jones, Kelso, Leroy, Lewis R., McLeran, Morris, Moses, Myers, Packard, Pinchback, Riard, Riggs, Rodriguez, Smith, Snaer, Steele, Thibaut, Twitchell, Vandergriff, Waples, Wilson—39 nays.

Mr. Moses moved to reconsider the last vote.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Crawford moved to adopt the following as an additional article of the constitution:

ART. —. No member of this convention shall be eligible to any office of profit or honor in this state for one year after the constitution shall go into effect.

Laid on the table.

Mr. Cooley moved to adopt the following article, recommended by the committee, as an aditional article of the constitution:

ART. —. No judicial powers shall be exercised by clerks of courts.

Mr. Wickliffe moved to amend by adding "except in the parish of Orleans."

The amendment was rejected, and the article as proposed was adopted.

Mr. Isabelle moved to adopt the following as an additional article to the constitution:

ART. —. No soldier, sailor, or marine in the military or naval service of the United States shall hereafter acquire a residence in this state by reason of being stationed or doing duty in the same.

It was adopted.

Title VI. was adopted as a whole.

Mr. Packard was called to the chair

Mr. Crane moved to adopt the following recommendation:

We recommend to strike out title VII., and article 133.

J. G. TALIAFERRO,
R. WAPLES,
W. R. CRANE,
W. H. COOLEY,
P. B. S. PINCKBACK.

Laid on the table.

The following recommendations of the committee were adopted:

Article 133—If the article is adopted we recommend to strike out, tenth line, the words "the same report upon," and tenth line, the words "in progress;" it will then read, "he shall communicate to the general assembly, through the governor, annually, his views concerning the condition of the public works, recommend such measures as in his opinion the public interest of the state may require, and shall perform," etc.

And in the twentieth line to strike out the word "their," and insert the word "internal;"

And substitute the word "improvements" for the word "improvement;"

And insert after it the words "in their respective districts."

It will then read, "to tax themselves for internal improvements in their respective districts;"

And to strike out, twenty-second line, the words "have power to;"

And to strike out, twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth lines, the words "the general laws of the state," and insert the words "the general system of internal improvements adopted by the state;"

And to strike out, thirty-second line, the words "or otherwise."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

Mr. Crawford moved to amend by striking out, in the second and third lines, the words "skilled in the theory and practice of his profession."

Laid on the table.

Mr. Cromwell moved to amend by striking out "appointed by the governor by and with the consent of the senate and house of the general assembly."

Laid on the table.

Article 133, as amended, was adopted, as follows:

TITLE VII.—INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

ART. 133. There shall be elected by the qualified electors a state engineer, skilled in the theory and practice of his profession, who shall hold his office at the seat of government for the term of four years. He shall have the superintendence and direction of all public works in which the state may be interested, except those made by joint stock companies, or such as may be under the parochial or city authorities exclusively, and not in conflict with the general laws of the state. He shall communicate to the general assembly, through the governor, annually, his views concerning the condition of the public works, recommend such measures as in his opinion the public interest of the state may require, and shall perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law. His salary shall be five thousand dollars per annum until otherwise provided by law. The mode of election, number, and salary of his assistants shall be fixed by law. The state engineer and assistants shall give bonds for the performance of their duties, as shall be prescribed by law.

The general assembly may create internal improvement districts, composed of one or more parishes, and may grant a right to the citizens thereof to tax themselves for internal improvements in their respective districts. Said internal improvement districts, when created, shall have the right to select commissioners, appoint officers, fix their pay, regulate all matters relative to the improvements of their districts, provided such improvements shall not conflict with the general system of internal improvements adopted by the state.

The general assembly may grant aid to said districts out of the funds arising from the swamp and overflowed lands granted to the state by the United States for that purpose.

The general assembly shall have the right of abolishing the office of state engineer by a majority vote of all the members elected to each branch, and of substituting a board of public works in lieu thereof, should they deem it necessary.

The following amendment to article 134 was laid on the table:

Article 134—to strike out the entire article, and insert article one hundred and thirty-six of the majority report, as follows:

"It shall be the duty of the general assembly to make provision for the education of all the youths in the state between the ages of six and eighteen years, without prejudice or partiality to any one."

W. H. COOLEY,
T. S. CRAWFORD.

The following amendments were adopted:

If the article stands as adopted, to strike out, third line, the word "their," and insert the word "its."

Recommended by the
COMMITTEE.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The New-Orleans Advocate

A Weekly Journal, Devoted to Christianity, our Country, and Literature.

JOHN P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.

VOL. III. NO. 13. NEW ORLEANS, SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1868. WHOLE NO. 113.

Poetry.

THE CAWING OF THE CROW.

BY LU BILLINGS SPALDING.

well do I remember, in the month of brown September,
As I wandered through the woodlands when the trees were all aglow,
For the tints of fall were on them, and I sighed and thought upon them,
Till my reverie sad was broken by the cawing of the crow.
Then I'd creep from out my haven, and watch the moody raven,
As she fluttered through the branches that creaked above my head,
While I listened there with longing in hopes she'd change her cawing
To notes of warbled sweetness, a song, if nothing more:
But she only mounted higher, and spread her wings on air,
With her cawing, cawing, cawing, repeated o'er and o'er.

O well do I remember, as I sat before the fender,
Forgetful of the lesson unlearned upon my knee,
And saw within the embers, that flashed in fiery splendors
Strange visions of old cities that perished long ago;
And lost in vagrant dreaming, lost in forgetful seeming,
I was startled to the real, by the cawing of the crow;
Then I'd gaze from out the window, then on the waving cinder,
As I shuddered at the groaning of the wild winds fierce and low,
But she moved her wing as slightly, and took her way as lightly
As when summer suns were trailing o'er the hills with fiery glow.

well do I remember, when fall's rare fading splendor
Had well-nigh spent its brightness that blushed at autumn's call,
When I wandered forth to gather the nuts which wind and weather
Had lashed from off the branches—the offering of fall;
Then I filled the brimming casket—a round and uncouth basket—
And drew myself up proudly in readiness to go;
Thought I heard a rustling, and 'mong the leaves a hustling,
And I started half in wonder at the cawing of the crow:
For she claimed her share of booty, very likely 'twas her duty
To lay up stores for winter, ere the cold north winds should blow,
And with fear she fluttered o'er me, her pinions dark above me,
And her cawing, cawing, cawing, repeated o'er and o'er.

well do I remember, though life's varied September
Hath tinted youth's bright summer with the sombre autumn's glow,
And these memories steal before me in the woof of life's strange story,
Clad in living—seeming real—at the cawing of the crow.
How strange the life of mortals, here in these gloomy portals,
Where we have so little summer, and so much of wintry woe;
And life links closely woven, too strong to ever be cloven
By just such little trifles as the cawing of a crow.
And we love to think upon them, when the muse has kindly clothed them
In a strange and dreamy real of a startling natural glow,
And we reverence each slight pleasure that in youth we loved to treasure,
And even stoop to cherish THE CAWING OF A CROW.

MY ANEMONES.

our withered blossoms of pale purple tint—
name beside them, only, and a date;
nd yet more valued are those faded flowers han this bouquet of roses, exquisite color, fresh and fragrant, glitt'ring still ith morning dew.
A perfume sweet exhales
om my anemones, and beauty is folded in their petals, which, to eyes practiced ne'er may be revealed. 'Tis strange, ough 'tis human, that so miserly heart becomes, its treasures hoarding—that love, so well, to say of some things—"they mine!" and so securely shield them from gaze and contact of the outer world.

've strayed, my flowers, from the spot where first sunbeams waked you; hushed by wintry winds, wrapped 'neath snowy coverlet, you long slept; but light and warmth aroused you with tidings good that spring was come, that birds—resurrection anthem of the true beautiful—were warbling; then, you first eir chorus heard, and next the violets.
was an April morn, and sunny sky
d robin's song did greet your peeping bove
e sol; the air was full of throbbing life.
nature in the vigor which the rest winter had bestowed exultant seemed;
n children's voices loud caught the refrain,
d in their romping glee the echo sent
From bluff to bluff resounding far. The while
A steamer's whistle with the curling smoke
Attending in its wake proclaimed that lake
And river were from icy fetters free.

"There's passage homeward," was the thought
That quick expression found. "O we shall miss
You!" threw a cloud upon the brightness of
That perfect April day. We know not that Affection's tendrils have entwined about
The objects of association, till
A change must sever them—then how they cling.

Amid the bustle of departure, and
The sad "Good-byes," a kind voice said—"Here are
The first anemones; I'm glad they bloomed
Before you left us." Then that little bluff
Encircled town, so closely nestling by
The river side, soon disappeared, and each
Familiar hill-top was in dusky haze
Of twilight dim: and you and I, my flowers
Were left alone. M.

New Orleans, March 9, 1868.

A Talk about What We Read.

BY DR. C. B. WHITE.

America is still young in literature, yet cynical European critics have long since ceased to ask, "Who reads an American book?" Our present want is not standard works by native authors, for these we have in abundance; but the development of an elevated literary taste among our people; a taste for the pure, the beautiful, the truthful.

Our soldiers in the recent war represented the best class of the working people: yet in looking over a soldiers' circulating library, supplied by the "Sanitary" or "Christian Commissions," or, as in this city, by the confiscations of General Butler, one could not help noticing the unsoiled appearance of the works of Irving, Cooper, and Walter Scott, while the morbid sensations of Sylvanus Cobb, Mrs. Southworth, and Charles Reade had been conned, read, and reread until the books were badly "dog-eared," and almost in pieces.

Suppose we call in at a bookstore. We find nearly all of them supplied with shelves for the trashy weekly papers of the present day. We find "Harper's Weekly" and "Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper," those gems of pictorial illustration of current history, quite lost sight of by the throng, who ask for the "Police Gazette," the "New York Ledger," the "New York Weekly"—weakly it is indeed, in yet another sense—a large portion of the purchasers being so far lost to shame as to ask for "Pomeroy's LaCrosse Democrat," and for "The Last Sensation."

While the people thus seek for literature that portrays the crime and weakness of poor human nature, how can we expect anything else from them than sneers about the degeneracy of human nature and the corrupt times our fate has associated us with. It is a mere repetition of the difference of the two knights, each claiming that he was right about the color of a shield and the other quite wrong; the one was observing its silver-white outside and the other its golden-yellow lining. These opponents of ours may be quite correct in claiming that human nature is often weak and sinful, while I think we may safely affirm that there is more real nobleness and worth of character now existing in the world than has ever existed at any time before. One swallow does not make summer, no more should we acknowledge that the existence of a few rascals in it proves our social system all corrupt.

A book-publishing house that issues cheap editions of the works of standard authors does a great good to the community. Let us have the wholesome works of Irving, Scott, Dickens, Mrs. Oliphant, and Miss Mulock, and scattered as broadcast and as cheaply among our people as are the worthless and unnatural productions of Dumas, (the elder and the younger,) George Sand, and unnumbered anonymous scribblers, and combined with an effort of our better people to initiate a new order of things; then we may expect the growth of a wholesome taste for the natural, the probable, the elevating among our story readers, and the occupation of sensationists would be gone. 'Tis true, "stolen fruits are sweetest;" perhaps for awhile, our school-boy friends would continue to hide "Sixteen-string Jack," or "The Three Guardsmen" behind their class books at school, or smuggle them under their jackets in going home; but boy-nature is not altogether bad; such habits would be forsaken if good wholesome stories were allowed them openly.

In no country in the world is there such a profusion of infidel books, of improbable romances, and of corrupting plays, as in France. What other Christian country can we possibly find where the common people are more ignorant or degraded and the higher classes more heartless and superficial.

The better style of romance manufacture is vastly better in the present day than formerly. We are taught that true chivalry may as often be exhibited in the present day as in the dark ages; the noble action of daring to do right in spite of the frowns or sneers of society, standing by a friend whose good name is unjustly aspersed and according to an open enemy praise elicited by virtues he may possess. It is one good sign of the times that the better class of the patrons of light literature of the present day will not allow to pass without ridicule any attempt to foist upon the hero or heroine a mawkish sentimentality or the exhibition of improbable sensibilities.

Young people crossed in love do not die of "broken hearts" nor pine away in solitude as often as formerly. The way we avoid those things now a days is to give our friends change of scene or of associations; the young gentleman goes hard to work at his previously neglected business, and the young lady probably finds a sphere of usefulness among her poor or afflicted relatives and friends, or perhaps in taking part in household cares not previously thought of or properly appreciated. It is my opinion that were more people disappointed in their first attachments and thus led to give the subject more mature attention, the number of unhappy marriages would be materially diminished.

This is the railroad age of literature, though it is to be hoped that few of our trains are as lightly freighted with common sense as our Fenian friend "George Francis." But the college course of literature is rushed through with by our young men like a "lightning express" in their anxiety to reach the goal of distinction in profession, art, or business, as the case may be. Some even stop at way stations to search for the desideratum.

Yet there is an increased disposition in our country to cultivate letters as a science. The Messrs. Appleton, of New York, since 1861, collate into a "Yearly Cyclopedia" the current events, discoveries, and social changes of the age. Several excellent journals, devoted exclusively to the arts, sciences, and higher literature, are ably edited and well supported, and the tone and talent of our leading weekly and daily newspapers have markedly improved.

As Americans let us cultivate and patronize our own literature, just as we ought to first see the glorious beauties of scenery of our own rivers, plains, valleys, and mountains, ere we rush off to visit Switzerland, Italy, and the lochs of Scotland. I appreciate the writings of Mr. Dickens and of Sir Walter Scott very highly, but I have yet to learn that they surpass in beauty, truth, or pathos those of our own beloved Irving or Prescott. Our Bancroft and Motley take rank side by side with the illustrious historians of this or any other age.

It has been said, and I believe truly, that Washington Irving as a writer is more highly esteemed in Great Britain than in his own country. It is to our shame that it is so. His own life early blighted by the untimely death of the lady he loved, yet, though he lived an old bachelor he did not become soured. We find ever in his writings genial good nature, a keen humor, and set forth most prominently a reverent regard for the God of nature, and the enunciation of pure principles of good-will for our fellow man.

In regard to the increase among us of prurient literature, few of us have so little influence but that we can do something to check its spread. We can recommend the better class of journals and of light literature—for people must be amused, if not innocently, still amused. It is neither necessary nor desirable that, like certain periodicals and papers of doubtful character, we should so far go into particulars about the objectionable features of the satanic press as to excite the curiosity of the young on the subject. Let us use common sense on the subject; who in society is more disliked or more dreaded than the unscrupulous scandal monger? who from lack of brains or want of good nature can see none but evil intentions in the acts, remarks, and tones of those he associates with, and who deliberately perverts the signification of things said or done.

While it is, of course, our duty to discourage vice, and whenever proper to express our hearty detestation of it, we should yet be charitable enough not to impute bad motives where we may reasonably doubt their existence, and still less not to close unalterably the doors of repentance and return against even the evil doer.

As Webster has said, "'Tis employment that makes people happy." An idle population is always corrupt; but the present state of corruption in our country is, I doubt not, greatly exaggerated; and it must subside when the suddenly-enriched "shoddyites" and petroleum princes, find a gain their true level, as they will when their wealth is squandered.

In our country wealth should not entitle to social standing. We should know no aristocracy save that constituted by learning, piety, and good breeding, and this class of aristocrats are rarely considered objectionable by any sane person.

We agree, I think, that we would exclude the scandal monger and the unscrupulous fault-finder from our society as devoid of good taste, good sense, or good breeding. So let us, in our literary recreations or studies, exclude all that does not breathe a spirit of fairness and of good feeling toward our fellow man.

I should be very sorry to be understood as excluding from the scope of literature satire, when necessary to expunge by this effective weapon some social blot, as for example Mr. Thackeray's onslaught on the military and civil social snobs of the present century. Serious diseases sometimes demand severe remedies.

When we read let us read something instructive, or if we are weary and need to be exhilarated by the spice of wit or humor, let us choose those wits who display good feeling for their fellows.

How much more sparkling and truly permanent in its effect is that pleasantry intruding on no one's feelings, yet that all can enjoy. By such a choice we must promote our own happiness and recommend ourselves to our associates.

Letter from Texas.

DEAR ADVOCATE:

We commenced our round of quarterly meetings at Beltin, embracing the second sabbath in February. On Saturday we met, and elected our stewards, trustees, and missionary committees for the year. Sunday being cold and unpleasant, we were prevented from meeting for preaching, sacrament, etc. For this charge we have been unable to procure a supply, and have determined in connection with other duties to supply it ourselves.

Our second quarterly meeting was held at Marlin. This place is situated on the east bank of the Brazos, some few miles from the falls, in Falls county. This county embraces much fertile land along the river on the tributaries putting into it. There were in former times many large planters living in it, having quite a large slave population. Since their freedom the most of the colored people still remain there—some renting, some leasing, and others hiring out for a mere pittance.

We left home early on Saturday morning to ride forty miles. Our first business was to hunt up the preacher in charge. Failing, however, that day to do so, we found ourself at nightfall at General Shields'. The general is a man that has figured quite conspicuously in our national politics. He was once a member of congress from Alabama, and afterward was appointed a minister by President Polk to one of the South American republics. During his congressional term, as he related to me, by associating with the Northern members, and spending a summer in the North, he was made a convert to the doctrine of anti-slavery, although at the time a large slave owner himself. After his term of office had expired he returned home, and spoke confidentially to some of his bosom friends his misgivings upon the slave subject, who simultaneously dropped him as one corrupted with Northern politics and anti-slavery fanaticism. He saw if he ever attempted to run for office again the question would be raised against him, so he quit the arena of public life, and some years ago came off to this state. In 1861 General Shields took strong ground against secession, which brought down the ire of the people upon him. He managed to weather through the war, and still lives to advocate impartial suffrage, free press, free speech, etc.

He received us with a cordiality and hospitality that only a well-bred gentleman with a warm genial heart can extend.

Here we spent the night. The next morning, seeing quite a number of freedmen on the plantations, we went out and commenced conversing with them—telling them at the same time our business in the country. The following will illustrate their caution in dealing with strangers. This was a few days after the election—the first time in life they have ever realized their fondly cherished hopes of being permitted to vote. Not having ever heard of me before, I saw that they were not disposed to credit all I said unless I could offer some corroborating evidence. They frankly told me they had often been imposed upon by strangers, and that henceforth they had determined to have nothing more to do with a man—preacher or what not—unless he "voted right," meaning the Republican ticket. I saw in a moment how I might relieve their minds from all doubts, and at the same time set myself right before them.

The Republican ticket was printed upon a yellow slip of paper, surmounted with a large eagle, his claws clasping a bundle of arrows, and a huge snake in his beak. The whole was so artistically arranged that a mere glance at it would enable the most unskillful to determine its political character. Happening to have one or two in my pocket, I drew them out, and remarked that I did not know how they voted, but as for myself I voted this kind of a ticket, exhibiting it at the same time. I saw in a moment that I had gained my point, so after distributing some tracts and Testaments among them I took my leave. After a weary ride over hills and dales, through brush, cedar brakes, and swamps, we at length arrived at Brother A. C. Fairman's about noon, and found ourselves about twelve miles from the place appointed for the meeting. Of course then it was too late, so leaving another appointment we returned home.

The third Sunday was the time for the quarterly meeting at Cameron. This place is situated on the north side of Little river, a tributary of the Brazos, in Milan county. The land on the streams is generally very productive. On the south side of the river the soil is sandy, with a very heavy growth of post oak and hickory, and produces corn, cotton, and sweet potatoes when the seasons are regular in abundance. On the north side the soil is of a different character. The timber is mostly musquit, the grass musquit, the soil when wet very sticky, and the surface uneven. It is mostly adapted to stock raising.

A long weary drive of thirty-five miles brought us to the house of Brother Jackson. Here we found things rather in a disordered condition. The Johnson policy men had tried to overawe the freedmen to keep them from voting, or to keep any man from running on the Republican ticket. Brother Jackson took an active part in having a candidate brought out that was loyal, and instructing the freedmen how to vote. For choosing to exercise this right as a citizen he came near being mobbed in Cameron on the day of election. But not being very easily intimidated he prosecuted the cause, carried the election, and elected the right man. So much for a little determined courage. But this by no means pacified the people toward him nor toward me. This little episode produced such an excitement it was thought advisable not to carry the meeting into town as was intended, so I preached under the eaves of a country church—not daring to go in—in the open air to my sable audience. Every effort imaginable had been made to confuse the minds of the colored people so as to prevent them from coming out to hear me, some telling them the meeting was to be at one place, some at another, and one reverend gentleman went so far as to tell them I would not be there at all; that I had left the country, and was not coming back any more. Here again my plans were frustrated in getting a supply for the work. The man I had calculated upon became weak-kneed on account of the excitement, and did not come out, lest in seeking to elevate his race he himself should be elevated to a limb. This is a culpable cowardice that deserves not sympathy. The Savior knowing the menaces of wicked men says to his ministers relating to this subject: "He that seeketh to save his life shall lose it, and he that loseth his life for my sake shall save it." It is true that the man (white especially) that serves the cause here jeopards his life, exiles himself from society, and becomes a social outcast.

But we look forward to a better time, though we may have to endure much now. There is an anecdote related of old Jo Kuyrkendoll, an old Texan, that will illustrate my meaning. Among the three hundred that came out to Texas in 1823, in Austin's colony, was "Old Jo Kuyrkendoll," as he was familiarly known. "Old Jo" had a good wife by the name of Nancy, and so fond were they of each other's society that she used to accompany him in the bear hunt, the buffalo chase, on the Indian trail, or wherever he might go, his faithful spouse followed him. After many years of conjugal affection, Nancy at length was no more. She seems to have been, notwithstanding her poor opportunities, a good religious woman. In respect to her religion and as a last respect to her memory, he concluded to have her funeral preached. Notice being given, and the minister invited, the services were duly observed. The preacher, in conclusion, remarked that he had no doubt from the religious character of Mrs. K. that she was then at rest; and wound up his remarks by exhorting her friends and relations to meet her in Heaven.

The closing remarks seem to have made a wonderful impression on "Old Jo's" mind. When the preacher was about to leave, Jo took him aside and asked him seriously if he really believed Nancy was in Heaven. The preacher replied that he had no doubt from what he knew of her, and what he had heard, that she was. "Old Jo," with evident emotion, "Now, parson, if you think so, old Jo wants to go there, but I want you to be certain, for if she is not there I don't, for old Jo can tough it out anywhere where Nancy is." His idea seems to have been to ascertain exactly where she had gone, and then to live as near like her as possible so as to get to the same place, let that be where it might. Now this in the same sense will illustrate my meaning. We have to carry with us continually the spirit of the martyr, and live as near up to duties of missionaries as possible, let this lead us to victory or lead us to death.

Having been already tedious, we will close, and promise more in another letter. T. B. F.

March 10, 1868.

Rev. Mr. Honey.

We deeply sympathize with our esteemed friend, Rev. Brother Honey, of Galveston, Texas, in the severe afflictions which he has been called to endure within the past twelve months. Last summer two of his precious children died of yellow fever, and now the awful intelligence reaches us that his father has been murdered. The subjoined extract from a letter by Rev. Mr. Honey's brother-in-law will give our readers the facts of this dreadful affair:

The following statement will give you all that is known as yet of the mysterious affair: Mr. Honey was at home as usual to dinner on Saturday about one o'clock, and then went to the poultry house to do some work, (he was always in the habit of staying there during the day), and intended, as was his custom on Saturday, to hitch up his horse and go to market about 4 o'clock P. M. Mother got supper ready and waited it some time, and then thought she would go to the stable (or hennery) and see what detained him. When she got in sight of the place she saw the wagon standing outside with a robe on the seat, and thinking he had returned from market and was putting out his horse, she returned to the house and waited over half an hour, when it got dark. She went to the nearest neighbor and got him to go with her to the stable. They found the front door shut and hooked on the inside, got assistance, took off the hinges, and entered, passed through the building to the opposite end, where the horse was kept, where they found him dead. He lay with his head about eighteen inches from the manger, with his feet at the entrance of the stall. The horse was partly harnessed, the collar and hames on, and the rest of the harness laid at Mr. Honey's side. The horse was backed entirely out of the stall, and was standing trembling as though he had been frightened. Mr. Honey's face was terribly mutilated, having about ten horrible gashes cut in the face and on the head, and nearly all of the face bones were broken. The first impression was that the horse had killed him, but after examining the wounds and ascertaining the fact that his pocketbook was gone, the jury rendered a verdict that he had come to his death by blows from an instrument in the hands of some person or persons unknown. The whole affair is shrouded in mystery, but it is absolutely certain to my mind that no horse ever did it. There was found near where he lay a garden fork about the length of an ordinary shovel, with short, thick tines, and upon one of these tines there was a little blood, but it was partly covered with manure. Any of the wounds might have been made with this weapon, but I do not think any one could have been made by the horse's feet.

The inquest was very unsatisfactory, and Mr. Burns and others insisted upon a re-examination of the body. We could not get a formal investigation, but did succeed in getting the same surgeon who attended the inquest to make a careful examination in the presence of the sheriff and chief of police. The fork has been placed in charge of an officer for preservation. I think that I never saw a community more astounded than they seemed to be, yet it seemed almost impossible to get any of the authorities interested in the matter. The last person known to be with Mr. Honey was a negro. He was arrested, but was again released, there being no proof of his guilt, and almost a certainty of his innocence. It seems to be the opinion of the people there generally that it was done by a man named Judson, who is the owner of the house where Mr. Honey lived. Still there is no proof against him. He is known to be a dishonest, thieving kind of a man, and I think this has something to do with the public feeling. But there are some things that make his actions during that week need explanation. This Judson and wife occupied one part of the house and Mr. and Mrs. Honey the other. Some time since Mrs. Judson left the place to visit her friends, since which time Judson has been traveling selling patent medicines, returning every two or three weeks, and invariably came to the house, when Mrs. Honey would give him his meals. The Monday before the tragedy he left on one of these excursions and took particular pains to let them know he was going out of town, and as the train passed the house Mr. Judson stood out on the platform and saluted Mrs. Honey. He was seen in the place on Wednesday of that week, and it is thought he took the train from there on Saturday night (the night of the murder), but I could get no positive proof on this point. This man Judson has been arrested several times for petty stealing. It is not known that Mr. Honey had any difficulty with him or any one else. The authorities are trying to get track of Judson, and say they will arrest him on suspicion if they can find his whereabouts.

Mr. H. had only been there a few months, and had formed but few acquaintances. The funeral services took place at the house Thursday afternoon, and the body was taken to Boyyou Falls and buried.

But it is a relief for us to add that the murdered man was a devoted Christian and a classl-eader and steward in our church. We trust the church will remember at a throne of grace those who mourn the untimely death of a beloved father.

Lutheran Benevolent Society.

A special meeting of this society was held March 15, 1868, at the society rooms, 318 Gravier street.

At 8 P. M. the director called the house to order, and after singing the 421st hymn, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Royal.

On motion of Mr. Williams, the constitution was read.

Mr. Cambridge moved to proceed to the election of director, whereupon Edward Lefran and George Williams were nominated, but on the former declining, Rev. E. P. Royal was named in his place. On motion of Mr. Jones, Mr. Henderson Bland was appointed to preside during the election of officers. The following persons were then duly elected:

Director—Rev. E. P. Royal.
Trustee—Mr. P. Ricks.
Preacher—Rev. William Forest.
Marshals—Messrs. S. Williams. Campbell, Harrison, and Therigood Junior.
Pilgrims—Same as last year.
Mourning Women—Same as last year.
Sick Committee—Same as last year.

On motion of Mr. Forest, it was moved and carried that the proceedings of this meeting be published in the New Orleans ADVOCATE and New Orleans Republican.

On motion of Mr. Williams, the chairman appointed the following committee on printing:

L. Cambridge, E. J. Oglinel, J. Rivers, and H. Harrison.

The meeting then adjourned, and was dismissed with the benediction.

E. P. ROYAL, Director.
S. J. CHINN, Secretary.

Personal Items.

Bishop Morris was present most of the time during the recent session of the Kentucky conference at Newport, Kentucky, and by occasional counsel and words of cheer greatly gratified the members of the conference. The Western Advocate states that the Sunday school anniversary held on Sunday afternoon, on being called out to sing by Chaplain M'Cabe, the bishop remarked: "My best singing days are over; but I have a little piece which I sometime since learned, and which I occasionally sing in my way." He then, in a voice of remarkable distinctness, sang the words through, the audience joining in the chorus: "O come, angel band, come and around me stand." When the words were reached,

For I brush the dews on Jordan's banks,
The crossing must be near,

many were the filled eyes on the platform and in the pews. Quite a number of the ministerial brethren took each other by the hand and pledged in silence to gather on "the other shore." It was an experience not soon to fade from the heart.

Rev. James S. Payne, of the Liberia mission conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, has been elected and inaugurated president of the republic of Liberia, Africa. Mr. Payne is a native of Kentucky, and in early life, with his parents and brothers and sisters, was the slave of a rich widow named Mukes, who sent the whole family to Africa in 1840. He was educated at the Monrovia academy, and entering the ministry of the Methodist church, soon became a prominent member of the Liberia conference, serving as presiding elder for several years. He is said to be a man of marked ability, a successful writer on the science of political economy, and to understand thoroughly the institutions and wants of the African republic. He is the fourth president of Liberia. The slave boy of twenty-seven years ago is now the civil head of a republic containing over two hundred thousand inhabitants.

Dr. Jesse T. Peck's many friends will be gratified to learn that his new book, entitled "The American Republic from a Christian Standpoint," has made its appearance. It is an octavo of over seven hundred pages, illustrated with thirty-four fine steel engravings. The publishers, Messrs. Broughton & Wyman of this city, have brought out the work in the best style, a fact which cannot fail to gratify both the author and reader. The subject, the reputation of the author, and the excellent style of its publication, will insure it a hearty reception, and an extensive circulation. Its contents will in due time receive attention in the proper department of our columns.

New Orleans Advocate.

OFFICIAL JOURNAL OF THE UNITED STATES.

Published Every Saturday.

Rev. J. P. NEWMAN, D. D., Editor.
Rev. W. M. HENRY, Asst. Editor.
R. W. BOWIE, Agent.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year.....$3 00
Six Months..... 2 00
Three Months..... 1 00
INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One Square, first insertion.....$1 00
" each subsequent insertion..... 50
Ten Lines of Solid Nonpariel constitute a square.
☞Liberal arrangements will be made with yearly advertisers.

☞ The New Orleans Advocate can be obtained at the News Room of A. Simons, 85 Baronne street

SATURDAY, MARCH 28, 1868.

Republican National Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT,

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR,

H. C. WARMOTH.

FOR LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR,

OSCAR J. DUNN.

FOR SECRETARY OF STATE,

GEORGE BOVEE.

FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL,

SIMEON BELDEN.

FOR AUDITOR,

GEO. M. WICKLIFFE.

FOR TREASURER,

ANTOINE DUBUCLET.

FOR SUPERINTENDENT OF EDUCATION,

T. W. CONWAY.

Hon. Hugh J. Campbell is the regular nominee for state senator of the second district. Let the readers of the Advocate and all of our friends south of Canal street rally around this true Republican. He is eminently fitted for the position, and he will prove a true friend to the colored people in the state senate.

Editorial Items.

GALVESTON.

Rev. Mr. Honey writes on March 19: "I shall commence on next sabbath to hold services with the white congregation. We have hired the German Presbyterian church for the present, and hereafter shall preach regularly every Sunday afternoon." He also informs us that Rev. Joseph Welch is out on his great district, and is not expected in Galveston for some time to come.

Sunday-School Pic-Nic.

The Sunday-school of our church is to have a pic-nic in a few weeks, which we trust will be a very pleasant occasion. We are happy to record that the officers and teachers are zealous in their good work and have reason to be encouraged, and in behalf of the school we bespeak the interest of parents and our friends.

Mission School.

Mrs. Dr. Newman has organized a mission school in our chapel, which is held on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. This is a school for all, without respect to race or color. At first the number was small, but it has so rapidly increased that on last Sunday there were present 190 scholars. The young people of our church has manifested a commendable zeal in this work by serving as teachers, and we trust others will come, as more teachers are required. This school has become a point of interest to strangers in our city, and it is a treat to drop in and witness the enthusiasm displayed by both scholars and teachers.

J. V. Farwell, Esq.

This eminent layman of our Church is now in our city for the benefit of Mrs. Farwell's health. Since his arrival he has visited the several points of interest in and about New Orleans. On last Monday Evening he made an excellent address before the Young Men's Association of our Church, and his remarks made a deep impression on the minds of all present. The interest he has manifested in behalf of young men since he came among us, will sustain his home reputation for active efforts in behalf of this interesting portion of community. Chicago may well be proud of such a layman, and in wishing that he were permanently identified with our Church in New Orleans, we do not thereby break the tenth commandment, but simply obey Paul's injunction, "Covet earnestly the best gifts."

One Thousand Joined.

Rev. R. K. Diossy writes us that a thousand members, with their presiding elder, pastors, and churches, have recently dissolved their connection with another branch of the Methodist family, and have joined the mother church. "That's right, children," says Father Ross, "come back to your old mother; she has got bread enough, and to spare." And the editor saith, "Amen; let them come; there's room enough for all." There should be but one Methodist church in the South, and that, the "Methodist Episcopal church of the United States of America." The Southern Methodist church has had its day, and its mission is at an end; and the best it can do is to disband, and return to the church from which it seceded in 1844. The day for a formal reunion is past; but we have a door always open toward the South for those of our Southern brethren to enter who desire. With all their desperate efforts to survive the issues of the late war, they are weaker to-day and poorer than when their general conference was held in this city in the spring of 1866. We then ventured to prophesy that if they continued their separate organization they would gradually disappear from the face of the earth, and subsequent facts have sustained our prediction. Their once great circuits, which occupied the interior of the Southern states, have ceased to exist. In the smaller inland villages their meetinghouses are forsaken, and in the larger towns necessity has compelled the two or three societies which formerly worshipped separately to unite in one for self-preservation. In New Orleans they have three white churches, but only one of the three has more than a ghost of a congregation. Under such circumstances it is no marvel that their benevolent enterprises are failing, as significantly indicated by the resignation of the Rev. Dr. Sehon, the corresponding secretary of their missionary society. He is frank enough to state the true cause—the poverty of the Church South. And he might have assigned the additional reason—the lack of heart on the part of the people. Their missionary society never amounted to anything, and today it is an ecclesiastical corpse over which weeping Parson Deems and old John Early are reading the burial service.

To such a degree has God smitten this once slaveholding church with poverty and indifference, that their church editors have turned beggars to gather up their Peter Pence for the support of their hard-worked but poorly fed bishops. Their church journals are kept alive only by the most desperate efforts. The preachers in the patronizing conferences of a given journal have been compelled to turn hucksters of chickens, eggs, and butter, which they take from the people in pay for their church paper. These facts are stated in no spirit of triumph, but as indications that the day of the Southern church is past, and that Icabod is written upon her walls. And we solemnly hold that it would be of incalculable advantage to the South and to the cause of Christianity therein, if the Southern church should cease to be.

Nor do we apply these remarks to the Methodist Church South only, but to what are known as the African Mothodist Episcopal Church and the Zion Methodist Church. When we consider the true interests of Christianity, we deny the right of these Methodist churches to maintain a separate organization. Our own church is equal to meet all the wants of the South, for God has given her piety and zeal, wealth and intelligence, power and success as He has given to no other church in the South. Those separate, smaller, poorer, weaker organizations are of no permanent advantage to Christ's kingdom in their isolated condition, but united with us, their power for good would be increased a hundred fold. Then we say to all, "Come thou with us and we will do thee good, for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel."

Young Men's Association.

The association held its regular weekly meeting in our chapel on last Monday evening. General Bussey was in the chair, and a large audience was in attendance. Dr. C. B. White read an excellent essay, which will be found in full in another column. He was followed by J. V. Farwell, Esq., of Chicago, in a well-timed address. He said that war had given prominence to such associations, and the results of their labors had demonstrated their practicability. He related a personal incident which melted all hearts, and illustrated the power of prayer. He assured us that such was the interest in Chicago for their association that $40,000 had been subscribed for the erection of a hall which is to contain a free library.

Next in order was the debate on the question: "Is female suffrage compatible with a high state of civilization?" Captain Armstrong led off in the affirmative, and happily disappointed all his friends in his ability as a debater. He declared that we would never reach that perfection of morals till woman could vote, and in illustration of his faith in the good judgment of woman he said that his old friend Dr. J. V. C. Smith once said to him "that whenever he had gone contrary to his wife's advice he had failed, and that such was his determination to do what his wife said that if she should tell him to set the house on fire he would do it."

Mr. James followed on the negative side, and deprecated the appearance of women at the polls with the crowds which usually there congregate, because we would soon lose our admiration for woman.

Captain Houghton backed up Mr. James in a telling speech. He thought female suffrage would make Amazons of our American women, and if woman voted she must fight. He did not believe that our women would vote with their husbands, but as they like to be contrary they would vote oppositely. He did not want a copperhead to come to his house some evening and take his wife, cook, and chambermaid to a primary meeting, and leave him home to wash the dishes and put the children to bed. But he would not object to old maids voting provided they would swear that they never had had and never expected to have an offer to marry.

But Rev. Mr. Henry took the affirmative and made an able speech in favor of woman's voting. After his speech the president put the question to the audience, who voted in the negative. It was then announced that on next Monday evening Mr. John Howell would read an essay, General Brown recite selections, and that Messrs. Houghton and Hitch would debate the following question: "That we have a legal and a moral right to prohibit the sale of intoxicating spirits in the state of Louisiana."

H. C. Warmoth.

The enthusiasm of the country for Judge Warmoth is increasing every day and in all directions. In the country they know no other Republican candidates than the regular ticket. His record for the last six years is a brilliant one for a young man, and has secured for him the hearty indorsement of Thomas J. Durant, Judge Kelley, and Senator Wilson. Even the Tribune indorsed and supported Judge Warmoth in 1865. Now we ask if Judge Warmoth was patriotic enough, capable enough, and honest enough to be supported by the Tribune for Congress in 1865, why is he not sufficiently so to be governor in 1868? Is it because he never owned slaves? Judge Taliaferro did. Is it because he is not a conservative? Judge Taliaferro is. Is it because he is free from all old pro-slavery associates and influences like those which caused Wells to betray the Radical party? Judge Taliaferro is not.

Is it because Wells, Field, the Times, and the Crescent do not speak well of him?

They do of Judge Taliaferro.

Is it because the rebels will not vote for him?

They will vote for Taliaferro.

Is it because he favored colored suffrage in 1866?

Taliaferro was opposed to it.

Is it because he was in favor of article thirteen of the constitution?

Taliaferro opposed it.

Is it because he was in the Union army?

Taliaferro was not.

The difference between Judge Warmoth and Judge Taliaferro is this:

